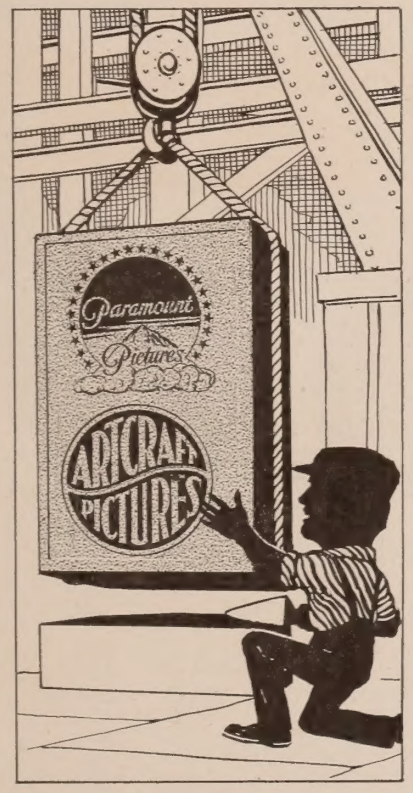
Motion Picture News

HAS THE QUALITY CIRCULATION OF THE TRADE

Digitized by the Internet Archive
in 2015



https://archive.org/details/motionpicturenew19moti_4

MARCH 1, 1919

Motion Picture News

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

DOMINATES THE FIELD

Build for Endurance

MAKE Paramount and Artcraft Pictures the foundation of your business.

They have been tested by time, they are of consistent quality—three new feature pictures every week to build good will and steady profits for the exhibitor who is working for permanent success.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR, Pres. JESSE L. LASKY, Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE, Director General
NEW YORK

VOL. XIX-NO. 9 Entered as Second Class Matter, October 13, 1913, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3rd, 1879 PRICE 15 CENTS
Published Weekly—$2.00 a year
Chicago — 729 Seventh Avenue, New York — Los Angeles

WHAT can you do to fill your house to capacity for seven days straight without paying exorbitant prices for your features and your advertising? What Star will have the same drawing power on Monday as on Saturday —what Plays will be uniformly fascinating —what Director will guarantee absolute perfection in staging — what Magic Name will result in one day's advertising doing the work of seven?

Put on a Mrs. Charlie Chaplin WEEK

Mildred Harris, directed by Lois Weber, has had the most meteoric career of any screen star now before the public. Bill her as "Mrs. Charlie Chaplin" (Mildred Harris) and the pictures will do the rest! Here are the plays — see your nearest Jewel Exchange today for advice and advertising helps.

"BORROWED CLOTHES"
"FOR HUSBANDS ONLY"
"WHEN A GIRL LOVES"
"THE PRICE OF A GOOD TIME"
"THE DOCTOR AND THE WOMAN"

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS
INCORPORATED
Executive Offices, 1600 Broadway, New York City

New Art Film Company presents

DOROTHY GISH in "BOOTS"

A Paramount Picture

By Martha Pittman. Scenario by M. M. Stearns. Directed by Elmer Clifton. Photographed by John Leeze

Spread the News!

Dorothy Gish already is established as a really big box office attraction.

Your people are talking about her. She's a big asset to any theatre.

Let everybody know she's coming in "Boots." Use the posters.

Paramount Pictures — FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION — ARTCRAFT PICTURES

ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

THE NEW ART FILM COMPANY PRESENTS

DOROTHY

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

GISH in "BOOTS"

A Paramount Picture

By Martha Pittman. Scenario by M. M. Stearns. Directed by Elmer Clifton. Photographed by John Leezer

When Dorothy Gish Tackles The Bolsheviki!

THE spunk of the Little Disturber and the independence of Battling Jane are rolled into one in "Boots."

The Bolsheviki try to put one over on her.

Imagine anybody, especially the Bolsheviki, trying to flim-flam Dorothy Gish! No chance!

There are thrills and romance and intrigue in "Boots."

No pinches! No nails!

Dorothy Gish at her best. Which means the whole town will be there to see her.

Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

These Advertisements will make every person in your town want to see Dorothy Gish in "Boots"

1 Col.

New Art Film Company presents

DOROTHY GISH in "BOOTS"

A Paramount Picture

Just shoes, but what a world of love, thrills and fun they hold

The same funny little girl who played "The Little Disturber" in "Hearts of the World"—and who has been getting better ever since.

ALSO

"Impropaganda"

A Paramount-Flagg Comedy

New Art Film Company presents

DOROTHY GISH in "BOOTS"

A Paramount Picture

Lots of people keep money in their boots but who ever thought that romance, thrills and intrigue could be found in them? See what Dorothy Gish's boots hold.

It's the same funny Dorothy Gish who played in "Hearts of the World," "Battling Jane" and "The Hope Chest"

By Martha Pittman — Scenario by M. M. Stearns
Directed by Elmer Clifton — Photographed by John Leezer

EXTRA ATTRACTION

Mr. & Mrs. Sydney Drew

IN

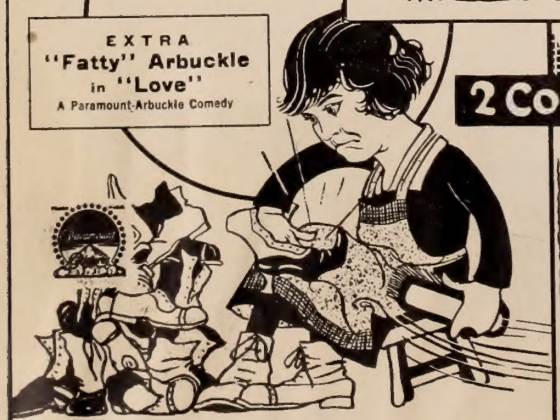
"Romance and Rings"

A Paramount-Drew Comedy

3 Col.

New Art Film Compar

DOROT GIS in "BOO'



A Paramount P

Old shoes are a st place in which to for romance, treaso intrigue, but Dorothy found them there.

EXTRA

"Fatty" Arbuckle in "Love"

A Paramount-Arbuckle Comedy

2 Col.

They've made you that way, haven't they? That's the test!

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION

ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General

NEW YORK

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

VITAGRAPH

Albert E. Smith
Presents

HARRY T. MOREY
in
"Silent Strength"

Written by Lawrence McCloskey Directed by Paul Scardon

A Feature Without Let-Up!

"Silent Strength" is the same kind of a story that Harry Morey is a star---it's big, it's virile, there's no artificiality in its make-up.

It is not a picture with merely one big, dominating situation. It's big scene after big scene --- drama --- thrill --- suprise --- action --- power gaining momentum from its very first flash to its great crashing climax.

"Silent Strength" is universally conceded to be the strongest Morey release of months. It is the kind of a feature that always has and always will mean box-office success and satisfied audiences.

VITAGRAPH STARS

"FROM HEADQUARTERS"

ANITA STEWART in

The Most Powerful Police Drama Ever Written

"FROM HEADQUARTERS" brings to the screen the most dominant, heart-searching drama of a generation—pounding, pulsing, throbbing with passion and pathos.

"FROM HEADQUARTERS" pictures a woman's soul on the rack of "justice"—a father's soul torn between love and duty—a man's soul burned of its iniquity by a woman's sacrifice and redeeming love.

"FROM HEADQUARTERS" is a living, breathing, virile, crashing drama of tremendous situations, building up to an overwhelming climax.

"FROM HEADQUARTERS" is life laid bare—a picture that will seize upon every emotion of your audiences—a picture that people will want to see again and again and again.

Directed by RALPH INCE

ANITA STEWART

IS MAGNIFICENT—SUPERB—IN

"FROM HEADQUARTERS"

Read This Story of Elemental Passions

IT all seemed like a nightmare to her—the private office—the leering lips that once had whispered words of love—the knife—the moment of vengeance.

And then—her own father—known by the world as a never-failing detective, grim, relentless—assigned to the case, only to find the trail doubling back to his own home.

The very peak of drama is reached in this tense climax—one of the countless situations in "From Headquarters," affording Anita Stewart one of the greatest opportunities of her distinguished screen career.

VITAGRAPH

Albert E. Smith, President

HOUDINI

¶ CONSIDER THESE REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD BOOK "THE MASTER MYSTERY"

¶ IT STARS THE MOST UNIQUE AND WIDELY KNOWN ARTIST OF THE DAY

¶ IT IS A SUPER SERIAL—EACH TWO REEL EPISODE IS A BIG FEATURE

¶ IT STANDS ALONE AS A NEW TYPE OF SCREEN ENTERTAINMENT

¶ IT IS THE DAY'S GREATEST MONEY MAKING OPPORTUNITY

ROLFE PRODUCTIONS OF NORTHERN NEW JERSEY
729 Seventh Avenue
New York City

ROLFE PRODUCTIONS OF DALLAS
1911½ Commerce Street
Dallas Texas

ROLFE PRODUCTIONS OF ATLANTA
67 Walton Street
Atlanta, Ga.

ARROW FILM EXCHANGE OF PHILADELPHIA
1235 Vine Street
Philadelphia, Pa.

ROLFE PRODUCTIONS OF PITTSBURGH
412 Ferry Street
Pittsburgh, Pa.

EXHIBITORS FILM EXCHANGE
420 Ninth Street, N. W.
Washington, D. C.

ROLFE PRODUCTIONS OF NEW ENGLAND
48 Piedmont Street
Boston, Mass.

EFFANO FILM EXCHANGE
Carey Wilson, Manager
729 Seventh Avenue
New York City

CELEBRATED PLAYERS FILM CORPORATION
207 South Wabash Street
Chicago, Ill.

REGAL FILMS, LTD.
21 Adelaide St., W.
Toronto, Ont.

EXPORT AND IMPORT FILM COMPANY
729 Seventh Avenue
New York City

MID WEST DIS. CO.
Ralph A. Wettstein, Mgr.
Toy Building, Milwaukee, Wis.

STAR FEATURE FILM SERVICE
Sloan Building, Cleveland, O.

CRITERION FILM SERVICE
216 Baronne Street
New Orleans, La.

JOSEPH GOODSTEIN
Denver, Colorado

OCTAGON FILMS, INC.

B A. ROLFE PRODUCTIONS

Executive Offices:
18 East 41st Street, New York City

SELECT SP PICTURES

ALICE BRADY

brilliantly portrays a pleasure-seeking young American girl in her latest Select Picture,

"THE WORLD TO LIVE IN"

By W. Carey Wonderly

Scenario by Margaret Turnbull

Directed by Charles Maigne

"There is a wholesomeness about Alice Brady and a fresh young beauty that make her a most attractive picture, whatever be the particular role she is essaying."
—Rochester Post

"CAPACITY OPENING SUNDAY"

WITH

"AT THE LYRIC THEATRE, MINNEAPOLIS"

"APPROXIMATELY SEVEN THOUSAND PAID ADMISSIONS"

Wires R. K. Evans

EVERY SECTION OF THE COUNTRY REPORTS BIG BUSINESS FOR THIS EXTRAORDINARY ATTRACTION

Booking Placed By INDEPENDENT SALES CORP.

Distributed Through
FILM CLEARING HOUSE, Inc.

Foreign rights controlled by Apollo Trading Co., Longacre Theatre Bldg., New York

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

REX BEACH PICTURES

My Biggest Picture Since "The Spoilers."
Rex Beach

These are Rex Beach's own telegraphed words about one of his greatest stories; a drama of stormy passions and frozen trails; of the primitive days in the silent White North, where man made his own laws and wrought his own vengeance.

Under Goldwyn Direction

there has been produced for nation-wide release on March 9

A tremendous seven-reel picturization of

Rex Beach's

Powerful Drama of the Yukon

THE BRAND

Directed by Reginald Barker

This is so strong a picture, so worthy of extra playing time and of being exploited in all houses as an exceptional special production that we would not consider releasing it in less than its seven vital reels. It is one of our Rex Beach Star Series, but if you booked it singly as a special production you would willingly pay greatly advanced rentals. This production will mark an event in the life of every theatre.

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDWYN President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

Louis Bennison
and 500 Theatres

LAST week in six business days five hundred exhibitors signed contracts for the Louis Bennison Star Series, distributed through Goldwyn. It is also a fact that each Goldwyn manager and each Goldwyn salesman, the entire membership of the sales organization, had several Bennison contracts to his personal credit in the week. He's growing fast.

There's a very good reason for these records: The public likes Louis Bennison. Everywhere exhibitors have found that he caught on instantly. "Oh, Johnny!" was and continues to be popular. "Sandy Burke of the U-Bar-U" pulled even stronger. And "Speedy Meade," the next production, is as swift as an express train. You'll pay more later for Bennison than we are asking now.

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDWYN President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

HENRY FORD, as a manufacturer of motor cars, has made a product that is so thoroughly a good "buy" in a mercantile sense, that despite his tremendous production capacity he never is, never has been and perhaps never will be able to take care of the customers waiting to be served. Exactly the same principles and influences guide him in demanding and obtaining the highest quality at the lowest rental price in The Ford Educational Weekly. We will get him the 7,000 exhibitor-customers he desires. We have reached the 3,000 mark in eight weeks.

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDWYN President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

The important first run houses in the largest cities of the country instantly have recognized the value and the power of attraction in Zane Grey's powerful screen drama, "The Border Legion," starring Blanche Bates and Hobart Bosworth and directed by T. Hayes Hunter.

"The Border Legion" is one of the strongest melodramas brought to the screen in the past two years; a romantic story of lawless California in the mad, golden days of '49.

Michigan exhibitors should watch how it "goes over" this week at the Majestic, Detroit. Ohioans will see its big success this week at the Gifts, Cincinnati and the Standard, Cleveland.

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDWYN President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

Never before in the history of the screen have there been any comedies that so quickly established themselves in world-wide favor and reputation as Capitol Comedies, which are now served regularly through Goldwyn to 3,300 theatres. No comedian is so regularly seen as "Smiling Bill" Parsons.

The next four Capitol Comedies for current release represent the most laughable achievements of this unusual star: "A Master of Music," "The New Breakfast Food," "The Potum of Swat," and "The Midnight Alarm."

Theatres, large and small, theatres that are jealous of their reputations, theatres that exercise the most careful judgment—all play Capitol Comedies.

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDWYN President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

You are wasting your opportunities if YOU ignore advertising.

★ UNITED ★ STATES ★ GOVERNMENT ★

"UNDER FOUR FLAGS"

The Government's Great Victory Picture

This visualization of how the war was won will establish a world's record for bookings, outdoing the remarkable attainment of "America's Answer" in this respect.

"AMERICA'S ANSWER"—Was shown in more theatres than any other feature that has ever been marketed. Still being booked.

"U. S. A. SERIES"—A remarkable series of two reelers showing how America accomplished its task of carrying on warfare. Now on release.

"UNDER FOUR FLAGS," the great Victory picture of America and the Allies, gives the exhibitors of the smaller towns a remarkable opportunity for box office profits.

The Government rental price is fixed on a scale that allows a margin not obtainable with any other attraction.

The picture is the only authentic method of showing how the war was won. The people of the country all want to see this.

The people of the smaller towns are awaiting this opportunity. In some of these towns in which the picture has been exhibited almost the entire populace has attended.

Exhibitors can give their patrons what they want. The rental is figured on a basis that permits high profit at regular admission prices.

OFFICIAL U. S. WAR PICTURES

The Official War Review—(Weekly)—Pathé

Pershing's Crusaders—First National Exhibitors

Our Bridge of Ships—General Film Corporation

America's Answer

Under Four Flags

U. S. A. Series

Available through the WORLD FILM CORPORATION, except FOR CALIFORNIA Sol. L. Lesser, State Council of Defense, San Francisco.

FOR MICHIGAN Michigan War Preparedness Board, Lansing. (Except Detroit and Wayne County, through World Film Corporation.)

COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC INFORMATION, George Creel, Chairman

Through the Division of Films, Charles S. Hart, Director, Washington, D. C.

The Bureau of War Expositions—presented by the United States and Allied Governments

HERBERT LUBIN

Presents

E. K. LINCOLN

in the pre-eminent screen attraction of the year

VIRTUOUS MEN

personally directed by

RALPH INCE

FOREIGN DISTRIBUTORS
J. Frank Brockliss, Inc.
Sidney Garrett, President

Announces

E.K. LINCOLN

Supported by a notable cast, including

GRACE DARLING - CLARA JOEL
W.B. MACK - ROB'T W. CUMMINGS
JOHN P. WADE - IRVING BROOKS in the initial

RALPH INCE FILM ATTRACTION

Arthur H. Sawyer
Supervisor of Productions

FOURTEEN SEVENTY-SIX BROADWAY
New York

Speaking of Scoops—

Pathé News

1. President Wilson's arrival in London (beat competition by three weeks) shown Jan. 11
2. President Wilson's tour through England (beat competition by one week) shown Jan. 22
3. King Albert's entry into Brussels (Exclusive) shown Jan. 11
4. French entry into Alsace Lorraine (Exclusive) shown Jan. 8
5. Demonstration of American tanks (Exclusive) shown Jan. 4
6. Vindictive sunk in Zeebrugge (Exclusive) shown Jan. 4
7. Aeroplane flight over Washington, shown Jan. 18
8. Guatemala earthquake, shown Jan. 4
9. Aeroplane flight over New York (beat competition by 27 days) shown Dec. 18
10. Naval dirigible flight over New York (shown Dec. 25) (Exclusive)
11. Submarine chasers in heavy seas (beat competition by a week) shown Dec. 25
12. King of Italy's entrance into Trieste (Exclusive) Jan. 18
13. The first pictures of the German Revolution, shown Feb. 8

Many of the above events the competition has not yet shown. Pathé News leads!

You are wasting your opportunities if YOU ignore advertising.

Pathé Review

A Film Magazine

The selection of the best houses everywhere. It's in

New York's Strand
" " 77th Street
" " Plaza
Chicago's Riviera
Los Angeles' California
San Francisco's California
Cincinnati's Gifts
Dayton's Dayton
Philadelphia's Stanley
Milwaukee's Saxe
Scranton's Comeford
Washington's Rialto
Kansas City's Royal
Denver's Isis
Seattle's Liberty
Detroit's Madison
Newark's Strand
Buffalo's Strand
Rochester's Regent and a lot of others!

Wonderful slow motion photography, Pathécolor scenics, scientific bits, etc.

One Reel Every Other Week

PATHÉ
DISTRIBUTORS

When she was in Des Moines, Omaha, and other cities recently on her trip to the coast she was a big front page story. Her popularity was most strikingly proved.

Cash in with her latest feature –

BABY MARIE OSBORNE

in

THE OLD MAID'S BABY

Produced by Diando Directed by Wm. Bertram

Written by Agnes Johnston

PATHÉ
DISTRIBUTORS

The more YOU read these advertisements the more useful to YOU we can make the "NEWS"

FRAN UNAFRAID OF THE JUNGLE MONARCH WAS MORE THAN A MATCH FOR THE GOSSIPING SMALL TOWN.
....."CATS".....

LESTER PARK
PRESENTS
LILLIAN
WALKER
IN

"the love hunger"

DIRECTED BY WILLIAM P. S. EARLE
ADAPTED FROM THE NOVEL FRAN
BY JOHN BRECKENRIDGE ELLIS UNDER ARRANGEMENT WITH BOBBS-MERRILL CO. DISTRIBUTED BY THE W.W. HODKINSON CORPORATION THRU PATHE EXCHANGE, INC.

SELZNICK PICTURES

IS YOUR BOX OFFICE ASLEEP?

WAKE IT UP WITH A FRANCHISE
FOR EIGHT PRODUCTIONS YEARLY,
PRESENTED BY MYRON SELZNICK, STARRING

OLIVE THOMAS

Beginning with

'UPSTAIRS AND DOWN'

Ready in March

DIRECTION CHARLES GIBLYN

SELZNICK PICTURES
CORPORATION
MYRON SELZNICK - - - - - - - - - President
CHARLES GIBLYN - - - - - - - Director General
501 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

TWENTY MILLION

PEOPLE HAVE BEEN COMMUNICATED WITH IN REGARD TO THIS FILM

AMERICA'S FOREMOST THINKERS AND DOERS ARE TOURING THE WORLD ENDORSING THE SUBJECT

WHOM THE GODS WOULD DESTROY

It is a giant romance. It was produced by the finest available screen talent gleaned from all the studios at Los Angeles.

Adapted from C. R. Macauley's story Humanity to place before the world Woodrow Wilson's plans for a League of Nations

Its action is swift. Its plots are many and suspenseful. Its thrills are distributed plentifully throughout the seven reels. The sets are lavish. The big scenes are beyond comparison. The cast is remarkable in that the fourteen principals have all, at one time or another in the recent past starred or featured in big special features.

In the presence of several hundred of the most important film executives, one scene costing twenty thousand dollars was made. This scene is used merely as a flash.

The imagination cannot conceive of a greater more timely subject. With Ex-President Taft, Dr. Henry Van Dyke, Ambassador Gerard and other noted thinkers touring the country in behalf of the various league of nations organizations the releasing of

WHOM THE GODS WOULD DESTROY SHOULD PROVE
The Greatest Business Magnet of the Period

THE GREATEST STORY SINCE THE WORLD BEGAN

15,000,000 killed
21,000,000 crippled
24,000,000 homeless
10,000,000 widows
17,000,000 fatherless
13,000,000 orphans
Dynasties wiped out
Kings executed
Emperors banished
Statesmen assassinated
Royal families destroyed
Nations laid waste
Pestilence let loose
Fever and plague rampant
Trench diseases abroad
Crime increases provoked
Misery and poverty heightened
300,000,000,000 wasted
200,000,000,000 debts
3,000,000 miles of ruin
200,000 blind
2,000,000 consumptives

The above details provoked

WOODROW WILSON'S

PLANS for A LEAGUE OF NATIONS and THE MOTION PICTURE

WHOM THE GODS WOULD DESTROY

WHOM THE GODS WOULD DESTROY

Directed by FRANK BORZAGE
Produced by OLLIE L. SELLERS

with an important cast of prominent players will be shown simultaneously at New York, Paris, London, Rome, Buenos Aires, Sidney and other world centres under auspices of various league of nations organizations. ::

It is romance - sensation - history
It contains ample thrills
It is superb as a story
It is a vital world factor
It is backed by America's foremost thinkers
Two million people have been directly written to in its behalf

IT IS THE OUTSTANDING FILM SUBJECT OF THE PERIOD

Releasing arrangements announced shortly by

MACAULEY PHOTOPLAYS, Inc.
516 FIFTH AVENUE
NEW YORK VANDERBILT 4010

Harry L. Reichenbach, Special Rep.

You are wasting your opportunities if YOU ignore advertising.

WORLD-PICTURES

Photographed in Natural Colors

PRIZMA

THE SUPREME ACHIEVEMENT

NOW SHOWING IN AMERICA'S FINEST THEATRES

CURRENT WORLD RELEASE

JUNE ELVIDGE

in

"THE MORAL DEADLINE"

with FRANK MAYO

Story by EARLE MITCHELL
Directed by TRAVERS VALE

The 100%

Not a War Picture

A Screen Review of All Civilization
The Problem of the Peace Conference
Cash in on McClure's National Publicity Campaign
Start a Voting Contest in Your Theatre

Showman's Picture

THE FASTEST GROWING MOTION

"I'M IN THE MOVIES NOW!

And I'm going to send you a big broadside—you'll know me better then. Watch for it."

—OLD BILL

Premier Presentation :—

"THE BETTER 'OLE," or The Romance of Old Bill, Strand Theatre, New York, Week of February 23

KINOGRAMS

THE VISUAL NEWS
OF ALL THE WORLD

NEXT WEEK—

A List of Kinograms Users That Will Form the "Who's Who" of Motion Picture Owners

---

"AMERICA'S ANSWER"

"UNDER FOUR FLAGS"

U. S. A. SERIES (2 Reels)

PICTURE COMPANY IN THE WORLD

FRANK E. WOODS

SUPERVISING DIRECTOR OF

PARAMOUNT PRODUCTIONS

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY, HOLLYWOOD STUDIOS

WILLIS & INGLIS
Personal Representatives
Los Angeles

ALL THE STARS IN THE WORLD—

UNDER ONE BANNER ---------- AT YOUR DISPOSAL

BACKED BY THE MOST SENSATIONAL ADVERTISING AND PAPER EVER CREATED

NEW STARS EVERY WEEK READY NOW! SIX PICTURES EVERY WEEK

"BAFFLED SOCIETY"	"RUNNING WILD"
"THE WHITE PAPOOSE"	"THE SQUARE GAMBLER"
"RAILROAD RAIDERS"	"DANGER AHEAD"
"SECRET SERVICE DAN"	"THE CLUE"
"THROUGH THE STORM"	"THE OLD MISER"

A Really Diversified Program Consisting of Dramas, Comedies, Railroad and Detective Plays, Society and Problem Plays, Comedy-Dramas and Sensational Westerns.

"FOREMOST STARS IN SHORT FEATURES"

WRITE - WIRE - PHONE OR HOP A TRAIN TO YOUR NEAREST CAPITAL EXCHANGE

NOW NOW

CHICAGO 220 - 222 SO. STATE ST.

CLEVELAND 407 SLOAN BLDG.

ST. LOUIS 3431 OLIVE ST.

PHILADELPHIA 1314 VINE ST.

MINNEAPOLIS 421 LOEB ARCADE

INDIANAPOLIS 211 WIMMER BLDG.

OR WRITE OR WIRE THE EXECUTIVE OFFICE

CAPITAL FILM CO. INC.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND. — IKE SCHLANK, PRES.

Woodrow Wilson's return makes him again the center of attention in the United States · What this great American has done in Europe at the Peace Table is borne out in the most timely picture of the day

The Great Victory

Wilson or the Kaiser

The Fall of the Hohenzollerns

THIS is the exhibitors opportunity and we make special mention of it so that you can arrange prompt bookings accordingly·

METRO PICTURES CORPORATION

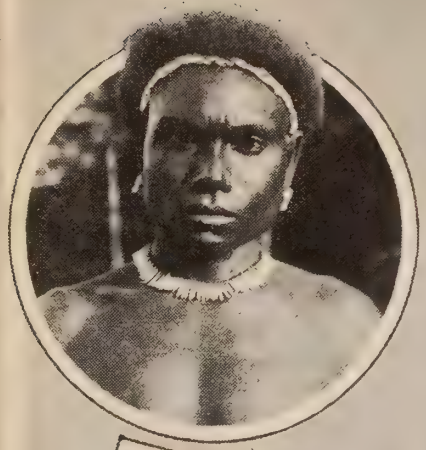
How can an advertiser continue advertising? By giving YOU value.

Announcing the 1919 Series of

OUTING CHESTER PICTURES

Produced by C.L. Chester in co-operation with Outing Magazine / Distributed by FIRST NATIONAL EXCHANGES

2nd. Release



Teddy Birds.

A Close-up of the Late, Theodore Roosevelt

You are wasting your opportunities if YOU ignore advertising.

They're Money Makers

Proved so by the Box Office

MARTIN JOHNSON'S

"Cannibals of the South Seas"

Exhibitor's Box Office Report

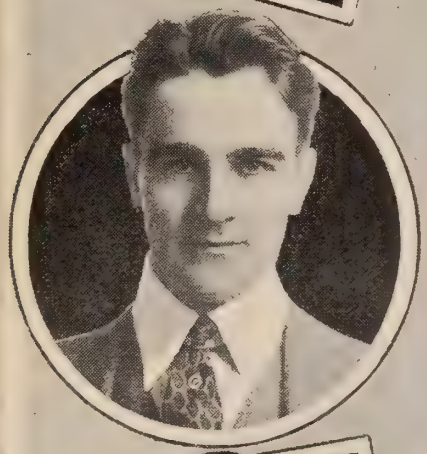
"Big Business. Now in its second week with me and playing capacity. Don't let imaginative ideas account lack of clothes keep you from booking this winner. Picture gave good satisfaction.

"Consensus—Excellent picture with great drawing power."

—Motion Picture News.

BILLIE RHODES

in



"The Girl of My Dreams"

Produced by National Film Corporation of America

"What the Picture Did For Me"

"Pleased every one. Played to good business. Patrons want more entertainment of this kind. F. G. Heller, Starland Theatre, Anderson, Ind. High class patronage."

—Exhibitors Herald and Motography.

WILLIAM DESMOND

in

"Life's a Funny Proposition"

Presented by Jesse D. Hampton

"It is a wholesome comedy and provides incidents of comic interest which most anyone can appreciate."

—Exhibitors Herald and Motography.

BESSIE BARRISCALE

in

"All of Sudden Norma"

Produced by B. B. Features

Exhibitor's Box Office Report

"Excellent. Very pleasing."

—Motion Picture News.

Released through

EXHIBITORS MUTUAL

Division of Films
ROBERTSON-COLE COMPANY
Bankers and Exporters for the Producers

A PICTURE AS BIG AS THE GREAT NORTH

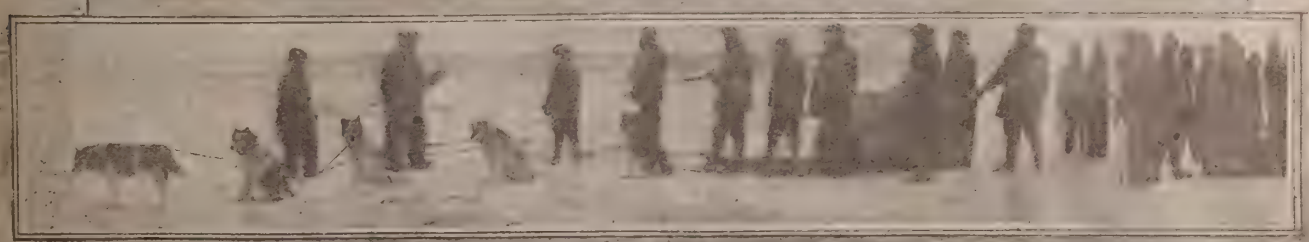
Triangle Presents

HAZEL DALY and MATT MOORE

in

"A Wild Goose Chase"

A portrayal of the Noble, the Daring, the Heroic deeds of a courageous woman, to save the man she loves. And portrayed with a realism that carries conviction.



Clean—Stirring—Wholesome Action

Scheduled for Early Release

TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

1457 BROADWAY NEW YORK

This play will profit because it will please

VICTORY PICTURES

FOX

FILM CORPORATION

A DRAMA THAT WILL

Gladys Brockwell in

The FORBIDDEN ROOM

A WILLIAM FOX PRODUCTION

DIRECTED BY LYNN REYNOLDS

PACK YOUR THEATRE

WILLIAM FOX
presents
MADLAINE TRAVERSE
in Gambling in Souls

The story of a widow's fight against ruin.

Directed by Harry Millar

EXCEL PICTURES
FOX
FILM CORPORATION

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

YOUR CHANCE FOR A CLEAN-UP

WILLIAM FOX
PRESENTS

THEDA BARA
IN SALOME

DIRECTED BY J. GORDON EDWARDS

INDEPENDENT BASIS

FOX
FILM CORPORATION

ALL FOX EXCHANGES

BOOK IT NOW

From Coast to Coast it's the Unanimous Story

The Story that interests you-the Big Box Office Story of
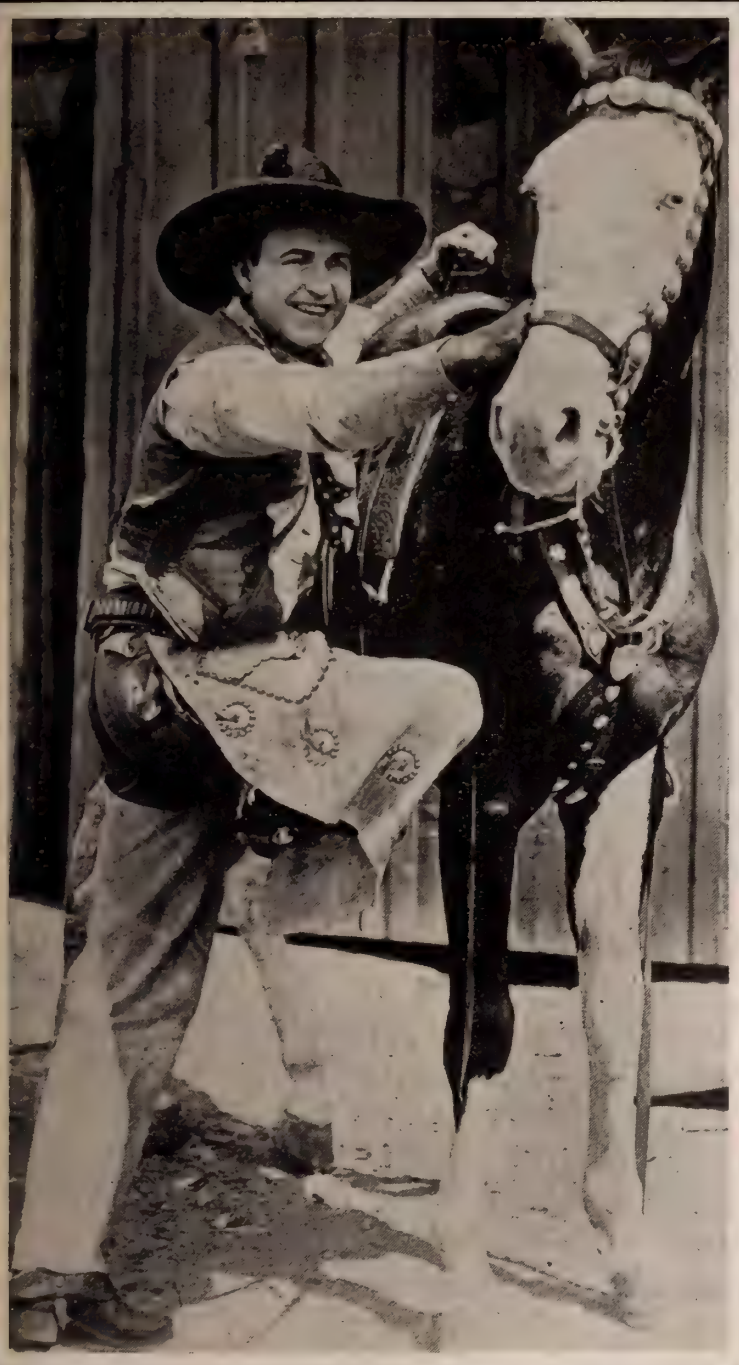
The Best-Gowned Woman of the Screen
in
'The best picture I have ever done'
Kitty Gordon

'Packing them in from Noon to Closing.'
Turner & Dahnken San Francisco

'Breaking records; standing them up afternoon and night"
Strand Theatre, Newark, N. J.



Kitty Gordon
in
'ADELE'

from Adele Bleneau's 'The Nurse's Story.'
Directed by Wallace Worsley.

A BIG SMASHING SUCCESS!
-DUSTIN FARNUM-
THE LIGHT OF WESTERN STARS

"Excellent Picture-A Big Puller" M.P.NEWS

Dustin Farnum's Second United Superpicture

Big in Every Respect

M.P. NEWS

A Big Strong Story, Star Remarkably Skilled, Wonderful Direction, Splendid Settings We advise a long run.

M. P. News.

A MAN IN THE OPEN

From the Novel by ROGER POCOCK

Directed by ERNEST C. WARDE

FOREIGN DISTRIBUTOR
David. P. Howells
729 - 7TH AVE N.Y.C.

UNITED BRANCHES AT WORLD FILM EXCHANGES

United Picture Theatres of America INC

1600 Broadway J.A.BERST pres. New York.

Announcement of Prize Winners

in

"THE ROMANCE OF TARZAN"

$1200. Liberty Bond Advertising Competition

The Board of Judges—

Mr. R. E. Pritchard of Motion Picture News.
Mr. Epes W. Sargent of Moving Picture World.
Mr. R. E. Barremore of Exhibitors' Trade Review.
Mr. A. J. Beecroft of Exhibitors' Herald and Motography.

Announce Awards For

THEATRES OF THE FIRST CLASS—Two thousand seats and more.
S. BARRETT MCCORMICK, CIRCLE THEATRE, INDIANAPOLIS, IND., first prize $150.
GEORGE FISCHER, SAXE'S ALHAMBRA THEATRE, MILWAUKEE, WIS., second prize $100.
I. KUHN, LOEW'S STILLMAN THEATRE, CLEVELAND, O., third prize $50.

THEATRES OF THE SECOND CLASS—One thousand to two thousand seats.
P. E. NOBLE AND E. J. MEYRICK, LIBERTY THEATRE, PORTLAND, ORE., first prize $150.
HARRY MCDONALD, FOX'S THEATRE, SPRINGFIELD, MASS., second prize $100.
VICTORIA THEATRE, PHILADELPHIA, PA., third prize $50.

THEATRES OF THE THIRD CLASS—Seven hundred and fifty to one thousand seats.
C. EDGAR MOMAND, GARDEN THEATRE, FLINT, MICH., first prize $150.
H. C. CORHAN, AMERICAN THEATRE, HOPEWELL, VA., second prize $100.
M. M. RUBENS, PRINCESS THEATRE, JOLIET, ILL., third prize $50.

THEATRES OF THE FOURTH CLASS—Less than seven hundred and fifty seats.
L. L. WILLEY, COLONIAL THEATRE, ROCHESTER, N. H., first prize $150.
E. N. COLLINS, LIBERTY THEATRE, ELECTRA, TEXAS, second prize $100.
F. R. SMITH, BIJOU THEATRE, FON DU LAC, WIS., third prize $50.

The prizes are Liberty Bonds of the Fourth Issue and have been mailed this week by First National Exhibitors' Circuit to the above named exhibitors.

THE TARZAN PICTURES MADE BIG MONEY FOR THESE EXHIBITORS—THEY WILL MAKE BIG MONEY FOR YOU.

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS CIRCUIT

"I coulda made it quicker but I want it to be good."

"It'll be ready soon now."

Jack Pickford

In a comedy drama of small town life

"In Wrong"

Some title, eh?

Jack's playing in big league company now.
Watch him make good with "First National."

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS CIRCUIT

HARRY MAZE JENKS
LONDON ENG.

Offers to the American trade a number of photoplays representing the best in recent British production. Photographed among the surroundings which have become famous in literature—written by well-known authors, some of whose names are famous in America—and played by the best talent obtainable—this group of pictures should have a strong appeal for American audiences.

There are love stories among them, picturing quaint bits of gypsy caravan life,—melodrama with all the thrills of the race track and stage—strong dramatic stories showing the higher type of English life, and, in contrast, stories of picturesque lower classes with all the humor and pathos which have such a strong human appeal.

With these pictures as a nucleus, Harma photoplays is prepared to enter into arrangements for regular production for the American market with an organization of unquestioned standing.

Synopses and still pictures of a number of these productions are on file at the office of Motion Picture News and will be shown to your accredited representative on request.

Harma Productions

The Great Impostor

A strong dramatic offering with an unusual punch

FIVE REELS

The Splendid Coward

From the novel by Houghton Townley

SIX REELS

Master of Men

From the story by E. Phillips Oppenheim

FIVE REELS

A Romany Lass

A story of absorbing interest of life among the gypsies

FIVE REELS

Deception

An exciting story of woman's deceit

FIVE REELS

White Star

A romance of the turf and stage

FIVE REELS

Big Money

From the novel by May Wynne

FIVE REELS

Nature's Gentleman

A story founded upon caste prejudices

FIVE REELS

Mr. Jenks also offers several photoplays produced by Clarendon Films

HARRY MAZE JENKS
101 Wardour Street, London, W. 1
Cable, Harramajen-Ox, London

Ansell Removed From Military Justice Post

Relieved Ten Days Ago, but Denies Views Expressed to Congressmen Was Cause

Is Winning His Fight

Senate Committee Members Indicate Intention to Revise Courts Martial Law

By Theodore M. Knappen
New York Tribune Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—If the attitude of the members of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, and that of other members of Congress, expressed both privately and in debate, is of any value as a criterion, Acting Judge Advocate General Ansell is in a fair way to win the fight for making [illegible] he has [illegible] or more.

Genera[l] pression tary Affa[irs] son of h[is] his subje[ct] standing jurisp[rudence] pressed so bold[ly] in he h[as] military is almos[t]

The f[ight] West years' advice not at[tain]ment o[f] be assu[med] of mili[tary] so surp[rising] what t[he] heary he wa[s] to wh[om] him of judicial

Gen[eral] his vi[ews] part with t[he] in the ment. removal obedien[ce] views, of the der, ma[y] for hir[ing] that r[ecent] perior[ity]

He a[sked] ago he[r] duties, summer advocate cially co[nsidered] section he has

Sena[tor] was a[n] cance, conce[ived] as th[e] sons for duties. in a po[sition] for the tary cou[rt]

In ad[dition] improv[ement] pendi[ng] milit[ary] cedu[re] princ[iple] a sugge[stion] ators th[at] some so[rt] review that wo[uld] military with a contrar[y] of law tional r[ight]

Execu[tive] undo m[ay] done, b[ut] record would extensio[n]

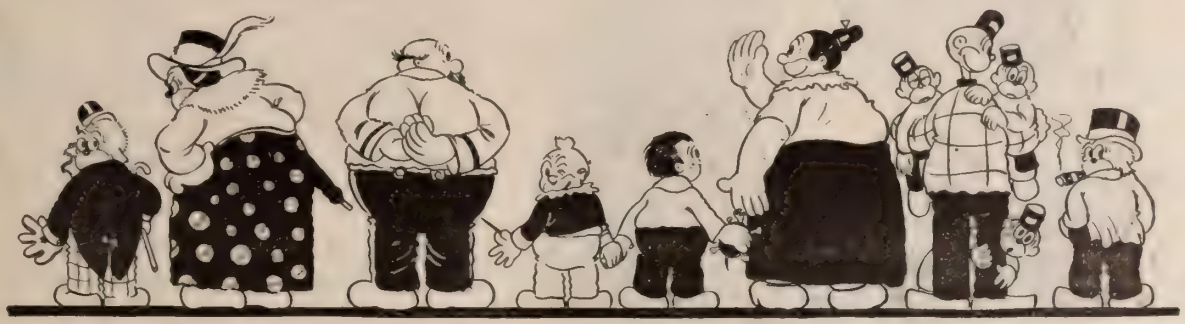
4,000 Troops Due Here To-day on Two Ships

[illegible]o-day

his poverty-stricken father, s[o] critically ill. When the en[d] was over he voluntarily return[ed] it appeared that he had never [had] slightest intention of deserting

Leaves Tainted Record

Yes----I'm in the Movies Now!



"THE BETTER 'OLE"
STRAND THEATRE
NEXT WEEK

A Picture So Big You Can Advertise It For Almost Nothing!

"The Better 'Ole" 's star, Old Bill, is so well kno[wn] through the millions of books sold, cartoons running da[ily] for months in the big newspapers, numerous touring t[he]atrical companies (charging and getting $2 admissions – that you can put over a cyclonic advertising campaign [for] him at very small cost. Just flash the famous "Old Bi[ll]" face and hitch your theatre's name to it! That can be do[ne] as effectively in "42 lines agate" as with a full page. A[nd] that face will "own" the page, anyway. In the New Yo[rk] Sunday World, Herald, Times, American, Sun and Tribu[ne] (where "The Strand, Broadway and 47th Street," was [the] theatre underlined) the very copy we reproduce, stood [out] over all the big copy of the big advertisers. In every one [of] these great New York Sunday papers, "The Better 'Ol[e]" copy appeared in the Main News and not in the regu[lar] amusement section. It ran single-column, next to readi[ng] matter, and people started calling up "The Strand" for r[e]servations right off the bat. This is a tip to other first r[un] houses who want attractions that have publicity punch—[to] managers who expect 100 per cent returns from th[eir] advertising.

AT WORLD FILM EXCHANGES ONL[Y]

PRESENTED BY CINEMA DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION
INTER-OCEAN BUILDING, NEW YORK, N.Y.
PAUL H. CROMELIN, President

Back Again—Funnier than Ever

Exhibitors all over the country will welcome the joyful return of the Hearst-International Cartoons—the "Shenanigan Kids," "Happy Hooligan," "Judge Rumhouser"—the cleverest comic folks in pictures. First release, March 10th—"Judge Rumhouser's Miscue"—the only comedy on this week's program at the Rialto Theatre.

Showmanship—and "The Washington Sky Patrol"

Ingenious showmanship made this current release one of the biggest features of the Broadway Theatre program this past week. You can take a page from the book of Managing Director M. Kashin—and put your audience on the observer's seat of a military "stunt" plane. Use the catchline "Twenty Thousand Leagues in the Air" for lobby display; add to the realism by presenting the picture with all lights out and with appropriate sound effects—and give your audience all the thrills that go with "looping the loop" over the city of Washington. Wire your nearest Educational exchange for early dates.

EDUCATIONAL FILMS CORPORATION OF AMERICA

729 7th AVENUE NEW YORK, N.Y.

"BOB EVANS KILLED MY DAD AND I'LL KILL BOB EVANS, I SWEAR I WILL!"

—said Arizona Farnley when Evans shot her father in a bar-room fight at "The Oasis."

No writer could put more thrills into a single picture than George Elliot, Jr., put into

OTIS B. THAYER'S

"MISS ARIZONA"

Produced by Art-O-Graf Film Co.

A Sensational Western that will make you grip the arms of your chair.

IT'S COMING!

THE DEMON'S SHADOW

The astounding photoplay serial that you can book at a price that will make you real money.

ALL STAR CAST HEADED BY

MITCHELL LEWIS
MARGUERITE SNOW
JAMES CRUZE

Exhibitors: — File your contract now with the leading Independent exchange in your territory.

FOR IMMEDIATE STATE RIGHT RELEASE

Producers:
We are in the market for your new productions

ARROW FILM CORPORATION

W. E. SHALLENBERGER, President

TIMES BLDG. NEW YORK

Exchange Men:
Are you receiving the ARROW BULLETIN each month?

EXTRA!

A Riot in Milwaukee Compelled to call the Police---

Read this telegram from the Merrill Theatre-

CLASS OF SERVICE	SYMBOL
Telegram
Day Letter
Night Message	Blue
Night Letter	Nite
	N L

If none of these three symbols appears after the check (number of words) this is a telegram. Otherwise its character is indicated by the symbol appearing after the check.

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAM

NEWCOMB CARLTON, PRESIDENT — GEORGE W. E. ATKINS, FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT

CLASS OF Telegram
Day Letter
Night Mess
Night Letter

If none of these appears after the words) this is a wise its character is symbol appearing

RECEIVED AT

432AU PN 82NL 3EX

19 9 FEB 20 AM 12 37

MILWAUKEE WIS FEB 19 1919

METRO PICTURES COPRN
1476 BROADWAY NYC

TODAY THE FOURTH DAY OF SHOWING NAZIMOVA "OUT OF FOG" AT TWELVE THIRTY PM ENTIRE LOBBY WHICH HOLDS ONE THOUSAND PEOPLE PACKED TO CAPACITY AND THE SAME ALL AFTERNOON AT SIX PM SUPPER HOUR STILL PACKED TWO POLICEMEN LINING UP CROWDS AT TWO TICKET OFFICES WERE FORCED TO SEND FOR TWO MORE POLICEMEN TO AID GREATEST CROWDS SINCE SUNDAY EVER
ATTENDING A MOTION PICTURE THEATRE IN THE HISTORY OF MILWAUKEE PICTURE GOING OVER EVEN BETTER THAN "EYE FOR EYE"

MERRILL THEATRE
E. C. BOSTICK
1141 PM

METRO PICTURES CORPORATION

The wrong man laughed-

A LITTLE while ago somebody started kidding us because we'd "lost" one of the stars whose pictures we had been distributing.

Very funny—but the laugh is on the wrong man's face.

The fact that we are able to terminate our relations with stars or productions that don't measure up to our standards is the very thing that makes our service of more value to the exhibitor than that of any other organization in the whole motion picture field.

We are distributors solely; and we are independent. We are strong enough to pick and choose—and eliminate—and to give our exhibitors better and better pictures all the time.

What's more, WE DO JUST THAT.

W. W. Hodkinson Corporation

527 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

As Usual—16 Pages of Exploitation Aids in the Service Bureau This Week—See Page 1308

Motion Picture News

Vol. 19 No. 9. March , 1919

The Week in the Film World at a Glance

FEATURES

THE SIGN OF THE TIMES (WILLIAM A. JOHNSTON) 1299
SPEAKING EDITORIALLY 1300
DEALING IN PERSONALITIES....1301
NEW YORK NO LEADER HERE....1308
WHAT LIVE WIRES ARE DOING....1312
HOW NEW YORK STAGES THE SHOW....1214
CLASSIFIED ADS FOR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS..1364
REVIEWS IN COMPLETE PLAN BOOK....1377
RELEASE DATES ON ALL PICTURES....1360
NEW BOX OFFICE REPORTS....1396

NEWS OF THE WEEK

Law Makers Descend Upon the Motion Picture....1302
Attend the New York Convention!....1303
Champions the Picture!....1304
Work on Censorship Campaign....1304
Name Winners in Tarzan Test....1305
Fifty-Fifty Idea Appealed 1306
Miscellaneous News 1307
Live News of the Producers....1324
Glances at the Program....1347
In the Independent Field....1355
Complete Plan Book....1377
In and Out West Coast Studios....1394
Hollywood Hookum 1395

OF SERVICE TO EXHIBITORS

Exhibitors' Service Bureau....1308
What the Producers Have to Say....1324
Special Service Section....1349
News of the Independent Producers....1355
Equipment Service Section....1365
Music Department 1372
Advance Reviews 1377
Reviews in Complete Plan Book....1378
Box Office Reports and Plan Book Index....1396
Releases, Current and Coming....1360

COMPLETE PLAN BOOK

Pictures Reviewed in Advance....1377
"Peggy Does Her Darndest" (Metro)....1378
"Hell Roarin' Reform" (Fox)....1379
"A Little White Savage" (Bluebird)....1380
"The False Faces" (Paramount-Artcraft)....1381
"Crook of Dreams" (World)....1382
"A Trick of Fate" (Robertson-Cole)....1383
"The Girl Problem" (Vitagraph)....1384
"Shadows" (Goldwyn) 1385
"Made in America" (Hodkinson)....1386
"The Indestructible Wife" (Select)....1387
"Happy Though Married" (Paramount)....1388
"Johnny-on-the-Spot" (Metro) 1389
"Shadows of Suspicion" (Screen-Classics)....1390
"Carolyn of the Corners" (Pathe)....1391
"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" (Paramount)....1392
"Where the West Begins" (American)....1393

Newsy Announcements of the Week Found in the Ad-Pages

Jewel Advises the Booking of Mrs. Charlie Chaplin....1244
Dorothy Gish's Latest Is "Boots"....1245
Advertising Accessories Provided for This Picture....1246-47-48
Vitagraph Presents Harry Morey in "Silent Strength"—and Anita Stewart in "From Headquarters"...1249-50-51
Exchanges Where the Houdini Serial May Be Booked....1252
Alice Brady's Latest Select Is "The World to Live In"..1253
Film Clearing House Presents "The Romance of the Air" with Bert Hall....1254
The Next Rex Beach-Goldwyn Is "The Brand"....1255
The Louis Bennison Series Goes Into Five Hundred Theatres 1256
The Ford Weekly, "The Border Legion" and the Capital Comedies Are Other Goldwyn Products....1257-58-59
The Public that Awaits "Under Four Flags"....1260
The E. K. Lincoln Pictures Produced by S-L....1261-62-63-64
The Pathe News and the Pathe Review....1265-66
Popularity of Baby Marie Osborne and Her Pictures....1267
W. W. Hodkinson....1268
"Upstairs and Down," with Olive Thomas Ready in March 1269
"Whom the Gods Would Destroy" Ready at Macauley Offices 1270-71-72-73
World Film's Latest Releases....1274-75
Frank E. Woods....1276
Stars and Pictures Offered in the Capital Films....1277
Inter-Ocean Makes an Announcement Regarding "The Better 'Ole" 1292
The 1919 Series of the Outing-Chester Pictures Distributed Through First National 1279
Robertson-Cole's Releases 1280
Latest Offering from the Triangle Distributing Corporation.1281
Products of the Fox Film Corporation....1282-83-84-85
United Picture Theatres' Product....1286-87
Jack Pickford's First First National and the Prize Winners ners in the Tarzan Contest....1288-89
Educational's Cartoon Pictures....1293
A New Announcement from a British Concern....1290-1
Metro's Latest Offering....1278
Special Announcement from Metro....1295
Arrow Announces Its New Reissues....1294
Essanay Offers Four Chaplin Pictures....1298
Universal Insert on the Latest Priscilla Dean Picture, "The Wicked Darling"....1337-38-39-40

WM. A. JOHNSTON, Pres. and Editor. HENRY F. SEWALL, Vice-Pres. E. KENDALL GILLETT, Sec. and Treas.
ROBERT E. WELSH, Managing Editor FRED. J. BEECROFT, Adv. Manager.

Published on Friday every week by MOTION PICTURE NEWS, Inc., 729 Seventh Ave., New York, N. Y. 'Phone 9360 Bryant. Chicago Representative, W. M. Hight, 220 So. State St.; 'Phone Harrison 7667. Los Angeles Representative, J. C. Jessen, 618 Wright and Callander Building (Hill at Fourth St.); 'Phone Pico 780. Subscription $2 a year, postpaid, in United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands. Canada, $3. N. B.—No agent is authorized to take subscriptions for Motion Picture News at less than these rates. Have the agent who takes your subscription show his credentials and coupon book. Western Union registered cable address is "Picknews," New York.

Copyright, 1919, by Motion Picture News, Inc.

FOUR STAR CHAPLINS!
First Showing of New Prints

They never tire of these great Charlie Chaplin pictures

"Shanghaied"

"A Night in the Show"

"The Bank"

"Police"

Screened three years ago, they are now like new. Bookings coming fast in first run houses. Try to get early release dates and tell your patrons you have all four.

GEORGE KLEINE SYSTEM
Distributors
Representatives at all General Film Exchanges

ESSANAY
GEORGE K SPOOR PRESIDENT

Perfection Pictures

"When you see it in 'The News' It's News"

Motion Picture News

HAS THE QUALITY CIRCULATION OF THE TRADE

"The Exhibitors' Medium of Communication"

Volume 19, No. 9 March, 1 1919

The Sign of the Times

THE most interesting and important sign of the times, right now, is, in our opinion, the spirited advertising being done by the exhibitor.

The dominant note in our mail, day in and day out, is the correspondence between our readers and our service department.

Interesting letters are accompanied by many samples of newspaper advertisements, the space and tone of which show a steady and significant advance.

Within the past week letters have been received from three prominent chains of theatres asking for the services of the best theatrical advertising man obtainable.

A score of prominent dailies have written us indicating a close cooperation with the local theatre.

* * * *

This is the Optimist's Year

THE situation presents a sharp contrast with that of only a few years ago when practically no newspaper advertising at all was done by the picture theatre.

And this swift advance is surely indicative of a future, a near future, when, as we have prophesied right along, motion pictures will be more widely advertised than any other commodity, thereby laying the real foundation of the greatness and stability of this industry.

Swift strides will be made this year, which by all sure signs, promises to be a record breaker in picture theatre attendance.

This situation is of the utmost interest to exhibitor, exchange and producer—to the star, too, as we recently pointed out.

Printer's ink is the main tie between the public and the picture house; it always will be. Pictures successfully advertised make bookings and more bookings. Bookings make the producer's business—make it successful and substantial.

The public is the producer's real customer.

* * * *

As We See It

WE have stated that in our opinion the true national advertising of pictures will be the collective effort of exhibitors everywhere on any given picture:

—that this advertising should deal specifically with the given picture when and where it is showing.

—that the advertising, therefore, must emanate from the exhibitor.

—that brand advertising, issued by the producer cannot take the place of the exhibitor advertising but can be supplemented, as it already has been, and highly beneficial, as it also has been.

—that, to the end of advancing this exhibitor advertising, there must be cooperation between the exhibitor and producer in the matter of expense, and, at present, cooperation between the exhibitor and the newspaper so that advertising may be properly prepared.

In this connection we might add that MOTION PICTURE NEWS is today in the business office of many dailies and its "Complete Plan Book" is being made the basis of a service to the exhibitor whereby his advertising can be quickly prepared on any current feature release.

* * * *

What Should Be Possible

THE point has been raised that the producer today hasn't the margin of profit to permit of a fifty-fifty outlay with the exhibitor in country wide newspaper advertising.

If this is true then there is something decidedly wrong with the producer's business—with the business, in fact, of the motion picture in general.

The advertising appropriations made by the automobile concerns, National Biscuit, Sherwin-Williams and other prominent national advertisers run about three per cent of the gross annual sales.

A motion picture concern, therefore, doing a business of $30,000,000 a year should have available for advertising purposes about $600,000.

Such an appropriation would buy a column of space in every Sunday newspaper in the country throughout one year. Doubling up with the exhibitor would yield over a quarter of a page each week throughout the year. This is a considerable amount of advertising space.

* * * *

Standing In Their Own Light

IF it is true that a three per cent appropriation is not available because star salaries eat it up, then, as we have pointed out—the star is standing in his own light.

He needs the newspaper advertising, otherwise, in any city, any week, a good picture with another star or no star, properly advertised, will draw the public away from the unadvertised or not properly advertised star. And a protracted period of this lack of advertising will dim the lustre, forever, of the brightest picture luminary.

The time will come, it must come, when to the making of each picture there will be added an appropriation for

(Continued on next page)

Editorially Speaking:

Standing in Their Own Light

(Continued from preceding page)

advertising to the public. Such an expense must figure in the gross outlay just as surely as production or any other expense.

Printer's ink, we reiterate, is the connecting link between the public and the picture.

* * * *

Learn From the Opposition's Methods

CENSORSHIP and Sunday closing guns are booming on all sides. The reformers are in a big drive this year. Look out!

Every exhibitor who does not belong to a local or state or national organization—or better to all three—will have no one but himself to blame if the reformers gain the power to regulate his business for him.

New York State is calling a big convention this week at Syracuse. We predict it will be big because of excellent work done by the state organization leaders.

What of your state? What of yourself?

The reformers are organized. Hence their power.

There is only one way in the world for you to meet them successfully—and that is your organization against theirs.

The church faction is strong. It is in the minority and your public is in the majority; but the church is bringing organized pressure to bear upon your assemblyman, your senator, your congressman, and you, most likely are not. You are not letting your representative know the wishes of the majority of the people in your district. You are not letting him know your own rights.

You can only do this with sufficient power through organization,—your organization against the professional reformers.

What will you do?

* * * *

Questions and Answers

TWO prominent business men from New England who contemplate the building of two large picture theatres called at our office this week.

Their questions and our answers may be of interest.

Is this a good year to open a theatre?

The very best. Prohibition will greatly increase attendance. Labor troubles will help rather than harm motion pictures. We know of no safer business investment provided your local conditions warrant new theatres and provided you manage and advertise them properly.

Will this be an open market year?

Yes, or at least more nearly so than ever before; and next year still more so, from the present outlook. Better pictures will be made, and there will be less opportunity for one or two houses to control them. Pictures will book on merit—individual merit, without strings attached. The producers and distributors realize this fact and are making their production and distributing policies to meet these new conditions.

What do you consider the first essential to successful theatre management?

The judicious advertising of the picture.

Facts Versus the Ballyhoo

WE happen to know of several industries, which were successfully represented at Washington during the war tax fixing period by a single man.

He was, of course, continuously on the job. The sole expense to his association, however, was salary and small office rent.

There were no spasmodic attempts by the industries themselves—to have taxes reduced or regulated; no visiting delegations, oratory, petitions and the like. Their single representative worked along each day, assiduously and intelligently, not in any blind effort to reduce taxes, but simply to make them just and legitimate. And his sole arguments, of course, were based upon the facts and figures on his industry which was just exactly what the Congressional Committees were after.

The final outcome was extremely satisfactory both to the industry and to the Congressional Committees.

We have just read the lengthy record of one case and it is most interesting, in showing just how an equitable tax can be arrived at.

If there is one industry in the wide world that needs just such representation, not alone at Washington but in every legislative tangle everywhere it is the picture industry.

* * * * *

The Changing Attitude

A REMARK made by a prominent exhibitor in Motion Picture News office last week illustrates well the changing attitude of producers towards exploitation of their productions.

"Two years ago," he said, "I had a rather sad experience. We were doing unusual things in advertising and presenting pictures at our theatres and the News gave considerable space to telling of them. The News and I both figured that this was of help to other exhibitors and consequently to the producers of the pictures.

"But when I came to renew my contracts for pictures I was struck a staggering blow. The managers and salesmen practically told me in so many words that they had read so much of the showmanship I was displaying that they decided I could afford to pay rentals far higher in proportion than other exhibitors with similar sized houses and equal opportunities.

"They were placing a penalty on me for helping them.

"But now I find the attitude changing. The managers agree that if I put over a picture to a knockout by using showmanship it is helping their gross returns in the territory. They are beginning to see the light."

* * * * *

Looking Ahead

IF we were to make a prediction it would be this: that in the momentous year facing us there will come that co-ordination of the industry, call it distribution or what not, which will encourage and allow producers to make fewer and much better pictures, and deliver them to the exhibitor on a basis of profit, proper exploitation facilities and assured supply.

C. S. Houston

Dealing in Personalities

"They Call On Him by Aeroplane These Days"

We probably wouldn't print this if a press agent had sent it in. But we happened to stumble upon it ourselves, so here goes:

The scene is the office of Earl Hammons. The phone rings. Central announces that Washington, D. C., is calling. Then comes a voice:

"Hello, is this Educational? Lieutenant Colonel Something or Other of the British Aviation forces is calling. It looks like a clear day; guess I'll fly over this afternoon and be in to see you."

And this happens an average of once a week. The British flyer jumps into his aeroplane in Washington, flies to one of the Long Island aviation fields, then motors in and calls on Mr. Hammons.

And it is all treated as a matter of fact, every day business occurrence!

Will somebody please pinch us?

Gee whillikers, boys, but this is going to be a merry year for the law-makers who have their eyes on the motion picture. Read the story on the following page and see what one week brought forth. On the one hand we are being looked to as a source of revenue making up the losses caused by prohibition; on the other hand, we are new bait for the cranks and reformers who have completed one job and are looking for another. We sure are in for it. The excitement is apt to get monotonous.

HARRY MAZE JENKS, of Harma Photoplays, London, England, is scheduled to sail for these shores this week. TIM COOP, of Progress Films, is reported as already on the briny.

After we announced last week that HARRY ROSSON was ready to sail for London he fooled us by an eleventh hour decision to remain another week or so.

Take it from the English visitors, "there ain't no sech animul" as a good independent production loose on Broadway.

Perhaps EDDIE MCMANUS is right when he says that we are paying the bill now for the influenza shutdown and its all-around psychological effect.

Four contributors to Motion Picture News Exhibitors' Service Bureau—three of them members of the Exhibitors' Advisory Board—are in the list of prize winners in the First National "Tarzan" contest. Congratulations, boys. And also congratulations to Motion Picture News readers, who, week in and week out, for two years have been getting the services of the top notch exhibitors of the country in the Service Bureau. Read about the prize winners on page 1305.

WALTER BROOKS, former manager of the Coatesville, Pa., Auditorium, has been secured by Earl Hammons to handle the Educational Film Corporation's publicity and exhibitor service activities.

WILLIAM J. MCGRATH, well liked in Chicago as the one-time manager of MOTION PICTURE NEWS office, is now with Vitagraph at 1600 Broadway.

MORRIS A. LIGHTMAN, of the Criterion Film Service, Atlanta, Ga., is in town. Have you any pictures open for Florida, Tennessee, the Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama—and possibly Louisiana and Mississippi?

Our Own Private Tipster hasn't anything new to report this week, though a look at the Complete Plan Book will show many good pictures coming. But this page gives the inside, paddock dope. Still waiting to see the actual timing of "The Eternal Magdalen" and "The Red Lantern." The touts sure do keep on boosting the last mentioned production. Heard some good words about the latest Rex Beach-Goldwyn, "The Brand." We'll pick some for you next week. And when we say "Go to it!"—play the bankroll.

BILL RUDOLPH is breaking the habit of twenty years and to his shave and a long walk has added the function of eating to his lunch-hour program.

Thus does "THE UNPARDONABLE SIN" intrude upon the "THE HUSHED HOUR."

Which reminds us that HARRY GARSON is expected in town within the coming week.

While another bit of news is the fact that HARRY RAPF has come smiling through a combination siege of pneumonia and appendicitis and is expected to return to his office in a week or so.

The New York State exhibitor who could possibly make the trip to Syracuse on February 26th for the State convention and who does not do so is too low in the picture scale for us to express an opinion of him. This year presents the best chance—and possibly the last chance—that New York theatre owners have ever had to secure legalized Sunday shows. Sydney Cohen and his co-workers in New York City and up-State have carried on an unselfish, efficient campaign. No one has sought publicity. No one has made any bulls. For the love of Mike, boys, back them up! Read the official call on page 1303.

MESSRS. BALABAN and KATZ, of Chicago, have been gumshoeing it about New York for a week or so. SAM KATZ dropped in for a call at the NEWS' office on Tuesday.

And brought with him the news that BALABAN and KATZ plan to invade Chicago's loop with a house that, when completed, will represent an investment of two and a half millions.

And told us of the search of the entire world that BALABAN and KATZ and their architects are making so that the invasion of downtown Chicago will give the windy city the last word in theatre construction.

Sam Katz is a tonic; an inspiration. Let him tell you of some of the accomplishments of Balaban and Katz at Chicago's Riviera.

ON Saturday, February 15, at six p. m., took place the marriage of Miss Margaret Ganss and Peter Smith, the ceremony being performed by Rev. William Schoenfeld at his residence, 115 East 91st street. Only the immediate families of the bride and groom were present.

The legion of friends of Mr. Smith, known among the publicity fraternity and the motion picture industry throughout the United States by the shorter and more intimate name of Pete, offer their heartiest congratulations. Through successive affiliations with the Bosworth, Morosco and Artcraft companies, and his present connection with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, in charge of all trade paper and newspaper publicity, he has attained an enviable reputation in his profession, and enjoys, as well, the affectionate esteem of his immediate associates.

Shortly after the wedding ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Smith departed for the South to spend a week's honeymoon. Upon their return they will reside at 2108 Harrison avenue, University Heights.

"She's Now the Better Half of Pete Smith"

Lawmakers Descend on Motion Picture

Pennsylvania's Legislature Has Bills Proposing New Taxes, Change of Censorship Board, Building Regulations, Etc. —Cincinnati Would Tax Exchanges

LAWMAKERS the country over are having a merry time preparing bills aimed at the motion picture. New taxes, restrictions of all sorts, and Sunday bills are flooding the legislatures.

Pennsylvania's body of legislators probably holds the record at present for the number of motion picture bills being considered. The most drastic, as far as the entire industry is concerned, is the proposal for a new tax of one cent a foot on all positive film—to be paid in addition to the present charge of the Board of Censors. Others before the Keystone legislature concern theatre taxes, Sunday opening and building regulations.

Cincinnati has turned to the motion picture to help recoup the loss of revenue from liquor through the coming of prohibition. A city ordinance proposed calls for the taxing of all distributors doing business in that city.

Text of Pennsylvania Bills

HARRISBURG, PA. (Special to Motion Picture News.)—Two bills placing additional burdens in the form of State taxes on the motion picture business, and a third, placing far more rigid restrictions upon the construction of motion picture theatres, appeared in the Pennsylvania legislature on February 11.

The two measures increasing the taxes were introduced in the House of Assembly by Representative Smith, of Bedford county. Though the measures have not yet come from the State printer and were read in the House only by title, one provides that in addition to the present fee for the examination of films by the State Board of Censors an additional fee of one cent a lineal foot be collected on all films offered for approval.

The bill is surely a revenue raiser, and the money is to be placed in the State Insurance Fund, whereas, under the existing law, the money obtained for the examination of films goes to help finance the operations of the Board of Censors and to pay salaries of the board and its subordinate employes.

The proposed penalties for non-payment of the additional fee, under the terms of this new bill, are $500 fine or six months in jail and forfeiture of the right to show the film in Pennsylvania.

The terms of this measure, apparently, affect not only the motion picture interests of Pennsylvania but all the producers in New York and other states which submit their films for the approval of the Pennsylvania censors.

The other Smith bill includes motion picture houses among the amusement buildings taxed for local purposes and fixes the tax as follows: In cities of the first class (Philadelphia and Pittsburgh), $500 a year; second class cities (of which there are only two or three in the state), $400; third class cities (of which there are 30), $75, and boroughs and townships, $30. Big city theatre owners declare that this plan is a plain discrimination against the theatres in the large cities and in favor of the small cities and rural communities.

The bill containing new regulations for the construction of theatres was introduced in the upper House, by Senator Daix, of Philadelphia, and has not yet come from the printer, though it is understood to impose additional burdens on the future construction of theatres.

Proposed legislation relating to the motion picture industry is piling up rapidly in Pennsylvania. In addition to the three measures referred to above, there have been introduced in the House a bill aimed at ticket scalping by requiring theatres to print the prices of tickets on the faces of them; a bill requiring the licensing of ticket brokers, and the much discussed Rolfe measure, which would amend the blue law of 1794 to permit the showing of motion pictures on Sundays. This latter measure—about the only one that has thus far appeared which seems to have been introduced in the interest of the picture business—is being vigorously attacked from the pulpit and by reform organizations generally.

One of the latest attacks on this bill is made in a letter written by Dr. B. E. P. Prugh, chairman of the Prohibition State Committee, and published in the Harrisburg Telegraph. Dr. Prugh takes issue with the Philadelphia Public Ledger, which sees some good in the measure. He says in part:

"Arguing for the bill referred to, the Public Ledger insidiously says, 'This bill goes no farther than the legislation of harmless and educational entertainments, music lectures, etc.—on Sundays.' Of course it does not say that a thing that may be 'harmless' and even 'educational' at one time may not be harmless on another. We know this well when it comes to the body. Warm rolls are beneficial under health conditions, but have been known to kill a sick man.

"Since the Creator set the Sabbath apart at creation as His own in a peculiar sense, and at the giving of the Law on Sinai thundered 'Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy,' it is what He has to say about it that must concern both the private citizen and the law-maker, and not public opinion or public clamor even. Public opinion is a dangerous thing unless molded by His righteous law, as witness Aaron and the golden calf. Our country will never be 'safe for Democracy' until we recognize that Almighty God is the very first person to be consulted in all legislation and that the political party that will not give Him proper recognition is not a party to be trusted with the reins of government.

"In view of what God has done in the Great War just coming to a close, it is incumbent upon the Ministry of the King of kings to sound the trumpet calling men to this position. We must not blind our eyes to the fact that it was this drifting away from God, trampling His day under foot in 'the Continental Sunday,' and letting the will of man governmentally supplant the will of God, that brought the recent catastrophe upon Germany and through her upon the whole world and us in it. We must not blind our eyes to the fact that, as a nation, we have been drifting fast in the same direction. If we continue to 'drift' it will be only a matter of time until we drift upon the breakers. Further encroachment upon this day should be resisted both as a patriotic and a Christian duty."

OUTLOOK BRIGHT IN INDIANA

WORD received in New York on Wednesday from Charles C. Pettijohn, counsel for the Exhibitors-Mutual Corporation, and now aiding the exhibitors of Indiana in their fight for Sunday motion picture shows indicate a favorable outlook in that state.

A vote in the Senate on Tuesday to pass the Sunday bill to engrossment resulted in thirty in favor, sixteen opposing, and four absent.

As a test vote this indicates a wide margin of safety for the bill allowing all communities to decide the Sunday show question for themselves.

Would Put Ban on Kids

A few days after announcing that the Province of Quebec would discontinue the collection of the war tax on amusement tickets, Hon. Walter Mitchell, Provincial Treasurer, presented a bill before the Quebec Legislature which has for its purpose the placing of a ban on the admission of all children under fifteen years of age into all theatres of the Province at all times, whether accompanied by parents or guardians or not. The bill was brought to the attention of the Quebec Legislature on February 15.

A few weeks previously, a self-appointed committee of uplifters at Quebec City asked that the Province prohibit the admission of all children up to fifteen years of age from all theatres and the Provincial Treasurer has seen fit to consider the matter. Incidentally, this committee wanted the Province to grant permission to cities to censor moving picture releases after they had been censored for the whole Province by the Provincial Board of Moving Picture Censors.

Under present regulations in the Province of Quebec, children up to fifteen years must be protected by parents or guardians when admitted to picture houses.

Propose Cincinnati Taxes

Film exchanges and producers of films in Cincinnati will have to pay an occupational tax of $100 a year, as the Council of that city, facing a deficit of $600,000 in taxes through enforcement of prohibition in Ohio after May 27, 1919, has decided to raise money needed to make up the loss of revenue by taxing certain lines of business for the privilege in Cincinnati.

Buffalo Exhibitors Are Working Hard

BUFFALO (Special to Motion Picture News).—Buffalo exhibitors are getting behind the move to legalize Sunday shows one hundred per cent. The managers have formed an organization and have engaged Lieutenant Jack Wall to act as executive secretary.

(Continued on next page)

Attend the New York Convention!

EXHIBITORS in New York State, whether members of the League or not, should do everything in their power to be present at the Syracuse convention on February 26 to plan the campaign for Sunday pictures.

You owe it to yourself to be there. The New York fight is being handled by exhibitors for exhibitors. This year exhibitors in New York State have the biggest opportunity they have ever had to place Sunday shows flatly and squarely on the statute books.

Read the official call for the convention issued by Sidney S. Cohen and make your preparations now to be in Syracuse on February 26:

TO THE MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK FELLOW EXHIBITORS:—

The people of the state of New York want motion picture entertainment on Sunday. Their overwhelming patronage of Sunday pictures proves this beyond the shadow of a doubt.

The Courts of this state have rendered conflicting decisions on the legality of showing motion pictures on Sunday. We must, therefore, seek help in the legislature.

Ever since the state-wide conference, held at Albany last September, the officers of the state league have left no stone unturned to prepare the way for a successful campaign to that end. It is our duty to give voice to the wishes of our patrons.

Threatened taxation and other vital problems call for your careful action. This is the supreme moment for making a united and impressive demonstration; if not for ourselves, then, on behalf of our patrons. We earnestly desire your counsel and support whether the owner of a large house or a small one.

Therefore, you are urged to come to the City of Syracuse on the 26th day of February, 1919, to attend a state-wide convention of exhibitors to be held at the Onondaga Hotel at 11 A. M. on the day above mentioned.

Your voice and your vote will be the deciding factors as to the methods and, no doubt, the success of passing this legislation at this session.

Opportunity is knocking at our door. Men of affairs in all walks of life familiar with political conditions say that this is the year. The people are with us; are we with the people? There is no power like the power of our screens. Now is our time to use them.

POSITIVELY no so-called co-operative booking or film selling scheme of any kind, under whatever guise or by whomsoever proposed will be considered or discussed at this convention.

We put none but exhibitors on guard.

SIDNEY S. COHEN, President.
S. I. BERMAN, Secretary.

Lawmakers Descend on Motion Pictures

(Continued from preceding page)

Every theatre in town has a booth in the lobby or a table where patrons are being asked to sign the petition in favor of the bill now in Albany. It is noticed that most patrons go out of their way to sign this petition and from remarks heard in the lobbies it looks like Buffalo will have many thousands of names on the list that will be sent to the state capital. It is planned to send a delegation to Albany when the measure comes up.

The Sunday committee is planning to attend the state convention in Syracuse, February 26, when the Sunday question will be discussed in all its phases. Undoubtedly Buffalo favors Sunday pictures.

Last year every newspaper in the city spoke editorially in favor of films on the Sabbath, declaring them to be of educative as well as entertaining value and an excellent way to spend part of Sunday for the family. The exhibitors this week will again ask the local papers to print editorials in favor of Sunday opening. The best indication of how the wind blows here is the capacity houses that are a rule in almost every theatre in Buffalo Sunday evening.—

CHARLES B. TAYLOR.

Seek to Lift Ban on Colorado Springs

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO. (Special).—A very spirited contest of numercial strength is now being waged by the liberal element of Colorado Springs and the Ministerial Alliance of this city. The final outcome of the battle is anxiously awaited on both sides.

Some two weeks ago the liberals started circulating a petition to the city council asking that the Sunday closing ordinance be repealed in so far as it relates to regular theatres and motion picture houses. Within a few hours enough signatures had been secured to insure the attention of the matter by the voters at the coming city election. More than 6,000 have signed the petition so far.

A few days ago the Ministerial Alliance learned that the petition was being circulated and that it was meeting with such popular approval. They called a meeting immediately and now the ministers are circulating a counter petition asking that the ordinance be not repealed. It is believed that popular sentiment is on the side of the original petition.

Sunday Schools Fighting in Ohio

COLUMBUS, OHIO (Special).—Members of the Ohio Legislature, now in session at Columbus, are being bombarded with telegrams from opponents of the Hinchey bill, which seeks to legalize motion picture performances on Sundays, taking theatres of that kind out of the bill that forbids shows on Sundays. The present law carries a $100 fine and six months' imprisonment. The Hinchey bill is finding considerable support from all over the state. Christian Endeavor societies are behind the opposition that has increased receipts of the Federal telegraph system.

Appell Buys Theatre in Reading, Pa.

HARRISBURG, PA., Feb.—Announcement is made here that Nathan Appell, of York, and formerly of this city, who is associated with the Wilmer & Vincent interests in control of a string of motion picture, vaudeville and legitimate theatres in cities of Pennsylvania, has purchased the Rajah theatre, in Reading, and will assume personal management of the house on June 1, to conduct it in part as a motion picture house.

Mr. Appell was for some years in partnership with M. Reis in control of a number of central Pennsylvania theatres, and with the Wilmer & Vincent interests in the management of three houses in Harrisburg, one of which, the Colonial, is devoted exclusively to motion pictures, and theatres in a number of other cities. In taking over the personal management of the Rajah, Mr. Appell will be succeeded by his son in the management of the two theatres he owns in York.

C. K. Y. Film Corporation Files Court Answer

IN the suit instituted by Clara Kimball Young against the C. K. Y. Film Corporation, the company has filed its answer. In the suit Miss Young severs her releasing arrangements with Select Pictures Corporation, according to report.

Miss Young's claims to the effect that the original terms of the contract under which she made pictures for the defendant corporation for release through Select had been violated were denied en toto, and the C. K. Y. company's answer attempts to "put the shoe on the other foot" by alleging that Miss Young is indebted to the defendant company instead of the company being indebted to her.

Under the management of Harry Garson Miss Young has been engaged in filming "The Better Wife" on the Coast, with the following cast: Nigel Barrie, Lillian Walker, Kathlyn Williams, Barbara Tennant, Little Bennie Alexander, Edward M. Kimball, Arthur Carew, Irving Cummins, Elinor Hancock, H. G. Pennel, J. G. Underhill and John Stoepling.

CHAMPIONS THE PICTURE!

Indianapolis Newspaper Editorializes on Censorship Legislation

THE INDIANAPOLIS NEWS in an editorial recently took a shot at the proposed legislation for the establishment of a state censorship now pending before the Indiana State Legislature. The editorial is unusual in view of the fact that the Indianapolis News does not, as a rule, take sides with the motion picture interests. The editorial follows:

"MOVIE CENSORSHIP"

"Aside from the personal interest involved, the motion picture men opposing legislation providing for State censorship of the films have some justification for their stand. State supervision of the pictures has seldom worked satisfactorily where it has been tried. The bodies intrusted with the work have repeatedly objected to films or parts of films that similar bodies in other States found unobjectionable, or commendable. It has sometimes happened that films or scenes praised by one State board for their moral influence have been condemned by another as unfit to be shown. Disagreements as to whether a film or a part of a film was morally harmful have been frequent. Motion picture men honestly desirous of providing wholesome amusement have suffered from a condition that causes a film which is unobjectionable in one State to be rejected as highly immoral in another.

"Picture producers, like other business men, are anxious to give the public what it wants. The level of taste and morality exhibited in the pictures reflects, generally speaking, the level of the taste and morality of the people who patronize the films. Off-color films are relatively rare these days, and public taste is making them rarer and will in all probability eventually eliminate them. Producers are finding that the public does not want pictures depending on smut for their interest. A censorship thus automatically exercised would be the highest and most effective form of supervision.

"At all events, censorship machinery already exists in the laws against indecent entertainment. Local officials can stop the showing of films regarded as objectionable any time they choose to exercise their rights. Such selected officers should be as well able as an appointed body to give whatever protection the public needs."

Work on Censorship Campaign

Chairman Hess Plans Film Campaign Along Liberty Loan Lines—Publicity Campaign Under Way

GABRIEL L. HESS, chairman of the Censorship Committee of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, is working out all of the preliminary plans necessary for an active and intensive censorship campaign to be carried on in all of the fifteen states where there is a danger of censorship legislation.

One of the principal weapons of offence will be a series of satirical motion pictures made by each of the big stars of the industry in much the same manner as the pictures for the Fourth Liberty Loan.

In furtherance of this plan a telegram was sent to Thomas H. Ince, Mack Sennett, Cecil B. DeMille and Williard Mack requesting their cooperation in writing and producing a motion picture satire aimed against censorship for nationwide distribution.

Thomas H. Ince was the first of the four big producing directors to reply and he stated that he would be more than glad to cooperate and would arrange for all of the stars under his control to immediately start work on their pictures. It is expected that affirmative replies will be received from the others in the course of a day or so.

The intensive campaign that is to be carried on in the states where there is a danger of censorship legislation this session is complete in every detail. It will be carried on in the theatres and newspapers of the states in question. In the theatres there will be a comprehensive campaign utilizing both slides and trailers, as well as a specially trained staff of four minute speakers, who will present the argument against censorship in a brief but emphatic manner.

The legislators representing both the Senate and Assembly districts of the states will be flooded with thousands upon thousands of petitions signed by their constituents and arrangements will likewise be made for the public to let loose a tidal wave of protesting and indignant telegrams.

Special publicity is now in preparation to be used in the newspapers and a quantity of other printed matter is being prepared. The publicity campaign is under the direct supervision of John C. Flinn, as chairman of a committee appointed for this purpose by the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers, who were brought into active work in the campaign by Chairman Hess. The material for a pamphlet containing a quantity of arguments against censorship consisting of editorials that have appeared in newspapers and magazine articles is likewise being prepared for general circulation.

Weekly meetings of the Censorship Committee are being held and are attended by members of the committee who are in the city. The next meeting will be in the form of a luncheon and conference to be held at the City Club on Thursday, February 20, at 12:30 o'clock. At this meeting comprehensive reports will be presented showing the status of the censorship legislation in the various states.

The organization that has been effected for this work is one of the best and most efficient that could possibly be worked out. State committees have been organized in a majority of the forty-eight states under the direction of a state chairman who works in close cooperation with the Censorship Committee of the Association under the direction of Chairman Hess. These state chairmen are taking hold with the utmost enthusiasm and report by telegraph the progress they are making. The fact that these state committees have been organized and set to work in less than three weeks speaks remarkably well for the activities of the Censorship Committee.

In addition to the state organization among the exhibitors an organization has been effected in the exchanges of the country and the exchange managers are working in close cooperation with the various exhibitor organizations, thus lining up these important branches of the industry in the various states in an effective manner to work together.

Following is a list of the Censorship Committee: Gabriel L. Hess, chairman, Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, D. W. Griffith, P. A. Powers, W. A. Brady, Lewis Innerarity, William M. Seabury, Paul H. Cromelin, Walter W. Irwin, Arthur S. Friend, J. Robert Rubin, James E. MacBride, Walter N. Seligsberg and Frederick H. Elliott, secretary.

Plunkett Guest of Honor at Dinner

Joseph Plunkett, managing director of the Strand theatre, was guest of honor at a beefsteak dinner given after theatre hours, Wednesday night, at "Beefsteak" Charley's, West 50th street, by attaches of the Strand and members of the press. Dr. J. Victor Wilson, publicity director for the Strand, was toastmaster, and called for speeches from Manager Plunkett, Hugo Riesenfeld, manager-director of the Rivoli and Rialto theatres; Max Spiegel, secretary of the Strand, and Carl Edouarde, leader of the Strand orchestra.

Manager Plunkett spoke of the hearty co-operation he had received from the Strand attaches during the short time he has been directing, and assured all that he would make every attempt to continue the policy of this theatre. About fifty guests were present.

Stanley Chain Manager Likes Drew Comedies

The advent of the new Drew two-reel comedies has been acclaimed by the patrons of the Stanley theatres as filling a long-felt want in the photoplay field, according to Frank W. Buhler, managing director of the chain of houses controlled by the Stanley Company in Philadelphia.

Mr. Buhler is reported to have declared that: "The popularity and demand for these comedies as evidenced by the reception which "Romance and Rings," the first release received, has determined the policy of the Stanley Amusement Corporation to advertise and run these attractions as features, giving them the same advertising space as is given the feature productions of five or more reels."

Fitzmaurice to Direct Elsie Ferguson

George Fitzmaurice, who directed Fannie Ward in "Common Clay," has started a production for the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, starring Elsie Ferguson.

The picture is "The Witness For the Defense," from the famous stage play of the same name, in which Ethel Barrymore starred.

Name Winners in "Tarzan" Advertising Test

THIS week First National Exhibitors' Circuit announced the winners in its contest for the best exploitation of "The Romance of Tarzan." The list of winners carries a remarkable reflection of the work of the Exhibitors Service Bureau of the MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

There were four classes of theatres represented in the awards, and of these the first prizes in three of the classes were won by members of the Advisory Board of the Exhibitors Service Bureau. The full story of the presentation of "Tarzan" by the winner in the fourth class was published in the MOTION PICTURE NEWS weeks ago.

In two of the classes the winners of the second prize are men the account of whose presentations appear from time to time in the NEWS. In fact the stories of how these men put on this particular picture appeared in these columns and, quite by coincidence, articles about other presentations they made more recently appear in this very issue.

In other words this award shows well how this department is presenting to you readers week after week the best ideas of the exhibitors of the country. We haven't the slightest doubt that a contest arranged by any of the other leading producers or distributors would show an equal reflection of the service given you here.

WHEN this department was started there was no such thing as service in motion picture publications. Everyone predicted that it could not be done—that exhibitors generally could not be persuaded to place their ideas before the rest of the exhibitors.

But it has been done—not yet as fully as we hope it will be done, for this work has been jumping forward week after week—and there appears in these pages week after week accounts of the way that the livest exhibitors of the country are presenting their pictures.

In the case of "The Romance of Tarzan" you had pictures and illustrated here the work of the winners in the four different classes, and the full advertising campaign of one of them. You had accounts, together with pictures of lobby displays or stage settings of two of the winners of second prizes.

All of these were not only printed here, but they were printed in time for later exhibitors of the same picture to take advantage of the same ideas in their presentation and exploitation.

IS THIS SERVICE?

AWARDS of all the prizes were made by a board of judges selected by First National which inspected carefully all of the material sent in and gave the prizes on the basis of the material before them and the accounts of the way the pictures were presented. The board consisted of R. E. Barremore, EXHIBITORS' TRADE REVIEW; James E. Beecroft, EXHIBITORS' HERALD; Epes Winthrop Sargent, MOVING PICTURE WORLD, and R. E. Pritchard, MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

The theatres were divided under the rules of the contest into four classes and in each class there were three prizes, all payable in Liberty Bonds, and totaling $1,200. The first prize in each class was $150, the second $100 and the third $50. Winners were:

FIRST CLASS (Theatres seating 2,000 or more):
- First prize, S. Barret McCormick, Circle theatre, Indianapolis.
- Second prize: George Fischer, manager Saxe's Alhambra theatre, Milwaukee.
- Third prize: I. Kuhn, manager Loew's Stillman theatre, Cleveland, O.

SECOND CLASS (Theatres seating from 1,000 to 2,000):
- First prize: P. E. Noble, advertising director, and E. J. Myrick, manager, Liberty theatre, Portland, Ore.
- Second prize: Harry McDonald, manager Fox's theatre, Springfield, Mass.
- Third prize: Victoria theatre, Philadelphia.

THIRD CLASS (Seating 750 to 1,000):
- First prize: C. Edgar Momand, manager Garden theatre, Flint, Mich.
- Second prize: H. C. Corhan, American theatre, Hopewell, Va.
- Third prize: M. M. Rubens, Princess theatre, Joliet, Ill.

FOURTH CLASS (Less than 750 seats):
- First prize: L. L. Willey, Colonial theatre, Rochester, New Hampshire.
- Second prize: E. H. Collins, Liberty theatre, Electra, Texas.
- Third prize: F. R. Smith, Bijou theatre, Fon du Lac, Wis.

(Note: Messrs. McCormick, Myrick, Noble and Momand are members of the Advisory Board. Exclusive accounts of the presentation by Mr. Willey appeared in the NEWS, as have stories of the work of Messrs. Fischer and Collins with this picture.)

GENERAL shutdown of theatres due to the influenza epidemic affected the total number of entries in the contest, but the representation was sufficient to enable the Board of Judges and First National Exhibitors' Circuit to gain a fair opinion of the general attitude of theatre managers and owners toward local advertising and publicity.

In some instances there were exceptionally good newspaper advertising campaigns without any effort in lobby display or presentation. This is particularly true of the larger theatres in the central west, where the strongest effort is put forth in newspaper compaigns.

Exhibitors in the smaller cities and towns, especially those with theatres of the third class, having from seven hundred and fifty to a thousand seats, are about equally divided in their choice of advertising mediums between newspapers, lobby displays and special canvasses by mail and house to house delivery for letters, postcards and heralds.

Theatres of the fourth class, with less than seven hundred and fifty seats, pay a greater degree of attention to lobby displays than to newspaper advertising or presentation. This applies almost without exception in towns where there are no daily newspapers, and where exhibitors have to depend upon one or two issues of the local publications each week to carry their wares to the public.

Association Active on Film Rental Tax

During the past week the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry has been swamped with the reports that have been coming in from all over the United States showing what has been accomplished by the exhibitors and exchange men in the fight for the elimination of the five per cent film rental tax from the new revenue bill.

This is one of the most remarkable campaigns that has ever been conducted by the Association, and the general enthusiasm with which it has been put into effect by all branches of the industry throughout the country is bound to have its effect in Washington.

The efforts of the producers and distributors of the industry as represented by the National Association have been endangered by the antagonistic attitude which some exhibitor organization in various parts of the country have taken, whose officers evidently were not aware of the facts, and therefore sent out entirely erroneous information.

Section No. 906 of the Revenue Bill, which was passed by the House and Senate during the past week, contains a provision taxing motion picture film rentals five per cent. This takes the place of the so-called footage tax in the Revenue Act of October, 1917, which brought about the adoption of the charge of fifteen cents per reel per day.

Should the industry be successful in having the five per cent film rental tax eliminated from the present bill, the fifteen cent per reel per day charge now in effect would likewise be eliminated.

Jesse L. Lasky Leaves for West Coast

Just before leaving New York for his annual mid-winter visit to the Famous Players-Lasky studios at Hollywood, Jesse L. Lasky announced the appointment of his general assistant, Whitman Bennett, as manager of the producing department.

Mr. Lasky will confer with Director General Cecil B. De Mille and other officials of the organization on new productions and the general routine of same while in California.

"That we are able to advance Mr. Bennett to the important position of manager of the Producing Department," said Mr. Lasky, "is a matter of the utmost personal gratification to me. For some time past he has been sharing the responsibilities of the department."

"Fifty-Fifty" Idea Has Appealed

Baltimore Newspaperman Points Out Value of the Many Suggestions Made in Motion Picture News Editorial

"I HONESTLY believe that the proper way for the motion picture industry to develop and develop fast, is for the picture producers generally to meet their exhibitors on a fifty-fifty basis," is the opinion expressed by Frank D. Webb, advertising manager of the Baltimore News.

This statement of a man outside the film industry was called forth after Mr. Webb had read W. A. Johnston's recent editorial, "Fifty-Fifty."

"I have read your editorial with the keenest interest," continued Mr. Webb, "and wish to emphasize that this co-operation which you urge has been the making of the automobile industry, and unquestionably will go further toward putting pictures where they belong than any other single thing that can happen in connection with the motion picture industry.

"The exhibitors are seeing the light, and are far in advance of the producers and distributors in this respect. Altogether too much; even the larger companies are relying on free publicity and press matter concerning their stars.

"Practically nothing is being done in creative work to increase the number of regular attendants at motion picture theatres. The Government rated pictures as an essential industry in war times because of their effect on the morale of soldiers. If it is good for the morale of men in the trenches, why isn't it good for the morale of the average citizen?

"Why shouldn't a drive be made to induce the average individual to realize that pictures, so far from being a frivolous entertainment which he should be rather ashamed to patronize, are, as a matter of fact, a relaxation to which he is entitled, and for which he will be the better for attending, besides which many of them are intensely instructive.

"The broad Fifty-Fifty proposition should come generally into use. The Columbia Phonograph Company started its first tremendous success with a wide-open fifty-fifty proposition to all dealers. The Columbia proposition was that it would pay fifty per cent of the cost of all newspaper advertising placed by any of its dealers devoted to the Columbia phonograph or its records.

"They built big advertisers in every section of every city by this means, and they put their proposition on a foundation on which they have been able to make every move since. There were no 'Ifs' nor 'Ands' nor 'Buts' about the way this transaction was handled.

"The Columbia agent could advertise any way he pleased. He prepared his own copy (much of it bad, no doubt), but he had the absolute assurance that his every Columbia ad, or, in the case of large firms, that portion of the ad devoted to Columbia, would be paid for to the extent of fifty per cent by the Columbia people.

"The fifty-fifty idea advocated by W. A. Johnston will prove, in the long run, to be the one supremely valuable thing through which to build up attendance and generally to grade up the whole motion picture proposition."

OUST CENSORS

Pennsylvania Legislator Proposes to Create New State Board

TO abolish the present State Board of Censors in the State of Pennsylvania is the object of a bill just introduced by Representative Bucher of Philadelphia in the Pennsylvania Legislature at Harrisburg.

The legislator proposes however to create another state board to substitute for the present board. The new State Board would be known as the State Board of Amusements.

Representative Bucher's bill provides that among other things the activities of the proposed new board would be to pass on motion picture film.

Cameraman of the Coast Organize

A new organization has been effected among camera men of the West Coast producing colony which has been incorporated under the name of American Society of Cinematographers. Quarters have been taken in the Markham Building in Hollywood, which they plan shall be eventually enlarged to take in the entire third floor of this building, thus giving accommodations for spacious club rooms, laboratories and projecting rooms.

There will be no limit to the membership of this new organization, which expects shortly to organize a branch in New York, but admission will be by invitation only, and an attempt made to band together the best camera men of the industry for fraternal and social reasons, as well as for the interchange of ideas in motion picture photography. Round table meetings will be held weekly, and at these reviews by the camera men on current productions will be features. Each photographer will be asked to write a review of the pictures he witnesses, and these reviews will be read and discussed. The organization, or board of governors, are: Philips E. Rosen, George Leone Tucker studios; Homer Scott, Fox; Charles Rosher, Pickford; W. C. Foster, Fox; Dal Clawson, Weber; Arthur Edeson, Clara Kimball Young; Eugene Gaudio, Metro; Victor Milner and Joe August, Hart; Guy Wilky, Barriscale; Robert Newhard, Farnum; Walter L. Griffin, Walthall; Dev. Jennings, Fox; Leroy Granville, Frank Lloyd Company; Roy Klaffki, Hampton, and Percy Hilburn of Goldwyn.

Philip E. Rosen, who is president of the society, is also president of the Cinema Club of New York, and Charles Rosher, vice-president of the society, is president of the Cinema Club of California.

Sees Defeat of Sensationalism in Films

"The period of the sensational picture is passing," says Mrs. David Ross, president of the Indianapolis board of motion picture indorsers, which has made its first complete survey of the motion picture situation in Indianapolis. Results have been made public by Mrs. Ross. The survey brings out the fact that very few of the pictures which the board has passed on can be called immoral, although 63 out of 215 pictures seen during the year were not indorsed.

The picture committee of the board which made the survey is composed of the following members: Mrs. Fred Pettijohn, Mrs. O. C. Lukenbill, Mrs. M. C. Robbins, Mrs. Charles Davidson, Mrs. H. O. Phillips, Mrs. Theodore Wagner, Mrs. Harvey D. Orlopp and Mrs. Emma Duvall, who attended to the colored houses.

Mrs. Ross said:

"We protest against the sensational form of advertising, which is done to draw a crowd and is often much worse than the picture itself. Many times we have visited houses showing pictures which have been sensationally advertised, only to find that the suggestiveness of the title was not introduced into the picture itself."

New Theatre Proposed for Oshkosh

The news comes via Fond du Lac that Oshkosh, Wisconsin, the largest city in the Fox River Valley, will have a new photoplay theatre if plans now well under way materialize, and they are expected to go through without a hitch. The man behind the enterprise is Wendel Rice, well known Milwaukee theatre man and proprietor of the State theatre, Twenty-seventh and State streets, that city.

"I consider that Oshkosh is a highly favorable field for high-grade entertainment in motion pictures," said Mr. Rice, "and I think the kind of a theatre we have in mind would draw large attendance and be a paying proposition. The indications are that the people of Oshkosh would support such an institution."

It is understood that the proposed theatre will have a seating capacity of between 1,500 and 2,000, and that it will include a ladies' rest room and a children's play room.

Producers Elect Officers

At the annual meeting of Motion Picture Producers Association, held in Los Angeles Thursday evening, February 6, officers for 1919 were elected as follows: Charles H. Christie, president; W. S. Smith, William Sistrom and Thomas H. Ince, vice-presidents; Frank A. Garbutt, treasurer, and W. J. Reynolds, acting secretary. Both Messrs. Garbutt and Reynolds have served in these offices since the organization of the association more than two years ago.

Open Again!

People's theatre, Cincinnati, just reopened after being dark three seasons, is booking Triangle films. The former vaudeville theatre is doing a good business.

Toronto Theatre Enlarges Its Capacity

The Family theatre, Queen Street East and Lee Avenue, Toronto, recently acquired by the Paramount Theatres, Limited, Toronto, has been enlarged and redecorated, the seating capacity having been increased to about 1,200. The St. Julien theatre, Bloor street West, Toronto, controlled by the same company, which was damaged by fire a few weeks ago, is also being rebuilt. The Alhambra theatre, a brand new house on the site of the old Prince George at Bloor and Bathurst street, Toronto, which is to be operated under the direction of the Paramount Theatres, Limited, is nearing completion. The Alhambra will seat about 1,600 people and will be a fine uptown house.

Announcement is also made that the new Allen's Bloor Street theatre, Bloor and Bathurst streets, will be ready for operation during the first week in March. This is a very beautiful structure. The manager of this house will be Herb Jennings, a veteran exhibitor of Toronto, Ottawa, and Kitchener.

American Distribution from New Haven

American Feature Film Company will distribute to the Connecticut and western Massachusetts territory from new offices in New Haven, Conn., soon after March first. They have taken an entire floor in the film exchange building, 126 Meadow street, and are having it remodeled and decorated to suit their own purposes. Their Connecticut branch is now at 121 Meadow street, where they have been located for a few months while studying the territory.

The General Film Company have discontinued the New Haven branch.

Poli Plans Theatre in Waterbury, Conn.

Sylvester Z. Poli has purchased property at Main street and Phœnix avenue, Waterbury, Conn., for the site of a large new theatre. He has commissioned Thomas Lamb, 644 Eighth avenue, New York, to work out plans for a structure seating 2,850 people, and intends to spend upward of $400,000 for building alone. This will be Mr. Poli's second large house at Waterbury, and his second new theatre planned for construction this spring, the other being the one at Hartford, Conn., already announced. Mr. Lamb will award contracts in both cases.

At the California

Announcement comes from the management of the California theatre in Los Angeles that Jesse Crawford has been engaged as chief organist, and will assume the duties there shortly. Crawford is a very well known organist of the Coast, having played for theatres in Spokane, Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, and for the past year has been at the Grauman in Los Angeles.

Buffalo Exchanges Form Organization

In order to bring about a closer cooperation between distributors and exhibitors of moving picture films, representatives of the leading film exchanges of Buffalo, N. Y., have formally organized under the name of the Motion Picture Exchange Managers' Association. The organization was made at a meeting of the managers, held in the Chamber of Commerce, with which body the association will be closely identified. By-laws were adopted and committees appointed to draft rules and regulations which will hereafter control the distribution of films in the district served by this city. Officers were elected as follows: Frank S. Hopkins, of the Universal branch, president; George A. Hickey, of Triangle, vice-president; R. C. Fox, of Paramount-Artcraft, treasurer, and C. A. Taylor, of Pathe, secretary. The association plans to protect both the exhibitor and the exchange, and then will work in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce in combating any harmful influence launched against the industry. Regular meetings will be held the first and third Mondays of each month.

Representative Charles Bennett Smith, of Buffalo, has introduced a bill in Washington authorizing the use by the department of commerce of motion pictures in connection with the general program for advertising the commerce and industry of the United States. It is said Secretary Redfield has comprehensive plans for promoting industry and commerce, and part of his plan is to use motion pictures, showing the differences in methods of this country and others.

Diagnosis of Patrons in Toronto

In a recent issue of the Toronto Sunday World, that of February 16, an attempt was made to diagnoze the preference of local theatre patrons in the matter of stars. A number of exhibitors were interviewed and it was the consensus of opinion that Charlie Chaplin was the greatest drawing-card of the film galaxy.

Judging by the article, it is apparent that locality makes a big difference in the support for different stars. The Griffith productions draw the greatest crowds to the Allen theatre, it was stated, while Nazimova is the favorite among the exclusive Regent theatre patrons. Both of these are downtown houses with similar policies and catering to the same class of patronage, but each has a different set of pictures. At the Brighton theatre in the West End the patrons adore the Talmadge sisters and Clara Kimball Young and they do not like serials, it is said. At the Madison theatre on Bloor Street, North End, the people show preference to Mary Pickford and Chaplin.

At the Strand theatre, downtown, the people have supported Chaplin and Irene Castle, while at the Globe theatre, Queen Street West, the preference is for Chaplin, Hart and Pearl White. Serials are very strong at this house. Fairbanks is also a big star at the Allen theatre.

"Man of Might" Books Rapidly

A rush of bookings of "The Man of Might" is reported by Vitagraph. The first episodes of the newest chapter-play to reach the market are being released this month, and the huge exhibitor advertising campaign in behalf of the serial is now under full headway.

From Philadelphia word has reached the Vitagraph home office that that city is almost solidly booked for the fifteen weeks of the new serial's run. Showings have been programmed for that period at houses like the Globe, the Jumbo, the Proskey, the Empress and the Lafayette. This fairly well skims the cream of bookings, each house mentioned catering to the best picture patronage of the locality.

"The Man of Might" blazoned a bright trail last week to the Far West. The apex of a flaring comet of bookings extending into the far stretches of the land struck at the Isis theatre, Denver, where the serial was inaugurated for its pioneer Denver run with befitting calcium and clamor. The bright lights of the Isis told of the premiere of "The Man of Might" in a manner that made its mark even on that habitually brightly lit thoroughfare, Curtis street, which is the "gay white way" of the mining metropolis. Extra shows to accommodate the crowds failed of their purpose. Hundreds were forced to defer their first glimpse of what Vitagraph touts as its "greatest ever" in the serial line.

Ralph Ince Makes "Telegraph" Statement

Ralph Ince has requested that the following statement be given publicity:

"Due to a certain misleading article which appeared in the Sunday Telegraph recently, I have been in receipt of numerous inquiries as to the status of my connection with A. H. Sawyer and Herbert Lubin, at present engaged in presenting a series of 'Ralph Ince Film Attractions,' personally directed by myself. The article in question created the impression that I had returned permanently to the Vitagraph Company. I wish to contradict this idea, and to say that because of my long personal friendship with A. E. Smith, I have consented to do one picture for the Vitagraph organization. This will not interfere in any way with my plans, in connection with 'Ralph Ince Film Attractions.' I will return to that organization immediately I have finished directing this special Vitagraph picture. The arrangement was made through the mutual agreement of Arthur H. Sawyer, Herbert Lubin and A. E. Smith, and was only practical because of the reason that the story for the second Ralph Ince film attraction is now being prepared.

"I believe it only fair to all concerned to enlighten the motion picture industry as to the exact status of this matter and to state that my connection with Ralph Ince film attractions remains entirely undisturbed."

Special Service Section on Page 1349

Exhibitor Service Bureau

New York No Leader Here

But Newspapers Show a Better Feeling Towards Motion Pictures With Only Four Houses Advertising Regularly

BECAUSE we are reaching the end of this series of articles in which we have covered the question of cooperation between newspapers and motion picture theatres in all of the principal cities of the country and because we have had many inquiries along these lines we are now taking up the situation here. We postponed New York until the last because the situation was so bad here that we hoped that it would improve within the year occupied with these articles.

And we are glad to say that it has—to some extent. Now some of the papers are willing to give the photoplay a show and even the New York Times that was entirely too highbrow for anything like the motion picture is now reviewing the attractions at the four leading theatres and actually has something good to say about the photoplay once in awhile. We will have some comment to make a little further along about what other newspapers are doing, but this is rather a study of conditions.

Now the bigger the city the harder the problem for the advertiser, especially the man with the neighborhood house that appeals only to a limited section. In the first place it generally follows that the larger the city the greater number of papers there are and the higher the rates. Another thing that must be figured in is the matter of waste circulation to all except the big central theatres that can draw people from all parts of the city. It is pretty tough for an exhibitor to have to pay a rate based on a circulation of 300,000 when there are, say, only 4,000 readers of that paper in the territory from which he can draw. Of course he can hope that the ads will draw him business from other sections of the city, and they will, but certainly he cannot afford to pay the rate in all of the newspapers.

As a matter of fact there are only four theatres in New York City (Brooklyn is excepted for any of these remarks, for it has its own newspapers) that advertise regularly, these being the Rialto, Rivoli, Strand and Broadway. The Rialto and Rivoli have recently cut down the space they have been using and the Saturday and Sunday newspapers and their advertising consists in merely listing the bills. During the week these theatres and the Strand use about five agate lines, merely announcing the feature. They cannot afford to do much greater than this, they say, because they have to use all of the papers to get their announcement before the public and the total amount is great.

But there has never been a motion picture theatre in New York that has been an advertiser of the character that we find in many of the other cities, and we would not say that a theatre with sufficient seating capacity and that went to advertising along a liberal, but intelligent plan would not come out far ahead. One great trouble to get anyone to start this is that the houses do an immense Sunday business and because they show to capacity they see no reason for big announcements in the Sunday issues, but at the same time do nothing to build up the business during the week.

That this can be done was shown during the recent showing of "The Fighting Roosevelts" or "Our Teddy" at the Strand when the insertion of cartoon advertising after the middle of the week brought great crowds at a time that business was bad in most houses.

Now manifestly the solution of the problem would be for one newspaper to set out to make itself the motion picture newspaper of the city, to give the real motion picture news, and then for the exhibitor to center on that newspaper, to advertise the fact in their houses that every day their announcements would appear in that paper. That has just been tried to an extent and appears to have failed, though it seems to us that neither the newspaper nor a considerable portion of the exhibitors carried out the spirit of the plan. The newspaper that did this was the Evening Mail, the afternoon paper with the smallest circulation of any of the afternoon papers except the Evening Post.

This paper started out to establish a Motion Picture Directory, which it is still running. It made a very low rate to the exhibitors because it wanted to encourage them and got off to a mighty good start. We watched the experiment with interest because the writer of these aricles had had great success with a similar directory. The New York plan looked promising at first, and we think that the first mistake the Evening Mail made was to almost ignore motion picture matter right at the start of his project. Many days we bought copies of the paper and did not find a line of motion picture matter though there was ample space devoted to the theatres that could have been divided. It was at this time that the paper should have made its flash and have printed several columns a day of interesting matter that would have gotten the attention of thousands of fans. Then if the paper had the cooperation of the theatres to let the people know what the Evening Mail was doing we believe that it would have built up considerable circulation.

At the start the advertising directory itself will not get the circulation. The newspaper must have the reader's interest in the news matter, though in a short time the directory will become such a valuable feature—to the man who has been made one of your readers by the photoplay news matter—that you can hold him. The paper is doing more for motion picture matter now than it did then, but the point is that it should have made its flash at the start.

There is another thing: Judging from the experience that we have had in another city we would say that some of the exhibitors have apparently not kept their faith, and their contracts. Out of the forty seven theatres that are now occupying space in the Evening Mail directory, nineteen of them do not give their attractions; that is the name and address of the theatre is carried and then such wordings as "Special Feature" is used.

Now the writer's experience along the same line in another city was that some of the exhibitors who had signed similar contracts got cold feet afterwards, weren't willing to continue to pay and reached conclusion that the way to get out of the contract was to fail to send in their bills. Of course, where that sort of spirit prevails there can be no real cooperation. The theatre manager who does this is not getting out of his contract or anything of the sort, but he is deliberately weakening the benefit of the directory to others and discouraging cooperation.

The Tribune is doing more for the motion picture than any of the morning papers, but it is a curious coincidence to find that, like in the afternoon field, the paper that is doing the most has the smallest circulation. It devotes a solid page to motion picture matter and the advertising that it carries. We are afraid that some of this matter in the Sunday issue is a little too heavy and too long for the general reader. For instance in the page from the Tribune that we have reproduced there is a two column review of "The Silver King." We don't believe there will be many interested in reading it. The shorter stuff is much better.

Now just to keep the records straight let us look at the circulations of the New York papers of general circulation, as given in the Lord and Thomas directory. We are not including foreign language, socialist or class publications in this list:

Afternoon: Globe (214,835); Journal (808,608); Mail (156,529); Post (20,809); Evening Sun (191,487); Telegram (217,846) and Evening World (431,222). The Telegram is also published Sunday afternoon and carries a considerable amount of motion picture advertising in that issue.

Morning and Sunday American (D*—396,584—S—728,923);

(Continued on page 1310)

Motion Picture Theatres Decidedly Shy on Advertising in These Pages

At left top page from Sunday Tribune, then from Times and from Herald. Center row, left to right, Saturday Globe, Journal and Sun. Below two pages from Saturday Mail, center showing Motion Picture Directory and then page from Evening World

Only Four New York Theatres Regularly Advertise Their Pictures

(Continued from page 1308)

Herald (D—115,792—S—225,132); Sun (D—148,759—S—962,360); Times (D—347,394—S—416,216); Tribune (D—102,177—S—91,156) and World (D—389,684—S—518,235).

Now of the afternoon papers the Evening Journal has far the largest circulation but a lot of it is held to be circulation that does not help the uptown motion picture houses and its rate is prohibitive except to the biggest houses.

We have printed a Saturday page from the Globe which consists mainly of reading notices for the various advertising houses under the heading "What to See on the Screen." It carries some reviews of the big houses on Monday and Tuesday.

The Evening Sun does about the same thing and some short reviews appear on Monday and Tuesday.

The Evening World gives the pictures shown at the four big houses representation in its Saturday layout and brief reading notices under separate headings.

The Mail devotes about a third of its Saturday paper to motion pictures including some interesting short notes.

The Evening Telegram gives most of its space on Sunday though it carries short reviews and other real news of pictures in its daily amusement department.

Then let us turn to the morning paper. We have already discussed the Tribune. The Times devotes about two columns to motion picture matter under the heading: "Written on the Screen, and as we have said gives reviews on Monday morning. Any other matter that the motion picture may happen to get during the week is confined to brief agate notes.

The Herald uses a seven column layout Sundays giving the pictures of stars and scenes from attractions at the bigger houses, stories about each production and then some interesting short notes.

The World devotes very small space to the motion picture on Sunday, prints a combination review of the four houses on Mondays and lets it go at that.

The Sun devotes a box to giving the names of the pictures at the big houses and sometimes reviews on Monday.

The American prints elaborate layouts on the legitimate stage, and then sometimes gives a separate cut to a motion picture production, and often there are separate stories, but it does not accord the same cooperation that goes to the legitimate houses.

Now this is not a great showing for the motion picture, by any means, but as we said at the beginning of this article there has been an improvement. This improvement hasn't resulted in the newspapers giving a lot of space to the motion picture theatres, but it has resulted in a different attitude on the part of most of them to the photoplay.

Some of them are beginning to show a belief that the public is interested in the motion picture by printing the short gossipy items that it does print. As we have pointed out the Mail and the Tribune lead, but there are evidences that there will be still further gains.

Of course the argument that the editor who believes that the people are interested in pictures and that more space should be given to them and to gossip of the people of the screen is up against comes from the business manager and from the friends of the spoken drama who say: "Look at the columns of your paper. Here there are all of the legitimate theatres in the theatrical district advertising and only four motion picture houses. Do you expect to give the motion picture as much space as we do the legitimate?"

From the point of view of the man who is looking for the direct daily returns, the argument is difficult to answer, but if the newspaper is willing to look to eventual circulation and standing in the community, and, more than that look to really serving the readers what they want, they will see the justice for the plea for the picture.

It would be a harder job to persuade the newspapers of New York of this than it would those in smaller cities. But we have already noticed that the papers show a willingness to come around.

It remains for the day to come when more theatres are advertising, when they loyally support a plan like the Evening Mail has. There are a number of fine houses in the upper part of Manhattan who would increase their business by advertising. The fact that they came into the papers would help a lot.

New York is no leader in the cooperation field—but it's not quite hopeless.

For Special Service Section on "Boots" See Page 1349

At comparatively no cost E. H. Collins is getting a number of excellent mechanical effects at the Liberty theatre, Electra, Texas. This was on "The Still Alarm," but the photograph fails to bring out the detail fully Simple Mechanical Arrangement Increases Business on "The Still Alarm"

E. N. COLLINS, manager of the Liberty theatre, Electra, Texas, is a manager who believes in doing things, although he is located in a small city and he is doing them so successfully that he is greatly increasing his business. Some weeks ago we published here an account of the manner in which he put on "The Romance of Tarzan." For that work he has just been awarded one of the $100 prizes in the First National Contest.

More recently there was printed here a picture of the display that he used on "Shoulder Arms," telling how he used a small motor salvaged from an old electric piano, an old speed control and a Powers' motor drive attachment with a cut out of Chaplin which actually made him shoulder arms at frequent intervals. Now by using this same "machinery" he has put over "The Still Alarm" to big business.

Over the entrance of the theatre he used one of the striking twenty-four sheets that represents a fire engine dashing down the street. So he replaced the gun with a sledge hammer, installed a gong and then got the clanging effect of the fire engine so vividly that everybody who passed by the theatre stopped to see where the noise was coming from and crowds were attracted from all over the town.

Says Mr. Collins: "The cost of this display was nil. Nothing whatever was bought except the twenty-four sheet and the net result was talk and business. The total outlay in labor which yours truly did on this display at odd times probably did not exceed three or four hours, and the visible result in the cash drawer was at least $50 over the usual run. Therefore I am convinced that it pays to advertise."

At right stage setting at Alhambra theatre, Toledo, O., on "Eye for Eye," and crowd in front of house before the opening on the morning of the last day of the run

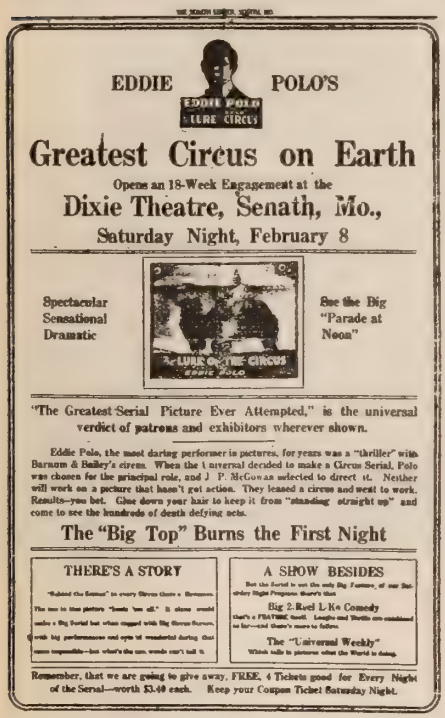
Horater Uses Thirty Columns of Newspaper Advertising in Exploiting "Eye For Eye"

H. C. HORATER, manager of the Alhambra theatre, Toledo, is one of the motion picture exhibitors who is making for better business all over the country. He believes in going to it with a smash when he has a big feature and how successfully this can be done is shown by the way that he put on Nazimova in "Eye for Eye." He reports that he could easily have run this picture for a second week, but that other bookings he had made prevented the extension of the run.

Mr. Horater is a great believer in all forms of advertising. As a matter of fact all of the leading Toledo theatres believe in liberal use of the newspapers and especially the Sunday Toledo Times which offers an example of what co-operation between the theatres and the newspapers will do. During the exploitation of "Eye for Eye" Mr. Horater used over 600 inches, or thirty columns of newspaper space. How many exhibitors are willing to go to such an extent to put on a picture? Yet some people still believe that advertising doesn't pay.

Then he was just as liberal when he came to the use of paper, employing over 3,000 sheets which were used in 24 and twelve sheet stands all over the city. Then to carry it further along he used 500 one sheets and 500 tack cards in the business portions of the city. Certainly there was no chance that there could be anyone able to read in the limits of Toledo who didn't know that this picture was coming to the Alhambra. As evidence of the run we have printed a picture of the crowd in front of the theatre at 10 a. m., on the final day of the picture's run.

Especial attention was given to the musical presentation, an elaborate score being used while the lighting effects attracted much attention. These of course, cannot be shown in any photograph. The stage was covered with rugs and divans in eastern fashion and scattered about the stage were tiger skins that carried out the atmosphere.



One of the strong points about the proper advertising and presentation of pictures is the advertising that it gives the theatre. Mr. Jorater is finding, like so many others who are starting in to do things that the exploitation of one picture brings the people back to see later productions. And therefore there are any number of big things being planned by Mr. Horater who has just returned to Toledo after looking over a number of features that he will show during the next few weeks.

Last week "The Heart of Humanity" began its second engagement at the Alhambra.

ADVISORY BOARD, EXHIBITORS SERVICE BUREAU

Thomas D. Soriero, Park theatre, Boston, and Strand theatres, Lowell
Harold B. Franklin, Shea's Hippodrome, Buffalo.
Edw. L. Hyman, Film Director, U. S. Liberty Theatres, New York.
E. Mandlebaum, Loew's Stillman theatre, Cleveland.
Mrs. Joseph Grossman, Standard theatre, Cleveland.
George J. Schade, Schade theatre, Sandusky.
H. C. Horater, Alhambra theatre, Toledo.
Mark Gates, Dayton theatre, Dayton, O.
S. Barret McCormick, Circle theatre, Indianapolis.
Theo. L. Hays, New Garrick theatre, St. Paul.
A. J. Moeller, Theatre de Luxe, Detroit.
Sid Laurence, Alhambra theatre, Detroit.
Chas. G. Branham, Majestic theatre, Detroit.
C. Edgar Momand, Garden theatre, Flint, Mich.
Leo A. Landau, Butterfly theatre, Milwaukee.
Charles C. Perry, Liberty theatre, Camp Cody, Texas.
W. S. McLaren, Majestic and Colonial theatres, Jackson, Mich.
Willard C. Patterson, Criterion theatre, Atlanta, Ga.
E. V. Richards, Jr., General Manager, Saenger Amusement Co., New Orleans.
C. A. Lick, New theatre, Fort Smith, Ark.
F. L. Newman, Royal and Regent theatres, Kansas City, Mo.
Herbert J. Thacher, Strand theatre, Salina, Kan.
H. M. Thomas, Strand theatre, Omaha.
Ralph Ruffner, Rialto theatre, Butte.
A. H. Hilton, Paramount theatre, Lewiston, Idaho.
George E. Carpenter, Paramount-Empress theatre, Salt Lake.
Sam W. B. Cohn, Spokane.
E. J. Myrick, Liberty theatre, Portland, Ore.
A. S. Kolstad, Liberty theatre, Hood River, Ore.
H. L. Percy, Rialto theatre, Medford, Ore.
P. E. Noble, Publicity Manager, Liberty and Columbia theatres, Seattle.
Eugene H. Roth, California theatre, San Francisco.
J. A. Partington, Imperial theatre, San Francisco.
Sidney Grauman, Grauman's theatre, Los Angeles.
A. C. H. Chamberlin, Opera House, Madera, Cal.

What Live Wires are Doing

ment showing some daring act, there would have been real punch. The picture of the man on the camel means nothing. The Dixie theatre deserves to be supplied with the right sort of advertising matter. It was made for him in the New York offices, but he did not get it. Why?

If your policy is simply to "get 'em in" you won't have much trouble in getting 'em out—for keeps.

HERE is a rather unusual campaign. You have seen reproduced in these pages from time to time the "personal guarantee" style of advertising. This carries the statement of the manager of the theatre that the picture is unusually good. Of course, in such cases the advertiser should be sure of his premises before resorting to this plan, but when he has the goods he is sure to cash in.

Now Leo A. Landau, manager of the Butterfly theatre, Milwaukee, has adopted a slightly different plan. First he inserted in the newspapers an advertisement addressed to photoplay patrons recalling the policy of the theatres advertising and pointing out that it rarely uses adjectives and adding: "This theatre cares more about retaining your confidence throughout the year than it does to get your fifteen cents for any one performance" and then adds that when the management of the house tells the patron anything about a picture it can be depended upon.

Following this came the second display, on the Constance Talmadge picture. There is not an adjective used, there are a few selling lines on the picture and then comes the guarantee that the Milwaukee public will like Constance in this sort of a picture. This sort of advertising is bound to inspire public confidence. But don't do it haphazard. Know first that you have the picture. Then state your case plainly, without promising the earth and you will get bigger business—and send satisfied patrons away from your house.

Better an empty house than one full of disappointed patrons.

FOR using a page of space on this production the manager of the Dominion theatre, Winnipeg, deserves credit, but there the credit stops. The greater part of the page is wasted through ill-advised use of type. It appears to us from an examination of this display that the man who designed it simply did not have the cut material with which to advertise the picture. The single column cut used in the center is an abomination with a lot of Ben Day shading that prevents the profile from standing out.

And after that we cannot imagine anything worse than the use of the "wave rule" borders which occupy a lot of space and serve only to "muss things up."

There should have been the statement that this is a Maurice Tourneur production, not that he "presents" the picture. That is confusing. There should have been a striking cut, if available, and then the advertisement should have been typed and there should have been a series of selling lines instead of a lot of exclamations as there are here. This is a picture where you need to get over the heart appeal, but of doing this the writer of this display has used the circus style.

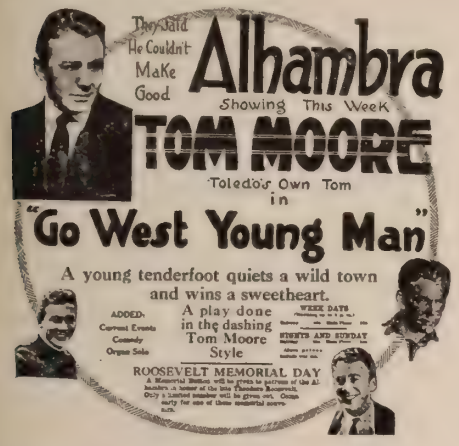
Take one look at it and see how the general typing hurts the eye. You get the big flash line "Sporting Life" and then you want to travel away from the page. The mass of upper case letters get in your way and the exclamation marks and the hyphens further serve to confuse.

It seems to us that this was written with a spirit of "bing, bing" without knowing what the "bing" was striking.

There should have been a striking cut at the upper left hand corner and then heading down on the right hand side "Maurice Tourneur, etc.," as we have suggested, and then the fact that this is the screen version of the Drury Lane melodrama. Then under the cut there should have been attractively displayed the title and then largely indented under this the selling argument, told in a series of short, crisp sentences, a mention of the fact that the orchestra had been augmented and then the date with the name plate of the theatre brought in at the bottom.

Even nectar must have tired the gods of Olympus when it was served for breakfast. And your patrons will get the same feeling when you tell them that every production you have is "fit for the gods."

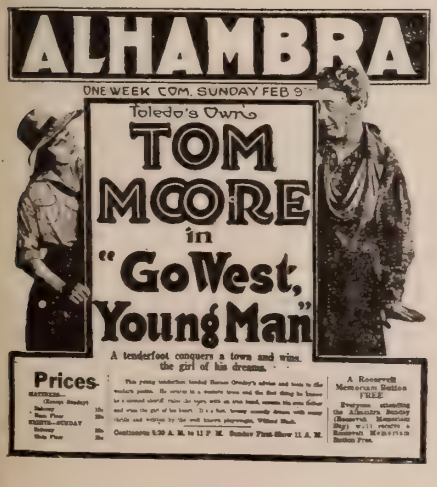
SAM HURTIG, manager of the Appollo theatre, 209 West 125th Street, New York City, claims that he has invented a new way of telling the sort of a production he is showing and reflecting the personality of the star in lights. The front of the house is particularly brilliantly lighted and the illumination does much to bring business on Harlem's main street.



For instance, when he is playing a William Farnum picture he used red as typifying virility, for Tom Mix pictures he uses blue on the ground that this color expressing steadfastness, and for Gladys Brockwell pictures he uses green as expressing the mystery that is found in so many of her offerings. Ordinarily the Apollo plays a double bill, but on certain days he uses only one feature and then it is that he employs the colors.

Some theatres are like maps; they are well laid out; but they are used only in case of a necessity.

Your Idea and Ours



IT is very rare to find a theatre that really gives attention to the product of its own home town. In our opinion the theatres are losing a chance when they do not feature the players from their section. But here is a case where the bet has not been overlooked.

Tom Moore was not born in Toledo, but in Ireland. His parents moved to Toledo while he was still young and there Tom, and the other Moore boys, was educated, and it was from Toledo that he ventured out into the amusement world. So the Alhambra theatre realizes that Toledo people are going to be a lot interested in Toledo product and therefore it has started to feature him in all its advertising as "Toledo's own Tom." Without any reflection on the ability of the actor, we will wager that at least ten per cent more people were brought to see him because he is identified with Toledo than would have come had the displays been put over in the ordinary fashion.

Both of the displays reproduced here are quarter pages. The one which carries the large cut of the star in the upper left hand corner is considerably the better because it has the clever use of the line "They said he couldn't make good." Now that really refers to the picture, but there are a lot of people that are going to conclude that they said Toledo's own Tom couldn't deliver the goods and they are going down to the Alhambra to see how he did it. It also contains the selling argument in a couple of sentences, and it is always better to say as little as you can.

The second display has an attractive cut arrangement with the girl and the man looking around the center display at each other.

And just to show that H. C. Horater, the manager, is on the job, you will note the announcement of a Roosevelt Memorial Button for each one attending the performance that Sunday.

Vacant space in your exploitation plans means vacant seats in your house.

IN eight inches across four columns the Royal theatre, St. Louis, has achieved a might good effect in its display on "The Heart of Humanity." Now you want to remember that this was the second week that this picture was being shown and that it was being screened at two theatres. The owners did right in combining the two theatres under the same heading, for the very fact that two theatres are playing the same picture leaves the impression that this is an unusual feature and therefore it cannot be missed.

So, because this picture has been seen and it has had very strong reviews from the St. Louis paper, the writer of this paper did the very best thing in featuring the comment. While this is unusual space for a St. Louis attraction to offer it would have been worth the price to have increased the space used to have included the criticisms in the same type as which they appeared in the papers. But the whole display is built on "The verdict of the press." There is no doubt that his display drew big business.

He who advertises generally convinces the public that he has the goods.

STRAND THEATRE, Omaha, gives us just about a perfect display on "The Heart of Wetona" in this thirteen-inch, triple column. We believe that there might have been a slight improvement by running a white hair line a little stronger around the head of the star, but the paper in which the display appears gives such good printing that the fault is not serious.

We like the idea of bringing out at the very top of the advertisement the fact that the picture has been made from Belasco's stage success, and then carrying the heart idea through the main cut and through the border effects. The name of the star is properly brought out in the larger lettering, because the heart idea is carried through so well that emphasis on the title in mere type is not needed.

There is a good selling line in "Is it possible to marry a man with love and later to learn to love him?" We are mighty glad that the "you" idea was left out of this one.

Move a little further along Progress Lane and you'll like the view fine.

WHEN the smaller exhibitor is supplied with his exchange with the right sort of cuts to use in his displays there is going to be a march forward in the motion picture industry that will bring more money to everyone. But it remains an unfortunate fact that no matter how good advertising the producing company may provide it is not available in the exchanges, and for some reason the exhibitor does not get it.

You have read before of the Dixie theatre, Senath, Mo. Certainly it deserves credit for using page displays which it has done on "The Lure of the Circus," but what an improvement there would have been if the right sort of a cut had been forthcoming. The advertisement is mighty well written, but the right sort of cuts are not there. If the exhibitor had been supplied with one of the cuts prepared by the Universal advertising depart-

How New York Stages the Show

THERE is a mighty clever stunt being used by Maurice A. Kashin at the Broadway theatre this week in showing the first and the last of the Chaplin pictures. As a matter of fact, it was the Broadway that was the first theatre in the country to take advantage of the fact that Mildred Harris had become the bride of the million dollar comedian and to play the two of them on the same bill as Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chaplin.

Now he has come along with the first picture in which Chaplin appeared, and as he shows this he has the tin pan piano and drum effect that we used to get with pictures about the time this one was released. And then when "Shoulder Arms" is started the full orchestra takes up the music. The full details of the presentation are given on another page. Mae Murray in "The Scarlet Shadow" is the feature picture this week.

At the Strand, Marguerite Clark is appearing as Lovey Mary in the screen version of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," and there is a James Montgomery Flagg, together with the news weekly and musical numbers.

One of the most celebrated stage successes, "The Lion and the Mouse," comes to the screen at the Rialto this week with Alice Joyce in the principal role. Also the first of the "Tad" cartoons of Judge Rumhause is shown, with a Prizma picture and a lecture.

There is a special tense drama at the Rivoli in "False Faces," and though there are many laughs in it, a Mutt and Jeff comedy provides further humor. There is a Prizma picture of birds and flowers. There is a novel arrangement of the program, with the Pictorial coming first.

Rialto Theatre

SEVERAL years after it was first produced on the legitimate stage, "The Lion and the Mouse" finally comes to the screen at the Rialto theatre this week. Alice Joyce has the title role in this tense drama, around which there is a greatly varied program, ranging from grand opera to cartoon comedy.

"Finlandia" is the brilliant overture which Dr. Riesenfeld conducts at the Rialto. It opens with organ peals and the brass while the lights are down in red and about midway they come up to gold and we get the strings dominant. It is really a "tone poem" that calls for the finest interpretation of an orchestra and it certainly makes a hit.

At the end of this the lights go down again into blue effect and after a few bars of music Dr. Leonard Sugden, formerly a surgeon with the Northwestern Mounted Police, appears to lecture on the Prizma picture, "The Lure of Alaska." We have always had the greatest doubt about the suitability of a lecture to the motion picture theatre, though it has been done in all three of the leading New York theatres. Naturally, there is no music accompanying the picture when there is the lecture, and we believe that the music is a much more powerful element than the human voice in putting over a production. Dr. Sugden takes us through "The Hell of the Yukon" and there are some stirring scenes of shooting the rapids.

Then, with the lights all in dim blue, comes William L. Feder of the Rialto orchestra with a 'cello solo, Chopin's "Nocturne." He is seated at the director's stand and a spotlight is on him. There is a piano accompaniment for the most of the selection.

There is a hero punch for the opening and closing of the Rialto Pictorial in the pictures that Production Manager Joseph LaRose has selected for this week. Before the opening there are bugle calls and a roll of drums and then come Gaumont pictures of decorating heroes for their bravery in France at Camp Kendrick, N. J., and then a review of the troops by Gen. Siebert. "Preparedness March" is the accompaniment. Then come Pathe pictures of dividing up the U-boats at Harwich, England. First we have an Italian cruiser taking some of them away and then Japan getting her share and finally England's arrangements for guarding the captured ships. With these pictures there are first a few bars of drum roll and then the full orchestra bursts into the splendid "Pomp and Circumstance." This selection continues through Kinogram pictures of Italy's war nets for capturing submarines and then pictures of the U-boat hunters going out with airships flying overhead assisting in the search and finally we see a barrage of depth bombs dropped. We have convincing effects with these pictures.

Gaumont gives us a laugh with some picture taken at Saugus, Mass., showing "a new use for the flivver," which consists in the use of an automobile motor for a home-made airship. "Big Boot Dance" is used here. From the same source come pictures of the airship built to fly over the ocean, taken at Bayonne, N. J., and for these the music is "For the Nation's Honor." Then comes the big punch with Gaumont pictures of the negroes of Brooklyn's old Fifteenth returning home. First we get shots of the ship loaded with troops and then a close-up view of Col. Hayward, who gets a riotous welcome from the audience. "Here They Come" is used until we are shown pictures of Jas. R. Europe and his Jazz band when the music changes to "Wild Jazz Knight," and there is a laugh with the final enthusiasm.

Martin Brefel and Edouardo Albano, two splendid singers, then give us the duet from "La Forza Del Destino" and after that comes the feature, "The Lion and the Mouse." As you will remember this is the story of the upright judge, of the big interests that seek his impeachment by trumped-up evidence because they cannot control him, and how his daughter goes into the employ of the head of the trust magnates and not only saves her father, but wins the son of the money king as her husband.

"In the Silence of the Night" is used for the introduction and then when we get the picture of Judge Roosmore and his wife we have the "Prelude" played and then with the title "In Paris" comes "Barbe Bleu" and then with the change in scene to America we get one of the numbered selections. With the title "And one evening" "Sui les Ponts" is used, then a numbered selection and with the title "At last, America" "Bachelor Girl" comes in. With Fitzroy Bagley comes "Songs of Shakespeare" for eight bars and then "Elegie" follows through. Where Jeff enters his mother's room we get "Meeting" and where he meets his father "Sweet Pondering," with "Daisies" following through.

The orchestra returns and plays "Love Mill" as the son recognizes the girl. Then follows through "Romance" and after letter is mailed "Song d'Ete" is played, the second time very slowly and with the change in scene comes the introduction only of "Woodland Dreams," followed by "Romance" with the title "My daughter's welfare," and then the theme comes in as the millionaire tells Shirley that she is a clever girl, and then come three numbered selections returning to "Romance" with the title "In justice to your son" and then the theme at the end where the girl takes the telegram.

The second orchestra number is omitted this week and then follows directly the cartoon comedy, "Judge Rumhauser," one of the new Tad series made by International and released by Educational. There is an animated title for the "Rialto Comic Supplement" which comes out of a cat and dog fight. "Rambling Roses," "I May Be Gone for a Long, Long While" and "Go Get 'Em" are the musical selections.

Grieg's "Daybreak" is the final organ solo.

Strand Theatre

COMEDY and heart interest dominate the bill at the Strand this week, and both of these are found in the feature, Marguerite Clark in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." The heart interest in the feature is accentuated with the use of the female quartet with "Songs of Long Ago," just before the feature, for the music strikes the same appeal that runs through the feature.

Tips From First Showings Here

Played with the Joan of Arc setting, "Fantasie Hongroise" is the overture this week and then comes a Pathe colored scenic of Kiusiu, the southernmost of the Japanese islands. There are some interesting views of the mountainous country and of the people. "Lady Picking Mulberries" and "Chinese Lullaby" are the selections.

Strand Topical opens with Pathe pictures of crack skaters competing at Milwaukee, and for the quick action of these we have "Saddleback Gallop." From the same source come pictures of the Seattle authorities taking quick action to halt the strike and here we have "Meeting of the Cammorists" employed, the weird music being distinctly appropriate here. "Jack Tar March" is played with Universal Current Events pictures of the Leviathan coming in laden with troops, and for the pictures that follow of the christening the cross-the-ocean seaplane at Bayonne, N. J. Pathe pictures decorations of Corporal Whitted at Camp Whitted to the music of "Million Heroes."

Then there comes a break from the strictly news events with Pathe-Ditmars pictures of "Animals of Foreign Climes," for which "Forget Me Nots" is played. Following this is the ever funny "Topics of the Day." One that got a particular reception was "Clemenceau kissed twenty-four stenographers the day the armistice was signed. Tiger? No, he's a bear." Another one was, "If they're looking for a national anthem that all will sing why not brush up on 'How dry I am!'" "Bluette" is the music through these.

We get back to news features with a punch with Pathe pictures of the negro soldiers returning, these being shown to the tune of "Gate City March." Then come the same Pathe pictures of the division of the U-boats, except there is more of the picture, the rest of it showing the ships of the Allies in German waters at Kiel and then a fade-out showing the British flag replacing the German standard; "Southland March" is the music. Pathe shows pictures of President Wilson visiting the ruins at Rheims in a snowstorm. There are vigorous cheers every time he makes his appearance on the screen. "Mefistofele" is the accompaniment that carries out the spirit of the pictures well, especially the vandalism of the Hun. Final punch comes with Universal Current Events pictures of the Seventh Cavalry, Custer's old regiment, on duty at El Paso and the shots of the charging men get a great reception to the tune of "Pride of the Army" march.

Now the lights go down and as the curtains part there is shown the veranda of a country home. There is a huge tree in the middle and in the distance are the fields, the river and the negro cabins. Here the four members of the Strand Ladies' Quartette are garbed in summer gowns, one in pink, one in blue and the others in white, while two are standing, one seated on a chair and the other on the floor. They sing "Songs of Long Ago," the three selections being "Sweet and Low," "In the Gloaming" and "Sweet Genevieve."

Immediately at the close the screen curtain comes down and the projection of the feature starts with the orchestra carrying the strains of "Sweet Genevieve" until the Brookfield orphanage is shown and then we have "Evening Ramble" until the close-up of Marguerite Clark after her fight and there the orchestra shifts to "Repose of the Forrest." With the title, "A sad secret," we have a change to "Couer Brise." This is continued until the title, "As time went on," when the orchestra changes to "Suite Enfantine No. 1" and then with the quotation, "We're going to lose little Tommy," we have "Kunihilde."

When we are shown Lovey Mary and the baby caught in the rain the organ takes up the music and we have the thunder effects. The rain effects are strikingly reproduced on the panel at either side of the screen, the arrangements of the lights giving a genuine reproduction of the falling water. The organ plays for eleven minutes until the title, "The next day in the cabbage patch," when the orchestra comes back with "Sressenhal Suite" No. 1, until Stubbins enters Miss Hazy's house, when "Sunshine of Your Smile" and then as the couple leave the house, "L'Eevenve Villageoise." When the goat finds pastures new the orchestra plays "Bergerette" pp, until the title, "Hazy Stubbins' Romance," when we have "Romantic Suite" No. 1 with the bridal march at the title, "Here comes the bride" and then "Romantic Suite" No. 2 until the mother of the baby finds its father when "Cavantine" is played and then "Romance" at the scene where Lovey Mary faints when "Romance" comes in, continuing to the title that tells us Stubbins may have looked like Lincoln, where the organ takes up the music for nine and a half minutes or until the title, "Time went on," when "Fete du Mammaneau" is played and then when the Wiggs are seen coming to their new home we have "Shepherd's Dream" and finally with the title, "And I'm doing it all for you," comes "Love's Old Sweet Song." It is a delightful arrangement of the music.

Ralph H. Corey, a member of the Strand orchestra, then renders a trombone solo, "Oh, Dry Those Tears," and then comes one of the Pathe "Analysis of Motion," this one showing a performer with Indian clubs. "La Glorita Waltz" is played for this.

Then comes one of the exceedingly funny James Montgomery Flagg comedies, "Beresford of the Baboons." It is really a burlesque of "Tarzan of the Apes" and so ridiculous that it keeps the audience in a roar. "Bamboule" is played once through and then "Out of the East," the organ taking up the music for five minutes, up to the scene with the cannibals and here No. 3 of "African Dancers" is used until the title, "What's the large notion, chief?" when we have "Hindustan" until the scene of the Cannibal orchestra where we have obo and bassoon and drums to the change in scene when "Oriental Fox Trot" is played to the end.

March from "Leonore Symphony" is the final organ number.

INSURING SERVICE

Strand Theatre Doesn't Give Ushers a Chance to Ignor You

EVER walk into a theatre at the first presentation of a new bill and see that the ushers are more interested in watching the picture than they are in seating the patrons? Of course, it's a tribute to your judgment in selecting the picture that even the ushers are absorbed in the action, but that is not any reason why the patrons should have to suffer.

And so, in the course of the attention to details that Manager Joseph Plunkett is giving the Strand theatre, New York City, he noticed this. He didn't want to deprive his ushers of the pleasure of seeing the picture, and at the same time he would not permit his patrons to be inconvenienced. So he has fixed on a happy solution that suits every one.

The ushers attend the rehearsal when the pictures are shown with music. They get the full show just as the patrons will see it later, and the young women ushers can sigh and applaud just as much as they want to and have the most comfortable seats in the house. And after that they are expected to be "on the job."

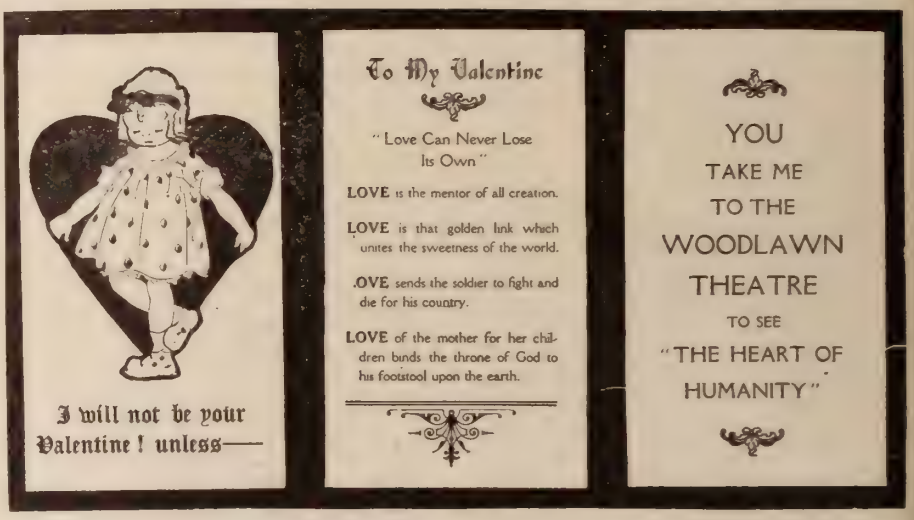
Rivoli Theatre

DR. HUGO RIESENFELD is certainly giving us novelty in the arrangement of the bills at the Rivoli recently. Last week the Rivoli Pictorial was the last thing on the program and this week it is the very first, even coming before the overture. After the curtains go up revealing the orchestra there are a few bars played with the lights all gold, and then they go down and the Pictorial starts.

It opens with Universal Current Events pictures of the Seventh Cavalry, already described, and these are shown to the tune of "Men of Sparta," specially arranged. Under the title "You'd never guess they're wounded" we have pictures of soldiers at St. Paul enjoying the winter sports with "The Rainbow" the music. With the title "Let's Go" the orchestra swings into "A la Carte," and this is played through Kinogram pictures of speed demons on the ice at Chicago.

Music Hints For Entire Programs

Universal Current Events shows pictures of the giant English Channel ferry which fooled the Germans and "Spirit of Pageantry" makes it all the more stirring. Kinograms shows us Ty Cobb hunting at his home, and here we get "Hunting Scene."



There is especial interest in the next one, a Kinogram, showing Fairbanks, Chaplin, Griffith and Mary Pickford signing their contracts as the Big Four. We also have a picture of Doug in one of his athletic stunts, Charlie without his moustache and Mary coming down the steps and into her auto. "Bubbles" is the musical selection. Finally there is a Gaumont picture of the review of the Bolshevik soldiers at review in Moscow. This is rather long and there are two selections used, "Russian War March" and then "The Hymn of Free Russia."

Now these Russian pictures have been put in there with a purpose, to carry the dance that follows, Tschaikowsky's "Humoreske," which is danced by Margaret Leeras and Paul Oscard in Russian costume before one of the picturesque and highly fanciful John Wenger settings. First appears the Russian boy in yellow jacket, red trousers and high boots, and does his dance with an accordion while the imitations come from the orchestra, and then as the girl appears the full orchestra takes up the music. It is one of those unusual, fantastic things that delights any audience.

"Birds and Flowers" is the title of the Prizma picture that follows. There are first shown a variety of birds of all colors with their markings beautifully brought out, and then come pictures of opening flowers of all sorts. Daffodils, poppies, roses and other blossoms opening and closing are shown. "Where the Citrons Bloom" is the selection used throughout this picture.

Now comes what would usually be the overture, Liszt's "Mazeppa." It is played with the lights of the house all gold, and is particularly brilliantly done, though the audience does not get a chance to applaud it, for just before the end all the lights go down and the feature, "The False Faces," starts.

For this striking picture there is an unusual musical score, but we regret that we are able to give only a vague idea of it here, for to get the various effects and strains that he desired Dr. Riesenfeld has used numbered selections almost all the way through it. Now the strains of "Mazeppa" are carried into the feature, and then at the title "From the Patrol," "Natoma" is played, and when "The Lone Wolf" goes into Belgium the music swings into "Lost Happiness." At the title "Then the War" we get the roll of drums and then the orchestra with "March to the Gallows." Then when he finds his sister and her child dead "Natoma" is played again, with "Aria" following, and then Puck with the title "The Leader of the Hun Spies." At the title "Pardon Me, Madame," we have "Dreams," and then the numbered selections come in until almost the very end. A considerable portion of the feature is carried on the organ, as the orchestra is kept busy all through the rest of the entire performance.

In addition to devoting several pages in his two colored program to "The Heart of Humanity," Manager Andrew Karzas of the Woodlawn theatre, Chicago, recently issued several thousand special two colored St. Valentine folders, which were sent to ten thousand people residing near the Woodlawn. The folders were cleverly constructed, and as a result of care in handling them the theatre showed considerable increase in its receipts the days following their distribution. Although in the reproduction the borders appear to have been in black; as a matter of fact, they were in red and blue

The battle effects that are given at the start of the picture are particularly realistic. There is action almost every minute in this picture, and so the numbered selections consist largely of that class of music, together with some of the mysterious, for quite a few of the scenes. Almost at the end, with the title "We cannot be annoyed," "Simple Avon" is used, and as the girl says to the man, "Monsieur was not going" the musicians swing into "Told at Twilight" with splendid effect.

Then comes a mighty funny Mutt and Jeff comedy, "Five Thousand Miles on a Gallon of Gasoline." There is one scene where the scared bird is shown playing on a lyre, and here we have harp effects. In fact, the musicians are at their best all the way through this comedy, which ends with scenes showing a morning bath in Venice, with Jeff being dropped into the water with a fishing line, and some scenes of traffic on a busy Venetian street. The selections used are "Joyous Allegro," "On the Beautiful Hudson" and the "Bacarolle" from "Tales of Hoffman."

"Torchlight March" is the final organ selection.

The Broadway

CHARLES CHAPLIN in His First and Last, is the way that Maurice A. Kashin is advertising one of the two features at the Broadway theatre this week. Now, please note that there are no quotes on the title, for there is no effort to make this appear a new picture, for it is plainly told that this was made up by including "The Pest," formerly known as "Kids' Auto Race," the first motion picture he made, and "Shoulder Arms," his latest one. Mae Murray in "The Scarlet Shadow" is the feature.

Now, "Shoulder Arms" has played at the Broadway seven weeks, first as featured, then along with a Mildred Harris picture with the two featured as "Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chaplin," and now under the present arrangement. It is a stunt that any exhibitor who has already played "Shoulder Arms" can work and arouse new interest. But we want to advise you to follow the Kashin plan and tell the people exactly what His First and Last is; that is not only the honest thing, but it is the way to get the money. Read the details of how Mr. Kashin put this combined picture on.

"Masaniello" is the overture, a production inspired by the revolutionary spirit in Paris at the time that Auber wrote it and to carry out this effect the stage lights are red and the curtains in the middle and at either side are only slightly parted to give the idea of mystery and mob unrest. It is splendidly portrayed. Musical Director Bradford keeps his brass down, except at the proper moments, and though there are only eighteen pieces in the orchestra the music is far better than some others of forty that we have heard. He is certainly getting the musical effects.

Now, to carry out the spirit of the overture the Broadway Topical Digest opens with Universal Current Events pictures of the Seattle strike with "Dance of the Harpies" used. Then comes Screen Telegram pictures of the negro regiment returning, there being fine shots of the crowded ship, with "Goodbye, France" the music Universal Current Events pictures of the

At the Broadway theatre this week the front of the house is given over to advertising the Mae Murray production in the lights, and in their interior of the lobby there is a shadow box on the Chaplin feature, giving prominently the titles of the two pictures included

New York's Way

Seventh Cavalry follow with Minot's "Allegro No. 1."

There is wild applause when Screen Telegram presents pictures of the boys who stopped the German drive, pictures of the German prisoners being made to clean up at Chateau Thierry. "Festival March" is used for these pictures, except during the shots of the American cemetery and here the organ carries the music, the orchestra returning with full effects for the decoration of soldiers. From International come pictures of Taft and Baker, who will tour the country for the League of Nations and "American Fantasie" is the accompaniment. From the same source come pictures of President and Mrs. Wilson visiting Chateau Thierry in the snow; "Sons du Soir" is used here, at first with a burst of the orchestra and then with piano and violin for a bit and some organ effects. The Digest closes with the first of the Tad "Indoor Sport" cartoons, which pictures the troubles of "a bloke with the housemaid's knee who tries to get some liniment at the village drug store"—while the lady clerk is busy on the 'phone with the latest gossip.

Organ music carries "Topics of the Day" which follows and then comes the Chaplin stunt. After the title, "Broadway theatre presents Charles Chaplin in His First and Last," there comes this foreword:

"The successful theatrical manager's greatest asset is his ability to judge public taste. It is interesting to note how public taste has changed in the matter of motion picture comedies. With that idea in mind I am offering for your contemplation the first and latest comedies featuring Charlie Chaplin. You will be forced to admit, I think, that public taste has greatly changed. About seven years ago you were probably one of those who split their sides laughing at Charlie Chaplin's first capers before a camera.—M. KASHIN."

Then comes the second title, saying, "Charlie Chaplin was paid exactly $3.50 for his work in the film that follows." Then comes "The Pest," and it gets a world of laughs. It consists simply of the antics of the comedian constantly getting in front of a motion picture camera when the cameraman is trying to film auto races.

But something which adds a great deal to this is the way that it has been put on, for before the picture starts we have a title saying: "This is the music they played in those days," and then we have the piano and drums used in the same tin-panny effects that we were so familiar with in the days of the old "movie show."

Now, before we start with the "Shoulder Arms" part of the picture we have a couple of other titles: "But times have changed and so has Charlie's salary. We will now present one of his million-dollar comedies. Public taste now demands such comedies as this, his latest production." And the other title: "A Symphony orchestra now accompanies the films." And then the orchestra comes in with the full measure.

"America Today" is used on screening; "Over There," with that title; with the title, "Make yourself at home," comes "When I send you a picture of Berlin"; "Picking Peaches," with the password and "Miracle of Love" when Charlie is shown sad. With bedtime comes "Washington Crossed the Delaware" and with the view of the candle on the raft, "Sit Down, You're Rocking the Boat." With morning comes "K-k-katy," then the view of the captured trench brings "Dumpty Deedle," with "Duddha" when he gets in the enemy lines; "Eve" as the firing squad takes its position and then "bing, bang" as Charlie escapes. "We're Going to Hang the Kaiser" is played as the Kaiser visits the front and then as Charlie's chum is captured we have "Khaki Sammy," and as the German driver leaves his seat, "What'll We Do with Him?" and with the word to the Allies, "Let's Bury the Hatchet." At the end the dream brings out "Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning."

With the house dark and only an amber spot on her, Mlle. Aubert then sings "Ah Fors e Lui."

Then comes the feature, Mae Murray in "The Scarlet Shadow."

At the beginning of the picture the theme, "I Love You" from "Glorianna," is used and then for the appearance of Van Presby we have "Over the Top" as he climbs the hedge. Then as Van comes over the hedge, Cesek's "Serenade" is used, followed by "Air Louis XIII," where the maiden aunt catches the boy and girl in the room. With the title, "I want you," "The Canary" is used and with "I am sorry" there comes "Canzone Triste," the next change coming with "Needless to say" and being "Valse Fantastique," and with "The week that followed" changing to "Mignonette." With "Meanwhile" we have "Get Off My Foot," while the millionaire is dressing and then "March Miniature" used for Flemming's visit in the afternoon; "Rose of Picardy" with "All of which" and with the title, "Now that Mrs. Presby" the orchestra changing to Aitken's "Serenade." For the dinner scene the night before the wedding "Canzone Triste" is played, then as the girl is accused Kiefert's "Allegro Agitato" and as Harvey enters, "The Nile," and "My Little Billiken" for the aged gardener with "I Love You" coming in with the title where the girl says: "I knew my mother."

Lincke's "Glow Worm" is the final organ number.

Biggest Sign in All New York Advertises Motion Picture

The largest painted advertising sign in New York City, advertising "The Heart of Humanity," has been completed. The gigantic sign is painted on the north wall of the Mecca building, 1600 Broadway, and has been in the process of painting for over two weeks.

The sign is 74 by 122 feet and the words "The Heart of Humanity" are over 8 feet in height. The sign is in four bright colors, and white, and can be clearly seen for twenty blocks. The red heart in which Miss Phillips' portrait is centered is over forty feet in height. The sign is similar in design to that of the twenty-four sheet, used for advertising the big production, with the exception that instead of a poppy field in the foreground, as the twenty-four sheet has, the sign is outlined at its base by a number of silhouetted hands.

Setting of the Strand theatre, Omaha, for "Greatest Thing in Life." At the end the word "Victory" came up in the sky

"Don't Let Your Theatre Become Stale" Motto of This Successful Michigan Manager

CHARLES GARFIELD, manager of the Orpheum theatre, Flint, Mich., believes that the public wants novelty—that it gets tired of the same old thing day after day. And he has proved to his own satisfaction that a manager can raise his prices even against strong opposition if he does answer the public appeal. In the single year that he has been in charge of this theatre he has raised the prices from ten cents to anything that he wants to charge—provided he has the picture to deliver the goods.

When Mr. Garfield came into the Orpheum he felt a little dejected at first. He knew that something was the matter and then he took a comfortable chair and proceeded to find out what it was. Then he went out and "fired" the five-piece orchestra and the fellow who has been playing "at" the organ. When the news became known the people that knew the Orpheum predicted colsing in about eight days. But Garfield at least thought he knew what the people wanted and so he went out to look for an organist who could really "play" the pictures.

In the neighboring town of Saginaw he found the young woman for whom he was looking. She was getting $18 per. He offered her $30 to work in Flint. In six months she was making nearly twice that amount. Then he proceeded with a style of advertising that made the people of Flint feel that here was an organist that they had to hear—that they could not enjoy their motion pictures without this particular young woman at the very specific Orpheum organ. The answer was that the people came. And she really "played" the pictures which was a relief from the "music" that the people had been getting.

Mr. Garfield's next thought was that every day was too often to change his pictures so he decided to run them for two days—and at the same time to advance his prices from ten to fifteen cents. He told his public that he was going to give them better pictures—pictures that were worth longer run and more money—and at least he convinced his patrons that he was doing this. Since that time prices have gone up to twenty cents and then came an occasional attraction with thtiry-five charged. There is a three-day run on these pictures, but, always, each week, there is a special with thirty cents as the admission fee.

He has booked "Heart of Humanity" for an unusually long run and for this he will charge 25 and 50 cents, using a ten-piece orchestra, full-page displays in the daily newspapers and every advertising accessory available.

"I went back to the orchestra only when I found that there was a demand for a change," says Mr. Garfield. "When I came here my audiences were tired of a five-piece orchestra. So when I started again I got hold of the best and most popular director in town and I advertised him. He has seven pieces which is the largest orchestra in Flint. And the public knows it."

Garfield doesn't get all the newspaper co-operation he would like though he advertises heavily as do the other theatres. To meet his local situation, however, he pays only for what he gets. There are two advertising rates in Flint as there are in most cities. The amusement rate is 90 cents an inch which includes cuts and readers. The commercial rate is 46 cents. Charlie does all his business under the commercial rate because when he paid the amusement rate he found that often his reading matter was forgotten. The notices and cuts failed to get in and there was no redress.

By purchasing his advertising at the lower rate he can do more than he did formerly. It isn't anything usual for him to take a quarter page, not for one day in the week but for seven days. For "The Heart of Humanity," up to this time his biggest picture, he will start off with a page.

Stage Display and Contest Used at Omaha Strand on Griffith Picture

ARTHUR G. STOTLE, manager of the Strand theatre, Omaha, has just had great success with a stage display at his theatre, a thing that is comparatively new to his city. Largely due to the manner in which he presented the picture and the exploitation campaign that he conducted, the picture in question, Griffith's "Greatest Thing in Life," ran for the entire week at the Strand to capacity crowds.

This special setting showed a scene in "No Man's Land," with the barbed wire protected trenches in the foreground, then looking across a waste of country with the ruins of a shell-wrecked village in the background. The curtain went up with all the lights down. Gradually the red lights went up, reflecting on the ruins, and then the brighter lights came on the front of the stage, revealing the trenches. But the most effective development came with the gradual appearance of the word "Victory" in the center of the drop, and at the same moment a spot light was shown on the American flag at the left of the stage.

Following this came motion pictures of American and Allied soldiers, taken from news reels, and following these were pictures of President Wilson and General Pershing, which brought an increasing volume of enthusiasm.

Mr. Stotle was able to secure the co-operation of the World-Herald and put over a contest a week in advance of the showing of the picture, offering a series of prizes for the best short article for the newspaper answering the question, "What is the greatest thing in life?" Answers to these were published in the paper each day, and the final award, together with the prize winning letters, appeared in the Sunday issue, the day the showing of the picture was to start. Hundreds of people took part in the contest, and the most valuable sort of advertising possible was obtained.

"Do More Pays," Says Gleishman, and Then Show Why

Phil Gleishman, manager of the Broadway Strand theatre, Detroit, is an exhibitor who does not believe that any good picture should be turned down because there is something of the war element in it. When "False Faces" was released several Detroit exhibitors are reported to have turned it down because the opening scenes were on the battlefield.

When Mr. Gleishaman saw it he was impressed with the pulling power of the name of the producer, of the star and the advertising that he could get with coupling it up with the fact that the story has appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. But he decided to give it extra exploitation and used a hundred billboards besides extra newspaper space. He reports that this was one of his best weeks, and adds that if the exhibitor will simply get out and do more with a picture the war element doesn't hurt in the slightest, provided that there is power to the offering.

At the left lobby of the Alhambra theatre converted into a waving cornfield, the first step in the elaborate display, and at the right decoration of the foyer the following week like the parlor of a country home, with organ, sewing machine, etc.

Milwaukee Theatre Uses Lobby, Foyer and Stage for Brilliant Presentation of "Happy Valley"

"NEW YORK may have its Rivoli—Milwaukee has its Alhambra and as long as that remains no one worries about being cheated out of anything worth while in the celluloid line or that known as 'accompanying embellishments.' — That's the message that comes to us from the Wisconsin city.

The most recent novelty that Manager George Fischer has concocted answers to the official title of "musical prologue." The recipe for it calls for ingenuity, hard work, the patience of Job and a large stage—Mr. Fischer was possessed of the first three qualifications and the theater boasted the last one.

The genus of musical prologue was discovered in order that D. W. Griffith's "A Romance of Happy Valley" might be given a worthy presentation.

A week before the picture was scheduled devotees of the silent art who found satisfaction at the Alhambra theatre were given one of those pleasant little surprises of the presentation game when they arrived at the theatre to find that the erstwhile marble walls of the lobby had disappeared—and instead they walked through a lane in a waving corn field that was strangely like real corn in both color, texture and fragrance. To be sure the cornfield stretched but two feet or so on either side, but otherwise it was the real thing even to the pumpkins straggling in at irregular distances. Hedging in the cornfield was a real country fence with its boards emblazoned with the allurements of Bull Durham, corn cures and an invitation to proceed along the way to "Happy Valley."

Milwaukee and its half million less a few population sat up, rubbed its eyes and settled down to pleasant anticipation.

The next week it was the foyer that contained the prize package. Disappeared one day the frescoed walls, the dainty wicker furniture, the imposing floor lamps. Presto! and the walls were covered with the kind of wall paper upon which flowers struggle along on an undetermined way. Solid mahogany furniture that was old a good half century ago reposed stolidly about, marveled at by gaping spectators after having rested for many and musty years in a warehouse. There wasn't a detail forgotten—the old clock was there, the red table-cloth, the wax flowers under the glass top, the cracked wash basin, the settee for two—even the frigidly posed picture of "maw" and "paw" frowned from heavy frames.

Could D. W. Griffith have seen the ensemble it might have produced envy in his soul for the atmosphere of his picture had nothing on the atmosphere of genuine old-fashionedness that hung in that foyer.

People began to talk as people are wont to talk when confronted with the novel and unexpected. Many and many were the old reminiscences swapped by old age in the foyer while modern youth stood by and

(Continued on page 1320)

Stage setting for "Romance of Happy Valley." The center set was the interior of the home, and in the left hand panel were live pigs, chickens, etc., and at the right can be seen a corn field and a country vista smiled superiorly at what it considered the eccentricities of a bygone age.

Milwaukee Theatre Uses Lobby, Foyer and Stage to Put Over a Picture

(Continued from page 1319)

But the lobby and the foyer were only preparations for what was to come—the musical prologue.

This is what the spectator was treated to so that he might enter into the spirit of the picture.

To the strains of soft music the word "Morning" was flashed upon the dark red curtain of the center set of a darkened stage. The curtains of the set at the left parted to reveal a typical morning scene in any American barnyard—a rustic lad was feeding live chickens that scratched about in the shelter of a great tree while two sheep nibbled the glass close by. And speaking of sheep—they carried their roles like veterans with but one faux pas for the week and that when they baa-ed lustily and hungrily in the midst of a solo after someone had forgotten to feed them.

When the word "Noon" was flashed upon the curtain the setting at the right revealed a noonday country scene with a sun-bonnetted maiden walking along through a cornfield.

At "Evening" the center curtains parted revealing a genuinely old-fashioned "setting room" with "paw" and "maw"—recruited with much difficulty and the aid of the county poor supervisor—resting in quiet comfort while daughter awaited the arrival of the boys and girls and the singing professor from the city for a rehearsal of the program for the church festival.

The young people with much noise and exuberance arrived—there were eight, a double quartet, made up of singing talent of the city, who had been whipped into shape for the occasion for Frederick Carberry, the originator of community singing in the motion picture theatre.

Bright dialogue, a joke or two and then singing—real singing by people with voices and a good, old-fashioned selection of songs like "Sweet and Low," "Love's Old Sweet Song," and "The Old Oaken Bucket." A solo more and then a closing chorus and the audience had reached the stage where they were ready to take down all the old former "junk" from the attic, cover the floor with linoleum and substitute a kerosene propelled lamp for the electric lights.

The lights were dimmed slowly and when the audience looked again there was Lillian Gish walking through a room not unlike the one they had seen, for Manager Fischer in order not to lose the effect had changed his film around so that several scenes of the story preceded the designation of cast and the foreword of the story.

Thus ends the story of the musical prologue, but with an all-embracing smile George Fischer says that the result—not forgetting the box office end of it—was well worth the effort.

Paris got its reputation by making everybody talk about it.

Liberty theatre, Seattle, was able to get a most striking lobby by simply using intelligently the cut out material that was available from the various posters

Striking Cut-Outs of Posters Make Splendid Lobby Display for one of Finest of Coast Houses

STRIKING use was made of the entire lobby by the Liberty theatre, Seattle, Wash., in its exploitation of Martin Johnson's "Cannibals of the South Seas." Figures of the savages with the exception of the figure of Mrs. Johnson, who accompanied her husband on this perilous trip. The figures have been taken from the twenty-four sheet supplied by the Robertson-Cole Company.

Jensen and Von Herberg followed the suggestions made in the Motion Picture News Special Service Section on this picture, for at the time we advised: "One of the one sheets contains a huge head of a warrior whom Johnson describes as the finest specimen of a man he saw on that island. The twenty-four sheet also contains heads of another warrior and figures of a number of savages. All of these can be used as cut-outs."

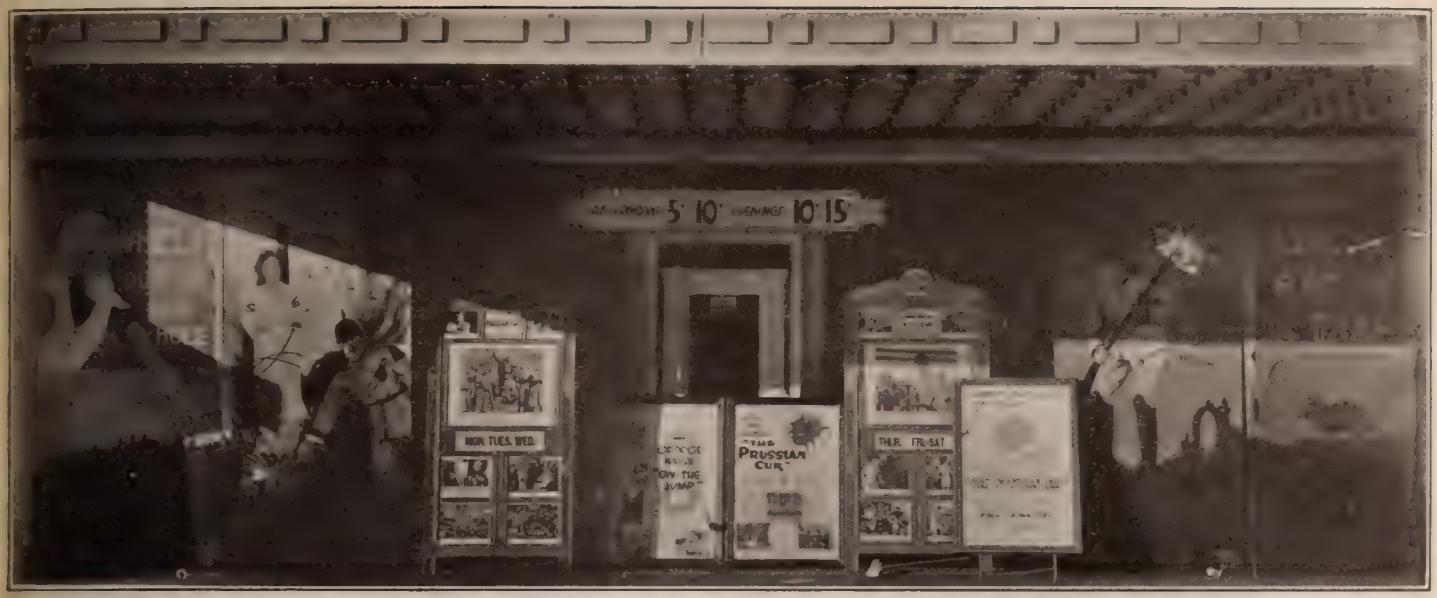
So the Liberty has these mounted on heavy board so that the lobby was completely filled and then used the one sheets mentioned right on the sidewalk. The poster at the extreme left of the photograph has been made from the six sheet. Entirely across the front of the theatre there was a streamer bearing the title of the picture and decorated with palm trees. We believe that this theatre has achieved the very best kind of lobby decoration by following these suggestions. It is certainly far better than any freak display would have been.

After the successful run that the Liberty had with this picture it arranged to give a second showing. Reports come from various sections that the exhibitors are going out of their way to exploit the cannibal picture, and any production that stirs them up is bound to work for the betterment of the whole industry, because everyone prospers when exhibitors as a whole begin to try to do things worth while.

FROM THE STIX

You'll Hear the Wails from Some Smaller Exhibitors

NEXT week we are going to print some letters from smaller city exhibitors who have some kicks coming about the service that they get from the exchanges together with some general observations on the film business.



One of these is written by a man in a city under a thousand. Another comes from one where a couple of new families moving in brought the population over that figure.

And one of them comes from a man who is so completely disgusted with what he has seen that he has decided to get out of the business. He declares that the reason for this move is because there is too much inefficiency in the exchanges.

Every one connected with the industry will want to read these letters. Of course, there will be difference in viewpoint, but live wire criticism is the only thing that can bring betterment, and you know that in these columns the exhibitors are allowed to have their say.

BECAUSE IT IS FOR, BY and OF THEM.

And if you have your own letter to write to supplement these facts we will be mighty glad to hear from you.

Display used by Edgar E. Duncan at Colonial theatre, Lincoln, Neb.

Here Is a Manager Who Believes in Taking Opportunity Right by His Horns and Holding

EDGAR E. DUNCAN, manager of the Colonial theatre, Lincoln, Nebraska knows when he is right and then he is not afraid to go ahead. That is something that we like in an exhibitor—and something that will always win.

To use his own expression he has had to use "his own ink" for advertising purposes. He has been a printer and a newspaper man for seventeen years and no one has to tell him the value of getting his attractions before the public, but along came the "Flu" and when this ban was raised he was up against it—face to face with an advertising rate of 250 per cent on the part of local papers so far as motion picture advertising is concerned.

This is a terrible increase for any theatre to meet and we cannot understand how the newspapers of Lincoln made any such raise, especially at a time when the theatres were made innocent sufferers of the epidemic. But there is a silver lining in every cloud, they say, and so Mr. Duncan decided to do more with the other facilities at his command. The first thing to which he turned was his lobby and he determined to make this bring him more business than it had brought before.

"The lithographs and photos sent out by the exchanges generally are not fit to be displayed in any up-to-date lobby," says Mr. Duncan and therefore he proceeds to prepare these for himself. He uses cut-outs very liberally, finding that often on the display material that he is given the whole effect is poor, but that he can take some part of this and by connecting it with some artistic design, make it work up business for him. He also uses specially painted and air-crushed one sheets and strives always for variety in his different displays.

For instance, when he was showing "The Prussian Cur" he had four paintings made from scenes in the picture, each four feet by nine. The cost was large, but Mr. Duncan believed that it was worth while, he reports that the receipts more than justified his outlay.

During the time that his theatre was closed by the "flu" Mr. Duncan not only did not remain idle himself, but determined that his lobby should work for him during that time. He knew human nature and he knew the longing with which the people would look at the motion picture theatre that the health authorities had forbidden them to enter and so he proceeded to capitalize that. He established a series of bulletin boards in his lobby, writing the cards himself in his own handwriting telling the public that the house was being fumigated, renovated, redecorated, etc., and that when the theatre reopened the public would find everything up to the minute. There were added to the series of talks enough news from the war situation and other news bulletins to make them of general interest.

"I have seen more than fifty people at a time," writes Mr. Duncan "trying to read those bulletins. When we reopened, in spite of real competition, the Colonial started off with capacity crowds and they have been coming ever since. Do you think it paid me?"

Another thing that Mr. Duncan has done that has helped the theatre has been the presentation of special matinees for the children every Saturday morning. He shows at this time pictures that are not seen again at his theatre, and he finds that the extra expense is more than justified. "They have become so popular," Mr. Duncan tells us, "that they are the event of the week. Last Saturday we had to give two shows to over 1,200 people, holding half of them in front of the theatre for two hours waiting for the second show. And the children go home talking about the show that they have seen at the Colonial." And again he asks: "Do you think they pay?"

Mr. Duncan unquestionably has the right idea. The manager who fights deserves a lot of credit, but the man who thinks along with his fighting is the one who gets there. He knew the newspaper business and he wanted to use the papers, but he was practically barred by the rates that they were charging. He was perfectly right in going out and proving that there are other means of exploitation that will put over a picture.

A few more Duncans and there'll be a lot more cooperation all the way around.

SERVICE, BUT NOT FAMILIARITY

There's a Lot of Difference Between the Two

IN our office the other day sat one of the leading exhibitors of the country and another man who is prominent in the film business, but not as an exhibitor. There was under discussion the question of the employes of the theatre. The exhibitor was telling about the house managers that he employed in his theatres, how he required that they first impress by their appearance.

Immediately the other man suggested: "I suppose that soon they become to know your patrons by name and that they are able to greet them when they come into the theatre." In other words, this film man would have the managers a reception committee: The exhibitor smiled and replied:

"I would fire a house manager that walked up to a man and shook hands with him without being first addressed. My employes are here to give service. People appreciate that, but they do not want familiarity. I want them to find service and satisfaction in my theatres, not personal friendship in the employes. Patrons resent employes forcing themselves to the front. It's about the worst thing you can do."

And he is right. The employe is there for duty, not for a talk fest.

Details of decorations of Kinema theatre, Los Angeles, for "Hoop La," and crowds that resulted

Proves Short Times Will Put Over Picture, If the Exploitation Is Properly Planned

MOST convincing proof that it does not take more than four days to put over a picture production has just been given in Los Angeles, where Wm. Parsons, President of the National Film Corporation of America, and Isadore Bernstein, his representative and general manager, presented Billie Rhodes' second starring vehicle, "Hoop-La, the Circus Girl," at the Kinema theatre.

It has been an established rule in Los Angeles exhibition activities that whenever a somewhat out of the ordinary run is to be made extensive advertising preparations have been started two weeks in advance at least. The daily papers will carry readers and sometimes small underlines under the regular house ad.

In the case of "Hoop-La" the Kinema theatre could not be leased until the Tuesday before the Sunday opening, giving the producers exactly four days to put over their picture.

On Tuesday evening the Los Angeles Herald carried a blind ad on every page, half an inch deep, set in one column, carrying the story that "Hoop-La" was going to be in town. On Wednesday the morning papers carried a 1-inch double column underline, with blind ads scattered through the afternoon papers. Advertising was increased every day until Friday morning, when a 3-inch double column underline brought the house ad to the top of the column. Blind ads also were carried every day. Stories telling of extensive atmospheric preparations were put over in the reading columns of the five dailies, pictures of Billie Rhodes were planted, not an easy matter in Los Angeles, where at least 17 theatres, all big advertisers, clamor for photographs of their attractions.

Saturday morning papers carried a picture ad, announcing also the show, and the Sunday papers carried a 45-inch picture ad. All papers carried big stories and pictures, featuring Billie Rhodes as the coming screen sensation, boosting her versatility, her charm, etc. As far as the newspaper campaign was concerned, the four days left to the producer were ample time. The production had everything as far as space and reading matter went.

Five-column, nine-inch display used by the Kinema theatre

Meanwhile I. Bernstein at the National studio worked 25 hours a day arranging for a great lobby and exterior display. Saturday night, when the D. W. Griffith engagement ended, decorators and carpenters invaded the block and erected streamers on poles all the way between 6th and 7th streets, arrangements for permission having been made with the fire department. The lobby was striped with red and white circus tent awning, while the marquise and the top of the theatre were bebannered. Frames and somewhat out of the ordinary posters of Billie Rhodes and the production were already on view for four days. It was simply the whirlwind campaign of the Nationals which knocked the picture-wise Los Angeles crowd off their feet. No picture palace ever showed a more magnificent front; flags, banners, and circus streamers making the entire block a picture worth while.

On Sunday the show opened at 12 noon, and after three P. M. the house, running its picture continuously, did not have an empty seat until the last show started, filling that performance immediately. It was the biggest day in the history of the Grand Ave. house, R. S. Spier, the house press agent, predicting this two days in advance. On Monday, which turned out to be a rainy, bad show day, the matinee nearly sold out, while the night performance was packed. This is unusual. At this writing the receipts are climbing at least 300 dollars a day. It will be the biggest week in the history of the Kinema.

While the exterior of the house looked like a holiday the inside had not been neglected. All the ushers were fitted in yellow and black clown costumes, even the cashiers selling the pasteboards costumed. The doormen wore ringmaster suits. Nothing had been neglected as far as atmosphere was concerned. Preceding the picture the old-time circus "spieler" came on the stage, announcing the show, etc., and proved a big hit.

All of which proves that if you go after it, you'll get it.

MAKE THEM WORK

Your Pictures Are Just as Much Employees as the Usher

WE don't believe that you would keep one of your ushers very long if you find out that he spent about two-thirds of his time back stage smoking cigarettes. You would tell him that you were paying him for working for you and that his time belonged to you.

That's all very nice, but what about the picture you are playing? Are you making it work for you all the time? Are you getting the most possible out of it? Have you studied its angles, its appeal and honestly sought the best way for its exploitation to get the most people into the theatre?

If you are not, you are ignoring your own business far more than if you let all your employes loaf on the job. In that case you are simply playing the picture cold and simply "permitting" the people to come to the house instead of figuratively going out and puling them into the house.

You have the Complete Plan Book to give you a general idea of all the releases. Then you have the Special Service Sections on some of the pictures. You may not agree with all the ideas expressed there, but if you are not reading them you are passing up at least possible ideas.

And then in these pages are the stories of how other exhibitors have done things. Let's have your cooperation in telling us what you are doing. There's a bunch of ideas in every live wire, and we want yours.

At left scene on stage at start of presentation and the final effect with tribute to Roosevelt at the Circle theatre

First Monument Erected to Roosevelt Forms Part of Life Story Presentation at the Circle

By Davis Hampton

THE first monument erected to the memory of Theodore Roosevelt formed the imposing prelude to the Circle theatre's (Indianapolis) presentation of "The Fighting Roosevelts" later re-titled "Our Teddy," which was presented the week of January 26. The Circle was one of the two theatres selected for the premiere showing of this production, Frederick L. Collins, president of McClure Pictures Corporation and J. D. Williams, general manager of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, having specified the Circle theatre, Indianapolis, and the Strand theatre, New York, for the premiere, owing to their methods of presentation and which would serve as an example to the theatres that followed.

The S. Barrett McCormick presentation of the Roosevelt picture was an impressive tribute to the late Ex-President. Following the overture, news weekly and minor reels, every light in the house was extinguished and the stage draperies closed. Then from the orchestra came "taps," followed by a tympani roll, gaining in volume as the orchestra took up the first sixteen measures of "Marcie Funebre." The dignity and impressiveness of this funeral march rose gradually in volume, later to modulate into Dodge's majestic march from "The Merchant of Venice." Then the draperies parted and a steel blue light, very dim at first, illuminated the scene which showed a huge monument with three symbolic figures, typifying the soldier, the statesman and one as America bereaved, who stood before the granite shaft in tears holding a laurel wreath. The inscription read: "Theodore Roosevelt—American," and the date of his birth and death. The applause that greeted this tribute was only a forerunner, however, of the outburst that came with the climax of the tableaux as the lights dimmed and the back drop, which before had shown only as a blue background, was illuminated from the rear. As though in a vision came a scene of San Juan Hill and the memorable charge of "Teddy" and the Rough Riders. The effect was startling and inspiring and as the last majestic note died away, the draperies fell and the picture of "Our Teddy," the story of the fighting Roosevelts, began.

The musical setting was one especially arranged by Signor Ernesto Natiello, musical conductor of the Circle, and provided a fitting musical interpretation to the romantic and patriotic story.

"The Fighting Roosevelts" received a typical Circle theatre advertising campaign. Interest was aroused several days prior to the opening with large ads and the big space was continued throughout the week, one of the large advertisements being a personal endorsement of the picture by Mr. McCormick. The romantic theme of the story was dwelt upon particularly. The important incidents in our country's history of which Colonel Roosevelt was a central figure furnishing the basis of the copy.

Classified Ad Campaign Helps "Wanted for Murder"

Manager Peter David, of the Liberty theatre, Tacoma, Wash., found that classified advertising helped him a great deal in exploiting "Wanted for Murder." He followed something of the same plan that was used by M. Kashin in New York in posting snipes all over the city, headed with the title of the picture and then giving a description of the kaiser. Then he turned to the classified pages and used these liberally. Only the 'phone number was given and the theatre was deluged with calls. This was followed by liberal use of the newspaper columns and a thorough posting of the city. Newspapers gave excellent co-operation.

LOST IN MAILS!

Better to Send the Whole Thing at First Class Rate

IT is getting to be a common thing for us to receive letters from exhibitors telling us what they have done with certain pictures and to add that they have sent pictures or specimens of their advertising "under separate cover."

In many instances these "under separate cover" affairs are never received. No doubt in many cases they are lost in the mails; in others the exhibitor has failed to send along the second package, and inquiries have proven that to be the case.

You can save time all around if you will include your letter and the matter to which you refer in the one envelope. It will cost you slightly more postage to send the whole thing at the first-class rate, but then you will be sure that we receive it and that some photograph or clipping that you wish to preserve will not be lost.

Theatre Installs Orchestra and Then Raises Prices

What a success music will score in a city of 50,000 is evidenced by a report from A. M. Miller, manager of the T. and D. theatre, San Diego, Cal. About a month ago the theatre introduced to its patrons a ten-piece orchestra, under the leadership of Levi N. Harmon. In addition to the concert numbers which are given each evening there is a trio of quartet of singers used. With the installation of the musical features the price of admission in the evening was raised to twenty cents and even then the patronage increased.

In a short time the theatre plans to inaugurate Sunday morning concerts with an orchestra of forty pieces, along the lines of those being given in the San Francisco theatres.

Live News from the Producers

Barrymores in One Production

John, Ethel and Lionel Appear for Famous Players-Lasky in "Peter Ibbetson"—Their First Time Together

ARRANGEMENTS were completed recently between Jesse L. Lasky and Lawrence Giffen, of the Alice Kauser office, for the engagement of John Barrymore, Ethel Barrymore and Lionel Barrymore to appear together in a screen version of du Maurier's book and play, "Peter Ibbetson," to be produced by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation and released as a Special Production.

John and Lionel Barrymore appeared together in the stage production of this subject last season, but the photoplay will mark the first appearance of all three Barrymores in one production on either stage or screen. Aside from that, the picture will mark an epoch in the motion picture world in that it will be one of the first photoplays to present three such well-known stars.

Published first in serial form in Harper's Magazine in 1891, "Peter Ibbetson" became widely popular, and was put into book form the following year. Many editions of the book have been printed in 1917, the story was dramatized by John N. Raphael, first produced at the Republic theatre by the Shuberts. As a play it proved a sentational success, the work of the Barrymore brothers receiving exceptional praise from press and public. Also in the cast were Constance Collier, Laura Hope Crews, Madge Evans and Wallis Clarke. The story in the original takes the form of an autobiography and opens upon Peter's childhood in Paris. His playmate is Mimsey Seraskier. Peter is left an orphan, and is brought up by a disagreeable uncle. Years later he meets Mary, the charming Duchess of Towers, and discovers in a dream that she is Mimsey. Exasperated by his uncle, Peter kills him in a sudden frenzy, and for twenty-five years in prison he leads a dream life, in which he has mysterious communications with the Duchess. At her death he becomes insane. Once afterward she has come to him in a vision and has influenced him to write this curious autobiography.

In the screen version of "Peter Ibbetson," it is understood that John and Lionel will play the same characters which they did on the stage, those of Peter and Col. Ibbetson, respectively, while Miss Barrymore will be seen as the Duchess of Towers.

John, Ethel and Lionel Barrymore, who appear together for the first time in "Peter Ibbetson," a Paramount picture

Twin Cities Theatres Exploit "Our Teddy"

Special cut-outs of the twenty-four sheet head of Colonel Roosevelt have been mounted on compo board and used as part of the lobby display by Ruben and Finkelstein, of Minneapolis, owners of the New Garrick theatre there and of the New Liberty theatre in St. Paul.

Through their publicity representative, Harrison Hatton, they are conducting an unusually extensive advertising campaign, through billboards and newspapers, to announce "Our Teddy" for a week's run at the New Garrick.

In addition to their billboard and newspaper space they are having a decided current advantage in attracting public attention to the production in the serial publication by the Minneapolis Journal of the story of Colonel Roosevelt's life.

Constance Talmadge and Her Winning Select Smile

Alice Brady to Appear in "Marie, Ltd."

After Alice Brady's forthcoming picture, "The World To Live In," she will appear in a screen version of "Marie, Ltd.," according to announcements of Select Pictures Corporation.

The story is typical of metropolitan life and one in which Miss Brady promises to be seen to unusual advantage.

The supporting cast is excellent, including such well known people as Leslie Austen, Frank Losee, Gladys Valerie, Gertrude Hillman and Josephine Whittell, who is at present appearing with Fritzi Scheff in "Glorianna," on the spoken stage. In private life Miss Whittell is the wife of Robert Warwick.

Metro Compares Lytell Production

In appeal and heart interest, acting, and direction the latest of Hale Hamilton's starring vehicles, to be released on February 17, is pronounced by Metro to be another "The Spender," Bert Lytell's recent comedy. "Johnny on the Spot" is the name of it and in it the star has the role of a perfectly human, ordinary, every-day man, one that you will meet anywhere in your travels or rub elbows with in the street cars.

Bessie Barriscale Picks "Hearts Asleep"

The Exhibitors Mutual star, Bessie Barriscale, has selected "Hearts Asleep," written by M. B. Havey, as her newest vehicle. The story was prepared for screening by Fred Hyton and production has already been started at the Brunton studios in Hollywood.

Howard Hickman, who directed "A Trick of Fate," will also direct "Hearts Asleep" for Miss Barriscale.

Fox Declares Farnum Popularity Grows

Because of the success which has attended "Riders of the Purple Sage," "Les Miserables," "The Rainbow Trail" and "For Freedom," the popularity of William Farnum, it is stated in an announcement from the William Fox offices, is now greater than ever before in his career, and his pictures are booking more heavily than ever; this popularity being especially shown in the heavy bookings for "The Man Hunter," Farnum's next release.

"The popularity of William Farnum," an official of the Fox Film Corporation stated this week, "is accumulating with each new picture in which he is starred. Exhibitors have found that his pictures not only play to record houses on first showing, but nearly always are good for repeat bookings."

William Fox presents Jane and Katherine Lee in "Smiles," in which there are said to be several smiles

Capital Film Company Adopts Slogan

"Foremost Stars In Short Features" is the slogan adopted by the new Capital Film Company of Indianapolis according to Ike Schlank, president of the company.

Frank L. Smith, Indianapolis branch manager of the Capital Film Co., coined the winning slogan in a contest of all Capital representatives of the twenty-two branch offices. In addition to capturing the prize offered, Mr. Smith won promotion as special representative, taking up his new duties immediately.

"Foremost stars in short features" is the short catchline that won over 216 slogans submitted, "Because," says Mr. Schlank, "it tells in five words practically the entire sales story—a distinctly different and new sales story, by the way—of the Capital Film Company,"

Ideal for Children

"Hoop-La," the Billie Rhodes feature, a play of the circus lot, is making an ideal picture for special children's matinees, according to Exhibitors Mutual. The company reports that exhibitors everywhere are taking advantage of this and cashing in heavily on the idea.

S-L Announces Loan of R. Ince

Will Direct One Production for Vitagraph Starring Gladys Leslie—Eugene Strong Leading Man in Picture

S-L PICTURES announced this week that due to a special arrangement between Arthur H. Sawyer and Herbert Lubin, sponsors for the series of "Ralph Ince Film Attractions," and A. E. Smith of Vitagraph, Ralph Ince will personally supervise the production of one starring subject for Gladys Leslie under the Vitagraph banner. This is "A Stitch in Time," with Eugene Strong as leading man. It was begun February 20.

Mr. Ince has recently finished the actual production work of the initial feature which will inaugurate the series of "Ralph Ince Film Attractions," in which Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin will present E. K. Lincoln as star. The arrangement under which Mr. Ince will direct one special picture for the Vitagraph organization was made possible, it is said, only through his long friendship with A. E. Smith, head of the Vitagraph organization. It will be remembered that Ince for many years was one of the directors of the Vitagraph Company and during his long stay at the Flatbush Studio was responsible for "A Million Bid," "The Wreck," "The Ninety and Nine," "The Combat," etc. Ince has been actively engaged in supervising the assembling, cutting and titling of the first "Ralph Ince Film Attraction," and while this preparatory work is being accomplished by a corps of workers under his direction prior to the release of the picture, has found enough leisure time with the sanction of Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin to accommodate the personal request of Mr. Smith to produce one Gladys Leslie feature.

The story for the second S-L Production in which E. K. Lincoln is to star has been selected this week and during the time that Mr. Ince is completing the Vitagraph picture a staff of continuity writers will be at work getting a working script ready for the second "Ralph Ince Film Attraction." Matters have been so arranged that the completion of Ince's work at the Flatbush studios will be timed to agree exactly with the completion of the scenario for the second S-L Production.

Carl Laemmle on His Way to Universal City

ON the eve of his departure for one of his frequent visits to Universal City, Carl Laemmle again reiterated that the next twelve months would see a tremendous development in the film industry.

Mr. Laemmle declared that his predictions of a tremendous increase in film activities for the year 1919 has already been demonstrated by the flying start achieved during the first two months of the new year.

"The public has been taught by the war to place a high value on the screen. Incidentally, it is to be remarked, also that the public taste for better screen production has advanced tremendously. Producers who fail to recognize this fact, the exhibitors who fail to appreciate it are doomed. The public demands not merely celebrated names, but, what is more to the point, excellent acting. It demands plausible, interesting absorbing comedies and dramas. In a word, it demands quality.

"No producing company in the world, it is the proud boast of the heads of Universal departments, has made a steadier, more consistent advance in the last twelve months than Universal," continued Mr. Laemmle, "on every side, Universal productions have met with approval not alone from the exhibitors but from the exhibitors' audiences—and, what is of still greater importance and significance, from the screen's most critical and sophisticated observers."

Universal's president appreciates what has been accomplished and his journey to Universal City is primarily for the purpose of seeing to it, personally, that the high grade of achievement is not only maintained but is set at a still higher standard.

Just before Mr. Laemmle's departure, he announced the appointment of Tarkington Baker as general manager. Mr. Baker heretofore has been at the head of Universal's publicity department.

Priscilla Dean, Mae Murray and Edith Roberts, three shining lights in Universal productions

Popular Novel Bought by Metro

Ben Ames Williams Story Will Be Next Starring Vehicle for Hale Hamilton After "That's Good"

"AFTER HIS OWN HEART," the popular novel written by Ben Ames Williams, has been secured by Metro Pictures Corporation for screening, and Hale Hamilton will star in the picture after he completes "That's Good."

The novel originally appeared in serial form in the All-Story Weekly during the month of January, and appealed strongly to Maxwell Karger, director general, as a splendid vehicle for their young star, Hale Hamilton.

The purchase of this novel for Hamilton marks the beginning of a series of popular novels which Metro has in mind for this new screen star and which will be announced soon.

Hamilton is now working on a picturized version of the successful story by Richard Washburn Child called "That's Good," one of that author's famous "Phoenix" stories which appeared periodically in the Saturday Evening Post, the scenario being the work of A. G. Kenyon of the Metro staff.

As soon as Mr. Hamilton completes this picture he will commence work on "After His Own Heart," which is being adapted to the screen by June Mathis, also of the Metro scenario staff.

The story of "After His Own Heart" is described as most unusual, and the novel title is very misleading. It is not the story of a vampire, nor is it the Hero's ideal type in the feminine sex. It may be taken literally, figuratively, or otherwise, but in reality it is the story of a young man of extraordinary vitality and energy who is offered a cool calm million dollars for his heart with a worn-out heart to boot.

The smile that won't come off belongs to May Allison, Metro star, whose new picture is "The Return of Mary"

Tom Duncan (the part to be played by Hale Hamilton) is a very aggressive and athletic young man who, finding himself out of work and being gifted with a peculiar sense of humor, applies to the Flant Detective Agency for a job as a detective.

He impresses Flant with his personality and is taken on. He is immediately sent out on a case which embroils him in the clutches of the villain during the entire picture.

The cast to surround the star has not yet been announced but it is known that Harry L. Franklin will again direct the star in the production of "After His Own Heart," under the personal supervision of Mr. Karger.

"Made in America" Helps Fight Bolsheviki

"MADE IN AMERICA," the motion picture that deals with the making of the American soldier from the day he was drafted until he won laurels in France had its premier Wednesday afternoon, February 5, in Wurlitzer Hall. The picture was produced and directed by Ashley Miller and was released February 16 by its distributors, the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation.

Needless to say this picture, which visualizes the making of America's armies of victory, was warmly and enthusiastically received by the audience, which numbered over two hundred persons. Members of the American Defense Society, Young Men's Christian Association, Knights of Columbus, Boy Scouts of America, Jewish Welfare Board and a number of United States army officers were present, as well as the reviewers and men identified with the trade.

It seemed to be that the consensus of opinion of those in attendance was that "Made in America" is a little above the ordinary type of photoplay dealing with military life.

One army officer said, "It is absolutely correct—it is true. I sincerely hope it has wide distribution." A newspaper man of wide reputation in Europe and America offered this comment to Mr. Miller: "You have done a good job. 'Made in America' is an answer to Bolshevism and only goes to prove a contention I have held for some time that the screen offers the only effective means to combat this dread reared by fanatics and degenerates."

The building of the soldier is its message, which is told clearly, authoritatively and completely. "Made in America" is a series and its eight episodes are entitled respectively: (1), "Made in America"; (2), "Nine Million Answer"; (3), "The Rookie"; (4), "The Victory Army in the Making"; (5), "Building the Soldier"; (6), "The Hated K. P."; (7), "Overseas to Victory"; (8), "Forward, Always Forward."

General Reports Success for Chaplin

General Film Company, Inc., this week announced that its new prints of old Chaplin comedies are doing exceptionally well, and that the exchanges have reported big success for them.

New York, Washington, Buffalo, Chicago and Providence are among the cities which have seen the pictures for runs.

Shipbuilding Scenes for Lincoln Film

Arthur H. Sawyer and Herbert Lubin, sponsors for "Virtuous Men," the first "Ralph Ince Film Attractions" starring E. K. Lincoln, claim to have scored a beat on the entire industry in securing the exclusive use of the yards and employees of the Sun Shipbuilding Company of Chester, Pa. The story of "Virtuous Men," co-written by Mr. Sawyer and Ralph Ince, deals in part with the building of ships. In order to secure the proper atmosphere and give the production the tremendous background which these particular scenes called for, Mr. Sawyer made arrangements with the Sun Shipbuilding Company of Chester, Pa., to photograph hundreds of scenes for "Virtuous Men" in the shipyards.

Five thousand feet of film was shot by a battery of cameramen, headed by William Black during three weeks' constant work at the Sun shipyards. E. K. Lincoln, Grace Darling, Clara Joel, R. W. Cummings and W. B. Mack were given special passes in order that they might work with entire freedom in every part of the great industrial plant.

"Eleventh Commandment" Gets Heavy Bookings

According to reports received by Exhibitors' Mutual from its many exchanges, the Ralph Ince production, "The Eleventh Commandment," is receiving heavy bookings.

The cast is headed by Lucille Lee Stewart, who is supported by Grace Beal, Carleton Macy, Walter Miller and Huntly Gordon.

"The Eleventh Commandment" deals with the story of a girl who gave her love to a young gallant whose manners were above reproach but whose honesty was considerably below par.

She took the blame for a theft he committed, and when her sentence was completed married the man who had loved her all the time, and whom she had loved without knowing it.

C. A. Taylor, Manager of the Pathe Exchange, Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.

At the left are the Lee kids, Jane and Katherine, in "Smiles," their new Fox production. William Farnum is pictured in the center, and at the right is a moment in "Luck and Pluck," starring George Walsh

N. Y. Newspapers Praise "Lion and the Mouse"

Vitagraph's production of "The Lion and the Mouse," the Charles Klein stage drama, has been highly praised by the New York newspapers. The feature stars Alice Joyce, and she came in for a goodly portion of the eulogies.

"Nobody will walk out of the Rialto while 'The Lion and the Mouse' is being shown," said the conservative Morning Sun on the morning after the opening. "In this film the beauty of Alice Joyce in the role of Shirley Rossmore is a close rival to Charles Klein's famous play as the chief attractions.

"In the first part, in fact, her flowing image is like a theme around which the play is only a fringe, like a river that is different at every moment, marvelous in every mood, never twice alike even in its most fleeting phases."

The Morning World pointed to "The Lion and the Mouse" as a screened stage success, which predicted future success along these lines if the same care in introducing incidental situations is exercised as is done in "The Lion and the Mouse."

Carter de Haven, in Parsons-Exhibitors' Mutual comedies

"Salome" Continues to Break the Records

REPORTS of the success which "Salome," the Theda Bara super-production, is achieving throughout the country, continue to prove, it is said, the truth of the contention that the public's demand for big productions not only guarantees to the exhibitor increased profits from such pictures, but establishes prestige for the house playing them and creates new patrons.

This, it is pointed out, is in a measure due to the increased publicity which big productions receive because of their success in other cities. The cumulative effect of this publicity, it is argued, supplements the drawing power which the production in itself possesses.

In support of this argument, the Fox Film Corporation cites the experience of two theatres that have just played "Salome"—the Blue Mouse theatre in St. Paul, Minn., and Fay's theatre in Rochester, N. Y.

Oliver A. Rowe, manager of the Blue Mouse theatre, has just sent the following telegram to Winfield R. Sheehan, general manager of the Fox Film Corporation:

"When Mr. Mustrad booked 'Salome' for the Blue Mouse theatre, St. Paul, for a ten-day run at the highest price we ever paid for a feature production I confess I had cold feet, as our house seats only 400.

"We have run 'Salome' just one week now, and want you to extend our booking in two weeks, with the privilege of an indefinite extension. It looks good for another two weeks."

Manager George Souer, of Fay's theatre, Rochester, has had an experience with "Salome" which parallels that of the Blue Mouse.

Racine Exhibitor Very Strong for Serials

PATHE is in receipt of a strong endorsement of its serials from Tom Norman, a pioneer exhibitor of Racine, Wis.

"Serials are coming back stronger than ever," declared Mr. Norman. "Years ago when I operated by theatre on a five and ten-cent admission policy I made big money on Pathe serials and I used them all from 'The Perils of Pauline' on. When I changed to a big feature policy and raise in admission prices I came to the conclusion that I was catering to a different class of people who did not want to see serials in my theatre and for about two years I have not had a serial in my house.

"However, my attention was attracted to the widespread publicity given Pearl White in 'The Lightning Raider' and the many inquiries from my patrons. This together with the emphatic statement of Mr. Aschmann, the manager of Pathe Exchange, Milwaukee, that 80 per cent of the picture-going public will pass any theatre not running a serial to reach a theatre with a good serial, I decided that I was on the wrong track and booked Pearl White in 'The Lightning Raider' for a two-day showing each week.

"I broke all house records, both as to total receipts, as well as the number of paid admissions, and turned hundreds of people away all day up to the last show at night.

"I volunteered this statement immediately after showing the first episode, but I was requested by the Pathe Exchange to withhold my statement until I had run at least four episodes. I have shown my fifth episode, and my receipts for the days during the five consecutive weeks that I have shown 'The Lightning Raider' have not varied $5, regardless of what the balance of my program consisted of."

Beach Insight Shows in "The Brand"

In "The Brand," which Samuel Goldwyn will present on March 9, Rex Beach returns once more to the field which is peculiarly his—Alaska. It is safe to say that no living author knows the Northland and its robust, rugged characters better than he. And, just as there is action, vivid and primitive life in every page of a Rex Beach book, so there is action, excitement and reality in every page of a Rex Beach picture and especially in "The Brand."

Scene from Harry T. Morey's Latest Vitagraph Production, Called "Silent Strength"

"Unpardonable Sin" Sells Good

State Rights Are Being Purchased on the Garson-Neilan Production Starring Blanche Sweet

PERSONALLY directed by Marshall Neilan, the nine-reel Harry Garson production starring Blanche Sweet is being sold to territorial buyers.

This is the picture from Major Rupert Hughes' novel of the same name, which was completed on the Pacific Coast a week or two ago and has been exciting much favorable comment among moving picture men ever since it was privately shown in Los Angeles and later in New York to selected audiences of people in the trade.

Just what was to be done with the picture has remained in doubt up until a few days ago, when Mr. Garson decided that his best interests would be served by refusing the numerous offers for an outright sale or percentage exchange distribution which have been made him and by parceling out the territory to the many buyers who have besieged him to follow this method of getting the picture before the public.

The announcement of the plan resulted when Sol Lesser, well-known Pacific Coast distributor, paid a record cash price for the exhibition rights for California, exclusive of the city of Los Angeles.

Mr. Garson has retained the exhibition rights for the city of Los Angeles in order that the picture may be put on there at a leading theatre, at dollar-and-half prices. The opening is scheduled for the middle of March.

When he purchased the picture for the territory he controls, Mr. Lesser announced that he intended to play it as a road show, first touching only the important centres of population.

Plans for the national exploitation of the big picture have been a bit slower in maturing than it had been thought they would be because of a somewhat unusual condition in amusement circles in New York. Attractions in the various first-class New York theatres are all doing so well that it seems almost impossible to dislodge any of them from their homes, and as a consequence no Broadway theatre is available for the big premiere of the picture which had been planned.

New Bessie Love Film

"The Wishing-Ring Man," starring Bessie Love, has been completed at the West Coast studios of Vitagraph, and work on a new feature is to be started this week. Miss Love's next production will be from an original story especially written for her.

The story of "The Wishing-Ring Man" is taken from Margaret Widdemer's novel of the same title.

NO PUBLICITY?

Hodkinson Tries Out New Idea on Its Copy

THE W. W. Hodkinson corporation this week announced that it has abolished its publicity department.

The announcement said: "But the W. W. Hodkinson corporation is telling you straight from the shoulder that it has a News Department, from which only news will emanate, and when we have no news we are not going to waste our time writing something for you to waste your time reading."

And, the announcement continued: "News this week is not particularly thrilling, but we think it is quite interesting and something you ought to know."

A rose by any other name—.

"Upstairs and Down" Now Completed

Myron Selznick, president of the Selznick Pictures Corporation, astonished the New York offices of the company this week by telegraphing from Los Angeles that all the scenes of "Upstairs and Down" had been photographed. This is the first production of the new corporation which has announced a series of eight features yearly, starring Olive Thomas.

The quick work in turning out this first production is the more remarkable because the company had to begin building from the very smallest detail, and is a tribute to the organizing ability of Mr. Myron Selznick and Director-General Charles Giblyn. They went to Los Angeles early in January and did not begin work until everything was in first-class shape for continuous operations. As a result, the speed of the production, despite the handicaps of organizing a new corporation, was such as might be envied by producers who have been in the business much longer.

The thoroughness of the preliminary production plans is exemplified by the fact that Mr. Giblyn took with him to California flashlight photographs of the scenes of the Oliver Morosco production of "Upstairs and Down" and complete descriptions of all the accessories of the play. The elaborate settings showing the servants' quarters and the living rooms of a big Long Island country house were reproduced in every detail for the Selznick production.

"The Man Hunter," Farnum's Late Release

The current release for William Farnum on the William Fox Standard Picture program is "The Man Hunter," written and staged by Frank Lloyd. "The Man Hunter" is a story of the sea and it is said that the big fight scenes, the feature incidents of the picture, are the most realistic and thrilling ever screened. The story tells of the struggle of one man to wreak vengeance on another. A good bit of the action of the play occurs at sea and it is said that Director Lloyd has staged a shipwreck that is thrilling to the last degree. In support of the star are Louise Lovely, Charles Clary, Marc Robbins and Beatrice Joy.

C. B. Price to Distribute Independently

C. B. Price, formerly salesman and divisional manager for many of the big releasing organizations, including General, Mutual, Triangle, Fox and V. L. S. E., and one of the best known men in the trade, has opened offices on the eleventh floor of the Times Building and will in the future distribute his own features on the independent market. Mr. Price announces that he will be in a position not only to market his own features but to handle the distribution of pictures for others. Within the next week Mr. Price will announce the title of his first offering to state rights' buyers.

"East Lynne" is East Lynned in the Paramount-Mack Sennett comedy ictured at the left, and called "East Lynne with Variations." In the center is Billie Burke, in "Good Gracious, Annabelle," and at the right is a moment in "The Winning Girl," with Shirley Mason

Triangle Announces Special Features

Triangle Distributing Corporation this week announced that it is to release, in its addition to its schedule of program plays, a series of special features.

Taylor Holmes heads the list of Triangle specials with the release of his first Triangle production on March 16 entitled "It's a Bear."

The second Taylor Holmes' special is scheduled for release on April 13 and is entitled "A Regular Fellow." The other feature productions so far announced include four pictures featuring Triangle's most popular feminine star, Olive Thomas. These are entitled "Toton," "Prudence on Broadway," "Love's Prisoner" and "The Follies' Girl." Those who viewed "Toton" at a private showing were enthusiastic in their praise, one well-known critic remarking that he considered it the most artistic production ever screened.

"Mayor Filbert," with an all-star cast of Triangle players, is scheduled for release on May 20.

Hampton Plant Adds Another Stage

With the rapid increase of work at the Jesse D. Hampton productions studios in Hollywood, and to make room for the coming of H. B. Warner and his company, it has been found necessary to add another enclosed stage, not only to protect the sets and properties from the rainy season, but to get the better light effects insisted upon in these productions.

Hampton is now producing for Exhibitors' Mutual release starring William Desmond and Grace Darmond. In a few weeks H. B. Warner will be on the scene to begin the first picture under his new contract, which calls for eight productions.

"Cave of Dread" Comes

The Seventh Episode of the new Pearl White serial "The Lightning Raider," scheduled for release February 23, takes the fans who have been following the Raider in her maze of adventure, to the wildest jungles of Brazil.

Robertson-Cole is Very Active

Five Producing Companies Busy for World Rights Concern Which Releases Domestically Through Exhibitors Mutual

PRACTICALLY three months after the organization began film operations, the following companies were working in California on pictures to which Robertson-Cole control the world rights, and which Exhibitors Mutual release in United States and Canada: National Film Corporation; Jesse D. Hampton, Productions; Winsome Stars Corp.; B. B. Features, Inc., and Haworth Pictures Corp.

The National is producing features starring Henry B Walthall, Billie Rhodes, and Carter De Haven and his wife, Flora Parker. The Hampton studios are turning out features with Willie Desmond in the leading roles, and when H. B. Warner arrives on the Coast, will produce his features.

From the Winsome Stars Corporation will come the series of eight productions featuring Alma Rubens, who is now working on her initial issue, "Diane of the Green Van."

William J. Clark, President Exhibitors' Mutual Distributing Corporation

Bessie Barriscale has her own producing organization, which is one of the Robertson-Cole units, while Sessue Hayakawa's starring vehicles come from the Haworth Pictures Corporation.

Co-ordination of all the producing units of the Robertson-Cole Company, which releases its product domestically through the Exhibitors Mutual Distributing Corporation, has been definitely effected, and with the exception of H. B. Warner, every star of the organization is now producing. Warner was due to leave for California on Feb. 20th, but his departure was delayed owing to legal procedure instituted by John D. Williams, following Warner's notice that he was leaving the cast of "Sleeping Partners," the star's big success this season.

The Robertson-Cole organization has also been devoting itself to the foreign exploitation of the rights it holds to all the features of its subsidiary combinations. But now their entire output for nearly two years has been disposed of for practically all of continental Europe and a number of other countries. The rights for the United Kingdom are retained by Robertson-Cole, and only recently a London office was opened for exploitation of their product in Britain.

At the present time, the Robertson-Cole company controls a bigger collection of motion picture stars than any other organization in the field, its officials assert. Each one of the stars has proved a success in past endeavors.

Eight pictures will be made by Warner, Desmond, Rhodes, Barriscale, Hayakawa, Walthall and Rubens under their present arrangements. All of these features with the exceptions of Warner's will be made during the present year. Warner's productions will run into 1920.

The De Havens are slated to produce thirteen two-reel comedies, one to be released each month, which means that their works will also run beyond the present year.

Rex Beach, Goldwyn pictures author; Pauline Frederick, star; and Mabel Normand, star. Three reasons why Goldwyn pictures are popular

Another Director Incorporates

The Albert Capellani Productions, Inc., Is Launched at Luncheon in New York City

RUMORS which preceded Albert Capellani from the West Coast were substantiated at a luncheon in New York City, February 17. The Albert Capellani Productions, Inc., is now a fact, and the well-known director heads the corporation. The pictures will be distributed by Pathe.

At the luncheon were present Paul Brunet, vice-president and general manager of Pathe Exchange; Louis Landry, assistant general manager of Pathe; Ferdinand Zecca, manager of productions for Pathe, all three of whom saw Mr. Capellani start in the motion picture business in France over twelve years ago, and who were present as friends as well as business associates on the occasion of the fruition of his ambitions, and the signalizing of his having arrived to the distinction of being a recognized master in photoplay production.

Mr. Capellani's first engagement in the motion picture business was as a Pathe director in Paris. Thus after a considerable lapse of years he again, in a measure, becomes identified with the famous concern which gave him his start.

Present also at the luncheon were June Caprice and Creighton Hale, the stars who will be under the personal direction of Mr. Capellani, and who, it is announced, will be seen in eight pictures during the coming year. Work will begin at once upon a story based upon one of the most successful of plays, further announcement concerning which will be made later on.

Mr. Capellani, whose achievement in production and what he has added to the artistry of motion pictures, modestly said that he had learned much in technique from the observation of American methods and told that on the very day of his arrival, for the first time, in the United States he went to see a picture show, filled with the pride of his superiority of craftsmanship, but came away convinced that there was much in the national expression and intimacy of treatment of persons and environment he had yet to learn.

The Solax studio in Fort Lee, where the Capellani productions will be made, is said to be one of the finest in the East and sufficiently commodious to allow three companies, or even four, to work at the same time.

Henry Mennessier, distinguished here and abroad for his scenic art, will assist Mr. Capellani as art director. The staff includes a corps of expert cameramen, with Lucien Andriot as chief photographer.

The executive offices of the new concern are on the eighth floor of the Brokaw Building, in New York.

Chicago Lyric Books New Serials

For fifteen weeks the Lyric Theatre, one of the biggest playhouses in Chicago now devoted exclusively to pictures, will become a Vitagraph serial house. The six great Vitagraph serials issued to date, with the newly released "Man of Might" taking honor positions on the Saturday and Sunday programs, will be shown from day to day, one certain day of the week being devoted to a particular serial. As tentatively adopted when closing the contracts, the management of the Lyric has set the following schedule:

Monday—"The Fighting Trail."
Tuesday—"Vengeance—and the Woman."
Wednesday—"The Woman in the Web."
Thursday—"A Fight for Millions."
Friday—"The Iron Test."
Saturday-Sunday—"The Man of Might."

The "Lyric idea," as it is being called in the sales offices of Vitagraph, has aroused deep interest among officials of the company and the showmen of Chicago.

Reed Title Is Changed

"Her Code of Honor" is the title under which the recently completed Florence Reed United Picture will be released. The piece was originally announced under the working title of "The Call of the Heart." William Desmond leads Miss Reed's support.

Wealthy Texan Forms New Producing Company

Backed by the millions of A. B. Griffith, known in the South as the "Cotton King of Texas," a girl, well known in society circles of the Southwest, has formed her own producing company and has completed the first of a series of special productions, with herself as star. The first of the series of features produced by this company, as yet un-named, is titled "The Girl and the Horses," and is said to be builded along unusual lines in photodramatic art. The star is said to be a striking brunette type and the possessor of rare dramatic talent.

Associated with Mr. Griffith in this enterprise are Thomas L. Sawyer, another wealthy cotton grower, and James J. Tynan, prominently known in film circles. The trio are now in New York arranging for the release of the first feature. It is announced that a studio will be built in Dallas, Tex., where a five-reel feature and a two-reel comedy will be produced each month. The second of the series will be produced in Los Angeles where "The Girl and the Horses" was produced under the direction of Charles A. Taylor, formerly connected in a directorial capacity with Metro.

In appreciation of the work being done by these Texans to produce clean and entertaining pictures, Governor Hobby of Texas, after viewing the first production of this new company, wired those concerned, praising their efforts.

Cleveland House Books Serial Starring Houdini

The Miles theatre, Cleveland, has booked the Houdini serial, "The Silent Mystery," produced by B. A. Rolfe for Octagon Films, Inc., for fifteen weeks. Bert Barnett, manager of the Star Feature Film Service, controlling the rights to this serial in the territory of Ohio and Kentucky, handled the booking. The Miles is one of the largest theatres in Cleveland.

The mystery girl, chief player in "The Girl and the Horses," a James J. Tynan picture

Famous Players Buys Four New Stories

The purchase of four new stories by well-known authors, also one of the current season's successful stage plays, all to be used as subjects for Paramount stars, was announced this week by Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, in charge of production. Two of the stories are for Lila Lee and the other two for Ethel Clayton, while Wallace Reid will be starred in the screen version of the play which has been purchased.

"The acquisition of these plays," said Mr. Lasky in making the announcement, "is in line with our recently adopted policy of obtaining the screen rights to the best plays and stories once their picture possibilities are apparent. The play which we have just acquired and which Wallace Reid will appear in is 'One of Us,' by Jack Lait and Joseph Swerling.

"The stories which we have purchased for Miss Clayton are 'Men, Women and Money' and 'The House of Intrigue.' The first named is by Cosmo Hamilton, enlarged by himself for screen use from one of his magazine stories.

"The stories for Lila Lee are 'A Daughter of the Wolf' and 'Hearts and Horse Thieves,' the former by Hugh Pendexter and the latter an original story and scenario by Edith M. Kennedy.

"All of these new stories, as well as the play, are scheduled for early production at our Western studios. Meanwhile, we may soon have another announcement along similar lines, for we are acquiring new plays and stories of the highest entertainment value every week."

Anna Case Recitals

To show exhibitors how to properly exploit Anna Case in the Select Pictures Special, "The Hidden Truth," L. F. Levison, manager of the Select exchange at Pittsburgh, is giving a series of Anna Case phonograph recitals in the exchange rooms. These are held daily at noon and all the exhibitors have been invited to bring friends with them.

"Where the West Begins" is the name of William Russell's new American picture.

Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley are starred in the World Picture, "Courage for Two"

Press Lauds "Cheating Cheaters"

Newspaper Critics Praise Select Pictures Corporation Current Production Starring Clara Kimball Young

FROM returns received at the home offices of Select Pictures Corporation, the newspaper critics throughout the country are loud in their praise for Clara Kimball Young's latest Select picture, "Cheating Cheaters," which many declare is the best attraction she has ever produced.

Before its release Select heralded it as "the greatest thing to date." Since then "Cheating Cheaters" has been shown in first run houses in all of the country's largest cities, and many of the critics of the leading newspapers declare Miss Young's work in the picture is without precedent.

The New York American, which is credited with the largest circulation of any paper in the country, says of Miss Young: "She is constantly lovely to look upon in this picture. . . . The settings are in excellent taste and the cast is a good one." The Worcester (Mass.) Telegram says: "Audiences linger to see the picture twice at a single sitting," while the Louisville Courier declares it is "so interesting it would make the Peace Conference forget its problems and funny enough to make the Kaiser laugh."

Chicago Journal declares: "'Cheating Cheaters' is a play which earned many a triumph on the speaking stage. It loses nothing by its screen presentation. Clara Kimball Young is at her best." In the same city the Chicago Tribune says: "The best picture Clara Kimball Young has made in some time! There is considerable action and the character roles are well played."

"Miss Young as the clever leader of a band of crooks is quite at her best," declares the critic of the Springfield (Mass.) News, while the Norfolk (Va.) Pilot declares it is one of the most unusual plays ever produced and the most satisfactory screen offering of the day."

The Indianapolis Times says of "Cheating Cheaters" after its presentation there at the Alhambra theatre: ". . . an engaging story of a battle for supremacy between two bands of clever crooks, with Clara Kimball Young at her glorious best."

And the critic of the New York Evening Sun pays "Cheating Cheaters" one of the greatest compliments it is possible to bestow upon a film, declaring that "it is one of the very few productions founded on popular plays that come anywhere near equalling the original in interest."

"Shoulder Arms" Helps Out Red Cross

Geoffrey Nye, representative in the Far East for E. J. Tait, controlling Charlie Chaplin for that territory, has advised the New York Office that while en route from 'Frisco to Yokohama on board the "Siberia Maru" he discovered a long neglected Cinematograph machine, cleaned it up, and conditionally that a decent sum of money was subscribed by the passengers towards the Red Cross—he promised a showing of Chaplin's big laughter maker—"Shoulder Arms." This was taken up enthusiastically by the passengers and the advance bookings totalled $225. The picture was received enthusiastically by the audience.

Another Keith House Books Houdini Serial

Keith's theatre, Indianapolis, booking through the Celebrated Players Film Company, handling B. A. Rolfe's serial production, "The Master Mystery," starring Houdini, distributed by Octagon Films, Inc., has contracted for a run of this serial. In the past Keith's Indianapolis theatre has booked only news weeklies.

Pershing Wants "Made in America"

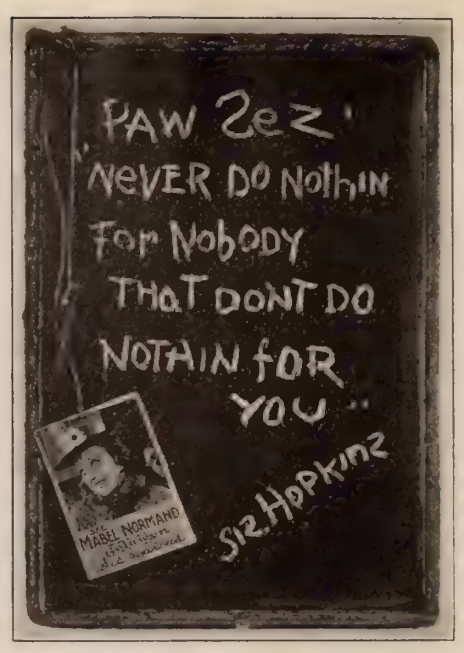
General John J. Pershing, commander of America's victorious armies in France and Germany, cabled through the New York Herald to the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation that "a favor" would be conferred "on the A. E. F." if the series "Made in America" could be sent overseas. General Pershing added, "I would like to have it shown to the staff and troops remaining."

Immediately upon the arrival of this intelligence a print was ordered packed for shipment overseas. W. W. Hodkinson, president of the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation, publishers and distributers, and Ashley Miller, producer, of the series, are enthusiastic over General Pershing's answer, and claim that it is only a forerunner of the manner in which "Made in America" will be received throughout the entire country.

"Analysis of Motion" in Pathe Review

The "Analysis of Motion" is shown in Pathe Review No. 3, which was released February 16. It is called "What the Eye Misses" and is a continuation of Thesis No. 1, the baseball pictures of which the New York Times said:

"The real feature of the Strand is a picture entitled, 'Baseball, an Analysis of Motion.' It shows baseball players photographed by some rapid process, so that the speed of their movements can be reduced on the screen to one-eighth of normal."



With Bryant Washburn

Shirley Mason, whose characterizations in Paramount pictures have won her hosts of admirers, will be leading woman for Bryant Washburn in his next Paramount starring vehicle, which is being directed by Donald Crisp.

Work has been started at the Lasky Hollywood studio on the production.

Elsie Ferguson, Artcraft star whose popularity is ever increasing

Snipe Posted by Goldwyn to Advertise Mabel Normand in "Sis Hopkins"

Alice Hastings Star of First Zion Feature

Alice Hastings who had a prominent part in the Broadway production of "Turn to the Right," has been selected by the Zion Films, Inc., to portray the title role in the first of its productions, "Khavah," a screen version of one of Sholon Aleichem's, the Yiddish novelist, works. Miss Hastings, earlier dramatic career was in stock and she will be remembered favorably for her heavy character portrayals, with Otis Skinner in "Kismet," for two seasons.

The story of "Khavah" tells of the love of a beautiful Jewish girl for a Christian. Miss Hastings is given the title role and has the support of well known screen artists, including Giacomo Masuroff, who was at one time one of the favorite entertainers at the court of the late Czar Nicholas. The screen adaptation was made by Nat Dorfman. Work on "Khavah" will be started immediately under the direction of Charles Davenport.

"Tiger's Trail" Nears Completion

Pathe this week announces that "The Tiger's Trail," the Arthur B. Reeve-Charles Logue serial starring Ruth Roland, which will be released by Pathe immediately following the Pearl White serial, "The Lightning Raider," is rapidly nearing completion at the Astra studios at Glendale, Cal.

A feature of "The Tiger's Trail," which Pathe expects will add considerable to the success of the serial, is the supporting cast appearing with Miss Roland. It includes George Larkin, as leading man, who promises some thrilling "stunts." Mark Strong will have a double role, while George Field is cast as Salonga, the Hifh Priest of the Hindu Tiger Worshippers. Harry Moody, Frederick L. Kohler and Easter Walters are also in the cast.

J. Gordon Edwards Directs William Farnum

J. Gordon Edwards, who directed "Cleopatra," "Salome" and other big Fox productions, has been assigned by William Fox to direct future William Farnum productions. Mr. Farnum and Director Edwards left New York for Los Angeles this week, where work will be commenced immediately on the first production under the direction of Mr. Edwards.

Because of the growing popularity of William Farnum since his appearance in the star roles of "Les Miserables," "Riders of the Purple Sage," "The Rainbow Trail" and others and the success achieved by Director Edwards with his productions, "Cleopatra" and "Salome," the William Fox interests have concluded that the combination of star and director will work to the advantage of exhibitor, the public and all concerned. The first production to be made by the Farnum-Edwards combination will be a screen version of a story by E. Lloyd Sheldon, the working title of which is "Wolves of the Night." Following this Mr. Farnum will probably star in another Zane Grey story. Mr. Fox has obtained the rights to Grey's "The Last of the Duanes" and "The Lone Star Ranger."

Ford Weekly Keeps Up to Date

How directly the topics pictured in the Ford Educational Weekly are related to the current affairs and interests of the American people is revealed by the fact that within ten weeks Henry Ford's nationally-popular educational has dealt with the United States Postoffice service, the Liberty Motor, the Hog Island Shipyards, Mt. Edith Cavell, Canada's "Mountain of Tears"; the story of the nation's great hotel kitchens and the story of steel. Besides these there have been fascinating pictures of the dramatic roles played by great industries in the winning of the world war.

During the period of these releases the Liberty Motor received its vindication, which was vividly borne out in the Ford Educational Weekly.

Director Lynn Reynolds and Peggy Hyland, working on a new Fox picture

Dot Farley, new Universal Comedy star

Margarita Fisher Medal Is Presented

The solid gold medal offered by Margarita Fisher, American Film Star, at the start of the war, to the first airman trained at Rockwell Field, California, to bring down a Hun airplane, and subsequently won by Lieut. Frank Luke, of Phoenix, Arizona, was presented to the airman's father and mother at Phoenix, Arizona.

The presentation was made by the Phoenix Chamber of Commerce on behalf of Miss Fisher. Lieut. Luke was killed on September 29th, 1918, while making a night attack against enemy observation balloons.

On the inverse side of the gold medal in bas relief is a miniature replica of an American combat airplane with the following inscription: "Margarita Fisher medal. For Valor in the great war of 1918." On the reverse side of the medal is the inscription: "To the late American hero and aviation ace, Lieut. Frank Luke. The first Rockwell Field aviator to bring down a German airplane as well as 13 others and 25 balloons."

Next Constance Talmadge "Saturday to Monday"

Lewis J. Selznick presents Constance Talmadge in "Saturday To Monday" to follow her current Select picture "Romance and Arabella."

"Saturday to Monday" is a screen version of William J. Hurlbut's popular last season stage success. Harrison Ford will again be seen as Miss Talmadge's leading man.

Robert G. Vignola will direct. Mr. Vignola has several times in the past been connected with Select productions, having directed Clara Kimball in "The Claw" and "The Reason Why."

Meyer on Business Trip Through South

P. E. Meyer, manager, New York branch, Independent Sales Corporation, left New York last week on an extended business trip through the South, where he will visit the different units of Independent's organization. Mr. Meyer will put into effect a number of new booking and distributing methods which he has planned. His first stop was Atlanta, Ga.

Macauley Production Launched

Harry Reichenbach Planning Big Campaign for Seven-Reel Feature Dealing with Events Leading to League of Nations

LONG before the transcontinental "rattler" which carried Harry Reichenbach from Los Angeles, arrived at the Grand Central station, Hotel Astor, and Broadway in general had received advanced notices of something big in the form of seven reels of pantomine that he was bringing with him. No one knew just what it was, but this week from his offices on Fifth avenue, where the Macauley Photoplays, Inc., is located, Harry told a NEWS representative just what these seven reels of pantomine were all about.

"Seven reels of the greatest drama since the world began" is the way Harry describes "Whom the Gods Would Destroy," which boasts of twenty-three principals in its cast, cost more than $100,000 to produce, and was eighteen months in making during which time more than 114,000 feet of negative were exposed.

"Whom the Gods Would Destroy" is a screen version of C. R. Macauley's "Humanity," and was produced by Ollie L. Sellers under the direction of Frank Borzage, formerly directing for Triangle and considered to be one of the industry's best young directors. The screen version of this production is based on actualities conceived and inspired by the proposed League of Nations, now in the process of formation at the Peace Conference in Paris. The story paper is of a romantic nature, based on President Wilson's conception and ideals concerning a permanent league of nations.

Mr. Reichenbach in describing this production said that it tells the story of the efforts by the world toward a permanent peace, from the time of the murder of the Arch-Duke Ferdinand of Serbia to the present day when the greatest thinkers of the day are convened in conference at Paris to perpetuate a lasting peace. Mr. Reichenbach describes some of the episodes of this feature as being the most sensational ever incorporated into a drama for the screen and others as being the sweetest love story ever told. It's not a propaganda picture, it's not a war drama, but a picture that presents in a most dramatic way the foreseen manner in which a world peace was to be brought about.

The fact that millions were killed, maimed, rendered homeless, blinded, made orphans, widowed and that billions of dollars were spent; millions of acres of inhabited lands devastated, kings dethroned and monarchs executed as a result of the war—these are the facts described as inspiring this photodramatic offering which the Macauley Photoplays, Inc., are to give to the public.

It has not been announced the method of distribution, but Mr. Reichenbach hinted that it would be distributed by one of the large producers. Prior to its release through the country, Mr. Reichenbach plans a six or eight weeks' run at one of the Broadway theatres. Plans are now under way for a big advertising campaign which will be country-wide.

One of the many letters received by Macauley Photoplays, Inc., testifying to the worth of this production, is from a well known film cutter on the Coast, Tom Logan, who assisted in assembling and cutting "Whom the Gods Would Destroy." In part, Mr. Logan said: "Last week I saw 28,000 feet of unassembled film which had been cut down from 53,000 feet and which I helped to cut to 7,000 and while I may be blase, cold turkey or just hard-boiled, I prophesy that the 7,000 feet of "Whom the Gods Would Destroy" will be one of the money-making sensations of the year."

The principal roles in this feature are portrayed by Jack Mulhall, Pauline Starke, who will be remembered as the feminine star of "Until They Get Me," directed by Frank Borzage, who is accredited with the direction of "Whom the Gods Would Destroy"; Katherine Adams and Harvey Clarke. Mr. Reichenbach says that more than 8,000 principals and extras took part in the action of the picture.

Mitchell Lewis has the role of a lumberjack in "Children of Banishment," a new Select picture

Universal Gets Major Jack Allen

It was announced from the Universal publicity offices this week that Major Jack Allen, adventurer, naturalist and trapper of wild animals, and who recently made a series of five one-reel animal and nature pictures independently, has signed a contract to produce a special series of similar pictures for Universal.

Major Allen, who served in the United States Cavalry during the Spanish American war, has devoted a greater part of twenty years to studying nature and American wild animals.

In his work for Universal, Major Allen will have access to the large menagerie at Universal City, and taking the animals he desires to photograph, into the woods, deserts and swamps, he will proceed to demonstrate before the camera how the fiercest jungle beasts may be captured by humane methods.

Carmel Myers Is the Featured Player in "The Little White Savage," Universal Feature Picture

Special Exploitation for Semon Comedies

VITAGRAPH reports that the exhibitors have so insistently demanded special exploitation in connection with Vitagraph's Larry Semon comedies that hereafter the Larry Semon comedies will be released as a separate and exclusive unit.

Vitagraph plans to release one Larry Semon comedy every four weeks, the first release being scheduled for April 14, and one comedy to follow regularly every four weeks thereafter.

On a rcent visit to New York, Vitagraph arranged a new long-term contract with Larry Semon and he returned to Vitagraph's Western studio with instructions to proceed in the production of his new comedies regardless of expense in either story, casting, settings or any other phase of picture-making.

Vitagraph makes no secret of the fact that it is making the heaviest comedy production investment in its history for the Larry Semon comedies, but it calls attention to the fact that this is done not for the sake of giving to exhibitors something new and untried but rather in answer to a widespread demand from exhibitors in all sections for Larry Semon comedies that will admit of extra exploitation.

That Larry Semon has forged to the front as a screen comedian through sheer merit is declared to be evidenced by the distinct hit he has made with the picture-going public; and Vitagraph, by releasing one Larry Semon comedy each month, will afford exhibitors the opportunity of exploiting and advertising these pictures heavily.

The success of the Larry Semon comedies is asserted to be assured by the following that has already been established for this comedian's comedy characterizations.

"The One Woman" Is Intensively Booked

SELECT PICTURES CORPORATION reports that although play dates on its big Thomas Dixon special, "The One Woman," have already been announced for hundreds of cities throughout the country, bookings on this attraction continue to hold it in the first division of the season's big specials.

Each week brings new bookings in the metropolitan district, the latest dates announced by Select's New York Exchange being Fox's New Britain, three days; Garden, New Haven, two days; Sheffield, Brooklyn, two days; Jefferson, three days; Lincoln, Union Hill, four days; Paradise, Bronx, two days; Eagle, Brooklyn, three days; Plaza, Bayonne, three days; Plaza, Brooklyn, three days; Winchester, New Haven, two days; Hamilton, Yonkers, two days; Park, Bronx, two days, and Lawrence, New Haven, two days.

Other cities throughout the country where "The One Woman" has been shown exclusive of bookings announced prior to January 27, are the Lyda, Grand Island, Neb., four days; Frankford, Philadelphia, two days; Sequoia, Red Wood City, Cal., two days; Strand, Miami, Fla., three days; Apollo, Janesville, Wis., three days; Princess Sioux City, Ia., four days; Star, Kensington, Pa., three days; Minerva, Pittsburgh, three days; Groggs, Bakersfield, Cal., seven days; Cabrillo, San Diego, Cal., seven days; Proctor's Troy, three days; Strand, Anniston, Ala., three days; Olympia, New Bedford, Mass., three days; Strand Dorchester, three days; Olympia, Lynn, and others.

Reissued Comedies Bring Good Reports

Many of the biggest theatres in the country are booking W. H. Productions re-issued versions of Keystone comedies, according to reports received at the New York offices of W. H. Productions. Two series of single reel Keystone re-issues, for which practically the entire domestic and foreign rights are sold, are being released. A series of two reel Keystones is being released also.

An official of W. H. Productions is commenting upon the success with which these comedies are meeting said:

"These Keystone comedies will always remain first-class productions because they represent the best in motion picture comedies. Each re-issue contains a combination of some of the greatest comedy stars of to-day—a combination that is well nigh impossible under present studio and production conditions. It was these re-issues that first brought out the great possibilities in motion picture comedies. They put the motion picture comedy on a more serious footing in filmdom."

Juveniles Prominent in "A House Divided"

"A House Divided," J. Stuart Blackton's current feature production, adapted by Anthony Paul Kelly from Ruth Holt Boucicault's novel, "The Substance of His House," gives important scenes to three juvenile stars of filmland. Two of them are Commodore Blackton's clever children, Charles and Violet, while the other is Baby Ivy Ward.

Charles and Violet Blackton are best known for their work in Mrs. Blackton's Country Life Stories and in "The Common Cause," Mr. Blackton's current Vitagraph special in which they are featured with the grown-up stars.

Corinne Griffith is starred in "The Girl Problem," Vitagraph picture

"The Lottery Man" for Famous Players-Lasky

Exclusive screen rights for the entire world for Rida Johnson Young's play, "The Lottery Man," has just been acquired by Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

The deal was closed with Lee Shubert, to whom the control of the production and story had reverted as the original owner of the dramatic rights.

"The Lottery Man" was first produced at the Bijou theatre, March 16, 1910, and met with instantaneous success. It ran there for nearly a year, and four companies later produced it on tour.

In the original cast were such notable players as Cyril Scott, the star; Janet Beecher, Helen Lowell, Harry S. Hadfield, Louise Galloway, Robert Mackey, Ethel Winthrop, Mary Leslie Mayo and Wallace Sharpe.

It has not yet been definitely decided as to who will appear in the picturized production.

Omaha Strand Scores with Griffith

As an example of the good business reported by all of its exchanges on the D. W. Griffith Artcraft production, "The Greatest Thing in Life," the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation cites the case of the Strand Theatre, Omaha, Neb. The Strand booked the feature for Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of the week of January 26, but so great was the business of these five days that it was necessary to hold the picture over for Friday and Saturday, according it the honor of being the first picture ever to play a full week at that theatre.

Record crowds continued to throng the theatre during the added two days of the run, with the result that there were still hundreds who were unable to see the picture.

Norma Talmadge, Select star, in "The Probation Wife," a new production

Geraldine Farrar, Goldwyn Star, Lined Them Up Along the Sidewalk When She Appeared on the Screen in "The Hell Cat" at the California Theatre in Los Angeles

Parsons' Capitol Comedies Sold for England

DISTRIBUTING rights for England on "Smiling Bill" Parsons and his Capitol Comedies have just been purchased from Goldwyn Distributing Corporation by George King, general manager of the Stoll Film Co., one of the most important firm of cinema distributors in England and the English representatives of all Goldwyn productions.

Already there is said to be keen demand for Capitol Comedies throughout the United Kingdom. It is especially keen because of late there has been a woeful dearth of good comedy features on the other side.

During the war the production of film plays, especially comedies, in England, has been reduced to a minimum and the stock on hand at the outbreak of the world-wide hostilities became exhausted long ago. On the other hand there has been a tremendous need for good comedies.

Theatre-goers in England have been unwilling to see anything but the most amusing pictures. Consequently, it is believed that Capitol Comedies will find their market ready-made for them.

The rise of "Smiling Bill" Parsons and his Capitol Comedies is cited as having been quite remarkable. In a very short time after they were offered to the public their humor and appeal to everybody who likes to laugh is declared to have become evident.

Under the contract signed by Mr. King with Samuel Goldwyn, the Stoll Company will offer for sale the twenty-six comedies constituting the first year's output. First of these is "Bill's Baby." This and the succeeding productions have been reported as tremendously popular in the United States.

Lightman Manages New Film Service

Morris A. Lightman, manager and executive head of the Criterion Film Service, Atlanta, Ga., paid Broadway and the film colony a visit last week in search of product for releases in the territory comprised by the states of Florida, Alabama, the Carolinas, Georgia, Louisiana and Mississippi, in which territory the Criterion operates. Associated with Mr. Lightman in the distributing field, is Arthur S. Dickerson, formerly with Metro, now general manager of the Criterion Service.

The Criterion Service is releasing in the Southern territory, the "Master Mystery," starring Houdini; "The Grain of Dust," starring Lillian Walker, and a series of Allison-Lockwood re-issues. This independent distributing company is comparatively new and Mr. Lightman looks for a bright future.

Hodkinson Announces New Release

The W. W. Hodkinson Corporation announces the release on March 10 of "The Forfeit," a Frank Powell production, co-starring House Peters and Jane Miller. Adapted from Ridgewell Cullom's well-known novel, "The Forfeit" is a story of the Southern cattle country.

Mr. Peters plays the role of a ranch owner who marries a beautiful widow and later finds that she was not only the wife of his brother, but it was she who betrayed him, resulting in his being hung as a cattle thief. The role is a dramatic one, replete with pathos, and Mr. Peters plays it in his usual sympathetic vein.

In support of the stars are William Human as the weak younger brother, Hector V. Sarno as the chief cattle rustler, L. H. Welles as the ranchman, Blanche Abbott as the ingenue, and George Murdock.

"Salome" In Millionaire Colony

Theda Bara Makes Personal Appearance at Opening in Miami—Manager of Hippodrome Breaks Records

DURING Theda Bara's stay in Miami, Fla., for the past three weeks, taking scenes for her William Fox production, "A Woman There Was," Harry Leach, proprietor of three of the five motion picture theatres in Miami, decided that it would be the psychological time to book "Salome." The Elks were giving a benefit on Wednesday and Thursday nights of the week Mr. Leach booked "Salome" for a two days' run, Tuesday and Wednesday. Because of his rapid-fire work in advertising the feature and the fact that he had Miss Bara make a personal appearance on the opening night, brought Mr. Leach the biggest business he has ever had at his Hippodrome theatre.

The morning on which Mr. Leach booked the picture through the Atlanta office of Fox Corporation he ran a story in a local paper to the effect that Miss Bara had promised to appear in person to aid a benefit for the local Elks. Even this opposition did not dampen the ardor of Manager Leach. He papered the town with one, two, three, six and twenty-four sheets announcing the run of "Salome." Only one twenty-four sheet stand was available, but there were barns, railroad cars and walls. These were "plastered" with sheets of the announcement.

For the opening night Mr. Leach had a special box built for Miss Bara. At five o'clock that afternoon the crowd began to assemble and after the last performance Manager Leach's box-office showed that he had done the biggest business in the history of any of his three theatres—Hippodrome, Paramount and Photoshow. He reports that Miss Bara's presence was responsible, in a large measure, for the business on the opening night. He booked "Salome" for two days and extended the run for three and did big business each night. Mr. Leach reported that he estimated that more than 30 per cent of Miami's population saw the picture.

Miss Bara spent three weeks in Miami taking scenes for "A Woman There Was." In this Fox production she has the role of a South Sea Island Princess. During the star's stay in Miami she was entertained by some of the winter colony's wealthiest visitors, including Mr. and Mrs. Clark Thompson, of Chicago, whose guest Miss Bara was during part of her stay.

It is reported that each day Miss Bara worked her "set" was completely surrounded by automobiles from which the millionaire vacationists watched the process of filming "A Woman There Was." In addition to her attendance at the Elks' benefit and the Hippodrome Miss Bara visited the naval flying station at Dinner Key and had one of her favorite films, "Under Two Flags," specially shipped to the station for a showing. The Elks of Miami voted her a "loyal Elk" because of the assistance she gave them in making a success of their benefit, the proceeds of which go to widows and orphans of Elks.

Nazimova's Next Production is "The Brat"

FOLLOWING the completion of "The Red Lantern," Edith Sherry's novel of China and California, which was adapted for Nazimova's use by June Mathis and Albert Capellani, Mme. Nazimova will appear in "The Brat," adapted from Oliver Morosco's stage comedy which ran for fifteen months in New York City.

Herbert Blache has been selected by Mr. Karger to direct the picture, the screen version of which is being made by June Mathis, who also adapted Nazimova's other stories, "Revelation," "Toys of Fate," "Eye for Eye," "The Red Lantern" and "Out of the Fog" for the screen in collaboration with George D. Baker and Albert Capellani.

The titular role in "The Brat" will mark a novel departure in the screen work of Nazimova. In "Revelation," this mistress of the emotions in the silent drama was a grizette of the Paris ateliers of the Latin Quarter; in "Toys of Fate," a fiery gypsy; in "Eye for Eye," a Bedouin girl, with all the passion of the desert-born oriental. In "The Red Lantern" she portrays an Eurasian—half Chinese and half English—possessed of the traits of both races. In "Out of the Fog," her most recent picture to be released she plays an unwordly girl of seventeen.

In "The Brat" she will be seen as an American girl—a piquant, resourceful, optimistic product of the slums and the charity "institutions."

The picturization of "The Brat," which enjoyed such a vogue on the speaking stage, will bring back Charles Bryant as Nazimova's leading man. Bryant played opposite Nazimova in all of her productions save "The Red Lantern."

In translating Maude Fulton's play, "The Brat," for the screen, Miss Mathis and Mr. Karger have made some alterations and amplifications, but were very careful to preserve the cheerful philosophy of the comedy drama's central figure—"the brat"—the wisp of optimistic humanity who is taken from the night court by an author in search of local color and real life.

Prizma Scores in Philadelphia

The following letter was received by World Pictures from Frank W. Buhler, managing director of the Stanley and Arcadia Theatres in Philadelphia.

"Prizma has made a profound impression on our patrons at the Stanley and Arcadia Theatres. You can say to the Prizma Company that they have made an excellent beginning and if they continue to improve along the lines laid down by them, Prizma will be the one big find in the motion picture industry."

Eugene Strong, leading man and star, with Gladys Leslie in a new Vitagraph picture

Eugene Strong Appears with Gladys Leslie

Eugene Strong, well known leading man, who has also starred in his own right, has been engaged for the principal male role with Gladys Leslie in the Vitagraph production, "A Stitch in Time," work on which was begun at the Brooklyn plant of Vitagraph, February 20.

It is said that Mr. Strong was selected for the part after lengthy consideration and thorough search of the field for the best player available. On the other hand, steady progress made by Vitagraph in its productions, which have proven exceptionally worth while to exhibitors throughout the country, is said to have induced Mr. Strong to accept the engagement.

"Vitagraph is one of the organizations," said Mr. Strong this week, "that has been forging to the front steadily during the past several months. Not that the company's pictures were not already in the vanguard of worthy film productions, but that production progress is being measured differently after the armistice was signed. 'A Stitch in Time' is expected to be one of the best Gladys Leslie stories yet turned out, and I have no doubt but that it will be."

Mr. Strong's career in motion pictures has been one of unusual triumphs. One of his most recent pictures was "Her Mistake," with Evelyn Nesbit, of which one exhibitor wrote, "My mistake was in not building my theatre with enough seats to take care of the audience for 'Her Mistake.'"

New Big V Comedy

"Damsels and Dandies" is to be the name of the new Montgomery and Rock "Big V" Comedy, released the end of February. The comedy was made out at the Hollywood studios of Vitagraph. Corroborative of its title, lassies, langorous and lithesome, others static and stubby, make this comedy a classic.

THE STOLEN PEARLS
PRISCILLA DEAN
"The Wicked Darling"
A UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION

PRISCILLA DEAN

"Her sob-stuff would fade Sarah Bernhardt to a whisper"

"The WICKED DARLING"

A UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION

"It was a case of honor among thieves"

"Her baby vamp stuff used to make 'em delirious!"

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS

UNIVERSAL FILM MFG. Co. 1600 Bway, N.Y. Carl Laemmle President

Weekly Trade Showings by Exhibitors Mutual

Every Monday afternoon at Wurlitzer Hall, 120 West Forty-first street, New York City, the Exhibitors Mutual Distributing Corporation has arranged to hold a weekly exhibition of current releases for the benefit of the trade and press.

All exhibitors are invited to these showings.

Bessie Barriscale's newest production, "A Trick of Fate," and the final instalment of Martin Johnson's "Cannibals of the South Seas" were selected as the initial offering of Exhibitors Mutual the first Monday afternoon.

In spite of the tediousness of sitting through ten consecutive reels, each attraction was received with considerable favor. Several exhibitors who saw Johnson's Cannibal films for the first time are said to have acclaimed them as the most remarkable and novel they had ever seen and made immediate arrangements to play them in the near future.

The Barriscale picture showed the star in a type far from the beaten track of those usually enacted by her and it is declared that more pictures of this general nature will bring numerous followers into the legion who already admire Miss Barriscale on the screen.

New Morey Film Laid in Chinatown

New York's Chinatown figures prominently in the new Harry T. Morey picture which Vitagraph is to issue in March under the title of "Fighting Destiny." Its title, it is said, is indicative of the story, as it deals with a fight waged by a strong man against seemingly unconquerable fate. Mystery is a strong element in "Fighting Destiny" and Mr. Morey is declared to be given every aid, both by story and cast, in the development of possibly the strongest play he has yet appeared in.

Paul Scardon directed the production.

"Where the West Begins" Is Next Russell

The fourth of a series of William Russell Productions featuring William Russell will be released by American Film Company through Pathe Exchanges, March 2. It is entitled "Where the West Begins."

"I have done Western pictures, many of them," says Russell, "but they have all been more or less pseudo-western, while this pictures breathes the genuine west with its chivalry, its traditions and its marvelous scenery."

Miscellaneous Notes

"The Enchanted Barn," Vitagraph feature with Bessie Love, is said to have won many fans over to the star's side. The box-office reports indicate complete success for the production.

Milton Sills, by arrangement with Goldwyn, is Viola Dana's leading man in "Diana Ardway," which has been under way at Hollywood.

"The Great Gamble" is being produced in the South by Western Photoplays as a serial for release through Pathe. Ann Luther and Charles Hutchinson are the principals in the cast.

A Recent Triangle Production Is "Crown Jewels," in Which There Are Said to Be Many Tense Moments

Alice Brady Completes Her Select Contract

BY April 1st, Alice Brady expects to have completed two more productions for Select Pictures Corporation, which will mark the completing of her contract.

Miss Brady, of course, will continue in her stage success, "Forever After," at the Playhouse. Her popularity in this play is now said to be greater than ever. For some time past she has been forced to play an extra matinee on Thursday each week to satisfy the demand for seats. There is declared to be no question but that "Forever After" will continue its highly successful run at the Playhouse through the current theatrical season and for many weeks thereafter.

Seats are now on sale for the Decoration Day and Fourth of July performances. In fact, for the first time in the history of the American theatre a young actress in her first year as a star is playing a solid season on Broadway. Neither Maude Adams nor Ethel Barrymore accomplished in their first year of stardom what Alice Brady is achieving in "Forever After."

With the completion of her motion picture contract with Select Miss Brady will have devoted nine months to continuous work before the camera during the day and behind the footlights at night.

Miss Brady's plans for the future are indefinite. She has in mind the possibility of going abroad and there making a series of pictures which will have for their locale, France, England, Italy and possibly Germany, and is said to be open for propositions for special picture productions.

There is also a possibility that Miss Brady may postpone a road tour in "Forever After," as she now has under consideration a proposition to play another year in New York in that piece.

Alice Brady has duplicated on the stage the notable success she has won on the screen. Prior to her return to the speaking stage last September, Miss Brady had won for herself a world-wide following as a motion picture star.

Since the opening of "Forever After" in New York she is said to have added to that the fame and even larger following which is hers through her personal triumph and wide acclaim as a stage star of the first magnitude.

Jean Paige. She Will Next Be Seen in the Bushman-Bayne Vitagraph Production

Classified Ads on Page 1364

Simplex on the Peace Voyage

Steamer "George Washington" Equipped by Precision to Entertain President on Trip to and from France—Presented by Schwab

WHEN the U. S. S. "George Washington" was designated for the use of the Presidential party, one of the forms of entertainment planned during the voyage was a series of motion picture exhibitions. For this purpose there had been installed two small machines of the portable type, both of them of uncertain vintage. So unsatisfactory were the performances of these machines that the first duty assigned to Mr. Rose, the chief radio officer, upon the ship's return to New York was to procure two up-to-date commercial projectors.

Owing to Captain McCauley's opposition to the use of the regulation carbon projector lamp, it was necessary to have the two new machines equipped with incandescent lamps. Just at this time there were two of the new Simplex-Mazda equipments in the laboratories of the Precision Machine Company which were to be used for demonstrating purposes.

Mr. Rose quickly made the necessary arrangements with the factory for the purchase and installation of these machines on the "George Washington." A glance at the accompanying photograph shows them mounted on a specially constructed platform over the main stairway leading to the large dining-room, which is also used when entertainments are in order.

On the first trip across following the Simplex installation many notable names appeared on the passenger list, among them being Franklyn D. Roosevelt, Augustus Heinze, Charles Schwab, John F. Hurley, Bernard Baruch, and others. Charles Schwab, of shipbuilding fame, formally presented these two Simplex projectors to the ship's crew, and now they are regarded as a regular part of the complement.

It might be noted that the incandescent lamp equipments with which these machines are fitted are the very latest product of the Precision Machine Company, and had been made up for demonstrating use before the various trade and scientific organizations in the industry. They embody the very same optical distances, and contain the same condenser system as do the regular carbon lamp equipments, which is something entirely new and original in incandescent lamp projection.

Since the installation of these two machines, a third one has been installed for use in the crew's quarters on the "George Washington."

The Precision Machine Company hope to market this new equipment some time along the middle of April, and promise to give the industry quite a surprise when the first literature pertaining to this equipment is released. Much speculation is rife among industrial and educational circles, where there is an extensive field for projectors of this type, and already numerous requests have been received by the Precision Machine Company from leading educators and prominent industrial concerns, who are anxious to use these new incandescent lamp Simplex projectors just as soon as they are released for the market. A future announcement relative to the new Simplex exposition, which is to occupy an entire floor at 729 Seventh avenue, where the new Simplex lamps may be viewed by the public and the trade, will soon be forthcoming from the Precision Machine Company.

Barriscale Visits Sister in New York

Bessie Barriscale, star of the B. B. Features company, arrived in New York last week for a hurried visit with her sister who has been seriously ill.

Miss Barriscale is acocmpanied by Howard Hickman, her husband, who recently has assumed the direction of all of her screen efforts.

"Hearts Asleep" has been finished by Miss Barriscale. This is a story by M. B. Havey. In this Miss Barriscale has the support of such well-known screen players as George Fisher, Henry Woodward, Thomas Guise, Frank Whitson, Vola Vale and Mrs. George Hernandez. "Hearts Asleep" presents Miss Barriscale in a role wholly unlike any other in which she has ever appeared, and those who have been privileged to see the picture in advance unhesitatingly pronounce it to be one of the best in which this undeniably fine actress has ever been seen.

Immediately upon Miss Barriscale's return to Los Angeles she will commence work upon a screen version of Kathleen Norris' widely read novel, "Josslyn's Wife," the scenario for which has been prepared by Fred Myton.

Alperstein Sells Rights to "The Great Gamble"

A. Alperstein, general manager of the Western Photoplays, Inc., announces that the far Eastern territory of the new serial, "The Great Gamble," has already been disposed of. It was sold last week on the strength of the producers' reputation, the announcement states.

Joseph A. Golden, the director of the serial in which Ann Luther and Charles Hutchison are the co-stars has arrived in the South where work is going full tilt on the production.

Before the return of the company to New York it is expected that the first three episodes will be completed in their entirety.

Robbins Visits Metro in Los Angeles

En route from Australia to New York, W. A. Robbins, manager of the Co-operative Film Exchange, Ltd., stopped over in Los Angeles long enough to pay a visit to the new Metro studios in Hollywood. Robbins was accompanied by his wife and young daughter. The Co-operative Film Exchange distributes Metro pictures throughout Australia and its manager wanted to see them in the making. He will be located permanently in New York as representative of the exchange.

Vitagraph Announces Ince-Stewart Film

What a Vitagraph announcement claims to be the most powerful police drama ever written is scheduled for early March release. "From Headquarters" is the name of the production, and Anita Stewart is the star. Ralph Ince directed it, and from all reports the picture is due to create one of the biggest sensations of the season. Already a truly amazing array of bookings are in Vitagraph's hands, and it is said that exhibitors are signing up the picture with a rush that rivals anything in the company's history.

Without a doubt, says the Vitagraph statement, "From Headquarters" will amaze by the boldness and daring of the theme. Nothing that Miss Stewart has ever done approaches the emotional heights she reaches in this picture. The story itself and its tremendous force in "getting over" should thrill and startle the millions of theatre patrons who want something out of the ordinary.

These Choice Birds Were Raised by Harry Carey, Universal Star, on the West Coast

Elmo Lincoln and Grace Cunard for Serial

Under the direction of Henry McRae, former manager of Universal City, a new serial has been launched at Hollywood which will feature Elmo Lincoln and Grace Cunard.

It is Mr. Lincoln's first serial. He first attracted attention as the "Warrior" in Griffith's "Intolerance," but he attained the heights of film stardom as the hero of "Tarzan of the Apes" and as the fighting blacksmith in "The Beast of Berlin."

The name of the new serial is a secret for the time being, but it will be announced soon. It is a story of the woods.

William E. Wing is preparing the story for the screen. The Great Western Producing Company is the name of the new concern which secured the services of Mr. McRae as producing chief.

Norma Talmadge, Select star, in "The Probation Wife"

International News Shows Speed

Cameraman of International News Service Secured Negatives of Seattle Strike in Record Time

EXCEPTIONAL speed in handling news films has been again evidenced by the International Film Service in getting pictures of the recent general strike at Seattle before the public. Within six hours after the strike was declared the International camera-man had negative for issues of the tri-weekly news service en route to the laboratories.

As a result of this splendid handling the scenes of the Seattle strike were shown in the special Pacific Coast editions of the tri-weekly news service, in California, Oregon and Washington within forty-eight hours after photographing and within six days New York, Washington, Boston and Philadelphia exhibitors were showing the same pictures.

The Seattle pictures show how soldiers and police distributed newspapers telling of arrival of Coast troops from France during the strike, picture the way the strikers were fed by their respective unions from special soup kitchens and also showing the only bread union bakers made during the strike.

In the East these pictures were inserted in Universal Current Events No. 7, which, in addition to the strike pictures contained several other features of unusual interest.

Among the foreign scenes were those showing Queen Alexandria presenting colors to Tommies about to depart for the Rhine territory, the first pictures of Britain's super-ferries passed by the censors and showing how great trains were transported from England to France during the war on freak craft.

Some unusual views of the gigantic steamer "Leviathan" returning to America with several thousand gold-striped troopers, scenes showing the arrival of colored troops, among them many with decorations for bravery under fire and an exclusive feature is the review of the famous Seventh Cavalry, now serving along the Mexican border.

This regiment, at one time commanded by the famous Indian fighter, General Custer, conclusively proves before the camera that it has lost none of its fighting spirit and goes through battle manoeuvers with extraordinary "pep." The christening of the "Sunrise," a seaplane built for trans-Atlantic flights, and an animated cartoon by Hy Mayer complete the release.

Essanay-Chaplins Book Steadily

Bookings are reported by the George Kleine System to be coming in with unusual rapidity for the four Essanay-Chaplin releases, which include "Shanghaied," "A Night in the Show," "The Bank" and "Police." First-run houses in the larger cities throughout the United States have been seeking early release dates, it is said. These include such theatres as the Rialto and the Rivoli in New York and the Loew Circuit. Essanay is busy getting out an extra number of new prints to meet the exceptional demand.

This is the first showing of the new prints on these pictures, which were first screened more than three years ago.

Billie Burke Feature

Clare Kummer's play, "Good Gracious, Annabelle," which was produced in New York a season or two ago, has been picturized for Paramount presentation with Billie Burke in the stellar role and will be released March 2. The story is said to be romantic in the extreme.

George Melford directed the production and a cast, headed by Herbert Rawlinson as leading man and including Gilbert Douglas, Craufurd Kent, Frank Losee and others, will be seen in Miss Burke's support.

J. A. Berst Is Host on West Coast

President of United Picture Theatres Entertains Film Folks at Dinner in Los Angeles

WHAT is said to be one of the biggest social events in Los Angeles motion picture circles for many weeks was the dinner served recently at Hotel Alexandria, with J. A. Berst, president of United Picture Theatres, Inc., as host. A number of well known artists and others prominent in the Los Angeles film colony were present.

The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Bryant Washburn, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Roach, Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Hamilton, Miss Kitty Gordon, Miss Vera Beresford, Miss Winifred Kingston, Miss Juanita Hansen, Miss Edwards, Miss Mosquigny, Dustin Farnum, Jack Wilson, Louis G. Gasnier, Sydney Cohen, Milton M. Goldsmith, and others.

The dinner was in the nature of a farewell social event in honor of Milton M. Goldsmith, treasurer of United Picture Theatres, Inc., who immediately after the close of the social function left for New York City.

Just before his departure Mr. Goldsmith in an interview said: "The completion of the deal between the United, World and Peerless was one of the accomplishments of our present trip to the Coast and it is something that we are all proud of. It is the first real agreement in the film business, notwithstanding rumors of various mergers that arise from time to time.

"It was a merger of brains and resources, the Peerless Company having the largest and best equipped studio in the East, with easy access to New York City, presented to United an opportunity for production purposes, which Mr. Berst was quick to avail himself of.

"Under the conditions of the new arrangements, the United will make the greatest special features under its own auspices, with its own directors and its own stars, using Peerless facilities. The scenarios will be from its own scenario department, which ranks as high as any in the business.

"We are proud of the heads of our eastern and western departments. Both are in most capable hands. The scenarios for the first United pictures have received praise for their technique from the trade, and the unbounded approval of the public, which has been breaking box office records everywhere in a wild stampede to see the first United productions.

"The World's end of the agreement is purely physical. The efficient distribution centers of the World will take care of the physical distribution of the United pictures, acting as a sort of public carrier for the reels and advertising matter and, in this respect, will guarantee to the users of United service prompt deliveries and careful inspection of the film."

Manager of Biograph Back from Service

H. H. Brenner, until recently a lieutenant in Uncle Sam's army, Chemical Warfare Service, is back at his desk at the Biograph studio, supervising the business of this modern motion picture plant. Mr. Brenner is general manager of the Biograph and has been in that capacity since the old days when the Biograph product was turned out under the direction of D. W. Griffith. For nearly a year Mr. Brenner was assisting Uncle Sam in experimentations and the tests of the deadly gases that played such an important part in the war, and he was one of the experts attached to this branch of the service, known as the Chemical Warfare Service.

Selznicks Off for West

Myron Selznick is in Los Angeles as president of the Selznick Pictures Corporation, supervising the production of the first Selznick picture, in which Olive Thomas is starred, "Upstairs and Down."

Howard Selznick is assisting his brother. And now Mr. and Mrs. Lewis J. Selznick, accompanied by their youngest son, David Selznick, left New York for a short stay in Pittsburgh from whence they will go to Chicago where Lewis Selznick will see his wife and son off for an indefinite stay with the other two sons in Los Angeles.

Lewis J. Selznick expects to join the family on the West Coast in April.

Exploitation Aids Prepared for Exhibitors

MESSRS. SAWYER AND LUBIN are firm believers in real service to the exhibitor. They are of the opinion that every possible aid in the way of exploitation and advertising matter should accompany their special productions which goes to the exhibitor in order that the showmen may give productions of real bigness the presentation they deserve.

They also are of the belief that the matter of appropriate musical settings has been madly overlooked by many producers, who feel that after they have supplied the exhibitor with a full line of advertising service their obligations are fulfilled. In speaking of effective and appropriate musical scores for feature productions recently Herbert Lubin had the following to say:

"In producing the Ralph Ince attraction which will inaugurate a series of special vehicles presenting E. K. Lincoln as star we have been particularly careful not to overlook the value of effective musical settings. I believe that in this respect we have introduced an innovation in the matter of preparation and forethought.

"Before the story of the first S-L feature was placed in production by Mr. Ince, the scenario was painstakingly gone over by Mr. Ince, myself and a well-known composer with the view in mind of seeing whether several special points in the film could be so directed by Mr. Ince as to fit in exactly with the ideas of the composer.

"This plan has worked out admirably, particularly in connection with several of the big physical punches which dominate the E. K. Lincoln vehicle. The composer has had the advantage of suggesting certain action be incorporated in the picture so as to secure impressive effects at the proper points. It is our intention to help exhibitors in the proper presentation of the film by supplying an adequate and appropriate musical setting."

Changes in Ohio

Hamilton, Ohio, is to have a new theatre, as the Photoplay Company, of that city, has been reorganized. This company now controls three other playhouses in that city.

The Colonial theatre, Cincinnati, will be remodeled in the near future. The improvements, costing $10,000, have just been authorized.

Says That Timely Features Draw the Best

IN comparing the old methods of showmanship with present day exhibiting a World official declared that during the evolution the astute manager kept his ear close to the ground and heard the murmur of disapproval of such pictures as had been produced with no definite aim other than to photograph five or six thousand feet of subjects many of which had no appeal to the general public patronizing the motion picture theatre.

Now and then along would come a picture that was closely associated with current events and capacity houses greeted such features. Managers saw the box office value of these sort of subjects and hungered for more.

"World Pictures in producing features also learned the value of photo plays of this type and produced 'Rasputin' and other equally valuable money getters," he continued. "Thus when McClure Pictures produced "What Shall We Do with Him?" a picture of current events, and not a war picture they struck another gold mine for the exhibitor. Here is a feature that the subject matter of which is being discussed every day in every newspaper in the world.

"Column after column is being devoted to the proceedings of the Peace Congress in Paris. 'What Shall We Do with Him?' is the burning subject of the hour. What part shall America play in establishing permanent peace and prosperity, or in fact the same question can be asked of any of the nations represented at this congress.

"In pictorial form these grave questions are presented to the public in 'What Shall We Do with Him?' and it is for the public to decide just what course we shall pursue in settling our part of the controversy. The picture is educational in the sense that it makes us think very deeply on the problems facing us.

"It is entertaining because it amuses, grips, and thrills. It has box-office possibilities of enormous proportions because it is well produced, well cast and wonderfully photographed, and hooked up with the news of the minute."

Bookings Heavy on Harry Rapf Film

The home office of the Independent Sales Corporation, in compiling the bookings on Harry Rapf's feature, "Wanted For Murder," in which Elaine Hammerstein is starred, finds that every territory has exceeded its quota by over fifty per cent.

When "Wanted For Murder" was first put on the market after its run at the Broadway theatre, and twenty-six of the Marcus Loew's New York theatres, Sales Manager Card, realizing that this picture would clean up for the exhibitors, not alone on its advertising possibilities, but on its merit and timeliness, put his sales managers on their mettle by allotting each territory a quota to be reached by a specified date.

With the enthusiasm "Wanted For Murder" naturally aroused by its many selling points, and the spirit of the "Independent" back of them, the result has been that more playing dates have piled up on this special of the Independent than they anticipated, and a number of extra prints are being put through the laboratory to meet the demand.

This is deemed a record very unusual in intensive film distribution.

"Wanted for Murder" Scores in Buffalo

Another evidence of the drawing power of the sensational advertising on Harry Rapf's special production, "Wanted For Murder," starring Elaine Hammerstein, is cleverly expressed in a telegram received by Frank Hall, president of the Independent Sales Corporation, which company is marketing "Wanted For Murder," from the manager of the Lyric theatre, Buffalo, which read as follows:

"Frank Hall,
"Independent Sales Corp.,
"130 West 46th Street,
"New York.

"'Wanted For Murder' opened to biggest business in history of Lyric. Has increased every day since. Unable to take care of crowds. S. R. O. all day long. Sending you photo of largest crowd ever seen entering Lyric. Looks like a rush hour on the New York Subway.

"Lyric, Buffalo."

Jack Rose, the well known cameraman

F. S. Jones, as Abraham Lincoln at the Riveria theatre February 12, in Chicago. The theatre is operated by Balaban and Katz

Capt. Robert Warwick in "Secret Service"

UNDER the auspices of Famous Players-Lasky, Captain Robert Warwick will appear in "Secret Service," the William Gillette play, screen rights of which has just been acquired.

The picture will be a Paramount-Artcraft Special, with a carefully selected cast of notable screen players, with elaborate settings and general investiture, and directed, it is promised, by one of the most experienced and capable producers in the photoplay world.

Captain Warwick, who before entering military life was one of the foremost motion picture stars in America, has just returned to this country from a year's service in France, where he was on the staff of General Pershing.

According to report, he has been besieged by both theatrical and motion picture producers with offers of engagements ever since his arrival in New York, and the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation very naturally considers his signing as a feather in its cap.

Towering more than six feet in height, with splendid physique, his commanding presence, as well as his histrionic talent, is said to have made him one of the most popular of stage leading men when he appeared in support of Mrs. Leslie Carter, Virginia Harned, Mary Mannering and other foremost actresses.

As a motion picture star, among his noteworthy vehicles were "The Man of the Hour," "The Argyle Case," "A Modern Othello," "The Accidental Honeymoon," and others.

During the past seventeen months he has been in the service of his country, having attended the second Plattsburg camp and the War College in Washington before going abroad, where he has been acting as one of General Pershing's liaison officers.

"Secret Service," known as one of the greatest successes in the history of the stage, was first produced in this country in 1898.

William L. Sherrill to Produce in West

To establish his West Coast organization for the production of the twenty-six two-reel Westerns in which Texas Guinan is to be starred, William L. Sherrill, President of the Frohman Amusement Corporation, left for Los Angeles.

The entire staff has been selected, and also left for the West Coast.

Six of these stories have been purchased and put into scenario or continuity form. The working titles of these are: "The Sea Wolf," "South of Santa Fe," "Malamute Meg," "Dead Man's Hand," "Down Roseta Way," "Little Miss Deputy."

"After the War" Is a Universal Special Featuring Grace Cunard

Vitagraph Starts New Serial on Coast

After several delays and a complete eleventh-hour shifting of locale, due to the necessity of obtaining extremely heavy snows in the regions sought as a background for the action, work has been started on Vitagraph's new double-starred serial in Truckee, California. The Antonio Moreno-Carol Holloway company has just reached there and ensconced itself for a two months' tussle with the elements and the script, and they had a strenuous time in reaching the wild region of their self-imposed sequestration.

As may be inferred from the above, the new serial is a "snow" picture, and its title is "Perils of Thunder Mountain." Certainly the trip to get to the site of the filming in itself offered a foretaste of these perils, according to the word sent back to Los Angeles by the party on reaching Truckee. Forest roads and mountain paths choked with snow, avalanches crashing down with their dead weight of packed snows, ice-coated Lake Tahoe dangerously heaving and creaking under the weight of passing sleds—such were the initial and unsought perils that served as a prelude to the dangers later to be wooed for the sake of screen thrills.

The new serial, like the last one by this intrepid team of thrill-makers, is by Albert E. Smith and Cyrus Townsend Brady. They are also the authors of the famous William Duncan series of chapter plays.

To Produce in Montreal

A call has been issued for types for a cast of seventy people for a moving picture to be produced in Montreal, Quebec. Announcement is made that "No salaries will be paid to those taking part in this first picture, but local talent will be given every encouragement."

It is understood that Merrick R. Nutting of Montreal is interested in the venture and that a Pathe director and cameraman will look after various arrangements.

Ottawa Gets I. A. T. S. E. Convention

The International Association of Theatrical Stage Employes will hold its annual convention at Ottawa, Canada, during the week starting Monday, May 26, according to an announcement by Charles C. Shay, International President, on the occasion of a preliminary visit to the Canadian capital on February 12. Between 350 and 400 delegates are expected to attend the conference from all parts of the continent, and it is interesting to note that the Canadian Parliament will also be in session at the same time.

Ottawa projection machine operators have also decided to hold a First Annual Masquerade Ball on Thursday, February 27, as a preliminary to the big convention. The program will include a grand march, cabaret and jazz band selections. The Ottawa union is Local No. 257. The ball is to be held in the Winter Garden, Ottawa.

Calgary Theatre Reduces Admission

Under the heading of "Bringing the Photoplay Theatre Within the Reach of All," the Liberty theatre, Calgary, Alberta, has announced that it has decided to reduce its admission charge. The argument is used that it costs every person a considerable sum for bare necessities of life and that the theatre management has decided to bring the moving picture form of entertainment within the reach of more people.

The general admission at the Liberty theatre had been 25 cents with a war tax of 2½ cents additional. The admission has been reduced to 20 cents and this amount calls for only a one-cent war tax, making 21 cents altogether. Assurance is given that the quality of shows will be maintained. The Liberty is presenting Goldwyn, Metro, Universal and Paramount Artcraft releases.

Canadians Ask Repeal of Reel Tax

A large delegation of exhibitors, representing every Province of Canada, will wait upon the Canadian Parliament at Ottawa, Ontario, during its coming session, to ask for the repeal of the reel tax, according to an announcement by Secretary Thomas Scott of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Protective Association of Ontario, whose office is at Toronto. Arrangements have already been made for deputations from Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba, and other Provinces are expected to fall in line. The tax of 15 cents per reel per day has worked a distinct hardship upon the exhibitors, particularly the small theatre men.

Secretary Scott declares that members of Parliament throughout the Dominion have been approached individually in the matter and many of them have promised to use their influence. He holds out strong hope of securing relief.

Motion Pictures for Toronto Schools

The Management Committee of the Board of Education, Toronto, has decided to equip all schools of the city with dark blinds so that various rooms may be turned into moving picture theatres for "matinee performances."

No further information was divulged at the meeting with the exception that it was agreed to cover the expense of moving picture "lectures" by charging pupils a one-cent admission fee for the special classes.

Drs. Noble and Brown, two members of the committee, were particularly enthusiastic about the proposition and dwelt at length on the educational possibilities of animated pictures.

Atlas Educational Film Company dinner in Chicago to employees

George J. Schaefer, exchange manager for World Film in New York

Kinograms Shows Many Varied Subjects

World Film exchanges in distributing Number 5 of the new twice a week Kinograms, released February 15, describe the many subjects as follows:

Hold Winter Carnival for Wounded—Convalescent soldiers at Ft. Snelling, St. Paul, see fancy skating, take part in outdoor games and have thrilling rides on a big toboggan slide.

Skate for Western Championship—Thousands of spectators who line pond in Washington Park, Chicago, while skaters battle for titles, see backwards high jump record broken.

He Is Ready to Fly Across the Atlantic—Captain Burnstedt, who has been working for months on a new seaplane in which to attempt an air trip to Europe, gets the machine afloat at Bayonne, N. J., and it is christened "Sunrise."

Help Clear Away Wreckage of War—American soldiers in Italy, after the end of fighting, help their allies begin the work of reconstruction in the battle swept regions.

Movie Stars Form Kino Constellation—In Mary Pickford's Los Angeles studio Miss Pickford, Charlie Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and David W. Griffith meet and sign agreement for their new organization. William G. McAdoo, who has been retained as general counsel for the new organization, poses for Kinograms.

Great Sale of Fur Brings in $9,000,000—St. Louis, now the greatest fur market in the world, attracts buyers from all parts of the globe to pick up little trifles like $3,000 collars.

Ty Cobb Breaks Into the Movies—Famous baseball star allows Kinograms' staff cameraman to accompany him on hunting trip in Georgia and poses for intimate pictures.

Disclose Secrets of Submarine War—Italian government permits for first time publication of motion pictures of the use of great steel nets in hunting U-boats. The scenes made during an actual sea battle with one of the under-sea raiders.

Coming Program Offerings

Paramount-Artcrafts Announced for March

FOUR Artcraft productions and eleven bearing the Paramount trademark are included in the list of releases by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation for the month of March, announcement of which has just been made by Walter E. Greene, vice-president in charge of distribution.

Scheduled for Paramount presentation on March 2 is "Alias Mike Moran," starring Wallace Reid. This is Will M. Ritchey's adaptation of Frederick Orin Bartlett's Saturday Evening Post story, "Open Sesame."

Clare Kummer's romantic comedy, "Good Gracious, Annabelle," adapted for Paramount and produced under George Melford's direction with Billie Burke as the star, is released the same day, as is also "Puppy Love," in which the youngest Paramount star, Lila Lee, will be seen.

Fred Stone in "Johnny Get Your Gun," an adaptation of Edmund Lawrence Burke's stage play in which Louis Bennison was seen for many months on Broadway, is an Artcraft release of March 9.

Elsie Ferguson in "The Marriage Price," an adaptation by Eve Unsell of Griswold's society story, "For Sale," is also an Artcraft release of the 9th. In this production Miss Ferguson was directed by Emile Chautard. On the same day Bryant Washburn returns to the Paramount schedule in "Poor Boob."

Marguerite Clark in "Three Men and a Girl," directed by Marshall Neilan, is released via Paramount March 16.

On the same date Thomas H. Ince presents Dorothy Dalton in her newest Paramount picture, "Extravagance."

Also on the 16th, Mr. Ince presents William S. Hart in "The Poppy Girl's Husband," an Artcraft picture.

March 23 marks the release of D. W. Griffith's fourth Artcraft picture, "The Girl Who Stayed at Home." This production is in seven reels and promises to be one of the notable releases of the year. In the cast are Robert Harron, Richard Barthelmess, George Fawcett, Adolphe Lestina and other well-known artists.

Two more Paramount pictures supervised by Thomas H. Ince will be released the same day. They are "Partners Three," with Enid Bennett, and "The Sheriff's Son," Charles Ray's newest vehicle.

On the 30th the three releases, all of them Paramount, will be John Barrymore in "The Malefactor," Vivian Martin in "Little Comrade," and Dorothy Gish in her fourth Paramount picture, the title of which is "Peppy Polly" and which was directed by Elmer Clifton.

Seven Dramatic Fox Productions in March

TWO Standards, three Victorys and two Excel brands will represent the seven dramatic productions available at all Fox exchanges in March.

One of the standard Pictures is heralded a super-production, "When Men Desire," which was staged by J. Gordon Edwards. The story for this picture was written by E. Lloyd Sheldon and J. Searle Dawley, and scenario by Adrian Johnson.

The other Standard Picture is "Thou Shalt Not," featuring Evelyn Nesbit. It is described as "the story of a girl who came back." The scenario is by Charles J. Brabin, who also directed.

March will see another picture starring Gladys Brockwell entitled, "The Forbidden Room." It was directed by Lynn F. Reynolds, and the story was written by W. S. VanDyke.

George Walsh will have a picture released next month. It is "Never Say Quit," which the William Fox athletic thunderbolt recently finished at Miami, Fla., under the direction of Edward Dillon. The story was written by Raymond L. Schrock, and tells of the misadventures of a young man who was afflicted with an extremely busy jinx.

Another Tom Mix play is also carded. This is "Fighting for Gold," which, it is stated by William Fox officials, is one of the fastest and best pictures ever made by Mix. It is an adaptation of the novel, "The Highgrader," written by William McLeod Raine, and was staged by Edward J. LeSaint from the scenario of Charles Kenyon.

In her March release, "The Unkissed Bride," Peggy Hyland will be seen as a girl of the Ozark Mountains. It was directed by Lynn F. Reynolds.

"Gambling in Souls" is the title of Madlaine Traverse's March picture, which is declared to be even more powerful and stirring than its title suggests.

J. Gordon Edwards, who will direct William Farnum in Wm. Fox productions

Pearl White is here surrounded by some of the cast of "The Lightning Raider," Pathe serial which is classed as an unusual winner

Baby Marie Osborne Heads Pathe Program

PATHE program for the week of February 23 is headed by Baby Marie Osborne in "The Old Maid's Baby." The little star plays the part of a child of the circus, and is one of the actors in the scene of a spectacular balloon ascension, and the terrible accident in mid-air which makes her an orphan. It is a five-reel Pathe Program Feature, written by Agnes C. Johnston and directed by William Bertram.

One of the Harold Lloyd comedies, said to be one of the timeliest, from a national point of view, is called "On the Fire," which is slated as a real laugh-making, exuberant satire on the way millions of Americans take their substance. It is called a "Hoover Halo," in which Mr. Lloyd hurls hypothetical hot ones at Herbert.

"The Cave of Dread" is the title of the eighth episode of "The Lightning Raider," in which Pearl White, staggering from the underground terror has an escape from a pool of crocodiles. This is said to be just one of the thrills in this episode.

Betty Compson, out in the great West, with George Larkin her hero, goes through some pictorially perilous stunts in the fourth episode of the Diando Serial "The Terror of the Range." This episode is called "The Midnight Raid."

"Eternal Magdalene" Released Easter Week

A PICTURIZATION of Robert H. McLaughlin's stage play, "The Eternal Magdalene," is announced for release by Goldwyn for Easter week, April 20.

Goldwyn reports that three months of remarkable advertising, both in the trade journals and through publicity across the entire country will herald this attraction.

Few plays have ever attracted such attention at the time of production or prompted such spirited bidding between rival theatrical firms as did "The Eternal Magdalene," now made to reach via the screen the millions who are beyond the reach of the theatre.

Based on a theme that touches almost every man, woman and child in the world, "The Eternal Magdalene" is said to contain the dual elements of a powerful human drama and a great spectacle. It is a modern story of the present moment, with scenes laid in a typical American town enacted by people who are familiar participants in the life of every community.

Goldwyn's production of this big stage success has been shaped to show the universality of the Magdalene; her contact with the lives of everyone; the dangers that arise from hounding her from pillar to post like a hunted animal and the means by which she can be brought back to society.

For months Goldwyn has held this big production in reserve to release it at that season of the year when its story would most quickly and directly reach the hearts of the American people.

Dozens of exhibitors, knowing the story had been completed, have sought earlier playing dates and are now under contract to make "The Eternal Magdalene" the first great Easter special ever released in America.

Two Special Attractions for March

Universal announces two Special Attractions for the month of March. The first is "The Light of Victory," featuring Monroe Salisbury. This is a photodrama adapted from a story by George C. Hale, and deals with an Annapolis graduate's sense of duty to his country.

Betty Compson, Bob Emonds, Andrew Robson and Fred Kelsey support Mr. Salisbury.

"A Fight for Love" is the second Special Attraction offered by Universal in March, and stars Harry Carey. It was adapted from a story entitled "Hell's Neck," by Eugene B. Lewis.

Universal Schedules Six Comedies

Six one and two-reel comedies are on the Universal schedule for the weeks of February 24 and March 3. The L-Ko for February 24 is entitled "Lions and Ladies" and features Babe Hardy, Harry Mann and Rose Gore, and, in addition, a number of lions, apes and other animals from the Universal zoo. The Nestor release for February 24 is "The Movie Queen," which features Jane Bernoudy and deals with the rise to stardom of a "movie find." Lyons-Moran have contributed a laughable reel entitled "Mixed Tales" to the February 24 schedule.

The week of March 3 will bring an L-Ko, "Ragtime Romance," which features Helen Lynch, Dick Smith and Bobbie Dunn, a Nestor entitled "A Poor Prune," which features Sammie Burns and the Lyons-Moran comedy for the same week is entitled "Oh, Ethel." Mildred Moore, the new leading woman for the two funsters, is said to have her best part to date in this release.

The comedy schedule for March is as yet incomplete but it is expected that Alice Howell's latest Century comedy, "Society Stuff," will be released on March 12.

New Stone Comedy Is Announced

Fred Stone, star of Artcraft pictures and of many stage productions of the musical comedy type, will be next seen on the screen in a film version of "Johnny Get Your Gun," the stage comedy in which Louis Bennison appeared and which ran for a season in New York. The picture has been scheduled for Artcraft release March 9.

"Johnny Get Your Gun," which was written by Edmund Burke, with scenario by Gardner Hunting, opens in the "camp" of a film company but shifts to a Palm Beach home.

The Arrow Film Corporation Is Handling the Art-O-Craft Film Company Picture, "Miss Arizona"

Special Service Section on

Dorothy Gish in "Boots"

IF you are going to show Dorothy Gish in "Boots" at your theatre we would very strongly urge you to put emphasis on two points: Personality of the star and the comedy element of the picture. Many exhibitors report the increasing popularity of Miss Gish among their patrons, and where this is true you should make the most of it.

There is a lot of action in the picture which is laid against the background of the Bolshevik activities immediately following the armistice and during the visit of President Wilson to England. But still the picture is filled with laughs and we believe that this is the element of it that will draw the crowds and in turn cause valuable word-of-mouth advertising.

In other words you can make both of these elements stand out by the use of cuts in your advertising, either in the form supplied by the producers or by making your own from the stills on the production. This use of pictures will bring out the personality of the star and suggest the comedy. Then in smaller lines you can refer to the thrills and give an idea of the story. But don't get sensational; this picture will pull better from the other angle.

LIGHTER SETTING

Happiness Wants to Be Featured Through This One

ELSEWHERE we have put emphasis on the sunshine in this picture and the sunshiny nature of the star. All of your presentation of this picture should be kept in the same spirit. You have a chance here to appeal all through the show to the desire of the people for clean, good humor.

The overture here should be something with a lot of sparkle and light to it, keeping away from the bass notes and the heavy stuff. If you use vocal numbers, employ love songs. Some of the old fashioned sort would strongly recommend themselves, for though the plot of the picture is distinctly laid in Today there is something in the sweetness and simplicity of the old-time girl represented in the spirit of Dorothy Gish in this one.

DOROTHY GISH is employed as the "Boots" at King's Inn, London. One of her duties is to clean the shoes of the lodgers, and her chief amusement is to read highly romantic love stories, though her own experiences have been confined to the printed page. This little slavey is revealed to us just at the time of President Wilson's visit to England and then we are told that Scotland Yard has learned of a plot of the Bolsheviki to blow up the American president, King George and the others who are to attend a certain event.

Headed by Mme. de Valdee, a beautiful woman and a fanatic, the band have discovered a series of underground passages that lead to the cellar of the meeting place of the rulers. But the entrance to this is through the inn and so, under the guise of being a sculptress, the woman goes there to live while the others remain in other parts of the city at work on the infernal machine. But Everett White, one of the Scotland Yard force, has shadowed the woman and now he, posing as a student, goes to live at the same place.

Boots comes to hate the woman guest who forces her to feed her pet mice and heaps indignities upon her, but the romantic little girl falls deeply in love with White and this affords an opportunity for a great deal of the heart comedy. One afternoon while she is showing him her war garden on the roof she is led by her romance to kiss him on the cheek. At first White was merely amused by the little girl and when he saw how serious a turn it has taken with her he told her that there must be an end to it.

But he did not figure on falling in love with her himself, and this he did, and so one day when she went out to walk alone he followed her and told her of his love.

IN the meantime the woman plotter had chiseled her way through the walls of the tavern room and had made her way to the secret passageway, but just at that moment the infernal machine which was being sent her hidden in a basket of daisies blew up and killed the woman who was carrying it, and there had to be delay while another one was manufactured.

Every other means of learning her secret having been exhausted, White started in to make love to Mme. de Valdee, and just while Boots was at the height of her happiness she then discovered the woman she hated in the arms of the man she loved. Of course she didn't understand, but she decided that her romance was at an end and so she gathered up all her love stories and took them to the cellar to bury them where she had obtained the soil for her war garden.

At left Scotland Yard man resorts to love making to win the Bolshevik's secret, much to the anger of "Boots," who in the center is admiring her sweetheart's shoes, and at the right the lovers

At right "Boots" discovers the infernal machine, and at left is her fight with Mme. de Valdee, who is also shown in the center

Just at that moment the woman and one of her companions, a former diplomat, have gone to the underground passage to place the bomb, this time sent in a basket of apples which Boots has treated with utter recklessness, much to the terror of the chief of the band. At the final moment the former diplomat blanches at the horror of wholesale murder and tried to stop the woman and destroy the infernal machine. Then the woman shoots him down and Boots hears these shots and rushes in just in time to discover the bomb. There ensues a terrible fight between the girl and woman—one of the most unique ones that has ever been seen on the screen. Boots is able to overcome her just in time to summon the authorities from the meeting place of the rulers, secure the arrest of the plotters and win happiness with the man she loves.

AS we have already observed, we would stay away with the sensation in this exploitation. You may be tempted to run in a line, "Attempt to kill President Wilson" or something of the sort. There are shots of film shown in this picture and you would, in a sense, be justified in saying that this is a part of the story. But it is only a minor feature of the picture, a mere setting, and you are losing the appealing punch by putting this over too strong.

This is distinctly an after the war picture, but that doesn't mean that the war has anything important to do with it except to give the background. There is one line that you might use, which is suggestive of the story without going too far:

"While Bootsie was trying to raise a war garden someone came along and stopped the war. But that didn't keep her romance from budding there, and although the frost of jealousy set it back, the great love soon burst into full bloom."

Here's another suggestive phrase without getting the violent element overdone:

"Boots didn't know that the supposed sculptress was the most dangerous woman in all Europe, an anarchistic enemy of society, but she did know that she had seen her in the arms of the man she loved. And so when Boots went to bury romance in the cellar she unearthed a plot that would have shaken the world. How Boots fought this woman and won—won everything including a perfect love is something you must see for yourself."

FOR YOUR AID

List of Ready Prepared Matter Available For You

FOR the convenience of exhibitors who use this picture we give below the material available in advance:

Paper includes two one-sheets, two 3-sheets, a 6-sheet and a rotogravure one-sheet. There are eight 8 by 10 blanks and whites, 8 11 by 14 sepias, 2 22 by 28 sepia and 8 by 10 photos of the star.

Cuts and mats on the production include five one-columns, three 2-columns and two 3-columns while there are five one-column, three two-column and two 3-column stock cuts on the star which can also be used with later pictures in which Miss Gish appears.

In addition there are slides and a music cue.

IN this picture you have a title that will attract attention. It is not sensational, but it is suggestive of romance, and we would play this for all that it is worth. All of the ready prepared advertising features Dorothy Gish in connection with the shoes, and after you have added some selling lines you will get plenty of attention to these displays. Here is one:

"This little slavey fell in love with the student who came to live in the inn where she worked. She found that his shoes were affinities for hers. And she hated those of the other woman—and more than ever when he saw the other woman in the arms of the man she loved. Maybe it's a pun, but you will thrill with the way that the slavey tracked down the lady villain, became a heroine, and above everything else became the bride of the man she loved."

Then here is one that brings in a hint of the humor:

"When she wasn't shining the shoes of the guests in the little English tavern, Boots poured over romantic love stories, and they were mighty serious and thrilling things to her. And she had her serious moments too, but the whimsical humor that Dorothy Gish puts into them brings you laughs—laughs that have a tug at the heart strings. You thrill and battle with her, but there's a smile all the time, and a big, broad grin when you see her happiness in the end."

YOU cannot beat the promise of thrills and laughs, and this story alternates with them. Here is another case where we would not give the plot away in advance.

We'd keep the war out of this one, but here is a line that you might use to bring it right up to day.

"'Boots' knew a lot about romance from the books she read, but she was too busy with love stories to read the newspapers and she probably thought that Bolshevik was a new brand of cheese. Yet it was her great love that thwarted one of the greatest plots that fiction has ever shown. You'll keep your hands gripped on the arms of your chair, partly in suspense and partly to steady yourself as you rock with laughter. Love, laughter—and heroism: what more is there in the ideal photoplay?"

At left scene where "Boots" discovers the secret passage way; in the center President Wilson at the London meeting, and at the right one of the heart throbs

Popularity of Star Should Be Played Very Strong

POPULARITY of a star in a particular section depends largely on the way that the exhibitor treats her in his exploitation. This seems too much of a truism to deserve comment, but it remains a fact that most exhibitors want merely to regard the player as one to put over unusually big business without doing anything themselves to capitalize and increase this popularity.

Dorothy Gish is only twenty years old, but she has been identified with the stage and screen since the age of sixteen. She began her screen appearance with the old Biograph days, her first picture being "The Mountain Rat." There she was under the direction of D. W. Griffith and she has spent the greater part of her life with him. When Griffith went to Reliance-Majestic she and her sister Lillian went along. Then when the great director organized Fine Arts as part of the Triangle corporation she again followed him and appeared in many of the biggest productions.

For a little while after this she dropped from pictures only to make a big comeback in "Hearts of the World," where she appeared as "The Little Disturber." Her most recent pictures have been "Battling Jane," "The Hun Within," and "The Hope Chest." If they have scored in your section we would certainly refer to them and to her part in "Hearts of the World."

USE cuts of the star in all of your advertising and as frequently as possible in the text pages of your newspaper. We have reproduced on these pages some of the most striking of the stills and for exhibitors who design their own advertising we would suggest that such of those that suggest the romance element be used. This is a case where you should play the picture of the star as strongly as possible. Of course a small cut is better than no cut at all, but to double the space that you ordinarily use and to give a considerable part of this to the player is going to increase your business unless there is something wrong in your community.

Use a few lines of selling talk directly on the star. Recall to your readers what she has done and then add to this the selling talk on the pitcure along the lines we have already suggested and you are apt to get the fullest results from the star's pulling power and the character of the role she has in this picture. We would certainly refer to the most recent of her pictures, because they have shown her in a distinctly different line of parts—with humor always dominant. And in these after the war days we believe that the experience of most exhibitors is that their audiences want to laugh.

HERE are some lines that refer more directly to the star:

"When you see the name of Dorothy Gish featured as the star, you know that it is bound to be a happy picture. Miss Gish is too sunshiny, too tomboyish, too heart-appealing to be cast in any other sort. As the little girl who hungered for love—and found it—she will delight, but with it she'll make you thrill a lot and laugh a lot more. To miss 'Boots' is to skip a page of sunshine in Life's Book."

"Dorothy Gish was 'The Little Disturber' in 'Hearts of the World,' but she was the Little Charmer at the same time and she will delight you all the more as the little English slavey who finds her only happiness in romantic novels until a great big romance comes to her and she concludes it with as heroic an act as was ever written in fiction. If you've admired Dorothy before you will simply love her in 'Boots.'"

"Of course, now and then you like to come to the motion picture theatre and weep with the heroine and help solve her problems. But when Dorothy Gish is in a picture you go expecting you will have a lot of fun. You know that Dorothy is one of the real sunshine girls of the photoplay and you will find her that way here. We believe that you will say that the part of 'Boots' is the best thing that she has ever done."

Striking three-column cut for advertising

WE would play pictures of Miss Gish strong in the lobby. In fact this is the very best setting that you can have, for her personality will pull in more people than anything else. From the six-sheet you can get striking cut-outs of her hold up and admiring one of her sweetheart's shoes. We would rather use these liberally than to pile up a lot of shoes in the lobby or anything of that sort. In fact, we would avoid anything of the freakish in any lobby display here. The cut-outs that are suggested will also keep the mystery element strong.

You will probably be able to get the cooperation of shoe stores with this one by using the same cut-out in the windows. The merchant could use a card reading something like this:

"If the guests as King's Inn has worn our shoes the little slave would have admired them all instead of just those of the man she loved. If you don't know how much shoes count in a person's life you'd better not miss 'Boots' at the Empire theatre."

Surroundings of this bill can be as varied as you desire to make them, but it would probably be a good thing to make it an all comedy picture. You might use a scenic of England in this.

This picture is distinctly appropriate just at this time and news pictures of President Wilson abroad will be of unusual interest in connection with "Boots."

Miss Beranger Discusses "Happy" Scenarios

CLARA BERANGER, one of the better known and most successful scenario writers in the industry, and whose work has been highly praised by heads of the various producing organizations, is thought to have "hit the nail squarely on the head" last week in an interview when she championed the "child star" or "glad" story.

"There has been a lot of protest lately against the 'glad' story that depends upon charm and heart interest rather than on tense dramatic action for its success," said Miss Beranger. "For the most part," continued the brilliant writer, "these protests have come from men who forget that there are as many women and children who go to see motion pictures as there are men, and these women and children like the clean, appealing heart-throb story as much as the men like the strong, virile man's story with its fights and red blood.

"Is it not logical to cater to the desires of the women and children in motion pictures as in other things? Naturally, we must have all sorts of film plays, but it is my belief the man's play alone must not predominate. The taste of the women and children does not always run to flights and tense situations, and often a simple, glad story relieved by humor and cute kiddie comedy sprinkled with pathos will get over with the women much more than the 'punch' story. And I might add that it will get over with the men, too. In the matter of pleasing the great public, if it isn't 'women and children first,' at least let it be women and children sometimes.

Clara Beranger, the well known scenario writer

"The producers have shown great wisdom in producing, and are realizing more and more the necessity of the happy, charming, please-the-women-and-children story. The average exhibitor welcomes this sort of entertainment on his program, and profits by it."

Long Booking Contract for First National

WHAT First National officials describe as one of the biggest film deals ever negotiated in Louisville was made when I. Libson contracted on behalf of the Strand theatre, Louisville, for all the First National Exhibitors Circuit productions released in 1919 and for all the pictures of the stars beyond 1919.

The Strand, in addition to the first run showing of the eight Chaplin comedies, secures the exhibition rights to the six productions to be made by the Anita Stewart Company, six by Mary Pickford, sixteen by Norma Talmadge and eight by Jack Pickford.

"Virtuous Wives" was shown at the Strand the entire week of January 26. In booking this picture for a week the Strand broke away from its former policy of not having week runs. He also made a similar contract for his five theatres in Cincinnati and for his theatre in Columbus and his house in Dayton.

Mr. Libson is associated with the B. F. Keith interests in the control of the Strand and supervises the bookings for the Mary Anderson in summer. Expressing his views on the pictures of real value and true features, he said:

"My experience has caused me to buy pictures for quality and I would rather pay a big price than a cheap price any day. There is a peculiar feature about good pictures, I have discovered. That is that a good picture can be 'sensed.'

"The first advertisements in the trade papers tell me whether a picture is 'good,' and seldom have I found it necessary to revise this first impression. In fact it is true so often it can be reckoned upon as infallible.

"Without having seen 'Virtuous Wives' I felt, 'Here is a truly great picture. It is one that will make the strongest appeal to the public. Rather than exhibit a picture that hasn't this appeal I would shelve it and pay the price not to give it to the public."

Theda Bara Answers the Censors

The William Fox publicity offices this week announced that Theda Bara, appreciating the peril which faces motion pictures in the efforts of various state censorship boards further to extend their powers, has taken up the cudgels in defense of her characterization of Salome, in reply to recent criticism visited upon her and the picture by the reviewing committee of St. Louis. Miss Bara, who is in Miami, Fla., filming scenes for a South Sea Island super-production, declares that the criticism of the St. Louis censors is only "another case of misunderstanding and lack of comprehension."

Hugh Thompson Engaged

Hugh Thompson has been added to the cast that will be seen in Florence Reed's next United Picture Theatres, Inc., screen play.

Universal Promotes Samuel Zierler

Samuel Zierler, one of the best known and most popular exchangemen in the East, has been promoted general sales manager of the "Big U" film exchange, New York City, according to reports emanating from Universal headquarters.

Mr. Zierler has been in the employ of Universal for over six years, beginning his film activities with the "Big U" as booker at the old Fourteenth street exchange. Later he was transferred to the Universal's Twenty-third street exchange, and when the office in the Mecca building was open was made supervisor of both the Twenty-third street and 1600 Broadway exchanges. Several months ago Mr. Zierler was made sales manager for Universal Special Attractions in the New York territory and made such a success of this position that his latest promotion resulted.

Simultaneously with the announcement of Mr. Zierler's promotion comes word from the "Big U" exchange to the effect that a big sales campaign has been begun in the city of New York.

"Common Clay" Goes Into Riviera

Sales Manager Quimby and Branch Manager Rogers, of Pathe, have closed Balaban and Katz's Riviera Theatre in Chicago on "Common Clay" for what Pathe claims is the largest rental ever paid in that city. The picture will show in the Riviera the week of March 2, it is announced.

A special advertising campaign in the Chicago newspapers is planned by Messrs. Balaban and Katz, this to be on a scale new to the city. Full pages will be used in all the papers.

Dot Farley Is Engaged by Universal

Universal announces that it has secured one of the screen's most fascinating comediennes in the person of Dot Farley, who will be seen in a number of L-Ko Comedies.

Miss Farley is now at work on her first two-reel comedy at Universal City. Prior to joining the L-Ko company she was featured in Sunshine Comedies by Pathe Lehrman.

Charles Ray, Presented by Thomas Ince in "The Girl Dodger," Paramount Picture

Fox Branch Office Organizes League

A movement to organize into a Motion Picture Navy League all the film men who have seen service in the navy has been inaugurated in the Pittsburgh office of the Fox Film Corporation. Letters have been sent to all the William Fox film exchanges and to other picture offices asking the cooperation of men who have seen naval service.

The objects of the league is to promote the welfare of the navy and navy men throughout the country.

The organizers include Ensign William Cantwell, a Harvard graduate who was in the aviation branch of the navy. He saw service in France for nine months, and was officially credited with bringing down eight German planes. Mr. Cantwell, who was recently discharged from the navy, is now assistant office manager of the Fox branch at Pittsburgh.

Paul Baron, also connected with the Pittsburgh office, is another leader in the movement. He was a petty officer, stationed at the naval training station at Pelham Bay Park.

Buys One for Priscilla Dean Use

Universal has purchased an original story by Bayard Veiller for Priscilla Dean's next starring vehicle.

The story Mr. Bayard has written for Miss Dean is one of the first the playwright has written directly for the screen. Mr. Veiller is recognized as one of the most successful playwrights of the past decade his "Within the Law" and "The Thirteenth Chair" being amongst the leading stage plays of recent years.

Although the title for the Bayard story which is to serve Miss Dean as a screen vehicle shortly has not been made known it is understood that the story develops around the lives of two crooks, a man and a woman, who find trying to "go straight" a difficult proposition but eventually worth while. Miss Dean is now at work on "Raggedy Ann" under the direction of Tod Browning and it is expected that she will take up the Veiller story immediately after finishing her present drama.

De Mille Film Breaks Some Records

Cecil B. De Mille's Artcraft production, "Don't Change Your Husband," broke all attendance records, Artcraft reports, during the week of its engagement at Grauman's Million Dollar theatre at Los Angeles, and for the first time since the theatre was opened a year ago Mr. Grauman departed from his established policy and held the picture for another week. Moreover, so great was the attendance said to be during the first two days of the second week that the indications were, according to advices from the Coast, that the theatre, tremendous though its seating capacity is would be totally unable to accommodate all those desiring to see the picture.

Samuel Goldwyn Presents Rex Beach's Drama of the Yukon, "The Brand," with Kay Laurell and Russell Simpson

Great Studio Activity Reported

Goldwyn Studios at Culver City, Cal., a Busy Place with Four Productions Nearing Completion

FOUR productions, with Tom Moore, Madge Kennedy, Mae Marsh and Pauline Frederick as the stars, are nearly completed at the Goldwyn studios at Culver City on the West Coast.

These will follow the three current productions: Mabel Normand in "Sis Hopkins," Pauline Frederick in "The Woman on the Index," and Rex Beach's powerful story of Alaska, "The Brand."

Under the direction of Harry Beaumont, Tom Moore is finishing the last scenes of "A Man and His Money," from the popular novel by Frederic S. Isham, the cinema version of which is being produced by arrangement with the Bobbs-Merrill Company, publishers of the book.

It is described as a delightful satire embracing the adventures of a young man whom circumstances force into the ridiculous position of valet to a kennel of toy dogs owned by a rich woman.

Madge Kennedy's newest production is from the pen of Hugo Ballin, Goldwyn's art director. In "Daughter of Mine" Miss Kennedy is given opportunities to prove that she is a dramatic actress as well as a comedienne, though the light comedy element is the main theme.

An unusual feature of the production is that it gives the star and every member of the supporting company the chance to play two separate and distinct roles. It is under the direction of Clarence G. Badger, who has made several of Miss Kennedy's recent Goldwyn successes.

Lewis Allen Browne is the author of Mae Marsh's new Goldwyn picture, "Spotlight Sadie." It is directed by Laurence Trimble, who directed Jane Cowl's "The Spreading Dawn" in Goldwyn's early days. Though the title suggests a story of the theatre, such is not altogether the case.

It is a comedy-drama of every-day life, with the playhouse as a background, no conventional stage scenes being necessary for the development of the plot. Mae Marsh's role is that of a girl who is described as "a whimsical product of Old Erin."

The story of Pauline Frederick's second Goldwyn Picture also is from the pen of a celebrated author, Cosmo Hamilton. Willard Mack prepared the screen version of the production, called "One Week of Life," which is under the direction of Hobart Henley, who directed her first Goldwyn vehicle, "The Woman on the Index." The new story provides the star with another modern emotional drama.

Butterworth Joins Fairbanks Forces

Business Manager John Fairbanks, of the Douglas Fairbanks Film Corporation, has engaged Ernest Butterworth, recently discharged from the Medical Corps of the British Army. Butterworth is the new "first aid man" for Douglas and the balance of the company, who are more or less subject to accidents during the filming of the Fairbanks Artcraft pictures.

Butterworth before joining the army wrote "Mr. Fix-It" for Fairbanks. He has another story in preparation which Douglas has promised to give serious consideration. He also plays a small part in "Something for Somebody," now in the process of production, under the direction of Albert Parker.

Bert Lytell, Metro star in "The Blind Man's Eyes"

Schnitzer Makes Tour of the Country

Joseph I. Schnitzer, general sales manager of Universal exchanges, left New York February 18 for a tour of the country in the interest of Universal Special Attractions and short reel dramas. Mr. Schnitzer went from New York direct to Cleveland where all of the Universal exchange managers in the Central States district gathered, with A. A. Schmidt, divisional manager, and Mr. Schnitzer for a sales conference. After spending several days in Cleveland, Mr. Schnitzer went to Chicago where managers of the Omaha, Des Moines, Milwaukee, Minneapolis and Chicago exchanges met with Divisional Manager S. J. Goldman and Mr. Schnitzer. At St. Louis, Mr. Schnitzer, Barney Rosenthal, divisional manager for the South Central district, and exchange managers of the territory will get together.

H. M. Berman, general manager of Universal exchanges, returned to New York February 10 after a short business trip through the Central states where, the executive noted, business was exceptional. Mr. Berman visited exchangemen and exhibitors at Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, Minneapolis, Kansas City, St. Louis and Pittsburgh.

Artists Prepare Display for "Virtuous Men"

S-L Pictures announce that three celebrated artists have been engaged to make sketches for the mutual poster and lobby display which is to feature the first "Ralph Ince Film Attraction" starring E. K. Lincoln. "Virtuous Men" is the title.

Clarence Underwood, Gustav Michelson and Dan Smith will apply their respective careers. Underwood has executed a beautiful series of drawings of E. K. Lincoln and Grace Darling, while Dan Smith will do several original pen and ink sketches of the star and his supporting company.

Territory on "Reclaimed"

The Elk Photo Plays, Inc., has purchased the New York and Northern New Jersey rights to Alpha Pictures, Inc., "Reclaimed," Harry MacRae Webster's production, starring Mabel Juliene Scott and Niles Welch.

About New Pictures

"The Valley of the Giants," by Capt. Peter V. Kyne, has been bought by Famous Players-Lasky as a starring subject for Wallace Reid, it is announced. It will be filmed in the California forests.

The Sawyer-Lubin organization is now in the midst of choosing E. K. Lincoln's second starring subject for that company. It is rumored a widely read story has been selected, for early announcement.

Hale Hamilton is cast as a small-town haberdasher in "That's Good," his newest Metro production. It is now under way at Hollywood under Harry L. Franklin's direction. The part is said to be new for the star.

A raging blizzard means everything, Goldwyn says, in the development of the plot of "The Brand," newest of Rex Beach's photoplays. The picture was made by Goldwyn in California, with Kay Laurell in the cast.

Harry McRae Webster's production, "Reclaimed," starring Niles Welch and Mabel Juliene Scott, is being states righted successfully through the Alpha Pictures, Inc. It was shown to the trade February 19.

An important theme in the development of J. Stuart Blackton's new superfeature, "A House Divided," is found in the words and melody of the old song, "Just a Song at Twilight." Anthony Paul Kelly prepared the story for the film.

"The Midnight Raid" is the title of the fourth episode of the Diando-Pathe serial, "The Terror of the Range," featuring Betty Compson and George Larkin.

Lillian Walker, the dimpled comedienne in "The Love Hunger," distributed by Hodkinson, has the role of a girl who had a smile for everyone she met. It is the star's second film through Hodkinson.

Universal is completing in California, "The Fire Flingers," adapted from a story by William J. Neidig. It will go to the editing and cutting room immediately, after eight weeks of filming.

That "The Poppy Girl's Husband," now completed, will be one of the strongest Artcraft pictures he has made, is the belief of William S. Hart, the star. Juanita Hansen is leading woman in it.

In Viola Dana's forthcoming Metro production, temporarily known as "Jeanne of the Gutter," there are said to be intimate glimpses into the life of those bohemian souls, art students, who people the Latin Quarter of Paris.

"The Heart of Humanity," the Jewel superdrama with Dorothy Phillips, was given its first public showing in Canada on February 17. Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa, Winnipeg and Vancouver will see it.

Famous Players-Lasky has changed the release date of "One Every Minute," a Paramount-Flagg comedy, from February 2 to February 16. Olin Howland and Florence Dixon are the principals.

"A Gentleman of Quality" will shortly make its appearance on the Vitagraph schedule, with Earle Williams in the chief role. James Young directed the picture, which claims lots of suspense.

"Our Teddy," authorized McClure-First National version of the life of the late Theodore Roosevelt, was a feature of the evening's entertainment at the annual meeting of the Bankers' Association of Boston.

"Marriage for Convenience," a Frank A. Keeney production with Catherine Calvert, has reached the screen. Edward Burns, Anna May, George Majorini, Blanche Davenport and George Pauncefort are in the cast.

Vitagraph's first March release is slated to be "The Girl Problem," starring Corinne Griffith. Kenneth Webb directed the picture, which is said to have a cast of unusual excellence.

Famous Players-Lasky has scheduled "Puddin'-head Wilson," with Theodore Roberts, as its Success Series of current date. In the cast are Thomas Meighan, Florence Dagmar and Allan Hale.

Maurice Tourneur has engaged Pauline Starke for a principal role in "Marcene." Miss Starke recently completed work in "Humanity," prior to which she appeared in Triangle productions.

Juanita Hansen, with Wm. S. Hart in "The Poppy Girl's Husband," an Artcraft picture

Bookings on Government Pictures Will Continue

The determination of the Government to close the department of the Division of Films will not affect the bookings, in the immediate future, on the Division of Films' releases, it is announced by officials of this department, of the Committee on Public Information. Several Government war pictures are now being distributed by World Film and Charles S. Hart states that these will continue to be shown and booked. It is believed that these features will have been shown in the majority of communities before the closing of the offices of the Division.

Denis J. Sullivan, manager of the Department of Domestic Distribution of the Division, states that the three Government features now being shown: "America's Answer," "Under Four Flags" and the "U. S. A. Series," are being booked at a rapid rate throughout the country. According to Mr. Sullivan, "America's Answer" holds the record for playing in more theatres than any other feature ever marketed. The contracts are now said to number close to five thousand and are coming in at a rate of one hundred and fifty a week. "Under Four Flags," which has been on release only six weeks, is expected to eclipse the record of "America's Answer." Mr. Sullivan says that the "U. S. A. Series," the Government two-reelers, each showing a particular phase of America's participation in the war, is popular.

Cites Reasons for Booking "Better 'Ole"

As an added incentive to the exhibitors of the country to book the screen version of "The Better 'Ole," distributed by World Pictures, executives of the World cite the fact that the gross weekly receipts of the different road companies and New York company amount to more than $97,000 a week and that more than 100,000 are seeing the stage production each week. It is cited that the billboard advertising costs the management of the play, and the theatre where it is being presented, approximately $2,000 a week, and the newspaper advertising about $5,000. The play is now in its sixth month at the Cort theatre, New York, and last week the gross business amounted to more than $15,000.

Ann May Makes Screen Debut as Ingenue Lead

Ann May, who until a season ago was leader of the younger social set, of Cincinnati, O., and who is prominently known socially in both Cincinnati and New York, makes her screen debut in Frank A. Keeney's latest production, "Marriage for Convenience," starring Catherine Calvert and releasing on the William L. Sherry service program.

Miss May is a petit ingenue type and is one of the few of this type of ingenue leads who has beautiful black hair, fair complexion and a priceless personality. In "Marriage for Convenience" she has the role, next in prominence to that of the star, Miss Calvert, and according to those who have witnessed a pre-release showing of this production, her work is one of the shining lights of the picture.

Miss May, although her experience before the camera is limited, has had a thorough training in the technique of the spoken drama, having graduated with honors from the Middle West's most popular dramatic school, Schuster-Martin School of Dramatic Art, Cincinnati. She also holds a diploma from the Kahn School of Oratory, the same place. During her senior year at Schuster-Martin, Miss May played in eight productions, including the ingenue roles of "Everywoman," "The Servant in the House" and "The Lion and the Mouse," in which she had the stellar role.

Following her graduation, Miss May came to New York to take up work before the camera and it was not long before she was engaged by Mr. Keeney to play the ingenue lead opposite Miss Calvert in "A Marriage for Convenience." Her work in this production is said to augur well for future success in the silent drama. Miss May since her appearance in this production, has received offers from some of our biggest producers, to play ingenue leads. She was also importuned to go to the Coast.

Sample of six-sheet supplied by United, through World, for the Dustin Farnum production, "A Man in the Open"

The Independent Field

L. L. Hiller Discusses Serial Distribution

L. L. Hiller

THE ready reception accorded serials both by exhibitors and the general public is noted by L. L. Hiller of Hiller and Wilk, selling agents for the Francis Ford serial, "The Silent Mystery."

"Vigorous exploitation along sound up-to-date business lines, backed by a powerful production, has enabled "The Silent Mystery" to score heavily everywhere with the general public and the exhibitors," declared Mr. Hiller.

"The way this serial has gone over has exceeded our most sanguine expectations. In New York the bookings have already reached a total of over $40,000 and there is not the slightest sign of any let up. It simply goes to show what can be done in the 'big town' in the independent field when a serial is handled properly.

"In Chicago 'The Silent Mystery' has broken two booking records. First, it is the first and only serial ever booked for 105 continuous and consecutive days in Chicago, the Loop (Downtown), 15 weeks —7 days each. Second, it is the first and only serial ever booked in Balaban & Katz's beautiful Central Park Theatre.

"In Washington, D. C., nineteen theatres have booked it. This smashes another record. Think of it—nineteen theatres running a serial in a town the size of the Capital City!

"In Canada the reports coming in indicate that it is going to play the Dominion from one end to the other and it is doing a record breaking business there now.

"This is the first serial we have handled and it is one of the few serials which have been marketed through State Right exchanges and our experience has proven to us that this method of distribution is the most successful and profitable for handling big serials.

"What we have done in this instance with 'The Silent Mystery' simply confirms what I have been saying for the last four years with regard to the successful handling of big pictures through the State Right or Open Market System.

"It's the day of the Independents! The relationship of the Independent producer —exchange man—and exhibitor is where picture merit must be given first consideration."

"Romance of Air" at New Chicago Theatre

Independent Sales Corporation's special feature release, "A Romance of the Air," in which Lieut. Bert Hall, one of the two surviving members of the famous Lafayette Escadrille and an American "Ace," has the leading role, recently completed a run at the new De Luxe Theatre, Chicago, and according to reports from the management, a "land office" business was done. Lieut. Hall made personal appearances at each performance.

The management in advertising this feature issued a miniature daily, devoted to star, story and big scenes of the offering. The Chicago Evening American carried a cartoon of the principal players in action. The management reports that the day on which these cartoons appeared, was the banner day of the run.

Vincent Bryan Writes for Billy West

Bull's Eye Film Corporation announces this week through Milton L. Cohen, president, that Vincent Bryan, who formerly turned out stories for Charlie Chaplin and Roscoe Arbuckle, has been engaged to write a series of two-reel comedies for Billy West.

Mr. Cohen based his announcement on a wire from Nat Spitzer, studio manager at the Bull's Eye studios in Hollywood, where Billy West now is at work on his fourth production, "The Chauffeur."

Webster Enthuses Over "Reclaimed" Film

After seeing "Reclaimed" on the screen last week, Director Harry MacRae Webster said enthusiastically:

"The picture is great. It will not only be a great attraction for the public, but will please the exhibitors immensely as well, and I miss my guess if it is not one of the most consistent long-lasting seller that the Movie World has seen in many a day."

The Alpha Pictures, Inc., is now selling state rights on "Reclaimed."

Reports From "Mickey" In Middle West

FOLLOWING an extended run of "Mickey," featuring Mabel Normand, at one of Detroit's largest theatres, the Majestic, W. H. Productions Company received a letter from Joe Horwitz, who controls the rights to this feature for the State of Michigan, stating that he had just closed a contract with the management of the Butterfield Circuit of theatres, operating in Michigan, for forty-one consecutive days' booking, covering nine different towns in Michigan, on "Mickey."

Similar reports coming to W. H. Productions from different parts of the country where "Mickey" has been or is being shown, indicate that that picture is going bigger with every additional booking.

The management of the Victoria theatre, Harrisburg, Pa., who played "Mickey" the week of February 3, send the following telegram to the Supreme Photoplay Productions, controlling the rights for Pennsylvania and Ohio: "If I don't make six thousand profit will be greatly disappointed. Turned away over two thousand today, and as you know the Victoria is by far the largest theatre in the State of Pennsylvania.

From the Strand theatre of Worcester, Mass., the following telegram was received: "The town is going wild over 'Mickey.' Every indication points to smashing all records."

From the Castle theatre in Chicago, where "Mickey" opened, the management wrote: "I played 'Mickey' for eight days at the Castle, and I can state I have never played a picture in this theatre which has elicited more enthusiastic comment from my patrons."

In commenting on the Chicago showing, Mickey Film Corporation, which controls the rights for "Mickey" in Illinois, writes: "We are playing the Casino theatre seven days repeat in the loop after having played eight days at the Castle theatre, four days at the Oak Park theatre, five days at the Pantheon and two days at the Paramount, preceding the week of its return to the Casino, and then finishing the Pantheon run, playing the Covent Garden, the Michigan, West End and Vitagraph during the week of the 10th while running at the Casino."

At the first showing of "Mickey" in Buffalo, at Shea's Hippodrome, the manager of that theatre advises that "Mickey" broke every record the house had ever set."

Rothapfel Talks of Plans for His Program

S. L. ROTHAPFEL, president of the Rothapfel Pictures Corporation, in discussing his plans for launching his new "unit programs," which will be released through the Independent Sales Corporation, said:

"For a long time, and it has been no secret, I have been seriously considering entering the production end of the motion picture business, not that I hoped to revolutionize the industry, but to put into effect some ideas I have carried in the back of my head for many months.

"Since resigning as managing director of the Rialto and Rivoli there has been much speculation rife as to my future activities, but the many rumors concerning my 'mysterious' plans (as frequently referred to in the dailies) have been definitely set at rest by the recent announcements made by Frank Hall.

"The difficulty is not so much in finding worthy features, or short subjects with more or less merit, for there was always something available that would get over somehow or other, but the obstacle that kept me working night and day to overcome was to find such short subjects that would consistently balance and dovetail in with the general color scheme of the central picture—the dramatic feature.

"On a trip I recently made covering practically all the important cities of the country, I visited many theatres where pictures were being presented in truly metropolitan fashion, in fact some of these theatres have advanced ideas that are not found elsewhere in the country.

"I can well appreciate, though, the constant eye and ear the managers of the better class theatres must lend to the arrangement of their picture and musical programs to keep them in perfect balance.

Arrow Acquires Rights to "Miss Arizona"

Arrow Film Corporation reports through its president, W. E. Shallenberger, that Otis B. Thayer's western drama, "Miss Arizona," starring Gertrude Bondhill and James O'Neil, has been acquired by Arrow for distribution on the State Rights' market. This is the fifth release announced by Arrow within the last two weeks. The story of "Miss Arizona" was written by George Elliot, Jr., and tells of a young western girl, of a tomboy character, who avenges the death of her father. Exhibitions of horsemanship, scenes of roundups and a fight on a cliff are said to be the punches of this offering. It is announced that Director Thayer will commence work immediately on another, a new seven reel production, titled, "Wolves of Wall Street."

Berman and Radin Organize Tyrad Pictures

Tyrad Pictures, Inc., with offices at 729 Seventh avenue, has been organized by Matthias Radin and Harry Berman to handle the distribution on the independent market of Jacques Tyrol's production, "And the Children Pay," written by Winifred Dunn. Mr. Berman reports that this feature had a successful run in both Chicago and Cincinnati. Tyrad Pictures, Inc., will handle the New York and Northern New Jersey territories direct. In addition to "And the Children Pay," the new organization will distribute a five reel educational titled, "Hunting Big Game in the North," "Penny Philanthropist," in five parts, starring Peggy O'Neil and Ralph Morgan; "Doctor Curtis' Secret," a five part drama starring Walter Miller.

Mabel Julienne Scott, leading woman in "Reclaimed," an Alpha picture

Rolfe Opens Branch in New Orleans

In order to facilitate the handling of B. A. Rolfe's super serial, "The Master Mystery," in its territory embracing the states of North and South Carolina, Mississippi, Louisiana, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Tennessee, Rolfe Productions of Atlanta has opened a branch office in New Orleans.

The new exchange in the Crescent City is located at 216 Baronne street, and is in charge of Mrs. S. P. Dillard, an exchangewoman of rare capabilities, until now connected with the Rolfe exchange in Atlanta.

The states of Louisiana and Mississippi will be covered by the branch exchange.

One of the many ways in which B. A. Rolfe's "The Master Mystery" differs from other serials lies in the fact that Houdini, the star, is never rescued in the nick of time by a friendly hand, but always succeeds in effecting his own release from serious predicaments.

McClure to State Right "Fruits of Passion"

McClure Productions has noticed evidence of increased activity in the State Rights market and is therefore now offering to territorial buyers the five-reel film entitled "Fruits of Passion."

The picture was produced in the Adirondacks and is said to abound in beautiful scenes and striking situations. Philip Yale Drew, known on the stage as "Young Buffalo," gives a striking exhibition of horsemanship in several of the scenes.

George Ridgwell wrote the story and directed the production and the story was scenarioized by L. Case Russell.

The drama features Alice and Frances Mann, two sisters who have shown splendid promise on the legitimate stage and who are said to have done notable work in motion pictures. Included in the cast are: Emilie J. De Varny, Colin Campbell, Philip Yale Drew, Donald Hall, John L. Russell, Harry Fischer and Charles Robbins.

Educational Picture Given Feature Place

Educational's current release, "Washington's Sky Pilot," presenting scenes taken in the Capitol city, from the observer's seat in a "stunt" aeroplane, was given an elaborate lobby display by M. Kashin, managing director of the Broadway theatre, during the run of this subject. Striking views of the White House, the Capitol and Government department buildings, including familiar spots of interest in the Capitol city, as seen from above are the feature of this Educational offering and full advantage of their advertising possibilities was taken by Manager Kashin. A catch line, "Twenty Thousand Leagues in the Air" was used by Mr. Kashin to get the attention and the lobby of the Broadway was devoted almost exclusively to the use of this catch line. The painting over the entrance gave an impression of the subject.

E. W. Hammons, vice-president of Educational, reports that he was more than pleased with the novel methods employed by Mr. Kashin in exploiting Educational's subject.

Gaumont News Has Caught Big Events

Events of nation-wide importance are included in Gaumont News No. 48, the current release. The first Belgian vessel to enter San Francisco harbor in eleven years; winter carnival at Dartmouth College; Eddie Rickenbacker, American "Ace" recently returned from France; tenement fire in New York City; Commander of Mare Island Navy Yard, Captain E. L. Beach; New York's colored troops, return from France; the stars that form the new "Big Five" combination; a United States hero returns from France; insurrection in Roumania; the airman who expects to fly across the ocean and Lloyd George's return to England—these are the high lights in this late Gaumont news release.

THE INDEPENDENT FIELD TICKER

Territorial Sales Reported During the Past Week

Production	Buyer	Territory
Tom Mix Re-Issued, Series of 2-reel Western Dramas (Exclusive Features, N. Y.)	Doll-Van Company, Chicago.	Indiana, Illinois.
"The Occidental Honeymoon" and "The Struggle Everlasting" (Harry Rapf)	Joseph Goodstein, Denver.	Colorado, Wyoming, Utah

Frank Hall Considers Delivery Idea

Rather a novel idea for rapid film delivery is being seriously considered by Frank Hall, president of the Independent Sales Corporation, which undoubtedly will establish new speed records for carrying films from one city to another and at the same time provide exhibitors with a decidedly new angle for publicity.

At the close of the special run in Chicago of "A Romance of the Air," the superaerial production in which Lieut. Bert Hall, the America Ace, enacts the leading role, the picture will open a special engagement in Minneapolis.

Pursuing the usual policy of the Independent of not releasing "A Romance of the Air" in any particular territory until after the picture has had a special run and Lieut. Hall has personally appeared at one of the leading theatres in that section, it is now proposed that the Ace make an aerial flight, from Chicago to Minneapolis, carrying the films in his airplane and arriving at the latter city on the day of the opening.

From Minneapolis the picture will next take flight to Cleveland, where it opens at Jos. Grossman's Standard, one of the leading theatres in the Middle West, where Lieut. Hall will make personal appearances.

Frohman Issues Helpful Campaign Book

What is said to be perhaps the most pretentious and complete press and exploitation book issued in connection with any single special feature attraction is that published by the Frohman Amusement Corporation on "Once to Every Man," the latest release of that corporation.

The book has thirty pages and contains, besides photographic copies of lithographs and lobby displays, slides and cuts, articles that deal in detail with the manner of properly exploiting the attraction; and the suggestions of Mr. Sherrill, as gleaned from an advance copy of the press book, are worthy of general publication. Mr. Sherrill, addressing the exhibitor, states:

"The producers have gone to an extraordinary amount of labor and have employed the best talent available in the making up of lithographs black and white, duplicates of which are to be published in this book, and this was done because the production of "Once to Every Man" justifies the very best there is in advertising matter; and it is up to the exhibitor to make proper use of and display these lithographs.

Brentwood Carries Out Policy in First Picture

"The Turn In The Road," Brentwood Film Corporation's first independent production, without any special advertising campaign, has run six weeks at the Broadway Theatre, Los Angeles, and the attendance has shown a steady increase since its opening, according to reports from the Coast. This would seem to bear out the policy of Brentwood, to produce stories true-to-life and holding a practical application in every-day life. King W. Vidor wrote the story and directed the production. The second Brentwood production, now in preparation, is also from the pen of Mr. Vidor and is under his direction. It is announced as a comedy drama, its theme bearing on the practical idea that he who can smile when things go wrong is the one who will succeed. The scenes are laid in a country hotel and it is said that some excellent light comedy comes to light.

William Desmond is presented for Exhibitors-Mutual release in "The Prodigal Liar," made at the Hampton studio and handled by Robertson-Cole

Classified Ads
on
Page 1364

Pick of the Nation Supplies Photos

Uncle Sam has assembled a wealth of material representing every American motion picture organization from coast to coast in his photographic division of the United States Signal Corps, with headquarters in Paris.

At Pathe's headquarters plant in Paris, where the photographic division is stationed, it is not an unusual occurrence to find "Doug" Fairbanks' cameraman grinding for a D. W. Griffith star, while Alice Brady director explain's to Fanny Ward's assistant director the script of a Mary Pickford scenarioist; and Charlie Chaplin's cameraman is getting President Wilson at the Hotel De Ville, and several Mack Sennett Keystone cops cop the Peace Conference. A Famous Players-Lasky studio manager might detail a Vitagraph director on an assignment with a Metro writer's script, a World assistant director, a Fox cameraman and a Goldwyn property boy; the negative would be developed by a Triangle laboratory expert, assembled by a Universal cutter, titled by an Essanay editor and run by a Selig projector kid. If Washington, D. C., should decide in a jocund moment and Congressional session to retain this professional outfit after demobilization, it would have a big corner on Government ownership of the motion picture industry.

Hunter Selected Morgan for "Border Legion"

It was T. Hayes Hunter, producer and director of "The Border Legion," a Zane Grey story, who selected Horace Morgan to act the part of leader of a gang of Rocky Mountain plunderers.

This Goldwyn special, starring Blanche Bates and Hobart Bosworth, is said to have a notable cast, and Director Hunter declares that Horace Morgan is admirably cast and that he is a hulk of a man, weighing 340 pounds, and standing six foot three; a ferocious looking figure as he thunders out orders to his hirelings, over whom he towers.

To make his appearance even more terrifying Gorilla Gulden—that's Morgan's name in the play—wears a beard that covers most of his massive face and lends horror to a pair of beady eyes.

George Fitzmaurice, director of "Common Clay" for Pathe

Catherine Calvert is star of "Marriage for Convenience," a new Frank A. Keeney release

Roosevelt-McClure Serial Nears Finish

The McClure newspaper serial, written by Charles Hanson Towne and Daniel Henderson and covering the exciting episodes pictured in the Roosevelt film, "Our Teddy," is now nearing its completion in a score of big newspapers throughout the United States. Arrangements have been made with the Tribune Syndicate, which is handling the story, so that the serial can be run concurrently with the newspaper advertising of this authorized Roosevelt film in each locality. McClure Productions has notified C. L. Yeasley, publicity manager for the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, that beginning February 17 the serial will be available to any newspaper throughout the United States, preference in any one town going to that newspaper selected by the branch manager of the First National Exchange.

This and other features of the McClure-First National publicity campaign for "Our Teddy" insures that the Roosevelt picture will continue to be a leading national attraction for many months to come.

Individual Letters from Mr. and Mrs. Drew

IN connection with their new two-reel comedies released by Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, an individual letter was forwarded to 110 of the more prominent motion picture theatres in the United States, advising them that an original photograph, 40 x 60 inches, being an intimate subject of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, was being made and would be forwarded to the theatre, autographed by Mr. and Mrs. Drew, provided the theatre framed and hung it for permanent display in the lobby.

These photographs are made from original plates and are not enlargements and said to cost $9.50 apiece, which makes a total disbursement of over $950.

There is no advertisement or any printed matter on these photographs, and are altogether a personal contribution of the Drews.

"Unpardonable Sin" Sold for California

Sol Lesser has bought the California rights for the big nine reel Garson-Neilan production, "The Unpardonable Sin," starring Blanche Sweet.

Marshal Neilan directed this personally and at a private screening held in New York City last week the eye-witnesses were tremendously enthusiastic, according to W. H. Rudolph, eastern representative for Garson and Neilan.

Harry Garson has reserved the Los Angeles rights from the Sol Lesser purchase and will give the production a run there at $1.50 top prices.

As all the New York theatres are doing a tremendous business with almost any kind of a show at this time, there is no available theatre for the Metropolitan premiere of "The Unpardonable Sin" scheduled for the present.

Territorial buyers thorughout the country have made so many alluring offers, it is reported, that since Messrs. Garson and Neilan have sold the California rights, they are giving all these offers very serious consideration.

Many of the leading exhibitors who attended the private screening are quoted as having declared that the production bore out every one of the previous flattering statements and predictions made.

Arrow Film Acquires Two New Subjects

Dr. E. E. Schallenberger, president of Arrow Film Corporation, announces the acquisition of two five-reel features for distribution on the independent market—"Power," featuring Holbrook Blinn, a story of political intrigue, and "The Mysterious Mr. Browning" with an all-star cast headed by Walter Miller, Paul Panzer and Edna Mason. The last-named feature completed, last week, a week's run at the Washington Theatre, Detroit. The Washington is one of the Kunsky circuit and George W. Trendle, secretary and general manager for the Kunsky interests, reports that the feature brought big business. "The Mysterious Mr. Browning" is a mystery drama. The New York rights to "Power" have been acquired by the Modern Feature Film Company and the New England rights by American Feature Film Company

Dorothy Gish, in "Boots," a Paramount picture

Exhibitors Talk About Strand "Stunt"

"The Better 'Ole"

It's a 'ard one, Bill, selectin' of the presents—but 'ere's the place!

'Ere's a Gift for the Guv'nor an' the Missus

'Ow's this, Bill—a set o' stuff.

Top of a Ten-Inch Single-Column Ad Used by Abercrombie and Fitch, Sporting Goods House

EXHIBITOR circles in New York are commenting upon the "stunt" advertising campaign of Manager Joseph L. Plunkett of the Strand theatre, in behalf of his presentation of "The Better 'Ole," opening at the Strand, February 24th. "The Better 'Ole" cartoons and books, plus the theatrical attraction, have been receiving so much newspaper publicity in the Greater City that Mr. Plunkett was certain the Sunday issues would be sure to contain something about Old Bill. Therefore he decided on an advance announcement that would play up the now celebrated head of the funny warrior, and so would be a tie-up with anything on Old Bill that might appear in the Sunday issues. He attached to this cut the slogan, "Yes—I'm in the movies now," as he believed that the chief story he had to tell was that Old Bill had made a new venture and that the Strand was in a position to show him in it to the millions in and out of New York City who had heard of the self-same Old Bill.

Since it was mainly a matter of getting the head and this simple announcement over, Mr. Plunkett concluded that he could do it in very small space even if the Sunday issues with their page and half-page announcements of the big mercantile advertisers. He decided that "42 lines agate" would be sufficient! Mr. Plunkett ran this story in addition to his usual Strand announcement of the regular show for the current week and succeeded in getting it into the First News Section of all of the great dailies.

The New York Times Cartoon of 'Ole Bill

"I employed a special agency for this purpose," said the Strand manager, "and insisted that the copy not appear on the announcement page, which generally are printed in the second or third extra sections of the Sunday papers. There must be a liking for Old Bill on the part of newspaper advertising managers and compositors because in every case we were in that enviable position—next to reading matter.

"I used this position in the New York Sunday Times, World, American, Herald, Tribune, and Sun, with a combined national circulation of many millions, and the funny head, in the striking position accorded it, was undoubtedly seen by every one of this enormous army of readers. I know that we received telephone calls from as far as Nyack, New York.

"The entire newspaper campaign cost—to be exact—$368, and I don't know any other attraction that I could have publicized as effectively for that comparatively tiny amount." ... .

To give an idea of the circulation the Strand ad attained through the use of the combined mediums, a letter received from Atlanta, Ga., will prove illuminating. The correspondent said whimsically: "Why is it that here in Atlanta we have laughed at the Old Bill cartoons, bought the Old Bill books and still have not been allowed to see the Old Bill show or movie? Why is Atlanta discriminated against?"

Mr. Plunkett told the writer that all he could suggest was "to 'hop a train' and come to New York if Atlanta just would not be progressive and show its public the things that they were interested in." The Strand's guess that the Sunday sheets would carry something about "The Better 'Ole" was borne out when Manager Plunkett opened his Sunday papers.

The art section of the New York Tribune which in addition to its vast national circulation as a part of the Tribune, and is reproduced in many cities, carries a full page of photographs of scenes from "The Better 'Ole" stage presentation. Marcus, the celebrated cartoonist of the New York Times, contributed a sketch of Coburn's characterization of Old Bill that occupied almost a quarter page in the magazine section of the New York Times.

Then there was the ad of the nationally famous sporting goods house of Abercrombie & Fitch, whose advertising manager, E. R. Wilbur, "cashed in" on the tremendous country-wide reputation of Old Bill by adapting him to the firm's sporting goods. Book stores all over New York City are to feature the Old Bill head next week with a line about the film, at the instance of Strand Manager Plunkett, who has shown the dealers that the resultant publicity will stimulate book sales just as much as it will benefit the motion picture presentation at the Strand.

Just a haphazard corner from a full page spread on "The Better 'Ole," Which Appeared in the Roto-gravure Section of The New York Tribune

Advance Information on All Film Releases

All forthcoming film, also current and earlier releases, made by both the independent and the regular producers, in short subjects as well as features, are arranged alphabetically with all the later releases at the top of each respective list instead of at the bottom.

AMERICAN FILM COMPANY, INC.

(See Pathe Exchanges)

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

(See Famous Players-Lasky Exchanges)

BEAR STATE FILM COMPANY

(At State Right Exchanges)

The Vigilantes

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS

(See Universal Exchanges)

BURLINGHAM TRAVEL PICTURES

(See General Film Exchanges Through Sherry Service)

CHRISTIE FILM COMPANY COMEDIES

(At State Right Exchange)

Mar. 10—Hard Luck 1
Mar. 3—Bobby Comes Marching Home 1
Feb. 24—Welcome Home 1
Feb. 17—Four of a Kind 1
Feb. 10—Salvation Sue 1
Jan. 27—You Couldn't Blame Her 1
Jan. 20—Good Gracious Bobby 1
Jan. 13—Oh, Baby! 1
Jan. 6—Five Hundred or Bust 1

COSMOFOTOFILM COMPANY

(At State Right Exchanges)

The Hypocrites 6

EDUCATIONAL FILM CORP. OF AMERICA

(Through State Right and Educational Exchanges)

Mar. 3—The Washington Air Patrol 1
Feb. 24—What Is a Mexican? 1
Feb. 17—A Day with Carranza 1
Feb. 10—An Indian Love Story 1
Feb. 3—Indian Life 1
Feb. 1—Photoplay Magazine Screen Supplement 1
Jan. 31—Bringing the Boys Back Home (Y. M. C. A.) 1

BRUCE SCENICS

20—Before Breakfast 1
19—Men Met in the Mountains 1
18—Nature—Hot and Cold 1
17—The Pale Pack Train 1
16—The High Horse 1
15—Horizon Hunters 1
14—Nature—Rest and Motion 1
13—The Wolf of the Tetons 1
12—Scenic Succotash 1
11—The Lonesome Pup 1
10—Frozen Thrills 1
9—Separate Trails 1
8—Sundown 1
7—The Restless Three 1
6—The River Gray and the River Green 1
5—The Wanderer and the Whoozitt 1
4—A Wee Bit Odd 1
3—Tales of the Tall Timber 1
2—'Tis Tough to Be Tender 1
1—The Tides of Yesterday 1

EXHIBITORS MUTUAL EXCHANGES

Mar. —A Heart in Pawn (Sessue Hayakawa) 5
Mar. —The Lamb and the Lion (Billie Rhodes) 5
Feb. —Shadows (Sessue Hayakawa) 5
Feb. —Diana of the Green Van (Alma Rubens) 5
Feb. —Long Lane's Turning (Henry B. Walthall) 5
Feb. —A Trick of Fate (Bessie Barriscale) 5
Feb. —The Prodigal Liar (William Desmond) 5
Feb. —Final Half; Cannibals of the South Seas 5
Feb. —What Every Woman Wants (Grace Darmond) 5
Jan. —The Eleventh Commandment (Ralph Ince Production) 5
Jan. —Hoop-La (Billie Rhodes) 5
Jan. —Bonds of Honor (Sessue Hayakawa) 5
Jan. —Life's a Funny Proposition (William Desmond) 5

STRAND COMEDIES

Mar. 2—The Wig-Wag System (Elinor Field) 1
Feb. 23—Their Baby (Elinor Field) 1
Feb. 16—Almost a Hero (Elinor Field) 1
Feb. 9—Merely Marrying Mary (Elinor Field) 1
Feb. 2—How to be Happy Though Married (Elinor Field) 1
Jan. 26—Easy Payments 1
Jan. 12—Some Mother (Elinor Field) 1
Jan. 19—No Man's Land 1
Jan. 5—Accidental Heroes (Elinor Field) 1

ROTHACKER OUTDOORS

Feb. 16—Out Wyoming Way 1
Feb. 9—A Bit of God's Country 1
Feb. 2—Doing the Dells 1
Jan. 26—Western Stuff 1
Jan. 19—Bulls and Bears 1
Jan. 12—Geesers and Geysers 1
Jan. 5—Teetotalers, Tea and Totem Poles 1

FAMOUS PLAYERS—LASKY EXCHANGES

ARTCRAFT

Mar. 23—The Girl Who Stayed at Home (D. W. Griffith's) 5
Mar. 16—The Poppy Girl's Husband (William S. Hart) 5
Mar. 9—The Marriage Price (Elsie Ferguson) 5
Mar. 9—Johnny Get Your Gun (Fred Stone) 5
Mar. 2—Alias Mike Moran (Wallace Reid) 5
Feb. 2—Breed of Men (William S. Hart) 5

PARAMOUNT

Mar. 30—Peppy Polly (Dorothy Gish) 5
Mar. 30—Little Comrade (Vivian Martin) 5
Mar. 30—The Malefactor (John Barrymore) 5
Mar. 23—The Sheriff's Son (Charles Ray) 5
Mar. 23—Partners Three (Enid Bennett) 5
Mar. 16—Extravagance (Dorothy Dalton) 5
Mar. 16—Three Men and a Girl (Marguerite Clark) 5
Mar. 9—The Poor Boob (Bryant Washburn) 5
Mar. 2—Puppy Love (Lila Lee) 5
Mar. 2—Good Gracious Annabelle (Billie Burke) 5
Feb. 23—Maggie Pepper (Ethel Clayton) 5
Feb. 23—Pain in Full (Pauline Frederick) 5
Feb. 23—The Winning Girl (Shirley Mason) 5
Feb. 16—Boots (Dorothy Gish) 5
Feb. 16—You Never Saw Such a Girl (Vivian Martin) 5
Feb. 9—Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch (Marguerite Clark) 5
Feb. 9—Two Brides (Lina Cavalieri) 5
Feb. 2—Hard Boiled (Dorothy Dalton) 5
Feb. 2—Happy Though Married (Enid Bennett) 5

PARAMOUNT-ARTCRAFT SPECIALS

Feb. 16—False Faces (Henry B. Walthall) 5

SUCCESS SERIES (Re-Issues)

Mar. 30—Sold (Pauline Frederick) 5
Mar. 23—Rose of the Rancho (Special Cast) 5
Mar. 16—Rage (Mary Pickford) 5
Mar. 9—Freckles (Jack Pickford) 5
Mar. 2—Temptation (Geraldine Farrar) 5
Feb. 23—Are You a Mason? (John Barrymore) 5
Feb. 16—Puddin' Head Wilson (Special Cast) 5
Feb. 9—Belladonna (Pauline Frederick) 5
Feb. 2—The Crucible (Marguerite Clark) 5

ARBUCKLE COMEDIES

Mar. 2—Love (Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle) 2
Feb. 16—The Pullman Porter (Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle) 2
Jan. 5—Camping Out (Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle) 2

DREW COMEDIES

Mar. 16—Once a Mason (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew) 2
Feb. 2—Romance and Rings (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew) 2

FLAGG COMEDIES

Mar. 30—Beresford of the Barboons (Montgomery Flagg Film) 2
Feb. 2—One Every Minute (Montgomery Flagg Film) 2

SENNETT COMEDIES

Mar. 23—Reilly's Wash Day 2
Mar. 9—The Village Smithy 2
Feb. 23—West Lynne with Variations 2
Feb. 9—Rip and Stitch—Sailors 2
Jan. 26—Never Too Old (Mack Sennett Film) 2

BRAY PICTOGRAPHS

Mar. 30—Comets 1
Mar. 23—Indoor Gold 1
Mar. 16—Most Popular Girl in World 1
Mar. 9—Birth of a Tornado 1
Mar. 2—Hatching an Eagle a Day 1
Feb. 23—A Kid Railroad 1
Feb. 16—Hand Grenades 1
Feb. 9—War Brides 1
Feb. 2—Winter Sports 1

BURTON HOLMES TRAVEL PICTURES

Mar. 30—Zamboanga 1
Mar. 23—Glorious Versailles 1
Mar. 16—Gay Parie in Wartime 1
Mar. 9—Making Sombereros in Manila 1
Mar. 2—Cabaret of Old Japan 1
Feb. 23—London Plays Ball 1
Feb. 16—War Women of England 1
Feb. 9—St. Dunstan's Happy Blind 1
Feb. 2—American Y. M. C. A. in London 1

FILM CLEARING HOUSE EXCHANGES

INDEPENDENT SALES CORPORATION

Dec. —Wanted for Murder (Elaine Hammerstein) 6
Dec. —A Romance in the Air (Bert Hall-Edith Day) 6

TEN-TWENTY-THIRTY SERIES

Dec. —Her Mistake (Julius Steger Production) 6
Dec. —Life's Greatest Problem (Blackton Production) 6
Dec. —A Woman's Experience (Bacon-Backer Production) 6

Advance Information on All Film Releases

(Continued from preceding page)

FIRST NATIONAL EXCHANGES

Feb. 3—Our Teddy (Roosevelt Pictures)....5
Jan. 5—Virtuous Wives (Anita Stewart)....5
The Romance of Tarzan (Elmo Lincoln)....
Shoulder Arms (Charlie Chaplin)....3
Italy's Flaming Front (Italian Official War Pictures)....
Pershing's Crusaders (Official Government Feature)....
My Four Years in Germany (Ambassador Gerard's)....

FOX FILM EXCHANGES

STANDARD PICTURES

Apr. 20—The Siren's Song (Theda Bara)....5
Apr. 6—Wolves of the Night (William Farnum)....5
Mar. 23—Thou Shalt Not (Evelyn Nesbit)....5
Mar. 9—When Men Desire (Theda Bara)....5
Feb. 23—The Man Hunter (William Farnum)....6
Feb. 9—Every Mother's Son (all-star cast)....5
Jan. 26—Woman, Woman (Evelyn Nesbit)....5

VICTORY PICTURES

Mch. 16—Never Say Quit (George Walsh)....5
Mch. 2—The Forbidden Room (Gladys Brockwell)....5
Feb. 16—Hell Roarin' Reform (Tom Mix)....5
Feb. 2—Luck and Pluck (George Walsh)....5
Jan. 19—The Call of the Soul (Gladys Brockwell)....5
Jan. 5—Treat 'Em Rough (Tom Mix)....5

EXCEL PICTURES

Apr. 6—Married in Haste (Albert Ray)....5
Mar. 23—The Unkissed Bride (Peggy Hyland)....5
Mar. 9—Gambling in Souls (Madlaine Traverse)....5
Feb. 23—Smiles (Jane and Katherine Lee)....5
Feb. 9—The Love Auction (Virginia Pearson)....5
Jan. 26—The Girl With No Regrets (Peggy Hyland)....5

PRODUCTIONS EXTRAORDINARY

Cleopatra (Theda Bara)....8
Les Miserables (William Farnum)....8
A Daughter of the Gods (Annette Kellerman)....8
Salome (Theda Bara)....8

THE GREAT NINE

Feb. 23—Hoodman Blind (William Farnum)....5
Feb. 16—The Darling of Paris (Theda Bara)....5
Feb. 9—The Soul of Broadway (Valeska Suratt)....5
Feb. 2—Infidelity (Dr. Rameau's)....5
Jan. 26—Under Two Flags (Theda Bara)....5
Jan. 19—The Broken Law (William Farnum)....5
Jan. 12—Regeneration (Special Cast)....5
Jan. 5—The Serpent (Theda Bara)....5

SUNSHINE AND TOM MIX COMEDIES

May 4—A Lady Bell Hop Secret....2
Apr. 20—The House of Terrible Scandal....2
Apr. 6—Tom and Jerry Mix....6
Mch. 23—Money Talks....2
Mch. 9—Six-Cylinder Love (Tom Mix)....2
Feb. 23—His Musical Sneeze....2
Feb. 9—A Roman Cowboy (Tom Mix)....2
Jan. 26—Oh, What a Knight....2
Jan. 12—Hearts and Saddles (Tom Mix)....2

MUTT AND JEFF CARTOONS

Mar. 16—William Hohenzollern, Sausage Maker....½
Mar. 9—Wild Waves and Angry Woman....½
Mar. 2—Firemen, Save My Child....½
Feb. 25—The Pousse Cafe....½
Feb. 16—Five Thousand Miles on a Gallon of Gas....1
Feb. 9—The Bearded Lady....1
Feb. 2—Landing An Heiress....1
Jan. 26—Dog-gone Tough Luck....1
Jan. 19—The Hula Cabaret....1
Jan. 12—Here and There....1
Jan. 5—The Lion Tamer....1

FROHMAN AMUSEMENT CORPORATION

(At State Right Exchanges)

Once to Every Man (Jack Sherrill)....
My Own United States (Special Cast)....Through Metro
God's Man (H. B. Warner)....9

GARSON-NEILAN PRODUCTIONS

(Producing for Open Market)

The Unpardonable Sin (Blanche Sweet)....9
The Hushed Hour (Blanche Sweet)....

GAUMONT COMPANY

(At State Right Exchanges)

Tuesdays—Gaumont News....1
Fridays—Gaumont Graphic....1

GENERAL FILM EXCHANGES

KLEINE SYSTEM, GEORGE

Triple Trouble (Charley Chaplin)....
Behind the Lines in Italy....
Conquered Hearts....

SHERRY SERVICE, WILLIAM L.

Mar. 9—Marriage for Convenience (Catherine Calvert)....6
Mar. 2—Love and the Law (Edgar Lewis Production)....6
Feb. 23—Twilight (Doris Kenyon)....6
Feb. 16—Calibre 38 (Edgar Lewis Production)....6
Feb. 2—The Son of a Gun (G. M. Anderson)....5
Jan. 5—Wild Honey (Doris Kenyon)....6

BURLINGHAM TRAVEL PICTURES (Sherry Service)

The Gornergrat Railway....1
Lovely Lucerne....1
The Riviera of Lake Leman....1
Scrambles in the High Alps....1
Allied War Heroes Arrive in Switzerland....1
The Pilatus Railway....1
Unknown Switzerland (The Lotschenthal)....1
Facing Death on the Blumlisalp....1

RAINBOW COMEDIES

Hooverizing (Lillian Vera-Eddie Bouldon)....1
The Pipe of Peace (Lillian Vera-Eddie Bouldon)....1
The Camouflaged Baby (Lillian Vera-Eddie Bouldon)....1
How She Hated Men (Lillian Vera-Eddie Bouldon)....1
Some Judge (Lillian Vera-Eddie Bouldon)....1
My Lady's Slipper (Lillian Vera-Eddie Bouldon)....1
Nearly a Slacker (Lillian Vera-Eddie Bouldon)....1

AMERICAN RED CROSS

Russia a World Problem....1
New Faces for Old....1
Homeward Bound....1
Victorious Serbia....1
First Aid on the Piave....1
Rebuilding Broken Lives....1
The Helping Hand of Sicily....1
Kiddies of No Man's Land....1
Of No Use to Germany....1
Soothing the Heart of Italy....1
The Historic Fourth of July in Paris....1

GOLDWYN EXCHANGES

STAR SERIES

Mar. 9—The Brand (Rex Beach Cast)....7
Feb. 23—The Woman on the Index (Pauline Frederick)....5
Feb. 16—Sis Hopkins (Mabel Normand)....5
Feb. 2—The Bondage of Barbara (Mae Marsh)....5
Jan. 26—Shadows (Geraldine Farrar)....6
Jan. 12—Day Dreams (Madge Kennedy)....5

BENNISON SERIES

Mch. 23—High Pockets (Louis Bennison)....5
Mch. 9—Speedy Meade (Louis Bennison)....5
Feb. 23—Sandy Burke of the U-Bar-U (Louis Bennison)....5
Jan. 19—Oh, Johnny (Louis Bennison)....5

SPECIALS

Mch. 2—The Border Legion (Blanche Bates-Hobart Bosworth)....6
For the Freedom of the World....7
The Manx-Man....7
Social Ambition....7
Honor's Cross....7
Blue Blood....6
Rex Beach's Heart of the Sunset....7
For the Freedom of the East (Betzwood)....7

CAPITOL COMEDIES

Feb. 23—A Master of Music ("Smiling Bill" Parsons)....2
Feb. 9—Have Another ("Smiling Bill" Parsons)....2
Jan. 26—The Big Idea ("Smiling Bill" Parsons)....2
Jan. 12—You Know What I Mean ("Smiling Bill" Parsons)....2

GO-GET-'EM POTTS SERIES

Apr. 6—The Midnight Alarm ( ) 2
Mch. 23—The Potum of Swat ( )....2
Mch. 9—The New Breakfast Food ( )....2

FORD EDUCATIONAL WEEKLY

Feb. 24—Rough Stuff....1
Feb. 17—Where "The Spirit that Won" was Born....1
Feb. 10—Canada's Mountain of Tears....1
Feb. 3—Carrying Old Glory to the Seven Seas....1
Jan. 27—Hang It All....1
Jan. 20—The Truth About the Liberty Motor....1
Jan. 13—What Uncle Sam Will Do for Two Cents....1

HILLER AND WILK, INC.

(Pictures Handled in the Open Market)

The Silent Mystery (Francis Ford Serial)....
Woman....
The Wrath of the Gods....
The Battle of Gettysburg....
Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman....

HART, FAIRBANKS, KEENAN, TALMADGE RE-ISSUES

Fifty Fifty (Norma Talmadge)....
The Social Secretary (Norma Talmadge)....
The Devil's Needle (Norma Talmadge)....
Going Straight (Norma Talmadge)....
Children in the House (Norma Talmadge)....
The Drab (Frank Keenan)....
Bride of Hate (Frank Keenan)....
The Sins Ye Do (Frank Keenan)....
Jim Grimsby's Boy (Frank Keenan)....
The Thoroughbred (Frank Keenan)....
The Americano (Douglas Fairbanks)....
The Matrimaniac (Douglas Fairbanks)....
American Aristocracy (Douglas Fairbanks)....
Manhattan Madness (Douglas Fairbanks)....

Advance Information on All Film Releases

(Continued from preceding page)

The Half Breed (Douglas Fairbanks)
Flirting with Fate (Douglas Fairbanks)
Reggie Mixes In (Douglas Fairbanks)
The Good Bad Man (Douglas Fairbanks)
Wolfe Lowry (William S. Hart)
The Desert Man (William S. Hart)
The Square Deal Man (William S. Hart)
The Gunfighter (William S. Hart)
Truthful Tulliver (William S. Hart)
The Devil's Double (William S. Hart)
The Return of Draw Egan (William S. Hart)
The Dawnmaker (William S. Hart)
Captive God (William S. Hart)
The Patriot (William S. Hart)

HODKINSON CORPORATION, W. W.

(See Pathe Exchanges)

INDEPENDENT SALES CORPORATION

(See Film Clearing House Exchanges)

IVAN FEATURE PRODUCTIONS

(At State Right Exchanges)

Life or Honor (Leah Baird-James Morrison).....7
Human Clay (Mollie King).....5

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS, INC.

(See Universal Exchanges)

KLEINE SYSTEM, GEORGE

(See General Film Exchanges)

METRO EXCHANGES

Feb. 24—Peggy Does Her Darndest (May Allison).....5
Feb. 17—Johnny on the Spot (Hale Hamilton).....5
Feb. 10—As the Sun Went Down (Edith Storey).....5
Feb. 3—Faith (Bert Lytell).....5
Jan. 27—In for Thirty Days (May Allison).....5
Jan. 20—The Divorcee (Ethel Barrymore).....5
Jan. 13—The Gold Cure (Viola Dana).....5
Jan. 6—The Spender (Bert Lytell).....5

NAZIMOVA PRODUCTIONS

Feb. 17—Out of the Fog (Nazimova).....7
Toys of Fate (Nazimova).....
Eye for Eye (Nazimova).....7
Revelation (Nazimova).....7

SCREEN CLASSICS, INC., SPECIALS

The Great Romance (Harold Lockwood).....5
The Great Victory (Special Cast).....
Pals First (Harold Lockwood).....6

NAZIMOVA PRODUCTIONS

(See Metro Exchanges)

PATHE EXCHANGES

Apr. 6—The Silver Girl (Frank Keenan).....5
Mar. 23—Go Get 'Em Garringer (Helene Chadwick).....5
Mar. 9—Carolyn of the Corners (Bessie Love).....5
Mar. 2—Common Clay (Fannie Ward-Astra).....7
Feb. 23—The Old Maid's Baby (Baby Marie Osborne).....5
Feb. 9—Todd of the Times (Frank Keenan).....5
Jan. 26—A Vagabond of France (Henri Krauss).....4
Jan. 12—The Midnight Stage (Frank Keenan).....5

AMERICAN FILM COMPANY, INC.

Feb. 16—Molly of the Follies (Margarita Fisher).....5
Feb. 2—The Amazing Imposter (Mary Miles Minter).....5
Jan. 19—When a Man Rides Alone (William Russell).....5

HODKINSON, W. W., CORPORATION

Mar. 23—The End of the Game (J. Warren Kerrigan).....5
Mar. 9—The Forfeit (House Peters).....5
Feb. 23—The Love Hunger (Lillian Walker).....5
Feb. 10.—Come Again Smith (J. Warren Kerrigan).....5
Jan. 27—Fighting Through (E. K. Lincoln).....6
Jan. 20—The Law that Divides (Kathleen Clifford).....5
Jan. 6—The Drifters (J. Warren Kerrigan).....5

MADE IN AMERICA (Series) Hodkinson

(Eight One-Reel Episodes)
Apr. 7—Eighth, Forward Ever Forward.....1
Mar. 31—Seventh, Overseas to Victory.....1
Mar. 24—Sixth, The Hated K. P.....1
Mar. 17—Fifth, Building the Soldier.....1
Mar. 10—Fourth, Victory Army in the Making.....1
Mar. 3—Third, The Rookie.....1
Feb. 24—Second, Nine Million Answer.....1
Feb. 16—First, Made in America.....1

ROLIN COMEDIES

Apr. 13—Just Dropped In (Harold Lloyd).....1
Apr. 6—Ring Up the Curtain (Harold Lloyd).....1
Mar. 30—Next Aisle Over (Harold Lloyd).....1
Mar. 23—Friend Husband (Harold Lloyd).....1
Mar. 16—Look Out Below (Harold Lloyd).....1
Mar. 9—I'm On My Way (Harold Lloyd).....1
Mar. 2—Hoot Mon (Stan Laurel).....1
Feb. 23—On the Fire (Harold Lloyd).....1
Feb. 16—Toto's Troubles (Toto).....1
Feb. 9—Ask Father (Harold Lloyd).....1
Feb. 2—Hustling for Health (Laurel).....1
Jan. 19—Love's Young Dream (Goulding).....1
Jan. 12—Wanted, 5,000 (Harold Lloyd).....1
Jan. 5—Do You Love Your Wife? (Laurel).....1

POST TRAVEL SERIES

Jan. 5—Japan of Today (2).....1
Jan. 12—Shanghai.....1

THE LIGHTNING RAIDER (Serial)

(Fifteen Two-Reel Episodes Astra Serial Starring Pearl White, Warner Oland, Henry Gsell)
Apr. 13—Fifteenth, Wu Fang Atones.....2
Apr. 6—Fourteenth, Cleared of Guilt.....2
Mar. 30—Thirteenth, the White Roses.....2
Mar. 23—Twelfth, Hurled Into Space.....2
Mar. 16—Eleventh, The Bars of Death.....2
Mar. 9—Tenth, The Baited Trap.....2
Mar. 2—Ninth, Falsely Accused.....2
Feb. 23—Eighth, The Cave of Dread.....2
Feb. 16—Seventh, Meshes of Evil.....2
Feb. 9—Sixth, The Mystic Box.....2
Feb. 2—Fifth, The Brass Key.....2
Jan. 26—Fourth, Through Doors of Steel.....2
Jan. 19—Third, Underworld Terrors.....2
Jan. 12—Second, The Counterplot.....2
Jan. 5—First, The Ebony Block.....3

THE TERROR OF THE RANGE (Serial)

(Seven Two-Reel Episodes Starring George Larkin and Bessie Compson; Produced by Diando)
Mch. 16—Seventh, Run to Earth.....2
Mch. 9—Sixth, Tangled Tales.....2
Mch. 2—Fifth, A Threat from the Past.....2
Feb. 23—Fourth, The Midnight Raid.....2
Feb. 16—Third, The Chasm of Fear.....2
Feb. 9—Second, The Hidden Chart.....2
Feb. 2—First, Prowlers of the Night.....2

NEWS AND REVIEW REELS

Sundays—Pathe Review (Educational).....1
Mondays—Official War Review.....1
Wednesdays—Pathe News.....1
Saturdays—Pathe News.....1

PERRET PRODUCTIONS, LEONCE

(Producing for the Open Market)

—A Soul Adrift (Dolores Cassinelli).....
—Stars of Glory (E. K. Lincoln-Dolores Cassinelli).....

RAPF PRODUCTIONS, HARRY

(At State Right Exchanges)

—Wanted for Murder (Elaine Hammerstein) Ind. Sales Corp.....6
—Sins of the Children.....

RAVER PRODUCTIONS, HARRY

(At State Right Exchanges)

—The Liberator (Maciste Serial).....

SELECT EXCHANGES

Feb. —The World to Live In (Alice Brady).....5
Feb. —Children of Banishment (Mitchell Lewis).....5
Feb. —The Belle of New York (Marion Davies).....5
Feb. —Romance and Arabella (Constance Talmadge).....5
Jan. —The Indestructible Wife (Alice Brady).....5
Jan. —Cheating Cheaters (Clara Kimball Young).....5
Jan. —Who Cares (Constance Talmadge).....5

SPECIALS

The Hidden Truth (Anna Case).....5
Ruling Passions (Julia Dean-Edwin Arden).....5
The Midnight Patrol (Ince Production).....5
The Cavell Case (Julia Arthur).....5
The One Woman (Special Cast).....6

SELZNICK PICTURES CORPORATIONS

(No Distribution Plans Announced Yet)

—Upstairs and Down (Olive Thomas).....5

S-L PICTURES

Virtuous Man (E. K. Lincoln) Ralph Ince Attraction.....

SHERRY SERVICE, WILLIAM L.

(See General Film Exchanges Outside New York State)

SOUTHERN FEATURE FILM COMPANY

(At State Rights Exchanges)

Beyond the Law (Emmett Dalton).....6

STATE RIGHT EXCHANGES

DOLL VAN FILM CORPORATION (CHICAGO)

(In Illinois, Indiana and Southern Wisconsin)
The Mad Lover.....
Public Defender.....

Advance Information on All Film Releases

(Continued from preceding page)

Carmen of the Klondike
The Grain of Dust
Hearts of the World
The Crucible of Life
Nine-tenths of the Law
The Belgian
The Zeppelin's Last Raid
Those Who Pay
Just a Woman

DOO LEE FILM COMPANY, INC. (NEW YORK STATE)

The Woman Who Dared
The Libertine 6
Babbling Tongues 7
Married in Name Only....6
Her Bargain 6
A Man's Law....5
Human Clay 5
One Law for Both....8
Sins of Ambition....7
A Slacker's Heart....7
Cleopatra 5
The Lonesome Trail....5
Mothers of Liberty....6
Gaumont News and Graphic....
Jester Comedies (Tweed Dan) once a month....2
The Silent Mystery (Serial in Fifteen Two-Reel Episodes (Francis Ford Mae Gaston and Rosemary Theby....

TRIANGLE EXCHANGES

Feb. 23—Breezy Jim (Crane Wilbur)....5
Feb. 16—Child of M'sieu (Baby Marie Osborne)....5
Feb. 9—Secret Marriage (Mary MacLaren)....5
Feb. 2—Restless Souls (Alma Rubens)....5
Jan. 26—Unto the End (Crane Wilbur)....5

UNITED PICTURE THEATRES

(See World Film Exchanges)

UNIVERSAL EXCHANGES

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS

Mar. 3—A Taste of Life (Edith Roberts)....5
Feb. 24—The Little White Savage (Carmel Myers)....5
Feb. 17—The Sealed Envelope (Fritzi Brunette)....5
Feb. 10—The Millionaire Pirate (Monroe Salisbury)....5
Feb. 3—Sue of the South (Edith Roberts)....5
Jan. 27—Who Will Marry Me (Carmel Myers)....5
Jan. 20—The Game's Up (Ruth Clifford)....5

SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS

Mar. 10—The Scarlet Shadow (Mae Murray)....6
Feb. 24—The Wicked Darling (Priscilla Dean)....6
Feb. 10—Creaking Stairs (Mary MacClaren)....6
Jan. 27—Roped (Harry Carey)....6
Jan. 13—After the War....5

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS, INC.

Feb. 10—The Heart of Humanity (Dorothy Phillips)....9

I-KO COMEDIES

Mar. 5—A Ragtime Romance (Lynch-Smith-Dunn)....2
Feb. 26—Lions and Ladies (Hardy-Mann-Gore)....2
Feb. 17—Call the Cops (Billy Armstrong)....2
Feb. 5—Hop, the Bell Hop (Armstrong)....2
Jan. 27—It's a Bird (Mann)....2
Jan. 22—The Freckled Fish (Novak)....2
Jan. 15—Charlie the Little Dare Devil....2

CENTURY COMEDIES

Mar. 12—Society Stuff (Alice Howell)....2
Feb. 10—Behind the Front (Alice Howell)....2

NESTOR COMEDIES

Mar. 10—The Hole in the Wall (Special Cast)....1
Mar. 3—A Poor Prune (Sammie Burns)....1
Feb. 24—The Movie Queen (Jane Bernoudy)....1
Feb. 17—Them Eyes (Ben Wilson-Neva Gerber)....1
Feb. 10—Mixed Wives (William Farney)....1
Jan. 27—He was No Lady (Vernon)....1
Jan. 20—Only a Janitor (Beery)....1

LYONS-MORAN STAR COMEDIES

Mar. 10—Chicken a La King....1
Mar. 3—Oh Ethel 1
Feb. 24—Mixed Tales 1
Feb. 17—His Body for Rent....1
Feb. 10—Up the Flue....1
Feb. 3—Kitchen Police 1
Jan. 27—Marry My Wife....1
Jan. 20—Sing Rose, Sing....1

WESTERN AND RAILROAD DRAMAS..

Mar. 15—The Black Horse Bandit (Helen Gibson—Pete Morrison)....2
Mar. 8—The Crooked Coin (Pete Morrison)....2
Mar. 1—Riding Wild (Helen Gibson)....2
Feb. 22—Raiders of the Range (J. Warren Kerrigan)....2
Feb. 16—Tapering Fingers (Ridgeway)....
Feb. 9—A Proxy Husband (Violet Mersereau)....2
Feb. 2—Sure Shot Morgan (Carey)....2
Jan. 25—The Border Terror (Mitchell)....2
Jan. 18—The Ghost Girl (Roma Drew)....2
Jan. 11—Rosalind at the Gate (Stonehouse)....2
Jan. 4—The Secret Peril (Helen Gibson)....2

THE LURE OF THE CIRCUS (Serial)

(Eighteen Two-Reel Episodes Starring Eddie Polo.)
Mar. 10—Seventeenth, a Race with Time....2
Mar. 3—Sixteenth, The Knockout....2
Feb. 24—Fifteenth, The Stolen Record....2
Feb. 17—Fourteenth, Flames 2
Feb. 10—Thirteen, A Plunge for Life....2
Feb. 3—Twelfth, A Strange Escape....2
Jan. 27—Eleventh, The Dagger....2
Jan. 20—Tenth, A Shot for Life....2
Jan. 13—Ninth, The Flying Loop....2
Jan. 6—Eighth, The Human Ladder....2

THE RED GLOVE (Serial)

(Eighteen Two-Reel Episodes Starring Marie Walcamp)
Mch. 17—First, The Pool of Mystery....2

NEWS AND MAGAZINE REELS

Mondays —Hearst News (International)....1
Wednesdays—Screen Telegram (International)....1
Fridays —Current Events (International) 1
Fridays —New Screen Magazine (Universal)....1

VITAGRAPH EXCHANGES

Mch. 31—Fighting Destiny (Harry T. Morey)....5
Mch. 24—Miss Dulcie from Dixie (Gladys Leslie)....5
Mch. 17—A Gentleman of Quality (Earle Williams)....5
Mch. 10—The Wishing Ring Man (Bessie Love)....5
Mch. 3—The Girl Problem (Corinne Griffith)....5
Feb. 24—The Lion and the Mouse (Special-Alice Joyce)....5
Feb. 17—Silent Strength (Harry T. Morey)....5
Feb. 10—Fortune's Child (Gladys Leslie)....5
Feb. 3—The Highest Trump (Earle Williams)....5

BIG V SPECIAL COMEDIES

Feb. 24—Damsels and Dandies....2
Feb. 17—Scamps and Scandal....2
Feb. 10—Soapsuds and Sap-Heads....2
Feb. 3—Love and Lather....2
Jan. 27—Footballs and Frauds....2
Jan. 20—Traps and Tangles....2

THE MAN OF MIGHT (Serial)

(Fifteen Two-Reel Episodes Starring William Duncan)
—Fifteenth, The Rescue....2
—Fourteenth, The Living Catapult....2
—Thirteenth, The Flood of Despair....2
—Twelfth, The Volcano's Prey....2
—Eleventh, The Ship of Dread....2
—Tenth, Double Crossed....2
—Ninth, The Crashing Horror....2
—Eighth, The One Chance....2
—Seventh, Into the Trap....2
—Sixth, The Height of Torment....2
—Fifth, The Human Shield....2
—Fourth, The Gripping Hand....2
—Third, The Creeping Death....2
—Second, The Leap Through Space....2
—First, The Riven Flag....2

THE IRON TEST (Serial)

(Fifteen Two-Reel Episodes Featuring Antonio Moreno and Carol Holloway)
Jan. 27—Fifteenth, Riding with Death....2
Jan. 20—Fourteenth, Desperate Odds....2
Jan. 13—Thirteenth, Hanging Peril....2
Jan. 6—Twelfth, The Span of Terror....2

WARREN, EDWARD, PRODUCTIONS, INC.

(At State Right Exchanges)

Weavers of Life
Souls Redeemed

WESTERN IMPORT COMPANY

(At State Right Exchanges)

Mickey (Mabel Normand)

WORLD FILM EXCHANGES

Mch. 31—The Love Defender (June Elvidge)....5
Mch. 24—Hit or Miss (Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley)....5
Mch. 17—The Hand Invisible (Montagu Love)....5
Mch. 10—The Unveiling Hand (Kitty Gordon)....5
Mch. 3—Crook of Dreams (Louise Huff)....5
Feb. 24—The Moral Deadline (June Elvidge)....5
Feb. 17—Courage for Two (Carlyle Blackwell)....5
Feb. 10—Mandarin's Gold (Kitty Gordon)....5
Feb. 3—The Rough Neck (Montagu Love)....5
Jan. 27—Heart of Gold (Louise Huff)....5
Jan. 20—The Bluffer (June Elvidge)....5
Jan. 13—Love in a Hurry (Carlyle Blackwell-Evelyn Greeley)....5
Jan. 6—What Love Forgives (Barbara Castleton)....5

SPECIALS

Under Four Flags (Official Government Picture)....5

UNITED PICTURE THEATRES

—Her Code of Honor (Florence Reed)....6
Feb. 23—A Man in the Open (Dustin Farnum)....6
Jan. 26—Adele (Kitty Gordon)....6
Jan. 5—The Light of Western Stars (Dustin Farnum)....6

KINOGRAMS (News Reels)

Tuesdays—Kinograms 1
Saturdays—Kinograms ....

Classified Ads.—Tell Your Wants Here

[Where advertiser is to be addressed in care of Motion Picture News send all replies to the office of publication, 729 Seventh Avenue, New York City.]

SITUATIONS WANTED

PUBLICITY CONNECTION DESIRED

Press Sheet and Ad-Man Box Q, M. P. News

Whole or part time

ACCOUNTANT — Experienced accountant, 22 years of age, released from U. S. N. R. F., desires connection as assistant operator or publicity man. Willing to go anywhere to start. References exchanged. Will consider work in film exchange. Address H. H. T., Motion Picture News.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR—Late with Bob Leonard, now with Canadian Engineers, Signal Corps. Expect to be in Los Angeles in February. Six years' experience, starting as property man with Wallace Beery. Twenty-two years old. If you want me communicate with Miss Gibsone, Mabel Condon Exchange, Hollywood.

OPERATOR-MANAGER—Operator and electrician, honorably discharged from aviation service, wishes position as operator or manager of small house in good town. Five years' experience. Can deliver the goods. Salary and all in first letter. Address O. V. Tilton, Auditorium, Defiance, Ia.

SALES MANAGER—Just out of army wishes place as sales manager and executive. Eight years' practical experience in national film distribution, organization, branch management, sales promotion, house organs and publicity. Highest New York references. Interview desired to offer concrete evidence of ability and previous accomplishments. Address B. B. B., care Motion Picture News.

ADVERTISING—Wanted, position handling advertising for photoplay concern or in responsible position directly under advertising manager. Have had extensive experience writing ad copy as well as practical newspaper and theatrical experience, press agenting large middle western houses. Am 23 years old. Address J. M. M., Motion Picture News.

STUDIO WORK—Position wanted by man who can qualify as assistant director, technical director, casting director, studio manager. Has had special experience on serials. Formerly with Pathe and Astra studios as general utility and assistant director to Louis Gasnier and Donald MacKenzie. Just completed fifteen months' service in U. S. N. R. F. Address Studio, Motion Picture News.

Hedda Nova, in "What Every Woman Wants," through Robertson-Cole

SITUATIONS WANTED

PUBLICITY—Who has a position for a young man, honorably discharged from the army? Previous to signing up with Uncle Sam I had been engaged in newspaper work and magazine writing. I am desirous of securing a position doing publicity or advertising work. Address L. J. B., Motion Picture News.

SALESMAN—Just received honorable discharge from U. S. Army and once more wish to take up duties as salesman. Am 20 years of age; 3 years' experience as a salesman and can furnish best references as to ability. Would be glad to take up any other position in Film game that would finally lead to the selling end. Faithfully promise no A. W. O. L. Can call at your convenience. Address M. G., care of Motion Picture News.

SALESMAN—First class film salesman discharged from U. S. Army. Capable of managing exchange. Desire to locate with reliable firm where executive ability is wanted. Highest credentials. Address R. S., care of Motion Picture News.

PUBLICITY MAN—Honorably discharged from the navy. Have had experience writing sub-titles, film editing and arranging general advertising matter. College graduate. Moderate salary with concern where there is chance to grow. Address Geo. Goldberg, 52 St. Nicholas avenue, New York City.

WANTED—Honorably discharged soldier desires position with film company. Nineteen years of age and can give best of references. Address M. Laurie, 1 East 118th street, New York City.

WANTED—Honorably discharged soldier, 19, wishes place with film company, doing anything which will be appreciated by advancement. Can furnish best references. Address James Luxemberg, 1487 Fifth avenue, New York City.

SITUATIONS WANTED

STUDIO—Position wanted by young man who can qualify as assistant director or under advertising manager. Still in navy, expecting to be discharged shortly. Graduate of technical college. Experience in newspaper and theatrical work. Address H. A. T., care Motion Picture News.

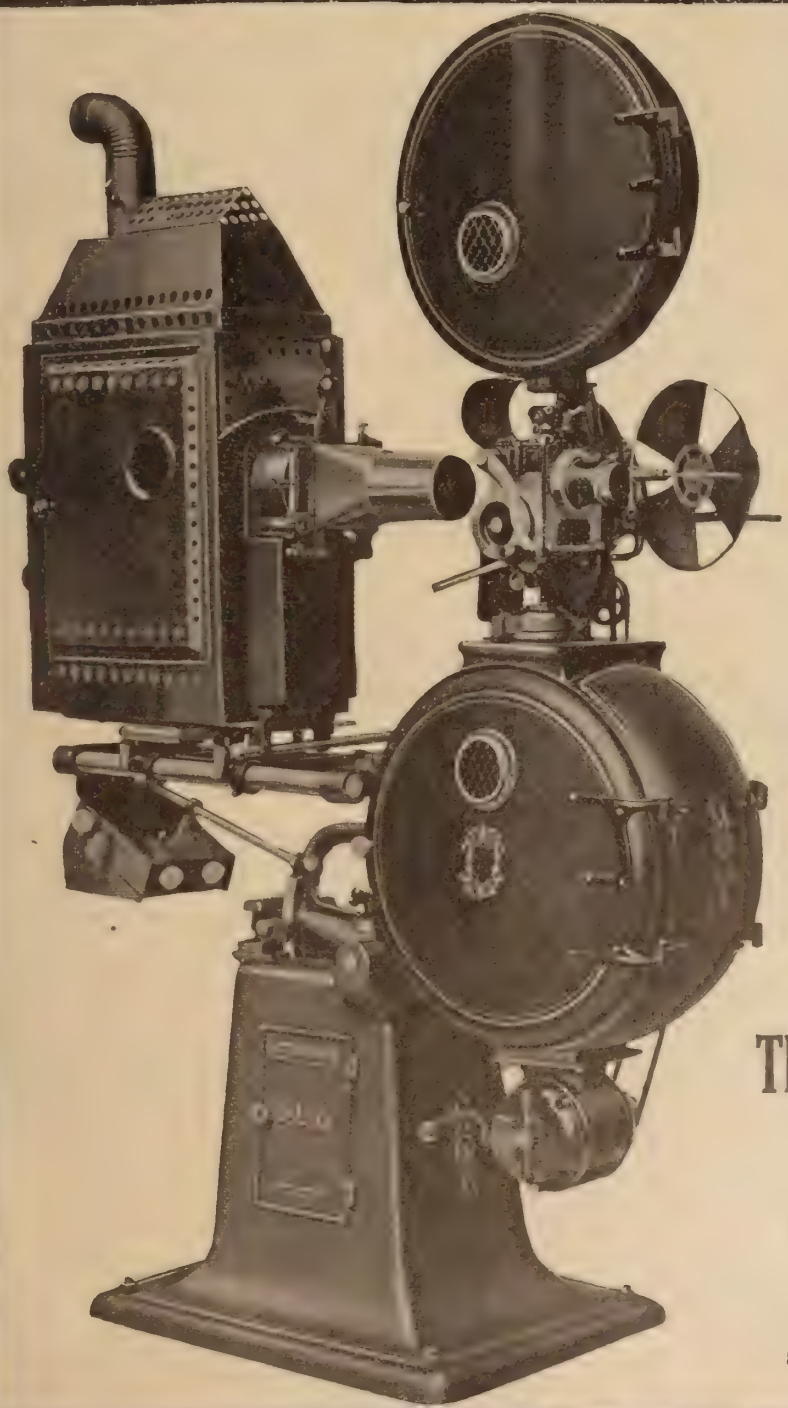
OPERATOR—Just discharged from service. Competent operator and electrician. Five years' experience; best of references. Go anywhere. Salary your limit. State all first. Address Wisconsin, Motion Picture News. H. J. Brackendor, 209 South Central Avenue, Marshfield, Wis.

PHOTOGRAPHER — Commercial photographer, 23 years of age, seeks opportunity to enter photographic end of motion pictures. Have had over six years' practical photographic experience. Canadian born, educated in England and Belgium, speak French. Not afraid of working hard. What I seek is the start and chance to learn. Address Montreal, Motion Picture News.

WANTED—Honorably discharged soldier wishes employment at anything with motion picture company. Acting preferred. Address V. Petione, 22 Prince street, New York City.

Three New Publicity Men for Universal

Three divisional publicity men have been added to the staffs of Universal exchanges according to announcement of Tarkington Baker, general director of publicity for Universal.



A. A. Millman, has been appointed publicity manager of the Philadelphia Universal branch; S. Clark Patchin, has been appointed publicity director of the Spokane, Wash. office, and M. Bellman, formerly of the Seattle Times, has taken over the publicity work at the Seattle, Wash. branch.

G. Horace Mortimer, who conducted the publicity campaign on "The Heart of Humanity" during its first run in New York, has been appointed special publicity representative for this production. Mr. Mortimer returned from Montreal February 14, where he helped prepare the advertising and publicity campaign on the initial Canadian showing of the film.

Short Subjects Coming

The increasing success of William Fox Sunshine Comedies in downtown Pittsburgh is cited by the Fox Film Corporation as an indication of the increasing recognition of short subjects value. The Harris Theatre has taken the Sunshine Comedies on second run. Other downtown houses that are using them are the Grand, which has them on first run, the Avenue, the Majestic, the Idle Hour, the Wonderland, Crystal, Arcade and Temple.

Equipment Service

If it is a serviceable, perfect projecting Projecting Machine you want in your booth, then the "MOTIOGRAPH" De LUXE would be a wise buy.

The Modern Theatre's success is built on SERVICE.

The "MOTIOGRAPH" De LUXE gives SERVICE that SERVES.

(Write for Literature)

The Enterprise Optical Mfg. Company

564 W. Randolph Street
Chicago, Illinois

WESTERN OFFICE:
833 Market St., San Francisco, Calif.

Projection Music Laboratory Studio Theatre

MOTION PICTURE CARBONS

For Alternating Current Projection

The White A. C. Special carbon completely covers the field of alternating current projection. No matter what your current requirement may be or whether your house has a long throw or a short throw, the White A. C. Special carbons fill the bill. These carbons are noted for their noiseless and flickerless operation.

The following requirements must be fulfilled by the light source in order that the picture be projected upon the screen perfectly:

1. A rugged light source not affected by any slight changes in voltage.
2. A penetrating, pure white light giving even screen illumination so necessary for clear and sharp definition.
3. A strong, flexible light, variable at the will of the operator according to the density of the film.

White A. C. Special carbons fulfill these requirements in every particular. No new current consuming apparatus needed.

COLUMBIA SILVERTIP COMBINATION

For Direct Current

GIVES A STEADY ARC WITH MAXIMUM BRILLIANCY

CIRCULARS SENT ON REQUEST

NATIONAL CARBON COMPANY, INC., Cleveland, Ohio

The Essential Requirements
for

Improved Projection

are

SPEER CARBONS

SPEER Alterno Combinations
for A.C. Work
and
SPEER Hold-Ark Combinations
for D.C. Work

Produce Incomparable Results

Write today for descriptive folders. Read the unbiased opinions of operators

Place an order now with your Supply House

"The Carbons with a Guarantee"

Manufactured by
SPEER CARBON COMPANY
ST. MARYS, PA.

Directors and camera men rely on the latitude, speed and dependability of

EASTMAN FILM

That this confidence is not misplaced is shown by the results on the screen.

Identifiable by the words "Eastman" and "Kodak" on the film margin

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Equipment Service,

Devoted to the technical branches of the motion picture industry, containing records of the latest accomplishments in the mechanical and scientific field; projection helps, inventions and suggestions; camera devices analyzed and commented upon; musical cue sheets for important feature pictures; improvements and innovations in the building and furnishing field.

No charge is made in these departments for answering questions of any nature. Correspondence is invited.

E. KENDALL GILLETT.....Editor

"Speed Up, Jack"

NO, this is not a very large town. The last time the Mayor called the selectmen together they decided there must be about twenty-five thousand living within the town limits.

Competition? You bet there is competition. Did you ever see a live community of our size where there were not about three too many picture shows? We have four theatres and four "store fronts" and they all keep open, the "store fronts" on nerve I think.

We have two real houses—directly across the street from each other—real houses not because they seat more but because they are kept clean, always well ventilated and have fine music. My boss and the boss over there sometimes don't speak for months because they think they can compete better by being at odds. This is what the film salesmen like because it means better bidding on service and specials and a higher rental to report to the home office. Some people can't see beyond their noses.

The projection equipment is about the same. We both have motor generators, new projectors this year, new screens, about ninety foot throws, in fact, conditions are as near the same as two men who hate each other could possibly make them.

Both projection rooms, beside being well equipped and cared for, have windows on the street so that I can look out and see whether there is a line waiting for the second show over there or whether things are slow.

The competing projectionist and I are as much interested in beating out the other house as our bosses except that we talk, compare notes and then fight our battles on the screen for it takes a hundred per cent picture to put the house over, and don't let any one tell you different.

As I went up to the projection room Saturday night the boss told me he had closed for the greatest picture ever made, eight reels, battle scenes, a story the like of which had never been written before, in fact, the finest ever, with a background of eight weeks run on Broadway.

Monday it opened on a four day run after being advertised all over town—two days had before always been the limit. If this was the greatest picture produced it would take the finest projecting—that's where I came in.

The crowd was not large. It was a little over average, but with a twenty-five and forty cent price at the door it showed better box office receipts than usual. The patrons across the street were attracted and after each of their shows they came over and read all our advertising, looked at the stills and were impressed.

The next night?—well we were full before opening time—all the police in town were there keeping order to say nothing of watching the show. Across the street they did not have a "corporal's guard." The worst of it was, they kept coming, and could not get in. It certainly looked great. Two lines all the way down the block. As I finished the fourth reel the phone rang.

"Speed her up, Jack, I never saw such a crowd. We can't hold them much longer. Let her go—not over nine minutes—" Bang, went the receiver.

When I'm running this projection room no picture I run goes faster than twelve to fifteen minutes per reel, I said to myself, as I went back to work. It was not ten minutes when the bell sounded again.

"Didn't I tell you to speed up? Now do it or I'll fire you."

"Fire away but while I'm here this picture runs at standard speed"——Bang——again went the receiver.

The stairs creaked and the boss stuck his head in. He was purple with rage.

"Speed up, I tell you, speed up."

I paid no attention. He came in and again began his tirade. Bang, went the douser. The house was dark.

"What are you doing?" he raged.

"My duty," I said. "That picture is wonderful and I am not going to be the one to spoil it by improper projection. If you want to finish the show, do it." By this time I had my coat on and was ready to leave.

"For God's sake finish, but don't waste time. Think of those people waiting to get in." This he finished as he closed the door and went below.

The show went on. The interruption had lasted but little longer than it would have taken to straighten things out had the film broken, and as no one knew of our argument they were all happy. The second show was just as crowded as the first. All records had been broken.

After I had cleaned up I went down to the office and, to my surprise, the boss was still there. He was waiting for me. He apologized profusely. He said he had been a fool, that the picture would have been ruined had I done as he requested, and on the strength of it gave me a raise.

Now the point I want to make is that when the boss says—"Speed her up, Jack," it is up to the projectionist to tell him where he gets off in no uncertain terms.

Remember, pictures—good pictures—cost money to make. The people pay money to see them, therefore, the best the theatre man and the projectionist can do is to make them as near one hundred per cent perfect on the screen as is possible.

Every projectionist's job depends upon the gate receipts and the future of pictures depends upon the way he shows them.

E. K. GILLETT.

Equipment Operating Projection Questions Answered

The Small Town Projectionist

THE following letter is most interesting and should be read by all those who are interested in better screencraft.

We are accustomed to think that the city contains the best and most up-to-the-minute projectionists but I am beginning to believe that this is a wrong impression. The man who is the best in the long run is the man who has his heart in his work, whether he be in the small town or in the city.

This is well brought out in the following. Read it carefully and let us hear what you have to say:

February 17, 1919.

Motion Picture News, 729 Seventh avenue, New York City, N. Y.

Gentlemen:

I have been reading so much and many letters of late under projection that I have decided to give you an essay on small-town operators, they being left out because they are either afraid to write or have not the time. My experience may be interesting to some of the big ones, who have the idea that the city is the only place where motion pictures are shown. A little town not far from here, with a population of about 800, shows thirty-day stuff three times a week, and they have a real honest-to-God operator there who puts on an A-1 picture. The union in a small town is out of the question, on account of wages and, anyway, small-town people are down on the union. The union is all right, but please don't let the union get it into its head that the only operators are union men. There are several thousand operators outside of the city who don't even know what a union is, or what a license is, but they put a real picture on the screen. Now I will proceed with my essay.

The Small-Town Operator

A long time ago when I was working at the State Hospital for Insane as an electrician's helper for the Arthur Franz Electric Company of Chicago, I became interested in motion pictures and their projection. I remember the first machine I ever saw; it was an Edison barrel-type, calcium light. The film, as it came from the lower sprocket, went into a barrel, there being no take-up on the machine. I was working at night at the Grand Opera House in this city as "props." I might say here that I have always held down two jobs, one in the daytime and one in the evening. It was during this engagement at said opera house that I became interested in the projection of pictures.

Later, I became an electrician and contractor in the daytime and at night a stage electrician and operator. I have put in fifteen years doing stage work and operating, and have made small towns around here to repair and put machines in shape again.

The small-town theatre will seat around three hundred people. There are almost always two theatres in a town of 5,000. The booth, machine room or cage, as commonly called, is the last thing that is ever thought of. It is usually about 6 x 6 x 7, with one machine. There is room to turn around and that is all. It is from here a good picture is projected to please the people and, I might say, they are always pleased.

The daily work of an operator in a small town is work at some other job till 6 P.M., rush your supper, beat it to the show, grab your films, rewind on to large reels, trim your lamp, look over and oil machine, fix a belt or look the motor over, clean the booth, and have the show started at 7 P.M. Just one hour in which to do all this. The show starts at seven, a six-reel show; fifteen minutes to 1,000 feet; big crowd; manager pounding you on the back to rush the first show. If you rush it you spoil the production, spoil the film and have a breakdown. Then what happens? A calldown from the manager and next day people stop you and ask what was wrong.

For all this the operator receives the sum of $10 to $12 per week.

In a small town you have to be an electrician, operator, machinist—and now projectionist is added by the up-to-date. I find that most operators in this size town never take time to clean their condensers or clean the objective lens. A good clean cloth and a little alcohol will do the work.

Another thing overlooked is connections, as most machines around here use A.C. sixty cycles and a transformer is used, therefore, tight connections are absolutely necessary and, above all, the carbons should have good contact.

The head of the machine should be looked at at least every night; belts and motors should be inspected often to avoid delays.

I was called to a booth once by an operator. Upon arriving I found a full house but no picture. The exchange had sent a brand new print and the operator was up against it. After putting about 300 feet through, the film began to tear and emulsion began to gather on sprockets. Well, I cleaned it all off and took a candle and held it against the film as it came out of the upper magazine. The picture was run through and then gave no more trouble.

Little breakdowns cause worry and loss of patronage. Keep a small amount of extra parts on hand, such as take-up belts and drive belts, ring bolts for the lamp, asbestos wire, tension springs, etc., and you will never have any trouble. In changing reels do it as quickly as possible. Don't kill your arc, leave it burning. In changing carbons have the new ones ready. Don't wait till the light goes out then commence to dig around for carbons and find you have to break one.

Time counts in a small house where there is only one machine; use your brain and avoid delays.

When a small town operator has spent from one to two years in a booth, providing he is a fellow of fairly good education, he will no doubt turn out to be an A1 man. If some of the union operators were to work in places like we do and receive the wages we do, how long would they stay in a small town? I have seen an operator, a "union man," come to Cherokee to operate in a pinch, and I have seen the people leave the theatre on account of poor projection. The poor fellow was lost in a strange place. He should, however, have been able to step into any booth and put an A-1 picture on the screen.

Do unions consider small town operators second raters? I hope not, as we find some mighty fine operators outside of the union in the small town.

I joined the N. A. M. L., No. 661, and am ready to join anything else that will help in the projection of the silent drama.

All operators in every state should be compelled to pass an examination on projection before being allowed to enter the booth. In this way the public will get the best. The danger of fire from having a novice as operator will be eliminated. Is it not possible for all operators to get together and make projection 100 per cent for the coming year, to keep the machine clean, to give the best in the projection line, and, above all, put their whole heart and soul in the work.

Yours very truly,
Garland L. Goldie.

General Electric A. C. Compensarc

THE alternating current compensarc is designed to control the arc lamps on moving picture machines.

The need of some kind of a device for this purpose is obvious when it is known that moving picture machine arc lamps, where an A. C. arc is used, operate at approximately 35 volts at the arc, while the voltage obtainable from practically all commercial lighting circuits is either 110 or 220 volts. Some electrical device must of necessity, therefore, be used between the line and the lamp to take care of the difference in voltage. Formerly iron wire or grid resistance rheostats were used. Their use, however, resulted in a waste of all that energy supplied from the line over and above that actually required by the lamp.

The A. C. compensarc is a transformer, and has no parts to get out of order. The device is complete in itself, there being no auxiliaries external to the compensarc.

The core is made of the highest grade sheet steel laminations, similar to standard transformer construction. The outer surface of the core is fully exposed to the air. The coils are mounted within the core and are completely protected and thoroughly insulated. Core and coils are given a vacuum treatment, making them moisture and waterproof.

The assembled core and coils are supported by a cast iron base having four legs which hold the compensarc at a convenient height from the floor. The case is also of cast iron, and rests on the top of the core. It is liberally ventilated and encloses the ends of the coils and protects the connections on the inside. A slate top supports the switch blade and clips. The slate top, case and bare are securely held together by four long, heavy bolts, one passing through each corner of the slate top, case and base, outside the core.

A horizontal, three-step, continuous circuit switch is mounted on the slate top, providing three adjustments for intensity of light. Each adjustment is so designed that it maintains approximately the same voltage at the arc while passing from one step to the next, without at any time opening the circuit which would consequently break the arc and produce flickering. There is no waiting for the arc to settle and become steady before the intensity of the light can be determined. The compensarc increases or decreases the intensity of the light without a flicker.

A cast iron cover over the slate top completely encloses the switch blade and contacts, making it impossible for accidental short circuits to occur, and also removes all danger to the operator. The terminals to the line and lamp are brought out through porcelain insulators in the cover. The lamp terminals are plainly designated by the world LAMP cast on the cover where the terminals come through.

The compensarc is so designed that excessive current and consequent excessive heat cannot result even with the arc lamp carbons in contact.

In order to install the compensarc, it is necessary to connect both wires from the operating circuit to the two terminals marked "Line," and from the two terminals marked "Lamp" connect the wires leading to the terminals of the picture machine lamp. As this is an alternating current device, there are no positive or negative wires.

The primary or line wires should be fused with a fuse about half the size of the maximum current at the lamp. This would ordinarily require about 30 ampere fuse.

This device is adjustable in three steps, which three steps have been found to meet the general service conditions. When the switch is open no current flows through the lamp, so the operator can freely take out the carbons and make any adjustments required without opening the line switch.

Throwing the switch blade in contact with clip No. 1 gives an adjustment, so that with thee carbons separated about 3-16

"PROBLEM"

A Difficult Problem for the average producer is to determine just the kind of developing and printing that meets the public requirements.

To help solve this, we give if desired, thorough study to the needs of each individual producer.

TEL. BRYANT 7190

REPUBLIC LABORATORIES, INC.
729 SEVENTH AVENUE NEW YORK, N.Y.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT

Our activities for the past year have been nearly 100 per cent. devoted to war production of vital importance to the government, compelling us to discontinue regular manufacture in practically all of our lines.

The cessation of hostilities has now enabled us to begin the readjustment to a peace production basis. While this adjustment must be gradual, we are pressing it with all possible speed in order to satisfy the requirements of our normal trade at an early date.

We appreciate the patience and understanding with which our patrons have reacted to the situation and trust they may continue to exercise such consideration until our manufacturing facilities are once more on a pre-war footing.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.
559 ST. PAUL STREET ROCHESTER, N.Y.
New York Washington Chicago San Francisco

Leading American Makers of Microscopes, Projection Apparatus (Balopticons), Photographic Lenses, Ophthalmic Lenses and Instruments, Range Finders and Gun Sights for Army and Navy, Searchlight Reflectors, Binoculars and Other High-Grade Optical Products

THERE IS NO QUESTION ABOUT THIS—Nothing is more necessary to complete picture success than superior DEVELOPING and PRINTING.

Comparison will convince you that EVANS' SERVICE is indispensable if you wish to attain the highest degree of perfection.

EVANS FILM MFG. CO.
416-24 West 216th St. New York City
Telephone St. Nicholas 3443-3444

SWAAB'S MOTORS

for Power 6A and 6B are pleasing their users—not a single one has fallen down or been returned. They are sold for $37.50 and $40.00 respectively and are complete absolutely. Dealers do not recommend our Motor Equipments because they cannot make anything on them. We have priced them so that the Exhibitor gets the best price regardless of the Dealer. We are exclusive distributors of the SIMPLEX Machines. We repair all makes of machines and sell all supplies. Your old machines taken in trade for SIMPLEX.

LEWIS M. SWAAB
1329 Vine Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

inch the current supply is approximately 30 amperes. In contact with clip No. 2 the adjustment changes, so that approximately 40 amperes flow through the lamp.

Throwing the switch blade over to clip No. 3 allows approximately 60 amperes to flow through the lamp.

National Anti-Misframe League Pledge

AS a motion picture operator who has the interest of his profession at heart and is willing to assist in eliminating some of the evils practised in the operating-room, I promise that I will to the best of my ability return films to the exchange in first-class condition. Furthermore, I will when it becomes necessary remedy all misframes, bad patches, etc., that may be in the film which I receive and in this way co-operate with my brother operators and give greater pleasure to those who make up the motion picture audience by showing films that are free from such defects. I also promise that I will not make punch marks in film, and when film is received by me, with punch holes, I will notify the exchange to that effect so that they may use their efforts to correct this evil.

Roll of Honor

Taylor Haystings ..... Enid, Okla.
Frank Fortenberry ..... Meridian, Miss.
Harry Lorenzo Shetler ..... Williamsport, Pa.

Members Previously Recorded	961
Members Recorded this Week	15
Total Membership to Date	976

Notice! Anti-Misframe League Members

Membership cards are now ready and are being sent out as fast as possible. There are a number of operators, however, who have neglected to send in the desired information. If you will fill out the blank and mail to this office, button and membership card will be forwarded.

Blank for New League Members

Member's name.....

Home address.....

Name of theatre where employed.....

Address of theatre and name of manager.....

This notice does not apply to those who have already sent in this information, but it is for those who have neglected doing so, many having merely given their names and name of city, without any street address, making it impossible for the post office to deliver the letters addressed to them.

Harry Levey Asks: Why Is a Projection Outfit?

THERE is an old saying that goes: "Anything worth doing is worth doing well." It is a saying which, in the last analysis, has been responsible for success since the beginning of time; it is especially true in the case of American industry.

American industry long ago got into the habit of doing things well, of listening to the voice of progress and to the dictate of innovation. It has ever accepted any idea that spelled co-operation and success.

And so it was when the motion picture came along with its new wonders and opened up untold possibilities of efficiency and expansion. It is truly amazing how rapidly the services of this powerful organ of intelligence and understanding were impressed; how it has advanced its position in the ranks of industry—until today, when it has come to be regarded as one of the major essentials of any industrial unit. For no industry may call itself successful unless it has reached that stage where further advancement demands that the services of the cinema camera be called in to visualize and perpetuate its drama and romance. It may be truly said that the motion picture is the ultimate advertising hope of American business. Which is indeed a commentary upon the importance this comparatively new medium has assumed.

But up to the present time, it seems to me, leaders of industry have apparently overlooked a very important factor in getting their message over and in completing their conquest. I refer to projection; to independent projection. This, so it seems to me, has been the weakest link—next to the question of distribution, of course—in the entire Industrial Picture chain, and one which in a great many instances has prevented one hundred per cent. results. It is quite remarkable how so vital a matter as this could have been neglected in the manner it has been.

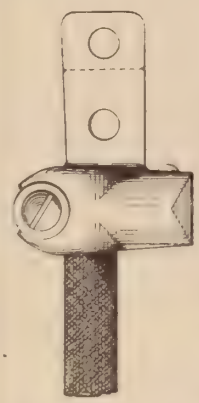
Is it not a fact that a man will go to great expense and trouble in having his plant, product or method visualized for screen purposes, secure outside distribution—and then let it go at that? Is it not a fact that in a great majority of cases he will be absolutely dependent upon outside sources for the proper showing of his own property?

To my mind, this state of affairs has existed all too long. There isn't a reason in the world why any organization owning an industrial picture of special or technical interest should not possess within it the means of showing that picture, at any time, at any place, and under circumstances and conditions of its own choosing. I will not say that the exhibitor, the man who runs the local theatre, is not the all-important factor in the matter of general distribution, but I do maintain that he can do no more for the industrial motion picture than industry itself is willing to do for it. You cannot count upon him for special showings; for that is not his business.

Let us consider what these special showings mean. To begin with, they mean those presentations which are of no moment to the public at large; but which are of immense interest to employees', directors' and stockholders' meetings, and conventions; to dealers, buyers and prospects—in fact, your most highly concentrated and productive field. A field that under no circumstances ought be left to the tender mercies of a casual exhibitor. To him a picture is something that must amuse and entertain—first, last and always! To you it may mean something quite different.

Happily, however, I am glad to note that this condition is swiftly passing and that everywhere captains of industry are keenly alive to the situation and are doing everything within their power to bring about the desired change.

Take the case of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., for instance, a large concern owning thousands upon thousands of feet of very interesting and productive Industrial film. A pioneer in this field, this company many months ago placed an order for projection machines for each of its numerous branches. Recently these machines, practical outfits costing no more than fifty dollars, were delivered! and to quote Mr. Firestone, who was more than delighted with them:



"Mr. Levey, of the industrial department of the Universal Film Co., is certainly a man of many clever ideas; but I doubt whether he ever interested me in a more valuable or more profitable investment than in prevailing upon me to acquire these splendid little projection machines. They make for expansion and they make for efficiency, and will pay for themselves a hundredfold. No one of my branches will ever again be without one."

Get your copy!

Just off the press—New Typhoon booklet shows you how to do a good business all through the hottest summer weather.

Send a post-card for your free copy TODAY

TYPHOON FAN COMPANY
Box 109, 281 Lexington Ave., New York

Eclipse Wire Lug
(PATENTED)

The most efficient, serviceable and convenient lug for lead wires to picture machine lamp.

Leverage action grips wire like a vise.

Descriptive circular on request.

75c pair [$2.00 for 6 $3.00 for 12

Cash with Order or Parcel Post C. O. D.

ECLIPSE TERMINAL
Box 617 Syracuse, N. Y.

GOERZ

Goerz Kino Hypar F:3.5

The reconstruction period now at hand demands that the camera-man possess the best possible equipment, otherwise he cannot meet keen competition. The GOERZ KINO HYPAR F:3.5 is still unsurpassed. It is made in 1⅝, 2, 2½ and 3-inch focal lengths and it may be fitted to any standard camera. GOERZ VIGNETTING DEVICES are made to work with the GOERZ KINO HYPAR lens. This combination is the last word in motion-picture field or studio equipment for the up-to-the-minute camera-man. Write or call for latest information.

C. P. GOERZ AMERICAN OPTICAL COMPANY
317J East 34th Street, New York City

Cue Sheets Latest Hits | Music | Musical Equipment

Carrie Jacobs-Bond, Philosopher and Composer

HISTORY recounts that geniuses seldom are appreciated during their lifetime, no matter what sphere of activity their work lies. This is more true of the musician than any branch of profession or art. McDowell or Stephen Foster are to-day but scantily reaping the appreciations of their genius.

A song which has taken hold not only upon the American public, but almost the whole world to-day, solely because of its beautiful simplicity is "A Perfect Day," composed by Carrie Jacobs-Bond. The life of this female genius reads like a romance, and once more gives reason to asseverate that truth is stranger than fiction; for it is the record of struggles against odds and triumphing over obstacles. No easy thing is it to introduce something new to the American public and make a success. It required years of arduous incessant work, for Mrs. Bond's success has been one of gradual growth from the time that she began her publishing in one little room to the enormous business that she and her son now control and which is known from Chicago to the Antipodes.

With unlimited faith in herself and her gifts, she knew that she had something to give the public, something that would make appeal to the better nature of people, that something which is wholesome sentiment and a belief in human nature and which she could exemplify in song.

She worked on the principle that there is "so much good in the worst of us," and that it was only a matter of getting at it in a great broad way. She says her songs were, and are, for the simple people, and to them and for them she wrote. But, after all, it was not only for the people. Singers of high degree found her songs just what they wanted to get over the footlights, and realized that while the modern system of composition did well enough for the ultra-finished musician, the way to the heart was through such avenues of melody as Mrs. Bond provided. The people do not want counterpoint, they ask melody, and this is the reason why "Just Awearyin' for You" and "I Love You Truly" caught the popular fancy. They were melodious without being trashy. Her most famous song, "A Perfect Day," has run into millions of copies. Here is a song that great artists have sung and that orchestras have played and which is heard in every hamlet and village that can carry a tune. It is the subject of plays and around it sketches are written. It is heard at weddings and at dances and even in church services. Audiences redemand it at every hearing. It is the success of the century, and when one remembers that one woman wrote the words and music it is to marvel!

Carrie Jacobs-Bond is a born philosopher, and started out in life as do most American girls—with the dream to do things. She took up the study of water-color painting; to her the piano was a pastime, and she never dreamed that in later years it would become a part of her work as one of America's most popular song writers and publishers. Then came her romance. She married Dr. Frank Lewis Bond, and went to live in northern Michigan. There among the pine, hemlock and cedar she lived close to Nature in the logging and mining camps. The folk among whom she lived displayed the emotions common to all humanity, and she there learned to appreciate the bigness of little things; she learned to understand the value of simplicity. In thosee happy honeymoon days, amid the joys of establishing her home, she little dreamed that later these experiences would be so useful to her.

With the genius of adapting suitable words to express her musical ideas, Mrs. Bond has won a pronounced distinction as a composer. She writes songs around old-time memories—memories as sweet as the scent of lavender and wild roses, and she knows how to exploit these songs so they will reach the hearts of the people.

Though a dreamer, she is always awake during business hours; an executive who may be meditative and given to poetic fancy, but she knows how to take advantage of an opportunity. As the head of the music publishing house which bears the name of Carrie Jacobs-Bond & Son, she has earned her laurels as a business woman.

Her concerts are not in the stilted manner of a professional; they rather reveal the rare combination of poetess, singer and composer. Her voice might not be called a singing voice exactly, but seems more adapted to a recitative—a voice that in speaking is music itself. Even when she "talks" her songs, or half-sings them, there is the joyousness, the note of pathos that would make Mrs. Bond famous as an actress if she were not a composer.

'Tis the mission of some people to bring joy to the lives of others, but seldom does it happen that to one woman it is given to bring joy to millions, and yet this may be said to be the good fortune of Mrs. Carrie Jacobs-Bond, whose songs deal with the everyday life affairs, love, happiness, friendship and sorrow, but not much of the last, as she has known too well the sadness of life to wish to bring it too close. Her songs are sung wherever there is home life of the real people and where friends gather.

No career of to-day reads more like a fairy tale than this of the most successful song writer, who not alone writes the music, but the words. Her gifts are originality and charm, and there are few of the commonplacees of life that she has not made beautiful. She has sentiment and mind, a genius for combining the two, for in the very beginning of her career she was obliged to utilize her own judgment, her son being too young to have the knowledge demanded for the conduct of a business which to-day in size and scope is scarcely smaller than that of the publishers who are bringing out the words of dozens of different composers in the course of a year.

The entire plant is one most interesting, and it is to wonder how one brain could have created such a comprehensive piece of machinery or to keep such a splendid organization going year after year.

Carrie Jacobs-Bond is the "words" of the Bond shop. She is the power that has built up one of the most remarkable of all business. It is an education to visit the home of the "Bond" songs, and spend a day there experiencing the many details that pertain to the carrying on of the enterprise which now, in its seventeenth year, has an output that will run into the millions each twelve months. And when one remembers the discouragements that were hers in the early beginning, it is to wonder and admire.

Mrs. Bond, when she was thrown on her own resources, began her simple narrative with only the hope that she might be enabled to solve the problems of existence and in the way most natural to her. It required courage and infinite faith. How well she has succeeded needs no retelling. Carrie Jacobs-Bond is an American institution.

THE EDITORS.

"Heart of Wetona" Song Dedicated to Norma Talmadge

LEO FEIST, the music publisher, is bringing out a new song this month entitled "Heart of Wetona," with words by Sidney D. Mitchell, and music by Archie Gottler. The song is dedicated to Norma Talmadge, and bears an autographed photograph of the Select Star on the cover. Miss Talmadge's splendid work in "The Heart of Wetona," the picture scenarioized from the popular play of the same name by George Scarborough, was the inspiration for the Mr. Mitchell's charming Indian lyrics and likewise for Mr. Gottler's lovely music.

It seems to be getting the fashion to dedicate songs to Norma Talmadge. This is the third time she has been so honored. "San San," the song written by Danny Nirella, who has several highly successful songs to his credit, was dedicated to Miss Talmadge in recognition of her artistic portrayal of the role of San San in "The Forbidden City."

"Heart of Wetona" will be placed on sale the last week in January, and many professional singers will shortly introduce the song in vaudeville and restaurants and concerts. Exhibitors will probably want to take advantage of this tuneful little Indian song and use it as a part of their musical program during the showing of the picture.

Review of Latest Musical Compositions

1—"The Better 'Ole"—Ullo! 'ere's some 'its! Orchestra arrangements now ready from the tremendous comedy success, as presented by Mr. and Mrs. Coburn at the Cort theatre, New York, "The Better 'Ole." Selection, introducing the principal numbers, waltz, "When You Look in the Heart of a Rose," one-step (potpourri), introducing "When We Take That Trip Across the Rhine," "Rommy," and "A Little Regiment of Your Own." (Leo Feist, 335 W. 40th St., N. Y.)

2—"Bits of Remick's Hits No. 19B"—A new medley overture just published, containing the following late popular songs: "I've Got the Blue Ridge Blues," "I'll Love You More, etc.," "Smiles," "You Don't Know," "'Till We Meet Again," "For Your Boy and My Boy," "Medelon" and "Tackin' 'Em Down." This is a crackerjack selection and one which your audiences will appreciate. (J. Remick, 220 W. 46th St., N. Y.)

3—"When the Robert E. Lee Arrives in Old Tennessee All the Way from Gay Paree"—A go from the start—a coon war song of a tremendous popular calibre—it's by Jimmy Monaco—a dandy one-step. (Carl Fischer-Witmark Orch & Band Dept., Cooper Sq., N. Y.)

4—"My Dreamy Little Lotus Flower"—Fox-trot. Mr. Forster says of this number, "Not only my competitors but my worst enemies concede that 'Hindustan' is the greatest fox-trot hit published!" Well, it sure is SOME dance tune—so is "My Dreamy Little Lotus Flower," by Abe Olman. It's the type of fox-trot the dancers like—the kind you'll like to play. Why not play the kind of melodies your patrons enjoy instead of the SHOO FLY stuff that never makes good? Good! music costs no more in price than the poor stuff. (Forster Music Pub., Inc., 736 S. Mich. Ave., Chicago, Ill.)

5—"Military Suite"—The composer of this excellent suite has provided the musician with every necessary characteristic of music to depict an entire battle from the opening bugle call to the lamentable and pathetic scenes of a devastated battle scene. (Belwin, Inc., 701 7th Ave., N. Y.)

6—"Pathetic Suite"—If the famous and world-known "Lamento," by Gabriel-Marie, or "Bleeding Hearts," by Sol P. Levy are judged to be standards of musical literature, then "Reverie" and "Elegie" contained in the "Pathetic Suite" surpass either of the above world-famous numbers. (Belwin, Inc.)

7—"Chopiniana Suite"—In this extraordinary and beautiful suite will be found three of Chopin's best, but unknown creations. The orchestrations are particularly designed to meet the requirements of any combination of musicians. (Belwin, Inc.)

8—"Southern Nights," by Lee S. Roberts. Here's a sunny dance melody, the kind they all like. The remarkable success attained by this writer's compositions is one of the sensations in the world of music. "Smiles," "Hawaiian Nights" and his other numbers all reflect his extraordinary gift as a writer of beautiful dance numbers. (Richmond, 145 W. 45th St., N. Y.)

9—"In the Land of Beginning Again"—The newest Feist ballad—a beautiful melody that adapts itself splendidly for dancing. One-step by Geo. W. Meyer, that versatile and popular writer. (Feist Edition.)

10—"There's a Little Blue Star in the Window and It Means All the World to Me" (one-step). From the internationally popular ballad by F. Henrio Klickman. A sure hit. (McKinley Music Co., 145 W. 45th St., N. Y.)

LATEST MUSIC CUES

"SHADOWS OF SUSPICION"

Specially selected and compiled by M. Winkler.

The timing is based on a speed limit of 14 minutes per reel (1,000 ft.)

Theme: "Jealous Moon" (Moderato Ballad), by Zamecnik

1—Theme (2 minutes and 45 seconds), at Screening.
2—"Impish Elves" (Winsome Intermezzo), by Borch (3 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "Bally good shot, eh what?"
3—Theme (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—S: When Doris runs from Cyril.
4—"Babillage" (Allegretto Intermezzo), by Castillo (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "You dear old silly."
5—"Heavy Dr. Ag. No. 1," by Luz (3 minutes), until—T: "At the office of the British."
6—"Norma" (Waltz Intermezzo), by Luz (4 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "Around the festive board at—."
7—"Furioso" (Half Reel Hurry), by Levy (4 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "The barbaric Hun sends" (fire, aeroplane and battle effects).
8—"Tragic Theme," by Vely (2 minutes), until—T: "Now Cyril, can't you understand?"
9—"Dramatic Tension No. 9," by Andino (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "You have your orders and I have."
10—"The Crafty Spy" (Original Descriptive Mysterioso), by Borch (2 minutes), until—T: "When Hammersley leaves I will" (auto effects).
11—"Heavy Desc. Ag. No. 2," by Luz (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—T: "What were Sir John's threats?"
12—"Galop No. 7," by Minot (3 minutes), until—T: "Faster, Stryker, faster" (auto effects).
13—"Hurry" (Half Reel Hurry), by Levy (3 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "They are after me, dear."
14—"Slimy Viper" (Mysterioso Tone Picture), by Borch (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—T: "On the morrow" (shot).
15—"Perpetual Motion" (Allegro Agitato), by Borch (4 minutes), until—T: "This is more of Hammersley's" (auto effects).
16—"Dramatic Tension No. 44," by Borch (1 minute), until—T: "Give me the papers and I will."
17—"Agitato No. 49," by Shepherd (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—S: When Sir John sees paper (china-crash).
18—"Dramatic Tension No. 67," by Shepherd (3 minutes and 45 seconds), until—S: When Sir John escapes.
19—"Orchestra tacet (30 seconds), until—T: "We've got 'em, Chief."
20—"Heavy Dr. Desc. (Set. 18), by Luz (45 seconds), until—T:
21—"Heavy Agitato" Set. 18), by Luz (3 minutes), until—T: "And tonight we will blow."
"Within the hour" (auto effects).
22—"Heavy Andante" (Set. 18), by Luz (3 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "I have bad news, Miss Mather."
23—"Hurry No. 33," by Minot (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "Go with Miss Mather" (auto effects).
24—Orchestra tacet (1 minute and 15 seconds), until—S: When Germans drink toast.
25—"Furioso No. 11," by Kiefert (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—S: When Doris screams (shots).
26—Theme (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—T: "England owes you a debt"—until * * * * * * END.

Typhoon Company Issues Booklet

A VERY interesting booklet, describing the Typhoon System of cooling and ventilating theatres has been issued by the Typhoon Fan Company, New York. The pamphlet opens with a description of the advantages of air-cooling by the "Breeze Method"—its comparatively low cost, easy installation and highly satisfactory results.

It is attractively illustrated, with many photographs and drawings showing in detail the adaptation of the Typhoon Cooling System to houses of different sizes and constructions.

THE BARTOLA

The largest as well as the smaller motion picture theatres are installing the Bartola Musical Instrument. It is not mechanical or automatic. Write for catalogue.

CHAS. C. PYLE, General Sales Agent, 707-712 Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill. Factory, Oshkosh, Wis.

FOR SALE—Film equipment in good condition; 1 Bell Howell camera and tripod, $600.00; 1 No. 4 American printer, $250.00; 1 General Electric Mercury Arc Rectifier, $175.00; 1 No. 2 Atlas projector, $75.00; 6 solar lamps with stands, $40.00 each; 6 solar lamps without stands, $30.00 each; 2 Underwriters Approved Inspection Room Doors, $12.00 each; 6—2000 watt lamp reflectors, $5.00 each. Atlas Educational Film Company, 61 E. Adams St., Chicago.

Phone Bryant 6808

MADE IN AMERICA
FILM RAW STOCK

"THE ROOT OF THE MOVIES"

If it is high grade sensitive films for motion pictures you want, we have it and are now ready to serve you.

BAY STATE FILM SALES CO., INC.
220 West 42nd Street NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.

A. G. STEEN, Special Representative

YOUR MONEY DOES ITS MOST IN AN ADVERTISEMENT HERE

"NEWMAN" BRASS FRAMES AND RAILS

Read What Josiah Pearce & Sons Say About Our Goods

Gentlemen:

Now that you have completed equipment in our new theatres here in New Orleans and Houston, Texas, we wan to take this means of expressing to you our appreciation of the manner in which we have done business with you, also as to the character of your goods. You have, without exception, filled our orders just as promptly as we could ever expect and probably quicker than we had anticipated, and the fact of your having supplied us with brass frames and various other equipment in our fifteen theatres is evidence that we are pleased with your goods, for they are the most attractive, durable and practical that we have as yet found.

We wish you good luck in the prosecution of your work.

Yours very truly,
JOSIAH PEARCE & SONS,
J. E. PEARCE. New Orleans, La.

The Newman Mfg. Co.

Write for our Latest Catalogue

Established 1882

Frames, Easels, Rails, Grilles, Signs Choppers, Kick Plates, Door Bars

717-19 Sycamore Street, Cincinnati, Ohio
68 W. Washington Street, Chicago, Illinois
Canadian Representative—J. T. Malone. Rialto Theatre Bldg. Montreal, Canada
Pacific Coast—G. A. Metcalfe, San Francisco, Cal

We manufacture the frames in various finishes which do not require polishing.

"A ROMANCE OF THE AIR"

(Lieut. Bert Hall-Independent)

Specially Selected and Compiled by M. Winkler

The timing is based on a speed limit of 14 minutes per reel (1,000 ft.)

Theme: "Lento Allegro" (from Symphonette Suite), by Berge

1—"Aces High" (Aviation March), by Roberts (3 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "Orders from Colonel Deville."
2—"Sinister Theme," by Vely (2 minutes and 25 seconds), until—T: Somewhere behind and high.
3—"Furioso" (Half-reel Hurry), by Levy (50 seconds), until—T: Wounded in the head.
4—Continue pp. (1 minute), until—T: A bright idea.
5—"Dramatic Suspense," by Winkler (1 minute and 15 seconds), until—T: Counters ora.
6—Continue to action (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—S: Girl at piano.
7—Piano improvising to action (30 seconds), until—S: Girl leaves piano.
8—Continue pp. (10 seconds), until—T: The arrival at the German hospital.
9—"Oympia" (Dramatic Overture), by Ascher (1 minute and 35 seconds), until—S: Girls in automobile.
10—Theme (3 minutes and 50 seconds), until—T: General Von Hoch.
11—"The Crafty Spy" (Original Descriptive Mysterioso), by Borch (1 minute and 55 seconds), until—S: Close up aeroplane.
12—"Babillage" (Allegretto Intermezzo), by Castillo (1 minute and 50 seconds), until—T: "And I heard them making plans."
13—Continue pp. (1 minute and 15 seconds), until—T: "With dawn but a few."
14—Theme (2 minutes and 40 seconds), until—S: Close up of aeroplanes.
15—"Love Song" (Dramatic), by Flegier (3 minutes and 35 seconds), until—T: "And before the sun goes down."
16—"Perpetual Motion" (Allegro Agitato), by Borch (1 minute and 20 seconds), until—S: Aeroplane lands.
17—Continue pp. (30 seconds), until—T: "Oh, glorious France."
18—"Trio of Blue Devils" (French March), by Levy (1 minute and 15 seconds), until—T: "Despite his jealousy."
19—"Sparklets" (Moderato), by Miles (3 minutes and 55 seconds), until—T: "And now, young man."
20—"The Slimy Viper" (Mysterious Tone Picture), by Borch (1 minute and 55 seconds), until—T: "There are rumors of a French."
21—Continue pp. (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—T: "Have an aviator report."
22—Theme (1 minute and 50 seconds), until—T: Lieutenant Hall instructed.
23—Continue to action (1 minute and 20 seconds), until—S: Aeroplane leaves.
24—"Vivo Finale" (Symphonette Suite), by Berge (1 minute and 55 seconds), until—T: "Hall is a lucky boy."
25—Continue pp. (40 seconds), until—T: The eve of the big offensive.
26—"Half-reel Military Hurry," by Levy (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: Only through the work.
27—Continue pp. (55 seconds), until—T: On scouting duty.
28—Continue ff. (30 seconds), until—T: A dressing station closed.
29—"Dramatic Recitative," by Levy (3 minutes and 20 seconds), until—T: The courtmartial.
30—"Victorious Democrarcy" (Grande Triomphale Fantaisie), by Borch (5 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: Saddened by the approaching.
31—Theme (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—T: And the next day's sun.
32—"Tragic Theme," by Vely (2 minutes and 35 seconds), until—T: And in the shadows.
33—"Heavy Mysterioso," by Levy (40 seconds), until—T: The working of the.
34—Continue to action (2 minutes and 25 seconds), until—T: Miss Day induces the guard.
35—"Half-reel Hurry" (for general use), by Levy (4 minutes and 55 seconds), until—T: "She is dead."
36—Theme (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—T: "And they plan a house."
37—Continue ff (15 seconds), until * * * * * END.

Another Song Dedicated to Norma Talmadge

JOS. W. STERN & CO., the music publishers, have just brought out a beautiful love song entitled "Tears," dedicated to Norma Talmadge, with words by Frank H. Warren and music by S. R. Henry. Mr. Warren is the writer of "Indianola," "Kentucky Dream" and various other popular hits. The cover of this sheet music bears a very beautiful portrait of Miss Talmadge made from a specially posed photographic study by Alfred Cheney Johnston. This is the fourth song to be inspired by Miss Talmadge within the past two or three months. The "Heart of Wetona" by Sidney D. Mitchell and Archie Gottler will be out this week, and the publishers, Leo Feist & Co., are advertising it extensively. "San San" by Dannie Nirella, was inspired by Miss Talmadge's work in "The Forbidden City" and it is still selling well.

For the exploitation of "Tears," Miss Talmadge has given her consent to the use of six slides in color from six of her most popular motion pictures. Scenes illustrating the "tears of jealousy," "tears of anger," "tears of love," etc., have been selected. These will be thrown on the screen preceded by a large head of Miss Talmadge, bearing a few lines of dedication to her as the soloist sings the song. Because of these slides and the enormous publicity value, the singers are demanding it.

"FORTUNE'S CHILD"

(Gladys Leslie-Vitagraph)

Specially Selected and Compiled by M. Winkler

The timing is based on a speed limit of 14 minutes per reel (1,000 ft.)

Theme: "May Dreams" (Moderato Romance), by Gaston Borch

1—Theme (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—At Screening.
2—"Eleanor" (Intermezzo Moderato), by Deppen (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: Not very far from Mrs. Gamp's. (Telephone bell).
3—Theme (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—T: "Mrs. Camp advertised good, plain."
4—"Phyllis" (Characteristic Allegretto Moderato), by Deppen (3 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "Mr. Demarest is waiting." (Piano only) (cat meowing).
5—"Mysterioso Agitato," by Smith (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—S: When Louis enters lodger's room.
6—"Turbulence" (Allegro Agitato), by Borch (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—S: When lodger misses money.
7—"Hunkatin" (Half-tone One-step), by Levy (45 seconds), until—T: While the butler and maid trip.
8—"Dramatic Tension No. 9," by Andino (2 minutes), until—T: "And at home, Bob."
9—"Perpetual Motion" (Allegro Agitato), by Borch (3 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "Oh, Madame, the baby is gone." (Telephone bell).
10—"Popular Hawaiian One-step" (45 seconds), until—T: "Con Brown's another sort of."
11—"Impish Elves" (Winsome intermezzo), by Borch (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—T: "Con Brown, himself, manager of."
12—"Agitato No. 37," by Andino (2 minutes), until—T: "You get out o' here."
13—Theme (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—T: "I can't take care of a baby."
14—"Peacefulness" (Andante Pathetique), by Borch (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "You let me get the breakfast."
15—Theme (3 minutes), until—T: "After supper which Beth."
16—"Adieu" (Moderato Melodie), by Karganoff (3 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "And in the morning, Superstitious."
17—"Coquetterie" (Valse Rubato), by Mathews (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—T: "Oh, I see, Mr. Good-guy."
18—Theme (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—T: The Knight goes forth to battle.
19—"Dramatic Tension No. 36," by Andino (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—S: As scene fades to Louis.
20—"Valse Divine" (Moderato Valve), by Rosey (3 minutes), until—T: Morning.
21—"Andante Pathetique No. 10," by Berge (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—S: When Beth enters Mrs. Wynne's room.
22—"Farewell to the Flowers" (Andante Moderato Reverie), by Hildreth (2 minutes), until—T: "Are you Mr. Wynne?"
23—"Hurry No. 33," by Minot (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—S: When Beth enters Mrs. Gamp's house.
24—"In the Glade" (Allegretto Scherzando), by Gruenwald (3 minutes and 15 seconds), until—S: When Mr. Wynne enters bedroom.
25—"Sleeping Rose" (Valse Lento), by Borch (2 minutes), until—T: "Do you think it's right for."
26—"A la Mode" (Popular One-step), by Rosey (2 minutes), until—T: Bob Wynne full of gratitude.
27—Theme (1 minute), until—T: "Jimmie," until * * * * END.

"THE ROUGH NECK"

(Montague Love-World)

Specially Selected and Compiled by M. Winkler

The timing is based on a speed limit of 14 minutes per reel (1,000 ft.)

Theme: "Mountain Song" (Characteristic Andantino), by Borch

1—Theme (3 minutes), until—At Screening.
2—"Babillage" (Allegretto Intermezzo), by Castillo () minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: Rodney Armitage, a tourist.
3—"Allegro Agitato, No. 1," by Kiefert (1 minute), until—S: When Indian draws beads.
4—"Birds and Butterflies" (Intermezzo Capricioso), by Vely (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "I'm sorry I can't show you."
5—Theme (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: Cogs in the machine.
6—"A Dream" (Andante Pathetique), by Borch (3 minutes), until—T: The boss abdicates.
7—Theme (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: As the weeks pass the lure.
8—"Dramatic Narrative," by Pement (3 minutes), until—T: "He asked me to."
9—"Agitato Appassionato," by Borch (3 minutes and 15 seconds), until—S: When John speaks to Dale.
10—"Dramatic Agitato No. 43," by Borch (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "I have just told you, father."
11—"Dramatic Recitative," by Levy (2 minutes), until—T: "It's our only chance." (Telephone bell).
12—Theme (3 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: After the wedding supper.
13—"Bleeding Hearts" (Andante Sentimento), by Levy (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—T: "I want you to know that this."
14—"Allegro Agitato No. 8," by Andino (45 seconds), until—S: When Dale meets Frances.
15—Theme (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—T: "You brute, there was some."
16—"Eleanor" (Moderato Intermezzo), by Deppen (3 minutes), until—S: When John returns home.

(Continued on next page)

The Argus Lamp & Appliance Co.

"One of the Argus Enterprises"

Watch for Our Ad in Next Issue!

LE FILM

The Greatest Weekly Trade Paper of
MOTION PICTURES AND THE STAGE PRINTED IN PARIS
1457 Broadway New York
Telephone Bryant 5602
26 RUE DU DELTA, PARIS
878 TALCAHUANO, BUENOS AIRES
Subscription, One Year, $6.00

Do the big thing. Install an Estey Organ in your theatre. Its success has been proved.

THE ESTEY ORGAN CO.

Brattleboro, Vt.

See our page ad in the March 8th issue of the MOTION PICTURE NEWS

SPECIAL BARGAINS—REBUILT MACHINES

We have on hand all makes of rebuilt machines which we GUARANTEE to be in A-1 ADJUSTMENT, all worn parts having been replaced by NEW PARTS.

Powers 6-A
Hand Drive .....New Price $280.00 Rebuilt Price $100.00
Motor Drive .....New Price 338.00 Rebuilt Price 150.00
(110 volt, 60 cyc.)
Powers 6-B
Used two months, Motor Drive, 110 volt, 60 cycle..... $250.00
Motiograph 1909 model
New Price $225.00 Rebuilt Price $30.00
Motiograph 1915 model
Hand Drive .....New Price $250.00 Rebuilt Price $125.00
Motor Drive .....New Price 285.00 Rebuilt Price 150.00
(110 volt, 60 cyc.)

All orders subject to prior sale

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY
Largest Exclusive Dealers to the Motion Picture Trade
300-302 Mallers Bldg., 5 So. Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Illinois Dealers in Motiograph, Standard and Simplex Motion Picture Machines, National Carbons, Minusa Screens and Everything for the Theatre authors!

If you are not taking advantage of our Manuscript Sales Department—you are missing more than you imagine! This Department is under the personal management of who recently resigned as Scenario Editor for Douglas Fairbanks to join our organization. Miss Allen is in constant touch with the many producing companies in Los Angeles and vicinity—is personally acquainted with the buyers of scripts—and thoroughly understands their story-requirements, which are changing from day to day.

RUTH S. ALLEN

Don't you see the tremendous advantage your story will receive in this way? It will be submitted in person to the director, star or editor for whom it is best fitted.

Better get in touch with us TODAY—you'll profit by it!

PALMER PHOTOPLAY CORPORATION

595 I. W. Hellman Building
Los Angeles, California.

-use our Manuscript Sales Dept.

Theatre and Exchange Mailing List Service

We rent lists of or address contemplated or existing theatres, exchanges, state rights owners, publicity mediums and producers, selected as to territory, class, etc. Twenty thousand changes were recorded in our list last year. Its use means a saving to you of from 30 to 50% in postage, etc.

MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY CO.
80 Fifth Avenue, New York
Phone, 3227 Chelsea
Addressing Printing N201 Multigraphing Typewriting

(Continued from preceding page)

20—Theme (3 minutes), until—T: "That evening." (Telephone bell).
21—"Marionette" (Allegro Moderato), by Arndt (3 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "Sorry, Ellery, but never mind."
22—Theme (3 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "What liver and bacon for my."
23—"Sparklets" (Allegretto Moderato), by Miles (3 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "Why, aren't you the man my."
24—Theme (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: Washing a la mode.
25—"Tulips" (Characteristic Moderato), by Miles (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "Get your things together."
26—"Dramatic Tension No. 36," by Andino (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "You've given me up."
27—"Furioso" (Half-reel Hurry), by Levy (3 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "You can get to the village." (Shots).
28—Theme (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—T: "Now you have twenty-four," until * * * * * END.

"SILENT STRENGTH"

(Harry Morey-Vitagraph)

Specially selected and compiled by M. Winkler.

The timing is based on a speed limit of 14 minutes per reel (1,000 ft.)

Theme: "Mountain Song" (Characteristic Andantino), by

1—Theme (3 minutes and 30 seconds), at Screening.
2—"Shepherd's Pipe" (From Romantic Suite) (Allegretto Moderato), by Grieg (2 minutes), until—T: "It was more curiosity than."
3—"Remembrance" (From Romantic Suite) (Andante Moderato), by Schumann (3 minutes), until—T: "A few weeks of New York" (water-fall effects).
4—Theme (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "Ruth Madison in whom."
5—"Scherzetto" (From Symphonette Suite), by Berge (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "While in New York, Henry."
6—"Dramatic Tension No. 9," by Andino (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "I had an idea that you would" (water-fall effects).
7—Theme (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—S: When Dan sees Ruth.
8—"Perpetual Motion" (Allegro Agitato), by Borch (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—S: "When log falls."
9—Theme (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—S: When Dan enters shack.
10—"Sinister Theme," by Vely (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—S: When Ruth receives telegram.
11—"Agitato No. 49," by Shepherd (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T. "Face to face."
12—"Kathleen" (Valse Lento), by Berg (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—T: "And then Henry Crozier meets."
13—Theme (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—T: "Miss Ruth Madison, daughter."
14—"Adagio" (From Tragic Suite) (Characteristic), by Luz (4 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "Henry Crozier, his lust for—" (telephone-bell).
15—"Cradle Song" (From Tragic Suite) (Andante), by Luz (3 minutes), until—T: "The prospectus and reports."
16—"Dramatic Suspense," by Winkler (3 minutes), until—S: When Dan sees Ruth.
17—"Tragic Theme" (Dramatic), by Vely (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—S: When Henry Crozier returns.

Borch

18—"Dramatic Agitato No. 38" (Subdued Agitato), by Minot (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "I have been called back."
19—"Dramatic Narrative," by Pemet (2 minutes), until—T: "The following night."
20—"Heavy Mysterioso," by Levy (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "Henry, I'm so glad."
21—"Hurry" (Half Reel Hurry), by Levy (5 minutes and 30 seconds), until—S: When Dan's escape is discovered (shots).
22—Theme (2 minutes), until—S: When Dan enters shack—until * * * * * END.

Business Offerings

FOR SALE—A Wurlitzer Style K Instrument. Cost $4500. Will take $2500. Guarantee as good as new. Reason for selling, wish to put in a Pipe Organ. Address Rex Theatre, Gallup, New Mexico.

EXCHANGE MANAGER—One who is thoroughly acquainted with Greater New York territory; highest quality feature proposition. Applicant must measure up in every respect to highest standard. Only those thoroughly qualified and having had necessary experience need apply. Communications strictly confidential. Apply XYZ, c/o M. P. News.

E. E. FULTON CO., Chicago
Manufacturers of the FULCO Line of Specialties and Moving Picture Accessories
Be you an Operator, Theatre Owner, Exchange Manager, Supply Dealer or Producer, get in touch with us and we will advise you in what you are interested.

Equipped with UNIVERSAL Motion Picture Camera

"You get the picture and get away before the other fellow is ready"

BURKE & JAMES, Inc
240 E. Ontario Street, Chicago
225 Fifth Ave. New York

TransVerteR

Automatically supplies only such voltage as arc requires. No waste of current in ballast.

HERTNER ELECTRIC & MFG. CO.
W. 114th St., Cleveland, Ohio, U.S.A

The Accessory Department teems with Items of Interest to Operator and Exhibitor alike.

MODERN EQUIPPED STUDIOS FOR RENT

UNEXCELLED FILM LABORATORIES AND STUDIOS CO. INC.
120-124 School St.
YONKERS, N.Y.
TELEPHONE—4600 YONKERS

HIGH CLASS DEVELOPING AND PRINTING

For Better Music

The Fotoplayer

62 West 45th Street — AMERICAN PHOTO PLAYER CO. — New York City

Everything the Showman Needs on Every Picture Released

The Complete Plan Book

Compiled by Peter Milne

Pictures Reviewed in Advance

[In addition to Advance Reviews—covering pictures shown too early to be included in The Complete Plan Book—readers will also find under this heading each week the reviews of short features and serial episodes.]

"The Scarlet Shadow," with Mae Murray

(Universal Special—Directed by Robert Z. Leonard)

LIGHT comedy touches evenly distributed throughout a well developed dramatic plot, make a picture that is, besides being interesting, highly entertaining. It surely is the kind of an attraction the present day picturegoer prefers to see; free from abhorrent, or in any way, displeasing features, such as deaths, death-beds and suicides, also free from the taint of the sex question.

The second marriage of the heroine's mother, a fact considered by her Puritanical relatives a crime—a scarlet stain—forms the basis of the story. The heroine, now an orphan, is raised by her aunt under strict and austere rules. She shall not meet young men of her age, nor shall not talk to any male. By chance, she gets acquainted with a young student, who induces her to steal out one night and go with him to a theatre. In their return they are apprehended by the austere aunt, and the heroine is evicted from the house.

The uncle of the young student, and hero of the story, happened to come to town to look after the nephew. Learning of the occurrence, he takes the heroine with him to the young man's home, to remain there until both young folk shall be of age, so that they may marry.

In time the young student proves worthless, while the uncle feels love for the heroine. The mother of the student, however, loves the hero, brother of her dead husband, and wants him for herself, so she tries to get rid of the heroine by arranging a marriage between her and an ignorant, wealthy man. The scheme eventually fails, and the hero marries the heroine. Released March 3. Length, six reels.—P. S. Harrison.

"The Two Brides," with Lina Cavalieri

(Paramount—Directed by Edward Jose)

ARTISTICALLY, "The Two Brides" is the last word in picture production. Direction, photography, interior settings, exterior scenes, and almost everything needed to make an up-to-date picture, will be found in it. But here is where the greatest weakness of the picture lies; that all the care has been lavished upon the production at the expense of the story. There is hardly any plot to it; and whatever plot there is, it is hardly interesting enough to satisfy the present day wants. Beyond its ability to hold the attention of the spectator in whatever is shown at the moment as the picture is unfolded, it accomplishes no other feat. It utterly fails to arouse any expectation in the mind of the spectator, that expectation usually called suspense, and which must in some degree be present in a picture before it can be counted upon to give satisfaction. In other words, it lacks dramatic values.

The story deals with a love affair that takes place in Italy, the characters being all Italians.

There are certain situations in the picture that may jar the spectator. For instance, it seems incredible that a daughter would break to pieces a statue from the hands of her father, and which is considered a masterpiece, much less the daughter of an Italian artist, the love of Italians for art being so well known. It would be more logical to think that she would cherish that statue and would be extremely careful lest some harm befall it. The act of breaking it up will undoubtedly cause the sympathy of the audience to fall away from her to a certain extent.

Unquestionably, Miss Cavallieri is as good an actress and as graceful a woman as there is on the screen today. She is of very imposing appearance. Her past contributions have not drawn money for anybody, but that is not her fault. They lacked the vigor the present day spectator demands. With the proper vehicle to work with, a vehicle that will give her dramatic art and her talents full play, there is no reason why she should not become a drawing card.

The picture is clean. Released February 9. Length, five reels.—P. S. Harrison.

"Typical Mexican Aspects"

(George D. Wright-Educational—Ten Reels)

GEORGE D. WRIGHT, who gave the trade that highly interesting series of pictures entitled "Mexico Today," has returned from the southern country with ten new reels which were shown last week at Wurlitzer Hall under the title of "Typical Mexican Aspects." Mr. Wright was enabled to procure these scenes through the co-operation of the Mexican government and as a consequence he has brought to public view a variety of locations as well as public men of Mexico that otherwise would be quite impossible to secure. The pictures were shown last week for the friends of the Mexican consulate in New York City and contained Spanish titles. Educational is at present cutting and preparing the ten reels for domestic consumption and, according to E. W. Hammonds of Educational, they will be released in one reel form as was the previous series.

The reels contain some intimate pictures of President Carranza, numerous points of interest in Mexico City, the operation of industries, both ancient and modern, a number of beautiful country shots and views of the yearly festival of Mexico when on each September 16, the republic celebrates its independence. When these various scenes are classified and presented in one reel form, with full explanatory subtitles, they should prove of considerable interest to the American public. Mexico is a country that is to be heard from more and more as time goes on and a knowledge of its industrial and social life will, as a consequence, be of ever-increasing interest.—Peter Milne.

Plan Book Index on Page 1396

"PEGGY DOES HER DARNDEST"—METRO

A May Allison Comedy That Registers Nicely

METRO offers another May Allison comedy in "Peggy Does Her Darndest," an adaptation of one of Royal Brown's Red Book stories. The picture is light and amusing in its entirety and its comedy is of a thoroughly human variety. Nothing more laughable than the quarrels of Peggy and her elder sister over men and clothes has come to the screen in some time and this because the occupant of the theatre chair at once catches the truth of the situation.

Peggy is a tomboy and takes up "detecting" as a hobby. Naturally she captures the crook who is after her father's rare jewel and likewise the heart of the man who had previously thought himself in love with the sister. The story has been handled with Miss Allison always, or nearly always, in the center of focus. Her spirited playing of the part is catching and she creates such a good impression, all things considered, that we can forget that sometimes the action is stopped to permit her to pose.

The picture is laid in pretty backgrounds that have been capably photographed. Robert Ellis, Rosemary Theby, Frank Currier and Augustus Phillips render adequate assistance and contribute in no small measure to the success of the offering.—Length, 5 reels.—Released Feb. 21.—Peter Milne.

THE CAST

Peggy Ensloe.....May Allison
Eleanor Ensloe.....Rosemary Theby
Edward Ensloe..... Frank Currier
"Lonesome Larry" Doyle....Augustus Phillips
Hon. Hugh Wentworth.....Robert Ellis
Nick Nolan.....Wilton Taylor
Bob Ensloe..... Dick Rosson
Mrs. Ensloe.....Sylvia Ashton
Snowball Snow.....Ernest Morrison

By Royal Brown.
Adapted and directed by George D. Baker.
Photographed by William E. Fildew.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—Two one-sheets; two three-sheets; two six-sheets.

LOBBY DISPLAY:—Photographs are provided in 8 x 19 sepia; 11 x 14 sepia and 22 x 28 colored. These include star photographs and production scenes. Title and synopsis cards are provided with which to complete the display.

CUTS AND MATS:—Star cuts are provided in one-half, one and two-column sizes, designed that they may be used in the advertising or news columns of newspapers or for the exhibitor's own program announcement.

Silhouette cuts of Miss Allison in one-column size are also provided. These are original and provide still another means for publicity promotion.

SLIDE AND MUSIC CUE SHEET also procurable with other accessories at all Metro exchanges.

AD TALK

May Allison will be seen at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week in her latest Metro comedy entitled "Peggy Does Her Darndest." This picture is an adaptation of one of Royal Brown's stories which appeared recently in the Red Book Magazine and is the charming and spirited recounting of the events in the life of Peggy Ensloe, the younger and tomboy daughter of the house of Ensloe. Peggy believes she was never meant for skirts—but that is because she doesn't look in the mirror as often as other girls. She prefers the divided lower garment and moreover, insists on wearing trousers whenever she feels so inclined. This rampant nature of hers bothers her older sister, Eleanor, exceedingly. Eleanor is very feminine and and very much in love—with every good-looking man that comes along. Peggy doesn't get a chance and this is another little item that makes her furious at herself and everyone else.

But Peggy's chance comes finally in the person of the Honorable Hugh Wentworth of England. How she captures him, despite all Eleanor's endeavors to defeat her, and how, in an amusing episode, she proves herself a thoroughly competent detective by saving a rare gem of her father's from the claws of "Lonesome Larry" Doyle, makes capital entertainment as set down in the five reels of "Peggy Does Her Darndest." The comedy is richer than that found in the ordinary feature in that it contains a touch of the human and the life-like that serves to make it quite irresistible.

Miss Allison is supported by Rosemary Theby who gives an excellent interpretation of the elder sister, by Robert Ellis as Hugh and by Frank Currier, Augustus Phillips and Sylvia Ashton in other prominent parts.

THE STORY

Peggy is the tomboy in the Ensloe family. Pants appeal to her more than skirts. Nothing pleases her more than a five-round go with her brother Bob and it is on such an occasion that she meets the Hon. Hugh Wentworth from England, who has brought a jewel of incalculable value to her father, one of the leading experts on stones in the city. Eleanor, Peggy's older sister, is showing the Hon. Hugh about the grounds when he lays eyes on Peggy, and right there Eleanor loses all her chances, although she doesn't know it.

Hugh remains at the Ensloes' house and is very much amused at Peggy's various pranks, one of which is "detecting" through a correspondence school course. Neither her father nor anyone else will take her seriously but Peggy insists that she is to guard the destinies of the famous jewel. Ensloe employs a detective, who poses as a butler, to look after the precious gem but Peggy has no use for him. One day while Peggy is masquerading as maid of the house and is taking a stroll on the lawn she is approached by "Lonesome Larry" Doyle, a celebrated crook, who takes her for what she appears to be.

The upshot of it is that Larry invites himself to the Ensloe house some time while the "family" is out and gets the lay of the land from Peggy. At night he returns with intent to get the stone. The detective-butler is fast asleep on the couch but Peggy hears the intruder and makes him captive. The family is aroused and Hugh, seeing Peggy in all the glory of a "vampire" gown (borrowed from her sister's wardrobe) and Eleanor in all her curl-papers and cold cream, instantly decides that Peggy and none other was meant for him.

CATCH LINES

A high comedy of a tomboy-girl, her exceedingly annoyed sister and a delightful English gentleman—a comedy that for sheer "pep," good humor and reality has seldom been equaled on the screen.

Based on the story by the popular writer, Royal Brown, which appeared in a recent issue of the Red Book Magazine. This author's thoroughly genuine, human and irresistible style has been transferred to the screen with gratifying results.

How a young girl proved herself better at "detecting" than an experienced detective, is told in this charming Metro comedy. It is full of original comedy, real human comedy, that you'll recognize as taken from everyday life.

May Allison in her latest Metro comedy supported by a distinguished cast including Rosemary Theby, Robert Ellis, Frank Currier and Sylvia Ashton.

SUGGESTIONS

The May Allison pictures having been setting a standard for comedy of late which the exhibitor will do well to cash in on. Lines like "another May Allison comedy," "a worthy successor to her previous Metro comedy," should be used in advertising this feature and other of her comedies to follow. In this way you will be creating a staple product; one which the public will come to recognize and patronize.

In the case of "Peggy Does Her Darndest" don't fail to mention that it is an adaptation of one of Royal Brown's Red Book Magazine stories. Both the author and the circulation medium are well known before the public. As has been suggested with other magazine stories in these pages, a good idea would be to procure a few copies of the issue of the magazine in which the story appeared and use them in connection with your lobby display.

The supporting cast is worthy of special note. Rosemary Theby has come into great prominence recently and deserves a good place on the billing. Sylvia Ashton, through her work with De Mille, and Frank Currier, through his many appearances in Metro pictures, are players that should be awarded some prominence in publicity stories, advance notices and even in the actual advertising itself.

MAY ALLISON

One-column star cut

"HELL ROARIN' REFORM"—FOX

Full of Action and Interest; Star Has Human Part

THOSE of you who run the Tom Mix contributions need not worry about this picture. It is full of action and interest. The star's dare-devil tricks are again in evidence in almost every one of the situations, offering thrills such as would cause any one to sit on the edge of his seat. The star is given a human part, so he wins the good will of the spectator; and as there are no repulsive or in any way displeasing situations, the picture should leave an audience in a pleasurable mood.

The hero, a cowboy, peace-loving when sober, finds himself in circumstances where he has to perform the duties of a minister of the gospel. He manages, by aid of his "hip bible," to make the "bad" men of the town good; but not till he has sent to the long journey their leader, who once nearly had him strung up. In the end, the heroine, with whom the hero became acquainted when he prevented a hold up of the stage in which she was one of the passengers, consents to become his other half. She then for the first time learns that he is not a regular minister.

The picture should have a strong appeal, especially among those who enjoy the Western photodrama of the virile sort.—Released Feb. 16.—Length, 5 reels.—P. S. Harrison.

THE CAST

Tim .....Tom Mix
Doris Jenkins.....Kathleen Connors
Jenkins, her father.....George Berrell
Minister.....B. M. Turner
Baxter .....Jack Curtis
Bartender.....Cupid Morgan
Story by Joseph Roach.
Scenario by Charles Kenyon.
Direction by Edward LeSaint.

CATCH LINES

They pulled the church down over Tim's ears but he didn't give up—Tarantula just had to be reformed and it was up to him to do it—and before he got through the bad men were finished off from A to Z. Don't miss "Hell Roarin' Reform," Tom Mix's greatest picture.

You never saw such thrills as this before in a western or in any other kind of a picture. They pull the church down over the fighting parson's head and he, just to get even, jumps his horse through the roof of a bar-room from a nearby balcony! And that's only two of the thrills. See them and a score of others in "Hell Roarin' Reform," Tom Mix's greatest picture.

A story of the West, how a cowboy in the guise of a minister, cleaned up the town of Tarantula that had a sting longer than its name. One of the fastest, cleverest and most original western comedy-dramas ever released in these parts—or in any parts. Don't miss it.

AD TALK

Tom Mix, the cowboy, athletic stunt star who has been seen in so many successful William Fox features will be the attraction again on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week. Without a doubt "Hell Roarin' Reform," the title of this, his latest effort, far surpasses anything he has done before. "Hell Roarin' Reform" is right. Before the five reels have run their course the town of Tarantula, possessed of a sting for any virtuous person that comes within its limits, has its fangs neatly extracted by Tom, or Tim, we should say, for under that name he appears here.

Tim is a cowboy with a vengeance against Tarantula. Bandits from the place have robbed him of his Milk Fund receipts which he was carting to the bank. Score No. 1. Bandits from the place had held up the stage and frightened a pretty girl with whom he knew himself in love as soon as he laid eyes on her. Score No. 2. Bandits from the place had driven a perfectly good minister from his church. Score No. 3. Bandits from the place had done everything, in fact. There were no other people but bandits in Tarantula.

So Tim, to get even, dresses as a minister, rides into Tarantula and begins to whoop up religion. Of course he is successful before long. Among the unusual thrills contained in "Hell Roarin' Reform" are the star's leap through the roof of the saloon on horse back and the bandits' trick of pulling the church down over his ears. These are unusual thrills; two of them. But all the thrills in the five reels are unusual and we can't count how many there are. To see is to learn. Don't forget the date.

THE STORY

Tarantula had driven one preacher out of town and didn't want another one so soon. So when one came riding in shortly after his brother's enforced departure there was much disgust among the Tarantula townsfolk. Unlucky for them, they didn't know the identity of this preacher. For preacher he was not and never thought to be, really. It so happened that while Tim, cowboy, good-fellow, was riding along the road with money of a Belgian Babies' Milk Fund, he had been set upon by bandits and robbed. Shortly after, he had met the preacher who had been run out of Tarantula. Then and there he decided to approach the wicked town and teach its inhabitants a whole bunch of lessons.

So Tim arrives and opens church. Not for long, however. The bandits lock him in and then by skillfully employing their lariats they pull the house of worship down over his ears. He escapes and determining upon revenge, rides to Baxter's saloon. Baxter just about owns Tarantula. At least he operates it according to his own way of thinking. Baxter had locked the doors, anticipating the coming of Tim but, nothing daunted, the pseudo minister rides his horse up on a balcony, leaps him to the roof of the saloon and crashes through to the floor. Baxter escapes him and—stealing Tim's girl—dashes off to force her to marry him. Tim gives pursuit and overtakes the villain just in time. At the point of a gun he forces Baxter to be a witness to his marriage while, still at the point of a gun, he forces him to make out a check to go toward building a new church.

SUGGESTIONS

Follow out the ideas of the Fox advertisements and get all the action you possibly can into any that you write yourself. Action, thrillers, comedy. These are the elements that comprise "Hell Roarin' Reform," so be sure to bring them out in any and all advertising that you give the picture. For that matter, these elements characterize all the Tom Mix pictures and it would be well to follow a similar form of advertising on each one in order to standardize the series. Mix

(Continued on page 1393)

"A LITTLE WHITE SAVAGE"—BLUEBIRD

Story Handled Skillfully; Holds Interest Throughout

PICTURE goers ought to derive perfect enjoyment out of this offering not only because the story has been handled skillfully, but also because the very foundational idea of the plot is funny. It consists of a false tale told by two of the principal characters in order to get out of a difficulty.

The picture opens showing a circus in a small town. Because he couldn't get a good seat, a newspaper reporter threatens to attack the show in the paper. The manager, in order to soften his wrath, approaches him and starts telling him a wild story about the woman they have on exhibition (the heroine of the story). He relates how they captured her on an island in the Pacific. The show-manager's partner now joins them and adds to the lies. At the end of the show, the heroine comes out. The reporter approaches her and tells her how much he has been impressed with her past life on the island, and that he wants to know more of it. Not knowing what went on before, she is surprised and asks him what island did he mean. The whole scheme now is disclosed to the reporter (as well as to the audience) as a made up affair.

The star impersonates her role amusingly. The funny dresses she wears in her imaginative role will draw good laughs.

The picture holds the interest well; and as it is clean, should have wide appeal.—Released Feb. 24.—Length, 5 reels.—P. S. Harrison.

THE CAST

Minnie Lee.....Carmel Myers
The Minister.....Harry Hilliard
Larkey.....William Dyer
Mate.....Richard Cummings
Sailor.....John Cook
By Francis Greene.
Scenario by Waldemar Young.
Directed by Paul Powell.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—Two one-sheets; two three-sheets; two six-sheets.

LOBBY DISPLAY:—A variety of stills from the production and star photographs in the various standard sizes are furnished on this production as on all Bluebirds. These may also be used for the making of special production or advertising cuts according to the individual exhibitor's needs. Title and synopsis cards are provided with each set to complete the display.

CUTS AND MATS:—Stock one and two-column cuts of Carmel Myers are available at all Bluebird exchanges. One and two-column scene cuts for this production also procurable while in mat form a two-column advertisement can be secured.

SLIDE AND MUSIC CUE SHEET among accessories on hand at all Bluebird exchanges.

AD TALK

Carmel Myers, the vivacious young star of the Bluebird Company, will appear at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week in her latest picture entitled "The Little White Savage." This picture offers the star an unusual role in that she appears as Minnie Lee, member of a tribe on a remote island. Its members are white and are evidently descended from old English settlers. But as far as being modern is concerned Minnie Lee and her relatives are living in the dark ages. A circus man kidnaps the girl and takes her to the states with intent to exhibit her as some new sort of freak. But she runs away from him and takes refuge in the home of a country minister—a very nice and respectable young fellow.

Of course it wouldn't do at all to have the ultra-respectable townsfolk learn of Minnie Lee's presence, particularly as she refuses to regard conventional clothing seriously. The reader can well imagine the array of humorous situations that arise from the minister's strange predicament. Of course in the end, all terminates happily for them—the minister discovers that he loves Minnie Lee and he doesn't give much of a darn whether he has lost his pulpit for harboring the girl in his house.

Miss Myers gives a spirited performance in the title role and is ably supported by a cast headed by Harry Hilliard and which includes William Dyer, Richard Cummings and John Cook. The author of the story is Francis Greene, while the direction was entrusted to Paul Powell.

THE STORY

On an island where he and two other men are shipwrecked, Kerry, a pastor, discovers a long-lost tribe, probably colonized by Walter Raleigh, the members of which speak the old English tongue. Minnie Lee, known as "The Wilding," meets the minister and when he flashes an electric light on her she believes he is a god. One of the other men stranded is a rude fellow on a hunt for animals for a circus. He realizes that Minnie Lee would be a valuable addition to the show and before the minister knows what he is about the girl has been spirited away by this man.

He takes her back to the circus but has a hard time with her even though he claims her to be his sister. She takes a sister's prerogative and scratches and bites her captor until he finally lets her run away. Nothing could be more natural for the purpose of the narrative than she should take refuge in the minister's house. Minnie Lee is rather wild and the minister has a hard time of it, particularly when she wants to come in his study arrayed in stockings and a mere slip, when he is entertaining two of the church elders.

But despite all precautions, the townsfolk soon discover that the leader of the flock is harboring a girl in his house. They demand his resignation and he gives it. What to do with Minnie Lee is a question. She is unable to grasp the seriousness of the situation. But as he tries to explain he decides that Minnie Lee's mouth was meant for a kiss and with this there is no more cause for worry—for Minnie Lee becomes his wife.

CATCH LINES

It was rather an uncomfortable position for the minister. Here he was trying to entertain two elders of the church as if unconcerned when all the time Minnie Lee was showing herself through the crack in the door. And when it is considered that Minnie Lee, little savage that she was, was only scantily clad, the predicament of the minister may well appear in its serious light.

Contrasting the character of a young minister with that of a girl brought up on a distant island with no knowledge of civilized living. Here is a picture that mingles humor and startling situations delightfully. Each moment of suspense is followed by a laugh.

Carmel Myers, the adorable young Bluebird star, in another role wherein she displays those charming talents of hers. She is the Little White Savage, very little, very white and very savage—you'll be amused—yes, perhaps a little bit shocked by her!

(Continued on page 1388)

Two-column scene cut

"THE FALSE FACES"—Paramount-Artcraft

Strong Melodrama of the Spy Sort; Should Please

THIS offering should please picture goers, especially those who like the strong sort of melodrama. It has been built on the spirit of the present war, strong suspense being its predominating element. Barring the first reel, the picture is free from battle scenes or military display of any sort. It is simply a spy picture, the activities of the German spy organizations in America and the hero's wit in rounding them up forming the basis of the story. Even the war scenes shown in the first reel are not gruesome, no close ups whatever being shown. On the contrary, they are pleasing to the eye as they are very spectacular.

The plot is based on the book of the same name by Louis Joseph Vance. The hero of it is supposed to be the same one as in "The Lone Wolf," a crook play by the same author, but in this case he is presented as having reformed.

An extensive review of this picture was published in last week's issue, on page 1221.—Released Feb. 16.—Length, 7 reels.—P. S. Harrison.

THE CAST

The Lone Wolf.....Henry B. Walthall
Cecelia Brooks .....Mary Anderson
Eckstrom (Karl) .....Lon Chaney
Ralph Crane .....Milton Ross
Lieut. Thackeray .....Thornton Edwards
Submarine Captain.....William Bowman
Submarine Lieutenant .....Carry McGarry
Blensop .....Ernest Pasque

By Louis Joseph Vance.
Directed by Irvin V. Willat.
Produced by Thomas H. Ince.

CATCH LINES

If you thrilled at the story, "The False Faces," when it appeared in the Saturday Evening Post—if you responded to the exciting adventures of Lanyard, the Lone Wolf, who reformed to serve his government on a perilous mission, you'll be five times thrilled through his experiences on the screen.

An adaptation of the famous Louis Joseph Vance stories of Saturday Evening Post fame. All the sensations and thrills of the story of the Lone Wolf brought to the screen with increased power.

A notable cast. Henry Walthall, never-to-be-forgotten for his performance in "The Birth of a Nation," Mary Anderson, heroine of many Vitagraph features and exception support heading by Lon Chaney, one of the leading character actors of the profession.

Wheels within wheels, German spies in the British Secret Service! And Lanyard, the Lone Wolf, smokes them out in a style that will thrill you to the very marrow.

AD TALK

Those thrilling spy and mystery stories which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post some time ago under the title of "False Faces" have been brought to the screen in one sensational picture which will be presented at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week. "False Faces" was written by Louis Joseph Vance and deals with the further adventures of "The Lone Wolf," the Paris Apache. In previous stories in which this figure was central he had been working systematically against the law. Now, however, in "False Faces" he turns his cleverness into channels to assist the Allied governments in their fight against German Secret Service agents.

But let it be said here and now that "False Faces" is no ordinary spy melodrama. Mr. Vance's amazing ingenuity for conjuring up new and original situations, his ability to write suspense between every line of his work and his colorful descriptions which are never missed on the screen stamp his work as something unique, something apart from anything else ever before attempted in this line. As a result "False Faces" seems destined to entertain and thrill both those who followed the story in the Post as well as those who missed the Lone Wolf's adventures in printed form.

The star of "False Faces" is the celebrated Henry Walthall and its producer is Thomas H. Ince. The picture is released as a Paramount-Artcraft special and from the previous productions so released by this company you know what their definition of "special" is. Don't miss "False Faces."

THE STORY

Michael Lanyard, known among the Apaches of Paris as the "Lone Wolf" has reformed his evil ways and enlisted in the Allied Secret Service with intent to run down German spies in general and one in particular, Karl Eckstrom. He bears a special hatred for Eckstrom, as this man killed his child and left his wife to die of exposure and starvation during the German march through northern France. Eckstrom is in possession of important secrets desired by Lanyard and so he books passage on the same ship bound for America. On board he meets Cecilia Brooks. One day after a scrimmage with Eckstrom's lieutenants, Cecilia intrusts a cylinder containing secrets of vital import to Lanyard. Eckstrom learns that Lanyard has it and attacks him.

He is unable to find it, however, but overpowering Lanyard he throws him overboard. Lanyard is picked up by a German submarine and taken to its base at Martha's Vineyard. From here he escapes and makes his way to New York, where he learns both Eckstrom and Cecilia are located. He discovers that Eckstrom is parading under his alias before the British Secret Service authorities. Eckstrom negotiates the sale of the secrets to the British government. Lanyard, desiring to retrieve them for Cecilia, breaks open the safe, but is unable to find them. He realizes that there are wheels within wheels and that there is a spy in the British Secret Service.

While he is at the safe Eckstrom appears and by a clever trick Lanyard so disguises him that when his confederates arrive they shoot and kill him. After this it is a simple matter for Lanyard to find the cylinder which the spy in the Secret Service has in his possession. He restores it to Cecilia and earns her undying gratitude—and love.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—Two one-sheets; two three-sheets; one six-sheet; one twenty-four-sheet;; rotogravure one-sheet. All paper serves to bring out thrilling and mysterious side of the film. Gun play and struggle dominate in every scene and serve to get the idea of the story over to advantage.

LOBBY DISPLAY:—Eight 8 x 10 black and white photographs; eight 11 x 14 sepia photographs; one 22 x 28 sepia; and 8 x 10 photographs of star.

CUTS AND MATS ON PRODUCTION:—Five one-column; three two-column; two three-column. Here again, both in portraits of Walthall and the scenes selected for reproduction, the fighting and thrilling elements of the film are uppermost.

STOCK CUTS AND MATS OF STAR:—Five one-column; three two-column; two three-column.

ADVERTISING LAYOUTS:—One three-column; one two-column; one one-column. Like the paper and the production cuts furnished, these advertisements accentuate the mysterious nature of a play to a surprisingly good degree. The ads attract attention in the first place and once read, the reader will find it hard to keep away from the theatre showing the production.

SLIDE AND MUSIC CUE SHEET also on hand at all Paramount-Artcraft branches.

SUGGESTIONS

The story, "False Faces," was extensively read in the Saturday Evening Post, as are indeed all stories in this publication. However, a public was created for this story in advance as it continued with the adventures of the Lone Wolf which the author, Louis Joseph Vance, had previously immortalized on the printed page. The leading character is generally known as the Lone Wolf and therefore, in all your advertising it would be a good idea to carry a line "Further adventures of the Lone Wolf" or one which suggests the same idea.

You have a number of melodramatic situations and incidents to play up in putting the picture before your public. The making captive of the hero in a German submarine is perhaps the most prominent. However, there are stunts and thrills galore and if you do not choose to mention any particular one you can safely promise a lot in this line.

Don't forget Henry Walthall, for here again he comes under capable direction and, besides, he fits the part admirably well. Mary Anderson is also well known as a lead and could be given second position on the billing.

You might use a copy of the Saturday Evening Post as a background for your advertisement, of course,, employing sufficient descriptive matter to designate the story's original source.

A three hundred foot drop!

THOMAS H. INCE presents

HENRY WALTHALL
IN "THE FALSE FACES"

A Paramount-Artcraft Special

By Louis Joseph Vance
Directed by Irwin V. Willat

One-column ad cut

"CROOK OF DREAMS"—WORLD

Clever Story with Louise Huff in Appealing Role

THE personality of Louise Huff and a cleverly conceived and executed story serve to make "Crook of Dreams" a picture that ranks well with the meritorious standard upheld by the World company of late. Miss Huff has the faculty of registering a decided appeal whatever the nature of her part and in this number her role, so congenial to her capabilities, furnishes sincere backing to her talents.

The story is the work of Forest Halsey, a man well acquainted with all sorts of life, and in "Crook of Dreams" he has dealt from the top of the deck of his knowledge and has turned out a plot that is full of original situations, swift moving incident and clever characterization. It concerns an underworld waif who is introduced to a wealthy widow as her long-lost daughter. From this situation the author has builded a strong vein of suspense and a romantic and a sentimental interest that is not to be considered lightly. The plot, supplemented by the careful and expert direction of Oscar Apfel, blends into a whole that is always enjoyable.

George Proctor made the scenario and his work is characterized by that comprehensive knowledge of life and living that make all his continuities things of reality. Miss Huff is delightful in her role, while Frank Mayo, Kempton Greene, Florence Billings and Virginia Hammond give performances of the utmost in appropriateness.—Length, 5 reels.—Released March 3.—Peter Milne.

THE CAST

Constance Waldron.....Louise Huff
Mrs. Waldron.....Virginia Hammond
Laura Campbell.....Florence Billings
Sam.....Kempton Green
Sam's Mother.....Josephine Williams
Pete.....Edward Elkas
Mrs. Hadwin.....Kate Lester
Charles Hadwin.....Frank Mayo

Story by Forest Halsey.
Scenario by George Du Bois Proctor.
Directed by Oscar Apfel.
Photographed by Alfred Gondolfi.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—One six-sheet; two three-sheets; two one-sheets.

LOBBY DISPLAY:—Two 22 x 28 colored photographs; eight 11 x 14 colored; eight 8 x 10 black and white.

CUTS AND MATS:—The advertising cuts include two one-column and one two-column, these dressed in the usual World style.

Production cuts are three in number, one two-column and two three-column, containing dramatic scenes from production. Mats of these are supplied exhibitors free of charge.

A two-column star cut of Miss Huff is also available while a mat of a scene between star and director comes with a specially prepared story.

AD TALK

"Crook of Dreams," a five-part World Film picture, will hold the place of honor on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week. This is the story of a little waif of the underworld, the slavey of crooks, who is introduced into the home of a Mrs. Waldron as her long-lost daughter. The girl's presence saves the lady's mind and Constance finds herself ideally happy in her new surroundings until she is shocked into an awakening by Mrs. Waldron's companion, who in a fit of jealousy, tells her that she is robbing the rightful girl of her true home.

How the innocent little Constance suffers under this realization, how her romance comes near tumbling down about her ears, but how, when her old companions approach her with intent to blackmail, it is discovered that she is the real heir, after all, are events which go to make "Crook of Dreams" a picture to be enjoyed from first to last. Louise Huff is charming in the featured role of the picture, playing the character of Constance with all that appeal and vivacity that are dominating qualities in her personality. Her support is notable, consisting, as it does, of such skillful players as Frank Mayo, Kempton Green, Virginia Hammond, Florence Billings, Josephine Williams, Edward Elkas and Kate Lester.

"Crook of Dreams" is the work of Forest Halsey, a versatile writer, indeed. It was scenarioized by George D. Proctor and produced under the direction of Oscar Apfel, one of the ablest exponents of his art in the country.

CATCH LINES

The story of a girl reared among crooks who was introduced into a home of wealth as the long-lost daughter. It leads up to a fine, exciting climax and contains many moments of humor and pathos. You'll like it.

From the home of a receiver of stolen goods, from a home of beatings, brutality of mind and moral, from this sort of a home Constance was introduced into the life of the wealthy Mrs. Waldron who took her as her daughter, despite all her rough edges. Why? See the answer in "Crook of Dreams," a highly fascinating film play.

By Forest Halsey, a man well equipped to write of all sorts of life as he has written of all sorts of life here. And directed by Oscar Apfel, one of the screen's leading directors.

THE STORY

Constance's life with the low family of the east side, with whom she lives, is far from happy. Sam, her brother, is a crook, her mother is a receiver of stolen goods while Pete, an old man who lives with them, though he has a kindly feeling toward Constance, is also of the crook gentry. One day the police raid the place and while Constance and Sam escape the others are captured and cast in jail. Sam, acting on a suggestion previously dropped by Pete, tries to pass Constance off as Constance Waldron, a long missing daughter of a wealthy widow whose mental state is growing serious because of this loss. Mrs. Waldron's companion sees through the deception immediately but takes Constance home with her, nevertheless, as the mother is near insanity.

Constance acts like a tonic on Mrs. Waldron's nerves and before long she is living happily again. Charles Hadwin, a young lawyer, falls in love with Constance and she with him. However, in time, Mrs. Waldron's companion, Laura Campbell, grows jealous of the riches showered on Constance and tells her that she has really stolen them all from the real heir. And so Constance lives in a continual state of fear. In time, Pete and the old woman are released from the jail. Sam brings the woman to Constance, intending to blackmail her, but instead, Mrs. Waldron recognizes the woman as her nurse-maid of years ago, the one who stole her baby. This is the last bit of evidence that proves Constance is the real Constance Waldron and so all ends happily for the "little crook."

SUGGESTIONS

This picture does not call to mind any unusual advertising possibilities, although the story is good and holds the interest by way of its variety and unusual incident from beginning to end. It would be well to dwell on the capabilities of the star and the fact that her role in "Crook of Dreams" is one of the most appealing she has ever had in her career before the camera. The supporting cast reveals Frank Mayo and Kempton Green, Florence Billings and Virginia Hammond, all players worthy of being mentioned in the billings.

Two-column ad cut

"A TRICK OF FATE"—ROBERTSON-COLE

Bessie Barriscale Is Doing Best Work of Career

LET Miss Barriscale be supplied with fairly good stories, as she has been lately; let the continuity be written with the same skill and be handled with the same care, and you won't have to break your neck advertising her pictures in order to bring them in—a simple announcement will do the trick for you. It has always been a common knowledge that this star had the goods in her; but it remained for Mr. Hickman, her new director, to bring out those talents in full blast. "The Heart of Rachel," as well as all of her contributions since, will testify to this assertion.

In "A Trick of Fate" the star scores another success. To be accurate, the story is not the best she ever had—it is of the dual role type, and consequently not true to life; but the resultant picture is no less entertaining than if the story had been the best. It is the intelligent adjustment of the plot and the subsequent skillful treatment that raises it to such a level.

The picture is clean and should give good satisfaction.—Length, 5 reels.—P. S. Harrison.

THE CAST

Anna Gerard }
Mary Lee } .....Bessie Barriscale
Richard Crane.....Alfred Whitman
Pierre La Rouge.....George Fields
Raoul Garson.....Joe Swickard
Major Lee.....Joe Dowling
John Wentworth.....Frank Whitson
Directed by Howard Hickman.

CATCH LINES

The strange tale of two women—a southern girl and an Apache dancer of Paris—see how their destinies crossed by a mere trick of fate—see the perfect whirlwind of dramatic crises this likeness causes—the ideal dual rol epicture.

Bessie Barriscale in a dual role subject—in which she is seen as a southern beauty of inate refinement and a tempestuous and common dancer of Paris—one of the strangest of all dual role stories ever told.

She was obliged to pose as Mme. Zura, Mme. Zura the notorious, the ignorant, the common, obliged to pose as this creature before the whole world, before even her lover! A tremendous climax to this story.

Miss Barriscale is not the ingenue type but she is a skilled actress as her work in the strange dual role awarded her here readily proves. One of the strongest features of the dual role variety.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—Two one-sheets; one three-sheet; one six-sheet; one twenty-four-sheet. All paper very well brings out character of the film.

AD TALK

That accomplished actress, Bessie Barriscale, will be seen at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week in her latest photoplay success entitled "A Trick of Fate." In this picture the star assumes a dual role, that of a naughty Parisian dancer and that of a southern girl of a long and illustrious line. Their fortunes cross and the resemblance is responsible for a varied set of complications all of which are set down with due dramatic skill in "A Trick of Fate." Miss Barriscale delineates the two characters excellently, shading the roles so that there is never for any moment the slightest confusion. Alike in appearance from tip to toe the two women are vastly different as to personal character and this contrast Miss Barriscale brings out with remarkable power.

Mary Lee, a southern girl, is bereft of father and home at one blow. All that is left her is a varied assortment of debits, all of which she sets out to pay. A visit to New York realizes her nothing at first. She has danced somewhat but not enough to attract the managers, until one day a man on the street approaches her and asks her to go on that night in place of the famous Mme. Zura. The man is full of pardons, says that Mary is the exact counterpart of Mme. Zura, who has quit the show, and offers her a large sum of money if she will but try and assume the vacant place!

And so from this strange situation springs the amazing series of events which are to play such an important part in the life of Mary Lee. To relate them all here would be an injustice to those intending to see the picture. It is at the ——— theatre on ———. Don't forget.

(Continued on page 1390)

Bessie Barriscale in "A Trick of Fate"

"THE GIRL PROBLEM"—VITAGRAPH

Matinee Sort of Picture; Display of Women's Wear

THIS is another picture of the "matinee" kind—very pretty to look at. It may really be called a fashion show, as considerable portion of it has been devoted to the display of the latest women's wear. Emotionally, however, it is dry; it hardly ever stirs any of the feelings.

The story lacks the human element; it fails to arouse the interest or create suspense. Its plot is mostly based on book-writing. The heroine works as a model in a dress-making establishment, writing a story now and then as a side issue; the hero makes a living writing fiction. Chance brings them together, and they fall in love. The hero breaks the engagement with his sweetheart who, by the way, loves another man, and marries the heroine.

Since there are no repulsive features in the picture, you may be able to get by with it.—Released March 3.—Length, 5 reels.—P. S. Harrison.

THE CAST

Erminie Foster.....Corinne Griffith
Helen Reeves.....Agnes Ayres
Ernest Sanford.....Walter McGrail
Monte Ralston.....William David
Mrs. Reeves.....Julia Swayne Gordon
Aunt Julia.....Eulalie Jensen
Eric Garland.....Frank Kinsley
Hasbrook.....Harold Forshay
By Joseph Franklin Poland.
Directed by Kenneth Webb.

CATCH LINES

Corrine Griffith, perhaps the most beautiful girl on the screen, appears radiant in a number of stunning gowns in this Vitagraph feature—the charming story of a modiste's model who became an author's inspiration—and his wife.

Erminie Foster, returning from the modiste's shop, clad in a beautiful evening gown saw a reception going on in one of the big houses of the city—in a spirit of fun she mingled with the guests and was soon the center of admiring eyes—and then her employer appeared on the scene! What a situation! And how did Erminie get out of it? That remains for "The Girl Question" to tell; you'll see it at the ——— theatre.

Corrine Griffith, the reigning beauty of the screen, supported by a wonderful cast of Vitagraph favorites. A picture for everyone.

Corrine Griffith in a beautiful gown in a beautiful picture—one that is filled with ideal romance and clever humor—see it at the ——— theatre.

AD TALK

Corinne Griffith, the beautiful Vitagraph star, will be seen at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week in her latest offering from this company entitled "The Girl Question." This picture, written specially for Miss Griffith by Joseph Franklin Poland, awards her the role of a modiste's model who is taken in the home of a literary man, duly chaperoned, as his type for a satire he is writing on the modern girl. How she proves to be the wrong type after all but exactly the right girl to become the literary fellow's wife makes an entertainment filled with the most amusing situations.

Miss Griffith appears resplendent in a number of gowns during the course of the picture. Without doubt she is one of the reigning beauties of the screen and her appearance in this feature certainly adds new lustre to her name and fame. Her work too in handling the subtleties of the various situations in which she is the central figure is the ablest sort. Altogether the effect she creates in this picture is excellent.

Miss Griffith is supported by such well known Vitagraph players as Walter McGrail, Agnes Ayres, William David, Julia Swayne Gordon, Eulalie Jensen, Frank Kinsley and Harold Forshay. The picture was produced under the direction of Kenneth Webb.

THE STORY

Erminie Foster, though she has literary leanings, is forced by circumstance to work in a modiste's shop where she is the prize model. One day Ernest Sanford encounters her. He is looking for a type on which to base a forthcoming book, a satire on girls of the day. In Erminie he believes he sees the usual "flapper" type and when he tells her so she is insulted. Sanford is scheduled to marry Helen Reeves for no particular reason at all. She is in love with Sanford's money and the person of Monte Ralston. On a certain evening shortly after their first meeting, Erminie is returning from a customer's house, gowned in the height of fashion. Her car caught in a jam in front of a house wherein a brilliant reception is in progress, she decides to have some fun and, mingling with the guests, passes in.

Her employer is there, however, and is about to have Erminie ejected when Sanford comes to the rescue, declaring that she is his cousin. She stays the dance out and is escorted home to her aunt's house by Sanford at 3 A. M. and is straightway turned from the door by the uncompromising old lady. Nothing daunted, Sanford offers her the shelter of his home and hastens to add that his aunt is there to perform the functions of a chaperone. He begs her to remain as the inspiration of his book and Erminie then also starts writing.

Monte comes to the city to learn that Helen's engagement to Sanford has become public. He threatens to hand over Helen's letters to Sanford unless he release her and this Erminie hears. She compromises herself by going at night to Monte's apartments to get the letters and save Helen, not knowing that Sanford really loves her. She is late returning and Sanford is angry. She can not explain and is having a hard time of it when Helen and Monte arrive and explain matters. So things end happily for all four concerned.

SUGGESTIONS

Lay stress on the beauty of the star of this feature and, particularly to get the eye of the feminine portion of your audience, announce that she will be seen in a striking array of gowns. Use her photographs and the stills in which she appears in her various gowns as profusely as possible. You might place a few in the window of a modiste's shop with sufficient explanatory matter telling of the feature.

The supporting cast is made up of a number of old Vitagraph favorites and if you cater to a regular "fan" crowd it would be an oversight not to mention them.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—One one-sheet; one three-sheet; one six-sheet.

LOBBY DISPLAY:—Two 22 x 28 colored photographs; eight 11 x 14 black and white photographs and title card.

8 x 10 photographs of star are also provided for use in making additional display, extra cuts, etc. A selection of 5 x 7 black and white scene stills are offered at all Vitagraph exchanges for the same purpose.

CUTS:—One two-column (scene); one one-column (scene); one two-column (star); one one-column (star). Cuts are fashioned to be of use in the compilation of advertisements, text stories or for program announcements.

SLIDE AND MUSIC CUE SHEET also on hand at all Vitagraph branches.

CORINNE GRIFFITH
Vitagraph Star, in
"THE GIRL PROBLEM"

"SHADOWS"—GOLDWYN

Should Break All Records; Many Good Points Shown

HERE is a picture that, by all rules of the game, should break all records in attendance. It possesses many good features, the chief one being the star. She has been gaining in popularity ever since human stories—stories that are close to life—have been forming the foundation of her pictures. Another important feature is the title; it is short, impressive, and sounds catchy; in fact, it seems to be as good a title as any ever attached to one of her pictures, and nobody knows the importance of a good title better than you, who foot the bill.

As to the production end of the picture, there can be no argument; it is flawless and artistic in every sense of the word—of the regular Goldwyn standard. The acting of Miss Farrar is of the usual excellence, while the direction, photography and settings are all that could be desired.

The story furnished by Willard Mack is of the sort that makes typical Broadway melodramatic stage successes the dramatist's aim and result being a succession of "situations" that interest. A difference of opinion might exist as to its emotional appeal. The writer found it difficult to feel sympathy for the heroine. Whether your patrons will feel the same way is a question; it is very possible that the many good qualities of the picture and the personality of Miss Farrar might completely dim what jarred the writer as a reviewer.

Although in part of the story the star is given the role of a dance hall girl, the spectator is at all times kept informed that she is straight; so the picture remains clean.—Released Jan. 26.—P. S. Harrison.

Muriel Barnes / Cora Lamont ..... Geraldine Farrar
Judson Barnes ..... Milton Sills
Jack McGoff ..... Tom Santschi
Frank Craftley ..... Fred Truesdell
The Child ..... George Smith
By Willard Mack.
Directed by Reginald Barker.
Photographed by Percy Hilburn.

THE STORY

Muriel, popular in the social life of her city, marries Judson Barnes, a man prominent in the business world. He is approached by Frank Craftley, a dishonest mining promoter, who urges him to invest in a project in Nevada. Muriel feels that he is attempting to swindle her husband and advises him against entering the deal. Craftley realizes that it is the woman who is blocking his path and goes to his silent partner, a man who has traveled the world over, telling him that he believes he recognizes Muriel. When McGoff, the partner, produces a photograph of Cora Lamont, an Alaskan dance hall girl, Craftley realizes that Muriel is the same woman. He threatens her with exposure and as a result Muriel talks to her husband until he has again changed his mind about the mining project. With Craftley he sets out west to look things over.

Now it is that Muriel recalls her past in the Alaskan dance hall where McGoff attempted to make her his plaything. How she played the game safe, always promising, yet giving nothing and how she made her flight from her sordid existence to the more civilized south, are events which come rapidly to her mind. Yet if all this past comes out—if her husband learns of it, she will be lost—moreover her baby will be lost to her. McGoff has signified his intention of coming to see her to claim her, and Muriel, making ready for him, lays out her jewels as if to tempt a burglar.

When McGoff crushes her in his arms she shouts and warns the household. A policeman, rushing in, shoots and kills the intruder. To him and to the rest of the household it appears as if Muriel had merely surprised a burglar. Taking her baby in her arms, Muriel offers thanks for her safety!

AD TALK

Geraldine Farrar will be seen at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week in her latest Goldwyn photoplay, the third for this company. It is entitled "Shadows" and like the immediately previous offering of hers, "The Hell Cat," it was written by Willard Mack. The Goldwyn policy has been to cast Miss Farrar in modern stories, dramatic offerings in which her broad array of talents could be exercised to their utmost. To say that "Shadows" permits of this opportunity is stating the truth for when all is said and done it is doubtful if ever before the screen of the ——— theatre held such an intensely dramatic offering as "Shadows."

In its essentials it is the old story of a woman with a past, a past that rises up to damn her marital happiness. Innocent though the past is in reality it would appear black before one not thoroughly acquainted with its essentials. How to keep this past from coming to the attention of her husband?—this is the question that confronts the wife and her carefully laid plan forms the climax of the picture. To relate it here, however, would be to spoil good dramatic fare. Our advice is to see it when it arrives at the ——— theatre.

Mr. Mack's craftsmanship shows to meritorious advantage throughout the length of the film. His scenarios are all skillfully constructed and teeming with a strong dramatic interest. Miss Farrar's support here consists of Milton Sills, the same Thomas Santschi of "The Hell Cat," Fred Truesdell and a child by the name of George Smith. It is a small cast in a big drama, a drama that is moving from first to last.

CATCH LINES

The powerful drama of a woman's fight to hold the love of a man, written in Willard Mack's best style and produced with customary Goldwyn lavishness as to effect and setting. A climax with a punch to the heart.

The story of a woman who fought to keep down her past—a past innocent she knew but one which her husband might recognize as suspicious. How she accomplished her ends and saved her happiness and her child forms a climax, the power of which is sweeping.

Yes, it's the old, old story of the eternal triangle, the husband, the woman who fights down her past and an intruder. The old, old story, but one which is enacted in real life again and again and one which, told with the force that it is in "Shadows," becomes as powerful as though it were new.

Geraldine Farrar in a new role—from Alaskan dance hall girl to wife of a prosperous New Yorker.

In which the Shadows of the Past arise and threaten to blot out the Happiness of the Present.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—Paper is supplied in one, three, six and twenty-four sheet size. There is also a rotogravure one-sheet.

LOBBY DISPLAY:—Photographs are provided in three sizes, 8 x 10, 11 x 14 and 22 x 28.

PRODUCTION CUTS:—Two two-column; three one-column. One one and the two's are dramatic scenes from the production. There is one dramatic pose of star, while the other one is portrait.

Star cuts of Miss Farrar obtainable in one and two-column sizes.

ADVERTISING CUTS:—Two two-column; two one-column. These prepared in usual Goldwyn style in varying depths. They are also available in photographic form so that the exhibitor who desires more newspaper space may have them reproduced the desired size.

SLIDE AND MUSIC CUE SHEET are available with the other accessories at all Goldwyn exchanges.

(Continued on page 1390)

"MADE IN AMERICA"—HODKINSON

Shows Making of American Soldier; Stages of Training

THE making of the American soldier forms the basis of this attraction. The different stages of his training, from the day he is taken from the civilian life, until he is turned out as a finished product, is interestingly depicted in the eight reels.

The picture is not only entertaining, but also instructing; it should prove a source of interest to those who have never visited a camp, or never have tasted the army life.

The patriotic element abounds in the picture; on the other hand, there are enough comedy situations in it to draw good laughs. A more lengthy review of this picture was published in last week's issue, on page 1221.—Length, 8 reels.—To be released one reel weekly, starting Feb. 16.—P. S. Harrison.

THE CAST

40,000 U. S. Soldiers and John Evers.....Richard Turner
Jimmy Evers.....Edward Burns
Mrs. Evers.....Lillian Lawrence
Nancy Evers.....Emily Marceau
Joe Nelson.....Philip Sanford
Mrs. Nelson.....Florida Kingsley
Mr. Nelson.....Brian Darley

A Series in Eight Episodes Produced and Directed with the co-operation of the U. S. Government.

By Ashley Miller.

Published and distributed by the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation through Pathe Exchange, Inc.

PRODUCING CAST

Story and Scenario by.....Division of Films, Committee on Public Information
Producer and Director.....Ashley Miller
Cameraman .....Jas. Hutchinson
Released .....February 16th

THE STORY

(First Episode)

The first reel of "Made in America" shows how the United States put into effect the Selective Draft system. Secretary of War Baker drew the first draft numbers, while excited crowds gathered about bulletin boards. Among those in the crowd are John and Jimmy Evers and Joe Nelson. John and Jimmy are 100 per cent Americans and eager to be called. John's number is one of the early ones to appear.

(Second Episode)

The second episode opens with Provost Marshal General Crowder and his sixteen-page questionnaire, designed for the purpose of bringing out the exact usefulness of each of Uncle Sam's recruits. Jimmy Evers and Joe Nelson are both called before the local board where their questionnaire is filled in for them. Joe's exemption claims are not accepted and he and Jimmy leave for training camp. In the meantime Jimmy's brother, John, has received his preliminary training and is ready to leave for France.

(Third Episode)

The third episode shows the transports and their convoys leaving New York harbor, and then shifts to Jimmy, having been placed in charge of his contingent, turning his men over to the detraining officer at the camp depot. The new draft arrivals are greeted by the soldiers with, "Wait until you get that needle!" "You'll like it here, it's great!" at which latter remark Joe Nelson's frown of disgust grows deeper.

Camp routine, efficiency tests and the precautions taken by the government to guard the soldiers' health are shown.

(Fourth Episode)

Modern warfare needs trained specialists. The opening of the fourth episode shows the trade tests through which each man must pass who claims an occupation in civilian life. Jimmy Evers, who had been an assistant to the manager in a garage back home, takes the truck driving test with high honors, and Joe, an electrician, passes his test. Jimmy has received news of the safe arrival overseas of his brother John. Jimmy tells the boys that he has promised Joe's mother to take care of him, and suggests that if they try to show him a good time Joe might take more interest in his military work. So when Joe returns to the lighted room he is seized by the boys and hoisted to their shoulders. Later Joe tears up the complaining letter he had started to write his mother and writes a more cheerful one instead.

(Fifth Episode)

The soldier's day of hard work begins at seven o'clock, when they make their beds. At 7.30 comes drill, and Joe, in spite of himself, is getting interested. Various forms of drill are shown and comparisons drawn between the awkward squad and those who have had several weeks' training.. After their vigorous forms of exercise, even the ground seems soft, and the rest call is welcome. Jimmy Evers receives a letter from his mother saying she and Nancy will be at the Y. W. C. A. Hostess House on Saturday to see him. After mess, each man's mess kit washed, if not wiped, there is nothing to do until morning. Jimmy wants Joe Nelson to join him at a French class, but Joe claims to be feeling rotten, but cheers up when he gets a letter from his mother saying that Jimmy's pretty sister, Nancy, has been over to see her and she believes Nancy likes Joe. This gives Joe courage, for he is of the opinion that he is standing rather low in Nancy's estimation these days. In France Jimmy's brother, John, is going through the advanced stages of his training. Cavalry and infantry troops in action, the trenches and clouds of poisonous gas are shown.

(Sixth Episode)

It is hard to get dressed correctly in five minutes, and the morning in camp on which the first scene of the sixth episode opens shows Joe Nelson up for inspection and being told to report for kitchen duty that morning. While Joe awkwardly burns his hands and scrubs kettles and pans in the kitchen, Jimmy and his comrades are playing some strenuous physical games. After Joe has been relieved of K. P., he realizes that his trousers are not exactly presentable if he is going to see Jimmy's mother and sister when they come, so he goes down to the stream and scrubs them and stretches them out on the barracks roof to dry. When Jimmy and Joe meet the home folks, Joe finds a subtle difference in Nancy's attitude toward him and is happy. While Jimmy has been having a little play at home, his brother John in France is also enjoying recreations, such as baseball, for a delighted French audience.

(Seventh Episode)

At the beginning of their third month in camp the men of the Liberty Army enter on the more advanced stages of their training. Bayonet and fencing drills are shown. Real grenades are used in practice, and the difference depicted between the use of grenades in defense and in attack. Six seconds is the limit in a gas mask drill. In France John Evers goes out on his first reconnoitering expedition. The commanding officer gets possession of some German dispatches, but is wounded before he regains his trench. Safely back in the trench, John goes out and gets the officer, getting wounded himself. In the United States Jimmy and Joe are bidding their families good-bye, as they are soon to leave for overseas. Before he goes, Nancy relents entirely toward Joe and he promises to bring her the Kaiser.

(Eighth Episode)

U-boats failed to stop the irresistible sweep of the 250,000 men that poured into France each month from the United States. Jimmy and Joe at last arrive at a French port, and Jimmy, at first opportunity, looks John up in the hospital where he is recovering from his wounds. John has just been notified that he has been promoted to Second Lieutenant, and a medal of honor will be bestowed upon him for his bravery, and later General Pershing presents him with the greatest honor his country can bestow.

AD TALK

Beginning with this week's show at the ——— theatre the management will offer the first one-reel episode of a new series of pictures entitled "Made in America." As the title suggests, this has something to do with the life of our soldiers. The eight episodes of one reel each take up the life of the rookie from the time of his entrance into camp until he became a full-fledged fighter on the battle-fields of France.

These reels are in way of retrospect at this time. But the management believes there are few who will not enjoy a peep backwards at those exciting times of the selective draft and the hurried leaving of the boys for the training camps. Big events those were. Events which changed the lives of hundreds of thousands of Americans. To witness the various transitions which the men went through is to witness a series of deeply moving episodes.

One episode of the series will be presented at the ——— theatre each week.

(Continued on page 1391)

"Made In America" Company on Location

"THE INDESTRUCTIBLE WIFE"—SELECT

Reviewer Classes It as Matinee Picture; Go Easy

"MATINEE PICTURE" is the best classification that can be made of this offering. It is one of those soft, tender kind of attractions, whose predominating feature is artistic beauty. Women, and those of men who abhor the "vile" rapid action, or sternly object to have their slumbering emotions disturbed, may enjoy it immensely; but anybody who looks for life and vigor in a photoplay may beg and pray for the Sennett comedy that might be next on the bill.

The story was apparently considered as fit to form the basis of a pretty lively comedy-drama, but in translating from story to picture, the speed was lost somewhere in the way; it wasn't in the plot to start with. The well constructed subtitles have worked overtime to put some ginger into it; also to make the heroine appear as a "fire-eater," but hardly with much success.

By dressing the program with some lively short stuff, you may be able to get by without any serious kicks.

The picture is clean.—Length, 5 reels.—P. S. Harrison.

THE CAST

Charlotte Ordway ..... Alice Brady
Jim Ordway ..... Saxon Kling
Mother ..... Sue Balfour
Father ..... George Backus
Brandy ..... Roy Adams
Peter Brooks ..... W. A. Williams
"Toots" Brooks ..... Anne Cornwall
Schuyler Horne ..... Percy Marmont
Julia ..... Leonore Hughes
Butler ..... Thomas Donnelly

By Frederic and Fanny Hatton.
Adapted by Charles Maigne.
Directed by Charles Maigne.
Photographed by Leo Rossi.

CATCH LINES

Charlotte Ordway was indestructible. Her life was one grand round of pleasure, with never a letup between one social event and another. Jim, her husband, found the pace a pace that kills and decided to put a stop to it. How he managed is graphically depicted in this feature, a picture filled with dramatic situations and humorous interludes.

A story of high society life written in the best style of Frederic and Fanny Hatton, those authors whose stage plays set the whole country agasping. And "The Indestructible Wife" is one of their best works. It tells of the life of a married couple, high in the social world, in bold, fearless and dramatically sensational fashion. Never a dull scene.

Alice Brady, a spirited actress, in a role that permits full play of her dazzling personality. A real actress in a real part—a part that thrills in a picture that thrills.

AD TALK

Alice Brady returns again to the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week in her latest Select offering entitled, "The Indestructible Wife," the joint work of those popular playwrights Frederic and Fanny Hatton. The Hattons are noted for their writing of life in high society. They treat it mercilessly. When it is bad they never spare it. When it is good they give it just credit. In "The Indestructible Wife" they show both its sides in a manner that is ever entertaining, and often unusually dramatic.

Miss Brady's role is that of Charlotte Ordway, a young wife whose various rounds of pleasure finally tire her husband out. As she shows no signs of letting up he calls his friends into consultation and decides to pile on activity after activity in more than ordinary swiftness and see whether or not Charlotte will eventually tire of it all. The consequences of this trick are both humorous and dramatic. A serious breach arises between husband and wife and at one time Jim Ordway believes that he is going to lose Charlotte for ever. But things are straightened out in acceptable fashion in the end and there is a happy ending.

The picture was produced under the direction of Charles Maigne, the man responsible for all of Miss Brady's recent features, while among those who appear in the cast are Saxon Kling, Percy Marmont, Roy Adams, Anne Cornwall and Lenore Hughes.

THE STORY

Charlotte Ordway, the strenuous bride of Jimmy Ordway, brings her young husband back from their honeymoon exhausted after the strenuous life she has made him lead. Jimmy decides that something must be done with Charlotte to tire her out. One day he meets Brandy, a professional athlete and an old college friend of him. He sees in him just the person to do the trick.

Brandy finds in the indefatigable Charlotte a woman after his own heart—the first female he has ever met who can go as long and as hard as he can. Jimmy, left alone, consoles himself by making love to Julia Cleves. Brandy tells Charlotte about Jimmy's little affair and suggests that Charlotte leave her husband and marry him. Charlotte is loath to believe that Jimmy is in love with another woman until Brandy proves it to her, by showing her Jim and Julia sitting together in a corner of the arbor. Charlotte upbraids Jimmy.

Jim decides to tame Charlotte as Petruchio tamed the Shrew. He lassoes her and carries her off in an automobile to his boathouse, where he ties her up. Charlotte secretly enjoys the situation. Brandy takes it all in earnest and decides to rescue her. First, however, he indulges in familiarities of an objectionable sort. Charlotte bursts her fetters and throws Brandy down the boathouse steps into the water. Jim sees him fall in and comes rushing to his wife. He seizes her in his arms and by means of apologies, kisses, and explanations all is made smooth sailing.

When a husband has to tie his wife in a chair there must be something up. And there surely is something up in Alice Brady's latest Select picture, "The Indestructible Wife." It's one of the season's treats.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—One one-sheet (scene); one one-sheet (star special for this production); two three-sheets (scenes); one six-sheet (scene); one twenty-four-sheet (scene).

LOBBY DISPLAY:—Nine 8x10 black and white scenes and title card; seven 11x14 colored scenes and title card; two 22x28 horizontal "flats" colored scenes; one 22x28 star portrait, colored upright (stock—new).

CUTS (ELECTROS):—Two one-column (production); two three-column (production); one three-column (production); one half-column (star—new); one one-column (star—new); one two-column (star—new).

These cuts can be used in either advertisements or newspaper stories or in program announcements.

SLIDE AND MUSIC CUE SHEET also procurable at all Select exchanges.

SUGGESTIONS

Get some real snap into your advertisements of

(Continued on page 1393)

"HAPPY THOUGH MARRIED"—PARAMOUNT

Amusing Film That Also Appeals to Finer Emotions

YOUR patrons will laugh till there is no laugh left in them; and perhaps they will also shed a tear or two. The story has a strong plot; the subtitles are little gems; the cast is made up of artists (it includes Raymond Hatton); the direction, photography and artistic effects are of the best—in fact, everything needed to make a picture amusing as well as appealing to the finer emotions is there.

Miss Clayton lives her part; she has hardly ever been given as good a story before, or has ever appeared to a better advantage.

The picture is clean and should please 100% of your patrons. An extensive review was published in last week's issue, on page 1221.—Released Feb. 23.—Length, 5 reels.—P. S. Harrison.

THE CAST

Millicent Lee.....Enid Bennett
Stanley Montjoy, a Prospector..Douglas MacLean
Bob Davis.....Philo McCullough
Jim Montjoy.....Hal Cooley
Diana Ramon.....Vola Vale
Aunt Mattie.....Lydia Yeamans Titus
By Lois and Arthur Zellner.
Scenario by C. Gardner Sullivan.
Directed by Fred Niblo.
Photographed by Robert Newhard.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—Two one-sheets; two three-sheets; one six-sheet; rotogravure one-sheet. Paper doesn't stress the comedy element to any extent and might serve to designate any picture if it were not for the title which manages to impart the right humorous touch to the scenes.

LOBBY DISPLAY:—Eight 8 x 10 black and white photographs; eight 11 x 14 sepia; one 22 x 28 sepia; 8 x 10 photographs of star.

CUTS AND MATS ON PRODUCTION:—Five one-column; three two-column; two three-column. As regards selection of scenes, practically the same applies to these scene cuts as to the paper.

STOCK CUTS AND MATS OF STAR:—Five one-column; three two-column; two three-column.

ADVERTISING LAYOUTS:—One three-column; one two-column; one one-column. These contain good arguments, well selected scenes and interesting catch-lines and are otherwise dressed in the usual Paramount style.

SLIDE AND MUSIC CUE SHEET also obtainable at all Paramount branches with other accessories.

AD TALK

Another one of the charming Enid Bennett comedies will be the featured attraction at the ———— theatre on ———— of ———— week when "Happy, Though Married" is shown for the first time in this city. Written by Lois and Arthur Zellner this picture deals with the jealousies of a young wife in a most amusing fashion. Millicent Lee marries Stanley Montjoy just after he has returned from South America, whither he went on a prospecting expedition with his brother. In his trunk she discovers a picture of a dark-eyed Spanish senorita and immediately her jealousy is aroused.

She flees to consult a little book, "How to Be Happy, Though Married," and finds therein advice that leads her to suspect her husband of a dark and mysterious past.

She leaves the house in a rage, returning later to find the living counterpart of the photograph sitting in her home! She angrily demands to know the meaning of her presence but the beauty from the South can not speak English. And "How to Be Happy, Though Married" has not taught Millicent how to speak Spanish! The results can better be imagined—or, of course, seen—than described. The return of the two brothers clears up the whole mystery and suffice it to say that in future Millicent decides to abide by common sense and not be a foolish text book.

Miss Bennett is thoroughly delightful in the featured role while her support is spirited and clever, including Douglas MacLean, Hal Cooley, Vola Vale and Philo McCullough. C. Gardner Sullivan prepared the scenario from the Zellner story while Fred Niblo had charge of the production details.

THE STORY

Stanley and Jim Montjoy leave for South America to develop mining property there and Stanley, before going, takes fond leave of his sweetheart, Millicent Lee. In South America all does not go well with the two brothers' financial project until a wily old Spaniard makes them a large offer for the mine. They are about to accept when Diana Ramon, the Spaniard's niece warns them not to. Further research in the mine discloses a rich vein of ore which they have previously overlooked. They are overjoyed and Jim is particularly grateful to Diana.

Stanley leaves at once for the states and immediately marries Millicent. On their wedding day Bob Davies, an old friend, presents them with a book entitled "How to Be Happy, Though Married," a volume filled with cynical advice for young couples. Millicent finds certain passages underscored and believes that her husband is the guilty party. She begins to follow out the advice literally and gets in trouble. The trouble is in no wise lessened when she discovers a picture of Diana in Stanley's trunk. The book hints at a dark and mysterious past. Millicent isn't comfortable.

Stanley hears from Jim and Diana, to the effect that they have been married and to meet them at the station as they are returning. In the crowd Jim is separated from his brother and wife. Stanley takes Diana home, leaves her and goes out in search of Jim. Naturally, when Millicent arrives home she recognizes the Spanish beauty. Diana can't speak English and there is the very devil to pay until finally the brothers arrive home and straighten matters out for the happiness of all concerned.

CATCH LINES

Millicent wasn't feeling well, any way. She had discovered a picture of a Spanish beauty in the bottom of her husband's trunk. She was considerably peeved. And when she returned to the house she found the living counterpart of the Spanish beauty awaiting her! The answer? You'll find that in a whirl of comedy in "Happy, Though Married."

What would you do (we follow the form prescribed by those who offer you heavy moral lessons in the guise of questions) if you returned to your home and found a Spanish senorita awaiting your husband? Particularly if she had an amorous look and all that and couldn't speak English or anything that you could speak? Goodness only knows what you would do, but we do know what Millicent does in "Happy, Though Married" and if you want one of the season's best laughs don't miss this feature.

Enid Bennett's name stands for the best in light comedy. "Happy, Though Married" stands for the best in light comedy and Enid Bennett has the star part. Some combination! You'll laugh long and loud at this picture, providing you manage to squeeze in the doors of the ———— theatre.

SUGGESTIONS

Here you have another Enid Bennett comedy and if you have followed the suggestions offered before in this department the mere announcement of her name should signify a humorous, lightly humorous production. Be sure to capitalize the star's personality, her looks, the type of story in which she appears. The strength of the big stars, the Big Four, for instance, is that they all stand for a certain popular type of entertainment. And nothing is more popular than light comedy. Try to make Enid Bennett's name synonymous with this type of entertainment and you will be going a long way toward increasing box office receipts.

With the case of "Happy, Though Married" You have innumerable angles to play up in your advertising. It might be a good idea to frame a picture of the star reading a book entitled "How to Be Happy, Though Married." Else you might use such a book as a background for newspaper advertisements, printing your usual announcement on it. The angles of the story are so many and all so humorous that if you read the synopsis you will certainly be able to find one to play up to your liking.

"LITTLE WHITE SAVAGE"

(Continued from page 1380)

SUGGESTIONS

It wouldn't do any harm to put a little of the risque into your advertising of this production, nothing vulgar, to be sure, but something bound to catch the eye and make the spectator wonder what it's all about. To accomplish this you might have your artist draw you a picture of a minister sitting uneasily talking with two elderly men who have their backs to the door. The door should be opened slightly and through it will appear the figure of Carmel Myers, looking naively out upon the scene, while she is only scantily clad. These scenes will get a laugh and will set the people wondering and will attract.

Your argument on the picture should consist of mentioning the situation of the savage girl taking refuge in the minister's home. The comedy and the surprises are built around this and it is such an unusual situation that it is bound to attract notice.

One-column ad cut

"JOHNNY-ON-THE-SPOT"—METRO

Average Comedy-Drama Made Interesting Because of Star

ALTHOUGH at times somewhat slow moving, this picture featuring Hale Hamilton presents a comedy-drama in itself of average worth and considerably above the average when the capabilities of the star are taken into consideration. Mr. Hamilton, by no means one of the "pretty" actors of the screen, has an ability of expression that instantly stamps him as a most interesting individual. He performs with such ease, such apparent lack of effort, that we get pleasure out of whatever he does. Mr. Hamilton does his work well and we all like to see work well done.

There are considerable laughs, a thread of melodrama and a perfectly good idea in "Johnny-On-the-Spot." The hero discovers that it is better to pursue the lady fair than to wait for her to pursue him.

Louise Lovely is the heroine in the case and a cast typical of Metro merit appears in support.—Length, 5 reels.—Released Feb. 17.—Peter Milne.

THE CAST

Johnny Rutledge .....Hale Hamilton
Anne Travers .....Louise Lovely
Arthur Abington, alias Cooley..Philo McCullough
Mrs. Webster, Rutledge's landlady
.....Ruth Orlamond
Judge Martin Crandall.....Edward J. Connelly
Dr. Barnabas Bunyon.....Hardee Kirkland
Lillian Dupre, an adventuress.....Lilie Leslie
Jim Burton, a detective.....Wilton Taylor
"Pipe" Brooks .....Fred H. Warren
"Buck" Bates, a clerk.....Neal Hardin
"Canary" Kelly .....Oral Humphreys
By Shannon Fife.
Adapted by June Mathis.
Directed by Harry L. Franklin.
Photographed by Arthur Martinelli.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—Two one-sheets; two three-sheets; two six-sheets.
LOBBY DISPLAY:—Photographs are provided in 8x10 sepia; 11x14 sepia and 22x28 colored. These include star photographs and production scenes. Title and synopsis cards are also provided to complete this display.
CUTS AND MATS:—Star cuts are provided in one-half, one and two-column sizes, these being designed for use in text or advertising columns of newspapers or in program announcements.
Silhouette cuts of star in one-column size are also provided. (This cut will be found reproduced on this page.)
SLIDE AND MUSIC CUE SHEET available at all Metro exchanges.

AD TALK

On ——— of ——— week "Johnny-on-the-Spot," featuring Hale Hamilton, will be presented at the ——— theatre. This is a comedy by Shannon Fife, one of the older writers in the business, and concerns an embryo author who harped on the theory that speed in business and love was all wrong. "Let the girl pursue you," he addressed himself to the members of his sex, "by no means pursue the girl." Johnny thought this was a perfectly good idea, but the manner in which he was forced to change it comes as a part, and a very humorous part, of this Metro feature, "Johnny-on-the-Spot."

Hale Hamilton is one of the newer stars on the screen today. However, he has been trained by long and arduous years on the stage and immediately he set face before the camera, it was realized that in him rested a new and distinct personality. This Mr. Hamilton has proven through his previous appearances on the silver-sheet. He is not one of the becurled heroes, nor is his hair done after the patent-leather variety. He is, one might say, "all man," both on the screen and off, and this personality of his shows to delightful advantage in the production here in hand. He is a skilled actor besides and his work is marked by an ease and grace not often identified with the usual motion picture actor.

Mr. Hamilton's support in this feature includes Louise Lovely, the former Bluebird star; Philo McCullough, Lilie Leslie and Hardee Kirkland, besides an exceptional cast of lesser known but no less competent screen players. The picture was made under the direction of Harry L. Franklin.

THE STORY

Johnny Rutledge is an author with an idea. The only trouble is that his idea is all wrong. In a manuscript he has asserted that speed is all to the discard and that men, if they would succeed in matrimony, should wait for the girl to pursue them instead of pursuing the girl. Johnny is due for an awakening and it comes. His lawyer refuses to give him any more money—only a paltry ten he gets from him. Returning home he sees Anne Travers, another aspirant to the position of successful novelist, weeping about the rent and, out of the kindness of his heart, he gives his ten to her. So Johnny is evicted. Not disheartened, he takes a job with a medicine show and becomes the official "come-on" of the outfit.

In the meantime the secretary of a well-known author has learned that Anne is to inherit a fortune if she is found and married before a certain day and date. Without informing her of the why and wherefore he introduces himself to her as the well-known author himself and pretends to take an interest in her literary efforts. He presses his courtship and, as time goes on, believes himself successful. Anne, because of Johnny's statement regarding the pursuit of women, feels peeved about him and tries to forget him. But she only can try.

A day before the last day of the certain time Johnny hears all about Anne's fortune and the conditions of the will. By divers routes he makes all haste to her and announces his intention of marrying her. Anne tells him she is engaged to the great author. Johnny tells her she cannot possibly be, because the gentleman is in Bermuda. They make their escape from the villains by a hair's breadth and after that Johnny is perfectly willing to renounce his foolish theory about speed.

CATCH LINES

Johnny didn't believe in speed—he said so in print—but when he found it necessary to find a girl and marry her in twenty-four hours he turned out to be Johnny-on-the-Spot—his theory was smashed, but he had found love and happiness—see this amusing photoplay at the ——— theatre.

Hale Hamilton, an actor who never looks as if he were acting—this is about the highest praise that can be said of any man or woman who earns a livelihood through screen or stage work—therefore draw your own conclusions regarding the ability of Mr. Hamilton—you'll like him in the Metro comedy, "Johnny-on-the-Spot."

The story of an author who wrote a treatise against speed. Let the women pursue the men, was his theory. But he found that the ladies had a different idea and in a humorous way, too. "Johnny-on-the-Spot" will convince you that he had the wrong idea—and that it is a great thing to laugh—don't miss it.

Hale Hamilton, one of the most natural actors on the screen, in a spirited comedy-drama supported by Louise Lovely, the former Bluebird star—a combination and a comedy that you cannot afford to miss.

SUGGESTIONS

In presenting this comedy-drama to your patrons the biggest thing to play up, outside of the star, is the idea contained in the story itself. Glance over the synopsis to gain the complete idea of the plot and then see whether such lines as those suggested in the catch lines on this page will not fit. Quote the young author's ideas regarding speed, particularly those he holds in regard to the wooing of women. The idea is so contrary to all established standards that your reading public, especially the feminine portion of it, will be instantly caught with it. Moreover, the chances are likely that they will come and find out just what sort of a "boob" is the hero of your picture. Play up this angle then, together with the fact that the entire picture is a comedy-drama.

Hamilton is new to the screen, comparatively new that is, but his personality and ability assure him a good reception in every picture. Play him up and use Louise Lovely's name. If you played the old Bluebird pictures your public knows her as the star of many of the most successful of that series.

HALE HAMILTON

New type of silhouette star cut provided on this production and on all in which Hale Hamilton is starred

"SHADOWS OF SUSPICION"—Screen-Classics

Last Lockwood Picture Starts Well, But Slumps at Finish

EXTENSIVELY reviewed in last week's issue of Motion Picture News, "Shadows of Suspicion," the last Lockwood picture, has the beginnings of a most entertaining feature, but before its course is half run it falls down suddenly and, to say the least, noticeably. The producers endeavored to finish the picture without the star's services and as a consequence the action in which he himself did not appear shows up as rather forced and strained.

At the outset, however, it proves to be an interesting spy story, with a good romantic interest and set in backgrounds of rare beauty.—Length, 6 reels.—Peter Milne.

THE CAST

Cyril Hammersley.....Haroid Lockwood
Doris Mathers.....Naomi Childers
Lady Betty Heathcote.....Helen Lindroth
Goeffrey Mathers.....Kenneth Kealing
Capt. Walter Bydielf.....William Bailey
Sir John Rizzio.....Bigelow Cooper
Chief of Scotland Yard.....Capt. Leslie Peacock
Written by George Gibbs.
Scenario by Finis Fox.
Directed by Edwin Carewe.
Photographed by R. J. Bergquist.
Art direction by Ferdinand Pinney Earle.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—One one-sheet; one three-sheet; one six-sheet.
LOBBY DISPLAY:—Two 22x28 colored photographs; eight 11x14 black and white photos and title cards, and 8x10 photograph of star.
CUTS:—There are available a series of two-column scene cuts and one-column cuts of star in character poses.
ADVERTISING CUTS:—One one-column; two two-column; one three-column and one four-column.
Special lithographed window cards are available, as are special heralds, plain heralds and slides and a music cue.

SUGGESTIONS

As suggested for other Harold Lockwood releases since the star's death, it is well to eliminate from your advertising on this picture concerning facts of his death. The picture offers nothing in the way of striking originality that you can play up in your advertising. Its adventurous romance and the fact that the late star was particularly good in romantic parts is a good talking point. The cast in support of the star in this offering should be mentioned. as it contains the names of some of the best known leads and character actors on the screen.

CATCH LINES

Harold Lockwood in a romantic drama, with touches of adventure and the war.

How a young English pacifist proves his true worth to the girl of his dreams.

English society as it moved during the height of the great war shown in Harold Lockwood's picture.

How a young English sportsman saves London from the hand of an enemy.

Mystery, combined with romance and adventure, plays big part in a Metro star's late picture, "Shadows of Suspicion."

AD TALK

Cyril Hammersley, a young English sportsman, the girl whom he is to marry, a middle-aged English peer and a German spy are the central figures in Harold Lockwood's late picture, "Shadows of Suspicion," to be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre ——— of ——— wek. Mystery, romance and adventure are so cleverly interwoven in drama that the height of entertainment on the screen is reached, and through it all runs the wonderful personality of Harold Lockwood, considered by the critics to be the screen's most likable romantic actor. Naomi Childers, whose beauty has attracted New York's greatest artists, and whose face has adorned the covers of many of the most popular magazines, is seen in chief support of Mr. Lockwood in this picture. William Bailey and Bigelow Cooper, two of the screen's best known character actors, have principal supporting roles. The star, the cast and the story are examples of the best that photodramatic entertainment offers. The management of the ——— theatre unreservedly recommends this picture starring Mr. Lockwood to his patrons.

THE STORY

A young English sportsman, Cyril Hammersley, arouses the suspicion of his fiancee, Doris Mathers, because he passively sits by and watches his fellows enter England's fight against the Hun. A friend, Sir John Rizzio, intimates that Hammersley is a German agent. Hammersley explains his actions on the ground that he is a pacifist and opposed to fighting.

Doris recalls her lover's exploits in India and Africa and knows that he faced all dangers met in these countries without flinching. She doubts his pacifism. At a dinner given by the nobility, the men present are called upon to state whether or not they are true English subjects. Hammersley professes true loyalty. Doris overhears Sir John demand from Hammersley a package of cigarette papers on which he states he has reason to believe is written a code message. She has seen Capt. Walter Byfield pass the papers to Hammersley at dinner. Later Byfield is shot in the Tower of London as a German spy. But Hammersley is turning a clever scheme and is instrumental in rounding up a band of German spies.

"A TRICK OF FATE"

(Continued from page 1383)

THE STORY

On the death of her father, Mary Lee, the last of a long aristocratic southern line, finds herself saddled with many debts. Resenting the insolent words of one creditor she determines to go to New York to make enough money to clear the family name. In the city she finds the going particularly hard and is unable to secure employment at her profession, dancing, until a strange thing occurs. Mme. Zura, a French dancer, who is the exact likeness of Mary, quits her manager just as he has made her the greatest sensation in New York. As the disconsolate man walks along the street he sees Mary and it is that night that she goes on in place of the deserter.

Mary is an instant success and to insure the safety of the act she promises to tell no one her identity. Over in Paris, Pierre, former lover of Mme. Zura, feels lonesome and comes to America. By a lucky chance he misses Mary at the door and as a result goes to Zura's apartment. The next morning Zura is found dead by the manager. He arranges things so that it will appear as if Mary Lee were the dead woman. Zura's maid is arrested for the crime. Richard Crane, Mary's fiance, now returns from South America and calls on her. She refuses to recognize him but he is persistent and follows a number of clues, finally proving to his own satisfaction that Zura is Mary. As a result of his investigations Mary is accused of the murder. Richard shoulders the blame.

To free him Mary visits Paris where she has learned Pierre has gone. She appears before him and dances Zura's dance. Believing himself mad Pierre confesses the crime. Mary returns to America, her evidence liberates Richard, and all ends happily.

ADVERTISING AIDS

LOBBY DISPLAY:—Eight 11 x 14 photo gelatines and title card; eight 22 x 28 photo gelatines and title card.
CUTS AND MATS:—One one-column; one two-column. Mats provided for each of these. A thumbnail cut and program cover cut also provided (no mats). A three-column mat included in list. These cuts and mats so designed as to be equally valuable in text stories or in advertising matter.
SLIDE AND MUSIC CUE SHEET also obtainable at all Exhibitors-Mutual exchanges.

SUGGESTIONS

Unquestionably the biggest selling point regarding this picture is the strange dual role offered the star. Particularly should the situation of the southern girl taking the Apache dancer's place on condition that she tell no one of the substitution be played up. This is a novel idea and will serve to set people guessing. Make this situation the keynote of your advertising, tell a little more of the story and then stop at the important part. A reader worked up to this extent will not be likely to turn away from your theatre when he passes.

Play up Miss Barriscale's acting as she is undoubtedly one of the finest actresses on the screen. Say that she delineates the roles well and that each one is suited to her talents, this to make certain in your reader's mind that she is not trying to get away with the ingenue stuff.

"SHADOWS"

(Continued from page 1385)

SUGGESTIONS

As was the case with "The Hell Cat," "Shadows" is a feature of great dramatic power. Let force be the keynote of your advertising, bring out the strength of the piece, don't let people think that it is only an ordinary feature. Let them know that the power of "Shadows" is sweeping in its effect. Get this bigness into your advertising. Use as many dramatic catch lines as you can and stress the principal situation of the play.

You have the way paved for you as "The Hell Cat" and "The Turn of the Wheel" were successes of no small sort. Refer to them in your advertising of this one with the added information that Willard Mack, author of the previous picture, wrote this one. His name is beginning to be a factor in photoplay production. Don't neglect it.

As for Miss Farrar, play her up to the limit for since she has gotten away from the costume stuff she has donge great work on the screen. Tom Santschi and Milton Sills, who were with her in "The Hell Cat," also carry the principal supporting roles here.

HAROLD LOCKWOOD in "SHADOWS of SUSPICION"

"CAROLYN OF THE CORNERS"—PATHE

Strong Story, But a Little Loose; Human Touches Plentiful

THE human touches all the way through make the picture heart-appealing, while the light comedy situations make it highly amusing. The story is hardly concentrated enough to be called a story—it is rather an assemblage of widely separated incidents, as intelligently put together as the case permit: but between a strong story built on murders, suicides, and the like on one hand, and a group of enjoyable human incidents, taken from every day life on the other, the latter always is the most preferable. It is the mood it leaves the spectator in that invariably counts; it is what brings him back.

The heroine, because of a report that her parents have perished in the torpedoing of a ship in which they were passengers, is sent to her uncle up the country. She finds him very uncongenial, but soon discovers that the cause is an unfortunate quarrel with his fiance and the consequent breaking off of their engagement. With her sweet, childish manners, she soon brings about a reconciliation. Towards the end, the report of the death of her parents proves false; they unexpectedly return and bring her happiness.

The dog used as the star's companion in the picture adds no little to the entertainment, which is clean and wholesome.—Released March 9.—Length, 5 reels.—P. S. Harrison.

THE CAST

Carolyn May Cameron.....Bessie Love
Jos. Stagg.....Chas. Edler
Amanda Parlow.....Charlotte Mineau
"Aunt Rose" Kennedy.....Eunice Moore
Jed Parlow .....
Prince, Carolyn's dog.....By Himself

By Ruth Belmore Endicott.
Scenario by Frank S. Beresford.
Directed by Robert Thornby.
Produced by Anderson-Brunton Co.

THE STORY

Carolyn May Cameron, after her parents have been reported lost at sea, is sent to live with her uncle Joe Stagg, the storekeeper of a little village in Maine. Stagg is a bachelor, having quarreled years before with the woman he loved, Amanda Parlow. "Aunt Rose" is his housekeeper. Stagg doesn't understand the little girl who enters his life along with her big dog, Prince, but in time, guided by Aunt Rose, he learns to love her and to find companionship in her. Carolyn enjoys the days in the little village and attends the little school with the other children. And it is mainly through her efforts that the ancient quarrel between Stagg and Amanda is smoothed over, at least in some small measure.

When spring comes Amanda takes Carolyn into an old lumber camp, there to visit one of her friends who is bedridden with rheumatism. While they are there a forest fire breaks out and Carolyn and the women are trapped in the flames. They take refuge in a spring and wait until Stagg arrives to the rescue. This element of danger proves the last straw which breaks down the reserve between Amanda and Stagg and past quarrels are forgotten. Aunt Rose suggests that the newly-married couple will not be wanting company any more so Carolyn takes her last money and buys a ticket to New York, returning to the still vacant Harlem flat of her parents.

Amanda and Stagg follow, of course—having postponed their honeymoon to Niagara Falls. The next morning they find her crying her eyes out for her father and mother. And then, wonder of wonders, her parents enter! They had been saved from the sinking vessel and had taken refuge on a distant island and had only now reached civilization again. So Carolyn is once more happy.

AD TALK

Bessie Love will be seen at the ———— theatre on ———— of ———— week as the star of "Carolyn of the Corners," a Pathe feature. Miss Love is seen to singular advantage in this charming little story of a New York orphan who is sent to live with her uncle in a little town in Maine. Uncle Stagg nurses a grouch, having quarreled with the woman he loved, Amanda Parlow, several years before, and he has never quite recovered from it. Into this atmosphere comes the little waif from the city, all smiles, all eagerness to make herself useful and to make others happy.

It can be seen from this brief outline of the beginning of the picture that it is ideally suited to the star's talents. As the young girl from New York to whom the Maine coast is a veritable fairyland, she creates a winsome and appealing character, a character to warm all hearts and one that all hearts will go out to. How she manages to smooth over her uncle's quarrel and how she revives the romance so abruptly ended in the days gone by are events which give the star ample opportunity to exercise those talents for which she is justly celebrated.

The film is notable in that there is no romance between the star and another character, but the full portion of human and heart interest contained in the five reels amply makes up for this. Miss Love is supported by Charles Edler, Charlotte Mineau and Eunice Moore among others. And there is also Prince the dog, a player who has a role of considerable importance.

CATCH LINES

Bessie Love in a role that brings her closer than ever to her friends—as the waif from the city who manages to patch together the pieces of her uncle's broken romance she creates a delightful little character, notable for its simplicity, charm and loveliness.

An orphan from the city, transplanted to the glory of the Maine coast. You'll enjoy the picture every bit as much as Carolyn enjoys her stay in the great outdoors.

Bessie Love makes herself thoroughly at home in the role of Carolyn and makes the spectator feel perfectly at home by her charming actions—"Carolyn of the Corners" is the sort of a photoplay that you want to see the star in.

Full of quaint characterizations, homely philosophy and comedy of the human variety. Bessie Love in the most congenial role of her career.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—One one-sheet; one three-sheet; one six-sheet.
LOBBY DISPLAY:—Eight 11 x 14 scene stills and title card are provided. This selection constitutes a complete display. One 22 x 28 of scene and one 22x28 of star are also furnished.
CUTS:—There are one-column and thumbnail cuts of star obtainable on this production as on all pictures featuring Bessie Love. These are suitable for use either in dressing advertisements, for the text columns of newspapers or for program announcements.
SLIDE AND MUSIC CUE SHEET are also obtainable at all Pathe branches.

"MADE IN AMERICA"

(Continued from page 1386)

PRESS NOTICES

For following episodes

Included on the bill this week is another of the fascinating "Made in America" series, which was recently inaugurated at the ———— theatre. This reel shows further activities of the boys in camp, is full of interesting detail, color and human interest events.

A welcome addition to the regular feature bill at the ———— theatre this week is another of the "Made in America" series offered for the first time in this city. Further adventures of our three friends in the army camps at home and abroad are shown.

As the "Made in America" series draws to a close the reels seem to gather in interest. The ———— number of the series which the ———— theatre will present in addition to its feature next week shows the boys in the final stages of training.

The eighth and last episode of the "Made in America" series will also be offered along with the feature. This takes all the principals to France where some stirring scenes are enacted. The reel forms a worthy conclusion to this most interesting series of pictures.

SUGGESTIONS

This one-reel series deserves a considerable amount of advertising even though you have a feature on the bill. Communities will no doubt be interested in seeing the training camp activities of the boys who are now back, and the boys themselves may be willing to smile just a little bit at their awkward efforts at the beginning. As a consequence it is not likely that the nature of the series will scare anyone away, particularly as they are of short length, while on the other hand the angles that will attract are many.

Always carry a line in your copy even after the first reel has been shown designating that the second holds a similarly important position on the bill.

It could also be mentioned, and with profit, that the films were produced with the co-operation of the Committee on Public Information.

"MRS. WIGGS OF THE CABBAGE PATCH"—PARAMOUNT

Marguerite Clark in Best Picture in a Long While

IT has been many moons since Marguerite Clark has shown herself in so appealing a picture as "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." To put it in a few words, it is a bit of human life portrayed by human characters—not puppets; and it gets you under the skin. The picture is also rich in comedy situations such as would draw laughs from a marble statue; so if tears is what your patrons want, tears they will get aplenty, or if laughs is what they enjoy, they will not be disappointed.

The heroine's fondness of a little child forms the foundation of the story. Being of kind nature, the heroine, an orphan herself, feels great compassion for the little unfortunates of the institution. She is given a little baby boy to look after and becomes deeply attached to him. After several years, the mother returns to claim her child. The thought of being separated from her charge makes her desperate; so she runs away with him from the orphanage during the night. Her good luck throws her on the path of a kind-hearted woman, in whose home the remainder of the story develops.

For the benefit of those among you who are extremely particular, it must be stated that the child is illegitimate, the son of a young man who is afraid to marry the girl lest his aunt disinherit him; but as the affair is suggested by subtitles only, the effect is in no wise offensive. Besides, a marriage results between the couple towards the end of the story, thus legalizing the union.—Released Feb. 9.—Length, 5 reels.—P. S. Harrison.

THE CAST

Lovey Mary ..... Marguerite Clark
Mrs. Wiggs ..... Mary Carr
Miss Tabitha Hazy ..... Vivia Ogden
Maggie Duncan ..... Gladys Valerie
Billy Wiggs ..... Gareth Hughes
Dick Morgan ..... Jack MacLean
Hiram Stubbins ..... Robert Milash
Mrs. 'Phroney Morgan ..... Maud Hosford
Mrs. Eichorn ..... Mary Davis
Mrs. Shultz ..... Anita Brown
Tommy ..... Lawrence Johnson
Baby Wiggs ..... Marion Stewart
Asia ..... Lola Hernandez
Australy ..... May McAvoy
Europeana ..... Wanda Valle

By Alice Hegan Rice.
Scenario by Eve Unsell.
Directed by Hugh Ford.
Photographed by William Marshall.

CATCH LINES

Lovey Mary, Billy Wiggs, Mrs. Wiggs, Maggie Duncan and all the rest of the delightful characters from Alice Hegan Rice's delightful story have come to life on the screen—don't miss them in Marguerite Clark's picture.

One of the classics of modern American literature brought to life on the screen with all the art of real motion picture artists. Miss Clark has contributed many classics to the annals of the screen, but none so thoroughly delightful as "Mrs. Wiggs."

AD TALK

On ——— of ——— week the management of the ——— theatre will present for the first time in this city the Paramount picture, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." Not many of our patrons will need to be told of the nature and content of this story. From time immemorial it would seem Alice Hegan Rice's "Mrs. Wiggs" has stood as one of the classics of American literature. First in book form it excited comment and praise all over the country, all over the world for that matter. Next as a play it attracted considerable attention at the old Savoy theatre in New York. This was as far back as in 1904. Now as a picture with none other than Marguerite Clark assuming the role of Lovey Mary, it would seem that it is destined to earn new glory and conquer new fields.

The adventures of Lovey Mary with her little Tommy in the orphanage, in the home of the wealthy Morgans and finally in the place of Mrs. Wiggs who tends the cabbage patch, are full of that popular element described as "heart interest." Laughter and tears are happily intermingled. It is indeed a story filled with the most wholesome sort of sentiment, ripe with rare characterizations, humor and touches of human interest. As done into scenario form by Eve Unsell it becomes one of the real classics of the pictorial art, worthy indeed to rank with Miss Clark's most successful pictures.

The picture was given an excellent production by Hugh Ford, director-in-chief of the Famous Players studios, while prominent in the large list of characterizations are Gareth Hughes' Billy Wiggs, Lawrence Johnson's Tommy, Gladys Valerie's Maggie Duncan and Mary Carr's inimitable portrait of Mrs. Wiggs.

THE STORY

Lovey Mary, inmate of the Brofield Orphanage, is somewhat of a tomboy and is the champion of all the little folks in their fights with the monitors of the place. But although Mary fights the monitors in youth she grows to be one in a later year. In her position of "boss" of the kiddies she is kind and considerate and never allows her authority to assert itself in any but the most pleasing ways. Maggie Duncan, former member of the institution and now a circus woman, sends her little Tommy to the orphanage and it is not long before the little fellow has gained prior place in Mary's heart. As a consequence when Maggie at last sends for Tommy, Mary is loathe to let him go. She takes the child and flees with him.

Mary encounters Dick Morgan, nephew of a wealthy old man. He takes the two home to his mother and announces his intention of sending them back to the orphanage, whereupon Mary flees again, this time to the home of Mrs. Wiggs who tends the cabbage patch. She finds a home and makes herself useful with Mrs. Wiggs and falls in love with Billy, one of the many offspring of the Wiggs. Everything goes along smoothly until the sheriff appears and demands Tommy in Maggie's name.

After a lapse of time Mary hears that Maggie has fallen and injured herself. She goes to tend her and learns from her lips that Dick Morgan is Tommy's father. Mary then goes to Dick and appeals to him to right the wrong he has done. So Tommy at last finds a congenial home. As for Mary her affair with Billy progresses so nicely that when he gains a good position in a factory, he feels quite able to ask for the little heroine's hand, which she is not loathe to give him.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—Two one-sheets; two three-sheets; one six-sheet; one twenty-four-sheet; one rotogravure one-sheet. Paper serves to bring out the comedy and human interest elements of the production.

LOBBY DISPLAY:—Eight 8x10 black and white photographs; eight 11x14 sepia; one 22x28 sepia; 8x10 photographs of star.

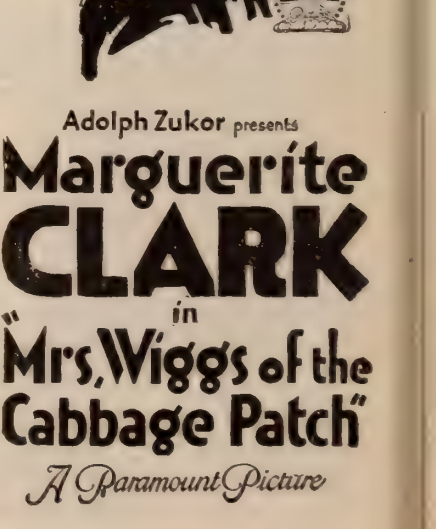
CUTS AND MATS ON PRODUCTION:—Five one-column; three two-column; two three-column. Comedy is the dominating note in these scenes both in the poses of stars and the actual scenes from the production.

STOCK CUTS AND MATS OF STAR:—Five one-column; three two-column; two three-column.

ADVERTISING LAYOUTS:—One three-column; one two-column; one one-column. These are dressed in the usual Paramount style and serve to bring out the idea of the "special" quality of the production.

SLIDE AND MUSIC CUE SHEET also included in list of accessories furnished at Paramount exchanges.

SUGGESTIONS



Make an effort to get the better class of people into your house for this production. There are few who do not know the story, for when Mrs. Rice's work was first published it swept the country. Later it was made into a play. The novel still holds a position of honor in many libraries.

Get the quaint character of the production and the people it deals with into your advertising. Use either dignified phrasing in your ads or mention the various characters that will be brought to life on the screen in some style characteristic of the language of the people.

You have a good chance to do the book store stunt again with this picture and you also might use a few of the copies in your lobby to help

(Continued on page 1393)

"WHERE THE WEST BEGINS"—AMERICAN

Another Good Picture to William Russell List

WITH "Where the West Begins," William Russell adds another good picture to the long list of his successes. The plot is full of action, and as it has been handled well, it holds the interest undiminished from start to finish.

The story is of the Western type, starting in New York, where the hero, manager of a big Western ranch, takes a trip there to talk matters over with the boss. His employer has a son, whom he forcibly takes West in order to cure him; also a daughter, who becomes the heroine of the story, in the end marrying the hero.

As in all Russell Western pictures, beautiful ranch scenery, with large herds of cattle, forms the background in most of the scenes; exciting horse riding and cattle rustling is also shown in many of the situations, and as the story appeals to the better feelings, it should give good satisfaction to picture goers, especially to those who enjoy the Western photoplay.—Released March 2.—Length, 5 reels.—P. S. Harrison.

THE CAST

Cliff Redfern.....William Russell
Prudence Caldwell.....Eileen Percy
Ned Caldwell.....J. Cullen Landis
Luther Caldwell.....Frederick Vroom
Gunner McCann.....Carl Stockdale
Blackthorn Kennedy.....Alfred Ferguson
By Stephen Fox.
Directed by Henry King.
Produced by William Russell Productions.
Distributed through Pathe.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—One one-sheet; one three-sheet; one six-sheet.

LOBBY DISPLAY:—Eight 11x14 scene stills and title card; 22x28 of scene; 22x28 of star.

CUTS:—There are one-column and thumbnail cuts of Russell available on this production as on all in which the star appears. These are suitable for use either in dressing advertisements, text columns of newspapers or for program announcements. A two-column scene cut is also provided.

SLIDE AND MUSIC CUE SHEET procurable at all Pathe exchanges.

AD TALK

The virile West is contrasted with the effete East again in William Russell's latest American comedy-drama, "Where the West Begins," which will be shown at the ———— theatre on ———— of ———— week. Whereas this idea has been employed many times before in pictures, the author of "Where the West Begins," Stephen Fox, has handled his material well and developed his story with a real eye to the manifold possibilities contained in the theme. As a result, the picture stands as one of the most refreshing westerns that the management of the ———— theatre has presented in some time and with Mr. Russell as the star, patrons may be assured of a most agreeable entertainment.

The star takes the role of Cliff Redfern, the foreman of the vast cattle holdings of Luther Caldwell. Cliff pays his employer a visit in the city and is taken into the old gentleman's confidence. It appears that Ned Caldwell has lost ambition, is tired of living at the slender age of twenty-four. Caldwell, Sr., wants to administer a dose of medicine that will wake the boy up. Cliff volunteers to be the doctor and practically shanghaies his charge aboard a train bound for the West. Other passengers are Caldwell, Sr., and his daughter, Prudence, whose sympathies all lie with her brother and who dislikes the uncouth westerner.

On this situation Mr. Fox has built a story filled with swift moving incident and comedy situation of a high order. It need hardly be added that Ned gets a new lease on life before the story is over and that Prudence decides that one westerner isn't so bad after all. Eileen Percy is seen as the girl in the case, while the supporting cast does work of a high order.

THE STORY

Cliff Redfern, the cattle boss of the Caldwell's lands in Montana doesn't like the city very much. Its people disgust him. Specially does Ned Caldwell, the son of his employer, grate him the wrong way. Ned is only twenty-four and already tired of living. His father wants him to go West but not until Cliff gets on the job with strong arm methods does he show signs of consent. Even then they are forced from him. Caldwell and his daughter, Prudence, accompanies the party westward. Prudence doesn't like the uncouth manner of Cliff and treats him coldly. Peeved, Cliff gets hold of a book on etiquette on the train and endeavors to polish up his manners. Ned finally capitulates to Cliff. He likes his stories of the West. He likes his open-mindedness. Before the train reaches Montana, Cliff wires ahead to McCann of the ranch to stage some wild-western fireworks when the train pulls in.

McCann seizes the opportunity to mask stealing some of Caldwell's cattle and when the party arrives he incriminates Cliff of the theft. He is denounced by the Caldwells, most severely by Prudence, who declares she knew he was no good after all. Grabbing her and swinging her to his saddle, Cliff informs her that she will be the first to know of his innocence and soon afterwards he traps McCann into a confession of his crimes.

Then when Cliff returns to the ranch to receive the pardon of the Caldwells he is told that Prudence has returned to the city. He spurs his horse to town and manages to swing the girl from the platform before the train has gone far. And Prudence isn't the kind for objecting in this instance.

CATCH LINES

East meets West again in this American feature—it's a merry five-round bout ending in a draw—but it's full of punches and has all the thrills and laughs that a comedy-drama should have.

Big Bill Russell is doctor to an entire eastern family in "Where the West Begins"—Caldwell's business is run down, his son is tired of living and his daughter has an ingrowing hatred for any man that acts like a man—and they're all cured when Big Bill gets through with 'em. Laughs and thrills, you betcha.

Prudence Caldwell didn't care very much where the West began—the East interested her much more—but it didn't take Cliff Redfern long to change her mind—in fact he changed it quicker than she ever did! Some man! Some picture!

William Russell does the western and the western comedy-drama in ship-shape style. His latest is of the latter variety and intermingles thrills and laughs in just the right proportions.

SUGGESTIONS

The traditional conflict between the East and the West is developed in this picture along humorous and thrilling lines. This would seem to be the keynote for your advertising. Bring out both comedy and thrills in the copy you use. Run through the catch lines elsewhere on this page and see if any of them won't suit.

Don't forget that Russell's popularity is ever on the increase. A line reading "with Eileen Percy" might be carried in connection with the picture, for she gained considerable fame during her career as Douglas Fairbanks' leading lady.

"THE INDESTRUCTIBLE WIFE"

(Continued from page 1387)

this feature. It is a story of high society life and should be advertised in colorful, bold terms. Let the people expect something out of the ordinary of the dull routine of the society drama. Hint at an intimate plot. You have an excellent point to back up any such statements in the fact that one of the cuts provided shows the husband binding his wife with a rope. This, an unusual scene in the first place, will create comment if backed up with some forceful catch line.

As the original play was written by Frederic and Fanny Hatton, well known playwrights, author of a number of stage successes be sure to mention their names and the reputation they have of writing sparkling, "snappy" dialogue. A dandy article on them is included in the press sheet on this production which should be clipped and used.

After all there is Alice Brady, who fits into the general atmosphere you will create by announcing the feature in the style indicated above. She is a sterling actress and her past pictures have raised her popularity considerably. Also mention Charles Maigne, the adaptor and director, who worked on her three immediately previous pictures.

"HELL ROARIN' REFORM"

(Continued from page 1379)

is a popular star and if the public gets to know that a certain type of advertisement means a certain type of Tom Mix picture you will have accomplished a lot.

In catch-lines mention the stunts of the picture, particularly the one about pulling the church down and the jump taken by the star on his horse through the roof of a bar-room. These are certainly unusual and deserve to be featured in arguments that you may use to accentuate your advertising.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—Two one-sheets; two three-sheets; one six-sheet; one twenty-four-sheet. With the exception of the ones, all the paper issued on this production serves to stress the element of fast action that dominates the picture. The ones are light comedy scenes.

LOBBY DISPLAY:—Ten 8 x 10 black and white photographs; ten 11 x 14 black and white; three 22 x 28 colored.

SCENE CUTS AND MATS:—Five two-column; four one-column. Action and comedy are the dominating notes of these scenes.

ADVERTISING CUTS:—Four two-column, two one-column. Here again, action and comedy are the keynotes of the pictures used. The arguments are written in the usual striking style of the Fox ads, the type is well selected and the composition commendable.

"MRS. WIGGS OF THE CABBAGE PATCH"

(Continued from page 1392)

advertise the film. Open one or two of them to some interesting passage of the book and leave another closed. If these be surrounded with stills from the picture the display should attract attention.

The title itself gives you the idea for any decorations for your advertising, lobby or lobby paintings.

In and Out of West Coast Studios

By J. C. Jessen

Universal Newsettes

The Universal production, "The Heart of Humanity," starring Dorothy Phillips and directed by Allen Holubar, will be shown at the Kinema theatre during the week beginning, Monday, February 17. Coincident with the announcement of the initial showing of the picture in Los Angeles, Allen Holubar has issued an appeal to scenario writers to provide him with other stories with the same dramatic appeal and far-reaching possibilities. However, he does not want any war stories. He wants problem plays, and he says that the highest prices will be paid. In fact, he says, the price is the last consideration. He wants good stories, and the price for same will be properly taken care of, he declares. To put over "The Heart of Humanity" properly the Universal people have leased, or rather have taken over, the Kinema theatre during the period that the picture will be shown at that house, according to announcement by Branch Manager David Bershon of the Universal Exchange.

Fox Studio Doings

Colleen Moore has been selected to play opposite Tom Mix in his next Fox picture, which is to be known as "The Wilderness Trail." With a company of Fox players Miss Moore left February 12 for Arizona, where Mr. Mix is selecting locations for some of the action in the story, which is a Western subject. Edward LeSaint will be the director. The story is from the book by Frank Williams.

Director Lynn Reynolds on Thursday, February 13, began production of a new Fox picture in which Peggy Hyland will be the star. The nature of the play has not been given out, neither has the title been announced.

Thomas Vergauwen and Jack Percy, two Canadian soldiers who fought in the trenches in France with Hal Rossen, brother of Arthur Rossen, the Fox director, have arrived in Los Angeles, and one of the first things they did was to call upon Mr. Rosson at the studios and convey to him a message from his brother Hal. According to the two soldiers Hal Rosson was saved from death in the dramatic manner so well known in fiction—a Bible carried over his heart prevented a German bullet from penetrating his body.

Production on a new picture, in which Madlaine Traverse is the star, has begun at the Fox studios under the direction of Harry Millarde. The title of the new play is "The Love That Dares." Frank Good is the cameraman.

"With the Law," a picture in which Gladys Brockwell is the star, has been completed at the Fox studios. Frank Lloyd was the director. It is a story with a modern locale, in which Miss Brockwell was given one of the strongest parts she has played in pictures.

Announcement has just been made at the Fox studios that Albert Ray, cousin of Charles Ray, the well known Ince star, and Elinor Sair, who are now co-starring in "Up Against It," a production under way at the Fox studios, are to be starred separately at the conclusion of their present vehicle. "Up Against It" is a comedy drama, and is expected to be finished at an early date. Arthur Rosson is the director.

HIGH PRODUCTION

Greatest Activity in All West Coast Studios

PRODUCTION at the Los Angeles studios has perhaps reached the highest point in activity since the beginning of the new year, according to a general summary of the situation at the various film producing plants. Madame Nazimova, having finished "The Red Lantern," announces that her next picture will be "The Brat," with locale in the New York East Side. Herbert Blache will be her director. All other companies at the Metro plant are busy.

The Goldwyn forces are working at top speed, the newest item being the beginning of a New Rex Beach picture under the direction of Reginald Barker. Production continues at the Vitagraph, but no new pictures were begun this week.

Cecil B. DeMille announces that the Edgar Selwyn play now being produced by him is a modern society drama with great dramatic possibilities. The Brunton studios report unusual activity, various companies beginning new plays while others are just completing their pictures.

The Universal lot was busy as usual this week, with Director Allan Holubar calling for scenarios of the problem play nature. Some new productions were begun at the Fox plant. Other studios reported unusual activity.

Complete Plan Book Begins on Page 1377

About Metro Players

Viola Dana has finished "Jeanne of the Gutter," which was filmed under the direction of Herbert Blache. It is a story of Paris night life, in which many scenes are taken from Paris slum life.

Another Metro picture has been completed. It is "The Way of the Strong," featuring Anna Q. Nilsson, a story that has its beginning in Alaska, with the action moving down the Pacific Coast to Seattle. Some prominent members of her supporting cast are Joe King, Harry Northrup and Irene Yeager.

Joseph Engle, treasurer of Metro, arrived in Los Angeles on February 8. He expects to remain here indefinitely. It is just five weeks since his former visit to the West Coast.

May Allison has started work on a new picture called "Orchestra D2." It is a story of the theatre, in which Miss Allison plays the part of a girl usher. The title indicates that the scenes in the story are laid in a theatre, further indicating D row and seat No. 2. It is a story taken from the Saturday Evening Post, and was scenarioized by George D. Baker, who will also be Miss Allison's director. Ben Wilson and Walter Percival will have important parts in the supporting cast. A number of scenes have been filmed at the Majestic theatre in Los Angeles. Miss Allison only recently finished "The Island of Intrigue," a story of a girl stranded on a desert isle.

Hale Hamilton has reached the middle of his newest production, "That's Good." His director is Harry L. Franklin, and Stella Gray is his leading woman. A number of the most recent scenes in the play were filmed on a roof garden in Los Angeles.

Paramount-Artcraft

Cecil B. DeMille's new play, written by Edgar Selwyn, the playwright and producer, is modern, dealing with social conditions, it has been announced from the Lasky studios. Mr. DeMille says that it has stronger dramatic possibilities than any subject he has filmed in many months. The continuity was written by William C. DeMille. Gloria Swanson and Elliott Dexter have the most important roles. Beautiful gowns will be a prominent feature of the story, as Miss Swanson will be called upon to wear twenty-five different costumes, all of them of elaborate design, it is said.

Hugh Ford, Eastern supervisor of production for the Famous Players-Lasky company, has arrived on the West Coast and has begun the production of Hall Caine's famous novel, "The Woman Thou Gavest Me," in which Katherine MacDonald will play the lead. It will be a Paramount-Artcraft special, and will be produced on an elaborate scale. Mr. Ford, who was a personal friend and acquaintance of Mr. Caine, believes he will be able to visualize the story on the screen as the famous author would have it done.

Here and There

Director Reginald Barker has begun production of a new Rex Beach story, an adaptation, it is said, from one of Mr. Beach's most recent novels, although the title of the play is being withheld for the present. Prominent among those appearing in the cast will be Owen Moore, Vola Vale, Edwin Stevens, Tully Marshall, Sidney Ainsworth.

Tom Moore, who is working in a new play for Goldwyn, left Los Angeles on February 8 for San Francisco, accompanied by Director Harry Beaumont and members of his company, where scenes in the Golden Gate Park are being filmed. Mr. Moore has the part of a traffic officer in the play, and his special work in the San Francisco park is that of directing the traffic in that vicinity. Seena Owen is his leading woman.

The newest vehicle seelcted by Jesse D. Hampton for William Desmond is called "The White Washed Walls." It is a story of Central America, and appearing in the cast with Desmond are Jack Richardson and Jay Dwiggins. The story was provided by James B. Hendryx, and was recently published in a popular magazine. Park Frame is the director.

H. B. Warner, former Triangle star, is expected to arrive in Los Angeles about March 1 to begin the production of photoplays under the direction of the Hampton management. Warner has been playing this winter in "Sleeping Partners," said to be a New York success.

Production work on George Loane Tucker's story, in which he is the star and the director, continues under way at the Brunton studios. Among some of the members of the cast, just announced, are Thomas Meighan, formerly with Famous-Players-Lasky company, and who has played with Marguerite Clark, Mary Pickford and others; Betty Compson, Lon Ceney, formerly with Universal and Joseph J. Dowling.

Having completed his recent production, "The Girl Who Stayed at Home," D. W. Griffith is assembling a new cast for a new picture he has in mind, but the nature of which has not been announced. Mr. Griffith spent several days during the week of February 10 in looking for locations. Important people appearing in the cast of "The Girl Who Stayed at Home," are Robert Harron, Richard Barthelmess, Carol Dempster and Corinne Seymour.

Anita Stewart, now producing for the First National Circuit, has just finished

Nazimova's "Out of the Fog" will be followed by "The Red Lantern"

"Mary Regan" under the direction of Lois Weber. Her next picture, it is announced, will be made under the direction of Marshal Neilan, Miss Weber having made preparations to go East, where she will undergo an operation to replace a broken bone in her arm. Some of the people who are to appear in Miss Stewart's next picture have already gone to New Orleans, it is said, where a number of scenes are to be filmed.

Al Christie and C. H. Christie, who have been under quarantine because of influenza restrictions, are back at their studio. It is admitted that Al was afflicted with influenza, but Charles Christie had a bad cold, only, it is announced.

Alma Rubens has finished her latest picture, "Diana of the Green Van," which was directed by Wallace Worsley. Nigel Barrie was her leading man. He is to play with Clara Kimball Young in her next picture. Miss Rubens is planning a new picture, but no details relative to its nature or locale have been given out.

Another picture that has been in production for several weeks at the Brunton studios has been finished. It is "Upstairs and Down," in which Olive Thomas is starred. Charles Giblyn was the director. It is a story taken from the stage play of the same name and written by the Hattons.

"The Man in the Open," Dustin Farnum's newest picture, has been completed. The production is said to be one of the most pretentious in which Farnum has appeared in pictures.

Hollywood Hookum

MARCH 1, 1919 NEWS MORE NEWS

Continued fair, sometimes.

T. Hayes Hunter is location hunting.

Frank Lloyd was seen on a Fox set wearing colored glasses.

Sy Snyder is now sending out a lot of Ruth Roland publicity.

Elinor Fair has a $100 powder puff, we learn from Dave Morrisey's carbon copy.

Al and Charley Christie are back at the studio after confinement with the flu.

Madlaine Traverse's next play will be "Gambling in Souls" instead of "Mme. Rouge."

Bill Parsons is living a life of anticipation, expecting a thrill when he gets to Paris.

Allen Holubar is almost an exhibitor. He's helping the boys put on "The Heart of Humanity."

The Rialto is rather rumorless, due to the Alexandria sending the mystic rug out to be cleaned.

Henry Walthall bought $400 worth of hunting paraphernalia, and returned with two ducks that almost disappeared with the feathers.

We have it from Scoop Conlon that Bill Hart does not intend to form another United Artsists' Association to compete with the original.

Reginald Barker could not take several snow scenes at Truckee because of necessary settings, so he brought back a basket full of snow.

The location selected by HOOKUM for its offices has been given an O. K. by Wid, who has come to our midst and rented a room next door.

E. V. Durling, head of the Durling Enterprises, claims Shakespeare was all wrong. He insists the pay is the thing, according to Pat Dowling.

Harvey F (iction) Thew claims the gum chewers have started an anti-tobacco crusade, and so he intends to sponsor a national movement to prohibit gum chewing.

HOOKUM acknowledges receipt of a postcard from Tom Ince which shows a picture of his new studio. We don't like the sign of the builders in the front yard, Tom, so please have this removed.

The Big 5 is now the Big 4, Bill Hart having dropped out, which leads to the remark that other organizations such as the Little 5 will necessarily have to change their organization and names.

Bernie Bernstein, in addition to his title of vice-president and general manager of the National Film Corporation, may now hook on "manager of presentation," for he sure put "Hoop La" over at the Kinema.

Monroe Salisbury fell in a snow drift at Mt. Lowe last week, and after rolling over several times, he discovered he had lost his way. After three hours searching for the rest of the party, he used his wrist watch as a compass and returned to civilization.

That Man Gale of the L. A. Times, has been drawing a lot of cartoons of filmdom celebrities, which may result in numerous damage suits. His latest creation had D. W. looking like a tragedian; Bill Hart in a crying mood, and Charley doing the Spanish fandangle, all of which is distasteful.

When Cecil B. DeMille heard that Sid Grauman decided to change the policy of his theatre, and for the first time since its opening run a picture more than a week, the picture being DeMille's "Don't Change Your Husband," would you believe it, C. B. went right up in the air, and all the studio folk turned out to see him fly in his new machine.

Bill Sheer made a contract with Bill Fox, and the next day went out and had a fight with Bill Scott, of course, for a picture. The scrap lasted thirty minutes, and included a roll down the stairs, but Bill Sheer went in for realism, even when he signed the contract. Up to the moment of going to press, he has not made any statement that he regrets it.

When Scoop Conlon, the Charley Chaplin of the P. A.'s, at a certain party, was told they heard that a telephone operator remarked that Bill Hart intimated that his lawyer would consider the Big 5 after the expiration of Hart's Artcraft contract, he right away said, "there's nothing to it, just a rumor," and Scoop hadn't been near the Alexandria rug either, even though he is said to be one of the Little 5.

HOOKUM editor was entertained on a set at the Goldwyn studio when Mabel Normand introduced her director, Christy Cabanne, as D. W. Grffiith, but Christy came right back and introduced his star as Mary Pickford herself. Percy Hilburn, the cameraman, refused to accept an introduction under the name of Billy Bitzer, and Charles Gerrard would not answer to the name of George Fawcett, for he thought Fawcett was the homeliest man on earth. Gerrard didn't say it in so many words, but just the same he meant it.

Index to Complete Plan Book and EXHIBITORS' BOX OFFICE REPORTS

EDITOR'S NOTE—Exhibitors will find here a complete list of all feature pictures for the current quarter arranged alphabetically as an index to The Complete Plan Book for this period, naming the picture, the producer, the star, the release date, and designating the issue of Motion Picture News which contained the original review.

The following also contains our reviewer's opinion encompassed in a brief single line and gives the comments of exhibitors who have shown the picture and forwarded their opinions. And we also publish a final line fairly summarizing a consensus of all opinions received on each picture. As many of the exhibitors do not comment on every picture (merely checking it Big, Average or Poor), we arrive at the consensus not only by the actual comments made and published, but are also guided by the reports from exhibitors who have made no actual comments but have merely checked the box office value of the picture.

All the pictures mentioned are five-reel features, unless marked otherwise. Serials are reviewed also. At the conclusion of this department will be found the "Flash-Backs," being comments on films released previous to December 8, 1918.

PICTURE BRAND STAR RELEASED PLAN BOOK

ADELE (UNITED) KITTY GORDON (JAN. 26).....FEB. 1
(Six Parts)
"Exhibitors who are 'larry' of war pictures at this time need have no hesitancy in booking this for the full run."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"A good picture liked by all and well produced. Big to average business." "Good, but patrons are tired of war stories. Average to big business."
Consensus—"Good picture, good puller."

ADVENTURE SHOP, THE (VITAGRAPH) GRIFFITH (JAN. 6).JAN. 11
"Better than an average picture."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Fair picture." "Star not popular here. Picture not much."
Consensus—"Satisfactory picture, average puller."

AFTER THE WAR (ARGOSY) CUNARD (JAN 26).....JAN. 11
"Timely subject possessing unusual advertising possibilities."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"A strongly dramatic story with star's work exceptionally good, as well as her support. Another good offering for city trade. Good business."

ALL OF A SUDDEN NORMA (EXHIBITORS-MUTUAL) BESSIE BARRISCALE (DEC. 29) .....DEC. 28
"Star plays 'Within the Law' Society drama."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Excellent. Very pleasing. New star for our house."

AMAZING IMPOSTER, THE (AMERICAN) MINTER (FEB. 2).FEB. 8
"Lots of ginger in this one. Star's features better."—M. P. News.

AND A STILL SMALL VOICE (RBSN-COLE) WALTHALL (DEC. 23) (Six Parts) .....DEC. 21
"Walthall satisfactory in drama built on old lines."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"New star for our house. Picture and story excellent. Photography too dark in some parts."

ARIZONA (ARTCRAFT) FAIRBANKS (DEC. 8).....DEC. 28
"Fairbanks slips a cog, but production should please."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Second run first two days big, next two days average. Return date in three weeks." "Undoubtedly the poorest Fairbanks on the Paramount program." "Good; Fairbanks' best."
Consensus—"Excellent production with big drawing possibilities."

AS THE SUN WENT DOWN (METRO) EDITH STOREY (FEB. 10) .....FEB. 22
"Edith Storey in screen version of Baker's play."—M. P. News.

BELOVED IMPOSTER (VITAGRAPH) LESLIE (DEC. 16)..DEC. 21
"Light one with fine photography and good scenes."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Just fair and nothing startling." "Pretty picture. Average business."
Consensus—"Satisfactory picture, average puller."

BEYOND THE LAW (EMMETT DALTON) DEC. 22.....DEC. 14
(Six Parts)
"Entertaining picturization of the Dalton Brothers' story."—M. P. News.

BLUFFER, THE (WORLD) ELVIDGE (JAN. 20).....JAN. 18
"An expose of society's seamy side that is entertaining."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Very pleasing program offering." Average business."
Consensus—"Pleasing picture, average puller."

BONDS OF HONOR (EXHIBITORS-MUTUAL) HAYAKAWA (JAN. 19) .....FEB. 8
"This picture should not fail to please wholly."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Splendid in every particular." "Very good. Pleased our patrons. Big business." "A dandy picture. Very gripping. Best double exposure ever produced. All pleased."
Consensus—"Splendid picture, strong puller."

BRANDING BROADWAY (ARTCRAFT) HART (DEC. 15).....DEC. 7
"Star keeps you guessing in subject which is bound to go."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Good picture. Pleased everybody. Played to good business under adverse conditions." "Big business seven days." "Good, but not up to Hart's pleasing quality. Star remains good card."
Consensus—"Excellent production with strong drawing powers."

BREED OF MEN (ARTCRAFT) W. S. HART (FEB 2).....FEB. 15
"Star registers strongly in one that should please everybody."—M. P. News.

BREEZY JIM (TRIANGLE) CRANE WOLBER (FEB. 23)....FEB. 22
"Shows its age plainly. Hot stuff for hero worshippers."—M. P. News.

CABARET GIRL, THE (BLUEBIRD) CLIFFORD (DEC. 30)..JAN. 4
"The title tells the whole story."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Average business."

CALL OF THE SOUL, THE (FOX) BROCKWELL) (JAN. 19) JAN. 18
"'Wronged Girl' story with few moments that appeal."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Pleased. We had no complaints." "Well liked. Extra big business."
Consensus—"Satisfactory picture, good puller."

PICTURE BRAND STAR RELEASED PLAN BOOK

CANNIBALS OF THE SOUTH SEAS (EXHIBITORS MUTUAL) MARTIN JOHNSON'S.....DEC. 15
Exhibitor Comment—"Big business. Now in its second week with me and playing capacity. Don't let imaginative ideas account of lack of clothes keep you from booking this winner." "Picture gave good satisfaction." "Held up the show to big business."
Consensus—"Excellent picture with great drawing powers."

CAPTAIN'S CAPTAIN, THE (VITAGRAPH) JOYCE (JAN. 6).JAN. 4
"Popular Alice Joyce in an average story."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Not good. Poor business." "Joyce misplaced. Has no right in comedies. Picture not liked. Consequently business 'flopped' after opening." "Fair. Poor vehicle for Alice Joyce." "Pleased all." "Not so good as 'Everybody's Girl.'" "Average business."
Consensus—"Fair picture, average puller."

CHEATING CHEATERS (SELECT) C. K. YOUNG (JAN. 19)..FEB. 1
"Crook play that gives star chance to do excellent work."—M. P. News.

CHILD OF M'SIEU (TRIANGLE) BABY MARIE OSBORNE (FEB. 16) .....FEB. 22
"Film lacks heart interest, action and suspense."—M. P. News.

CODE OF THE YUKON (SELECT) LEWIS (DEC. 23).....DEC. 21
(Six Parts)
"Outdoor scenery loves this. Plot built on revenge."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Pleased average." "Santschi holds this up. A good drama, not scenic." "Fair picture, average business." "A satisfactory production. Ferris not known here, only through his work in 'The Barrier.' Poor drawing card."
Consensus—"Satisfactory picture with average drawing powers."

COME AGAIN SMITH (HODKINSON) J. W. KERRIGAN (FEB. 10) .....FEB. 1
"Fits the star like proverbial glove; interest is plentiful."—M. P. News.

COMMON CAUSE, THE (BLACKTON-VITA) (JAN. 5).....DEC. 7-14
"Contains all elements necessary to pleasing entertainment."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Best war picture we have run or seen yet. Drew big business and pleased all."

COMMON CLAY (PATHE) FANNIE WARD (MARCH 2)....FEB. 8
"Audience will likely praise this Ward picture."—M. P. News.

COURAGE FOR TWO (WORLD) CARLYLE BLACKWELL (FEB. 17) .....FEB. 15
"Star with Miss Greeley offer fine comedy drama."—M. P. News.

CRAVING, THE (BLUEBIRD) FRANCIS FORD (JAN. 13)..JAN. 18
"Holds suspense clear through. Staging well done."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"A novelty in photography, nothing more. Might go strong in 'bone-dry' territory as a 'turrible' example of what 'likker' will do to a man. Business was a poor average."

CROWN JEWELS (TRIANGLE) ANDERSON (DEC. 15).....JAN. 4
"Critics may find fault with direction of this."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Poor business."

DANGER—GO SLOW (UNIV.-SPEC.) MAE MURRAY (DEC. 9) (Six Parts) .....DEC. 21
"Heart interest and suspense plentiful here."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Pleased big." "A very good picture." "Star not known; average business." "A good clean picture. Should please most anywhere. Six reels a little too long. Could have been put in five."
Consensus—"Fine picture with good drawing powers."

DANGER ZONE, THE (FOX) TRAVERSE (DEC. 29).....JAN. 18
"Melodrama sheds sensationalism, but little realism."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Pleased. Big business."

DAY DREAMS (GOLDWYN) MADGE KENNEDY (JAN. 12) JAN. 25
"One of the REAL artistic offerings; cast excellent."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"A most beautiful production bordering on a Fairy tale. It may get you money." "Started poor business; rain and 'Flu' scare. Played to extra big business second and third day." "Star is fine but the picture is too much like Marguerite Clark 'Fairy' stuff." "Apple sauce. One more like this and Madge is finished. Impossible story. Fine staging and photography are all that save it." "Good picture but not star's best."
Consensus—"Fair picture, average puller."

DIVORCE, THE (METRO) ETHEL BARRYMORE (JAN. 20)..JAN. 25
"Star in a brilliant screen achievement."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"This is a real production. Go the limit in advertising and you will win out." "Star not liked in my house." "Best story this star has had for some time. Very classy picture indeed. Average business daily to extra big Saturday." "The sort of a picture that will fill your house and cure your box office. At least in cities but possibly will be over the heads of small town patrons. The best thing Barrymore has had in ages. And she makes the most of it."

Exhibitors' Own Box Office Reports

PICTURE BRAND STAR RELEASED PLAN BOOK

Consensus—"Excellent production, strong puller."

DON'T CHANGE YOUR HUSBAND (ARTCRAFT) DE MILLE'S (JAN. 26) ..... FEB. 8

"Points a moral to married folk, or those to be married."—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"A very fine production. One of the best. Big business."

DUB, THE (PARAMOUNT) WALLACE REID (JAN. 19)..... JAN. 25

"Well produced and entertaining farce of crook sort."—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"Excellent picture." "Immense." "Good picture, average drawing power."

Consensus—"Excellent production, good puller."

ENCHANTED BARN, THE (VITAGRAPH) BESSIE LOVE (JAN. 27) ..... JAN. 25

"Has all good points necessary to interesting picture."—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"Very good. Average business."

EYE FOR EYE (METRO SCREEN CLASSICS) NAZIMOVA (DEC. 8) (Seven Parts)..... NOV. 30

"Ace high for artistry and star is good."—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"Went over big four days at advanced prices." "Extra big and big business all week." "Most wonderful drawing card. Well liked. Always a sure hit in the house."

Consensus—Extraordinary picture, tremendous puller."

EVERY MOTHER'S SON (FOX) (DEC. 8)..... JAN. 4

"Director strikes sincere human note even in war picture."—M.P. News.

FAIR ENOUGH (AMERICAN) FISHER (DEC. 29)..... JAN. 4

"This should get over with non-critical audiences."—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"Very good. Big business." "Good." "Dandy picture. Big business." "A pleasant picture to watch."

Consensus—"Good picture with good drawing powers."

FAITH (METRO) BERT LYTELL (FEB. 3)..... FEB. 8

"Picture with deep appeal and excellent star."—M. P. News.

FIGHTING THROUGH (HODKINSON) E. K. LINCOLN (JAN. 27) (Six Parts) ..... FEB. 1

"An example of excellent production with patriotism uppermost."—M. P. News.

FOR FREEDOM (FOX) WILLIAM FARNUM (DEC. 29)....JAN. 11 (Six Parts)

"Picture looks like good stories were scarce."—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"Went over great. Well liked." "Fine picture. Bad weather but big business." "Very fine picture. Big business two days."

Consensus—"Fine picture, strong puller."

FOR THE FREEDOM OF THE EAST (GOLDWYN) (JAN. 19) (Six Parts) ..... JAN. 25

"Has features to exploit that should put it over."—M. P. News.

FORTUNE'S CHILD (VITA.) GLADYS LESLIE (FEB. 10)..FEB. 8

"Heart appeal is there and photography and sets also good."—M. P. News.

GAME IS UP, THE (BLUEBIRD) RAY-CLIFFORD (JAN. 20) JAN. 25

"Pictures in this class are rarity these days.'—M. P. News.

GIRL OF MY DREAMS (ROB.-COLE) RHODES (DEC 15) DEC. 14 (Six Parts)

"Billie Rhodes registers to advantage."—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"Great. Patrons pleased. Billie Rhodes scored big." "A corking good picture but don't get the money." "An extraordinary comedy. Get it quick before the other fellow." "A real success. Excellent picture. Extra big business seven days."

Consensus—"Excellent picture, big puller."

GIRL WITH NO REGRETS, THE (FOX) PEGGY HYLAND (JAN. 26) ..... FEB. 8

"Clean crook play that should give complete satisfaction."—M. P. News.

GOLD CURE, THE (METRO) DANA (JAN. 13)..... JAN. 18

"Star's cleverness and much foolishness makes continued laugh."—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"Extra good. The best Dana production ever played. One continued laugh. Average business." "Well liked. Average business." "Big business." "Very good picture. Big business."

Consensus—"Excellent picture, good puller."

GOOD-BYE BILL (PARAM'NT) MASON-TRUEX (DEC. 15) DEC. 21

"Laugh at the Kaiser's expense; film padded some."—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"Very 'poor.' picture to poor business." "Worst ever. Patrons kicked about this one. Dodge it if you can." "Poorest Paramount picture we have seen." "About the worst yet." "Very good comedy drama." "One day cured me. Took it off and substituted 'The Squaw Man.'"

Consensus—"Ordinary picture with fair drawing powers."

GO WEST, YOUNG MAN (GOLDWYN) T. MOORE (DEC. 29) .FEB. 8

"Situations are unreal but it's a Tom Moore production anyway.—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"An enjoyable picture but lacked the real Western punch. Star growing more popular every time he appears here." "Pleased. Tom Moore liked here." "Goldwyn is surely delivering the goods. Pleases our patrons fully as well as anything we run." "Well liked. Extra big business." "Picture nothing but Moore, but Cannibal picture held up the show." "Not his best but held up well second day." Nothing extra in picture but went over all right." "Good picture. Extra big business." "Good Comedy Western."

Consensus—"Fine picture. big puller"

GREATEST THING IN LIFE (ARTCRAFT) L. GISH (DEC. 8) .JAN. 8

"Griffith strikes human note again—characters all real."—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"Very fine production but people are tired of war stuff." "Big business." "Wonderful. Played to capacity at advanced prices. Everyone well pleased. A picture that any exhibitor can boost to the limit." "Splendid; typical Griffith." "Great picture and pleased." "Splendid, and Griffith's name brought them, too." "Indeed very pleasing. Exhibitors cannot over-advertise this one."

Consensus—"Excellent production with tremendous drawing powers."

GREAT ROMANCE, THE (SCREEN CLASSICS) LOCKWOOD (JAN. 19)..... JAN. 25 (Six Parts)

"Romance and adventure story laid in beautiful setting."—M. P. News.

PICTURE BRAND STAR RELEASED PLAN BOOK

GREAT VICTORY, THE (SCREEN CLASSICS) (JAN. 6)..... JAN. 4

"Fact and fiction combined in a war history."—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"Duck this one. Simply a rehash of old war stuff. Withdrew it third day. "If you haven't an orchestra to help put this thing over the Lord help you."

Consensus—"Ordinary picture, satisfactory puller."

HARD BOILED (PARAMOUNT) DOROTHY DALTON (FEB. 2) ..... FEB. 15

"Light story but should please all your patrons."—M. P. News.

HEART OF GOLD (WORLD) HUFF (FEB. 10)..... JAN. 25

"Romance with comedy touches and plenty of suspense."—M. P. News.

HEART OF HUMANITY, THE (JEWEL) PHILLIPS (JAN. 5) JAN. 25 (Nine Parts)

"A war subject that should draw larger crowds each day."—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"Great. Greater than 'Birth of a Nation' or 'Heart of the World.' Big to extra big business seven days. Will hold over at advanced prices."

HEART OF WETONA, THE (SELECT) N. TALMADGE (JAN. 5) JAN. 4

"The best Norma Talmadge yet."—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"Extra big business." "Average business. "Big business. Pleased." "A splendid picture well received." "Very good; one of her best." "Always good." "Second run, big business."

Consensus—"Excellent production with strong drawing powers."

HERE COMES THE BRIDE (PARAMOUNT) J. BARRYMORE (JAN. 19) ..... FEB. 1

"John Barrymore and good cast make most of usual story."—M.P.News.

Exhibitor Comment—"Comedy forced and mechanical. Average business." "An entertaining picture that amused and sent them out well pleased. Proved more satisfactory from a business standpoint than I had anticipated."

Consensus—"Satisfactory picture, good puller."

HER INSPIRATION (METRO) ALLISON (DEC. 30)..... JAN. 18

"May Allison in average romantic drama."—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"Big business." "Fair. A pleasing picture but not her best." "Above the average for program picture."

Consensus—"Satisfactory picture, good puller."

HIDDEN TRUTH, THE (SELECT) ANNA CASE (JAN. 20)...FEB. 1

"Combination of Western Mystery, Society and Melodrama."—M.P.News

HIGHEST TRUMP, THE (VITAGRAPH) WILLIAMS (FEB. 3) ..... FEB. 1

"Entertaining spy and war drama with loads of action."—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"Good picture, average business." "Star's name got on average opening. Buried all photos pertaining to war. An excellent picture but war pictures are impossible."

Consensus—"Fine picture, good puller."

HIS PARISIAN WIFE (ARTCRAFT) FERGUSON (JAN. 19)..FEB. 8

"Elsie Ferguson has never appeared to better advantage."—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"Star's personality and beautiful gowns put this picture over for us. On the whole would say that it is the most satisfactory Ferguson picture in some time." "Only fair. Star is pretty but not a drawing card. Average business." "Ferguson's best. Went over big. They all liked it."

Consensus—"Satisfactory picture, good puller."

HITTING THE HIGH SPOTS (METRO) LYTELL (DEC. 9).DEC. 21

"Comedy near the end saves this picture."—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"Excellent picture. Pleased patrons. "We never showed a picture that pleased more. A wonderful picture." "A good picture, well liked. Good business. Star well liked in these parts."

Consensus—"Excellent picture with strong drawing powers."

HOOP-LA (ROBERTSON-COLE) BILLIE RHODES (JAN. 26) FEB. 22

"Another boost for Billie Rhodes; Clean comedy."—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—Good. Star and picture well liked by our patrons."

HOPE CHEST, THE (PARAMOUNT) D. GISH (DEC. 29)..... JAN. 4

"A human little story that will please."—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"Pleasing feature. Story weak. Star carried it through." "Average to big business." "Dandy picture. Average business." "Very nice picture. In a class by herself and very well liked. Story very good."

Consensus—"Satisfactory picture, good puller."

I'LL SAY SO (FOX) GEORGE WALSH (DEC. 22)..... NOV. 16

"Walsh fans will like it but it contains no other appealing elements.—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"Big business." "Cleaned up. Broke our house records." "Good. Sub-titles great. Big business." "Fair picture. Other attractions outdrew it. This star has lost ground." "Good picture. Average business."

Consensus—"Good picture with strong drawing powers."

IN FOR THIRTY DAYS (METRO) ALLISON (JAN. 27)..... JAN. 25

"An obvious comedy, but one which gets the laughs."—M. P. News.

IN THE HOLLOW OF HER HAND (SELECT) BRADY (DEC. 29) ..... JAN. 11

"All things unite to make this Brady triumph."—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"Fine picture and drew well. It seems almost too good to be true that exhibitors can rely on Select not making a piece of cheese, and they don't call them 'specials' or 'superfeatures' either." "Drew well; only fair as to pleasing." "Good picture, good story, average business."

Consensus—"Fine picture, good puller."

IRISH EYES (TRIANGLE) STARKE (DEC. 15)..... DEC. 21

"Opinion may vary in regard to this as entertainment."—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"Average business."

I WANT TO FORGET (FOX) NESBIT (DEC. 15)..... JAN. 4

"Second Nesbit vehicle is ordinary spy melodrama."—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"Well named. We all want to forget. Average business." "Fair program picture. Should not be classed as a standard." "It got by very well to average business."

Consensus—"Fair picture, average puller."

JANE GOES A-WOOING (PARAMOUNT) MARTIN (JAN. 5) .JAN. 18

"Care given in producing it but story is not unusual."—M. P. News.

Exhibitor Comment—"Average business." "Pleasing production. Story rather weak. Has been in better ones."

Consensus—"Fair picture, average puller."

KEY TO POWER, THE (EDUCATIONAL) (DEC. 22)..... DEC. 14 (Six Parts)

"Human touches make this interesting."—M. P. News.

The Index to The Complete Plan Book

PICTURE BRAND STAR RELEASED PLAN BOOK

LADY'S NAME, A (SELECT) C. TALMADGE (DEC. 9).....DEC. 28
"Polite comedy of this popular star's type."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Pleased big." "Second run. Big business." "Pleased everyone. Constance seems to enjoy her work so much that she gets as much fun out of a picture as her audience." "Stories like this are always welcome. Extra big business." "Very good picture. Big and Extra big business."
Consensus—"Fine picture, strong puller."

LAW THAT DIVIDES, THE (HODKINSON) KATHLEEN CLIFFORD (JAN. 20) .....
Exhibitor Comment—"Big business. Good program picture. Many favorable comments. Good story."

LIFE'S A FUNNY PROPOSITION (EXHIBITORS' MUTUAL) WILLIAM DESMOND (JAN. 6).....FEB. 22
Exhibitor Comment—"Star is new in our house. Average business. A clean picture, well liked."

LIGHT OF WESTERN STARS, THE (UNITED) DUSTIN FARNUM (JAN. 5) .....OCT. 26
"Works up well in rugged outdoor atmosphere."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Splendid. Well produced. Continuity good, and pleased all to extra big business." "Good Western drama. Popular star. Popular author." "Big business seven days." "Good picture." "Big business." "Very good picture. Big business three days." "Broke all records both days. Run continuous. Couldn't handle them." "Sorry I could not hold it longer. Extra big business." "Fine picture. Big business."
Consensus—"Excellent picture, big puller."

LIGHT, THE (FOX) THEDA BARA (JAN. 12).....JAN. 25
"Bara has best story in a good while; of vampire type."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"'Flu' scare affecting business. Average to big."

LION AND THE MOUSE, THE (VITAGRAPH) JOYCE (FEB. 24) .....FEB. 22
(Six Parts)
"A special of the full-blooded variety."—M. P. News.

LITTLE MISS HOOVER (PARAMOUNT) CLARK (DEC. 29).JAN. 4
"Miss Clark's charm in a pleasing setting."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Story toio much propaganda. Too convenient. Hats off to Marguerite Clark. She pulled them in and made 'em like it." "Of course the star drew them and while the story was very light it seemed to please." "Average picture. Her other pictures have hurt her as a drawing card and this one didn't get over real good."
Consensus—"Fair picture with good drawing powers."

LITTLE ORPHANT ANNIE (PIONEER) COLEEN MOORE (DEC. 22) (Six Parts) ..... DEC. 21
"They don't make them more touching than this one."—M. P. News.

LITTLE WOMEN (W. A. BRADY-PARAMOUNT) JAN. 5.....NOV. 23
(Six Parts)
"This attraction will appeal chiefly to the literary element."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Good production, but no 'Special.' Average business." "Great. Want more like it. Big business." "Very good picture. Artcraft sent out personal letters to our mailing list and they arrived one day after we showed the picture. That's co-operation without the Co." "One of the cleanest pictures ever made. Thoroughly enjoyed by patrons."
Consensus—"Fine picture, good puller."

LONG LANE'S TURNING, THE (ROBERTSON-COLE) HENRY B. WALTHALL (FEB. 10).....FEB. 22
"Story improbable but should please great number of fans."—M. P. News.

LOVE AUCTION, THE (FOX) PEARSON (FEB. 9).....FEB. 22
"Charged with high power emotionalism."—M. P. News.

LOVE IN A HURRY (WORLD) BLACKWELL (JAN. 13).....JAN. 11
"Nice romance against background of sane spy drama."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Got by and that's all." "Big to average business."
Consensus—"Pleasing picture, average puller."

LOVE NET, THE (WORLD) MADGE EVANS (DEC. 30)...DEC. 21
"Star in story of childhood and second childhood."—M. P. News.

LOVE'S PAY-DAY (Triangle) MORRISON-THEBY (DEC. 1)..DEC. 7
"Characters fail to win sympathy but production work is good."—M. P. News.

LUCK AND PLUCK (FOX) GEORGE WALSH (FEB. 2).....FEB. 15
"Stunts and Speed Characterize star's latest."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Walsh dandy. Played to big audience. Brought this star back to popularity. Extra big business two days." "Average business."
Consensus—"Fine picture. Strong puller."

MAGGIE PEPPER (PARAMOUNT) ETHEL CLAYTON (FEB. 23) .....FEB. 22
"Reviewer thinks it will cause walls to bulge."—M. P. News.

MANDARIN'S GOLD (WORLD) KITTY GORDON (FEB. 10)..FEB. 8
"Well cast drama sustained by expert handling and unusual atmosphere."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"A god story capably handled by the gorgeously gowned Kittie. And her support was satisfactory. It pleased our patrons, and that's what we are in business for. Big business."

MAN OF BRONZE, THE (WORLD) STONE (DEC. 9).....DEC. 21
"Another Stone picture presenting appealing story."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Average business." "Very good. Pleasing. Business hurt by 'flu.'"
Consensus—"Good picture with average drawing powers."

MAN IN THE OPEN, A (UNITED) DUSTIN FARNUM (FEB. 23) .....FEB. 15
(Six Parts) "Star's second 'United' big in every respect."—M.P.News.

MAN WHO WOULDN'T TELL (VITA) WILLIAMS (DEC. 9) DEC. 14
"Here's a spy subject that should deliver goods."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Pleasing picture." "Pleased immensely." "Extra big business." "People tired of war pictures." "Very good. Big business." "Poor business." "Pleasant picture to watch."
Consensus—"Fine picture with good drawing powers."

MIDNIGHT PATROL, THE (SELECT) INCE CAST (FEB. 3) FEB. 22
"Production of high quality. Strong action story."—M. P. News.

MIDNIGHT STAGE, THE (PATHE) KEENAN (JAN. 12).....JAN. 11
"Powerful Western with Keenan in dual role."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Attendance better than average considering our influenza scare. Production excellent. Star at his best. Photography, direction and scenes of the best. Action tense, gripping, and very realistic. Entire week." "Big business."
Consensus—"Excellent picture, strong puller."

PICTURE BRAND STAR RELEASED PLAN BOOK

MILLIONAIRE PIRATE, THE (BLUEBIRD) MONROE SALISBURY (FEB. 10) .....FEB. 15
"Story of impossible kind, but good acting puts it over."—M. P. News.

MOLLY OF THE FOLLIES (AMERICAN) MARGARITA FISHER (FEB. 16) .....FEB. 15
"Should prove entertaining to all; clean theme."—M. P. News.

MORAL DEADLINE, THE (WORLD) JUNE ELVIDGE (FEB. 24) .....FEB. 22
"Familiar yet appealing plot is basis of star's vehicle."—M. P. News.

MYSTERY GIRL, THE (PARAMOUNT) CLAYTON (DEC. 27).DEC. 7
"One for the imagination with lots of real entertainment."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Fair picture to average business." "Poor business." "Very good. Big business." "Hard to understand. Star good. Badly put together. O. K. after one and a half reels."
Consensus—"Good picture with good drawing powers."

NARROW PATH, THE (PATHE) FANNIE WARD (DEC. 15)..DEC. 7
"One of the 'wronged girls' kind with no appeal to emotions."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Very good picture." "Big business."
Consensus—"Fine picture. Big puller."

NATURE GIRL, THE (BLUEBIRD) MESERAU (JAN. 6)....JAN. 4
"Above the average—exteriors delight to the eye."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Average business."

OH, JOHNNY (GOLDWYN) BENNISON (JAN. 19).....FEB. 1
"Comedy of contrasts marks Louis Bennison's screen debut."—M.P.News.
Exhibitor Comment—"New star made impression." Big business." "New star went nicely. They liked him." "Pleased all. Good drawing card. Big business two days."
Consensus—"Fine picture, big puller."

OLD MAID'S BABY, THE (PATHE) BABY MARIE OSBORNE (FEB. 23) .....FEB. 15
"Weak story that little star handles well; should please."—M. P. News.

ONCE TO EVERY MAN (FROHMAN) SHERRILL (DEC. 29).DEC. 21
(Six Parts)
"Starts and ends in fight with many punches between."—M. P. News.

OUR TEDDY (FIRST NATIONAL) ROOSEVELT FILM (JAN. 19) (Six Parts) .....FEB. 1
"Entertaining to unusual degree; thrills enough for anyone."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Fair picture. Did not run it second day."

OUT OF THE FOG (METRO) NAZIMOVA (FEB. 17).....FEB. 15
(Seven Parts)
"A triumph of the Pictorial Art."—M. P. News.

OUT OF THE SHADOW (PARAMOUNT) FREDERICK (JAN. 5) .....JAN. 25
"Star strikes good one after several months."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Very fair production. Better than the last two she has had." "Drew well. Fine picture."
Consensus—"Satisfactory picture, good puller."

PERFECT LADY, A (GOLDWYN) KENNEDY (DEC. 8).....DEC. 14
"Star blends the tear and the smile delightfully."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"A winner. Madge Kennedy very popular. Excellent. Booked for three days and held over one day." "Splendid picture that any place bothered with local censorship should see." "Everybody enjoyed it. Great business."
Consensus—"Excellent picture with fine drawing powers."

POOR RICH MAN (METRO) BUSHMAN-BAYNE (DEC. 28)..JAN. 4
"Two stars in a rather sluggish comedy-drama."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Pleased. Average business first day, extra big Saturday." "Average picture. Stars help to put it over. Extra big, average to big in three days." "The best made by these people for ages. Pleased everyone." "Very good entertainment with popular stars."
Consensus—"Satisfactory picture, good puller."

PRODIGAL WIFE (SCREENCRAFT) BOLAND (DEC. 22)..DEC. 14
(Six Parts)
"Sex play considered remarkable by interviewer."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Fair. Good story but poorly directed and acted. Title has good drawing power."

QUICKSAND (PARAMOUNT) DORO. DALTON (DEC. 22)..DEC. 28
"Reviewer thinks picture was wrecked at the start."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Fair picture." "Fairly good dramatic story. Held its interest and apparently satisfied." "Average business." "Everyone pleased with it. Personally I didn't think trouble all through this picture would be liked, but I was wrong. Acting excellent. Photography also very good." "Everybody liked star and picture. Wonderful directing." "Pretty thin. Average business."
Consensus—"Satisfactory picture, good puller."

RACING STRAIN, THE (GOLDWYN) MAE MARSH (DEC. 22.....
Exhibitor Comment—"Extra Good attraction. Star and Goldwyn's great. Extra big business. "Mae Marsh is drawing better here." "The best Mae Marsh picture Goldwyn has turned out yet. Everyone liked it here." "Picture pleased. Good conventional story." "Picture pleased. Star seemed quite at ease and the picture pleased at each performance."
Consensus—"Fine picture, good puller."

RESTLESS SOULS (TRIANGLE) ALMA RUBENS (FEB. 2)..FEB. 1
(Six Parts)
"Skilful handling makes delicate subject very good picture."—M.P.News.

ROMANCE AND ARABELLA (SELECT) CONSTANCE TALMADGE (FEB. 3) .....FEB. 15
"Good star saves weak story; romance is keynote."—M. P. News.

ROMANCE OF HAPPY VALLEY, A (ARTCRAFT) D. W. GRIFFITH'S (JAN. 26).....FEB. 8
"New Griffith picture seems a sure-fire winner."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"An artistic production, but for some reason or other fell flat with our patrons. Did not begin to hold up with other Griffith pictures. I personally found it entertaining but the proof of the pudding is that the bottom dropped out of business after Monday." "Average business."
Consensus—"Pleasing production, average puller."

ROPED (UNIVERSAL SPECIAL) CAREY (JAN. 18).....JAN. 4
(Six Parts)
"Star should please everybody in this production."—M. P. News.

Gives You All Data on the Pictures

PICTURE BRAND STAR RELEASED PLAN BOOK

Exhibitor Comment—"Good picture and pleased, but opened just after the 'Flu.' Average business."

ROUGH NECK, THE (WORLD) LOVE (FEB. 3).....FEB. 1
"Latest Montagu Love picture shows excellent team work."—M.P.News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Extra big business."

SANDY BURKE OF THE U-BAR-U (GOLDWYN) LOUIS BENNISON (FEB. 23) .....FEB. 15
"Western subject full of human appeal and action."—M. P. News.

SEA WAIF, THE (WORLD) LOUISE HUFF (DEC. 30).....DEC. 28
"Love story made sustaining by skillful handling."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Big business." "Don't know why but World pictures are slipping fast. Both days we showed this picture it rained, but doubt if good weather would have improved business. Poor business."
Consensus—"Fair picture, average puller."

SECRET GARDEN, THE (PARAMOUNT) LILA LEE (JAN. 12) .....JAN. 25
"Plenty of action but not the happy type for star."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Story punk. Awful." "Rotten pitcure. Poor business." "Lila Lee gaining. Fair story." "Weak. Direction fair. She will never be a star. Hasn't the goods."
Consensus—"Ordinary picture, poor puller."

SET FREE (BLUEBIRD) EDITH ROBERTS (DEC. 16)....NOV. 16
"Light romantic drama with lots of entertainment."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Average business." "Average." "Big business." "Rotten. Poor business."
Consensus—"Fair picture with average drawing powers."

SILENT STRENGTH (VITAGRAPH) HARRY T. MOREY (FEB. 17) FEB.15
"Dual role subject that looks good. Should please all."—M. P. News.

SILVER KING, THE (PARA-ARTC.) FAVERSHAM (JAN. 12).JAN. 18
"Melodrama that offers much chance for criticism."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"This is a very good picture but a very poor drawing card."

SPENDER, THE (METRO) BERT LYTELL (JAN. 6).....JAN. 4
"Excellent comedy backed by wholesome philosophy."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Excellent; great; let's have more of them." "Bert Lytell at his best since 'The Lone Wolf.' Made a great hit with the people. Cannot say enough for 'The Spender.'"
Consensus—"Excellent picture, strong puller."

SQUAW MAN, THE (ARTCRAFT) DEXTER (DEC. 15).....NOV. 16
(Six Parts)
"This should please and also draw very well."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Big business, conditions considered." "Fine picture and pleased to big business." "Great production. Drew only fair. People thought they had seen it before." "This was so good simply had to repeat it. Don't fail to book this winner."
Consensus—"Excellent production with strong drawing powers."

STRANGE WOMAN, THE (FOX) BROCKWELL (DEC. 8)...OCT. 12
(Six Parts)
"A lengthy discussion on Free Love versus Marriage."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Big to average business." "Snow storm. Average business." "Just a fair story, although we are glad to see Brockwell dressed up." "Good show. Gladys Brockwell coming fast and if she continues to show pictures like this she will be a topnotcher." "Brockwell's best. Good picture. Pleased." "Very good. It can be boosted." "Splendid. Sub-titles extra good. Big business."
Consensus—"Fine production with good drawing powers."

STRING BEANS (PARAMOUNT) RAY (DEC. 22).....DEC. 21
"Ray fans will welcome this interesting one."—M. P. News.
Exhibitr Comment—"Fine Ray subject. Acting fine. Photography very good. Good weather would have brought big house. Played to remarkable business. Everyone pleased." A very good picture. Star not yet popular here." "Typical Ray picture that pleased very well." "Ray in his element. Just the sort of picture he is liked in best."
Consensus—"Satisfactory picture with good drawing powers."

SUE OF THE SOUTH (BLUEBIRD) EDITH ROBERTS (FEB. 3) .....FEB. 22
"Don't say any more about this than you have to."—M. P. News.

SYLVIA ON A SPREE (METRO) WEHLEN (DEC. 16).....DEC. 28
"She glimpses a 'fast' life that is extravagant, anyway."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Just an average picture. Pleasing. Big business." "Like all Metros. Pleased." "Picture well liked but star doesn't draw."
Consensus—"Fine picture with good drawing powers."

TODD OF THE TIMES (PATHE) KEENAN (FEB. 9).....FEB. 1
"Star's work is good and story has been treated well."—M. P. News.

TOO FAT TO FIGHT (GOLDWYN) McINTYRE (DEC. 15)..DEC. 14
(Six Parts)
"Nobody loves a fat man but they'll vote for this one."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Only fair. McIntyre not as good as 'Traveling Salesman.' War stuff dead." "Picture pleased, but was disappointed on its drawing power." "Excellent production. Big business." "Poor business." "Very good but war pictures are dead." "Fair picture but this type of story is passe now. Only fair business."
Consensus—"Good picture, good puller."

TOO MANY MILLIONS (PARAMOUNT) REID (DEC. 8)....NOV. 16
"Too much talking and posing in this picture."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Fine picture and should have drawn big business on longer run." "A very good picture that drew well. Pleased everybody. Very novel ending. Slightly too much posing by Reid."
Consensus—"Fair picture with average drawing powers."

TWO GUN BETTY (HODKINSON) BARRISCALE (DEC. 16).DEC. 14
"Bessie Barriscale pleases in a 'Different' role."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Best she played. Is getting to be a favorite." "If anyone wants a surprise Western comedy drama, book this. Gave great satisfaction to exceptionally large audience."
Consensus—"Excellent picture, strong puller."

UNDER THE TOP (ARTCRAFT) FRED STONE (JAN. 12)...JAN. 18
"Star's new Artcraft stands up better than his first."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Fair picture. Average business." "Not good. "Poor business." "Pleased better than his first picture. A real good story, something he has not yet had, will put this star over." "Average to poor business." "Too mechanical. Star 'camera conscious.'" "The story and star were rotten. Nobody liked them. Poor business."
Consensus—"Fair picture with ordinary drawing powers."

VAGABOND OF FRANCE, A (PATHE) KRAUSS (JAN. 26)..JAN. 18
(Four Parts)
"French-made picture shows padding. Titles need improving."—M.P.News.

PICTURE BRAND STAR RELEASED PLAN BOOK

VENUS IN THE EAST (PARAMOUNT) WASHBURN (JAN. 26) JAN. 8
"If you get by with this picture you should be satisfied."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Very good picture. Big business." "They liked this one. Nice story. Washburn pleased them."
Consensus—"Satisfactory picture, good puller."

VIRTUOUS WIVES (FIRST NATIONAL) STEWART (JAN. 5).JAN. 11
"Lavish production marks star's return to screen."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"First class in every respect. Wonderful cast. Highly complimented on this one." "Extrt big to highly pleased audiences." "Extra big business."
Consensus—"Excellent production with exceptional drawing powers."

WAY OF A MAN WITH A MAID, THE (PARA) WASHBURN (DEC. 29) .....JAN. 11
"Good example of the 'better story' we hear about."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Highly entertaining. Clean and well done." "Big business." "Poor business." "Well liked. The kind they want." "Good heart interest story. Satisfied most everyone. Flagg comedy with it killed whole show. Terrible stuff."
Consensus—"Fine picture with very good drawing powers."

WHAT LOVE FORGIVES (WORLD) CASTLETON (JAN. 6).JAN. 4
"Interesting with good comedy titles but not well balanced."—M.P.News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Just picture, no story or action." "Average business."
Consensus—"Fair picture with average drawing powers."

WHEN A MAN RIDES ALONE (AMERICAN) RUSSELL (JAN. 19) .....JAN. 11
"Rapid action Western is William Russell's latest."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Very poor, no story, no excitement, very tiresome, clean melodrama, not one redeeming feature." "Fine picture, big business."
Consensus—"Fair picture, average puller."

WHO CARES (SELECT) CONSTANCE TALMADGE (JAN. 19) JAN. 25
"Story of light pleasing sort; should be enjoyed by all."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Constane was winsome in this light role and gave promise of great things when she is older in the emotional scenes."

WHO WILL MARRY ME? (BLUEBIRD) MYERS (JAN. 27)..FEB. 8
"Comedy and pathos blended in this Universal film."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Good picture. Big business."

WHY GERMANY MUST PAY (SCREEN CLASSICS) (JAN. 19) JAN. 25
"German atrocities again, with a good romantic interest."—M. P. News.

WICKED DARLING, THE (UNIVERSAL) PRISCILLA DEAN
(Six Parts)
"Strong picture that keeps interest alive all through."—M. P. News.

WIFE OR COUNTRY (TRIANGLE) MESTAYER (DEC. 29)..JAN. 11
"A good idea, but an ordinary picture."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Average business."

WILDCAT OF PARIS (UNIV.) PRISCILLA DEAN (DEC. 30) NOV. 30
"Picture is clean, strong, and should appeal universally."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"A very interesting picture. A little bit rough but enjoyed by all. Great box office attraction." "My patrons thought it a fine production. It went over especialy big." "Strong picture for older people."
Consensus—"Fine production, big puller."

WILD HONEY (DE LUXE) DORIS KENYON (DEC. 22)...DEC. 21
(Six Parts)
"A different kind of Western with a striking star."—M. P. News.

WIVES AND OTHER WIVES (AM.) MINTER (DEC. 15)...DEC. 14
"One of the star's best yet."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Average business." "Fine business. Weather bad." "A fair picture only." "Big business." "Average business seven days." "Minter well liked. Big business." "Star pleasing. Story light but very acceptable."
Consensus—"Fine picture with very good drawing powers."

WOMAN, WOMAN (FOX) EVELYN NESBIT (JAN. 26).....FEB. 8
"Deals boldly with sex question; morals of heroine lax."—M. P. News.

ZERO HOUR, THE (WORLD) ELVIDGE (DEC. 23).....DEC. 14
"An involved offering dealing with fake clairvoyants."—M. P. News.

FLASHBACKS

Individual Opinions on Earlier Releases Received During the Past Week

"Accidental Honeymoon" (State Rights)—"A very good comedy drama. Much better than the average. Average business."

"The Woman Who Gave" (Fox)—"Came to see the star, but like story better."

"Borrowed Clothes" (Jewel)—"Extra big business two days."

"Moral Suicide" (Pathe Special)—"Great attraction. Pleased them all."

"The Panther Woman" (First National)—"Much better picture than several back."

"The Romance of Tarzan" (First National)—"Played eight days. Did not draw as well as 'Tarzan of the Apes.'"

"America's Answer" (U. S. Govt.-World)—"War being over makes picture poor entertainment."

"Nine O'clock Town" (Paramount)—"Ray is sure to please my Sunday night audiences. Will not draw on week nights."

"Nine-Tenths of the Law" (Mitchell Lewis)—"One out of eight State Rights that was presentable."

"Shoulder Arms" (First National)—"Went big the first day and bigger the second."

"At the Mercy of Men" (Select)—"Good picture."

"True Blue" (Fox)—"Pleased them all."

"The Danger Mark" (Artcraft)—"Good picture for high class audience. Did not draw."

"Just a Woman" (State Rights)—"I'm off State Right pictures for life."

"The Belgian" (State Rights)—"A few liked it."

"The Woman Who Gave" (Fox)—"Nesbit is no actress. Story and picture not so bad as I was led to believe it was by critics."

"On the Jump" (Fox)—"Too much punch and not enough story."

"Queen of Hearts" (Fox)—"Fair picture with some gruesome spots. Star a splendid emotional actress. Extra big business Saturday night."

"Woman's Weapons" (Paramount)—"Keep away from this one. It won't get you anything."

"Daughter of the Old South" (Paramount)—"But for the good acting, this picture is worth nothing as a moneymaker."

"Flashbacks" on Earlier Releases

Individual Opinions on Earlier Releases Received During the Past Week

"Mickey" (Mabel Normand)—"A knockout. It has everything. Never played a picture before that received such unanimous approval. Capacity business all week. Wonderful advertising possibilities.

"The Gun Fighter" (Triangle)—"Repeat to average business."

"Pals First" (Metro)—"A splendid picture. Well liked. But failed to get the extra money charged by the exchanges."

"Borrowed Clothes" (Jewel)—"Good drawing card picture."

"A Perfect 36" (Goldwyn)—"Not as good as 'Peck's Bad Girl' and did not draw as well. Public like Normand in slap stick comedy."

"Her Great Chance" (Select)—"Good picture. Pleased audience."

"Inn of the Blue Moon" (Sherry)—"Very pretty picture. Audience pleased."

"Hobbs in a Hurry" (Amer.-Pathe)—"Very good. All left smiling."

"Les Miserables" (Fox)—"Excellent production. Did not draw here."

"The Knife" (Select)—"Pleased to big business."

"Such a Little Pirate" (Paramount)—"Did not take in enough to pay for film."

"In Pursuit of Polly" (Paramount)—"Billie Burke failed to make good for me."

"Toys of Fate" (Nazimova-Metro)—"This star is coming strong."

"The Virginian" (Dustin Farnum-Paramount)—"These re-issues are very good hits."

"Girl of the Golden West" (Paramount)—"Went over big."

"Sauce for the Goose" (Select)—"Just as cute a story as one would wish for and the 'little Talmadge' put it over fine. There are too few real comediennes in pictures. Hope they don't spoil this one by telling her she should have emotional roles. Leave that to Norma."

"Les Miserables" (Fox)—"Excellent production but did not get me any money as 'flu' possibly hurt business."

"The Knife" (Select)—"Patrons' comments good. Good business. Brady draws good here."

"Wedlock" (Louise Glaum-Paralta)—"Splendid production. Big business."

"Pals First" (Metro-Lockwood)—"Picture very satisfactory and received unusual business."

"Tiger Man" (Hart-Artcraft)—"Very good to extra big business. Pleased those who like Hart immensely."

"Nine O'clock Town" (Ray-Paramount)—"Extra big business with Sennett comedy. The combination is hard to beat."

"Three Mounted Men" (Universal Special)—"Big Business."

"The Burden of Proof" (Select)—"Big business two days."

"A Glorious Adventure" (Goldwyn)—"Big business."

"Italy's Flaming Front" (First National)—"Extra big business for two days."

"The Reason Why" (Select)—"Big business."

"Friend Husband" (Goldwyn)—"Extra big business."

"The Death Dance" (Brady-Select)—"Big business."

"The Savage Woman" (Select-C. K. Young)—"Big to extra big business two days."

"Salome" (Fox)—"Fourteen days extra big. First time we ever charged twenty-five cents. Picture sure to clean up everywhere. Very clean."

"A Pair of Silk Stockings" (Select)—"Big business. Star well liked. Every one liked it."

"Everybody's Girl" (Vitagraph)—"Patrons not pleased. About 4,000 feet of film. Took about forty minutes to run the feature."

"Queen of the Sea" (Fox)—"Not so good as the last one."

"The Mating" (Vitagraph)—"Big business. Rotten picture."

"The Gypsy Trail" (Paramount)—"Star well liked and while no one praised this picture it got over nicely."

"Carmen of the Klondike"—"Extra big business and Monday generally a poor day but this got the business."

"Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots" (Select)—"Up to standard. Very good. Constance gaining followers."

"Hugon the Mighty" (Bluebird)—"Broke all records in real money with 'The Lightning Raider' in conjunction with this."

"The Girl of Today" (Vitagraph)—"Very good picture. Hope to popularize this star."

"The Romance of Tarzan" (First National)—"Four days at advanced prices. Picture pleased but was disappointed in the business done."

"Shoulder Arms" (First National)—"Nothing to it but a positive clean-up."

"Her Great Chance" (Select)—"Fair. Average program picture. Not much action."

"Lafayette, We Come" (Exhibitors Mutual)—"If anyone said that war stuff was dead I will second the motion."

"Her Only Way" (Select)—"Picture pleased all who saw it."

"Rules of the Road" (Re-issue-Keenan)—"Fine picture but star doesn't draw here."

"Borrowed Clothes" (Universal)—"Wouldn't draw them in but pleased those who saw it."

"Kidder and Ko." (Bryant Washburn)—"Good picture but it failed to draw."

"The Savage Woman" (Select)—"Didn't satisfy. Clara's getting too fat for pictures of this type."

"Three X Gordon" (Hodkinson)—"Dandy picture. Pleased all. Disappointed in receipts."

"Wild Primrose" (Vitagraph)—"Dandy picture. Star gaining in popularity."

"Stepping Stones" (Frank Keenan)—"Fine picture but can't seem to make them want to see Keenan."

"Heart of Rachael" (Hodkinson)—"Perfect picture. Generally satisfying."

"Red Blood and Yellow" (Sherry-General)—"Not enough 'pep' for G. M. Anderson."

"Money Isn't Everything" (American)—"Average business."

"Good Night, Paul" (Select)—"Star outdraws her sister. Give me more like this."

"For Husbands Only" (Universal)—"Interesting picture. Average business."

"Treat 'Em Rough" (Fox)—"This is sure a real picture. Mix is far ahead of Hart or Fairbanks. Played four days."

"Good Night, Paul" (Select)—"A real picture. Big business."

"A Daughter of Destiny" (First National)—"Good picture. Average business."

"A Bachelor's Children" (Vitagraph)—"Everybody pleased with this."

"Fame and Fortune" (Fox)—"Average business."

"Inn of the Blue Moon" (Sherry-General)—"Doris Kenyon. Poor business."

"He Came Up Smiling" (Artcraft)—"Good picture but not Doug's best. Big business three days."

"The Grouch" (World)—"One of the best World pictures we ever played."

"The Reason Why" (Select)—"This one forced us to cancel the service."

"True Blue" (Fox)—"Star Always good. Extra big business."

"Prisoners of the Pines" (Paralta)—"Fair Kerrigan picture."

"All Night" (Universal)—"Picture very good but Carmel Myers nearly spoiled it."

"Bonnie Annie Laurie" (Fox)—"Very good feature. Many praises of good show."

"When Men Betray" (Graphic-State Rights)—"Big business seven days."

"Her Fighting Chance" (Select)—"Big business."

"Under Four Flags" (World-Government)—"Average to poor business four days."

"A Glorious Adventure" (Goldwyn)—"Poor business."

"Red Blood and Yellow" (Sherry-General)—"Production poor but Broncho Billy good. Big business."

"The Death Dance" (Select)—"Using popularity."

"Lafayette, We Come" (Exhibitors Mutual)—"Poor business. Took off after first day."

"House of Gold" (Metro)—"Big business seven days."

"Sauce for the Goose" (Select)—"Big beginning with competition houses all complaining about poor attendance on account of influenza conditions. Star at her best. Photography good. Fine comedy with good plot. Cast and direction good. Titles excellently fitted. Public appreciates this kind of entertainment."

"Rose of Blood" (Fox)—"Repeat. Satisfied all followers of Theda Bara."

"Treat 'Em Rough" (Fox)—"Great. Just full of thrills and pleased all followers of Westerns. Tom Mix has arrived."

"Come on In" (Paramount)—"Great stuff, although a little late."

"The Forbidden City" (Select)—"Best yet. Star a card."

"The Source" (Paramount)—"Fair picture to big business."

"Johanna Enlists" (Artcraft)—"Very good and pleased. Mary hurt by so many bad ones before this."

"The Girl Who Came Back" (Paramount)—"Average business."

"One Dollar Bid" (Paralta)—"Fair. Pleased. Average business."

"A Woman of Impulse" (Paralta)—"Poor picture. Average business."

"Old Wives for New" (Artcraft)—"Good card. Good film. Went well."

"Salome" (Theda Bara-Fox)—"Went over big. Extra big second day."

"The Girl from Bohemia" (Pathe)—"Pleased."

"Street of Seven Stars" (Sherry-General)—"Fine picture. Print in bad condition. Big business."

"On the Jump" (Fox)—"Average business."

"Ace High" (Fox)—"Big business."

"Out of a Clear Sky" (Paramount)—"Positively the poorest picture I ever did see. Drew good the first day, dropped the second and took in just $20.50 the third day with good weather."

"Women Who Sin" (Fox)—"Pleased 80 per cent. Drew good."

"Queen of the Sea" (Fox)—"Excellent picture of its kind."

"Under the Greenwood Tree" (Artcraft)—"Wasn't much of a story. Ferguson all right in good story."

"Such a Little Pirate" (Paramount)—"Bad title to draw business."

"Miss Ambition" (Vitagraph)—"Poor picture. Hurt business."

"Turn of the Wheel" (Goldwyn)—"Good picture and Farrar is a good drawing card."

"Her Country First" (Paramount)—"Fair picture. Star well liked."

"Just for Tonight" (Goldwyn)—"Nothing big in feature. Fair drawing card."

"The Goat" (Artcraft)—"Good picture and big business with other feature."

"Lawless Love" (Fox)—"Good picture. Extra big business Saturday."

"Tell It to the Marines" (Fox)—"Lee kids good. Extra big business."

"Peck's Bad Girl" (Goldwyn)—"Fair picture. Poor business."

"The Goat" (Paramount)—"Good picture. Average business."

"Her Country First" (Paramount)—"Good drawing title. Picture gets by."

"On the Quiet" (Paramount)—"Star and title both draw."

"The Girl Who Came Back" (Paramount)—"Clayton unknown. Will have to establish her first."

"America's Answer" (U. S. Govt.-World)—"Still has strong appeal.'

"Resurrection"—"Lay off this one."

"Treat 'em Rough" (Fox)—"Mix has them coming."

"Truthful Tulliver" (Hart Re-issue)—"Extra big business."

"The Still Alarm" (State Rights)—"Second run. Big business."

"Daughter of the Gods" (Fox)—"Second run. Big business two days."

"Caillouex Case" (Fox)—"Star excellent. Not well known."

"Rose of the World" (Artcraft)—"Star in fitting role. Settings fine."

"Mr. Logan U. S. A." (Fox)—"Great stuff. Star a sure winner."

"Embarrassment of Riches" (Lillian Walker)—"Extremely bad. Nothing to it."

"Huck and Tom" (Paramount)—"Great Kid stuff and star well liked."

"Laughing Bill Hyde" (Paramount)—"High class picture. Story different and star takes fine."

"When Do We Eat?" (Paramount)—"Good story and well acted."

"Less Than Kin" (Paramount)—"Good story. Fine cast and pleased good crowd."

"The Traveling Salesman" (Paramount)—"Good for old picture."

"Ali Baba" (Fox)—"Fair kiddie picture. Not much for adults."

CENTRAL STATES

NEW YORK OFFICE, 729 Seventh Avenue CHICAGO REPRESENTATIVE, 220 So. State Street

Sunday Movies May Be Put Up to Local Option in Indiana

IN all likelihood the question of Sunday movies will be put up to local option, according to the bill presented by Senator Franklin McCray, of Indianapolis. Throughout the northern part of the state the churches are combined in fighting the opening on the Sabbath, but judging from reports the possibility of their closing if the matter is of local option is slight.

Senator McCray said of his bill, "This bill really doesn't do a thing on earth except put the Sunday motion picture business up to the residents of the various communities of the state. Of course, if the people of any town, who are against Sunday movies don't care enough about their side of the question to demand that Sunday movies be done away with, then the other side wins without a fight, but after all it's just another sample of local option."

A House Bill by Representative Charles L. Buchanan, of Indianapolis, provides for a state board of censorship, salaries, licenses, terms and appointments of the members of the motion picture commission, and for assistants. It also provides the heavy penalties for the violation of the provisions of the measure.

According to motion picture men of Indiana, who have appeared at the State House regarding the Buchanan bill, it will increase the cost of film rentals to the exhibitors and will result in but slight modification of the films displayed in this state.

They base their latter contention on the fact that a large portion of the films shown in Indiana have been reviewed and censored by the Ohio or Illinois state boards of censorship and that all objectionable features are removed by these two boards before the films reach Indiana.

Advocates of the measure contend that the bill will increase the revenues of the state and that it will elevate the standard of pictures shown in Hoosierdom.

The Buchanan bill provides for a commission of three members, the chairman of which shall receive $2,500 per year, and each of the other two members $2,000 per year. It also provides that assistants may be appointed and their pay fixed by the board and all actual expenses of the board and all actual expenses of the board be paid, not in excess of $30,000 per year.

Ministers in Goshen, Gary, Hammond, South Bend and La Porte are arrayed against the measure. An effort has been made to amend the measure so as to prohibit the exhibition of pictures between 4:30 o'clock and 8 o'clock on Sunday but failed. Senator Beardsley, of Elkhart, is arrayed against the measure.

Doll-Van Gives Roosevelt's Record in a Two-Reel Special Release

THE Doll-Van Film Corporation of Chicago is distributing a two-reel special release entitled, "The Real Roosevelt," and declares that it comes at a fitting moment in the nation's hour of grief.

The announcement declares as follows:

"It is the destiny of the motion picture that it preserve and perpetuate for posterity the living similitude of the selected few, of this and ages to follow; to paint upon the scroll of Time a record, undying and inviolate, of men and their accomplishments.

"Theodore Roosevelt, as a national figure, both before and after his years in the White House, naturally occupied the attention of both the press and the camera. And to say that the camera has faithfully recorded the stamp and impress of this mighty figure in the high tide of his career is begging the question.

"In his picturesque and varied career as cowboy, legislator, soldier, commissioner, statesmand and President, the camera has kept steady pace; and now that the once vigorous form is forever still this simple record becomes a thing precious beyond price.

"Carefully selected and assembled under the eyes of those who best knew him, Doll-Van's production has been so arranged as to best follow and encompass Roosevelt's activities in chronological order. From the great mass of available material only that which seemed most suitable was used.

"So that in its entirety the subject comprehends a living and indelible record of achievement. A hallowed possession that may well seek its place alongside the Liberty Bell and Emancipation Proclamation."

Fond du Lac Public Rallies to the Coins

IS your moving picture fan just naturally big hearted, sympathetic, generous and quick to respond to the call of the needy?

"We'll say so," is the answer of the representative of a certain university sorority which is engaged in raising funds with which to buy milk for famishing Belgian children.

"Here is our proof," continued the young lady. "A few days ago we put milk bottles for the receipt of coins for this fund in the lobbies of the moving picture houses and the hotels in Fond du Lac. At the moving picture houses there was a steady jingle of coin as the bottles filled. At the other locations our appeal scarcely received any attention. We think the Belgian children will feel grateful to the moving picture patrons in Fond du Lac."

THE CENTRAL STATES

March 1, 1919

Rebuilt Strand in Dubuque Expects to Open in May

MAY 15 or June 1 will witness the re-opening of the Strand, Dubuque picture theatre that was gutted by fire about two years ago. At the time of the fire, the Strand was owned and was under the management of a Chicago company, but early last year the building had been purchased by the Bradlay and MaClay Real Estate Company, proprietors of the Grand. For almost a year the building remained untouched, but during January a force of men under Contractor James Gregory, began working on it. Good weather conditions enabled the men to accomplish a great amount of work and from the present outlook, it is probable that the theatre will be reopened before June.

The fire, while of a serious nature, only destroyed the roof and part orf the floor and damaged and smoked up the interior. The new management plans to tear down everything but the walls and to change the general plan of the theatre. The building was formerly the First Baptist church, and after being made into a theatre, was practically unchanged, with the exception of a pit for the orchestra, and a tiny stage. The seating arrangement was uncomfortable and unserviceable and the screen was too low for the remainder of the theatre. These things and religious prejudice were to blame for the theatre's not being a success.

Now, there seems to be no objection to its being rebuilt. The owners have torn out the old floors, making the main floor on a level with the street; a balcony will be put in; a modern stage and lobby, rest rooms, and there is talk of a coffee shop being established.

Detroit Exhibitor Strong for Music

TOM MOULE, manager of John H. Kunsky's Madison and Washington theatres, Detroit, declares that music is an important factor in the success of any playhouse. Both the Madison and Washington theatres are down-town houses and both show first run pictures only.

Mr. Moule is the oldest house manager in Mr. Kunsky's circuit of theatres and is a pioneer in the business, having been in the producing end of the game as well as an exhibitor. He ranks among the most progressive exhibitors of the state. Before assuming charge of the Madison he was manager of Mr. Kunsky's beautiful Alhambra theatre, one of the most pretentious neighborhood houses in the state.

"When we featured music at the Alhambra," declared Mr. Moule, "we discovered that it brought results and at the Madison we are even more particular owing to the size of the theatre, the increased prices and the larger attendance. Fortunately, I believe, the Madison has one of the best orchestra conductors in the country. He is constantly on the alert for little novelties and innovations that please the audiences and send them away talking about the house.

"Another highly important point is the selection of employes. If you can surround yourself with people who will intelligently look after the smaller details you can devote more time to the successful handling of the larger affairs."

Book Photoplays Score in Madison, Wisconsin

PHOTOPLAYS taken from favorite and well known books are extremely popular with the Madison, Wis., public. The last few days has evidenced this approval by the good runs given to Harold Bell Wright's "Shepherd of the Hills," and Louise M. Alcott's widely read "Little Women." Other picturizations of fiction are booked for future release.

Without a single star in either cast, "Little Women" and "The Shepherd of the Hills" were successful solely because of the affection cherished for these well writtn love stories.

"The Shepherd of the Hils" had a good week's run at the Fuller opera house. People were turned away for both the matinee and evening performances during the first part of the week. This—and the show was given at advance prices. Everyone is quoting "Preachin' Bill" and telling their friends "not to miss it."

The Strand has another feature coming that bids to be as popular as "Little Women," in "Mrs. Wiggs in the Cabbage Patch." The combined humor of the narrative and the devoted following of Marguerite Clark, who stars in the picture, guarantees its enthusiastic welcome.

"The Silver King," "False Faces" and the "Romance of Happy Valley" are some of the big pictures soon to be released at the new motion picture house.

The Majestic theatre had a splendid two days' runs on Mrs. Vernon Castle in "The First Law." Among the other pictures shown recently was "A Successful Failure."

The program at the Grand theatre this week included: Fannie Ward in "The Narrow Path," "The Spender" and Earl Williams in "The Highest Trump."

On the Screens of Dubuque

LITTLE GLORIA JOY, in "Miss Mischief Maker," played at the Liberty theatre February 8. It can be safely said that this little miss is the most popular child player at the Liberty.

"THE TROUBLE BUSTER," with Vivian Martin, and a Charlie Chaplin comedy, "The Park," formed a fine bill at the Family theatre February 8. Both of these stars are drawing powers of the best and the combination brought the Family a record house.

A FINE cast, headed by Gladys Brockwell, William Scott and Charles Clarey, enacted the Fox feature, "Kultur," shown at the Liberty theatre on February 9. Although a second-run feature, Manager Wilbur had very good houses all day.

MARION DAVIES won favor at the Princess theatre February 10 and 11 in "The Burden of Proof." The new star's acting was very good and it impressed most of the theatre's patrons as being the work of a star well on the way to fame.

"MONEY ISN'T EVERYTHING," with Margarita Fisher, played to good houses at the Dreamland theatre February 11. Miss Fisher was always a favorite at the Dreamland, and since "Impossible Susan" her drawing power has been greatly increased.

THE Sunday and Monday program at the Star theatre was "The Game's Up," starring Ruth Clifford. A comedy, "Pat Turns Detective," was also shown.

"RICH MAN, POOR MAN," with Marguerite Clark, played to capacity houses and then some at the Family theatre February 11. A second-run picture, it drew better than the majority of first runners. Miss Clark's portrayal of Betty Wynne created one of the most winsome characters on the screen.

"THE MAN OF MIGHT," the Vitagraph serial starring William Duncan, opened at the Liberty theatre February 11. Mr. Duncan is one of, if not the most popular serial star in film land, so the success of the serial is assured. An episode will be shown every Tuesday.

A Good Old-Fashioned House-Warming

SUCH was the opening of the new film studios and laboratories of the Atlas Educational Film Company, 2624 Milwaukee avenue, Chicago, February 1, 1919, which started promptly at 6 p. m. with a feast for all the employes of the organization, worthy the attention of the most fastidious epicure, from the Chicken Okra Soup-Nustudio to Roast Turkey-a la Bell Howell.

The menu card, designed by C. A. Rehm, who was the master of ceremonies, was in the shape of a pyramid tied with ribbons, in thorough keeping with Mr. Rehm's artistic tendencies.

At the close of the dinner the program was given, consisting of vocal and instrumental numbers, "Co-operation and Get to Business" talks by I. R. Rehm and E. G. Kune, topped by a "Moving Picture Song and Dance" by W. W. Parsons. A number of others graced the occasion with their readings and monologues. All of which made up a most enjoyable program.

The extraordinary growth of the Atlas Educational Film Company has necessitated their acquiring greater manufacturing facilities, hence the taking over of the Diamond Film Company's building, which will enable them to enter fields they never have exploited, owing to the lack of studio space.

C. A. Rehm, general manager of the company, now feels they are in a position to thoroughly live up to an ideal—"Service and Originality." Every picture turned out is not only to be the last word in quality, but exclusively original.

The heads of the organization are: I. R. Rehm, president; C. A. Rehm, secretary and general manager; John Bauer, in charge of developing; L. Palmer Bowman, in charge of studios; Charles W. Hitchcock, in charge of production; E. G. Kuhn, in charge of commercial department.

Overcrowding in Indianapolis Draws Censure

OVERCROWDING of motion picture theatres in Indianapolis must be remedied at once, members of the board of safety told representatives of the theatres at a conference Saturday night. Action resulted from conditions arising in the picture theatres last Sunday when all theatres were required not to open until 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon under the order of Mayor Jewett regarding Sunday operation. The effect of this simultaneous opening of the theatres was to emphasize the tendency toward crowding.

The conference Saturday night was informal. Members of the board pointed out their readiness to recognize the difficulties confronting the motion picture theatres in handling patrons because of conditions peculiar to picture shows, and said that the board will lend every effort to aid them in a prompt and effective solution, but expects immediate results in averting dangerous crowding of the aisles at the rear of the theatres.

It was proposed that each manager find his own method of meeting the situation and avoid the necessity for undertaking to apply laws now existing.

Humphrey Enthuses Over Business

J. A. HUMPHREY, covering the State of Indiana, out of the Chicago Vitagraph office has sent in a most encouraging report. Mr. Humphrey states that all over Northern Indiana, in such towns as Gary, Hammond, Lafayette, Frankfort, Kokomo, Tipton, Ft. Wayne, Goshen, South Bend, La Porte, Michigan City, Valparaiso, Elwood, Anderson, Muncie, Alexandria, Wabash, Logansport and Warsaw in personal interviews with the leading exhibitors, they report without an exception the best business from a fox-office standpoint ever in the history of the movies in that territory.

Mr. Humphrey says that never in his two years in Indiana has he found exhibitors feeling as optimistic for the future as right now.

The gentleman feels that one big indication of good times is that in all this big field which he covers of fifty-five counties he does not know of a single theatre for sale.

They Say in Chicago That—

HARRY WEISS, of the Central Film company, is still out among them on the road, and it's dollars to doughnuts that aside from the business that he has sent in that he will land in Chicago with a pocket full of contracts.

CHAS. C. PYLE, the aggressive general sales manager of the Bartola Musical Instrument company, is now in New York after a successful trip to Detroit, where he closed several sales for the Bartola.

THE Silee Film company announces that they have closed with the Mickey Film corporation for the physical distribution of the feature, "Mickey;" also closed with Al Rosenthal for the physical distribution of the "Finger of Justice," and with the Capital Film company for the distribution of their products.

EDDY ECKLES, the genial and up-to-the-minute publicity head of the Capital Film corporation, is up to his eyes in work laying out what looks to be one of the snappiest advertising campaigns launched in some time.

LEE HERZ has purchased the Illinois and Indiana rights for "The Profiteer," the big six-reeler produced by the Arrow Film corporation, featuring Jack Sherrill and Alma Hanlon.

F. B. ROGERS, manager of the Pathe Chicago exchange, gave a private showing at the Ziegfeld theatre, the 14th ultimo, of their superproduction, "Common Clay," featuring Fannie Ward, at which time the house was filled with exhibitors and newspaper people. The consensus of opinion was that "Common Clay" should prove a big winner, and while dealing with a delicate subject it was so beautifully handled that it would reach the hearts of the public. Miss Ward has again demonstrated her ability to handle emotional situations superbly.

HARRY C. MILLER, who has kept things lively for some years at three of Chicago's loop theatres, the Alcazar, Rose and Boston, is now a nice little corporation all by himself to handle the "New Oak" theatre.

P. A. POWERS spent two days in Chicago on his way to the Coast on important matters.

EDWIN SILVERMAN, who until he entered the navy was booker at the Chicago office of the Select Players, has been released from service and is back in harness. Eddie is still wearing the uniform.

BEN BEADELL, head of the sales organization of Select Pictures, has just returned from a most successful trip through Illinois, covering Decatur, Ottawa, Mount Pulaski and Clinton. At Decatur James Carrier booked for extended runs on "One Woman," "Midnight Patrol," "Cavell Case," "Ruling Passions," "Hidden Truth," in addition to increasing the number of exhibition dates for Star series.

THE Star theatre, of Kokomo, Ind., formerly conducted by Mrs. J. D. Silk, has been taken over by Thomas Nelson, a former Captain in the army and in the trenches for nearly two years.

STRAND theatre, of Warsaw, Ind., has been taken over by James Bovras, formerly of Elkhart and Goshen, Ind.

CHAS. PACINI, of the Majestic theatre, Kenosha, has just closed arrangements with the management of the Select Pictures Chicago office for a big publicity campaign, including twenty-four sheet stands, newspaper work, etc. Dale Loomis, manager of the Wallace, Iris and Victoria theatres of Peru, Ind., has made the same arrangements.

R. C. CROPPER, of the Beehive exchange, Chicago, Indianapolis and Milwaukee, can be found any day hitched up to one of his favorite black cigars with a mysterious look on his face. Wonder if Francis Ford has anything to do with this?

R. C. SHERRY should conserve his health. Weather does not seem to make any difference to the gentleman. Out every night closing up contracts for First National productions.

THE Isis theatre, of Kokomo, Ind., played "The Common cause" February 3, 4 and 5, and reports the picture as the best production ever played in that city. At each performance during the three days they played to capacity and figure they could have played the picture two or three days more, the third day of their run, February 5, being by far the largest.

PHIL GOLDSTONE, head of the Sterling Film corporation, Omaha, Neb., recently mustered out of service, spent a few days in Chicago on his way home. There will be something doing when he gets there—full of pep!

BALABAN & KATZ, of the Riviera theatre, have again proved their sagacity in the selection of the Metro picture, "Faith," featuring Bert Lytell, as it has proved a strong drawing card, and even Thursday night, February 13, the house was packed despite a drenching rain. Mr. Joseph Koppel, manager of the theatre, waxed enthusiastic over a picture that could draw so well in spite of adverse weather conditions.

PENNY ROSS, the Chicago Tribune cartoonist, whose "Mother's Angel Child" cartoons have pleased people in this country, is beginning to realize the great possibilities that feature presents for a sumptuous production. There will undoubtedly be something doing soon.

THE Jewel superproduction, "Heart of Humanity," is breaking all records in Chicago. The business of the Pantheon, Woodlawn and Twentieth Century theatres, who ran this picture, was phenomenal.

W. D. BURFORD, manager of the Fox, Strand, Palm, Star and Orpheum theatres, of Aurora, reports that the business in all five of his houses is keeping right up to the top notch.

CARL LAEMMLE, president of the Universal Film company, will arrive in Chicago February 19 for a conference and leave immediately for the Coast to take a much needed rest.

THOMAS P. RONAN, of the Palace theatre, Danville, Ill., reports that his business is great and is expecting big things from his four days' run of "Heart of Humanity."

CHICAGO'S film world is wondering what Joe Friedman, of the Celebrated Players, is going to do with all the money he is making out of the Houdini serial bookings. Why not give a party?

W. C. LAMOREAUX has been placed in charge of Ascher Bros.' Chateau theatre, one of Chicago's handsomest picture palaces. Under Mr. Lamoreaux's able direction this beautiful house will unquestionably prove one of the strongest links in the Ascher Bros.' chair.

ACCORDING to reports from the Goldwyn Chicago office, "Sis Hopkins" is going over with a great big splash.

THE Doll-Van Chicago office reports that they have already secured sixty contracts on their sixteen two-reel Tom Mix series and are looking forward to great things on their forthcoming release of the "Still Alarm."

WALTER ALTLAND and S. T. O'Brien have been added to the Doll-Van Chicago office sales force.

In Indianapolis and Indiana

EXHIBITORS' MUTUAL DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION, an Illinois corporation, has qualified to do business in Indiana. Five hundred dollars of its capital stock is represented in Indiana. Its object is the sale of motion picture photoplays. J. G. Connor, Indianapolis, is named as agent. Mr. Connor was in charge of the Indiana territory for the United States Department of Publicity, division of films.

A. W. CARRICK, formerly with the Indianapolis office of the World Film Corporation, is now associated with the Pathe Exchange here. O. W. Fauchier is the present manager.

THE Decatur County Ministerial Association has gone on record against Sunday pictures, adopting a resolution, which was wired to local representatives in the state legislature.

THE Rev. William Burrows, pastor of the Holy Trinity Episcopal Church at Bloomington, has come out in a statement to the effect that there is no harm in showing pictures on Sunday at theatres if the pictures are good. "A bad picture," he said, "should not be shown at any time."

PATRONS of vaudeville houses in Indianapolis turned to the moving picture theatres for amusement Sunday because of the ruling against Sunday vaudeville and legitimate attractions. B. F. Keith's and the Park theatres were dark and motion pictures were shown by the Lyric. No violations of the ruling against vaudeville and legitimate theatricals on Sunday were reported by Miss Clara Burnside, sergeant of police, who also is acting as a censor of pictures exhibited in Indianapolis theatres.

Hoo's Hoo in Hoosierdom

Seeing Indianapolis from an Exchange Window

FOR THE BENEFIT of those who may have overlooked it we wish to relate a story that recently appeared in a local paper. It seems as if a young and struggling physician, located in a small Kentucky settlement, was hurriedly called one night to attend to a lad who had inadvertantly stopped a young cannon ball during the course of a street brawl. Upon investigation the doctor found the skull partially torn away and in a desperate attempt to save a life, temporarily removed the brain the better to reach his work. In a moment he discovered, to his horror, that a stray dog had seized the brain and made off with it. His acquaintance with Kentucky laws covering malpractice led him to make a sudden departure. Years later, as the story goes, he met an acquaintance from this same town, upon which the following conversation ensued: "Well I suppose the boy that was shot the night I left is dust by now." "Why, bless your soul, he's nothing of the kind, no indeed. Do you know, sir, that boy actually recovered, grew up a big, strapping fellow and right now is up at Indianapolis trying to close the picture shows on Sunday."

HATS OFF to Brother Pettijohn, when it comes to slinging good old-fashioned English. In an open discussion of the Sunday opening bill, recently held at the State House, Mr. Pettijohn was but one of a number of speakers, but to most of those present it looked like a one-horse race, with Pettijohn in the lead.

DURING the present week the collective salesmen of the local exchanges were called in session to discuss a matter of some import anent the Sunday bill. Such a gathering proved a rare opportunity in the study of human nature, and to one so disposed, mental vagaries without surcease. To the writer, such a number of familiar faces, nodding and beaming in the morning light, occurred the thought that they might aptly be likened to a field of flowers; in which is to be found a flourishing array of Hops, Mint and Cloves, and conversely, a sparce Milkweed or two and several man Water-lilies. A smattering of Wandering Jew, to be sure. Several burly Cactus, a Century plant and quite a nice colony of Rubber plants. A few Forget-me-nots and likewise Touch-me-nots. Then there was to be seen the aromatic Trailing Arbutus, closely allied to the Passion flower, the Wild Cucumber, the Night Blooming Cereus and the Moon Vine. Several Four O'Clocks were also present. Needless to state, there was a healthy gathering of Trumpet Vines, some Clinging Ivy, and, fortunately, few Morning Glories. But search as we might there was nary a Shrinking Violet in that crew.

J. P. HAMILTON, Cincinnati's prime Scissor-Bill, is now to be reckoned among the live ones. He has condescended, in a gentlemanly and becoming fashion, to devote his waking hours to the introduction of Doll-Van's Tom Mix Series among the uninitiated. We will venture no fond wishes for his welfare; he'll take care of that.

OUR FRIEND, McCurty, of the well known Bee Hive, has been the object of much serious concern of late. He has been seen at odd and sundry hours pacing the thoroughfare in an introspective mood, and then to suddenly make off in the direction of the Royal. To the relief of many it has been found to be nothing more serious than the Francis Ford serial.

E. SOLLERS, the two-by-fourteen from Dana, made the rounds during the present week. He reports having acquired the Lyric at Covington. Those who know his capacity for spearing sheckles are offering odds on his retirement before next cracklin' time.—ALLISON.

DOLL-VAN

DOLL-VAN is pleased to announce that the series of 16 two reel TOM MIX Western Dramas are meeting with the same phenomenal success in Indiana and Illinois that they have had and are having in other parts of the country.

It is with gratification that we thank the Exhibitors of our territory for so unanimously acclaiming this series as the greatest two reel series of the year —bar none.

The organs of the Motion Picture industry praise them fully as much as the exhibitors as these inserts will prove.

Motion Picture News:

"These two reelers show TOM MIX at his best. They are full of Western stunts, wonderful horsemanship and intense drama. Each picture has enough story, plot and action for a five reel feature."

Moving Picture World:

"Good for any class house and a fine addition to any program. TOM MIX does fine work in these best of Westerns."

Exhibitor's Trade Review:

"These TOX MIX reelers should bring big returns. They are what the public wants."

Beautiful photography. Vivid lithograph one, three and six sheets which will draw crowds into your theatre. Also 8 x 10's, slides, cuts, etc., on each release.

Exclusive franchise for Indiana and Illinois.

"A punch to a foot."

DOLL VAN FILM CORPORATION

1606 Merchants Bank Building
Indianapolis, Indiana

207 South Wabash Avenue
Chicago, Illinois

DOLL-VAN

News and Gossip of Springfield Theatres

THE GAIETY in Springfield experienced a highly successful week from February 2-8 with "Sporting Life" for four days, and "Life's Greatest Problem" for the last three. "Sporting Life" gave great satisfaction and the management received many compliments on it. "Life's Greatest Problem" was in the nature of a pleasant surprise.

JOHN BARRYMORE had four fair days at the Vaudette, February 2-5, in "Here Comes the Bride." Vivian Martin did well following Barrymore in "You Never Saw Such a Girl," a dandy photoplay.

THE PRINCESS reports an excellent week with Harold Lockwood in "The Great Romance," Henry Walthall in "And a Still Small Voice" and Kitty Gordon in "Adele." The Lockwood picture did exceptionally well, turning them away at the Sunday showing.

ACTING MANAGER WALTERS reports that the Lyric maintained its usual good stride with Cladys Brockwell in "The Call of the Soul," Ethel Barrymore in "The Divorcee," and Evelyn Nesbit in "Woman, Woman!" The pictures were all shown the week of February 2-8.

"DON'T CHANGE YOUR HUSBAND," Cecil B. De Mille's newest play, was shown at the Gaiety for four days, starting February 9. Gloria Swanson, heretofore almost unknown in this city, scored a personal hit, and Elliott Dexter lived up to his reputation as one of the screen's most finished artists. Good old Theodore Roberts, pretty Julia Faye and Sylvia Ashton also scored.

HARRY WEISS, representing the Central Film Company of Chicago, distributors of First National attractions in this territory, was in Springfield the first part of last week and signed up the Gaiety for the three Mary Pickford productions to be released by his company. They are "Daddy Long Legs," "Pollyanna" and "Ruth, Come Out of the Kitchen." Weiss also signed the Lyric for the Anita Stewart productions.

THE CAPITOL has signed for the new Francis Ford serial, "The Silent Mystery."

MISS NELL KEMPER is still visiting in this city, preparatory to taking up her abode in New York. Miss Kemper was formerly scenario editor for W. S. Hart.

TWO educational films were shown at Christ Church in the past week. One was "Fit to Fight," and was shown to men only. It is a story of the training camps. The picture shown to the women was "The End of the Road."

GEORGE WALSH cleaned up for the Lyric on Sunday and Monday, February 9 and 10 in "Luck and Pluck," his newest Fox production. Walsh has thousands of admirers in this city. Following Walsh was "In For Thirty Days," new Metro play with May Allison. For the next two days Manager Loper has Hale Hamilton in "$5,000 an Hour."

MANAGER MAISEL, of the Capitol, had a fine program for the week of February 9-15. Starting on Sunday with Billy West in "Rolling Stones," chapter 7 of "The Lightning Raider" and other short subjects, the following pictures were presented: Monday, Mae Marsh in "The Face in the Dark"; Tuesday, Francis McDonald, Triangle star, in "Tony America"; Wednesday, Clara Kimball Young in "Shirley Kaye"; Thursday, Olive Tell in Metro's "Secret Strings"; Friday, Bessie Barriscale in "All of a Sudden Norman"; Saturday, latest two reel Keystone comedy and "Shorty" Hamilton feature. Next week the Capitol will start in on the Paramount-Success series, opening with Mary Pickford in "The Dawn of a Tomorrow."

GUS KERASOTES booked William Farnum in "Les Miserables" for Friday and Saturday, February 14 and 15. This was one of the biggest features ever shown at the Royal, also one of the best. Other pictures shown the same week were "The Stafford Mystery" with Billie Burke, which is really "Gloria's Romance" cut down; "The Submarine Eye," "All Man," Louise Huff in "T'Other Dear Charmer" and "The Lure of the Circus.'

THE SAVOY is now in the 12th chapter of "A Fight for Millions," which was shown on February 9, together with Fritzi Ridgeway in "Tempting Fate"; Monday the attraction was "America's Answer," and Charlie Chaplin in "The Doughnut Designer"; the same program was held for Tuesday; Wednesday, "Trooper 44," and Lyons-Moran comedy and Current Events; Thursday, Carmel Myers in "All Night"; Friday, Chapter 12 of "The Iron Test," and several short subjects; Saturday, Mae Murray in "Her Body in Bond." Manager Louis Kerasotes says that business continues fine, and that everything is just "lovely."

THE PRINCESS had Mildred Harris in "When a Girl Loves," her latest Jewel production, for three days starting February 9, and the publicity department reports satisfactory patronage. Miss Harris is a real favorite with Springfield fans. For the rest of the week Manager Kunz booked: Wednesday and Thursday, William Desmond in "Life's a Funny Proposition," and Friday and Saturday, Lucille Lee Stewart in "The Eleventh Commandment." Other coming attractions to the Princess in the near future include Frank Keenan in "Todd of the Times," Fanny Ward in "Common Clay," Sessue Hayakawa in "Bounds of Honor" and "The Wild Cat of Paris" with Priscilla Dean.

THE GAIETY has William Faversham in "The Silver King," "Fatty" Arbuckle in "Camping Out," Mae Marsh in "The Bondage of Barbara" and another comedy for the week of February 16-22. The Vaudette will have Marguerite Clark in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" and "The Winning Girl" with Shirley Mason.

BEN ROVIN says he is sorry that the Amuse-U wasn't at least twice the size it is in order that he wouldn't have to disappoint so many of his patrons. It is almost impossible to crowd into the Amuse-U on any night, and Sundays and Saturdays the theatre is filled to capacity. Ben is using Fox, Triangle, Hart and Fairbanks pictures, and other features that look good to him when the salesman calls.

THE EMPRESS reports continued prosperity. The same is true of the Palace and North End Circle theatres.

GEORGE S. RIORDAN, manager of the Majestic theatre, has resigned. The new manager will be H. Kaufman, formerly of Madison, Wisconsin, but lately of Uncle Sam's fighting forces. Mr. Kaufman has had many years of experience in the theatrical and film business, and at one time managed three theatres in Madison. He is a protege of the Finn and Heiman Company, coming from Mr. Heiman's home town, Syracuse, New York. Kaufman has already made a fine impression, and should continue to make the Majestic a money-maker.

NEXT week will see the last chapter of the Vitagraph serial "A Fight for Millions." The final day will be February 26.

HARRY LOPER has returned from a week's stay with his parents in Chicago. The Lopers operate the beautiful Kimball theatre, on the southside, one of the best neighborhood houses in Chicago.

SPRINGFIELD is entirely free from influenza.

Heard in Detroit

THE Detroit Board of Motion Picture Managers has sent telegrams to Congressmen and Senators from this district opposing vigorously the tax of 5 per cent. on film rentals that was proposed.

ELWYN M. SIMONS, manager of the New Family theatre, Adrian, has taken advantage of the columns of publicity being given the Adrian Industrial Home for Girls. This institution has been under investigation by the state legislature on account of the alleged hardships the girl inmates were forced to endure. The investigation has occupied much space in the papers of the state. One of the conditions discovered was that the girls were allowed less than an hour each day for any kind of recreation. Mr. Simons gave a special matinee at his theatre for the inmates, showing "Little Women," released through Paramount.

HARRY I. GARSON, president of the Broadway Strand theatre, will return to Detroit from California some time next week.

THE NEGAUNEE AMUSEMENT COMPANY has been organized by William J. Johnson and Fred L. Rhoades, business men of Negaunee, who have taken a ten-year lease on the Liberty theatre in that city.

GROUND will soon be broken for George Zick's new theatre in St. Clair Heights, a suburb of Detroit. Mr. Zick is the owner of the Montclair theatre, Detroit.

THE American theatre of Port Huron has been leased by Herbert Weil of that city. He now has the American, Bijou, Majestic, Maxine and Family theatres in Port Huron.

MANAGER ELWYN SIMONS, of the New Family theatre, Adrian, has booked the entire Fox output, including even the comedies, making his house a 100 per cent. Fox theatre.

A TRADE showing of Marie Walcamp's latest feature, "The Red Glove," will be given in the near future. It will be released March 17, instead of February 17, as originally announced.

J. RUSSELL BRETT, acting as special representative for Universal Special Attractions, announces that he has obtained a comprehensive looking array of contracts.

IT has been announced that Joe Kaliski is to leave the Fox exchange in Detroit soon. He has been promoted to branch manager of an out-of-town office and will probably go to Pittsburgh.

THE UNITED THEATRE EQUIPMENT COMPANY has obtained the state agency for the new Minusa screen.

MRS. JACK MOWAT, wife of the Detroit representative for the American Film Co., died at her home February 3, after an illness of fourteen months.

ONE hundred thousand paper bags advertising "Wanted for Murder," which goes into the Washington theatre for an indefinite run, will be distributed to local grocery stores by W. A. Haynes, manager of the Film Clearing House, Detroit. This is the first time this method of exploiting has been used in this city. Mr. Haynes announces that he will introduce several other novelties in the way of exploitation shortly.

THE Detroit Board of Motion Picture Exchange Managers has decided to employ two special investigators who will spend their time touring the state in an effort to catch certain exhibitors who have been accused of "bicycling" films. The investigators will make reports on the number of days certain films are exhibited in each house and the secretary of the board will distribute the reports to the exchange managers. The stealing of films for extra day runs has proved such an annoyance to exchanges that the managers have had to resort to drastic measures to prevent further activities in this line.

EDDIE McGRATH, who was soloist at the Broadway Strand theatre for four consecutive years, has resigned and now is connected with the professional staff of the Jerome H. Remick Music Publishing Company.

A. J. REED, former manager of the General and George Kleine exchanges, has been appointed city salesman for Vitagraph and will act as assistant to Manager J. M. Duncan.

THE Detroit branch of the United Picture Theatres of America has moved to the World Film exchange in the Film building. The United had its first showing in Detroit when Dustin Farnum in "The Light of Western Stars" was shown last week at the Regent theatre.

HAL SMITH, who piloted the Ferry Field theatre through the vicissitudes of war time conditions, the flu epidemic and other difficulties, will be the manager of that playhouse for another year at least, because he has signed a new contract with his owners. Mr. Smith is one of the Detroit pioneers in the motion picture business, having been connected with the industry as an exhibitor and distributor for more than 14 years. The Ferry Field is one of the most successful neighborhood theatres in the country. It has a seating capacity of 1,400 and plays to capacity business almost every night. The policy of the house is six changes of program a week and the prices are 15, 25 and 30 cents. There is an eight-piece orchestra and recently Mr. Smith spent $500 on the organ, increasing its size and usefulness. To show what he could do with a special that other exhibitors reported bad he recently took an official Government picture and filled every seat in his house. Before the engagement started he had sold 1,000 tickets to students of the Northwestern high school, which is near his theatre.

TWO important changes in the ownership or management of two leading Detroit theatres were completed last week. The Majestic, recently leased by Henry J. Gurthard from the Majestic Theatre Company, was taken over by C. H. Miles, who also operates the Regent and Orpheum theatres in Detroit, and the Miles and Grand in Cleveland. Mr. Miles has retained Charles G. Branham as manager and the regular house staff, some of whom have been with the theatre since it opened three or four years ago.

IT is also announced that Marcus Loew has positively acquired the Detroit opera house, for a time called the Campus, and will operate it as a picture theatre starting in March. Loew vaudeville is shown in the Orpheum theatre.

ETHEL BARRYMORE, who played at the New Detroit opera house in "The Off Chance" last week, and her entire company were guests of the management of the Adams theatre at a special matinee performance of her latest picture, "The Divorcee." Manager Charles Darrell, of the Adams theatre, took advantage of the fact that Miss Barrymore was playing in the city in person and called the special event the "Ethel Barrymore matinee."

Bill Favors Censors for State of Michigan

A BILL has been introduced into the Michigan legislature providing for a state board of censors. Senator Tufts, of Ludington, who sponsors the measure, is in favor of two men and one woman comprising the board. The bill is in general very similar to the Ohio censorship law and it carries a fee of $1 for each reel of 1,000 feet and $2 for reels over 1,000 feet. A fine of $100 is provided for exhibitors who show films before being properly censored. Undoubtedly this measure will be contested both by exhibitors and exchanges. In addition to the films in Michigan being censored by the national board, the Detroit police department censors the films. Detectives Lester Potter and Royal Baker, both experienced showmen, are assigned to this duty by the police commissioner and both the exchange men and exhibitors have expressed their approval of these officers and their judgment.

What LaPorte Is Doing

THE New Century theatre opened during the past week in Mishawaka. Manager Senger had a most attractive bill for the opening, which was largely attended. The New Century was hardly to be recognized so complete was the transformation made possible by the artist's brush.

THE La Salle theatre in South Bend played to large crowds at the showing of Corinne Griffith in "The Girl of Today." The picture showed the star's charms to an advantage and her ability to act was given full sway in Robert W. Chambers' story of the insidious work of German agents in this country. William Desmond in "Life's a Funny Proposition" was a big drawing card. The popular Irishman is sure to draw big.

THE Castle theatre in South Bend put on Tom Moore in "Go West, Young Man," which has proven a wonderful picture wherever it has been shown.

MILDRED HARRIS in her vehicle, "Borrowed Clothes," proved the best picture put on during the week at the Auditorium in South Bend. The Lois Weber production was regarded by the managers as a good bill. A special appeal was made for women to attend the matinees, when "Hide and Seek, Detectives," was also shown.

"VIRTUOUS WIVES" and "Riddle Gawn" were considered good bills at the Orpheum during the week in Gary. These pictures were run in connection with a short vaudeville sketch.

"THE EYES OF THE WORLD" played to large crowds in the Gary theatre, special prices being charged, but which did not prevent the picture from going over big.

THE "Heart of Humanity," starring Dorothy Phillips, filled the bill for four days at the Art theatre in Gary during the week.

HAROLD LOCKWOOD in one of his latest pictures, "The Great Romance," and Vivian Martin in "Unclaimed Goods," took well at the Bucklen theatre in Elkhart.

THE Family theatre played Irene Castle in "The Mysterious Client," William S. Hart in "The Devil's Double" and Charlie Chaplin in "Shoulder Arms" during the past week in Elkhart. Hart's picture packed the house.

THE main attraction of the movie world in Whiting during the week was Annette Kellermann in "Queen of the Seas." The picture went over big, the fans claiming it one of the best pictures and most sensational shown in some time.

THE "Fighting Roosevelts," showing the life and works of Theodore Roosevelt from the cradle to the White House, were shown at the Starland in Michigan City last Friday. The timeliness of the subject drew the fans to the picture, which was shown at the usual prices.

THE Garden theatre played to large crowds in "Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots," showing Constance Talmadge at her best. Michigan City moviegoers were well pleased with the production.

Here and There in Fond du Lac

THE Henry Boyle theatre in Fond du Lac, Wis., on February 17 and 18 presented "Pals First," the picture featuring Harold Lockwood, the well-known actor who fell a victim to the "flu." Mr. Lockwood has long been a favorite with Fond du Lac audiences, having been seen here frequently in the Metro pictures at the Idea.

MANAGER VOLLERT, of the Henry Boyle theatre, has booked "The Birth of a Race," the new big special, for a March engagement, the exact dates not having been decided on.

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN and Beverly Bayne drew splendid audiences at the Idea on Monday and Tuesday, February 10 and 11, in "The Poor Rich Man," their first picture since their marriage.

THE presentation of the second episode of "The Lure of the Circus" at the Idea on Friday, February 14, made new friends and strengthened the bonds established with old ones the previous week. In the opinion of Manager Vollert "The Lure of the Circus" fully meets all expectations and will be a good card.

LILA LEE scored a triumph at the Bijou Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, February 10, 11 and 12, in "The Secret Garden," her new photoplay based on Frances Hodgson Burnett's celebrated novel by the same name.

THE Bijou theatre offered an attraction extraordinary on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, February 13, 14 and 15, presenting Marguerite Clark in Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin." The engagement was opened with a fierce storm raging, but the lure of Topsy and Little Eva brought out the crowds just the same.

"OUR TEDDY," the Roosevelt picture first christened "The Fighting Roosevelt," will be presented at the Bijou on April 7, 8 and 9. Manager Smith has already outlined an extensive publicity campaign for this attraction, which he expects will go over "big."

BILLIE BURKE in her latest Paramount photoplay, "In Pursuit of Polly," topped one of the most interesting and delightful film programs Manager Ainsworth has offered at the Orpheum in some time, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, February 10, 11 and 12. The Burke picture wasn't the only choice morsel on the program either. It included Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew in their first effort since their return from the speaking stage, "Romance and Rings," which was characterized by just good, wholesome, laugh-making fun.

THE Orpheum bill for Sunday, February 16, consisted of a double program of merit, Ruth Clifford in "The Cabaret Girl" and Smiling Bill Parsons in "Bill's Fortune."

Condensed News of Flint

JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD, Owosso, Mich., author, left his home February 14 to go to Calgary, Alberta, where the new plant of the Shipman-Curwood Feature Production Company, capitalized at $750,000, is to be located.

NELL SHIPMAN will play the leads in several pictures adapted from stories by Mr. Curwood, and Ernest Shipman will be the producer.

THEDA BARA in "Salome" was the attraction at the Strand theatre for three days beginning February 17. Manager Matt put on a heavy advertising campaign for this production, which included a half-page newspaper advertisement run the Saturday before the showing of the picture. In this ad. he gave the complete review of the picture by Peter Milne, which appeared in MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

"THE STILL ALARM" was the attraction at the Orpheum February 18, 19 and 20.

"THE GREATEST THING IN LIFE" was the attraction at the Garden theatre February 17, 18 and 19. A special program of music was provided for the production. "We stake our reputation on this," was one of the convincing lines Manager Momand used in his advertising.

THE WEST COAST

Communications Pertaining to "West Coast" Section Should Be Sent to Our
LOS ANGELES REPRESENTATIVE Telephone Pico 780 618 WRIGHT & CALLENDER BLDG.

Sol Lesser Secures M. J. Cohen as Director of Exploitation

M. J. COHEN, who resigned last week from the General Film Company has become associated with the All Star Features Distributors, Inc., in the capacity of director of exploitation. Mr. Cohen says that he will have full charge of the exploiting of the pictures which Mr. Lesser secures.

His first efforts are being directed to "Mickey," which will be run here in the near future. All the "A" boards in the city which have been used exclusively in announcements relating to the army, navy and marine corps, carried a Mickey picture and the line, "For Quick Action, the U. S. Marines and Mickey."

There has been some readjustment of the force on the All Star, which indicates the inauguration of a vigorous campaign for business. .Charles Thall, well known on the Coast and formerly from Chicago, becomes manager of the exchange.

Elmer Benjamin will take care of the city business, Joe Wolf will handle the inside work and Al Williams, formerly a salesman. now has full charge of the shipping department.

Jack Brehaney continues as manager of the "Hearts of the World." Three companies of these have left since the epidemic was declared at an end and others are preparing to leave.

Sol Lesser has recently purchased "The Real Roosevelt," "The Spreading Eagle" and "Yankee Doodle in Berlin." The later is a comedy and it is expected to run at least four weeks in this city at one of the legitimate theatres at a decided advance in scale of prices.

Graeper on Portland Censor Board to Succeed William Spencer

WILLIAM A. GRAEPER, manager of the Union Avenue theatre, Portland, Ore., has been appointed a member of the motion picture censorship board by Mayor Baker, of Portland. He succeeds William Spencer, who resigned.

The board is now composed of Mr. Graeper and C. M. Hill, manager of Famous Players-Lasky, representing the film industry; Mrs. Millie R. Trumbell, of the Child Labor Commission; Mrs. G. J. Frankel, in charge of the Women's Protective Division, and J. Fred Larson, L. Krause and Mrs. H. L. Vose, representing the general public.

During 1918 the board reviewed 167 subjects, 515 reels being scrutinized by the board, sitting as an appeal body from the judgment of viewers, or being requested by viewers to decide puzzling questions. Fourteen eliminations were made and one picture of the "white slave" variety was condemned. Three other films, condemned by viewers, were passed by the board, thus sustaining the theatre owners.

San Francisco Has Record Business for Sunday Show

EVERY theatre in San Francisco made a clean-up on Sunday, February 9. The early part of the day was threatening after heavy rains of the night before, and the majority of people who make Sunday excursions into the country in their machines remained at home. In the afternoon it cleared up and the people flocked to the theatres.

The crowds everywhere about the theatre entrances, and there was not a one that did not turn away people at some time during the day, are taken as an evidence that all fear of the "flu" has vanished and that the people are going to make up for lost time.

All house records at the Tivoli and also at the T & D theatre, Oakland, were broken, and while no other theatre makes this report, both the Strand and Rialto as well as the California, Portola and Alhambra did a better business than for several months.

Woman Exhibitors Avoid Panic in Theatre in Butte Fire

ACCORDING to reports from Butte, Mont., fire in a building adjoining the Imperial theatre at Anaconda last week might have caused somewhat of a panic in that house had it not been for the cool manner in which the ticket seller, Mrs. D. C. Scott, handled the situation. She refused to sell any more tickets and no persons were permitted to enter the house for fear that anyone so doing might spread alarm within. She also carefully saw that all exits were open so that if an alarm was required the theatregoers could emerge quickly and without confusion.

THE WEST COAST

Rocky Mountain Screen Club Elects Officers

AT the last regular meeting of the Rocky Mountain Screen Club the following well-known film men were elected as members of the new board of directors:

H. T. Nolan, H. E. Huffman, H. B. Fish, John Thompson, Joe Ashby, Ward E. Scott, A. G. Edwards and F. B. Culp, all of Denver; Frank R. Kelly, Salida; C. E. Marquand, Longmont; A. R. Anderson, Rawlins, and R. J. Morrison, of Aspen, Colo.

The new board will hold a meeting in the near future for the election of officers.

The club has resumed its noonday luncheons at the Kenmark Hotel every Tuesday, as well as its regular activities, which were suspended for several months on account of the influenza epidemic.. They have recently been actively engaged in aiding in the campaign to defeat the proposed 5 per cent film tax, and their work has resulted in strong protests being forwarded to members of Congress by all prominent exhibitors in Denver territory.

An interesting feature recently inaugurated at these weekly luncheons is the plan to invite some prominent man or men who are representative leaders in business or professional lines as the club's guest on a specified date. At the meeting February 10 Rev. Brainerd, a Protestant minister, and Father William O'Ryan, a Catholic clergyman, gladly accepted the invitation and pledged publicity and indorsement of such pictures as they considered worthy of their recommendation.

Heard in Los Angeles Town

A. BARETTI, formerly associated with the Victory and Garrick theatres in Los Angeles, has been engaged as salesman for Vitagraph, according to announcement by Branch Manager W. H. Hepburn. California will be his territory. With the addition of Mr. Baretti to his sales staff, Mr. Hepburn now has three road representatives.

SPECIAL previews of "The Common Cause," J. Stuart Blackton's superproduction for Vitagraph, were given by the Los Angeles office last week to a number of exhibitors, among whom were representatives of the Alhambra, California and Kinema theatres. A special preview will be given soon for Sid Grauman, of Grauman's theatre, it is announced, before the production is booked in Los Angeles.

T. W. CHATBURN, western division manager for Vitagraph, with headquarters in Chicago, after a few weeks' visit in Los Angeles, left on Friday, February 7, for Chicago. Just before leaving for the East in company with Branch Manager W. H. Hepburn, he made a flying visit to Santa Barbara. He said that business in the Los Angeles territory is steadily improving and that Vitagraph has "arranged for some big things in this section within the next few months."

"WHEN A GIRL LOVES," featuring Mildred Harris, has been booked for an indefinite run at the Superba theatre, beginning February 23. The play was produced by Lois Weber, and the Superba management is arranging for some unique advertising in connection with the presentation of the play.

MISS M. BANE, for three years with the Universal Exchange as bookkeeper and cashier, resigned her position on Saturday, February 8, announcing that she intends to take up a more "important position in life." She is going to be married on February 20, but the name of the groom has been kept a secret.

THE theatres at Taft, Cal., after being closed two weeks because of influenza, were reopened Saturday, February 8.

THE Triangle play, "Restless Souls," with Alma Rubens, is playing at the Alhambra theatre during the week of February 9. The story was provided by Cosmo Hamilton, and is said to be one of the best Triangle pictures exhibited here in several weeks.

DAVID BERSHON, branch manager of the Universal Exchange, who has been ill for four weeks with influenza, returned to his desk on Wednesday, February 5. "Some people may joke about this influenza, but I am here to tell you it's no joke," Bershon said. "I am glad to be out again. I'll say so." During his illness Assistant Manager Theuerkauf was in charge of the office.

"HEARTS OF HUMANITY," the big Universal production starring Dorothy Phillips, which had a successful run at the Broadway theatre in New York, is booked for an indefinite run at the Kinema theatre, beginning February 16. During the period the picture is being shown at the Kinema the house will be conducted under the direction of the Universal company, it is announced by Branch Manager Bershon of the Universal exchange. A special prologue has been prepared, and the orchestra will be augmented while special music will be provided. The admission prices for the duration of the picture's run will be advanced to from 25 cents to 75 cents.

What They Say in Seattle

SEATTLE motion picture managers had the pleasure of another vacation. This one, however, was not caused by the "flu," but because of a general strike in which all Seattle union men were supposed to walk out. The strike failed. The operators were compelled to quit whether they wanted to or not, as the balance of theatre organizations voted to go out.

THE same strike, tying up theatres, street cars, lights, etc., was to be held in Tacoma, and while the shipbuilders did walk out over there just a few of the unions walked out for a day. The operators and theatre unions seemed to have either more nerve than the Seattle unions, or honor, as they would not break their contracts.

FILM ROW was able to cope with the situation as to transportation of films to the depot and other cities in the neighborhood when they engaged truckmen who were willing to deliver the films either in the night or in the daytime. As transportation was shut off for forty-eight hours on some of the electric lines, Manager Korpel, of the World film exchange, decided that during this time he would engage a machine to take his help home every night and bring them down in the mornings. This idea was followed by other exchanges. However, no exchange was closed.

FRIENDS of W. T. McCormick, which includes all of Seattle's "Film Row," the Goldwyn office, and motion picture managers all over the Northwest, were sorry to see him sever his connections with the film business and leave the Row for a ranch in the Colorado mountains. Mr. McCormick is not only a pioneer film and exchange man but is one of the men who helped build up Seattle's Film Row and worked for the life of the Northwest Film Board of Trade. In September, 1917, he opened the office for Goldwyn in Seattle and has been with this concern ever since as chief booker and office manager. Before entering the exchange end of the game Mac, as his friends call him, was manager of different motion picture houses in Texas. Among the cities in which he operated were Crescent and Austin, Tex. Mr. McCormick will be succeeded by E. C. Kirkpatrick, who is connected with the Goldwyn office as salesman and who has made good.

W. F. CODE, of Nome, is taking a furlough for a few months in Seattle and will not go back till things pick up there.

H. H. HURN, who before taken to Camp Lewis was manager of the Northwest Triangle office, has been honorably discharged as Corporal Hurn and is now assistant manager of Fox's Northwest office.

JACK LANNON, of the Greater Features company, announces that his concern has contracted for the new five-reel Shorty Hamilton Western dramas.

MANAGER MEAD, of the Seattle Universal office, announces that he has received more of the famous two-reel Western Bisons and that his office will release the Nestor comedies.

THE single reel Prizma Master pictures in natural colors have been placed in the Clemmer theatre by the World film office of Seattle. The highest price ever paid for any single reeler in Seattle was paid for these by Mr. Clemmer.

BABY MARIE OSBORNE, who appeared in person at the Clemmer, was received with open arms by the public. She proved to her audience that although the youngest genuine star on the screen she is the only child star requiring no directing while making a scene.

THE fight against the film rental tax is progressing very nicely in Seattle and the Northwest. Everyone seems to be interested in it and is willing to help tell Congress they don't want it.

In Portland Film Circles

PATHE is to again make Portland a distributing point for film, returning after an absence of more than a year. B. J. Sperry, Oregon manager, announces that on or before March 1 a Pathe exchange will be installed at 392 Burnside Street, the former home of Pathe in the Rose City, with a full force consisting of cashier, booker, bookkeeper, inspector, shipper, billing clerk and road man.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY, Exhibitors' Mutual, Universal, General and Pathe are the big film concerns to have exchanges in Portland when Pathe is once again re-established.

THE Oregon territory is almost free from the "flu" ban, with no more than ten small towns so afflicted as to force the closing of theatres. Thus conditions are rapidly driving back to normal, with indications pointing to the biggest Spring for exhibitor and distributor that the district has ever enjoyed. Portland's motion picture prosperity is practically as great now as before the first "flu" ban in October. All restrictions as to seating capacity, standing room, etc., have been removed, and Saturday and Sunday, the "clean-up" days, are just as big as ever.

GRAHAM THORNTON HOLTZCLAW, one of the most active of Portland's film exhibitors, and a strenuous American, has applied to the County Court for permission to change his name to Woodlaw. "Holtz" is German for "wood," and the Teutonic name, "Holtzclaw," is most abominable to the Portlander, particularly in view of the fact that the first Holtzclaw, a German, came to America in the early eighteenth century and since then English and Scotch blood have dominated the family.

JOHN A. JENNINGS, owner of the Sunset theatre, and the only individual theatre property owner in Portland's downtown theatre district, has made another switch in admission price, charging 15 cents at all times and absorbing the war tax himself. Heretofore the price was 15 cents for matinees and 20 cents for Sundays and holidays. Mr. Jennings has been showing second-run pictures exclusively, showing many of the Fairbanks, Harts and Chaplins with much success. His theatre is the most centrally located in the city, right in the heart of the retail district, where more people pass his doors than any other point in town. His theatre is small, however, seating but 500.

Seattle Exchanges and Accessory Firms

EXHIBITORS FILM EXCHANGE
INCORPORATED
Member of First National Exhibitors Circuit
NOW BOOKING
SHOULDER ARMS — A DOG'S LIFE
MY FOUR YEARS IN GERMANY
TARZAN OF THE APES — ROMANCE OF TARZAN
PERSHING'S CRUSADERS — THE STILL ALARM
ITALY'S FLAMING FRONT — RAFFLES, Etc., Etc.
COMING!
ANITA STEWART SUPERFEATURES — MARY PICKFORD SUPERPICTURES
1200 FOURTH AVE., SEATTLE, WASH. F. V. FISHER, Manager

GREATER FEATURES COMPANY
2020 THIRD AVENUE
Phone—Elliott 941
SEATTLE, WASH.
Starting on Third Year—Now Batting 600%
Short Reel Subjects — Also Features — JACK LANNON, Owner

R. C. BELDING, who left the projection room of the Strand theatre to join the Marines, is back on the job once more. He spent ten months at Mare Island.

D. K. SHANKS, Pacific Coast auditor for Famous Players-Lasky, was a recent Portland visitor.

HARRY HUNTER, of Paramount-Artcraft, has been touring Eastern Oregon on a most successful sales trip.

A NEW theatre is to be built at Kelso, Wash., according to reports. The town already has one house, but another one is under projection.

FOREST GROVE, ORE., is to have two theatres soon, for a

Jack Pickford is shortly to be seen in "In Wrong," which First National will distribute

Los Angeles Exchanges & Supply Houses

UNIVERSAL FILM EXCHANGES, INC.
Successor to California Film Exchange
DAVID BERSHON, MANAGER.
Distributors of Universal, Jewel and Lois Weber Productions, Blue Bird Photoplays, Century and Lyons & Moran Comedies
822 S. OLIVE ST.

LOUIS HYMAN
Manager
ALL STAR FEATURE DISTRIBUTORS, Inc.
514 West Eighth Street

VITAGRAPH
Southern California and Arizona
W. H. HEPBURN, Branch Manager
Knickerbocker Building
643 S. Olive Street

WANTED Used Theatre Chairs, Motion Picture Projectors, and everything pertaining to motion pictures. Buying from us saves you 25 to 50 per cent.
MOVIE EMPORIUM
Calmy Brothers, 752 So. Olive St.

J. SLIPPER & COMPANY
PICTURE MACHINES
Simplex, Motiograph, Baird
Minusa Screens
Hertner Transverters
Theatre Supplies
728 So. Olive Street
Send for Catalog

number of people are investigating the house which has been closed for many months.

MISCHA GUTERSON, Russian orchestra leader, brought to the Northwest at the opening of the Coliseum theatre in Seattle, and more recently in charge of the Clemmer theatre music, is to show his two pictures, "Mickey" and "The Grain of Dust," at the People's theatre in Portland. For the showing of "Mickey" he will lead a big orchestra.

Spokane News and Views

INDICATIONS are that Spokane will have another motion picture house. The Hippodrome theatre, showing pictures and vaudeville, is negotiating for the Auditorium theatre here and the building vacated will be used for pictures exclusively. The Hippodrome has been showing a five-reel Goldwyn feature, a Pathe serial alternating with a comedy and the Gaumont Graphic at each of its shows regularly.

TO his wonderful dramatic work in "The Spoilers" and "The Tale of Two Cities" William Farnum adds another screen triumph in his portrayal of Jean Valjean in "Les Miserables," a Fox production, which packed the Clemmer theatre all week.

GLADYS BROCKWELL'S dramatic ability deserves a much better role than that given her in "The Call of the Soul," the story of a wronged girl, a Fox production, which showed at the Class A.

GERALDINE FARRAR, in "Hell Cat," was the first offering under the Goldwyn regime at the Casino. The picture took well, drawing record audiences to the theatre during its four days' engagement. J. Warren Kerrigan in "Prisoners of the Pines," a romantic drama of the Wisconsin-Canadian woods, followed the Farrar picture.

BILLIE BURKE was another of the galaxy of picture stars to be seen on the Spokane screens last week, appearing in her latest picture vehicle, "The Make-Believe Wife," a Paramount offering. Charlie Chaplin in "Shoulder Arms" at the Majestic, William Russell in "Terror of the Range" at the Rex, Douglass Fairbanks in "American Aristocracy" at the Lyric were other film attractions at Spokane theatres.

Flickers on the Screens of Butte

HUNDREDS of miners visited Butte theatres on the afternoon of February 8, the first day of the general walk-out at the local copper mines. The men, some 10,000 in the entire camp, were idle.

"THE COMMON CAUSE" opened February 9 at the Ansonia at regular prices and to excellent business. This great Vitagraph feature made good in Butte.

G. M. COLLODAY, Vitagraph territory man in Montana, is here on a short visit. He will soon make a two-weeks' tour of the State booking the feature, "The Common Cause."

HARRY C. ARTHUR, with the United Pictures Theatres' corporation, at Seattle, spent several days in Butte the past week. Business picking up along the coast is what he reported.

"THE LIGHT OF THE WESTERN SKIES" was the first United Picture Theatre corporation's product to show in Butte. It was at the American the past week. It drew and it pleased.

THE first local advertising by moving pictures in connection with a Paramount-Bray Pictograph was done the past week at the Rialto theatre by the Aetna Life Insurance company at Butte. The title of the eight-minute run was "Taking Chances," depicting a lesson in safety. One thousand tickets were distributed by the company. Credit for the idea belongs to the New York office of the insurance company.

ALBERT HEINECKE, of Lewistown, manager of the Judith, and Harry Ervin, of Harlowton, owner of the American theatre, were in Butte this week on mining business. They are interested with Dave Trepp, of Butte, in a silver-lead property near Silver Peak, Nev., which they plan developing on a large scale the coming Summer.

In and Around Denver

MANAGER WARD E. SCOTT, of Pathe, is out with the statement that January was the biggest month in the history of the local exchange, and that the first week of February was the biggest week on record. It is possible, he says, that this month's business may exceed January.

H. P. BROWN, for several years manager of the Las Vegas Amusement company at Las Vegas, and for the past year and a half with the First National Exhibitors' circuit, has recently joined Pathe's sales force. He is covering Southern Colorado and New Mexico.

CHARLES R. GILMORE moved his headquarters this week to the World exchange, under the new arrangement between the United Picture Theatres and the World Film corporation.

MAURICE WOLF, until recently manager for World at Salt Lake City, arrived this week to take charge of the local World exchange.

MANAGER BRIGGS is much pleased with the big reception accorded three American pictures on Curtis street the week of February 9, all of which are drawing big crowds at the Strand theatre. Manager Megahan, of the Strand, says that "The Amazing Imposter," which started a three-days' run on Sunday, has broken all records. Hundreds were turned away. William Russell in "All the World to Nothing," showing Wednesday and Thursday, and "Mollie of the Follies," starring Margarita Fisher, in a two-days' engagement at the end of the week, also went over with a bang.

CHARLES R. GILMORE, of United Pictures, and H. Bradley Fish, local manager for Goldwyn, report a fine time at the convention of the Idaho Exhibitors' League at Boise. President Herman J. Brown is a patron of both Goldwyn and United.

MANAGER FISH states that a very interesting program was well handled during the two-days' meeting February 6 and 7, and the convention was well attended. At the close of the final session all of those present adjourned to Nampa as the guests of Mr. Brown at a banquet at the Dewey Palace hotel. He also states that Idaho is the wettest dry State he has encountered so far.

AFTER the banquet the guests were taken to Mr. Brown's Majestic theatre, where under the direction of Manager Bickert, of the Majestic, several fast boxing contests were staged. At the conclusion of the athletic program they were treated to a private screening of several recent popular features shipped from one of the Salt Lake exchanges for the occasion. Gilmore and Fish both state that the Idaho exhibitors head the list as royal entertainers.

PAUL KRETSCHMAR has purchased the Emblem theatre, at Thirty-first and Williams street. This is one of the oldest suburban houses in Denver. It has been closed for some time on account of the "flu" and is scheduled to reopen February 17.

A LETTER from W. H. Bradley, owner of the Atlas at Cheyenne, says he is thinking seriously of closing the Atlas and remodeling his Capitol avenue theatre, which has been closed for some time on account of the epidemic.

C. H. BURNHAM, a jeweler at Antioch, Neb., has purchased the U. S. A. theatre, formerly operated by Mrs. Ida Edmunds.

With Los Angeles Exchanges and Theatres

J. B. MASON, manager of the Dream theatre at San Diego, was a visitor in Los Angeles on Saturday, February 8. Among some of the exchanges that he visited were All-Star Features, Universal, Paramount, First National and Mutual. He said that since the influenza has been on the wane in San Diego business has increased fully 100 per cent.

MANAGER WHITSON, of the Plaza theatre at San Diego, was also a recent visitor to Los Angeles.

HARVEY GAUSMAN, road representative for First National, was on Saturday, February 8, attacked for his second time this winter with influenza. He had just returned from a trip through Southern California.

BRANCH MANAGER W. E. KNOTTS of the First National exchange announces that Anita Stewart in "Virtuous Wives" played to capacity business at the Florence theatre in Pasadena during the week ending February 9. Manager D. H. Chuhmann, of the theatre, did some unique advertising in connection with the showing of the film. The picture also had a successful run at the Liberty theatre in Long Beach. It has been booked for an early showing at the Superba theatre in San Diego.

ROAD men representing various film exchanges in Los Angeles returning from Riverside are unanimous in their comment that the Loring theatre, recently opened in that city by Merrill and Howe, is one of the most beautiful motion picture temples in California. Special compliments were thrown at the managers of the house this week by representatives of Mutual, Universal, Vitagraph and First National exchanges.

NORMA TALMADGE in "The Heart of Wetona," an Indian drama, was the card at Tally's theatre for the week beginning February 10. A special Indian atmosphere for the production was created by T. L. Tally when he had special sets painted, provided Indian music and costumed all his girl ushers in Indian garb. A song written recently with the same title as the picture was one of the features of the program.

THE first showing of Kinograms, the newest innovation in color films, will be made at Clune's Auditorium during the week of February 10, it was announced by Branch Manager Hancock of the World exchange.

L. D. PURDY, Metro road representative, plans to leave for a trip through Arizona during the latter part of February, where he will centre his efforts on writing contracts for Nazimova and Lockwood special productions. According to Branch Manager A. B. Lamb all Nazimova pictures are in great demand with the exhibitors in the Los Angeles territory.

HARRY LUSTIG, Metro special representative for the five Metro exchanges in the West, is expected to return to Los Angeles on or about February 15, after a three weeks' trip which included Salt Lake City, Denver, Seattle, Portland and San Francisco. Immediately upon his arrival in Los Angeles he and Branch Manager Lamb plan another whirlwind trip, which, however, will be among the exhibitors of this territory.

N. O. EMERT, a prominent exhibitor of Arizona, was a visitor in Los Angeles on February 8.

THE Mutual offices announced that for the week of February 10 two of its releases were being shown in first run theatres in Los Angeles. They were "Hoop-La," at the Kinema, and "The Eleventh Commandment," with Lucile Lee Stewart, at the Victory.

GEORGE SLATER, formerly city salesman with the Fox exchange, has been engaged by Branch Manager B. E. Loper to take a similar position with Select. He succeeds E. H. Silcocks, who recently resigned, but as yet has not announced his future plans.

"COMMON CLAY," the seven-reel production, with Fannie Ward as the star, will be shown soon in Los Angeles, the initial print of the subject having been received by the Pathe exchange. Branch Manager Tate announces that already many inquiries as to booking dates have been received by him.

(Continued on page 7)

DUHEM
MOTION PICTURE MFG. CO.
Films Made to Order
EXPERT DEVELOPING, PRINTING AND COLORING
CAMERA OUT-FITS AND RAW FILM SUPPLIED

CAMERA MEN SENT ANYWHERE

985 Market Street, San Francisco, California

WINFIELD-KERNER COMPANY
Studio Lighting
325-327 East Sixth St. Los Angeles
Phones: Pico 2646-12215

SLIDES Title Cards and Film
L. A. SLIDE & FILM CO.
122 WEST THIRD ST., LOS ANGELES

THEATRE SETTINGS
We Have Installed Hundreds From $100 to $10,000 Each
BEST SCREENS, SCENERY
EDW. H. FLAGG SCENIC CO.
Largest in the World
Los Angeles San Francisco

Telephone: Hollywood 1290
GEORGE W. CHAPMAN CO.
Incorporated
EVERYTHING IN MOVING PICTURE PROPS.
Specialties: Miniature Sets and Plaster Breakaways
5155 SANTA MONICA BOULEVARD
LOS ANGELES, CAL.

News of the Week in San Francisco

NEWTON E. LEVI, of the Mutual, says that the "Cannibal" film, the second section of which is running at the Strand this week, has proved such a success that the film is booked up solid for the next two months. Mrs. Jack London, widow of the famous writer, will attend the Strand this week, coming down from her home at Glen Ellen to see the "Cannibal" film. Mrs. London herself is seen on the film run in this second section. She is shown on the pier in San Francisco when the adventurers start on their journey wishing them "Bon Voyage." Another feature which the Mutual is about to spring is "The Eleventh Commandment," with Lucile Lee Stewart as star. Mr. Levi says that the theatre managers are already manifesting a great deal of interest about booking dates.

C. E. SCHURTLEF, who up to February 1 was sales manager for the Hodkinson Service, has secured a 90-day option on thirty-eight of Jack London's stories for scenarios and is also in negotiation with Peter B. Keine for the scenario rights of his stories. Who is associated with Mr. Schurtlef in the deal is not known.

HARRY CAREY, the Universal star, who is featured in "Roped," appeared in person in San Francisco four days, from February 11 to 14 inclusive. During his stay here he appeared at the Lincoln, the Broadway, the Flag and also at the Broadway in Oakland.

"HEARTS OF HUMANITY," one of the Universal features is meeting with great success. It is now booked in practically all the first run towns and in all cases is showing at advanced prices. The Universal is receiving for this picture from 25 to 50 per cent. more for rentals than the "Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin" brought. The exhibitors are anxiously awaiting the opening in San Francisco on March 9, when the picture will be shown at the Strand at advanced prices.

CHIEF OF POLICE WHITE, of San Francisco, and all the bluecoats of the city who could get off at the time were the guests of honor of the Tivoli management on Tuesday evening, February 11, to witness the "Midnight Patrol," which was released at that theatre by the Select for the week of February 9. The story tells the tale of San Francisco Chinatown, and as well as the Chinese quarters the water front police station is shown, and other views about San Francisco. The picture is laudatory of the good work done by the police in the arrest of opium smugglers and other malefactors, and during its course a tong war in Chinatown is staged. As such a war is at this moment in progress it adds materially to the interest of the picture. The chief is down for a talk to the audience on Tuesday night, and as a prologue to the film some of the regulation police work, making rescues from the bay, etc., will be shown. The Select Corporation is making an effort to have the author, Dennison Clift present on either Tuesday or Wednesday night and address the audience. An invitation has been extended to Mr. Clift at Los Angeles by a wire from Harry Lee Knappen, manager of the Select, and his reply is looked for during the day.

"THE BELLE OF NEW YORK," which was popular a score of years ago as a musical comedy, is being shown at the Hippodrome, starring Marion Davies. The local office of Select reports that last week was the biggest in a business way that it has ever had. The receipts of the office for rentals were several hundreds of dollars in excess of any other week.

INFORMATION has reached the local office of the Select that the corporation is to have the booking of Olive Thomas, who made her first success with the Triangle and is being exploited by Myron Selznick. A letter just received at Select headquarters is taken to indicate that these films will be released through Select. The first of these pictures is "Upstairs and Down."

TOM MOORE, some members of his company and his director, Harry Beaumont, are in San Francisco to take some shots in Golden Gate Park for a picture which is being made for the Goldwyn. It is understood that the picture will be known as "One of the Finest," although the name has not yet been officially announced.

GLEN HURST who, with his brother, controls all the theatres in Reno, Nevada, is visiting Film Row this week, making arrangements for the future, which he believes is going to be bright in the Sage Brush state.

F. L. BROWNE, formerly manager of the Alhambra theatre, has made connections with the World Film Corporation. He will act as salesman.

KINODRAMS, the new twice-a-week news reel, is going into the California theatre. Floyd St. John looks for a big business for the World Corporation in this feature.

WHEN Gladys Brockwell, the Fox star, was appearing in person at the Rialto, she was introduced by M. J. Cohen, who made an appeal for the Armenian sufferers. Miss Brockwell then gave a photograph of herself for every quarter of a dollar contributed. By this method a large amount was realized for the sufferers.

M. E. CORY, with the Select Pictures Corporation, is responsible for a story that when a motion picture house recently opened in Chichagoff, Alaska, a world's record of attendance was made. The population of the town, counting every man, woman and child is 217. The initial performance was attended by just 217. Not a soul in town missed the first performance.

SOME changes are being made among the organists of the prominent theatres. Eddie Horton, of the Strand, has gone to the California, taking the place of Edward Benedict, who has gone to Tacoma. Organist Teague, of the Rialto, has gone to the Colideum, succeeding William Diamond. Gordon Bretland, formerly of the Tivoli, has gone to the Kinema at Fresno.

For Sale or Trade—One Studio Model A Erneman Motion Picture Camera with leather case and precision tilting and panorama tripod. Outfit used very little. Want to trade for a Simplex Projector. Any model older than 1916 not considered. Must have motor drive attachment. Orpheum Theatre, Twin Falls, Idaho.

Advertise Here—
Where It Will Pay You
Make Us Prove It!

FOR SALE
100 Opera Chairs—
Cheap
ELMER E. COTTLE
Gilroy, California

Brief News of San Diego

MANAGER W. E. JONES, for the showing of "The Forbidden City," featuring Norma Talmadge, fixed up his lobby at the Superba with a decidedly Chinese style of decorations and had his girl ushers dressed in Chinese costumes. With Chinese airs by the house organist, the entire effect was pronouncedly oriental.

THE CHAIN OF BLUE, the house organ published each Wednesday by the Broadway Amusement Company, is making a hit with the homecoming service men by giving free advertising space for the soldiers, sailors and marines in their efforts to secure positions in the city or immediate vicinity.

THE Common Council of the city, following the lifting of the "flu" ban on various places of business and amusement houses, authorized the city auditor to credit the proprietors of the theatres with as many days, when paying their next quarterly licenses, as had been lost during the forced closing under the health department's orders. This step was taken in view of the fact that the city attorney had ruled that a cash refund of license money under the circumstances would not be legal.

MANAGER RUSSELL ROGERS of the Plaza found a good drawing card in "The Temple of Dusk," featuring Sessue Hayakawa. The lobby pictures were framed in bamboo, and a large picture of the star in the centre called the public's attention to the oriental subject.

TOM MOORE, in "Go West, Young Man," was the Broadway's attraction for the week. At the Pickwick Theda Bara was seen in "The She-Devil."

With Los Angeles Exchanges and Theatres

(Continued from page 5)

W. J. MULLANEY, road salesman for Pathe, has returned from a successful trip to Arizona.

C. E. ELLIOTT, who handles Select specials in this territory, was taken ill on Thursday, February 6. It is not known at this writing whether he had influenza.

THE United offices, which until February 9 were in the General Film offices, were on Monday, February 10, removed to the World Film offices on film row. To make way for the new force, the World offices were completely overhauled, new partitions and new offices being installed. Manager Lentz of the United says that his company is planning some big things for the future in conjunction with the World Film plans. T. E. Hancock is manager of the World film offices and R. W. McKinney is assistant branch manager.

H. J. ROBERTS, branch manager of the Film Clearing House, announces that "Her Mistake," featuring Evelyn Nesbit and Russell Thaw, which played at Ray's Garden theatre during the week ending February 9, proved a great drawing card and demonstrated the soundness of the 10, 20 and 30 plan under which the Film Clearing House is releasing its pictures. Mr. Roberts has just returned from a visit to Bakersfield, where he reports that the Film Clearing House releasing plan is meeting with much favor.

"A ROMANCE OF THE AIR," released by the Film Clearing House, starring Lieut. Bert Hall, the American flying ace, will be shown in Los Angeles at an early date. Lieutenant Hall will make a personal appearance during the showing of the film.

J. SLIPPER & CO. announce that during the showing of D. W. Griffith's two pictures, "The Fall of Babylon" and "The Mother and the Law" at the Kinema theatre, they installed Simplex machines with which the pictures were projected, upon special request from Mr. Griffith.

L. LEROY has bought The Liberty at Carlsbourgh, Wash., from E. Nelson.

P. S. WITTENHILLER will build a new house at Crane, Wash.

W. H. BROWER, of St. Helens, Ore., will open the Houltan theatre.

W. ARLINGTON, of Spokane, has sold his share in The Players' theatre to O. D. Woodward.

AN organization of business men in Dayton, Ore., has taken over the Arcade house.

Directory of San Francisco Exchanges

191 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco — 514 West Eighth Street, Los Angeles

SOL. L. LESSER, President

ALL STAR FEATURES DISTRIBUTORS, Inc.

Official Distributors

U. S. War Features

"AMERICA'S ANSWER" — "PERSHING'S CRUSADERS"
"OUR BRIDGE OF SHIPS" — "OFFICIAL WAR REVIEW"

OUR SPECIAL SUPER FEATURES

Include

"THE STRUGGLE EVERLASTING" — "INTOLERANCE"
"THE ACCIDENTAL HONEYMOON" — "THE STILL ALARM"
"THE GRAIN OF DUST" — "NINE-TENTHS OF THE LAW"
"RAFFLES" — "THE CRUCIBLE OF LIFE"
"BILLY WEST COMEDIES"

"GAUMONT NEWS" and "GRAPHIC"
"TIMELY TOPICS" from Literary Digest

TURNER and DAHNKEN

BRANCH OF

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS' CIRCUIT, Inc.,

Music Rolls Exchanged—Supplies of All Kinds

134 Golden Gate Avenue — San Francisco, California

ALTA SLIDES

Best Slides and Film for every purpose

24 HOUR SLIDE SERVICE

ALTA SLIDE CO.

1028 Market St. 61 G. G. Ave.
SAN FRANCISCO.

G. A. METCALFE
Distributor
POWER'S MACHINES—
SPEER CARBONS
117 Golden Gate Avenue
San Francisco, Cal.

M AND R

SOMETHING NEW COMING

730 So. Olive St.
Los Angeles

107 Golden Gate Ave.
San Francisco

BRECK PHOTOPLAY SUPPLY COMPANY

DISTRIBUTORS OF

Simplex Projectors

Theatre Equipment and Supplies

NATIONAL CARBONS

98 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco

C. V. BASCOM, of Sumner, Wash., has sold his house to H. M. Bird.

W. W. VAN METER has opened The Victory in Redmond.

CLEVE SMITH has opened a theatre in Ewan, Wash.

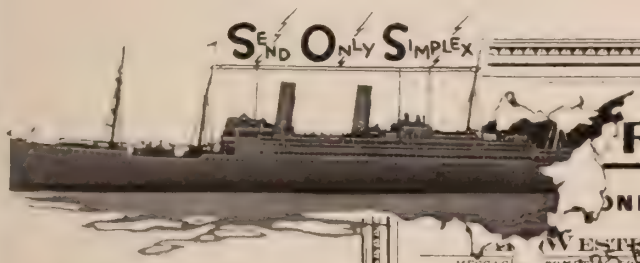
THE Princess theatre, ————, Wash., has been remodeled and the seating capacity increased.

KITTIE GORDON is appearing in person at the Tivoli this week, and also in "Adele," her newest photoplay.

THE symphony orchestra performances on Sunday of the Tivoli and California orchestras are growing in great favor among the music lovers of this city, and they are attracting many new patrons who have not been movie fans in the past.

THE San Francisco Film Board of Trade has been incorporated in order to conduct its business in a legal manner. It is reported that it has accomplished a great deal toward purifying the financial end of the motion picture circulation end and that the exhibitors and exchanges are alike pleased at its workings.

Heart to Heart



Showing how ten minutes of your time can help us —and help you.

¶ The West Coast Edition of Motion Picture News costs us a lot of money. It costs just as much as would a separate publication published locally in Los Angeles or San Francisco. But it's worth it to us—Because it enables us to say that NO OTHER FILM PUBLICATION covers the West Coast as thoroughly, and with such intimate news and gossip as does Motion Picture News.

¶ We have often thought though—What a wonderful West Coast Edition we could get out, how much more money we could spend, how much more Service we could give—If every theatre manager in the West Coast territory sat down one night and wrote a twenty word note to his exchanges and the New York offices telling what the West Coast Edition meant to him because of its crisp, human, local items. Has it ever occurred to you? Why we could break speed limits in Service!

¶ Will you do it? Will you let us know about it? And then watch our smoke!

Simplex

A TIMELY STORY IN THREE PARTS

RCONIGRAM

ONI WIRELESS TELEGRAPH COMPANY
IN CONNECTION WITH WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH COMPANY
MESSAGE ... TRANSMITTED TO GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND AND TO SHIPS AT SEA.

JANUARY 17-1919 191

NO. F N S TIME TIOOPY CHECK CAPE RACE N.F. VIA S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON

SEND THE FOLLOWING MESSAGE "VIA MARCONI" SUBJECT TO THE TERMS AND CONDITIONS PRINTED ON THE BACK HEREOF, WHICH ARE HEREBY AGREED TO

TO PRECISION
317 EAST 34th STREET, NEW YORK

SIMPLEX MACHINES HIGHLY EFFICIENT SALE CONSUMATED PREPARE ONE ADDITIONAL MACHINE FOR POSSIBLE SALE

S. B. ROSE
5.50 P.M.

RECEIVED JAN 17 1919

U. S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON
January 27, 1919.

Precision Machine Co.,
317 East 34th Street,
New York, N. Y.

Attention of Mr. Wm. C. Francke.

Gentlemen:-

I am very glad to inform you that I am able to confirm herewith the purchase of the three Simplex machines to be used on the U. S. S. "George Washington."

As you know, when conveying the Presidential party to Europe we were trying to use two "fliver" projectors, with pathetic results. We determined upon our return to get two real projectors and at once made arrangements with that end in view.

I take this opportunity of saying that we are indeed glad that we did not accept the offer of one concern for two commercial, standard projectors which were to be given us for practically nothing, but that our faith in Simplex was not misplaced.

Please note that check covering cost of the first two machines is ready for you and you may expect check for the third machine just as soon as same is installed.

Thanking you for your very satisfactory service, I am

Yours very truly,
Samuel G. Rose
Gunner (E) U S.N.

PART I

PART II

PART III

NEED WE SAY ANYTHING FURTHER?

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.
317 East 34th St. New York

Not since the night forty-five years ago when "The Two Orphans" was produced in the old Union Square Theatre, has a story of such poignancy and depth of heart interest been given to the public"

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

"The HEART of HUMANITY"

The Picture That Will Live Forever

Allen Holubar's Super-production starring

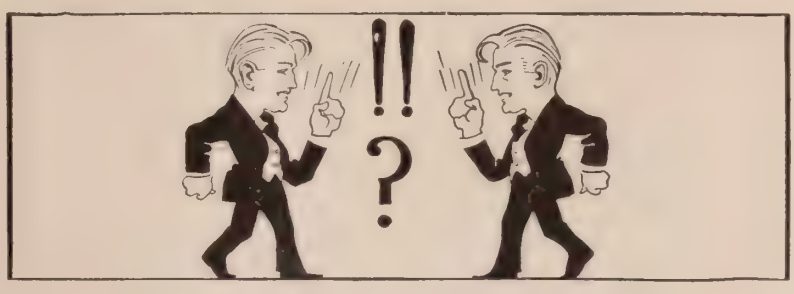
DOROTHY PHILLIPS



Released through JEWEL PRODUCTIONS (INC.)

MARCH 8, 1919

Motion Picture News

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

DOMINATES THE FIELD

ASK YOURSELF THIS QUESTION

Why do eight thousand exhibitors announce "I show Paramount and Artcraft Pictures"?

The answer is easy.

Because that announcement means something to every person who sees it.

They're the only brand names that bring prestige even to the finest of theatres.

Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

VOL. XIX-NO. 10 Entered as Second Class Matter, [illegible], at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3rd, 1879 PRICE 15 CENTS

Published Weekly—$3.00 a year

Chicago — 729 Seventh Avenue, New York — Los Angeles

Because everybody likes her!

WHEN is a Star not a Star? When you have people, even so few as a dozen, who don't like her. You're showing a real Star only when she's some-one whom everybody likes. Mildred Harris fills your theatre simply because everybody from every station in life likes her. Few surroundings could be more sordid than hers in those two famous pictures, "The Price of a Good Time" and "Borrowed Clothes," yet working-women simply flock to see her because her innate refinement justifies attempts to escape her misery. In the same way, Mildred Harris completely satisfies the critical woman of society because, as in that golden drama of the polite world, "For Husbands Only," she is distinctly "of the mode" and because she knows how to wear clothes. In "The Doctor and the Woman," Mildred Harris is the perfect type of America's middle-class girl and naturally counts her admirers by the million. In "When a Girl Loves," she's an Eastern girl who risks her life doing what only a Western girl might be supposed to do, and so wins the hearts of both.

Book Mildred Harris today in these five great Lois Weber triumphs. Give her a week's run. You'll have capacity houses every day and you'll do it for very little over one day's advertising. See your nearest Jewel Exchange for advice and help.

JEWEL Productions INC
1600 Broadway New York City

Adolph Zukor presents

BILLIE BURKE

(By Arrangement with F. Ziegfeld Jr.)

in "Good Gracious Annabelle"

A PARAMOUNT PICTURE

BY CLARE KUMMER DIRECTED BY GEORGE MELFORD

Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION

ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General

NEW YORK

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

ADOLPH ZUKOR Presents

BILLIE BURKE

(by Arrangement with F. Ziegfeld, Jr.)

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

in

"Good Gracious, Annabelle"

A PARAMOUNT PICTURE

A Rollicking Farce for a Bewitching Girl

THAT'S "Good Gracious, Annabelle!" And Billie Burke is just the girl to play it.

It's a merry tale of an irresponsible beauty who was married to a man whose name she didn't know—a rough miner who wore whiskers!

There's a chase after two shares of stock, misunderstandings galore and a heap of genuine fun.

One of Billie Burke's best. That's saying a lot!

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY PICTURES

Adolph Zukor presents
BILLIE BURKE
(By arrangement with F Ziegfeld, Jr.)
in
"Good Gracious Annabelle"
A Paramount Picture
When You Show It—
ADVERTISE Billie Burke. She triumphed in "The Make-Believe Wife" and "In Pursuit of Polly," her most recent Paramount Pictures.
Advertise her beauty, her gowns, her charm, her talent as a comedienne.
Advertise the play—a Broadway success, a farce that made thousands laugh.
Use the advertising accessories. The lithographs are beauties. Let everybody know the glad news that "here's Billie Burke again."
FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK
ARTCRAFT PICTURES

SELZNICK PICTURES

You can do SOME business with FAIR pictures
You can do FAIR business with SOME pictures
You can do B I G business with SELZNICK PICTURES

MYRON SELZNICK PRESENTS

DIRECTION CHARLES GIBLYN

OLIVE THOMAS
in
'UPSTAIRS AND DOWN'

Ready very soon. Another six weeks later.
Have you grabbed a franchise?

SELZNICK PICTURES
CORPORATION
MYRON SELZNICK - - President and General Manager
CHARLES GIBLYN - Vice-President and Director General
501 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

When a picture can so stir an audience that gasps and tears replace applause—when bated breath and overpowering emotions compel silent approval—a drama has earned its highest praise. Such a picture is the ANITA STEWART feature, "FROM HEADQUARTERS," a picture for strong souls only—for it will burn its appeal into hearts and rouse the slumbering emotions as no other drama in screen history.

Wherever men and women are swayed by love and hate, passion and fury, jealousy and revenge, it is certain that the ANITA STEWART feature, "FROM HEADQUARTERS," will be called the most vivid picture of life ever flashed on a screen.

This powerful police drama has more real heart throbs in its five wonderful reels than in any eight reels ever shown. It will shatter every present conception of what capacity business means.

Directed by

RALPH INCE

Edited by

GEORGE RANDOLPH CHESTER

VITAGRAPH

CORINNE
GRIFFITH
in
"The Girl
Problem"
As Brimful of Appeal, of Allurement,
of Unexpectedness, of Radiance and Feminine Witchery as Girls Themselves
Written by Joseph Franklin Poland
Directed by Kenneth Webb
VITAGRAPH
Albert E. Smith, President

SELECT SP PICTURES

ANNOUNCEMENT

SELECT PICTURES CORPORATION announces the establishment of a Canadian branch with the title of SELECT PICTURES CORPORATION, LTD., of Canada and the establishment of Canadian branch offices in the following cities.

MONTREAL, Quebec ..... 31 McGill College Avenue
ST. JOHN, New Brunswick ..... 67 Dock Street
WINNIPEG, Manitoba ..... 445 Main Street
CALGARY, Alberta ..... 414 McLean Block
VANCOUVER, British Columbia ..... 304 Orpheum Block
and
Canadian Headquarters, 31 Adelaide Street, West, TORONTO, ONTARIO

The officers of SELECT PICTURES CORPORATION, LTD. of Canada, are as follows: Lewis J. Selznick, President; J. P. Bickell, Vice-President; Morris Kohn, Secretary; N. J. Nathanson, Treasurer and Managing Director.

These Canadian branch offices have been established for the purpose of bringing to exhibitors throughout the Dominion of Canada, all forthcoming SELECT PICTURES with the same efficient and courteous service that has characterized the distribution of the Select Product throughout the United States.

The following schedule has been adopted for release of features listed.

Mar. 3—	Clara Kimball Young	in "The Road Thru' the Dark"
" 10—	Norma Talmadge	in "The Heart of Wetona"
" 17—	Alice Brady	in "The Better Half"
" 24—	Marion Davies	in "The Belle of New York"
" 31—	Constance Talmadge	in "Sauce for the Goose"
Apr. 7—	Mitchell Lewis	in "Code of the Yukon"
" 14—	Anna Case	in "The Hidden Truth" (Special)
" 21—	Clara Kimball Young	in "Cheating Cheaters"
" 28—	Constance Talmadge	in "Who Cares?"
May 5—	Alice Brady	in "Her Great Chance"
" 12—	Marion Davies	in "The Burden of Proof"
" 19—	Norma Talmadge	in "The Probation Wife"
" 26—	Mitchell Lewis	in "Children of Banishment"
June 2—	Constance Talmadge	in "Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots"

SELECT PICTURES CORPORATION

LEWIS J. SELZNICK
President.

SELECT SP PICTURES

Marion Davies

In a screen version of the world's most famous stage success

The BELLE OF NEW YORK

Adapted from the musical play by Gustave Kerker and Hugh Mo

Directed by Julius Steger

LESTER PARK PRESENTS

LILLIAN WALKER

IN

"the love hunger"

DIRECTED BY WILLIAM P.S. EARLE

ADAPTED FROM THE NOVEL FRAN

BY JOHN BRECKENRIDGE ELLIS

UNDER ARRANGEMENT WITH BOBBS-MERRILL CO..

DISTRIBUTED BY THE W.W. HODKINSON CORPORATION THRU' PATHE EXCHANGE Inc.

Announcing

William Russell in WHERE THE WEST BEGINS

By STEPHEN FOX — An American—"Flying A"—Picture — Directed by HENRY KING

Breezy American comedy-drama.
A romantic story of the West.
Beautiful Western scenery.
Punch—pep—jinger!
Brilliant, humorous situations in which Russell displays exceptional versatility.

Whirlwind riding.
Full of quick comedy action.
Will appeal to men—young and old.
Your women patrons will enjoy the romance. The children will revel in the wild riding and stunts.
A good story—book it!

WILLIAM RUSSELL PRODUCTIONS · Distributed by PATHÉ

"Russell going o
Bigger in each p ture" says "Wh
the-Picture-D for-Me" in Exh itor's Herald
Motograph

Now available at Pathé Exch
WILLIAM RUSSELL in
"HOBBS IN A HURRY"
"ALL THE WORLD TO NOT
"WHEN A MAN RIDES ALON

"Since Starting to Advertise"

Writes Peter David of The Liberty Theatre, Tacoma, Washington

"WE MUST HAVE HAD 1,000 TELEPHONE CALLS"

"EVERYBODY IN TACOMA WAS AROUSED BY BOTH THE METHOD OF ADVERTISING AND THE PICTURE"

"IT IS ONE OF THE BEST DRAWING CARDS WE HAVE HAD FOR A LONG TIME, IF NOT THE BEST."

"WANTED FOR MURDER" IS DOING TREMENDOUS BUSINESS EVERYWHERE

Bookings Placed By
INDEPENDENT SALES CORP.

Distributed Through
FILM CLEARING HOUSE, Inc.

Foreign rights controlled by Apollo Trading Co., Longacre Theatre Bldg., New York

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

Mack Sennett's

exceptional

State Right Opportunity

the latest and greatest feature comedy in five parts

"Yankee Doodle in Berlin"

featuring

Bothwell Browne

Ford Sterling, Marie Prevost, Ben Turpin

and an all-star Sennett cast

The biggest and funniest laugh-film in years

(Sol Lesser bought the rights to all the Pacific Coast States before he was half through reviewing the picture)

Applications for territorial rights will be considered in the order of their receipt

ADDRESS

HIRAM ABRAMS

LONGACRE BLDG., BROADWAY AND 42nd STREET

NEW YORK CITY

Every One a Sure Hit

BILLIE RHODES
in "Hoop-La"

Produced by National Film Corporation of America

A sparkling story of circus life played by Miss Rhodes in her inimitable style

BESSIE BARRISCALE
in "A Trick of Fate"

Produced by B. B. Features
Directed by Howard Hickman

Considered one of the most fascinating plays ever interpreted by this popular star

WILLIAM DESMOND
in "The Prodigal Liar"

Produced by Jesse D. Hampton

A corking comedy-drama that runs strong to humor and whirl-wind comedy situations, with Desmond in turning b-a-d man, just for love

HENRY B. WALTHALL
in "The Long Lane's Turning"

Produced by National Film Corporation of America

A powerful and timely story that touches on prohibition with Walthall interpreting a forceful character

Released through
EXHIBITORS MUTUAL

ROBERTSON-COLE COMPANY
DIVISION OF FILMS
Bankers and Exporters for the Producers

WHETHER PLAYING IN

GRAUMAN'S MILLION DOLLAR THEATRE

OR

IN A SMALL HOUSE IN KANSAS

MARTIN JOHNSON'S

"CANNIBALS OF THE SOUTH SEAS"

MARTIN JOHNSON
World Famous Photographer and Explorer

STANDS THE BOX OFFICE RECEIPTS TEST

After running them for a week Sid Grauman who operates the Grauman Million Dollar Theatre in Los Angeles wired: "The excellency and great educational value of the wonderful Johnson's 'Cannibals of the South Seas' has the city of Los Angeles talking."

Out in little Independence, Kansas, a town of 4,000 population, it showed to $1,176 in two days.

In the Pacific Northwest it is proving the Season's Sensation. The Liberty Theatre, Seattle, was swamped with business. Hot on the heels of this run Tacoma, Spokane and Portland booked it for full week runs in the biggest theatres.

The Doric in Kansas City is another metropolitan theatre that has just demonstrated it's box-office value. The Circle in Indianapolis presented it for two weeks to capacity houses according to S. Barrett McCormick.

It broke all Sunday records at the Dayton Theatre in Dayton, Ohio. Playing against keen competition the Strand Theatre in Pittsfield, Mass. turned people away matinee and night for three days.

Wherever "Cannibals of the South Seas" is shown it means satisfied patrons. The fortunate exhibitors who have witnessed these astonishing runs are rushing to the exchanges for their booking dates.

ROBERTSON-COLE COMPANY
Bankers and Exporters for the Producer

IT'S THE YEAR'S GREATEST PROVED SUCCESS

Released through
EXHIBITORS MUTUAL DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

What More Can We Say!

Than the Trade Critics and Buyers.

—ON—

"ONCE TO EVERY MAN"

Screen Version
By ANTHONY P. KELLY

From the Novel
By LARRY EVANS

Direction by T. HAYES HUNTER

Starring Jack Sherrill and Mable Withee

They Pronounce It:—

"The fastest picture ever screened."—"It's a stand-up-and-fight picture."—"Will have a wide appeal."—"Is certain to keep fans on the edges of their seats."—"Should be billed as a very special feature."

And These State Right Buyers Who Know, Have Bought

I. E. Chadwick—Merit Film Exchange, 126 W. 46th St., New York City, for Greater New York City.

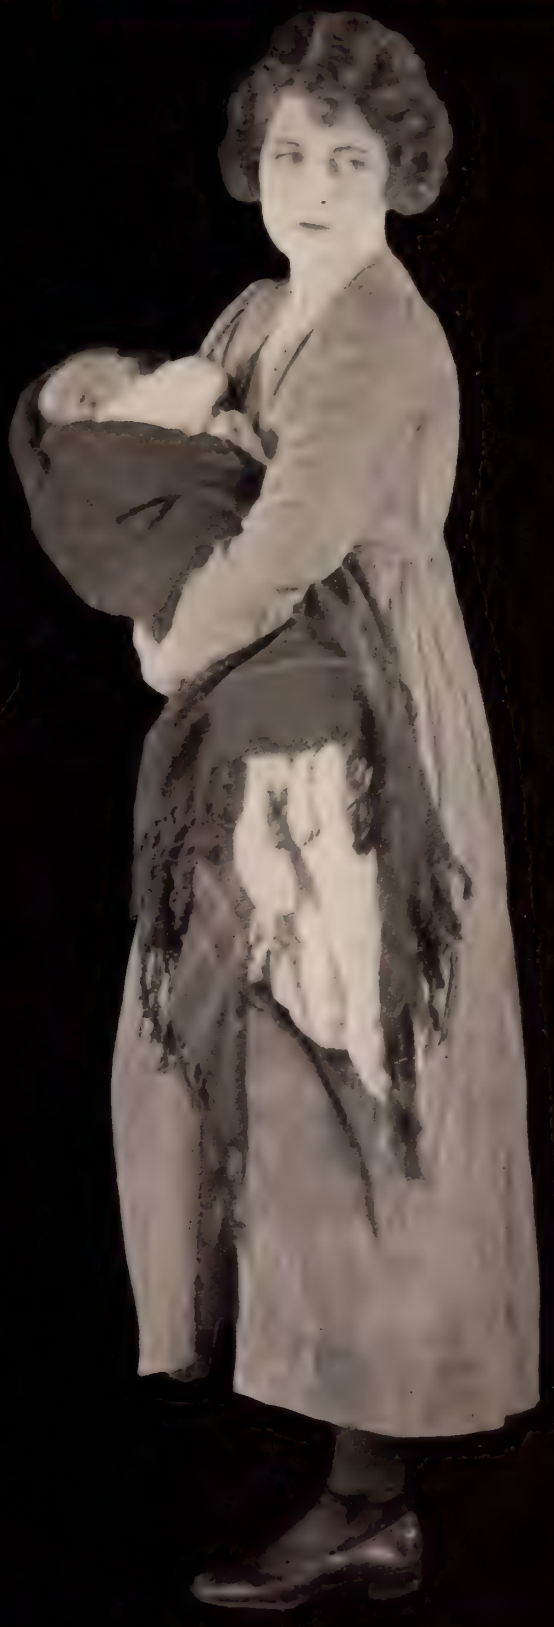
W. E. Drummond—Special Features Co., Knoxville, Tenn., for Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, South Carolina.

Sidney Lust—Super Film Attractions, 1209 E. St., N. W., Wash., D. C., for Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, North Carolina, Virginia.

Arthur S. Hyman—Arthur S. Hyman Attractions, Film Bldg., Detroit, Mich., for Michigan.

W. W. Aechtler—Major Films, Inc., 10 Piedmont St., Boston, Mass., for Maine, Massachusetts, Vermont, Connecticut, Rhode Island.

Nathan Hirsch—Aywon Film Co., 729 7th Ave., New York City, for Northern New York and Northern New Jersey, and the Entire Foreign Rights Were Sold to J. Frank Brockliss, 729 7th Ave., New York City.



IT IS A "BIG" MONEY MAKER FOR THEATRES AND ANY HIGH CLASS EXCHANGE

THE FROHMAN AMUSEMENT CORPORATION

WILLIAM L. SHERRILL, President Times Building, New York

The Eternal Magdalene

By Robert H. McLaughlin

She is as inevitable as the sunrise and the sunset.

She is rich. She is poor.

She has everything except honor, or nothing minus honor.

She is someone's runaway daughter or some man's abused wife.

Always a Bird of Passage—bound for the Port of God-Knows-Where.

She is coming to your city — if not in your theatre, in your competitor's.

GOLDWYN

The mystery of the ages is in her eyes.

She is at the world's gaming tables; at your baker's, at the grocer's, at your wife's costumer's.

She has helped shape the history of the world; she has unmade giants.

She touches the skirts of your mother, your wife and your daughter. She beguiles your sons.

She is coming to your city—if not in your theatre, then in your competitor's.

The Eternal Magdalene

You cannot escape her.

GOLDWYN

The soul of womankind looks at itself in a mirror—and sees a panorama of human history.

Woman joyous and despairing.

Woman perfumed and bewitching.

Woman bedecked and bedraggled.

The most remarkable woman in the world.

She is coming to the screen in your city and every patron of the motion picture will discuss and debate her presence.

The Eternal Magdalene

She is everywhere.

GOLDWYN

For months ahead her coming will be talked about.

The girl of the tenement or palace.

The girl from the Ozark foothills.

The girl of ten thousand towns —of your town and my town —with the face you can never forget.

The friend ot kings; the consort of the lowly—forgiven by the Creator of the Universe.

She will bring a message to your city.

The Eternal Magdalene

A little sister of the night.

GOLDWYN

LOUIS BENNISON

in SPEEDY MEADE

Written and Directed by IRA M. LOWRY

Now a master of the camera, now realizing the fullest values of the screen, Louis Bennison attains his highest level of achievement in his third Betzwood Star Series production, "Speedy Meade."

It is a fast, full-of-action story of the East and the Border; it vibrates with action and adventure and romance. And, above everything else, it reveals to you the power of the Louis Bennison personality; his appeal and fascination.

One look at the picture on this page discloses the answer to the riddle of personality. You know instantly why the public likes and welcomes this star.

There are six Louis Bennison Star Series productions, distributed exclusively through Goldwyn and exhibitors are hurrying to book them. "Speedy Meade" will be released March 23.

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDWYN President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

The One Big Essential Is That Comedies Have ENTERTAINMENT Value

"Smiling Bill" Parsons knows how to make audiences laugh. He also knows your patrons want more than a mere comedian in their favorite comedies. So he gives you a variety and change of scene, as well as new players in every comedy he makes.

These wise precautions unquestionably account very largely for his own popularity and the wholesale booking by several thousand theatres of Capitol Comedies.

Goldwyn offices are now ready to show you the last four Capitol Comedies releases—representative laughter-makers with the comedian who is hailed joyously in more than 3,000 houses:

"A Master of Music"
"The New Breakfast Food"
"The Potum of Swat"
"The Midnight Alarm"

There are 26 Capitol Comedies a year. Every second Monday.

The most convincing proof of "Smiling Bill" Parsons' popularity is found in the fact that less than one year ago he had never appeared in a picture and that today he is a world-wide favorite booked by theatres large and small on the merit of his stories and his own likable personality

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDWYN President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

Here's Proof of "A Hit" in the BOSTON territory

Zane Grey's name is magic with millions of Americans. Boston and New England are heavy buyers; loyal readers of his books.

"The Border Legion" starring Blanche Bates and Hobart Bosworth is at this moment one of the big, assured hits of the year in the New England territory. T. Hayes Hunter, its director, has packed the story tight with melodrama and thrills.

These representative bookings started the vogue of this production in New England:

Park Theatre,	Boston
Old South,	Boston
Washington,	Boston
Franklin Park,	Boston
Empire,	Fall River
Strand,	Lowell
Broadway,	Lawrence
Empire,	Portland
Suffolk,	Holyoke
Scenic Temple,	Cambridge
Mystic,	Malden

Exhibitors everywhere are making money on "The Border Legion."

This is a story of banditry and romance, of hard riding and quick-on-the-trigger action; of love and lawlessness in golden California in the days of '49. This is proving to be the most popular of the Zane Grey stories that have been brought to the screen.

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDWYN President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

All the "Hard-boiled Eggs" of Los donable Sin" wirelessed the "Hard was the Greatest Production they

Now all the "Hard-boiled Eggs" to the "Hard-boiled Eggs" of Los

YOU CAN'T SCRAMBLE THE OPIN

Begins run at
BROADWAY STRAND, DETROIT, Mar. 2
at advanced $1.00 prices

WRITE-OR-WIRE-IMMEDIATELY-IF-YOU-WISH-TO-

ADDRESS

HARRY GARSON AOELIAN

Angeles who saw "The Unpar-
-boiled Eggs" of New York that it ever saw!!

in New York are wigwagging back Angeles—You are right!!!

ION OF A HARD-BOILED EGG!!!!

Begins run at
MAJESTIC, LOS ANGELES, Mar. 9 at $1.50 prices

NEGOTIATE-FOR-FIRST-RUN-IN-YOUR-TERRITORY

HALL NEW YORK

FRANK POWELL presents

Foreign rights controlled by Federal Photoplays, Inc.
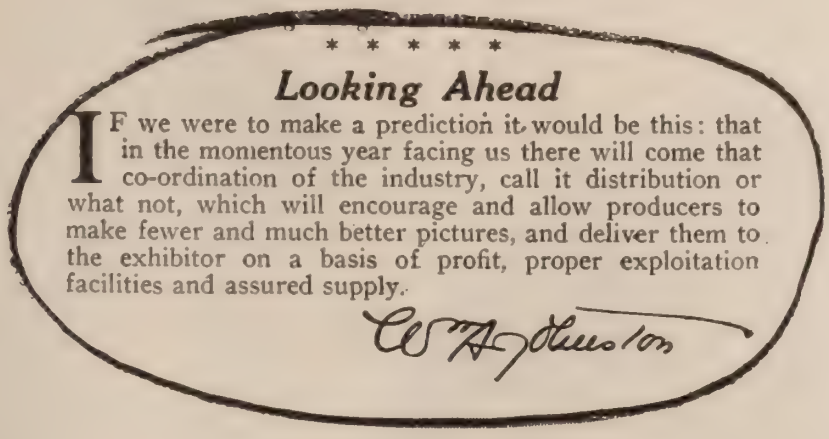
3 East 44th St., New York

THE FORFEIT

a cracking big drama of the great southwest

featuring HOUSE PETERS



Supported by JANE MILLER
Directed by FRANK POWELL

A picture that will pack your house—book it

DISTRIBUTED BY

W. W. Hodkinson Corporation

THROUGH PATHÉ EXCHANGE, INC.

* * * * *

Looking Ahead

IF we were to make a prediction it would be this: that in the momentous year facing us there will come that co-ordination of the industry, call it distribution or what not, which will encourage and allow producers to make fewer and much better pictures, and deliver them to the exhibitor on a basis of profit, proper exploitation facilities and assured supply.

C. S. Hodkinson

THIS is what the Motion Picture News says in its last week's editorial columns.

The News is dead right.

But what it leaves us to add is this:

There is only one organization in the motion picture industry today that has exactly this co-ordination in mind.

And there is only one organization able to put it through—because there is only one organization absolutely independent, absolutely free from both producer and exhibitor domination and control.

The name of this organization is:

W. W. Hodkinson Corporation

527 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

STRIKING SIX-SHEET FROM ORIGINAL PAINTING BY GEORGE GRANT

Here is the most sensational Bara picture since "Salome"—a picture with a big human appeal—a picture packed with gasps and surprises—a money-maker that will surpass your rosiest dreams of a big seven-day box-office clean-up.

BOOK

Theda Bara

in

"WHEN MEN DESIRE"

A WILLIAM FOX Production Directed by J. GORDON EDWARDS

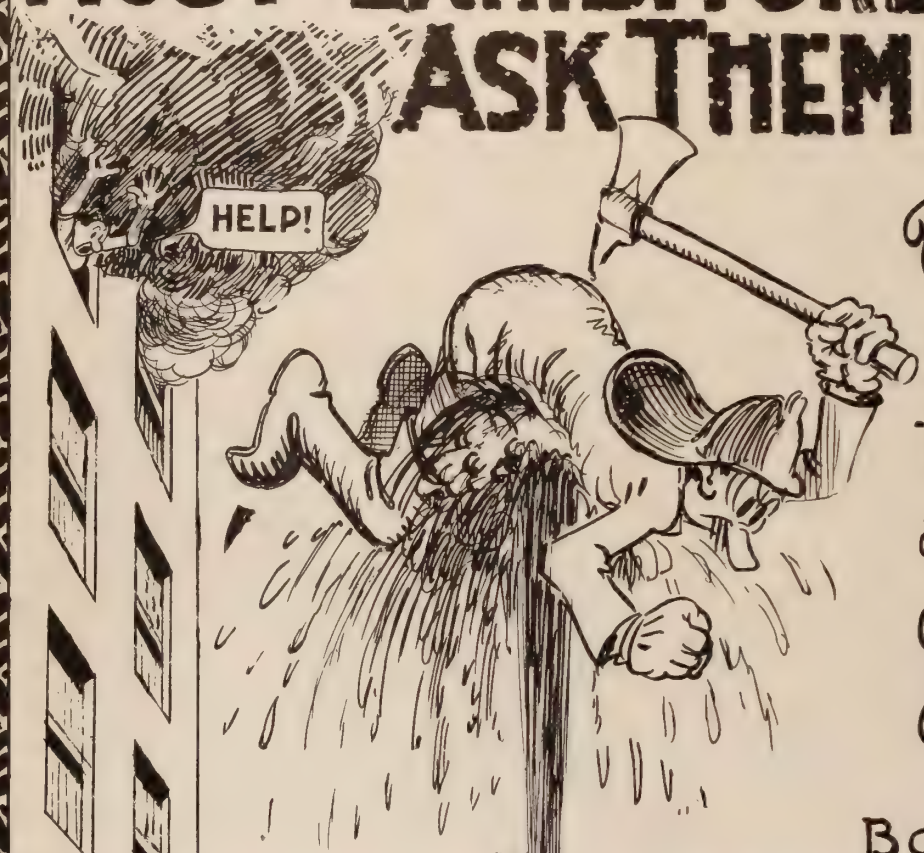
Get onto the bandwagon of STANDARD PICTURES success! Sign up for all of the big feature productions of THEDA BARA, WILLIAM FARNUM and EVELYN NESBIT. Give your theatre a chance! Book STANDARD PICTURES!

FOX
FILM CORPORATION

Get your profits Now

Book

Theda Bara



in the WILLIAM FOX production

WHEN MEN DESIRE

STANDARD PICTURES
F O X
FILM CORPORATION

MOST EXHIBITORS KNOW! ASK THEM

They will tell you one sure way to start a weekly avalanche of mirth and dollars

Book
Captain Bud Fisher's

MUTT and JEFF

Animated Cartoons
Released by WILLIAM FOX

Current Release
Fireman Save My Child

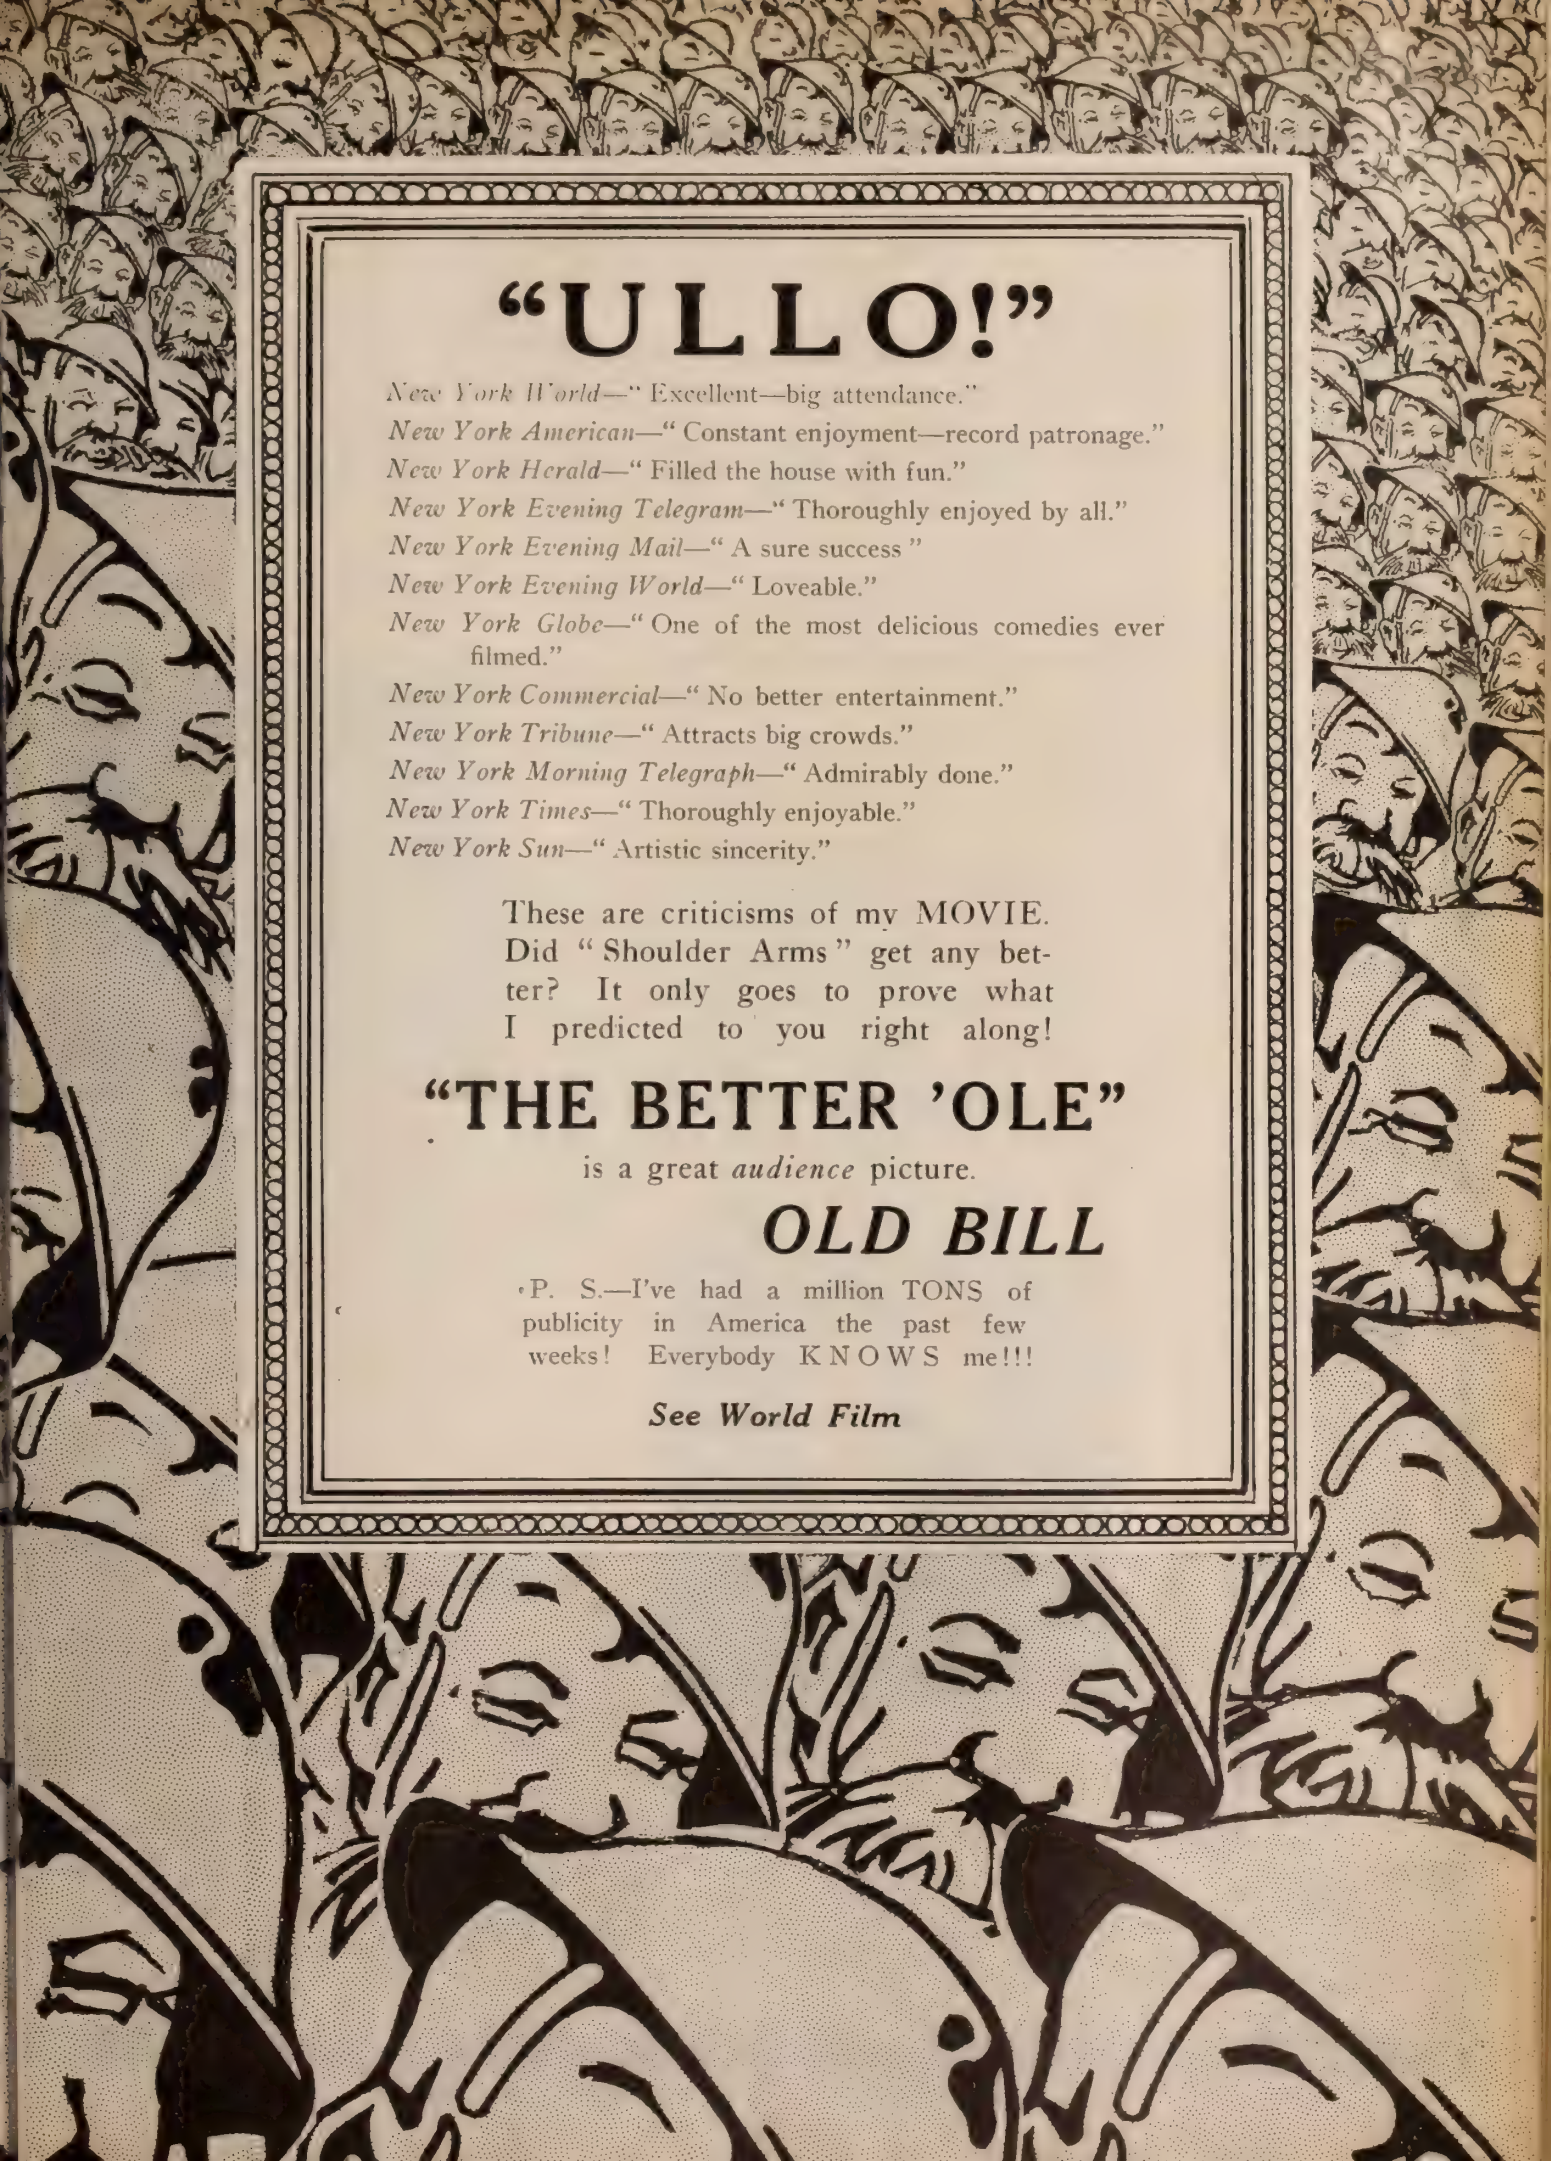
FOX
FILM CORPORATION

KINOGRAMS

THE VISUAL NEWS
OF ALL THE WORLD

The Actual Demand for

KINOGRAMS



can best be judged by theatres that screen it. Among its many users are:

RIALTO, NEW YORK
RIVOLI, NEW YORK
FINE ARTS, CHATTANOOGA
KNICKERBOCKER, NASHVILLE
STANLEY, PHILADELPHIA
ARCADIA, PHILADELPHIA
CLUNE'S, LOS ANGELES
FOX-LIBERTY, ST. LOUIS
CALIFORNIA, SAN FRANCISCO

AND THE KEITH THEATRES, THE ORPHEUM CIRCUIT
AND THE LEADING HOUSES THROUGHOUT THE U. S.

Published by KINOGRAMS PUBLISHING CORPORATION Distributed by WORLD PICTURES

"ULLO!"
New York World—" Excellent—big attendance."
New York American—" Constant enjoyment—record patronage."
New York Herald—" Filled the house with fun."
New York Evening Telegram—" Thoroughly enjoyed by all."
New York Evening Mail—" A sure success "
New York Evening World—" Loveable."
New York Globe—" One of the most delicious comedies ever filmed."
New York Commercial—" No better entertainment."
New York Tribune—" Attracts big crowds."
New York Morning Telegraph—" Admirably done."
New York Times—" Thoroughly enjoyable."
New York Sun—" Artistic sincerity."
These are criticisms of my MOVIE. Did " Shoulder Arms " get any better? It only goes to prove what I predicted to you right along!
"THE BETTER 'OLE"
is a great audience picture.
OLD BILL
P. S.—I've had a million TONS of publicity in America the past few weeks! Everybody KNOWS me!!!
See World Film

IT LOOKS AS THOUGH

HONESTLY, Miss Stewart, we did a lot of thinking about the problem you, Mr. Mayer and Miss Weber faced in producing a worthy successor to the phenomenal "Virtuous Wives." A glance at the exhibitor records on your initial First National Attraction shows that it will require a mighty good production to measure up to the standard it has set for you. Our first indication of what you have been doing these last few weeks came in the first lot of stills. "Gee,"

COTTON, ABUSE AND SERVILITY BY DAY

SILKS, LOVE AND ROMANCE BY NIGHT

we said, "That's a good one. And doesn' she register! Good looking leading mar too." On the left we show the next sti in the package.

"Now," we asked, "what the devil doe this mean. Another of those moder Cinderella Things?"—Impossible! Be cause——"

Louis B. Mayer would not take an chances on box office values.

So we went farther, and please believ

SHE HAD DONE IT AGAIN

The stills encouraged us — us, if the stills speeded up our expectations, the synopsis that arrived the next day made them hit on all six. You and Miss Weber have wisely taken the time and effort to get good stills and they certainly will count at the box office.

The synopsis convinced us — on posters or in ads, but we speak a book on safety first when we O. K. proofs reading:

THIS LOOKS MIGHTY GOOD ACTION STUFF ——— AND THIS SITUATION SHOULD BE A BEAR!

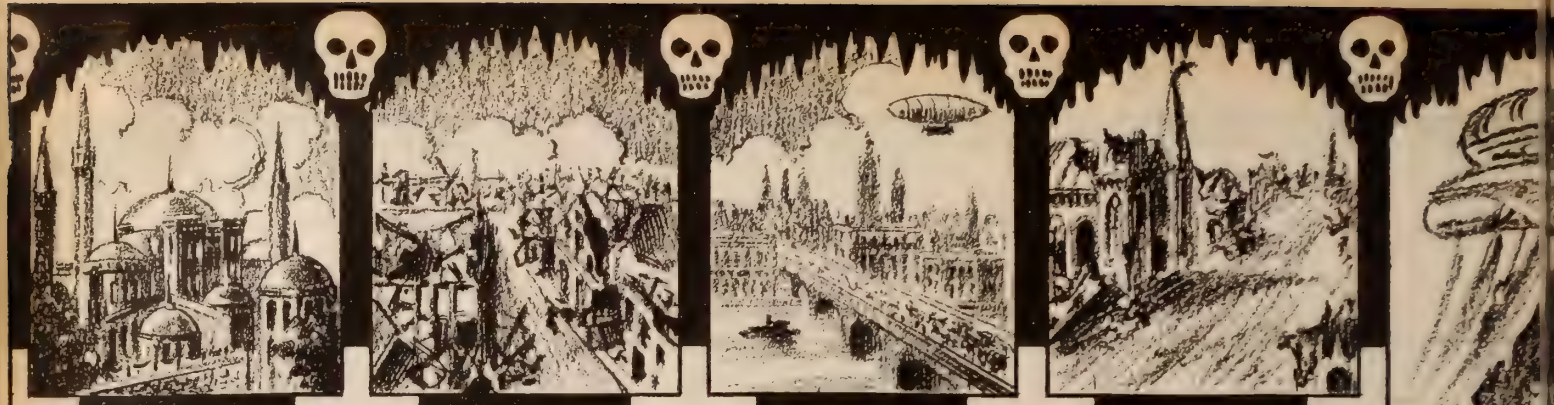
The mystery, the suspense that holds until the very last, say—we were just as greatly surprised and astounded to learn where and how Roger finds you as Marie, and who she really is, as he registers in the stills of the climax. The ballroom and hotel sets—well, we can't say it all

LOUIS B. MAYER

presents

ANITA STEWART

in



"A Midnight Romance"

A LOIS WEBER PRODUCTION

From The Story By MARION ORTH

for March release

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS CIRCUIT

THE BONES OF A MILLION CHRISTIANS LITTER THE DESERTS OF THE NEAR EAST

EVERY OTHER MAN IN FRANCE MAIMED OR BLIND· HER CITIES LEVELLED

ENGLAND ON THE VERGE OF STARVATION· HER YOUTH DESTROYED

ITALY'S TIME OLD SOIL LAID WASTE· A MILLION KILLED

DYNA

DEST

THE ARGUMENTS WHICH INSPIRED AND THE PRODUCTION OF

WHOM THE GODS

From the Story

Directed by FRANK BORZAGE
Produced by OLLIE L. SELLERS

A GIANT
A CATACLYSMIC
AND HISTORICAL FACTOR
SPECTACLE. A NOVEL SCREEN
TAINMENT. ONE OF THE FOUR MILE

MACAULEY PHOTOPLAYS, INC.

AMERICA TO ENTER THE WAR

WOULD DESTROY

"HUMANITY"

by C.R. MACAULEY.

ROMANCE.
MESSAGE. A TIMELY
A MASTODONIC SCENIC
FEATURE. A PERFECT ENTER-
STONES IN MOTION PICTURE HISTORY

Harry L. Reichenbach,
Special Rep.

516 FIFTH AVE.
NEW YORK.
VANDERBILT 4010

Announcement

On August 31, 1918, The W. H. CLIFFORD PHOTO-PLAY COMPANY of Los Angeles, Cal., sold to Frederick Post of Chicago, all state rights and all positive prints of the following five reel subjects featuring the inimitable

SHORTY HAMILTON in

Denny from Ireland
The Snail
The Ranger
The Pen Vulture

Frederick Post on February 24, 1919, sold all his rights, title and interest to these pictures to the undersigned, who now control same and hold negatives.

WARNING:

A number of prints have been offered lately and purchasers hold same at their own risk. Franchise holders will please communicate with us.

We are ready to close territories on these features. All advertising matter pertaining to same is ready.

TERRITORY STILL OPEN:

Washington, Oregon, Nevada, Montana, Wyoming, Utah, Colorado, New Mexico, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Canada, Michigan, Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey, New York State, New England States.

Victor Kremer Film Features

Temporary Office Room 405
Care Motion Picture News, 729 Seventh Ave., New York

Ask any exhibitor who shows Nazimova Productions

He'll tell you to get OUT of the FOG and get it quick

REVELATION TOYS OF FATE and EYE FOR EYE have proved a series of box office as well as artistic triumphs become a regular patron of NAZIMOVA PRODUCTIONS and get your share of the tremendous cash returns.

METRO PICTURES CORPORATION.

Now Booking at

HAROLD LOCKWOOD

One of the greatest pictures in all of Harold Lockwood's brilliant career and the last, but one, of the Lockwood productions.

Finis Fox adapted and Edwin Carewe directed this Screen Classics production for Yorke Film Corporation.

METRO

All Metro Exchanges

in SHADOWS of SUSPICION

By George Gibbs

Lockwood's intense popularity is greater today than ever before ----

Book this big production and be assured of a Box Office success –

METRO

She fought, she scratched, she pursued, she annoyed, she actually devilled the man into marrying her and she did it in a way that makes you glad she did and glad you can see her do it.

It's the kind of a picture you have come to expect from the name Metro All Star Series Production — and VIOLA DANA is absolutely fascinating as its star.

METRO PRESENTS

VIOLA DANA

IN

SATAN JUNIOR

Adapted by John Collins from Vanzo Post's novel "Diana Ardway" published by the J.B. Lippencott Co. and directed by Herbert Blaché.

RELEASED BY METRO MARCH 3rd

MAXWELL KARGER, DIRECTOR GENERAL

CASH IN

AFTER ALL, SHAKESPEARE WAS ONLY HALF RIGHT When He Said, "The Play's The Thing." You Know Now That STARS COUNT As Well As Plays. The Public Doped That Out For You! And now, Mr. and Mrs. Patron are demanding Real Plays full of Pep!

THEY LIKE 'EM SHORT AND SNAPPY—

And They Demand Diversion!

If You Have A Keen Foresight, You'll Agree That Here, At Least, Is An Honest Tip:—

PUT IT UP TO YOUR PATRONS

We Dare You!

FOREMOST STARS

Bryant Washburn
Beverly Bayne
Charles Ray
Helen Gibson
Dorothy Gish
Richard Travers
G. M. Anderson
Ruth Stonehouse
Ben Turpin
Francis Bushman
Helen Holmes

—6 A WEEK—

BRANCH EXCHANGES

CHICAGO, 220 S. State St.
ST. LOUIS, 3431 Olive St.
KANSAS CITY, Gloyd Bldg.
CLEVELAND, 407 Sloan Bldg.
INDIANAPOLIS, 211 Wimmer Bldg.
DETROIT, 63 E. Elizabeth St.
PHILADELPHIA, 1314 Vine St.
MINNEAPOLIS, 421 Loeb Bldg.

CAPITAL FILM CO. INC.
INDIANAPOLIS, IND. - IKE SCHLANK, PRES.

SHORT FEATURES

"Danger Ahead"
"Baffled Society"
"The Boomerang"
"Running Wild"
"The Clue"
"The Old Miser"
"White Papoose"
"Square Gambler"
"False Arrest"
"Thru the Storm"
"Bondage"

—6 A WEEK—

With CAPITAL FEATURES And CAPITAL STARS

THEODORE C. DEITRICH
PRESENTS
DORIS KENYON
HEADING HER OWN COMPANY, DE LUXE PICTURES INC.
IN "TWILIGHT"
EXQUISITELY PICTURED AND STAGED
ADAPTED BY LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE
FROM THE METROPOLITAN MAGAZINE STORY, "THE ALCHEMY OF LOVE" BY YINGIE E. ROE
DIRECTED BY J. SEARLE DAWLEY
READY FOR RELEASE
SHERRY SERVICE
WM. SHERRY
NEW YORK, NORTHERN NEW JERSEY AND WESTERN CONNECTICUT FOR ALL OTHER TERRITORY APPLY SHERRY SERVICE,

"TWILIGHT"

A SIX PART DRAMA

IS THE PINNACLE OF ACHIEVEMENT IN THE PHOTODRAMATIC CAREER OF

DORIS KENYON

ALSO IN THREE OTHER FAMOUS DORIS KENYON PICTURES.

"WILD HONEY" BY L.J. VANCE AND V.E. ROE

"THE INN OF THE BLUE MOON" ANOTHER VANCE-ROE TRIUMPH

"THE STREET OF SEVEN STARS" BY MARY ROBERTS RINEHART.

I personally guarantee Twilight as Doris Kenyon's greatest picture

Theodore C Deutsch

WHAT THE CRITICS SAY:-

The New York Evening World:—
Doris Kenyon in "Wild Honey" succeeds in making the story convincing and in pleasing her admirers with an unconventional interpretation.

The Los Angeles Times:—
Doris Kenyon in "The Inn of the Blue Moon" is a relief from the average picture stage artificer. She doesn't act—she's just Doris.

The Butte Miner:—
Doris Kenyon is very attractive in her new play "Wild Honey." She makes the star role by sheer cleverness.

The Kansas City Star:—
Doris Kenyon makes good in Mrs. Rinehart's story "The Street of Seven Stars," done into six part pictorial drama. Miss Kenyon is the eighth star—first magnitude.

SERVICE

EXECUTIVE OFFICES
729-7th AVE, N.Y.

BOOKING DIRECT THROUGH THE WILLIAM L. SHERRY SERVICE, 729-7th AVE N.Y.
GENERAL FILM EXCHANGE.

SHERRY SERVICE

EGGERS INC. N.Y.C.

Where Exhibitors Agree

(Exhibitors Comment From M.P. News. Box Office Reports)

Book this for the full run.

Good picture, liked by all, and well produced.

Good picture, good puller.

Stood them up afternoon and night.

Kitty Gordon in 'ADELE'

(Adele Bleneau's The Nurse's Story. Directed by Wallace Worsley.)

Well produced.

Very good picture.

Broke all Records.

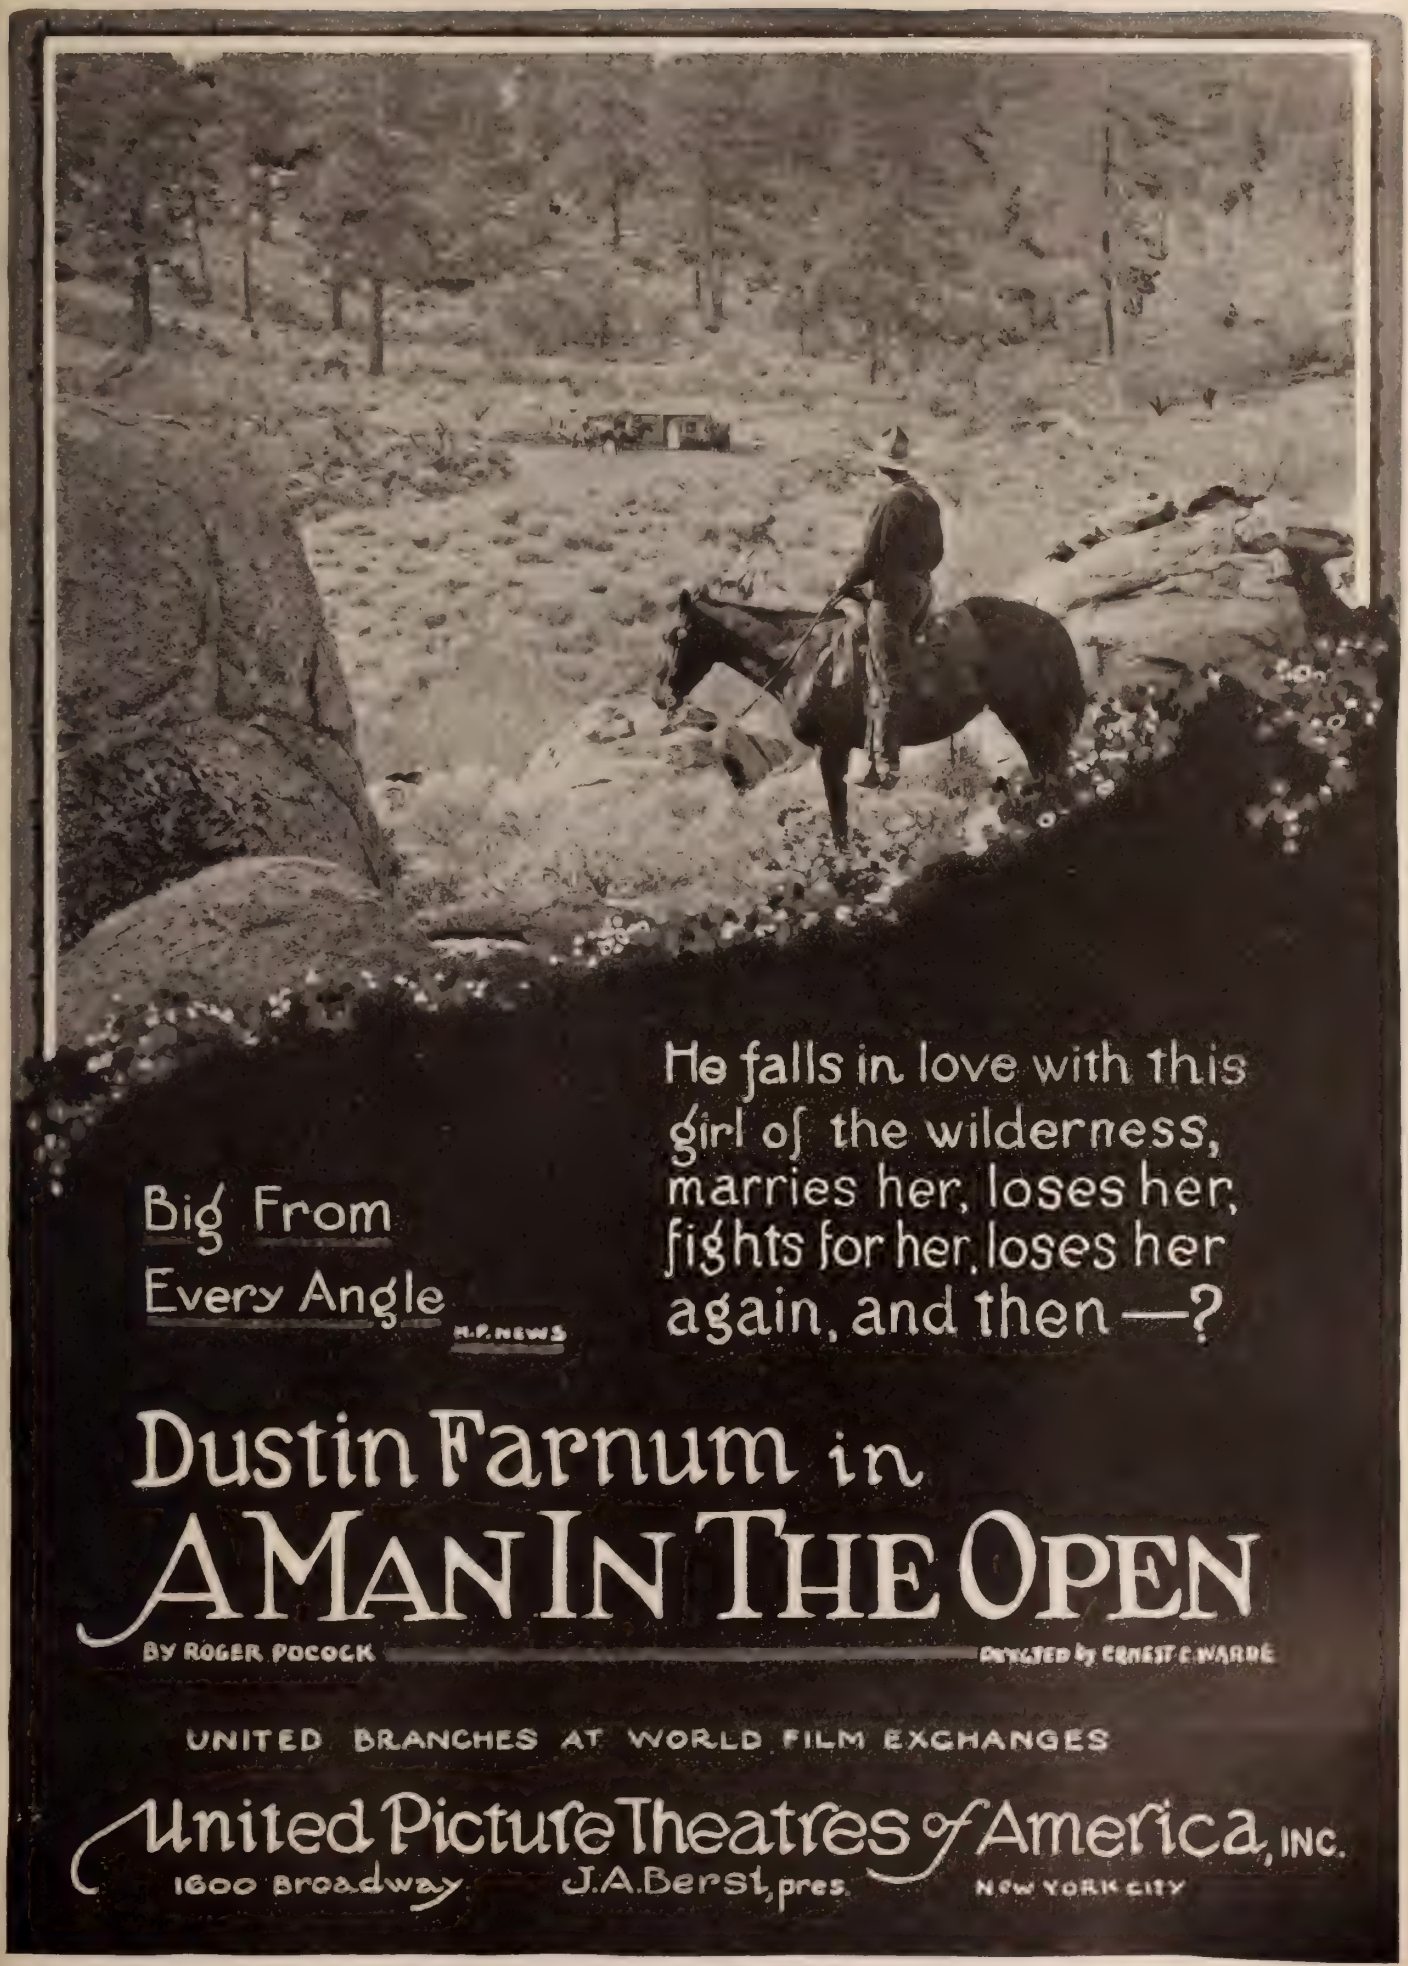
Sorry I couldn't hold it longer.

Couldn't handle the crowds.

Big business seven days.

Pleased all to extra big business.

Splendid.



Dustin Farnum in The Light of Western Stars

by ZANE GREY

DIRECTED BY CHAS. SWICKARD

Foreign distributor DAVID P. HOWELLS 729 - 7th Ave. N.Y.

For Canada, REGAL FILMS, Ltd. Toronto. Ont. Canada.

He falls in love with this girl of the wilderness, marries her, loses her, fights for her, loses her again, and then —?
Big From Every Angle
M.P. NEWS
Dustin Farnum in
A MAN IN THE OPEN
BY ROGER POCOCK
DIRECTED by ERNEST C. WARDE
UNITED BRANCHES AT WORLD FILM EXCHANGES
United Picture Theatres of America, INC.
1600 Broadway J.A. Berst, pres. New York City

THE GREAT PRODUCTION
OF THE OFFICIAL INTERNATIONAL FILM

"The Spirit of Lafayette"

STATES RIGHT BUYERS—ATTENTION!

James Vincent

Presents

"The Spirit of Lafayette"

From the Book of

James Mott Hallowell

Adapted for the Screen by

J. Searle Dawley

With Endorsement of
UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT
COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC INFORMATION
George Creel, Chairman
DIVISION OF FILMS
Charles S. Hart, Director

THIS IS NOT A WAR PLAY

It opens with peace in the signing of the armistice of November 11, 1918. Portrays the welcome of the returning soldier. Tells the story of Lafayette and shows how the spirit that inspired Lafayette to aid American Colonies is the same spirit that inspired our boys to aid France.

That Exhibitors and the public may take advantage of this timely subject as soon as possible, it has been decided to release on State Rights. Send all communications and bids to me personally.

JAMES VINCENT,
1465 BROADWAY,
NEW YORK CITY

THE FIRST PRESENTATION
OF THE OFFICIAL INTERNATIONAL FILM

"The Spirit of Lafayette"

EX-PRESIDENT TAFT SAYS:

of this wonderful film, which had its first production in St. Louis, February 23rd., in connection with the great mid-continent Congress of the League of Nations:

"I have seen the motion picture "THE SPIRIT OF LAFAYETTE." It is in admirable harmony with the thrill of deep patriotism stirred by the war and its victorious ending. Its climax in the League of Nations, exemplifying Lafayette's love of world liberty and giving an answer to his family motto 'Why not?', should in these fateful days challenge us all. I sincerely hope that the American people will see it.

(signed) Wm. H. Taft"

TELEGRAM FROM MANAGER LOUIS K. SIDNEY OF PERSHING THEATRE, ST. LOUIS:

"THE SPIRIT OF LAFAYETTE," produced by James Vincent, received its initial presentation at the Pershing Theatre, St. Louis, February 23rd., playing to crowded houses at every performance. It is a wonderful story of the modern doughboy. It has a strong pathetic appeal and holds the interest throughout. Earl Schenck as Marquis de Lafayette and Violet de Biccary as Adrienne are splendid. Their capable support helps put the picture over in good shape. The settings are magnificent and the photography is exceptionally good. The theme of the connection between the Lafayette incident in helping America and the payment of the debt by America is handled in an excellent manner and makes a direct appeal to the sympathies The production is unusually entertaining as well as educational, and will undoubtedly appeal to all classes of audiences.

(signed) Louis K. Sidney."

MISS GRACE JOHNSON OF ST: LOUIS REPUBLIC:

"Crowds view historic film at Pershing—'SPIRIT OF LAFAYETTE' reveals many events in life of great leader— That history repeats itself is graphically shown at the Pershing theatre.—This production gives a far-sighted significance to the French hero who is recorded as having visualized the idea of a League of Nations. The production was well received.— All the characters are human. The picture also gives an opportunity to gaze upon it from a sartorial as well as histrionic point of view. The ball at Versailles reveals a very elaborate setting and is one of the commendable features of the production."

FROM THE ST: LOUIS DAILY GLOBE-DEMOCRAT:

"Few pictures have succeeded so well in bridging over the wide spaces of history, the history that pertains to America as a world power as this, 'THE SPIRIT OF LAFAYETTE.' The picture, strong on its historical side, is a splendid example of modern cinematography. The happy idea of the Director, James Vincent,, was to begin the Hallowell story with the return of the American soldiers from the battlefields of France, and their welcome home. The streets of New York are pictured on the day the authentic news of the signing of the armistice is received. The hero of the story at that stage returns wounded, but victorious, and the homecoming is pathetically but hopefully pictured. The same spirit which inspired Lafayette in 1776 has been transmitted to the American descendants and inspired them to imperishable deeds of valor in 1918. Director James Vincent has been successful in assembling a splendid cast among whom are capable actors like Earl Schenck, Violet de Biccary, Marion Barney, Robert Elliott, Paula Shay and that pretty child actress, Kittens Richert."

STUPENDOUS PRODUCTION
THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE
EXCEPTIONAL ALL-STAR CAST; ESPECIALLY SELECTED
AUTHENTIC AND GORGEOUS SETTINGS
EIGHT MONTHS IN THE MAKING

AN INTERESTING AND ABSORBING STORY FILLED WITH JOY AND HAPPINESS, EXCITING AND THRILLING INCIDENTS, DRAMATIC CLIMAXES. TRUTH PROVEN STRANGER THAN FICTION. FILLED WITH HEART THROBS OF THE PRESENT DAY AND ALL TIME. A MOST BEAUTIFUL LOVE STORY.

COMPLETE ORCHESTRATION HAS BEEN PREPARED BY NICHOLAS ORLANDO

DO NOT DELAY. TERRITORY WILL BE TAKEN RAPIDLY.

JAMES R: SHEEHAN
GENERAL MANAGER

JAMES VINCENT
1465 BROADWAY
NEW YORK CITY

READER INTEREST

Second of the Four Points That Should Decide the Spending of Every Advertising Dollar—The Four Are: Circulation, Reader Interest, Service to the Reader and Service to the Manufacturer.

¶ Remember, recently, we told you of the unusual opportunity we had of proving our circulation by checking against the list of customers on "Shoulder Arms"? How the result showed practically 100 per cent circulation?

¶ Why not drop into the office and look over the figures?

¶ And while you're there ask to see the Circulation Department's last mail. We asked one day last week and here is part of what we were shown:

"You could not make us quit taking the NEWS unless you quit publishing it as we consider it one of the biggest factors in helping us make a success of our business."

Sisk and James,
Cherokee, Iowa.

"Please find our check for our renewal at Cambridge, Ohio.

"Our Manager, Mr. Weber, has just sent an urgent request that he must have the MOTION PICTURE NEWS to successfully conduct his houses. He further states that it is the biggest help for his promotion of feature subjects of all other magazines combined.

"Wishing you success."

O. J. Sybert, Managing Director,
C. & M. Amusement Co., Marietta, Ohio.

"Have been a reader of the NEWS for several years and had no intention of being without it for it is as necessary to the success of the picture business as the pictures themselves are."

W. P. Horne, Mgr. Columbia Theatre Co.,
Rexburg, Idaho.

"Have taken my house back once more and have gotten ready for fresh business. I still find there is something lacking and have come to the conclusion that it is the MOTION PICTURE NEWS. So I will ask you to please send me your valuable book."

J. A. Morrison, Morrison's Star Theatre,
Meaford, Ont., Canada.

"I could not do without MOTION PICTURE NEWS. Your Box Office Reports are sure fine for us little fellows and I presume for every exhibitor.

"We are only 400 population and I am running such features as Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks. Used all Triangle films until Paramount got the big stars. Have shown "The Barrier," "Over There," "The Lone Wolf," "Crisis," "Tarzan of the Apes," and got the money. Wishing you all the success that is due you and I know you are having, I am."

J. R. Rush, Pastime Theatre,
Pearl City, Ill.

"I hope you will send me a bill promptly when my subscription expires so that I will not forget to send check at once. I need the NEWS and I do not want to miss one issue."

Quinton D. Herman,
Playhouse, Kutztown, Pa.

"I couldn't get along without the NEWS, for it is the best motion picture magazine printed. I am only a small town exhibitor, having a theatre here in Armstrong and one in Enderby, nine miles from here; but I would be like a lost sheep without the NEWS. Wishing you and your valuable magazine all prosperity this New Year."

(Signed) J. L. Morris, Avalon Theatre,
Box 660, Armstrong, B. C., Canada.

"Am herewith enclosing check. Can't very well get along without the NEWS, believe it the best paper on the market for my purpose although am getting several others but always go for the NEWS and am saving every copy for further use."

B. Hatke,
Royal Theatre, Sabetha, Kans.

"Keep the NEWS coming, when more money is needed, send bill, for I must surely have it so long as I continue to strive to amuse an unappreciative public with the best pictures to be obtained."

Will L. Beebe, The Candor Theatre, Candor, New York.

"I received your letter, saying you are going to cut me off. Don't for God's sake do that. I did not know I was in arrears. I thought I paid one year in advance. I am sending herewith check. If there is any more you have coming send in the bill. Have been reading your Bible ever since it has been published. So don't think for one moment I want to stop now when things are getting so interesting."

Chas. W. Borsdorf, Star Theatre,
49 Albion Ave., Paterson, N. J.

—"Bill Hart Sees Broadway"

—"Thomas Ince Directing Charles Ray"

—"How Bessie Love Became a Star"

—"Babyhood Pictures of Douglas Fairbanks and Geraldine Farrar"

—"Two Reasons Why Cleo Ridgely Left the Screen"

—"Ben Turpin in a Cross Eyed Act"

ALL THIS—AND MORE—IN THE SECOND ISSUE OF

"THE PHOTOPLAY MAGAZINE SCREEN SUPPLEMENT"

"THE STARS AS THEY ARE"

Every issue of "The Screen Supplement" gives you half-a-dozen big names for your publicity—and delights your audience with brief, intimate glimpses of their favorite players—at home, at work and at play. You don't have to be reminded of the great interest of the public in material such as this. Without question, the biggest audience attraction ever concentrated in a single reel. One every month.

Produced Under the Direction of

JAMES R. QUIRK and JULIAN JOHNSON

The Distinctive Feature on Any High Class Program

Releasing the Cream of the Short-Reel Subjects

"The Silk-Hat-Harry Livestock Co." in a Black and White Comedy

"JUDGE RUMHAUSER'S MISCUE"

ON THE SAME REEL WITH

"RAVINGS of a ROUNDER"

"Rave No. 1—PROHIBITION"

Four minutes of original, rapid-fire humor. Thirty clever lines, with a laugh in every line. "The Ravings of a Rounder" is a real novelty—something quite out-of-the-ordinary—more laughs to the minute that you usually find to the reel. Released March 10th.

Produced by International
Directed by Gregory La Cava

EDUCATIONAL FILMS CORPORATION OF AMERICA

729 7th AVENUE NEW YORK, N.Y.

TRIANGLE SPECIAL PRESENTATION

This is the title "IT'S A BEAR" and it's the truth

First Triangle Special starring

TAYLOR HOLMES

Directed by Lawrence Windom

Some one suggested "poker" to this "Naturalist." And he says as to how he was more to home "playing bridge," but to accommodate them "he'll take a hand." Well he took it, and all the chips, too, before they'd finished. He bluffed from Boston.

Scheduled for release March 16th

TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION, NEW YORK

As Usual—14 Pages of Exploitation Aids in the Service Bureau This Week—See Page 1468

Motion Picture News

Vol. 19 No. 10. March 8, 1919

The Week in the Film World at a Glance

FEATURES

ORGANIZE FROM THE BOTTOM UP (WM. A. JOHNSTON) 1459
SPEAKING EDITORIALLY 1460
DEALING IN PERSONALITIES....1461
ON THE WAY OVER THE TOP....1468
HOW NEW YORK STAGES THE SHOW....1474
TIPS FROM FIRST SHOWINGS....1475
SMALL FELLOWS PUT BLAME ON EXCHANGES..1479
CLASSIFIED ADS 1520
REVIEWS IN COMPLETE PLAN BOOK....1533
NEW BOX OFFICE REPORTS....1556
RELEASE DATES ON ALL PICTURES....1561

NEWS OF THE WEEK

Drastic Action on Censorship....1462
New Clubhouse Proposed....1462
New York Exhibitors Meet in Syracuse....1463
Brady Stays with Association....1464
Buck Bill Arouses Springfield....1465
Ball Big Hit Minus the Stars....1465
Miscellaneous News 1466
Live News of the Producers....1482
Glances at the Program....1514
In the Independent Field....1516
Complete Plan Book....1533
In and Out West Coast Studios....1554
Hollywood Hookum 1555

OF SERVICE TO EXHIBITORS

Exhibitors' Service Bureau....1468
What the Producers Have to Say....1482
Special Service Sections....1493-1505-1535
News of the Independent Producers....1516
Equipment Service Section....1521
Music Department 1527
Advance Reviews 1533
Reviews in Complete Plan Book....1538
Box Office Reports and Plan Book Index....1556
Releases, Current and Coming....1561

COMPLETE PLAN BOOK

Pictures Reviewed in Advance....1533
Service Section on "Common Clay" (Pathe)....1334
"The Brand" (Goldwyn)....1338
"The Man Hunter" (Fox)....1339
"What Every Woman Wants" (Robertson-Cole)....1540
"The Better 'Ole" (World)....1541
"Smiles" (Fox) 1542
"The Girl Dodger" (Paramount)....1543
"The World to Live In" (Select)....1544
"The Echo of Youth" (Graphic)....1545
"The Love Hunger" (Hodkinson)....1546
"Twilight" (De Luxe)....1547
"A Marriage for Convenience" (Keeney-Sherry)....1548
"The Unveiling Hand" (World)....1549
"Paid in Full" (Paramount)....1550
"The Sealed Envelope" (Bluebird)....1551
"The Wishing Ring Man" (Vitagraph)....1552
"The Prodigal Liar" (Robertson-Cole)....1553
Index to Plan Book and Exhibitors' Box Office Reports..1556
"Flashbacks" of Exhibitors' Box Office Reports....1560

Newsy Announcements of the Week Found in the Ad-Pages

Why Mildred Harris is a Star....1404
Billie Burke Does "Good Gracious Annabelle," Big Stage Success for Paramount....1405-06-07-08
Olive Thomas' First Selznick Picture is Ready....1409
Anita Stewart's "From Headquarters" Directed by Ralph Ince 1410-11
Select Announces Establishment of Canadian Branches..1412-13
Lillian Walker Returns Again in "The Love Hunger"...1414
William Russell, a Money-Making Star, in Money-Making Pictures 1415
How "Wanted For Murder" is Going....1416
Hiram Abrams Presents "Yankee Doodle in Berlin," a Mack Sennett Five-Reeler....1417
Anita Stewart's "A Midnight Romance" Ready....1438-9
Territory Buyers on "Once to Every Man"....1420
Goldwyn's "Eternal Magdelene" 1421-22-23-24
Bennison's Latest 1425
Capital Comedies 1426
Goldwyn Offers "The Border Legion"....1427
Opinion From the Hard Boiled Ones on "The Unpardonable Sin" 1428-29
Sherry Service Presents Doris Kenyon in "Twilight"..1448-49
The Martin Johnson Cannibal Pictures....1418-19
MacCauley Photoplays Presents "Whom the Gods Destroy" 1440-1
World Film Corporation's Latest Offering....1435
Inter-Ocean on "The Better 'Ole"....1436-37
Triangle Distributing Corporation Announces Latest Release 1456
Capital Film Company....1447
Hodkinson Product 1430-1
Fox Film Corporation's Latest Releases....1432 3-4
Educational's Cartoon Series....1455
Metro's Latest Releases....1443-4-5-6
United Picture Theatres....1450 1
James Vincent Offers "The Spirit of Lafayette"....1452-53
The Spoor Thompson Laboratories....1458
Universal Offers Another Special Feature "The Scarlet Shadow" 1498-90-91-92
How "The Heart of Humanity" Went in Montreal....1500-01
Pathe's "Common Clay"—An Unusual Picture...1509-10-11-12
George Fitzmaurice, Producer of "Common Clay"....1513

WM. A. JOHNSTON, Pres. and Editor.
ROBERT E. WELSH, Managing Editor
HENRY F. SEWALL, Vice-Pres.
E. KENDALL GILLETT, Sec. and Treas.
FRED. J. BEECROFT, Adv. Manager.

Published on Friday every week by MOTION PICTURE NEWS, Inc., 729 Seventh Ave., New York, N. Y. 'Phone 9360 Bryant. Chicago Representative, W. M. Hight, 220 So. State St.; 'Phone Harrison 7667. Los Angeles Representative, J. C. Jessen, 618 Wright and Callander Building (Hill at Fourth St.); 'Phone Pico 780. Subscription $2 a year, postpaid, in United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands. Canada, $3. N. B.—No agent is authorized to take subscriptions for Motion Picture News at less than these rates. Have the agent who takes your subscription show his credentials and coupon book. Western Union registered cable address is "Picknews," New York.

Copyright, 1919, by Motion Picture News, Inc.

The big men of the motion picture industry are unusually interested in the Spoor-Thompson film processing machines and the quality of prints they are putting out. Every one of these men who has taken the time to look at these wonderful automatic processing machines in actual performance uses the same expression—marvelous.

SPOOR-THOMPSON PROCESS

Laboratories: 1333 Argyle Street, Chicago

Sales Office and Service Bureau, 110 West Fortieth Street, New York City

Charles F. Stark, Sales Manager Telephone Bryant 1490

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

"When you see it in 'The News' It's News"

Motion Picture News

HAS THE QUALITY CIRCULATION OF THE TRADE

"The Exhibitors' Medium of Communication"

Volume 19, No. 10 March 8, 1919

Organize from the Bottom Up

ASSISTANT U. S. ATTORNEY GENERAL BECK states that the nineteenth amendment is a direct attack upon home liberties and therefore the greatest menace ever leveled at the life of the Republic.

Sunday closing of theatres, local, State and Federal censorship of motion pictures are of exactly the same origin and nature.

It isn't a question of similarity between the things that are regulated. It is the idea of regulation that constitutes the issue.

Apparently any species of regulation can be saddled today upon a liberty-loving people. We may wake up any morning to find that we can't do, or eat, or see, or wear this or that. The principle is just the same no matter what the regulation.

And the only reason these anti-American outrages, these positive blasphemies against free government are perpetrated is because the regulators are organized. They are swinging the bludgeon of organized votes.

Our private opinion is that the American people will some day rise in their righteous wrath and send these regulators back, in no gentle manner, to their rocking chairs and knitting.

But in the meantime there is but one way to check and break them—positively and only one way—that is, to put votes against votes. To organize, just as they do, in every State and Federal legislative district, and let the legislative representative know in a very forceful manner that the real public, the patrons, for instance, of motion picture theatres, have their own unregulated notions as to their ways of recreation and instruction.

* * * * *

How New York Is Working

THERE'S a safe rule of politics which warns: "Never start the celebration until the votes are counted."

So it might be well for us not to be too hasty in declaring, "Look to New York's exhibitors for a guide to successful organization and victorious battle for freedom of the screen."

And, obviously, the moment is premature for a discussion of the methods followed in New York's campaign.

But while the victory is not yet here—the organization is. This week's Syracuse convention is but one proof that the exhibitors of New York have at last perfected an organization that is fit to cope with the organized forces of autocratic Puritanism.

How has this been brought about?

By "movie balls?" By hallyhoo "expositions?" By the shaking down of the manufacturers?

No—those are the methods of the past. Those are the side-issues that have engaged the attention of would be exhibitor organizers in the past and prevented the perfection of a real working organization.

* * * * *

"None But Exhibitors on Guard"

THE first rule and the consistent battle-cry of the men who have succeeded in organizing New York has been "None but exhibitors on guard."

It has been realized that the exhibitor is the man in touch with the patron—that the patron is the voter. And it has been kept in mind from the start that all successful political battles must be fought through the voters—through the people.

It has been brought home to the leaders of New York's exhibitors that the manufacturer's interests are too wide; that the opportunities for jealousy in his ranks are too many; for him to give any one state the attention its political battles need.

And it has never been forgotten that, as Mr. Louis Innerarity of Pathe declared to trade paper representatives this week, the appearance of the manufacturers before a legislative body immediately brings up the bugaboo of "a highly paid lobby," a "movie trust," and so on. Thus are the cranks armed with effective buncombe.

These are the thoughts that have kept alive the slogan "None but exhibitors on guard."

The legislator cares not a tinker's dam about the opposition of a manufacturer to a particularly obnoxious bill. But he will give considerable thought to a petition voicing the sentiment of thousands of picture patrons—his constituents. And he will think longer still over the spectre of the picture screens of his district being arrayed against him in his next fight for election.

So the first thought of exhibitors in organizing New York has been, "We must fight our own battles. We need no outside help; and we don't want to be weakened by depending on outside help."

* * * * *

No Demagogues and No Side-Shows

THE second step in the process of perfecting an organization was to see that the main idea—the organization—was never lost sight of.

This could not have been done had energies been diverted to the staging of the time-worn "movie balls" or expositions.

This could not have been accomplished had one or two individuals decided that the task of organizing New York state should entitle them to continual basking in the limelight of publicity.

(Continued on next page)

Editorially Speaking:

(Continued from preceding page)

Messrs. Cohen, Berman and O'Reilly have borne the brunt of the hard labor during the past year. They deserve all the praise that can be heaped upon them. But no member of the trio has engaged a press agent. There has been no attempt to rush into the trade papers on any pretext that meant publicity.

The result has been that with all effort and energy devoted to the task of organization that is the object that has been attained. No exhibitor has hesitated to become a member because of disgust at tom-foolery side-shows; no exhibitor has refused to put forth his best efforts in the battle because of indignation at the publicity grabbing of a few at the top.

* * * * *

Following Political Lines

THE third step has been the organization of exhibitors into groups representative of and responsible for the different Assembly and Senate districts.

There is the crux of the story.

The fate of an inimical bill that reaches a legislature is dependent upon individual votes. It is dependent upon the views of individual legislators. And the way to kill it is by work along individual lines.

The campaign that is efficient and effective in each individual legislator's district will be effective in the state as a whole.

This is organizing from the bottom up!

And here we must let the story of New York's organization end—"the votes have not been counted." There will be time enough, and opportunity enough, to write the detailed account when this year's legislative work has been done.

But we cannot too early say a word of cheery congratulation for the success in hurdling the first obstacles—a real organization has been secured.

The victory will come at its own good time.

* * * * *

Born of Necessity

THE exhibitors of New Mexico have decided to organize.

It's about time.

The wild orgy of spending, in which most of the States of the Union have been indulging for the past several years, has bled New Mexico to the extent that the State solons are casting wildly about for the revenue needed by every spendthrift State.

Naturally they turn to motion pictures, popularly believed to be the Croesus of all industries.

In addition to the exhibitors' city tax, Federal seat tax, Federal postage tax, Federal admission tax, New Mexico now proposes a two-cent ticket tax, and even threatens a house-capacity tax.

Fine business! Why not simply let the State take the theatres?

The exhibitors will organize and fight—at last!

They need no appeal from us. They need no field worker from a national organization to pray and preach to them. The idea of organization is no longer vague with them; organization dues are no longer regarded as a needless extravagance.

They will band together and stick together, like any group of humans fighting for their very hearthstones.

What threatens in New Mexico threatens in every State.

If you want your house open Sunday; if you want to run it yourself, rather than let a professional reformer run it; if you don't want free pictures; if you don't want the State to take it—

Then, of course, you will organize and fight.

Everywhere!

* * * * *

Are You Helping the Soldiers?

FIFTEEN exhibitors in the Washington Heights section of New York City, after forming an organization to participate in every public matter affecting the Heights and use their screens as a medium of community expression have started the good work by seeking to find "a job for every soldier."

Did you take advantage of this tip given in Motion Picture News some months ago?

There is still an opportunity. The effort is little, the expense trifling.

Get in touch with the nearest branch of the United States Employment service and obtain authorization to act as agent. Prepare two slides. One asking returned service men to let you know their wants. The other urging your patrons who are employers to get in touch with you.

Adapt the methods to your local conditions. But do something. And do it quickly. You'll get personality and an intimate community feeling into your house that you can't get any other way.

* * * * *

A Two-Fisted Fighter

HERE'S another fighting exhibitor.

C. J. Bregger, of Crystal Falls, Michigan, was ordered to close his theatre during the second influenza epidemic. He found that the stores and churches disregarded the restrictions imposed and with impunity; so he refused. When the police arrested him he called for a jury trial, claimed discrimination and was acquitted.

He claimed the public was with him. So it was; so it is to-day with every decent exhibitor—on Sunday closing, censorship and every act of bureaucratic officials and rabid reformers.

If every exhibitor asked for a jury trial—if he, in other words, carried his cause to the people and the people's legislatures, he would win out.

Fighting exhibitors, organize! All real fighters fight in ranks—when the enemy is similarly organized.

* * * * *

It's the Picture That Counts

THE lines outside the Strand Theatre this week waiting to see "The Better 'Ole," point several morals.

But most important of all is that picture patrons will go out of their way these days to seek a cheery, whole-hearted laugh. That comedy-drama has all the pulling power that "sensational punches" ever had.

And that delightful old codger "Old Bill" is some star himself even if he isn't in the "big four."

Dealing in Personalities

"His Program Idea May Keep S. R. O. Sign Busy"

S. L. ROTHAPFEL has officially denied that usher service will be included in the new "Complete Programme" on which he is working.

He wishes also to deny that atmospheric perfume such as was occasionally used at the Rivoli will be found on the film emulsion of the new programme.

And equally emphatically does he wish to deny that the furnishing of complete programmes for picture theatres will include the supplying special policemen to keep the crowds in order.

But he is considering the project of giving each exhibitor who books "The Complete Programme" a specially painted "S. R. O." sign.

For, take it from Mr. Rothapfel, the exhibitors will need the signs.

The English invasion is still on in full force. Harry Rosson refuses to desert us—and we're glad of it because he is good company. W. Arthur Northram arrived during the week. And the same boat brought Tim Coop, of Progress Film, London. Within the next few days we'll see Harry M. Jenks and at least two or three other representatives of dear old Lunnun.

Mr. Coop, in between his visits to the film magnates, is making his headquarters at the MOTION PICTURE NEWS office. In addition to the Progress productions, "Democracy" and "All Men Are Liars," he has brought a number of other interesting pictures with him.

We saw his "Democracy" last week. It's a corking good picture. Purely English, but we can see how the right ballyhoo would make it a winner here.

We also saw "The Elder Miss Blossom," a Samuelson comedy drama which will fit in anywhere. "The Way of an Eagle" and "Because" are other productions that Mr. Coop has brought.

"The British market," declares Mr. Coop, "is overloaded with ordinary, average pictures, but is calling for the big unusual special."

Just the shape we are in here at this moment. The man with a big special will make so much money you can't count it, while the average "movie" will die the death of a dog.

Every once in a while we decide that methods of making money in the picture business are so obvious that we ought to have a bank account ourselves. And then we remember such reversals of form as the Caruso debut and decide that it isn't so easy. There, for example, was a corking good picture and a million dollar star. And what was the answer? Oh, rats, who can tell us the answer to this picture game?

James E. McBride, of the Fox organization, returned to town last Thursday just too late to get in the Personality page of that week.

Mr. McBride had journeyed south as far as New Orleans, west to Dallas, and then north, covering quite a group of Fox exchanges for a survey of the sales organization.

And, of course, he found Fox pictures the most popular everywhere. Incidentally he found Bloomington, Ill., and a few other stops where he used to grab off eighteen a week twenty years ago as a cub reporter.

Jimmy reports the old town just the same as the day he left. We take it on ourselves to report Jimmy considerably—c-o-n-s-i-d-e-r-a-b-l-y—advanced since the day he left.

If white paper were not so high we would take oodles of pages each week telling you of things that MOTION PICTURE NEWS has done. As it is we have to let you take it for granted that the paper which you know is the livest really is the livest—to the exhibitor and in the field. This week, for example, a story on page 1468, discloses the wonderful improvement in co-operation between newspaper and screen that MOTION PICTURE NEWS has secured in some cities through its Exhibitor Service Bureau.

"I'm in er 'elluva 'ole," says Bert Adler of Inter-Ocean. "The advertising and pub woik on this foreign racket is enough by itself, blimme—to prove it me 'ouse organ is late—an' 'ere Paul Cromelin 'ands me a domestic tawsk. An' he tells me it's "The Better 'Ole."

And Bert, by the way, is very sore at the paper which said he got a lucky break in the placing of his "Better 'Ole" advertising on news pages next to reading matter. "It was all premeditated and calculated," says Bert.

Ad. Kessel, Charles Baumann and Harry Fields have returned from a trip to New Orleans.

T. O. Eltonhead is travelling in the Mid-West this week.

E. Mandelbaum of Cleveland dropped into New York during the week to say "hello" to his friends among the magnates.

The Tipster can't give you any sure-fire winners this week. He has seen some of "Whom the Gods Destroy," and if the whole comes through on that scale it should be a winner. "The Red Lantern" and "The Eternal Magdalen," concerning which the touts said many good words, are on the way. While we haven't anything definite for you this week just remember: "When we say 'Go to it,' do so with a whoop, because the money is already in the cash drawer."

Both of the Brothers Horkheimer are now in town. Look out for action.

William Fox and Winfield Sheehan sail for Europe on the Aquitania next week.

It has been commented upon that Bessie Love is making rapid strides under the Vitagraph banner. Some houses are taking her pictures twice in one week—and apparently are well satisfied.

Among the changes announced in publicity circles during the past week was the withdrawal of Dwight S. Perrin from the Goldwyn organization. He plans a rest before resuming activities elsewhere.

ANOTHER SHOT AT THE INDUSTRY!

California Legislature Gets Four Injurious Bills

FOUR bills, all of which have been designated as injurious to the motion picture industry, have been introduced into the California Legislature.

One would make it a criminal offense to sell tickets of admission to any theatre when all the seats are occupied.

Another makes it a felony to exhibit pictures that would cause class or race hatred.

Another closes the studios and exchanges on Sunday.

Thus does the world go round.

Drastic Action on Censorship

National Association to Stand Behind Decision to Keep Films Out of States That Pass Censor Bills—Word Sent Out

NO motion picture films are to be delivered in those states passing censorship bills at the present session of the Legislature, it has been made known in a statement from the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry. This measure is decided upon as a means to prevent censorship, the announcement says.

Under the leadership of Gabriel L. Hess, chairman of the Censorship Committee of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, this drastic and decisive policy was decided upon at a meeting of the producer and distributor members of the association held in the offices of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation February 25.

The decision to take this united action on the part of the motion picture industry, ninety-five per cent of which is represented in the membership of the National Association, was transmitted to the exhibitors of the States of Oklahoma, Nebraska, North Carolina and South Dakota, where there is immediate danger of censorship legislation, in the form of the following telegram, sent in every case to the chairman of the State Censorship Committees of the various States:

"Producing and distributing members of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry if censorship bill passes in your State cannot and will not ship motion pictures into State. Feel it my duty to advise you now, as they will not assume responsibility for damage resulting from closing of the motion picture theatres. Gabriel L. Hess."

Under the direction of John C. Flinn, acting as a committee appointed by the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers to co-operate with the Censorship Committee, a thirty-page pamphlet has been prepared and ordered printed. This contains much valuable material in the form of arguments and reasons against motion picture censorship, as well as numerous reprints of editorials that have appeared in the leading newspapers and magazines of the country from time to time on the subject.

It is expected that this pamphlet will be ready for distribution in the near future. This as well as other literature on the subject will be sent to the film boards of trade and other exchange organizations in those States where censorship measures have been introduced, as well as to the exhibitor organizations.

Chairman Hess announced the appointment of Aaron Jones of Jones, Linnick and Schaefer, of Chicago, as the State chairman for Illinois, where a censorship bill has been introduced into the Legislature. It was also decided that until further notice the Censorship Committee would hold weekly meetings on Thursday of each week at the City Club in the form of a luncheon.

NEW CLUB PROPOSED

Ball to be Given to Raise Funds for Clubhouse

AS a direct result of a meeting last week in a Broadway cafe of a number of men well known in New York film circles, it is proposed to establish in Gotham a clubhouse for those connected with the motion picture industry. At the meeting it was agreed to form the Motion Picture Club of America, Inc., as a social centre for all branches of the industry—a gathering place for resident and out-of-town members.

In order to obtain funds to lease or build a clubhouse, a promenade, concert and dance have been scheduled for April 11 at the Hotel Commodore, adjoining the Grand Central Station, in New York. An entire ballroom floor has been engaged.

The affair will be under the direction of William V. Hart.

Quebec May Raise Theatre Licenses

(Special to Motion Picture News)

The license fee on picture theatres in the Province of Quebec is to be raised, according to an announcement which has been filed at the exhibitors of the province by Hon. Walter Mitchell, Provincial Treasurer. No details were handed out by the Government official, but the picture interests immediately held a meeting in the office of the Greater Vitagraph, Bleury street, Montreal, to discuss the situation. It was decided to send a delegation to Quebec, the provincial capital to interview Mr. Mitchell.

At present the charge is 50 cents per seat per year in Montreal, Westmount, Outremont, Verdun and Quebec; 30 cents per seat per year in all other incorporated cities of the province and 20 cents elsewhere.

The tax on moving picture theatres in the Province of Quebec was established in 1912, when a fee of 20 cents was charged in Montreal and Quebec, 15 cents in other cities and 10 cents elsewhere throughout the province.

According to Mr. Mitchell, the province will raise the license fees of exchanges as well as boost the charge for censoring each reel.

The exchange men who attended the meeting at Montreal included A. Gagnier, Vitagraph; A. Larente, Specialty Film Import, Ltd.; L. A. Gorman, General Film Company; I. Soskin, Famous Players, and Maurice West, Fox Film Corporation.

Ohio May Have Local Option Censorship

Representative Paul M. Banker of Montgomery County, Ohio, has introduced a bill in the Ohio Legislature which, it is thought, will be passed by the Buckeye lawmakers and settle forever the question of Sunday motion picture shows. The bill is still in the hands of a committee of the lower house, and will be reported out in the near future and then be sent to the Ohio Senate for passage.

The Banker bill proposes local option elections in all cities to put the Sunday question directly up to the voters for decision. This means that the country districts will not be able to dictate to the cities, as they did on the prohibition question, and that cities like Cincinnati, Cleveland, Toledo, Dayton, Springfield, Akron, Youngstown and East Liverpool will continue to have Sunday movie shows.

Motion pictures managers see success written for their interests in the Banker bill, as a canvass of the State shows that the large cities want Sunday shows. In the smaller cities like Delaware, Zanesville, Sandusky, Fremont and Canton the sentiment for Sunday shows is strong.

Denver Town Impresses William Alexander

William Alexander, Western Division manager of United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., has been greatly impressed with the Great White Way of Denver and writes MOTION PICTURE NEWS as follows:

"After traveling all over the world in the interests of the motion picture industry I have come to the conclusion that Curtis street, between Sixteenth and Eighteenth, Denver, is without doubt the greatest street of its kind in the world from an amusement standpoint. There are eleven houses in these two blocks with a total seating capacity of 14,450.

"The total population of Denver is 250,000. This gives one seat on Curtis street for every sixteen people in Denver. Collectively, there are 33,000 25-watt lights used for display purposes on the fronts of the eleven houses. Mr. Ellison, the manager of the Rialto, who was good enough to give me all this data, tells me that Edison during his visit to Denver made the statement that, from the electric light standpoint, Curtis street was the greatest street in the world. The total cost of lighting the fronts of this string of theatres is $72,000 a year. The most novel electric display is that of the Rialto. Almost every foot of space in front of the building is covered by a sixteen candlepower glow, with the exception of the ten-foot letter sign reading 'Rialto,' which is entirely covered with the Tungsten lights, which is pure white and makes a wonderful display.

Perrin Leaves Goldwyn

Dwight S. Perrin, for more than a year publicity director for Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, announced this week that he has resigned from that organization, effective March 1. Future plans have not been made known.

Keeps Out "The Birth"

The West Virginia Legislature has passed a bill that prohibits plays like "The Birth of a Nation" in that State. It provides that no plays that will "arouse feeling between the races" are to be permitted in the Panhandle State.

New York Exhibitors Meet in Syracuse

Exhibitors Make History in Conference That Brings Out Record Attendance of Representative Theatre Men from All Sections of the Empire State

"THE legalizing of motion picture entertainment on Sundays," was the keynote sounded by President Sydney S. Cohen before the exhibitors of New York State, assembled at Syracuse, February 26-27.

From this nucleus the representative gathering gradually perfected what is expected to be the most aggressive and progressive exhibitors' organization in the entire country

President Cohen of New York City opened the meeting in the Hotel Onondago at 11 o'clock sharp Wednesday morning, and outlined the possibilities of a perfect State organization. His address was received with prolonged applause, and the convention immediately settled down to business.

Committees Announced

Secretary Berman then read the names of the various committeemen appointed to carry on the work of the conference:

On the Contracts and Deposits Committee are Jules Michaels, Ira Mosher, J. Schuchert, J. Knaster, M. Solomon and Lee Ochs.

Membership Committee: Messrs. Sheer, Rothman, Powers, Rachmil, Letson and Shapiro.

Finance Committee: Messrs. Linton, Michaels, Silverman, Cramides, Elliott and Wittman.

Grievance Committee: Messrs. Mosher, Goodman, Lux, Grobb, Reilly, Connel and Wolf.

Resolutions Committee: Messrs. Dillon, Halley, Lennberg, Hubbard, McCarthy, Weinberg and Brecher.

Organization Committee: Messrs. O'Reilly, Michaels, Suckno. Brandt and Manils.

Committee of Constitution and By-Laws: Grossman, Walker, Mosher, Sussman, Donlon and Manheimer.

Publicity Committee: Max Spiegel, Harold Franklin, W. A. Dillon, Louis Buettner, Vinegrad, Callahan and Sanders.

"We have the screen," declared Max Spiegel, chairman of the Publicity Committee, "the greatest medium of publicity in the world."

"We have used the screen for every propaganda. Now let us use it for our own benefit, and in order to give voice to the unquestioned desire of the people for Sunday motion pictures."

Franklin Interesting

Harold Franklin of Buffalo told of the work done in his city and expressed the opinion that the same kind of campaigning should be done in the balance of the state.

Mr. Franklin further stated that the publicity departments of the various manufacturers should be enlisted in this work. Considerable discussion took place here as to just how this publicity should be organized. It was finally left with the Publicity Committee to devise ways and means of promoting the propaganda.

W. H. Linton of Utica, chairman of the Finance Committee, reported that after careful consideration his committee had come to the conclusion that it would not request a single penny from any producer or distributor.

He stated that the funds for the work should be raised by dues and assessments levied upon the motion picture theatres of New York State on an equitable basis.

Cash on Hand

As chairman of the temporary executive committee, Jules Michaels stated that there was $4,104 now on hand, all of which had been raised by the exhibitors themselves.

More than $1,100 had been advanced by Messrs. Cohen, Berman and O'Reilly, he reported, and suggested that as the accounts of these gentlemen had been examined and approved they should be reimbursed for the expenditures made on behalf of the organization.

This report of the Finance Committee brought forth a long and varied discussion, but when finally submitted to a vote, was carried with only three votes against it, according to report.

Messrs. Brandt, Ochs and Manheimer registered their votes against it, and at this point Louis Blumenthal wanted to know what attitude the organization was going to take in regards to the National League.

A point of order was raised against Mr. Blumenthal and sustained by the chair.

A hot discussion was precipitated when Lee Ochs started to denounce the president for what he charged was an attempt to create a new organization regardless of the "Mother Local of New York" and "Local Number 5 of Brooklyn," which held the oldest charter.

Activity Aplenty

It is stated that loud contradictions arose from the various sections of the hall, but the chairman stilled the interruptions by declaring that Mr. Ochs should be permitted to have his say even though he was now engaged in film selling rather than in exhibiting.

Officers were then elected and all are unsalaried except that of secretary which was fixed at $1,200 a year. Dr. Royan S. Copeland, Health Commissioner of New York City, addressed the exhibitors, and Senator Thompson of Niagara also spoke at the first night session.

It was reported to be the consensus that this conference would have far reaching importance not only in New York State but throughout the country. For it was explained that it was the intention of the aggressive officers in charge to continue without abatement along progressive lines both in and out of season.

Among those present from New York City were: John Wittman, Eldorado theatre; B. Grobb, U. S. theatre, N. Vinegrad, Nicoland; Sidney Ascher, Metropolis; Sol Coleman, Coleman's; Max Kashin, Broadway; A. J. Bimberg, Schuyler; Frank Gorman, Yorkville Casino; Lawrence Bologinino, Arene; Max Spiegel, Strand; Sydney S. Cohen, Joe Leo and Elias Mayer.

From All Sections

Delegates at Syracuse from other points throughout the state were as follows: Dave Picker, Elsmore, Crotona; W. H. Dedsbury, Walden; J. M. Shine, Gloversville; L. F. Hanmore, Newburgh; C. S. Smith, Hornell; M. Sullivan, Watervliet; R. W. Laudry, Ogdensburg; Samuel Sheer, Corona; Robert E. Riley, Astoria; John Halley, Astoria; Mark Levy, Astoria; Jules Michaels, Buffalo; Harold Franklin, Buffalo; Earl Crabb, Buffalo; Joe Schuchert, Buffalo; Ira Mosher, Buffalo.

W. A. Callahan, A. W. Wolf and J. M. Salyerds were present from Rochester, while H. G. Lux, W. H. Linton and W. P. Donlon came from Utica.

Three exhibitors attended from Albany, George Roberts, Samuel Suckno and Fred Elliott.

Brooklyn exhibitors attended in goodly strength as follows: Jacob Grossman, Sylvia; H. Rachmil, Sheffield; H. Manus, Comberland; George Granidies, Fulton; Morris Goodman, Wyckoff; C. R. Martineau, 571 Fulton street.

Other delegates present, most of whom took an aggressive part in the proceedings, were: C. A. Hayman and Harris Lumberg of Niagara Falls; L. A. Buettner of Co-

(Continued on page 1466)

OFFICERS ELECTED AT MEETING

An Aggressive Set of Officers Will Pilot Destinies of New York Exhibitors

AT the conclusion of the two days' session of motion picture exhibitors of New York State, held in Syracuse February 26-27, the following officers were elected:

President, Sydney S. Cohen, New York City.

First Vice-President, William A. Dillon, Ithaca.

Second Vice-President, Ira M. Mosher, Buffalo.

Third Vice-President, T. A. Callahan, Rochester.

Fourth Vice-President, Frederick Elliott, Albany.

Treasurer, William H. Linton, Utica.

Secretary, S. I. Berman, New York City.

Chairman Executive Committee, Jules Michaels, Erie.

The Sergeant-at-Arms was Henry Cole of New York City.

Strand theatre (New York) attaches annual beefsteak dinner, at which Joseph L. Plunkett, managing director, was guest of honor

Brady Stays With the Association

Withdraws Resignation and Attends Dinner as Guest of Honor in Celebration of Event—Meeting in June

WILLIAM A. BRADY will continue as president of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, it was announced this week, as a result of a special meeting of the Board of Directors which was held at the headquarters in the Times Building, New York, last week.

In celebration of the event, the association gave Mr. Brady a dinner February 27 at the Ritz Hotel.

At the meeting February 24, which was called to consider the resignation of Mr. Brady, it was the unanimous opinion of the members present that under Mr. Brady's leadership the association had grown and prospered during the past two and one-half years, due mainly to his untiring efforts on behalf of the industry.

All members present expressed a desire that Mr. Brady should continue as the president until his term of office expires in June. A committee consisting of Arthur S. Friend of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, Richard A. Rowland of the Metro Pictures Corporation and R. H. Cochrane of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company was appointed to wait upon Mr. Brady conveying the sentiment as expressed by the members of the board.

At the afternoon session the committee reported that Mr. Brady had agreed to withdraw his resignation and continue as the president of the organization. Immediately after presenting the report, Mr. Brady attended the meeting and presided for the remainder of the session.

At the morning session the resignation of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America as members of Class 2 was accepted unanimously. The resignation of J. H. Hallberg as one of the representatives on the board from the Supply and Equipment, Class 3, was accepted. B. F. Porter was unanimously elected to the vacancy.

It was decided to hold the third annual meeting of the National Association in New York City on Monday, June 2, at 2 o'clock.

The Christie Film Company was elected as a member of Class C of the Producers' Division.

Prior to the afternoon session of the directors, a special meeting of the members of the association was held, when the by-laws were amended to provide for the entrance of individual exhibitors as members of Class 2.

Gives Film to Secretary of War Baker

At the office of Secretary of War Baker, in the state Army and Navy Building at Washington, D. C., on the afternoon of February 24, W. W. Hodkinson, of the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation of New York, formally presented to the Secretary a print of "Made in America" for preservation by the War Department.

The presentation was made in the presence of army officers. The Secretary, in receiving the gift, expressed his appreciation in a few eloquent words.

Prior to the presentation to Secretary Baker "Made in America" was shown to the Army experts at the War College.

Bushman-Bayne Exhibit Dogs at Garden

Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, formerly in Metro productions and who more recently completed a production for Vitagraph, exhibited nearly a dozen dogs at the recent Kennel Show in Madison Square Garden, New York City. Several won cups and ribbons.

Mr. and Mrs. Bushman were always on hand to answer questions and explain various points about the prize winners to inquirers, who displayed great interest in both stars and the canines.

Frank Woods Organizes Picture Fund

Announcement has been sent out by Frank E. Woods, selected by prominent people of the industry as organizer of Motion Picture Fund of America, giving a definite statement of the purposes of such an organization. Mr. Woods' circular in part gives the purpose of the organization as follows:

"A home for indigent members of the profession, especially the aged and disabled, said home to be established at first on a modest scale, but susceptible of enlargement.

"A relief and loan fund for cases of urgent necessity.

"A welfare committee which, among other things, shall take steps to discourage unqualified persons from seeking employment in motion pictures.

"A medical board whose services will be available in urgent and worthy cases.

"A legal aid staff to whom members of the professions without means may be referred for legal protection.

"A protective committee by whom matters affecting the profession as a whole may be handled.

"Among other activities will be committees on publication, entertainment and finance.

"There will be no salaries paid to officers of the organization."

In explanation Mr. Woods states the motion picture profession is to be construed to mean players, directors, assistants, scenario writers and editors, art and technical directors, film and title editors, publicity writers and producing officials. This organization is to take the place of the Motion Picture War Service Association recently dissolved, and among the founders of the Fund are Mary Pickford, D. W. Griffith, Dustin Farnum, William S. Hart and Mack Sennett, each of whom have subscribed five hundred dollars.

Hirsch Renews Business Activities

It was announced in New York this week that Nathan Hirsch, formerly general manager and president of the Pioneer Film Corporation, has organized a new concern under the corporate name of Aywon Film Company, and has purchased the rights of the Frohman Amusement Corporation's "Once to Every Man" for northern New York and northern New Jersey. Mr. Hirsch has also the option on several negatives, and as soon as he has located his office intends to inaugurate an intensive campaign among exhibitors in the state of New York and northern New Jersey.

Adler Denies "Accident" in Paper

Bert Adler, advertising manager of Inter-Ocean Film Corporation, who in a recent issue of a trade paper read mostly by vaudeville people, was given two inches of publicity in connection with his work for "The Better 'Ole," has asked that a contradiction be made of the paper's statement that his excellent showing on behalf of the picture was due to "luck."

Mr. Adler cites the fact that his copy for "The Better 'Ole" had identical position in six Sunday papers, which tends to show that his campaign was carefully planned and carried out fully as intended.

Thomas H. Ince Engages New Players

Lloyd Hughes has been signed by Thomas H. Ince on a long contract to work in Paramount pictures produced by Mr. Ince at his new Culver City studio. Mr. Hughes is only 21, comes from Bisbee, Ariz., and has been attending Polytechnic in Los Angeles. Mr. Ince saw him doing a bit of atmosphere in a picture and was so impressed by his work that he makes his debut in Paramount pictures shortly as leading man for Enid Bennett.

William Conklin, who has appeared in many motion pictures in leading and character parts, has also been signed by Mr. Ince, and among others under contract to appear in Ince pictures for Paramount are Douglas MacLean, Doris Lee and Otto Hoffman.

W. G. Gilmour has been made studio superintendent at the Thomas H. Ince plant. He is well known in this line of endeavor and was the first Universal manager, and built the first studio for that company on the Coast. He later went to Mr. Ince, at Inceville, and later to Triangle. When Mr. Ince left the latter concern Mr. Gilmour remained for a time and then went with Signal Films.

Rothacker Offices for Hollywood

Offices are shortly to be opened in Hollywood by the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company of Chicago, which will look after business of this firm in the West Coast producing colony. J. W. Smith of the technical department of the Rothacker plant at Chicago has arrived in Los Angeles and is supervising the collecting, assembling and shipping of the film. In numerous instances Mr. Smith finds it will be necessary to send messengers to Chicago with negative in order to speed delivery of prints. The location for the Hollywood offices has not been made.

Public Demands Novelty, Says Fredericks

Pauline Frederick, whose first Goldwyn production is "The Woman on the Index," declared that the public demands novelty and that they will get it in this picture.

She says that she has been obliged by the exigencies of her scenarios to do many strange things but that this latest picture requires her to do more than any of them.

In the course of the play she assumes four different names. Only one is an alias. The others are legally her own.

Another New One!

(Special to Motion Picture News)

Los Angeles is to have another magnificent motion picture theatre, according to announcements from the West Coast this week. Motion Picture News is advised by H. O. Wilson, manager of the Wilson Theatre System, Inc., of Los Angeles, that his company is financing a corporation to build a new million-dollar theatre in that city.

Full details have not been made known.

Buck Bill Arouses Springfield

Illinois Exhibitors Interested in Censorship Fight, But Deplore Lack of Help from Chicago and Other Cities in the State

THE Buck censorship bill has aroused considerable interest among exhibitors in Illinois, and in Springfield especially. It is said that it generally falls to the lot of Springfield motion picture owners to do all the work at the state house in trying to have censorship and other detrimental bills defeated, and some of the exhibitors are decrying the lack of help from Chicago and other cities.

W. W. Watts and Harry Loper are two of the most active men in Springfield in fighting the censorship. Mr. Watts said in an interview on February 24: "I wonder if the public really understands just what it will mean if the Buck bill passes. I do not believe it does. Should this bill pass Illinois will have state censorship. No pictures will be allowed in Illinois that have not passed the state censors. Think what this will mean to exhibitors in Springfield, Decatur, Lincoln, Jacksonville, and other cities farther to the South. Everything will have to come out of Chicago, and to get a package of films from Chicago to Cairo will take about two days' steady traveling. Think of the delays, disappointments and the losses such a state of affairs would bring.

"Such a bill would interfere with interstate commerce. We would not be able to book any pictures out of St. Louis, or any exchange outside of Illinois. Many of the cities in this territory and all farther south are being furnished shows from St. Louis.

"Now they want to exclude Cook County from the Buck censorship bill. Think what this will mean to local exhibitors and local motion picture patrons, without taking any of the rest of the State into consideration. We will have to have a picture that has passed the State Board of Censorship, and as we get all of our pictures from Chicago, we will also have to have them passed on by the Cook county censors. This will make two censorings of the films, and should the censors not be able to agree on what parts must be taken out, and both parts are taken out, how much of the original film will be left?

"Now everyone knows that every time you add more censor boards someone has to pay them their salaries. This, in the long run, goes back to the motion picture patron, and the more censor boards the higher will have to go the price of admission. If all these facts can be driven home to the man who pays his money to see a picture that he wants to see and not a picture that some crowd of reformers say he must see, I believe that the Buck bill will not be passed. This is one time when I do not believe in passing the Buck."

Harry Loper voiced the same sentiments. During the last fight on censorship, Loper was extremely active and devoted, with some others, nearly all of his time while the fight was on. He says he is willing to do all he can to kill the Buck bill, and wishes that the upstate and downstate organizations would show a more and greater desire to help ridding the industry of the "chain around its neck."

Ball Is a Big Hit Minus the Stars

Making of One-Reel Comedy Was the Box Office Attraction That Drew Public at Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE exhibitors are pointing with pride to the enormous success of the annual movie ball despite the fact that no motion picture stars were present.

Thirteen thousand persons paid the fifty cents each and the war tax at the box office, according to report, when the 1919 affair took place on February 15, at the Auditorium. The box office magnet that drew chiefly was the announcement that a one-reel comedy would be produced during the course of the festivities.

The Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company of Chicago was the bright shining star of the occasion.

In years past the exhibitors have promised the appearance of big stars, as an appeal for attendance of the class of people wanting to see the screen artists personally in action.

According to all reports from Milwaukee the people that thronged the Auditorium were not disappointed as the Rothacker Company is said to have provided real action during the four hours and fifteen minutes it took to produce the one-reel comedy.

All details were under the direction of E. O. Blackburn of the Rothacker Company of Chicago, and the script called for forty-two scenes. The cast was made up of nine principals and twenty extras, and three sets were built on the stage with a battery of twenty-six twin arcs, manipulated by the Rothacker crew.

The director was George Bainbridge, and the leads were played by Mildred Wayne and George Gibson of the Rothacker staff. The picture afterwards played the Alhambra theatre the week beginning February 23.

Other members of the Rothacker business and professional staff that attended the ball were Sumpter Calvert, Charles Bigelow, Frank Kirchner, W. B. Klingensmith, Ralph Johnson and Hazel Applegate.

"The Making of Mary Ann" was the title given the comedy, and the ball was staged under the auspices of The Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association of Wisconsin and the Milwaukee Theatre Managers' Association.

As one exhibitor said: "We have been getting the people of Milwaukee in every year by promises of showing them the stars. We have always disappointed them as the stars or producers would invariably renig at the last moment."

The exhibitors are giving great credit to the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company for its efficient work, and also its intrinsic worth as a box office attraction.

Soldiers Flock to See Chaplin Picture

Continuous showings of "Shoulder Arms" from nine o'clock in the morning until "Taps" at nine o'clock, in the 2,000 seat Post theatre, Camp Greenleaf, Chickamauga Park, Ga., failed to exhaust the demands of the soldiers quartered there on their patronage of the second Chaplin production to be released by First National Exhibitors' Circuit.

An admission price of twenty-five cents was charged, and when the theatre closed at the regulation army hour for the suspension of the military day, the open space before the house was jammed with uniformed men waiting to be admitted.

A return engagement of one day was played a week later, with the total number of paid admissions amounting to just twenty-one more than on the first day's run. Now the camp commandant wants to know how someone figuerd out a way to jam that additional number of men into a space which, on the occasion of the first showing, had been packed.

Hough Joins Universal Executive Staff

H. R. Hough, one of the best known business executives in California motion picture circles, having severed his connections with Triangle, has joined the executive force of Universal as business manager of the Universal City studios. Mr. Hough has been active in the film producing field for over four years, starting his motion picture work with Universal in 1914 as comptroller at Universal City. A similar position with Triangle followed two years later and he has been with the three-cornered trade mark until his return to the Universal fold last week.

When Triangle's Culver City studios were recently taken over by Goldwyn, Mr. Hough took charge of Triangle's business affairs on the Pacific Coast, making his headquarters at Los Angeles for several months.

Sales Reported on Short Gaumont Feature

Gaumont Company announces the closing of the following territory on its two-reel special, "Satan on Earth": New York State, exclusive of Greater New York, to Gardiner Syndicate, offices in Albany and Buffalo; western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, First National Exhibitors Exchange, Pittsburgh; Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, R. D. Lewis Film Company, Inc., Oklahoma City and Dallas; Ohio to Jack Stearn, Cleveland, and Michigan to the Metropolitan Company, Detroit.

Recent additions to Gaumont's list of independent exchanges handling Gaumont News Service are R. D. Lewis Film Company, Oklahoma City; First National Exchanges at Buffalo and New York City; Midwest Distributing Company, Milwaukee, for southern Wisconsin; Big Feature Rights Company, Louisville, for Kentucky, and Exhibitors Distributing Corporation for Canada.

DROP YOUR PENNY!

Albert E. Smith Finds Use for Forsaken Saloons

ALBERT E. SMITH, president of Vitagraph, has stepped in to bridge the gap between prohibition and the corner buildings that will be looking for new tenants July 1.

Mr. Smith has secured options on many of these locations in New York with the intention of trying out what is announced as a novel automatic motion picture machine of his own invention. The apparatus carries its own screen, and when the picture-hungry fan drops four pennies in the slot a topical film will be thrown upon the sheet. From the description given out it is expected that the corner buildings when fitted up with these machines will resemble the old-time "arcade" amusement places, some of which are yet in operation.

The new entertainment will be called the automat movie, and is the culmination of an idea given to Mr. Smith years ago at a Paris exposition.

Reissue Case Before Trades Commission

A hearing before John R. Dowlan, examiner for the Federal Trade Commission, was commenced Wednesday at the Federal Trade Commission's New York Branch, Woolworth Building, on a complaint against Joseph H. Simmonds of W. H. Productions Company, releasing re-issued William S. Hart and other pictures.

In the complaint Mr. Simmonds is accused of practices that "mislead and deceive the public." And it is further alleged that in the complaint that he employed business methods "with the intent and purpose and effect of stifling and suppressing competition in the motion picture industry in interstate commerce."

During Wednesday's session, Mr. Simmonds was on the stand and evidence was offered to show how pictures in which William S. Hart was starred and produced several years ago, were re-issued under a different title, "The Rough Neck" as "The Gentleman from Blue Gulch," "Pinto Ben" as "Horns and Hoofs" and "The Man from Nowhere" as "The Silent Stranger." Attorneys for the W. H. Company will seek to show that the original titles were prominent on film and advertising of all re-issues.

In answer Mr. Simmonds testified that he owns or had leased exclusive rights to these films. He testified that some of these films were re-edited and released under different titles. A list of twenty-one of William S. Hart pictures made some years ago were identified by Mr. Simmonds. The hearing will probably take two or three days. The legal firm of House, Grossman & Vorhaus represented William S. Hart at the hearing.

Three Service Sections in This Issue

Cleveland Stages Motion Picture Ball

For the first time in three years, Cleveland motion picture enthusiasts, fans, the members of the industry, indulged in the luxury of a motion picture ball. All good things come in either threes or sevens, they say, so maybe that is why this particular ball was such a great success. Over seven hundred couple were in the grand march which opened promptly at nine-thirty, in the ballroom of the Winton Hotel February 20. The march was led by Mr. and Mrs. Joe Grossman, life partners, and business partners in the management of the Standard theatre. A projection machine recorded the march and by almost superhuman energy on the part of the Argus Motion Picture Company of this city, it was flashed on a screen specially arranged for the occasion, just two hours later.

Dancing was the order of the evening. Many exhibitors and other members of the motion picture industry were present, as well as a large representation of actors and actresses who were playing at the theatres.

Late in the evening, a vaudeville program and a special posing act of girls, representing prominent motion picture stars, was introduced to entertain the foot-weary guests. Not until the wee small hours of the morning did the crowd begin to thin, and the milkman was well along on his route, when the lights were extinguished.

Roy B. Weisberg Out of Billy West Comedies

Milton L. Cohen, president of Bulls Eye Film Corporation, New York City, announced on February 25 that Roy B. Weisberg, who had been engaged by Bulls Eye to portray the character of Billy West, in the Billy West Comedies, which this corporation is producing, had abrogated his contract by walking out of the Bulls Eye studios in Hollywood, Cal. Mr. Cohen further announced that there will be no delay in releasing this series, as a new comedian has been signed.

Mr. Cohen said: "The Bulls Eye Film Corporation was formed some time ago for the purpose of producing Billy West Comedies, and the services of Roy B. Weisberg were required to portray the role of Billy West, a character used and exploited by another producing company whose interests were partly absorbed by us at the time of the formation of the Bulls Eye Film Corporation."

Syracuse Convention

(Continued from page 1463)

hoes, W. A. Dillon of Ithaca, Mossir Silverman and John Walker of Schenectady, F. N. Barhydt and Harry Hall of Troy, Samuel Liebschultz and J. W. Schwartz of Auburn, L. W. Goodman and Dave Cohen of Binghamton, F. J. Schweppe and E. J. Lorimore of Elmira.

The Syracuse exhibitors were, Edgar Weil, E. Connell and Ben Fitzger.

Other towns were represented by the following exhibitors: George Cohen, Poughkeepsie; C. L. Feinbeatt, Mt. Vernon; Al Hamilton, Yonkers; Edward C. Klapp, Amsterdam; Charles McCarthy, Hoosic Falls; B. G. Dittrich, Endicott.

Western Exhibitor Visits New York

Samuel Harding, proprietor of the Liberty theatre in Kansas City, Mo., the Princess at Omaha, and the Liberty at Council Bluffs, was a visitor to New York and Motion Picture News last week. While in the metropolis Mr. Harding was kept busy making the rounds of the distributors.

"The first ray of sunshine in more than five months for the Kansas City theatres came January 12," said Mr. Harding. "Beginning in September the season started off like a record breaker, and then came the influenza. This closed all Kansas City theatres for five weeks.

"We opened weak and just as we were beginning to get our stride again, we woke up one morning without street cars, and found that our city was in the throes of a car strike of no small proportions. On top of all this came the holidays, with people denying themselves motion pictures in order to spend a little money in presents to comfort the boys in France.

"Since Jan. 12 we have been running slightly above normal, but of course half a season has been wasted in losses."

Mr. Harding opened the Liberty theatre in Kansas City last July. It is in the heart of the shopping district and seats twelve hundred. Select Pictures, Nazimova, big open-market specials, and an occasional Goldwyn are the brands used.

He deplores the fact that although exhibitors organizations are spasmodically organized at times here and there, there is no huge concentrated effort made to solidify the industry in preparedness against the sure onslaught of the professional paid reformers, who will have a wealth of time on their hands now that Prohibition ceases to occupy them.

Screen Telegram Is Now "International News"

Effctive March 5, the Screen Telegram, the third unit of the tri-weekly news pictorial service issued by International Film Service, Inc., through Universal exchanges, will be known by a new name, and on that date will be issued for the first time under the title of "International News," and, as usual, will be issued each succeeding Wednesday thereafter.

The Screen Telegram was first issued by Mutual about one year ago. When International entered the tri-weekly news field after severing its relations with Pathe last December, The Screen Telegram was purchased from Mutual.

National Board Invites

The National Board of Review of Motion Pictures last week sent out invitations to a private review of "The Girl of the Marsh Croft" and "Out of the Fog," to be given on Tuesday, March 4, at Wurlitzer Fine Arts Hall in Forty-first street, New York City.

The review was designated as "a demonstration of European and American artistry in photoplay production." A discussion is scheduled to follow the showing.

Appeal for National Advertising

IN the following interview with A. H. Blank, proprietor of eight of the biggest houses in the Middle West and holder of the First National franchise in Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri, appeals for the national advertising campaign, for, as he says, "it will benefit not only the exhibitor but the advertising distributor as well":

"Advertising writers in New York City might look out the window and dream of cowboys, Indians and the plains, but just the same, when they write their copy, back in their mind is the picture of New York's Broadway and the theatres there," he said. "Uniform ads written by these agencies are almost a total waste of time and money," is his opinion.

"These national advertisers should pay more attention to their first run accounts. I know, because I have felt the results. For instance, Omaha is a key city for this territory. Exhibitors all over Nebraska and Iowa watch to see how a picture goes here.

"Suppose, instead of spending a lot of money for advertising in national magazines, that are not read by the people in the small towns, and for uniform ads that don't appeal to the Nebraska territory worth a cent, the distributor was to devote more attention to this first run exhibitor of his. Together they could advertise the picture. Together they could develop its possibilities with the eyes of the exhibitors in surrounding towns upon them.

"Then, too, these metropolitan newspapers in the cities where these first run accounts are, have a general circulation. For instance, a newspaper printed in Des Moines has a circulation of 1,200 in one town I know of that has a population of 10,000. The people who take that metropolitan newspaper see the publicity given the picture. This publicity is prepared for their special benefit—not for the benefit of someone with the left eye glued to Broadway, New York. What is the effect? Much is accomplished toward making that picture a success throughout the territory.

"In this way, too, the big distributor would help to educate some exhibitors who do not advertise enough. Omaha holds a place in the front rank among exhibitors who advertise properly, both in quantity and quality.

"If one of these big national advertisers walked up to me tonight and said, 'Mr. Blank, what is the greatest advertising service I can render you?' I would answer: 'National advertising, in the metropolitan newspapers, in the key cities.' And I believe every other exhibitor would answer in the same way.

"Individuality and personality in advertising copy are essential; as essential as an individual manager for every theatre. We took the old American legitimate theatre here, and H. M. Thomas, as manager, made that one of the leading motion picture houses in Omaha. How? By individuality and personality in advertising copy. The best legitimate shows on the road could have come to the American and starved. Some of them did; but we made a successful theatre out of it—by individuality and personality in advertising.

"Mr. Thomas has a letter on his desk from Anita Stewart, thanking him for the way in which he put over 'Virtuous Wives.' Mr. Thomas, you will recall, used an advertisement in French, and he used other individual and personal ideas. He is downstairs right this minute, placing the bears, lions, tigers, fat woman, tattooed sailor and others in a lobby display for Fred Stone's circus picture, 'Under the Top.' That is individuality and personality in advertising. He will have a bally-hoo band, his ushers dressed as clowns, and a calliope out in front. . . . But next week, when 'Our Teddy' is here, he will not do the same thing. He has already sent out 2,000 letters, worded in a dignified way, to members of the bar, inviting them to see the picture. His advertising will fit the picture. That is individuality and personality in advertising."

Camoufleurs Return to West Coast Haunts

A number of former members of Los Angeles motion picture colony who volunteered their services in the camouflage department in a company organized by Lee Lawson, formerly technical director at Universal City, have returned to Los Angeles, and in almost every instance resumed their former positions. These boys in most instances reached the thickest of the fighting on the western front, when they prepared various devices to fool the enemy. Among those who have returned are Norman H. Bosley, booker at the Paramount-Artcraft Exchange; Lieut. Lee Lawson; James O'Shea, who was with Griffith; Cullin Tate of Lasky, Earl Wooden, Sennett, and Doane Brush of Goldwyn.

Two Made Out of One in Cincinnati

A gain of one picture theatre will be recorded by Cincinnati in the near future, as it is proposed to make two theatres out of the Colonial theatre, on Motion Picture Square (West Fifth street). The Colonial will continue to operate under that name, but the name of the new tehatre is not definitely settled. Only a wall will separate the theatres, which will be under the same roof. The Colonial has been one of the most successful downtown theatres in Cincinnati. It was built about eight years ago.

New Theatre for Oklahoma City Site

John Sinopoula, owner of the Lyric theatre in Oklahoma City, has announced that he will build the most up-to-date theatre in America in Oklahoma City in the near future. He planned to erect the new theatre two years ago, but had to postpone it on account of the war.

Exhibitor Service Bureau

On the Way Over the Top

Remarkable Results in Getting Newspaper Cooperation Traced to Series of Articles Printed Here

IN concluding this series of articles on the co-operation of newspapers and motion picture theatres all over the country, we cannot leave the subject until we have called attention to some of the things that these stories have accomplished. From nearly every city that we have touched upon there have come letters from exhibitors and from newspapers. As a matter of fact, just as these words are being written there comes a letter from Richmond, Va., the last city discussed except New York, in which the writer says:

"All of the local managers are loud in their praise of the MOTION PICTURE NEWS since reading the article in the last issue."

But this is not intended merely as a list of commendations, for to do this would be practically to list the entire number of cities that have been covered. One of the interesting phases of these articles that have been seen in this office is the letters that have come from the newspapers themselves. Every one of these articles have been written with the complete copies of all the newspapers in each city for a period of a week. Not only have we carefully analyzed them both from the point of view of the exhibitor and that of the newspaper, but we have then reproduced for you our evidence, so that you could see for yourself just what the newspapers were doing or failing to do, and to what extent the theatres were contributing with their advertising.

The very first city that was discussed here was Salt Lake, and the newspaper that was commended as being the best in co-operating with the theatres promptly reproduced the statements that were made here about it, and then challenged the other papers to use the comment that was made on them. This latter was not done, but one of the other papers promptly engaged a photoplay editor who knows his business, and he was given the co-operation of this office. There have been improvements in the other papers.

Indianapolis immediately came to the front after the criticisms that were made there. The only Sunday paper had been giving the photoplay second place, using a small layout at the bottom of the page, but shortly after this it began playing the pictures at the top and now uses the front page in colors. This is largely due to the excellent advertising of S. Barret McCormick, for he wanted his advertising in colors on the back of that section. There has been a hundred per cent. improvement in the advertising of the other theatres there.

Almost the same thing happened in St. Louis. The Globe-Democrat had been giving the motion picture a much smaller heading than the legitimate stage, but now it gets equal, if not greater prominence. The advertising, instead of being scattered about, is grouped in the same section. The advertising manager of the Post-Dispatch, which was criticised for not printing a line of motion picture matter, promptly wrote us that he would see that the photoplay got its proper representation.

While we repeat that we are not going all the way down the line, we cannot help reproducing on the opposite page some concrete evidence of what these articles have done in two of the worst cities in the country so far as the co-operation of the newspapers is concerned. Here were two cities in which the exhibitors were showing a willingness to advertise liberally, and where they were being handicapped by the refusal of the leading papers to co-operate.

"Denver Couldn't Do Less" was the heading on the story about the Colorado city which appeared in the December 21 issue. Some of the things that we said in that article were: "The leading theatres show an inclination to do mighty good advertising, but they do not get a great deal in return. . . . Another disappointing thing about the situation is the evident inclination on the part of the papers to rank the legitimate as the main thing and let the photoplay take its chances, although the picture houses contribute the great majority of the advertising. . . . A glance at the amusement page of the Post shows that practically all of it is devoted to the legitimate." We went ahead to criticise the Post, which has far the largest circulation of any of the Denver papers, because the motion picture advertising was not assembled anywhere near the amusement matter and one was likely to find it buried in the want ad section or somewhere else.

Now look at the change that has come. On the opposite page we are reproducing two pages of a special four-page Amusement Section which the POST is issuing every Sunday. The motion picture gets far the larger share of the publicity matter, and we regret that we have not the space to reproduce all four of the pages as proof of that. And, more than ever, the motion picture houses dominate the advertising.

But we would hardly have believed ourselves that the Post could ever be persuaded to supply such a section and then give the position of prominence on the first page of the section to a motion picture star. But here is evidence that it does with the face of Nazimova adorning the central position. And this has been the case with each of these sections that we have seen since the change has been made.

Further than that, the attractions at the leading motion picture houses are grouped with those of the legitimate houses under the heading "Amusements of the Week." In other words, the Denver POST has granted equal, if not superior, recognition to the motion picture.

And if the change in Denver has been startling, certainly it has been mazing in Kansas City. We headed that article "Arrogance in Kansas City," and what we said about the Star was rather severe. We said then: "The Star gives the theatres NOTHING in the way of co-operation. Sometimes you will find one of these drawn illustrations and about a column of motion picture notes in the Star, but this matter is printed without the slightest reference to the interests of the local theatres. In the issues that we have at hand, daily and Sunday, there is not a reference to motion pictures except in the advertising columns." We referred to the fact that the Star permitted no heavy matter in the advertising and prohibited half-tones. At that time the motion picture advertising occupied about a third of one page. Now take a look at the TWO pages we have reproduced here.

And then we said toward the end of the article: "So far as the situation is concerned the deal that is being given the motion picture by the Star is a disgrace to Kansas City. The cock-sure, dictatorial policy of the Star offers not the slightest hope——"

But we were wrong there; and anyone who is wrong when it is set down that there is no hope in similar situations.

Look at the two pages again. In the first place, the advertising of the STAR has doubled, probably because the exhibitor is not given a chance to use cuts and to display his advertising. Before that article was written the entire management and staff of the STAR would have "turned over cold" if any theatre had even presumed to request the black and white effect that is used in the display of the Doric theatre.

And if you had tried to use a cut like the one in the display of the Liberty—you probably never would have emerged from the office.

But here is the proof that it can be done.

Here the reading matter on the two pages is devoted to motion pictures. In all the other Sunday issues that we have seen since the change has been made there have been drawings of motion picture players, but they were probably dropped from this issue.

(Continued on page 1470)

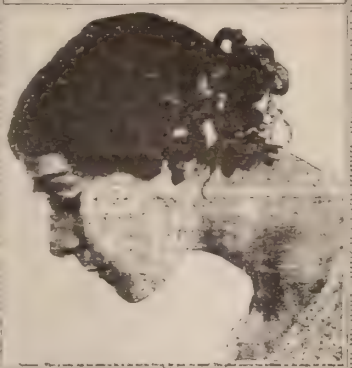
Real Revolution Strikes These Newspapers After Articles Here

At the top are two pages of the four-page amusement section now appearing in the Denver Post each Sunday. Below are two pages from the Kansas City Star. Read the article opposite for an account of this wonderful awakening

THE DENVER POST



Amusement section

AMUSEMENTS FOR THE WEEK

HALF-BAKED TALE OF BATTLE AND GREAT VARIETY OF HAY

'VELVET LADY' IS A SCREAM, GENUINE MUSICAL COMEDY

Successful Stage Beauties and Pensioners of Today Drive Down Big Salaries and Know How to Save—Are Real Financiers.

DOG IS RESCUED FROM DEATH TO MAKE A PICTURE

Webber Theater

Kodaks • Films FORD'S

AUDITORIUM TUESDAY FEB 18 ANNA CASE

RUSS JEWISH TENOR AMAZES NEW YORK, WILL SING IN DENVER

CYRIL MAUDE PLAYS IN NEW ROLE AS AN EX-ARMY OFFICER

MICHAEL H READY PARSON OF SCREEN OUTDOES ALL P'S

FRANCES MARION TO SETTLE DOWN

NOSE CLOGGED FROM COLD MAY LEAD TO SPANISH INFLUENZA

BROADWAY 7 Sunday, Feb. 23 THE MAN WHO CAME BACK

OGDEN TODAY AND TOMORROW JOHN BARRYMORE — RAFFLES

THOMPSON COLFAX & ADAMS TODAY DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS in MANHATTAN MADNESS

THOS. H. INCE Presents HENRY WALTHALL in The False Faces

A Paramount-Artcraft Special

Another "Lone Wolf" Story

COME

THE KANSAS CITY STAR, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1919

ROYAL

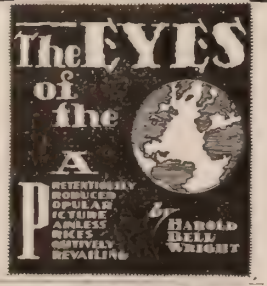
Pauline Frederick in "PAID IN FULL"

EUGENE WALTER'S TREMENDOUS SUCCESS

REGENT

Dorothy Gish in "Boots"

DORIC



Second Big Week Starts Today

WONDERLAND

PRISCILLA DEAN in "The WILDCAT OF PARIS"

12TH ST.

WM. FARNUM in "FOR FREEDOM"

LIBERTY

GAYOSO Theater

Harold Lockwood, the Immortal, in "THE GREAT ROMANCE"

Admission, Adults, 25c Children, 15c

AUDREY MUNSON in "Innocence"

IDLE HOUR THEATER

NEW CENTRE THEATRE

THE SEASONS SENSATION!!

THE MOST WONDERFUL SERMON EVER SHOWN ON THE SCREEN

The SLAVE MART

DEPICTING THE TRAGEDY OF MODERN GIRLS

A MOTHER AND EVERY WOMAN SHOULD SEE

ADMISSION 25 CENTS

THE KANSAS CITY STAR, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1919

APOLLO

3227 TROOST

Continuous Performances Today, 2:15 to 11:00 Without Stop

Schedule: Matinees, 2:15, 4:00, 5:45. Evenings, 7:15, 9:15

Today and Tomorrow

THE APOLLO WILL PRESENT

The Famous Roosevelt Picture

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT—AMERICAN"

The Events That Made Him Famous

The Traits That Made Him Loved

It Is an Inspiration! It Is Delightful!

It Will Make Better Americans!

Fitting Songs for the Occasion by Mr. Riker, Baritone

APOLLO ORCHESTRA PIPE ORGAN

ISIS

NAZIMOVA in EYE for EYE

LINWOOD "VIRTUOUS WIVES" ANITA STEWART

PRINCESS

ANITA

Bonaventure

Harold Lockwood

ELLSWORTH

CLADSTONE

ELECTRIC Frank Keenan in THE MIDNIGHT SKAG

WARWICK "The Silver King"

Strand DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS "ARIZONA"

CENTRAL GARDEN

GILLHAM DUSTIN FARNUM "The Light of Western Stars"

SPILLANE "The Romance of Tarzan"

QUEEN

MAYWOOD Mable Normand in "A Perfect 36"

MOZART

BANCROFT WALLACE REID in "HIS FAMILY FROM FUNERAL RANGE"

GRUBEL'S Mary Pickford in "Johnson Lobby"

MURRAY

ALAMO Elsie Ferguson in "His Parisian Wife"

GAUNTIER

HIGHLAND

AMERICAN

Many Newspapers Now Going Over the Top for Motion Pictures

(Continued from page 1468)

because additional advertising came in at the last moment. But it does seem the policy of the Star now to give the motion picture representation in the illustrations, too.

AND WE WANT TO CALL YOUR ATTENTION TO THE FACT THAT THE STAR IS NOW GIVING THE L E A D I N G MOTION PICTURE HOUSES READING NOTICES.

The reduction necessary here has made the pages so small that they can hardly be read, but in the page in the lower left hand corner there is a two-column head reading "First run photoplays shown here this week." It is true that the name of the theatre is not mentioned, but that is not needed, for the position in which the matter is placed allows easy reference to the advertising.

There is no question that this is one of the most radical departures that the conservative old STAR has ever taken.

And so much for the evidence.

When we began this series of articles we urged you exhibitors everywhere to call these articles to the attention of your newspapers, whether they happened to treat the situation in your city or somewhere else, and even stronger upon the theatre managers in the cities discussed to see that the editors and business managers of their newspapers read this article. We explained that these articles were written for the benefit of the exhibitor by a man with years of experience in newspaper work and in the greatest sense of fairness to the newspapers.

We have condemned lack of co-operation on the part of the exhibitors, and their failure to advertise, as bitterly as we did the refusal of the newspapers to give assistance. We have had concrete evidence of the fact that these articles have improved theatre advertising in every one of the cities discussed and that they have brought a general improvement through the industry.

But the point that we want to bring out right here is that it is up to you as an exhibitor to go to your newspaper and urge more co-operation. You have in this article one that shows exactly what has been done by two of the leading newspapers of the United States. There is not a newspaper publisher anywhere who does not know the Kansas City Star and the Denver Post, and if you will show them the revolution in sentiment so far as the motion picture is concerned we are sure that you will get results.

We are just now laying the plans for a series of articles that will further induce this co-operation, but announcement cannot be made for a few weeks.

When these articles first introduced to motion picture exhibitors the situation as a whole in the various cities the greater part of the advertising was not at a high notch. It has gone up fully a hundred per cent. in quality, and the quantity of it has been wonderfully increased.

Striking window display used by Woodlawn theatre, Chicago, on "Heart of Humanity"

We believe that in the past two years the great majority of those who thought that it did not pay to advertise have been convinced that we are wrong. We could cite hundreds of cases where that has been proven and where the change in sentiment can be traced directly to the articles published here.

If we have awakened the exhibitors and the newspapers to co-operation we believe that we have done a great deal. But there is more to be done and we hope to have our part in doing it in the next few months. Motion picture advertising is going to continue to increase, and we are just as sure that there is going to be a big leap forward in the aid from the newspapers.

But the efforts that are exerted here depend basically on what you, the exhibitor, do for your own interests. First you have to have the willingness to advertise and advertise to the fullest extent that you can afford so that you will get more business. The next thing is to talk over co-operation with the newspapers. There will be few cases found where there is not a real desire to meet you more than half way.

If this article and the ones that have preceded it form an inspiration for you to do more to get fullest co-operation, then they have been mighty well worth while all the hours that have been expended on them.

It's a whole lot safer feeling when you keep your feet on terra firma and your head out of the clouds.

Hyman Named Manager of Fox St. Louis Theatre

EDWARD L. HYMAN, who is well known to readers of the NEWS because of the many excellent articles that he has contributed to these pages has just been announced as the new managing director of Wm. Fox Liberty theatre, St. Louis.

Mr. Hyman first attracted the attention of the NEWS when he was manager of the Victoria theatre, Buffalo, one of the finest neighborhood houses in the country. Under his management this became a most popular house and has a clientele practically all of its own. Mr. Hyman's house organ was one of the most original published and his methods of dealing with his patrons interesting. On account of his work there he was invited to become a member of the Advisory Board.

Directly after the War Department Commission on Training Camp Activities started work Mr. Hyman volunteered his services and was immediately sent to take charge of the Liberty theatre at Camp Wheeler, near Macon, Ga. Later he was transferred to Camp Gordon, near Atlanta and shortly after that was placed in charge of the selection of the films for a number of the theatres. He was so successful in that work that he was again promoted and was then brought to New York and placed in charge of the division of films selecting those for all of the houses.

How Edwin Weinberg Puts the Personalty In

IS yours an impersonal house?

Do you depend almost entirely for your crowds upon the drawing power of the attraction—the location of the theatre—and the prices charged.

Or do people just naturally come to your house because they like to attend the kind of shows you give, and find a real pleasure in getting their entertainment under your roof?

Edwin O. Weinberg, manager of the Elmwood theatre, Buffalo, N. Y., which is a playhouse catering to the highest class, most critical class of patrons in the city, says that the success or failure of a house depends upon these elements of service in about this ratio:

Attraction pulling-power.....60%
Location 10%
Prices 15%
House Personality 15%

"Sometimes I think that last 15% ought to be doubled," said Mr. Weinberg to the Motion Picture News correspondent.

"I know of houses—dozens of them—that have been and always will be lemons because they are impersonal theatres. There is nothing in them outside of the pictures and the orchestra perhaps, which would emplant an appeal in a man or woman which would stay there long enough to draw them just unconsciously back time and time again.

"Many theatres, many of your competitors, have just as good pictures as you do these days. They are not slow to see the possibilities of an attraction. And then they have the reports on it from other houses.

"So it gets down to this. In order to make your theatre consistently patronized, to draw them into your house and to keep them away from the others, you have of necessity got to make them actually want to attend your shows in preference.

"How to do this? Make your house stand out in contrast with others! Inject personality into it.

"The whole psychology applies to the motion picture theatre. I have been in houses where a pall seemed to actually place itself upon you. The house was large and up-to-date, perhaps, but there seemed to be a coldness, an aloofness that couldn't be erased with warm music or healthy comedy and romance. You felt that you were in a mechanical contrivance where amusement was reeled out to you like ribbon over a counter. There didn't seem to be any personality.

"I wouldn't run a house that didn't actuate patrons to say: 'I like to go to the Elmwood. There's something so pleasing about it—different from the others. It isn't just a movie house—but a place where John and I spend hours that would have dragged.'"

"I believe I have such a house. It is not elaborate. But it embodies warmth, cries out welcome. It is not formal, for people do not like to be formal when they are being entertained, even if they are of the aristocrat, highly-educated type.

"My shows, I hope, never will become the night-in-and-night-out routine of overture, news reel, comedy and feature that thousands of shows are today. The house that doesn't possess individuality is going to lose its popularity just the same as an actress who never changes her act.

"Permeate your house with the joy that there really is in running a house just as good as you can. When that feeling is transmitted to your employees they are in turn going to transfer it to your patrons and the chain of success slips round and round. I think every manager should do his best to put himself over and in doing this he puts his house over. An aspiring manager isn't worth a whoop.

"These are a few points which I believe can help to give every exhibitor individuality and the pleasant service that makes them pick out your house.

"Provide your entertainment as skillfully and with as little effort as possible for it is up to you to remove with amusement the troubles that your patrons have accumulated during the working hours.

"Arrange the running-time of your show so that the home habits of your patronage is best met. If you have a late-arriving night crowd don't show your big numbers too early.

"Use your auxiliary attractions—music, is one of them, so that the very best is gotten out of it. There is nothing worse than a disinterested mechanical orchestra.

"Remember, that the children of your patrons are to them as they were to the immortal Camelia. They are their jewels. And therefore find wisdom in that fact. When the child's good will is yours the parents' follows easily. I never have neglected the children. There are hundreds who say children's matinees are "bloomers." I can prove otherwise. It all depends upon the way you go about it.

"But above all I believe a house should be homelike. Not the atmosphere that they have just left behind them, but one in which they feel they are being, rested, comforted, coddled and given 100 percent plus service."

Mr. Weinberg has an extensive mailing list. This list gets a chatty program weekly. This has become such a composite part of the Elmwood success that Mr. Weinberg has installed an electric addressing machine. Thus in a few hours the laborious task of "getting the program mailed" is out of the way.

WE'LL HELP THEM

Our Assistance Available to Newspapers for Your Sake

WE have had occasion several times recently to aid weekly newspapers that desired to co-operate with the exhibitors of their towns, but did not know how to go about the preparation of the matter and obtaining the material. On the request of exhibitors we took the matter up with the editors of the papers and we are glad to report that in each case a photoplay department has been launched and has proven successful from the start.

Naturally we do not feel like writing directly to the editors of these papers and suggesting things that they should do; that we confine to these columns. But at the request of any exhibitor we will be glad to take up this matter personally with the editor of the local paper and give him our fullest co-operation.

Please understand that we are doing this on behalf of you, the exhibitor. This is only a little incident of the sort of service that we are offering you. Anything in our power you have only to ask of us—and it will be done—without cost or obligation to you.

ADVISORY BOARD, EXHIBITORS SERVICE BUREAU

Thomas D. Soriero, Park theatre, Boston, and Strand theatres, Lowell
Harold B. Franklin, Shea's Hippodrome, Buffalo.
Edw. L. Hyman, Film Director, U. S. Liberty Theatres, New York.
E. Mandlebaum, Loew's Stillman theatre, Cleveland.
Mrs. Joseph Grossman, Standard theatre, Cleveland.
George J. Schade, Schade theatre, Sandusky.
H. C. Horater, Alhambra theatre, Toledo.
Mark Gates, Dayton theatre, Dayton, O.
S. Barret McCormick, Circle theatre, Indianapolis.
Theo. L. Hays, New Garrick theatre, St. Paul.
A. J. Moeller, Theatre de Luxe, Detroit.
Sid Laurence, Alhambra theatre, Detroit.
Chas. G. Branham, Majestic theatre, Detroit.
C. Edgar Momand, Garden theatre, Flint, Mich.
Leo A. Landau, Butterfly theatre, Milwaukee.
Charles C. Perry, Liberty theatre, Camp Cody, Texas.
W. S. McLaren, Majestic and Colonial theatres, Jackson, Mich.
Willard C. Patterson, Criterion theatre, Atlanta, Ga.
E. V. Richards, Jr., General Manager, Saenger Amusement Co., New Orleans.
C. A. Lick, New theatre, Fort Smith, Ark.
F. L. Newman, Royal and Regent theatres, Kansas City, Mo.
Herbert J. Thacher, Strand theatre, Salina, Kan.
H. M. Thomas, Strand theatre, Omaha.
Ralph Ruffner, Rialto theatre, Butte.
A. H. Hilton, Paramount theatre, Lewiston, Idaho.
George E. Carpenter, Paramount-Empress theatre, Salt Lake.
Sam W. B. Cohn, Spokane.
E. J. Myrick, Liberty theatre, Portland, Ore.
A. S. Kolstad, Liberty theatre, Hood River, Ore.
H. L. Percy, Rialto theatre, Medford, Ore.
P. E. Noble, Publicity Manager, Liberty and Columbia theatres, Seattle.
Eugene H. Roth, California theatre, San Francisco.
J. A. Partington, Imperial theatre, San Francisco.
Sidney Grauman, Grauman's theatre, Los Angeles.
A. C. H. Chamberlin, Opera House, Madera, Cal.

Your Idea and Ours

BROADWAY THEATRE, San Diego, Cal., has gotten an excellent effect through the way it has used the rules in this one. A halftone of Madge Kennedy has been used in the upper left hand corner and then the rules lead into the box effect, which carries the selling talk on the feature and the remainder of the program. As a matter of fact, on a page of the newspaper crowded with motion picture advertising this one stands out prominently and gets the eye.

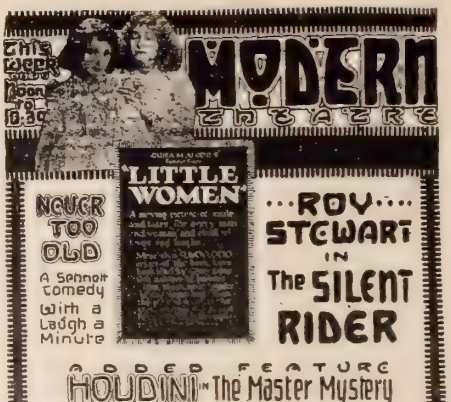
We like the brief talk about the picture, for here we have told us the charm of the story and its laughs. We believe in bringing out very strongly these days the happy angles of pictures that permit it. Where there is a choice between the laughs and the tears, we would take the former, and when you can add to this a few thrills you have gotten just about the biggest appeal to the most of the public. We believe that the desire to really be amused is stronger than ever, but the public wants to be surprised at the same time, and it's a good thing to keep the selling talks short and not try to tell the whole story.

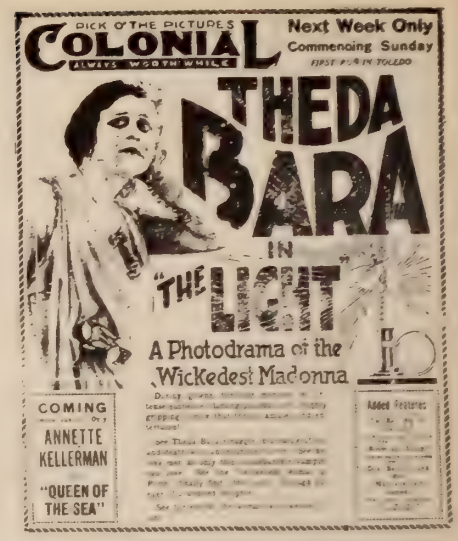
Let this be Leap Year for you—with a jump from plugging to progress.

IN ninety-nine cases out of a hundred we would say that such advertising as this was bad work, but in case of this half-page display of the Butterfly theatre, Milwaukee, we have to admit that it gets over with a wallop the points that Leo A. Landau wanted to impress upon the public.



Too true it is that in many productions the local manager has a lot of trouble in picking out from the stills that are furnished him any that mean something. In lots of cases the incidents are not even in the picture or the chief situations have not been supplied, but it must be said to the credit of the De Mille productions that they generally have the most attractive of stills, and it is true in this case. These scene pictures really mean something, and Mr. Landau has put under each one, in conversational form, sentences that give a mighty good idea of the sort of a story it is. We believe that instead of producing a crowded effect, as the first inspection would indicate, that the reader will go through every line of this.

Another point emphasized in this display is the high grade of pictures being shown at the Liberty. At the left there is a guarantee on this picture, and then at the right a list of attractions coming to the Butterfly.



Keep the Christmas spirit in your house up to the Fourth of July—and after it.

WE cannot imagine a worse case of putting into the background the thing that the theatre evidently wanted to bring out the strongest. In this seven-inch, three column display the Modern theatre, Providence, R. I., evidently wanted to bring out the announcement of "Little Women" and certainly that was the reason for the use of the cut, but the manner in which it was used gives not the slightest inkling of the connection. The announcement of the feature is used with black on white and the lettering so small that it can scarcely be read. Even the name of the author of this celebrated novel, Louisa M. Alcott, is not brought out. The Roy Stewart picture and the Houdini serial get much more attention, while the announcement of the Mack Sennett comedy merely serves to confuse.

This is simply another case of trying to advertise everything at once and getting over no punch at all.

BECAUSE of the reduction that is necessary in this quarter of a page display of the Colonial theatre, Toledo, O., the effect of the rays from the candle on the name of the star and the title of the picture do not really appear here. And our complaint is that they are too light in the original newspaper display. Here is a good idea, but the rays should have left a considerable white space through the lettering. Any real effect that is to be put over must be one that gets the first glance of the eye, not something that is absorbed later.

But the Colonial had prepared an interesting display here and has done the right thing by using a large cut of Miss Bara and playing her name and the title of the picture in large type, with one selling line, "A photodrama of the wickedest madonna" in a size smaller, and then going down into 12-point for the remainder of the selling argument. As the result the reader is much more apt to read the whole thing.

There is just one point that comes up here—that of distinctive borders. We note that the Toledo News-Bee uses an identical border for all of the motion picture houses in this particular issue. This is bad for any house that wants to establish itself: keep your theatre and its appeal always distinctive.

Let your theatre be the favorite orphan of the city—so that everyone will adopt it.

WE have talked so much about the equal display of two pictures and we have so uniformly condemned them that we hate to be found talking about the same thing again. And we wouldn't unless we had found our generally excellent advertising friend, the Eckel theatre, Syracuse, getting everyone mixed up with this one.

Here there has been used a picture of Arbuckle with the line across the top of the display bearing on this picture, and at the right we have a picture of Elsie Ferguson, though we would defy her best friend to recognize her from the cut that is used. The impression left is that she is addressing Arbuckle. After that we have "magnetic double bill" intervening, and finally, when we get down to the bottom, we have a reverse effect giving the titles of the two pictures. Except to the people who are simply followers of the two stars and will go to see any picture in which they are appearing, there is no appeal. Evidently the Eckel thought that Arbuckle was the biggest drawing card. Then why not go on and "sell" him to the limit, merely bringing the Ferguson picture in as an incidental? As it is, the display is a fairly pretty thing to look at, but utterly meaningless.

What Live Wires are Doing

Always be sure there is some oil in the stove before you try to lick the wick.

WHY rely on adjectives when you have facts? Why ignore plain statements that you know will bring people to your theatre? Why depend simply upon the name of the star and the title of a picture, no matter how good the both of them may be?

There may be four or five stars who will sell themselves to the general public no matter in what sort of a production they appear, but certainly you have not sold your offering to the widest field unless you have appealed to all the elements to which the picture is attractive.

Here the Picture Garden, Baltimore, uses four inches double column, with plenty of white space top, bottom and sides, but it fails to mention the name of the popular novel from which the story is made, and then uses the general statement, "supported by a brilliant cast" instead of giving the names. If this advertisement brought business to the Picture Garden, then twice the space, allowing the display of the matter that we have mentioned, would have kept them waiting outside. Get the possibilities of your picture and then take advantage of all of them.

Let's make every day a Washington's Birthday—in advertising.

HERE is a display that proves every argument that we have made about the use of unusual cuts of players in newspaper advertising. If the Crystal theatre, Indianapolis, has been able to get the best quality of printing it would have attracted the attention of everyone who glanced at the page. In this spage of 4½ inches across three columns the Crystal gave half of its appeal to the cut, and did so rightly.

There is distinct contrast here, because the name of the theatre is played stronger than anything else. The Crystal is evidently trying to sell itself first, and there again it is right, for the theatre is there to stay and the attraction is but a fleeting thing. With this realization why doesn't the theatre adopt a name plate and a distinctive border that will let everyone in Indianapolis know at a glance that this is the announcement of this house?

But it has done the next best thing by bringing out the name of the house, and then using a light face type for the star and picture. The selling argument is just enough to put it over. For inexpensive advertising it is mighty good.

The pen wouldn't be very mighty if the world didn't see the writing.

DON'T make any mistake about it. The big cut counts, especially if your papers can print halftones to stand out like this one of the Metropolitan theatre, Cleveland, O., does. But after you have gotten the eye with the halftone, you should do more than this—sell the picture. The reading matter, as far as it goes, is good, but it doesn't go far enough.

And what does the drawing at the lower left hand corner mean to the reader? It is supposed to be the picture of a member of the orchestra giving the kettle drum effect, but to the ordinary eye it looks more like a young man seated in a restaurant starting in to lay out the plans for a new residence. Of course, after you have studied the display you can see that this is meant in connection with the line "Metropolitan Concert Orchestra," but why not use the plan of Franklin at Shea's Hippodrome, with the orchestra in silhouette at the bottom?

Here is a case where the striking cut got the appeal, but the theatre failed to follow this up by putting over the reasons why the people should see the picture. The very line which reads: "Have you seen her yet?" seems to also indicate that if you have seen Mildred Harris you have satisfied your curiosity and there is no use to come to the theatre again. How much better it would be to have followed with the lines: "If you have ever seen her, you have remembered her for her wonderful appeal. You have thought a lot about the romance that resulted in her becoming the wife of the million-dollar comedian. In this picture you find the reason—you know why a girl loves."

Let the past stay buried; dig into the future.

ABOUT a year ago we printed, in the course of the "Diary of a Successful Exhibitor," an account of the way that a manager built up a big Saturday business for his house by getting the cooperation of the merchants of his community. In that case the theatre and the merchants united in issuing a booklet which called attention to the program at the theatre and to the special bargains that would be offered on the following Saturday.

But in the town of Snyder, Okla., this plan has been carried a step further and in order to induce patronage the merchants of that little city have arranged with the management of the Gem theatre to devote the Saturday matinee to the farmers who come in to trade. The merchants have bought the house outright for that performance and give free tickets to their customers from the country.

How New York Stages the Show

LAST week we told you how M. Kashin was reviving the first of the Chaplin pictures at the Broadway theatre in connection with the most recent one. Well, it looks very much like Chaplin is very much the vogue among the big New York houses, for at the Rialto this week Dr. Hugo Riesenfeld is showing "A Night in the Show," one of the comedies that Chaplin made while he was with Essanay.

Dr. Riesenfeld believes that these successful pictures can be revived and that they will be enjoyed as much as any others and so he has adopted a general title, "Rialto Comedy Classics," under which he will show not only these reissues, but other comedies that still have their appeal. And judging from the crowds and the laughter at the Rialto this week he has scored a knockout.

It might be called a genuine comedy bill at the Rialto for laughs prevail in the Charles Ray picture, "The Girl Dodger."

There is also a lot of laughter at the Strand, for the greater part of "The Better Ole" appeals to one's humor though there are a number of tense scenes. "East Lynne—With Variations," a Mack Sennett comedy, is on the bill there and is also playing at the Rivoli. Managing Director Plunkett has a special prelude for the picture.

At the Rivoli the feature is Pauline Frederick in "Paid in Full," the successful stage play made into motion pictures.

At the Broadway Mr. Kashin is retaining his Chaplin stunt, while the feature is Monroe Salisbury in "The Light of Victory."

Rivoli Theatre

ALTHOUGH it was never done up to about a couple of years ago when the relation of music to the motion picture became so intimate, it has been rather common lately to see the air of a song or instrumental feature carried into a picture, but at the Rivoli this week just the opposite is being done—the few bars of the selection in question being played with a picture and then the singer coming.

This occurs just at the end of the scenic when "There's a Long, Long Trail" is used and immediately at the close of the picture. The effect on the audience is to get it into the spirit of the tune, almost to the point where people all over the house begin to hum it and then to have it sung for you makes the appeal all the more intimate. And it is a novelty, and to do things differently, when they are well done, counts.

Tschaikowsky's "Fourth Symphony" is the overture and this is played with the lights all in gold with the windows at the side in green, merging into purple and pink. The overture opens with a flute obligato and then is taken up with the strings. The second and the last movements are used here, the second being touched with a feeling of sadness and the last reproducing the rejoicing of the multitude at some popular festival.

Then comes a Prizma picture, "Kiddies." First there are shown several of the ordinary American variety, the crying one getting a lot of laughs. "Golden Buttercups" is used until the Hopi Indian children come before the camera and here the music changes to "Scalp Dance." Next we go to Japan and see the almond-eyed little ones in the joys of toyland and for this "Chinese Lullaby" is used. The final period shows a little girl watching her mother "making up" and then stealing to the dressing table and imitating her. It is here that "Long, Long Trail" is used and then the curtains come together and after the orchestra has played a few strains of the same air the curtains part again.

For the song the setting shows a huge window in the center of the stage with heavy brown curtains on either side and one hanging light in red while the spot on the singer, Miss Julia Henry, comes from the side of the stage. She sings the first verse standing and then at the beginning of the second seats herself on the couch beside the window as if gazing into the distance and completes the selection. It is a most effective arrangement.

Rivoli Pictorial opens with pictures of the Atlantic fleet at target practise off Guantanamo. There are some effective shots of the big ships from a distance and then some close ups, the work of Gaumont. Pathe then presents pictures of the new battleship Idaho nearly ready for service at the Camden, N. J., shipyards and for both of these pictures "Triumphant March" is played. Then come pictures by Gaumont of the airmen in England and their Handley-Paige machine in which they expect to fly across the Atlantic. "Give a Little Credit to the Navy" is used up to the time that the machine takes the air and then the music fades out and we get the effects of the motor.

This takes us well into the element of sport and so we have next Gaumont pictures of the annual power boat races at Miami, many of the photos apparently having been taken from an airship. A galop is used until the scenes where we see a man riding at fifty miles an hour on a board towed by a launch when the music dims down and we have the cymbal effects used with a crash as he falls from his perilous perch. From sunny Florida we are transferred to Hanover, N. H., where we have the Dartmouth college boys at their winter sports and then Universal Current Events shows us Nelson breaking the Canadian ski record, for both of these "Speed 'Er Up" being used.

From Selig library come pictures of tricks staged by Tom Mix. There is a big laugh with "shotting him in the watch pocket" and some of the lasso stunts and where Mix shoots a cup out of a man's hand and a cowgirl drags a man through the water at the end of a lasso. Photoplay Magazine Screen Suppliment follows with an interesting picture of Helen Holmes and her adopted daughter and then shows J. P. McGowan, her husband, cutting on a scene at 2 a. m. A mysterioso is used until the title "Over forty years" and then we have "Bluebirds," at the waltz, played until the scene of the train wreck when the orchestra becomes tacit and we have effects only.

Then come a lot of comedy with Jeff and Mutt in "Fireman Save My Child." "Isme" and "Step With Pep" are the musical numbers used for this, but there are lots of imitations including the clanging of the bells, whistles where Mutt grabs the old man by the whiskers and the like. There is a very funny scene where Jeff is cooking ham and eggs on the fire engine, while he sits on a horse which is taking a rest. Then linked right in with this come Gaumont pictures of a New York tenement fire in which twenty families were driven from their homes. These are shown in red with a fire agitato used.

Now note one thing. These were brought in with the Jeff and Mutt fire pictures, but there was a reason for bringing them in AFTER instead of before. One does not feel like laughing at even a companion subject after they have seen misery indicated. But the laugh having preceded these actual fire pictures the effect was all the stronger. Gaumont then gives us pictures of Chicago welcoming home her negro soldiers and from the same source we have pictures of Lloyd George returning to England from France and then timely pictures by Gaumont of Premier Clemenceau. These show him shaking hands with soldiers and kissing kiddies among the refugees and get a world of applause, helped along by "La Pere de la Victoire." It makes a striking ending to the Pictorial.

After a few bars on the organ alone the curtains then part revealing an oval window with a blue sky background, just the edge of the rising moon visible over the trees and on either side two tall, slender trees. "Twilight" is then sung by the Rialto Quartette.

Nearly all the music for the feature, Pauline Frederick in "Paid in Full" is carried on the organ, the orchestra playing the first eleven selections and then coming back just before the end for three more. This is necessitated by the fact that the remainder of the program, including the comedy requires the orchestra. "Girl O'Mine" is the theme and this is first played when Jimmy enters with the flowers for Emma, again at the title "Jimmy's Coming Up" and finally at the very end.

After the orchestra has rendered "In a

Tips From First Showings Here

Monastery Garden" we have "East Lynne, With Variations," a screamingly funny Mack Sennett comedy. All of the action takes place in a theatre and we are alternately shown the happenings on the stage and in the audience. The orchestra has the time of its life with the effects here and with the burlesque stage effects there is ample opportunity. Especially strikingly do these come in with the scene where the girl is tied to the railroad tracks and we have the noise of the approaching train being made from behind the scenes in the picture. There is not space here to give the cues, but the music used, in order is: "Sometime," "Flower Song," a piece of dramatic music, "Our Jackies," a mysterioso, "Oh, You Beautiful Doll," as the girl appears in a bathing suit, an Indian war dance with the appearance of the stage Indians, effects for the train scene, an agitato and "Auld Lang Syne" at the end.

Callaerts' "Allegro Vivace" is the final organ selection.

Strand Theatre

MANAGING DIRECTOR JOSEPH PLUNKETT has given "The Better 'Ole" a splendid setting at its first presentation on any American screen at the Strand this week. The English atmosphere is carried through it from the overture to the end of the feature, and there is a special stage set and song as a prelude to the picture.

"Airs of Old England," especially arranged by Carl Edouarde, the Strand musical director, is the overture, and this is played with the lights in red at first, then coming up to gold and finally going down, there being no pause between the end of the overture and the start of the Strand Topical, which, appropriately enough, starts with Universal Current Events pictures of British troops receiving their standards before starting to join the march into Germany. Of course, the British airs continue through this, and the standards get wild applause from the audience, which the music has put well in the spirit for applause.

Then come Pathe pictures of the Miami boat races, and for these "Dare Devils" is used. This is followed by the Universal Current Events pictures of the ski record being broken, shown to "Arabia." The audience bursts into a roar of laughter as the orchestra so aptly introduced "Funeral March," with muffled drums, at the destruction of liquor at Phœnix, Ariz. And evidently the audience doesn't like anything that savors of the prohibitionists, for there is a storm of hisses. Coupled up with this is part of a Hy Mayer cartoon from Current Events, showing John Barleycorn gazing into a mirror and seeing a nut sundae. "President's March" is the tune used here for the Pathe pictures of the Idaho at the Camden shipyards.

Because the lighting effect cannot be reproduced the setting at the Strand this week loses much as reproduced here. The singer was garbed as "Ole Bill," carrying out the idea of "The Better 'Ole"

"Topics of the Day" follow, and there is an unusual variety of topics covered in these, among the best being "A Citizen of Nevada City, Cal., named Bierwago is having his name changed. Can you blame him?" and "Missouri man boasts that he has had an umbrella in his possession twenty years. That's long enough. He ought to return it." But the biggest applause comes with "Seattle seems to have the better Ole." "Cavalcabo Waltz" is the music for these.

We get back to pictures of news with Universal Current Events views of the Atlantic fleet at practice, with "Freedom and Honor" used, with full orchestral effect. Under the general heading of "In the Limelight" Pathe presents pictures of Mayor Ole Hansen and then of Captain "Matty" and then of Lieut. Flacheries, one of the leading French aviators who has just come to America. "Mailtonian March" is used here. Then we get to the big smash with Pathe pictures of the French building a pontoon bridge over the Rhine, a little French flag flying from each of the boats, then of women taking part in the German elections, the pictures being viewed in silence; French being decorated at the foot of the Kaiser's statue in Ems, and finally close-up pictures of Clemenceau. "March Lorraine" is the accompaniment.

Now the curtains part and we are given a view of a section of a trench at night with the blue clouds moving overhead, a single light burning in the trench and Malcolm Eachern, made up as "Old Bill," seated. There is a realistic moment after we hear the roar of guns when there comes a whirring and a rocket breaks over the trench. It startles the audience for a second until the song "Up From Somerset" is sung, and at the very end another rocket breaks and the curtains come to, the screen curtain immediately coming down and the projection of the picture starting.

"The Clans" is used for the opening, and when we have the title "The Three Musketeers" the audience swings into "La Rou la Dit," and at the change of scene there follows through No. 1 of "Irish Pictures." And then we are shown the scene at the recreation hut and the laughter that makes men sane we get "Back Up Your Troubles." Then we have a dramatic allegro until the stretcher bearers are seen, and then the organ takes up the music for eight minutes. Then it comes back with a few nights later at the tavern, when we have "Tommy" used at the chorus until the scene of the girl dancing, when "La Kraguette" is played, changing into "Jo Sais Cue Vous Etes gentil" as Old Bill and the girl get up on the platform, yielding to a few bars of "Oh, Frenchy," as the officers are seen.

"Crafty Spy" is used with the scene of Bill and the spy, and then as his two friends look through the window there are comedy piano effects for Old Bill playing, and then with the title "That night in a ruined chateau" the organ takes up the music for fifteen minutes, the orchestra coming back as the letter carrier is seen leaving the room, and taking up "Venus de Milo." With the title "Wednesday night" "Tommy" is again brought in, followed by "Plum and Apple," and the "Chanson de Nuit" played until the shell bursts, when we have "Gruesome Mysterioso," and then when Bert looks at his watch "Venus de Milo" is again used. When we see the spy in the ruins we have "Phedre" No. 3, which continues until Bill is wounded, when the orchestra swings into "Nocturne" at E, played agitato.

Music Hints For Entire Programs

There is a pretty touch of the music when "Reveries" is used for the scene at night in the guardroom, followed by "Chut pas Bruit" with the scene at headquarters. As the guard presents arms a meastoso is used. Then comes the title "What you say," and the orchestra swings into "Fighting Tommies," with "Tommy" repeated once more "And That Night." Then the organ takes up the music again and is relieved by the orchestra with the title "The end of the leave," with "Goodbye." And then during the last hours "eHart of a Rose" is used. The final change is with the title "Till It's All Over," and here we have a gay and tuneful selection in "My Word, Ain't We Carryin' On," at the chorus.

It is a strikingly effective musical arrangement and ought to contain valuable suggestions to other exhibitors.

Then follows the same comedy that is being shown at the Rivoli, "East Lynne—With Variations." As it happens, on account of the time limits the comedy has been cut at both houses, and slightly differently, though the cuts at the Rivoli appear to have been greater. For the start of this we have a comedy overture played in burlesque fashion, and then when the title calls for "sneaky music" we have this on the violin, with "Baby Doll" coming in for the girl. As the villain seeks to ride into the house we have "Come On," and at the scene of the fight the organ takes up the music for six minutes. At the title "Forty Years Later" we get "My Beautiful Sea," and there follows through "You Never Know" until the title "Act Three," when "Scalp Dance" is used for the Indian scenes, with a mysterioso coming with the title "It Is I, Redney." Then with "Saved Again" we have the laughs accentuated with "I Have Just One Heart." Then after the curtain we have "Big Night Tonight." It is certainly an arrangement that sends them away from the theatre laughing.

While there is pathos and quite a few grabs at the heart in the feature, the bill at the Strand might well be called a good-natured one.

Rialto Theatre

IF the Rialto theatre audience which packed the house to the doors Sunday is any criterion, the Chaplin comedies which were made while he was with Essanay and which are to be shown again by Dr. Riesenfeld to Broadway crowds, they go just as well and get as many laughs as they did when they were first produced. Coupled with the Charles Ray feature there is certainly enough good humor at the Rialto to make even a bartender forget that prohibition is coming.

Selections from "Faust" form the overture and it is played with the lights all in gold. It opens with the brass, largely horns and trombones, and then the strings come in with the reflective music, and finally the organ and orchestra uniting at the end of the first selection. At one time the organ carries the main motif and then the final burst is with every piece in the orchestra exerted to the fullest. It is the sort of an overture that gets a world of enthusiastic applause.

This elaborate stage setting was used by Harold B. Franklin at Shea's Hippodrome Washington's Birthday week. In the center there was reproduced Corot's "Dance of Nymphs," and at the left the capitol and at the right Washington crossing the Delaware. These were unveiled after the center to the music of "Stars and Stripes Forever"

Then follows Dr. Leonard Sugden lecturing on the second of his Prizma pictures, "Alaskan Revelation." There are a few bars on the organ before he appears. There are some interesting pictures here, one with a girl posing as Psyche on an iceberg, others showing the birth of a berg and still others the wonderful colors of the floating masses of ice. Toward the end of his talk Dr. Sugden recites a verse of his own and "Samson and Delilah" is used on the organ.

Rialto Magazine opens with Kinogram pictures of Gen. Edwards awarding medals of honor at Boston, one of them being presented to the father of a slain hero. Then come Gaumont pictures of Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker reporting to his chief in Washington, and for both of these "New York Hippodrome March" is employed. Then come Photoplay Magazine pictures of "Screen Players Off and On," first showing us Paddy McGuire and Ben Turpin and then two of the reasons why Cleo Ridgely disappeared from the screen, this being an intimate picture of her and her children. "Canzonetta" is the accompaniment. Linked right up with these are Pathe pictures of "Babyland" in New York city, and the shots of the kiddies feeding each other gets a hearty laugh. "Cradle Song" is used here. This is followed by a cartoon, "Movie Pests," from Photoplay Magazine Screen Supplement, which shows the fellow who is always commenting on what is going to happen next in the picture. "Harrison Fisher Girls" is the music.

Then come Gaumont pictures of the reason for the drop in eggs shown at Van Nuys, Cal., with thousands of chickens at work to bring the price down. "Chicken Reel" is the appropriate thing that is played. From the same source come pictures of the new commander of the Mare Island Navy Yard taking charge, and here we have "Freedom" played with the full orchestral effects and lots of cheers for the marching sailors. Kimograms closes the Magazine with intimate pictures of Clemenceau, showing him at the front and with Gen. Haig. The trio from "Marche Lorraine" is played.

After James Harrod sings "Aubade" comes the feature, Charles Ray in "The Girl Dodger." Comedy abounds through this and the audience is kept highly interested between the laughs. "College Life" is used with the opening scenes, and then when the girl dodger enters Travistock's room "Forsaken" is play in a way that gets more laughs, followed through with "Bl[illegible]." Again after Travistock settles with Trotman's landlady we have "Forsaken" again, and then "Dutch Windmill" with the picture of Travistock senior. At the seaside hotel the music becomes "The Valse We Love." and with the title "Pass that good-looking driver," "Avec Elan." With the caution to remember that she is a wild woman. "Forsaken" is once more employed. With the title "On the road" the theme is first used, "Melodie," followed by "Tremolo Trot" as they are seen driving, and then a numbered selection. Where Travistock is seen driving off in a car "Erstwhile Susan" is played, and then the theme as the girl enters the room. With the title "Of course he must have told you" the organ takes up the playing of the picture, coming back with a numbered selection with "Everyone in this room," a babillage, another numbered selection, and finally as apologies are demanded we have "Vivienne," with the theme coming back at the end starting with the title "One A. M. and all's well."

New York's Way

With the lights all in red the orchestra then plays "Chu Chin Chow."

Dr. Riesenfeld has taken great pains with the preparation of the music for the revived Chaplin comedy "A Night in the Show," and when the great musician does this you may be sure that you are going to have some music and some effects. We have said a lot about music in these pages, but most of it has applied to the features or other portions of the program, but let us say right here that we believe the proper arrangement of the music can add a great deal to the enjoyment of the funniest of comedies.

As a matter of fact the audience never starts laughing through this one from the time that Chaplin appears at the ticket window. "Chaplin Feet" is the selection used here and played until he sees the ugly woman, when there is a pause and a numbered selection, turning to "Holland" No. 2 with the appearance of the trombone player and then a numbered selection with effects as Chaplin is hit on the head. This continues until he throws the woman into the water for the second time when we again get "Chaplin Feet." When he sees the girl the music becomes "Valse Bleue." When the rowdy in the balcony, also played by Chaplin, takes out the bottle there is "Cyclone in Darktown" used. As the big fellow takes a seat beside the girl with whom Charlie is flirting "Valse Bleue" is used again. When La Belle Wienerwurst comes out for her dance "Polyamet" is played until the curtain drops and then "Tickle the Ivories." When Dot and Dash make their appearance on the stage the orchestra swings into "What Are the Wild Waves Saying?" and then as Charlie kicks the little fellow from the stage, "La Coquette." With the appearance of the fire eater comes "Ghost Dance," and then a numbered selection for speedy action as the hose gets to work.

The audience greets the end of this comedy with a big burst of applause.

"The Lost Chord" is the organ solo.

The Broadway

SO successful was the arrangement of His First and Last, the combination of the first motion picture in which Charles Chaplin ever appeared, and his most recent production, "Shoulder Arms," that the stunt is being held over this week at the Broadway. The feature attraction is Monroe Salisbury in "The Light of Victory."

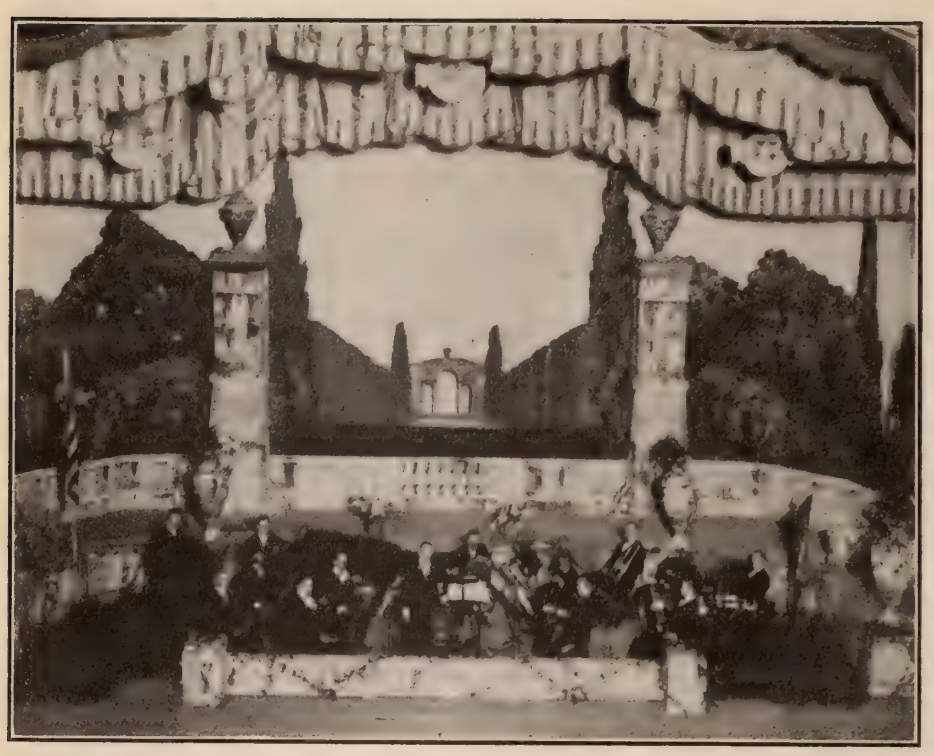
"Victorious Democracy" is the overture and this is played with the full setting showing the Oriental city, with the lights in red and the orchestra flooded in white. This is certainly a timely selection for the week in which the President has come back to place his plans for the League of Nations before the people of this country. This is the first time that it has been played in New York.

Here is the stage setting that was used by Loew's Valentine theatre, Toledo, when "A Romance of Happy Valley" was presented. Manager E. H. Gerstle costumed his ushers in gingham aprons and his orchestra played old time Southern melodies as an overture.

Then follows the Broadway Topical Digest, opening with Universal Current Events pictures of the ski record being broken, and then follow from the same source the Atlantic fleet at practice. "Ace High" is played for the pictures and "The Picadore March" for the battleships. Screen Telegram then has pictures of Gen. Edwards decorating the father of George Delby, one of the slain American heroes, at Boston, and here "Hail America" is used with splendid effect. The Screen Telegram presents some exclusive pictures of the boys of New York's own division on the way home. These pictures do not show them actually on the ship, but it does show them at Orges, France and their final inspection and then on the march. Naturally the pictures call forth the full enthusiasm of the audience.

From Current Events come pictures of Clemenceau, these showing him inspecting an American sector. Here "La Pere de la Victoire" is played. From Current Events come scenes in the Bolshevik uprising in Berlin, showing the crowds pouring into Unter der Linden and gatherings of the Sparticides. There is a shot of the first allied officers to reach Berlin, and then of the first American privates, two buck negroes from North Carolina. "Dance of the Harpies" is used for this.

There are right-up-to-the-minute pictures from International showing President Wilson landing in Boston. These are intimate views and show the executive from the time the tender comes to the dock until he leaves on a train for Washington. There is applause every minute during these. They show the elaborate plans carried out in guarding him, and there is one particularly fine shot when he stands up in the automobile to salute the crowds.



"How the Mighty Have Fallen" is a Hy Mayer cartoon which closes the Digest. First a cheval mirror is drawn, and then the figure of the former Czar appears and he is seen looking into the mirror and finding there Lenine. Then comes the Kaiser who sees Ebert, and finally John Barleycorn, who finds himself staring at a nut Sundae. Then follows Topics of the Day.

With the lights dim and night effects on the Oriental set, some of the buildings in the foreground lighted, Mlle. Jeanne Aubert sings "So San Rosa," the Melba waltz. The red spot on the singer gradually changes to a daylight effect toward the end of the number.

Then comes the feature, "Fighting Tommies," beong used at the screening with "Bon Vivant," following through the scenes in California. "Life and Love" is the theme and it is introduced with the title "Lieutenant Commander." When news of the declaration of war is received "Maseniello" is used with heavy drum effects. As Jane is seen reading the letter "False Faces" is played, and then when Blenton is seen drinking with the negro bartender "Over There" is played. Then there is a title which says "I'd go to hell for the United States—And he did," and here "Joan of Arc" is used. The theme is brought back again when June is seen consulting with the officer and deciding that she must save Blenton. It is brought back again almost at the end and then there is a dramatic effect obtained with the use of "Taps" for the man without a country who has died a hero.

Then follows the Chaplin arrangement, the same music being used as was described last week. The orchestra helps wonderfully in putting this over and the clever effects get big laughs.

"Pilgrim's Chorus" is the organ solo.

Stage setting with orchestra at the Dayton theatre, Dayton, Ohio

Producer Praises Horater's Plans for Getting Big Publicity for the Alhambra in Toledo, O.

FROM the publicity department of Goldwyn Pictures comes a story about the way that H. C. Horater, manager of the Alhambra, Toledo, plans his advertising campaign. Mr. Horater is a member of the Advisory Board of the MOTION PICTURE NEWS, and frequent accounts of his work have appeared in these pages, so that the estimate of a producer will be interesting. We quote:

"'Doc's' maxims for profitable exhibiting are simple. He selects the class of motion pictures that appeal to people of particular fancies and then goes the limit in advertising and exploitation. More than $15,000 he invests annually in newspaper display advertising, and in addition, about half this sum is appropriated for special stunts, house literature and billboard exploitation.

"'Doc' conducts his business on a broad and systematic basis. No jerky or spasmodic campaigns and no half-hearted efforts are employed by the Alhambra. Several weeks before the showing of a feature production, Horater summons the advertising solicitors of the daily newspapers of Toledo. Several sheets of foolscap are before him and the producer's press books and special stunts are handy.

"'Doc's' plans are ready for execution, but before he gives the order to fire he wants to be absolutely sure that he will receive the proper co-operation from the press. The conference lasts an hour or so, and after ideas and suggestions have been submitted and judiciously weighed from all angles, the campaign received 'Doc's' O. K.—and the newspapers and billboards do the rest.

"'You cannot be successful as an exhibitor without a liberal advertising policy,' says the Alhambra director. 'No matter how good a picture may be, you will not insure its profitable presentation minus newspaper and outdoor publicity.

"'Many exhibitors underestimate the importance of letting their newspapermen have free rein; these men think and plan advertising and publicity nine hours each day, and they have many good suggestions if the manager will only take them into his confidence and encourage them.

"'I firmly believe in the necessity of planning the advertising campaign many weeks in advance. Do not wait until the last minute. Read the campaigns given in the press books, pick out what you think is adaptable to your city, add to these any original ideas of your own and then get busy and appropriate the proper sum to put them over.

"'I, for one, believe in letting the producing companies and their exchanges make money. The concerns I deal with deserve to realize the utmost on their picturdes, because they are honest and sincere in their efforts. An exhibitor should not try to bargain on pictures. It doesn't pay. If a manager knows his business and is on the job as he should be, he will make money by his presentation of subjects and not rely on reductions and cut-throat methods to swell his revenue.

"'I do not hesitate to say that I rank Goldwyn as the leading producing and distributing company in the industry. Goldwyn has a fine bunch of fellows in its organization, and I can always count on a square deal at all times. I feature Goldwyn's entire output because Goldwyn Pictures stand squarely on their record and merit and are considered the highest in quality by our patrons.'

"Fairness is written all over 'Doc' Horater. He is on the job every hour of the day and until the wee hours of the morning, and his capacity for hard work is nothing short of remarkable. Horater personally supervises every detail of the presentation of pictures and reviews and edits his subjects with the skilled eye and mind of one who thoroughly understands the art of modern-day exhibition."

Gates Gives Orchestra Credit for Success of Pictures at Dayton Theatre

MARK GATES, managing director of the New Dayton theatre, Dayton, Ohio, is a great believer in music and has one of the finest orchestras in the country playing at his handsome new theatre. Hewitt H. Thomas is the director of the orchestra.

As an illustration of the reliance that is placed on the music and effects at the Dayton the example of the recent presentation of "The Still Alarm" may be cited. A stage crew of five was employed to produce the effects in addition to those from the orchestra.

One scene in the picture shows an entire balcony, with two of the actors thereon just about to collapse into the burning structure. Just as the explosion took place the stage effects were used and the noise could be heard for squares. A large empty barrel and a shotgun produced more noise than anything else that could have been used. "The Still Alarm," although booked for four days originally, was held over for one week, and despite the rain and cold weather was the biggest showing up to its showing at that house.

Many cases can be cited where the runs of different attractions were lengthened due to the efforts of Mr. Thomas and the work of the orchestra, among these being special settings that were used for "The Romance of Tarzan," "Tarzan of the Apes," "Pershing's Crusaders," "America's Answer," "The Greatest Thing in Life," "Les Miserables" and many other films.

New Mexico Is Given First Photoplay Column

New Mexico now has its first real motion picture department in a daily newspaper and reports that have come from Santa Fe says that this department in the New Mexican has increased interest in motion pictures which has been at a low ebb on account of the "flu."

The department is headed "Movie Chatter," and is edited by "Cinema Sam." The editor of the department, Phil H. LeNoir, reports that he has been getting little material from the publicity departments of the film companies and so this is a tip to the press agents.

When available to New Mexican uses cuts. Otherwise the matter is confined to short, snappy paragraphs of interest. It is a mighty creditable beginning, giving the fans just what they want.

Small Fellows Put Blame on Exchanges

A RAY OF HOPE COMES AMID THE COMPLAINTS

One Small Town Exhibitor is Making Money With the Specials Every Two Weeks

PRINTED in these columns are letters from real small-town exhibitors. Two of them are serious complaints about the sort of matter they are getting from the exchanges. They are not complaining so much about the quality of the pictures themselves as the fact that they are left alone to do the exploitation.

Two of these men point out that they are told about all of the fine things they are going to get to help them and that when their order is filled they find little of the material that they have asked for. It is distinctly up to the exchange to see that the small exhibitor does get this material. He needs it far more than the big fellow, who has his publicity man and who can prepare his own advertising.

But there comes a ray of hope from one of these small towns where an exhibitor tells about booking a special every two weeks, increasing his prices and making money. He evidently is more fortunate in getting his material from the exchanges. Do not pass over these letters because they appear too long. Certainly do not quit reading until you have come to that of Filmore, Utah.

This department is here to help you exhibitors, from largest to smallest. Let's hear about your troubles as well as your successes.

RECENTLY there have come to this office many complaints from exhibitors to the effect that they are practically barred from getting the best results out of big pictures because the theatres cannot get the material from the exchanges that is promised by the producers. We have already printed several letters giving specific instances where the exhibitor has ordered matter that was promised by the press book and was either informed that the exchange did not have this matter on hand or was simply sent something that he did not want, and without any explanation.

It is unfortunate that in many cases the exchange man is not so equipped as to supply promptly the specific matter for which an exhibitor asks. Service has developed in a comparatively short time, and we don't have to hearken back far to the time that most film salesmen thought that all they had to do was to get the theatre manager's name on the dotted line and then ship him along the film just in time for the showing. But exhibitors everywhere are giving more attention to the exploitation of pictures and they are watching the suggestions that are given them week after week in the MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

We have invited you exhibitors to tell your trouble here. The Exhibitors' Service Bureau is by, for and of the exhibitors of the country, and unless they avail themselves of the open forum that they have here. There is a growing desire on the part of the producers, and the idea is being driven home to the exchange men, that the exhibitor must be helped to the limit where he shows a desire to do something more than merely "run a picture." If the helps are not forthcoming it is up to you to let your wants become known. The wise producer and distributor is no longer working on the old theory that "the exhibitor is wrong." A few complaints and they are going to find out for themselves just who is at fault.

Here is a portion of a letter from B. E. Dawson, who declares that he is giving up the management of the Palace theatre, Waseca, Minn., because he cannot stand the many worries that confront him in getting co-operation from the exchanges. He writes:

"In retiring from the business I am doing so for mainly one reason—there is too much grief attached to the game, and it grows instead of modifying—there is too much inefficient help employed in the exchanges. They are the direct cause of more failures in the business than any other, and the man at the foot of the ladder, who is collecting the nickels and dimes to carry on the whole industry, has no support or redress whatever—he must take it or leave it as he pleases. If he changes to another exchange he finds the same treatment. What is it, you may ask; just a lot of little things, but the items are those of importance. At one time you may have two or three sets of advertising on one subject and nothing for the one to follow; you may have the wrong photos when you open up for display. You are forced to pay a week in advance, and quite often I have paid several weeks ahead, but in spite of this fact I will get films occasionally C. O. D., with extra costs and taking perhaps weeks to get the account straightened out again, and by that time it happens again.

Mixing Up the Picture

"You will be booked perhaps with a good one—yes, it sometimes happens, and you will throw your personality into your advertising to try and interest your people in seeing something out of the ordinary, and instead you will get a substitute, and nine times out of ten it will be a film you have run before. Another time you will perhaps have a picture with merit enough to hold your patrons through to the end—not the end of the story, but the end of the film, which comes only too quickly—with perhaps the last two or three scenes entirely gone, so as to finish the play in a fitting manner according to the views of the average inspector of films, they just dig around until they find a leader with 'The End' and stick it on, leaving us and our patrons with no solution to the climax. Yes, boys, it's some game when we have to put up with all the above, and no one will deny the truth of the foregoing unless it be the guilty, and these denials are of that rubber stamp variety that we all know by heart.

"I need the money, God knows, but money is not all there is to life. I have seen ten years of just such as above crowding into my life daily, and if there is one who can enjoy such I am ready to take my hat off to him.

Pictures of the Old Days

"It will be a relief to know that a morning will come without the usual worry of whether or not the films have arrived, or the necessity in calling up the exchange to ask if shipment was made, and perhaps to find that because a boob of an exhibitor (as they usually say it) failed to ship, you will not be able to get your show today. Yes, it's some game; one that takes salve and a boat paddle to spread it. What has ten years done for this industry? Go with me back to the short reel subjects and run them today. We find short, snappy stories, which, of course, seem all too short now, but quality was there just the same. Perhaps the lighting, staging and scenic effects were found lacking, but a reel of film was a thousand feet of history, and not, as it is today, with only about one-fifth action in a multiple reel drama and the rest pure pad. I enjoy, as the public does, the five-reel dramas, but there are few made. They all come on that number of reels, or more, and to get satisfaction the public must sit through a long drawn out story that could be done better and made far more worthy in half the length.

"The number of reels is merely descriptive. If there is material for three reels, make it so. No one complained about the 'Birth' being too long. It had the stuff to make it so, but I have had people leave my theatre many a day before the second reel, while a five or six reel show was being shown, because of the drag. The producer is slipping backward and perhaps blaming the director who is unable to make something out of nothing. Hundreds of so-called features apparently spring from the old one-reeler, and repetition following closely is forcing the public to lose interest.

Faults with Advertising

"Another bad factor in the business is the fact that producers overdo in their advertising. Every picture is the greatest thing ever done; it thrills you to the core; it knocks them out of their seats—in fact, it usually does anything but get the business, and the man who has followed the cut and dried advertising methods of the producer was a man who perhaps did well for a very short time and now we haye nothing but his memory.

"Never in the history of the business was there a better time to originate some new ideas, if we expect to 'Carry on'! Form plans for each production to work upon its merits, not to force a number of pictures out upon the unsuspecting public with deposits that forces the exhibitor to pay or play such offerings.

"I have done my best to be honest with the exchange, the public and myself. If I had a picture that I knew would offend a certain class, I frankly said so in the event that I couldn't get a substitute. If I had a picture that children would not be able to enjoy I advised them to stay at home. I used my own tactics. I may have gotten into a rut in doing so at times, but in the end I have been successful, and have gained the confidence of those I have depended upon from day to day, and as far as money matters stand, I have no regrets, but to continue in the business under the present conditions is inviting more gray hair than I wish to wear."

P. C. Estee, manager of the Star theatre, Alexandria, South Dakota, has also been reading his copy of the NEWS carefully, and he likes the things that the producers say they are going to do for him, but he declares that he cannot get them. He also pays his respects to some of the suggestions of "arm chair" exhibitors. Here are a few of his thoughts:

"There are always two things in most trade papers that are bound to earn a smile from the small town exhibitor. One is the mention of 'helps' by the film houses and the other is the talk of 'small town' successes.

"The real small town men, and by that I mean towns of a thousand or under, read the heading and start joyfully to peruse the experiences of one more fortunate or wiser than himself. About two sticks down the column he comes to himself with a bump. The 'small' town has only ten thousand or so, two daily papers, a professional sign painter, engravers and things like that.

Laughs at Suggestions

"In the town of a thousand the twelve things done by Mr. Willey to put over 'Romance of Tarzan' are not nearly so wonderful as he must do to put over even a moderately big special—and make money. And we must do it without any co-operation of exchanges. They may send us their booklets and house journals, telling the exhibitor how wonderful crowds will be attracted by arranging for handy waterfall effects, decorations of fir trees, three thousand miles from fir forests, a parade of a few mere Arabs, where Arabs do not exist, and other things on a par and about as practical. Even on the real advertising necessities we must fight for every bit—and then not get it.

"One house, to which we paid a double price, handed to us, because they knew I really wished a certain feature for Christmas sent me, out of a large advertising order, the following: One three-sheet and six photos. Nothing else; no cuts, slides, heralds, etc. These weighed less than half a pound, yet they billed them by express at three times the cost of mail, which I had requested. In answer to a vigorous protest I received two one-sheets and that was all.

"Another firm started us off on a big serial without heralds, slides or cuts, although they had out a twenty-five page book of 'helps' and a list of things one might secure. Both of these houses have home offices in New York, the executives of which are constantly in the trade papers telling how they protect and assist(?) the small exhibitor, having an almost paternal interest in said exhibitor.

Here is a little stunt that was used by Sid Laurence, manager of the Alhambra theatre, Detroit, when he showed "String Beans." Mr. Laurence changes his bill daily and does not get a chance to do much, but this costuming of his ushers attracted attention

"In an article in the issue of January 4 Mr. Bryant states that all the trouble is caused because the exhibitors ask the price before signing.

"Mr. Bryant should go out in the 'sticks' and let the average salesman sell him. Out in the corn belt it's always open season on the exhibitor, and every picture the salesman offers is wonderful, a knockout, a box office winner; the price—a mere nothing.

"Of course, the exhibitor, even if he knows his own expenses, community and exactly what he can and cannot do with expenditures and advertising campaigns, should not refuse to pay the gentlemanly salesman, even if the sum is as much as he can take in, with raised admissions, and his own time donated.

Too Often "Just Out"

"I have been in the sticks and also in the places where there are tall buildings. I have roamed a trifle where the soft-voiced sales manager sits with uplifted feet smoking the seductive cigarette while he dictates letters to the 'hicks,' quoting 'lowest' prices, but regretting that he is just out of such and such novelties, books, cuts, etc. Things which were originally designed to aid the man who has no access to engravers, etc.

"I have been in other businesses, including the newspaper and railroad, and if any other business ran their affairs on the general plane of efficiency manifested by the average exchange they would be in the hands of a receiver within six months.

"I would like to ask just two questions. Perhaps Mr. Bryant and some producer will answer them.

"Why is it that the browbeaten exchanges sell us six and seven reel features that measure under five thousand feet of film and charge war tax on the half reels?

"Why is it that the posters we pay good money for always seem to depict the most repelling and criminal scene of the whole feature? Or else a whole three-sheet will show a close-up of a man hugging a girl—no phase of the picture?"

But Here's the Other Side

But after all this gloom here comes a message from a town of 1,500, Filmore, Utah. M. S. Smart, owner of the Paramount theatre there, seems to be able to do things, and he sends a message along to the smaller exhibitors all over the country. He declares that he studies the possibilities of each picture before he books it and that every week he books a special at advanced prices and gets the money.

"This is the first time that I have ever been guilty. I am writing a letter and you may publish it if you wish. Each week I read my trade journals and note what the other fellow has to say, and have gained a good deal of valuable information. I have been operating in this little city of 1,500 people for about five years, and I think there are one or two things that I can tell my fellow exhibitors of the small town that may help them.

"First I read my trade journals. The advertisements are the most interesting part to me. I never read news, etc., until I have studied each picture ad. and looked up the comments on such features as interest me. Thus I know every big picture on the market, I know what company handles it, I know whether it will or will not please a country audience like mine, and I know what rental value the picture has for me.

"Enough said along this line. Some may ask what good this information will do the small town fellow. I think this is where the mistake is made. Many small town exhibitors make an error by not putting the big features over. I think that no picture is too good or too new for my patrons. I want them to think that they see better pictures at home than they see when they go to the cities which is really the case. Every other week I give them one of the best big pictures that I can get and charge advanced prices. Do they come? well I should say so. Other shows may "flunk out," but never a big one. The people have learned that when I put on an advanced price entertainment that it is a big show. The result is that my advanced price shows net me two to five times the profit of the ordinary receipts. And I do it every two weeks. Further, I do not think it lessens the attendance materially of my other shows.

"One more piece of my wonderful advice. Can you stand it? I don't think it pays the small fellow, who has no competition, to book his regular features by contract and let the exchanges send what they want to send. I wildcat with all the exchanges. I book the stars my patrons like best and choose the kind of theme which has the greatest appeal."

Theatre in City of 12,000 and Seating But 287 Shows Feature for Five Days to 5,000 Spectators

WHAT do you think of an exhibitor in a town of not more than 12,000 that is able to run a picture for five days and with a seating capacity of only 287 play to more than 5,000 people?

"Press agents' dream," a lot of you will answer, but this story did not come from any publicity man. We happened to see in the correspondence of the MOTION PICTURE NEWS that the Lyda theatre, Grand Island, Neb., has done this and so we wrote to the manager, S. A. Hayman to find out how he did it.

Told in the fewest possible words, Mr. Hayman is right up to date. He studies his pictures long before he gets them through the matter published in the NEWS, and he sets about getting every possible patron into his theatre. His statement of his methods is so simple and so brief that we are going to quote his letter, starting with the tribute that he pays us:

First, MOTION PICTURE NEWS is my advising partner; we have many hours together in which I read it from cover to cover and find many useful hints. In fact, I know all about a feature film before it ever reaches me. I have a great deal of sport with traveling salesmen for some of the exchanges when they come out here and try to tell me about the film they have to sell; I can usually tell them more about the films they have than they can tell me.

"Second, I am an advocate of E. K. Gillett. The best of machinery and operating booth is none too good, so today I boast of nearly perfect projection. I am glad to say that I know every bolt and nail in my theatre from the screen clear back to the front of the house.

"You ask me if I use any special lobby, so will try and explain my lobby first. I have my lobby so arranged that I can put up the following lobby display: Two six-sheets, two three-sheets, four one-sheets, and then I use all the photos I can get hold of, as I have two photo cases to place them in. This display is arranged so that the passing public can't pass by without noticing what I have, and most any time during the day my lobby has three or four dozen people studying the posters.

"I use quarter page ads in our daily paper, in fact bigger ads than any other theatre in this city, although I am the smallest seating theatre in town.

"I also observed one time when I was hunting in the country that auto after auto passed me going to town, so the idea struck me, why not try and get these people in my theatre? So I ordered handbills from the exchanges and had a boy each Saturday, when the town was full of autos, to go around and place in each auto a handbill.

"Then I figured out again that the little towns around near Grand Island had weekly papers and reached some of the farmers I could not reach, so I placed an ad in seven of these papers, and from these towns I had from twenty to thirty auto loads.

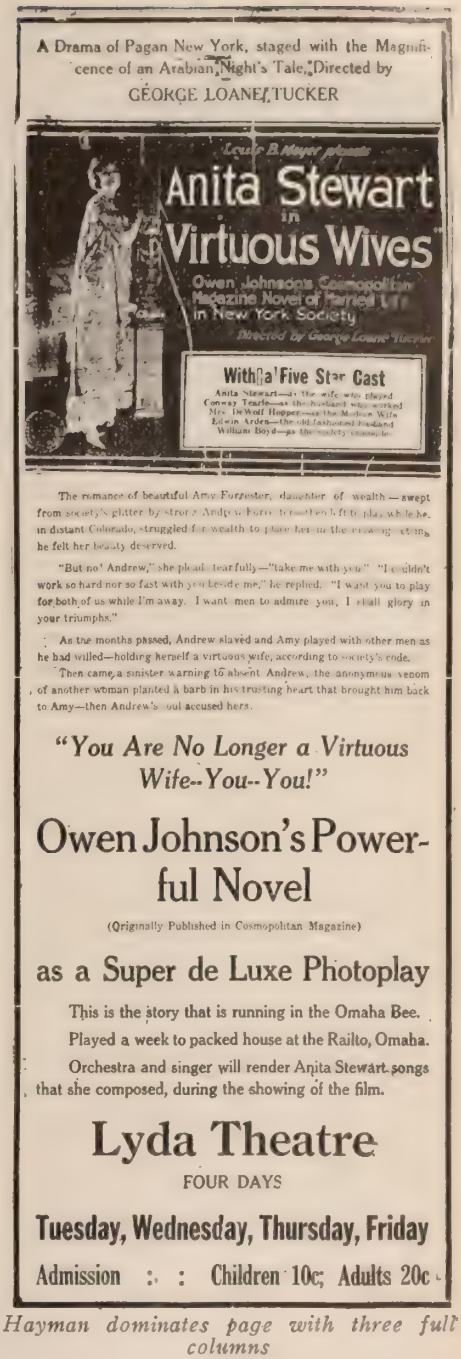
"Now in regard to the ads. I study the ads in MOTION PICTURE NEWS, and from these I get ideas, and so make my ads different and novel.

"Another thing, my house is a theatre of cheer, and all attendants must at all times be pleasant and very courteous, so that people coming to my theatre feel at home. I remember overhearing a conversation between two ladies. One said, 'Do you know I always go to the Lyda because it seems so homelike. Why, I can just sit down in there and enjoy every minute of the time.'

"Another thing I do is to sit down in the theatre and hear the comments of my patrons as to the kind of picture they enjoy, and so when I book a feature I have this in mind, and nearly every time it proves a success.

"Children in this town swear by the Lyda, as I always try to have a film they like. I believe that I have more kids in my theatre than all the other theatres combined.

"You may ask how can I hold a feature five and six days, and will say this also came to me by observation. First I had a daily change, but one day I decided I would try two days' run; this was to a degree satisfactory, but one day while in a barber shop and while I had a big feature running, I found out that only one person out of ten had seen this feature, although I was crowded two days to capacity.



"A little later along came First National with 'Tarzan of the Apes,' and they wanted such a large rental the shock nearly stopped my heart beating, but I asked them if they would give me as many days as I wanted and they said yes. So I booked 'Tarzan' for four days, and I said to myself, if I am going to lose I will have the satisfaction to know I died game. So, oh, boy, how I went after the advertising.

"Now the results: From 1 o'clock till 11 at night seats were at a premium; same thing the second, the third day same. I jerked up my belt and said if it does this the fourth day I will hold it the fifth. Well, the fourth was bigger than any of the others, so I wired the First National for the fifth, and the fifth was just as heavy as the first. Then and there my eyes were open, and ever since I book sure fire features that I know are good for long runs.

"My theatre seats 287; Grand Island has a population of, I would judge, 12,000; country around, 30,000. Well, in January I had 24,567 paid admissions, or an average daily run of 790 people, or every seat filled three times daily for thirty-one days. On 'Virtuous Wives' I ran 5,000 people."

Any one reading this plain statement of fact can see that Mr. Hyman has not been afraid to take a chance, but he does not do it as a gamble—he doesn't sit back in his chair and wait for things to come his way, but goes out and gets the business. We have not the slightest doubt that a considerable percentage of his regular business comes from outside his own town.

The increasing number of exhibitors who are making real efforts to put pictures over for longer runs is significant, and that so many of them come from the smaller cities where the theatres are developing NEW patronage means a lot for the future.

Hayman dominates page with three full columns

Motion Picture Weekly Makes Appearance in L. A.

Los Angeles now has a "Motion Picture Weekly." Most of the newspapers of that city are mighty liberal with motion picture matter, but the new publication aims not only to give the news of the stars and the producers, but of the theatres and exchanges as well. Through the co-operation of the theatres 250,000 copies of the first issue were distributed. Theatre advertising is confined to the card plan which merely gives the current bill or that for a week, according to the number of changes.

Live News from the Producers

Arbuckle Renews His Contract

Adolph Zukor Signs Comedian to Produce Under the Paramount Banner for Another Three Years

TO appear under Paramount auspices for three years is the arrangement made by "Fatty" Arbuckle, the screen comedian.

The agreement was signed at the Meuhlbach Hotel in Kansas City, where Mr. Arbuckle, Joseph M. Schenck, under whose management he appears on the screen; Lou Anger, his personal manager, and Adolph Zukor, president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, closed the arrangement.

After the signatures were affixed to the contract the entire party left for New York. Mr. Arbuckle registered at the Claridge and remained for a few days after which he returned to his California studio to start work on a new Paramount picture.

The new Paramount-Arbuckle agreement involves an aggregate sum reported to be in excess of three million dollars, and Mr. Zukor stated that this is the largest contract ever signed by him with an individual artist, notwithstanding the fact that at various times he has had under contract such notables in the film world as Mary Pickford, D. W. Griffith, Douglas Fairbanks, Marguerite Clark and others.

Arbuckle's screen career dates from 1913, although he had been on the stage in stock repertoire since he was fifteen years old. When Mack Sennett first laid eyes on his chubby face and rotund figure he engaged him on the spot. From that moment he has been one of the busiest actors in motion pictures.

Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle has signed a new contract with Famous Players-Lasky

Some of his early pictures include "Fatty and Mabel," "The Bright Lights," "His Wife's Mistake," "The Waiters' Ball," "The Village Scandal" and "Fatty's Jonah Day."

In 1917 the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation secured Arbuckle's services through Joseph M. Schenck, president and general manager of the Comique Film Corporation, with whom the comedian was under contracta for a period of years. Since then he has produced fifteeen two-reel comedies for Paramount.

Viola Dana Film Gets Well Known Players

SUPPORTED by such screen players as Henry Kolker, Edward Connelly, Darrell Foss, Louis D'Arclay and Clarissa Selwyn, Viola Dana is rapidly nearing the completion of her newest screen production, tentatively named "Jeanne of the Gutter," at the new Metro studios in Hollywood. Miss Dana is directed by Herbert Blache, under the personal supervision of Maxwell Karger, director general.

"Jeanne of the Gutter" is described as a romance of the underworld of Paris, and the heroine of this story, by June Mathis and Albert Capellani, adapted for the screen by Finis Fox is tender and appealing, impetuous and furious in turn. For Jeanne is a girl gently born of titled parents, whom fate throws into the hands of the fierce Apaches, or thugs, and who grows to womanhood as one of them.

It is a story of final redemption and reclamation; a narrative of heart interest woven against a background of Bohemian cafes and the ateliers of the Latin Quarter of the French capital. It follows Miss Dana's "Diana Ardway" and "The Gold Cure," although in setting and atmosphere is is said to be totally different from either of these pictures.

In addition to Messrs. Kolker, Connelly, Foss D'Arclay and Miss Selwyn, the cast includes Paul Weigel, remembered as the Mexican padrone in a previous Dana picture, "The Only Road"; Mitzi Goodstadt and Maree Beaudet. Art interiors were designed by Henri Menessier, and the cafe scenes are filled with French "types."

Signs with Universal

Thurston Hall, formerly leading man in Paramount productions, has signed an indefinite contract to appear in Universal productions. Mr. Hall is Carmel Myers' leading man in "Who Will Marry Me?" and is now working opposite Priscilla Dean in "Raggedy Queen," now in production under the direction of Tod Browning.

Bennett in Kansas City District for United

Hunter Bennett, who has just receiv honorable discharge as lieutenant in U. Army, has been appointed by C. R. Seely United Picture Theatres of America, In as special representative for the Kans City district. Mr. Bennett is well kno to exhibitors through his former conne tions with World Film and Mutual, havi been associated for two years with the l ter under the general managership of C. Graham. Mr. Bennett leaves Ne York for Kansas City this week.

R. J. Churchill, United representative Detroit, reports the Muskegon and Gra Haven theatres, the Victory theatre, S Johns, and Regent theatres, Ionia, as n additions to list signing United contrac during the past week.

Letters continue to be received by Unit from exhibitors who have booked t first United features. The Strand theat Portland, Me., reports the biggest inc vidual day that theatre has ever done o side of holidays, with "The Light Western States," and the Colonial Amus ment Co. of Harrisburg, writes of t same attraction: "It is a real picture, the very top of the special class and draw record houses."

Goldwyn Buys Two for Will Rogers

Goldwyn Pictures Corporation has a nounced the purchase of two stories which Will Rogers will be starred. Th are "Aleck Lloyd," by Eleanor Gat author of "The Poor Little Rich Gir and "Overland Red," a novel by H. Knibbs.

In addition a play has been purchas for still another Will Rogers productio though no announcement is made as y of its author or title.

At the end of the "Follies" theatric season Mr. Rogers, together with M Rogers and four Rogers children, will pa up their belongings and close their Lo Island home preliminary to their depa ture for the land of the sunset.

Kinograms Show Speed

World Pictures declares that four hou after the Fifteenth Regiment, New York famous colored regiment, under comma of Colonel William Hayward passed b fore the camera of the Kinogram orga zation as they marched up Fifth aven New York City, the pictures were sho at B. F. Keith's Palace, the Rialto a Rivoli theaters, New York City.

Thus again, they assert, Kinograms e tablishes a speed record in the recordi of the news of the day.

At the left is Theda Bara in "When Men Desire," her newest Fox drama. In the center is Madlaine Traverse in "Gambling in Souls," and at the right is another moment in the Bara production

Exchange Men at Atlanta Hear Arthur S. Kane

When the exchange men at Atlanta, Ga., held their luncheon February 18, Arthur S. Kane, general manager of Select Pictures Corporation, was visiting the city, and, by special invitation, addressed them. The luncheon, which was the first of a number of meetings arranged for the bringing together of the managers who are to form the Board of Trade, was held at the Hotel Ansley, and was presided over by Mr. George R. Allison of Vitagraph's Atlanta exchange.

Mr. Kane outlined the experience of exchange managers in other cities in forming similar organizations, and spoke notably of those established in Detroit and Seattle. Most of those bodies, Mr. Kane explained, have proved successful and have accomplished the excellent objects for which they were formed, having been of great benefit to all exhibitors in the territories affected in securing adjustments, and in the settlement of disputes.

Title Is Changed on a Paramount Picture

Paramount announces a change of title on the next John Emerson-Anita Loos production, and has rechristened it "Oh, You Women!" the former title of the production having been "When the Boys Come Home."

The changing of the title was made necessary by reason of the present conditions of bringing the American boys home so rapidly from overseas, for the story deals with an after-the-war theme.

"End of the Game" Is Next Kerrigan

W. W. Hodkinson Corporation officials have just viewed "The End of the Game," starring J. Warren Kerrigan.

They report that Kerrigan has a particularly sympathetic role in this story of a well-to-do southern gentleman who seeks adventure in the West.

The action of the story takes place in the days of Old '49, and they report that they saw some real live action. George Hlwood Jenks wrote the story and Jesse D. Hampton, the producer, directed it.

Stars Cannot Carry Weak Cast

So Says William Fox in Outlining Casts and Leading People Engaged to Properly Support His Stars

THE Exhibitors Service Bureau of the Fox Film Corporation this week declared that no star in the profession is big enough to carry along a weak cast, and that it is on this principle that William Fox produces his pictures.

"An instance of this policy," said this statement, "is the engagement of Thomas Santschi to play the lead opposite Madlaine Traverse in the picture which Miss Traverse is now making in Hollywood. Mr. Santschi is one of the best known players in the motion picture profession, and has done some particularly fine work."

In further support of the policy of engaging only well-known players for the support of Fox stars, it was pointed out that in the de luxe production, "Wolves of the Night," which William Farnum is making in Los Angeles, the supporting cast contains such players as Louise Lovely, Charles Clary, Al Fremont and G. Raymond Nye.

In "The Jungle Trail," another William Farnum picture, just finished in Florida, Anna Lehr, Ann Luther and G. Raymond Nye are in the cast supporting Mr. Farnum.

"For Freedom," a recent Farnum subject, showed the work of Anna Lehr, Ruby DeRemer, Marc Robbins and Mr. Nye; and in "The Man Hunter" Mr. Farnum had Louise Lovely, Charles Clary and Marie Robbins assisting him.

Tom Mix is said to be exceedingly particular about the people who play in his support. For his leading woman he has had such well-known players as Jane Novak, Kathleen Connors and Teddy Sampson, and in the picture he is making now, near Flagstaff, Ariz., Colleen Moore plays opposite him.

In "Every Mother's Son," one of R. A. Walsh's pictures there was no star, but the cast contained such names as Charlotte Walker, star of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" and other big dramatic successes, and Gareth Hughes.

The casts that support Gladys Brockwell are William Scott, Murdock MacQuarrie, William Sheer, Al Fremont, J. Barney Sherry and Lydia Yeamans Titus.

Herbert Heyes and Clair DuBrey are supporting Madeline Traverse in her present picture, and in support of Albert Ray is Elinor Fair.

Other well-known players who are to be seen in recent or coming Fox pictures are Ed Burns, Frank Brownlee and Thomas Jefferson—son of the famous Joseph Jefferson, creator of Rip Van Winkle.

Territory Sold on "Once to Every Man"

"ONCE TO EVERY MAN," Frohman Amusement Company's independent production, recently placed on the open market, is in big demand by the state rights' buyers according to the announcement of territorial sales for the past week. Greater New York, Long Island and Westchester County was purchased by the Merritt Film Exchange, New York and the New England went to Major Films, Inc., of Boston. Arthur S. Hyman of Arthur S. Hyman Attractions, Detroit, purchased the Michigan rights; northern New York and northern New Jersey went to Nathan Hirsch, New York; the Super-Film Attractions, Washington, D. C., purchased Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia and North Carolina, and W. E. Drummond of Knoxville bought the South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Tennessee rights.

Mr. Hyman, who bought the Michigan rights, will open "Once to Every Man" for an indefinite run at one of Detroit's large houses.

Mr. Aechtler, Major Films, has booked the picture for an extended run at one of the large Boston houses, and Sidney Lust of the Super-Film Attractions, has booked the feature at Loew's Hippodrome, Baltimore. The story tells of the redemption of a young man addicted to drink. One of the big punches of the pictures is a fistic battle.

Select Opens Canadian Offices

Select Pictures Corporation, Ltd., of Canada, Organized to Distribute Throughout the Dominion

LEWIS J. SELZNICK announced that Select Pictures Corporation has organized a Canadian company for the distribution of its product. In a signed statement, issued from headquarters in New York, President Selznick says that the Canadian headquarters has been established at Toronto, Ontario, with branches opened in seven cities.

The officers of the new Canadian distributing concern are, Lewis J. Selznick, president; J. P. Bickell, vice-president; Morris Kohn, secretary; N. J. Nathanson, treasurer and managing director.

The following is a complete list of the Canadian offices now opened, including both headquarters and branches in the various territories:

Montreal, Quebec, 31 McGill College avenue.

St. John, New Brunswick, 67 Dock street.

Winnipeg, Manitoba, 445 Main street.

Calgary, Alberta, 414 McLean Block.

Vancouver, British Columbia, 304 Orpheum Block, and Canadian headquarters, 21 Adelaide street West, Toronto, Ontario.

It is the purpose of the Select Company in establishing this Canadian distribution system to afford exhibitors of the Dominion of Canada the opportunity of booking the pictures of the various stars, and also the special productions which together form the product known as Select Pictures, and to obtain this material from exchanges owned and operated by the company.

Select Pictures Corporation, Ltd., of Canada, announces many of the most popular productions of the various Select stars in the following schedule which it has adopted, and which shows that the features are released at the rate of one a week for the next three months:

Mitchell Lewis, star in Select Pictures

Clara Kimball Young in "The Road Through the Dark," March 3; Norma Talmadge in "The Heart of Wetona," March 10; Alice Brady in "The Better Half," March 17; Marion Davies in "The Belle of New York," March 24; Constance Talmadge in "Sauce for the Goose," March 31; Mitchell Lewis in "Code of the Yukon," April 7; Anna Case in "The Hidden Truth" (Special), April 14; Clara Kimball Young in "Cheating Cheaters," April 21; Constance Talmadge in "Who Cares?" April 28; Alice Brady in "Her Great Chance," May 5; Marion Davies in "The Burden of Proof," May 12; Norma Talmadge in "The Probation Wife," May 19; Mitchell Lewis in "Children of Banishment," May 26; Constance Talmadge in "Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots," June 2.

New Reels Heavily Booked, Says Universal

MANAGER ZIERLER of the "Big U" film exchange has announced that the International tri-weekly news film service, released by Universal, has been booked by the Rivol theatre and Broadway theatre, New York, for first run. The Strand, New York, has also booked units of the service and Mr. Zierler states that a campaign to put the news reels in a record number of theatres in the New York office's territory, recently begun, is bringing exceptional results.

On the Pacific Coast the International tri-weekly service is said to have proved popular with exhibitors. The leading theatres of Seattle, Spokane, Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles are said to be running the tri-weekly reels regularly and the special Pacific Coast editions of each reel have proved exceptional drawing cards at Coast theatres, according to word received from Gus A. Metzger, Universal's Pacific Coast district manager.

In the Central States scenes showing President Wilson's arrival in France, on securing pictures of returning troops, and some unusual pictures taken on the former battlefields of France are declared to have made the International tri-weekly service welcome by leading exhibitors.

What is claimed to be the first pictures ever taken in a governmental marine camouflage workshop are contained in the New Screen Magazine, the first issue of which has just been released by Universal. The pictures of the first Magazine were taken at Washington, D. C., by a Universal cameraman and show how the various details of designing the many forms of marine camouflage are worked out.

Berman Not with Tyrad

Matthias Radin, general manager, Tyrad Pictures, Inc., announces that Harry Berman is not connected in any way with Tyrad Pictures, Inc. Through an error in the publicity department of Tyrad, Mr. Berman's name was announced, in the last issue of the NEWS as associated with Tyrad Pictures.

Miss Young Chooses Big Cast

Much comment, it was announced thi week from the Clara Kimball Young of fices in New York, has been heard fro various sources concerning the well-know cast of players which Miss Young selecte to appear with her in "The Better Wife. The picture is being made on the We Coast.

The cast includes, besides Miss Youn as the star, Nigel Barrie, Lillian Walke Kathlyn Williams, Barbara Tennant, littl Ben Alexander, Edward M. Kimball, Ar thur Carew, Irving Cummings, Elinor Har cock, H. G. Pennel, J. G. Underhill an John Steppling.

W. H. Rudolph, who represents th Young-Garson interests in the East, ha had some interesting communications fro the Coast relative to "The Better Wife and its unusual cast. In a sense, this pic ture, which is the first to be made by Mis Young for absolutely independent distr bution, away from the Select Picture Corp., is a "commonwealth picture," a though the production cost, includin everything in the way of salaries, etc., being borne by Miss Young.

Alpha's "Reclaimed" Shown to Trade

The Alpha Pictures, Inc., gave a trad showing of its newly acquired state right feature, Harry MacRae Webster's produ tion, "Reclaimed" starring Mabel Julienn Scott and Niles Welch, last week at th New York Roof. Prominent buyers we present and Alpha reports that they we unanimous in their praise of the pictur Greater New York and northern Ne Jersey territory has been purchased by th Elk Photo Plays, Inc.

"The Forfeit" Released o March 10th

Frank Powell's production, "The Fo feit," co-starring House Peters and Jan Miller, was adapted from Ridgewell Cu lom's well-known novel of the southe cattle country.

W. W. Hodkinson Corporation a nounces its release date as March through Pathe exchanges.

In support of the stars are Willia Human as the weak younger brother, He tor V. Sarno as the chief cattle rustler, H. Welles as the ranchman, Blanche Abbo as the ingenue, and George Murdock.

Mygatt Tells About His New Job

Gerald Mygatt, who recently came o of the army and later was engaged by W. W. Hodkinson Corporation as director advertising and publicity, last week issu a statement headed: "Why I Am Wor ing for W. W. Hodkinson."

The announcement tells of his doubts the soundness of the organization until had fully investigated, after which he w fully convinced that he considered t company well worth while.

Briggs Cartoons to Be Seen on Screen

Cullom Holmes Ferrell, manager of the newly organized Briggs Pictures, Inc., to produce and release one-reel comedies adapted from the works of Briggs, the cartoonist, best known for his "The Days of Real Sport," "When a Feller Needs a Friend" and "Married Life," announces that offices have been opened at 30 East Forty-second street and that work on the first three comedies has begun at the Thanhouser studio, New Rochelle. Part of the studio has been leased as permanent quarters. The comedies will not be animated cartoons, the announcement says, but Briggs' popular cartoons will be taken as a basis for the comedy stories, the principal parts being enacted by child performers. The method of distribution has not been announced. Briggs is chief executive of the newly formed company.

Mae Marsh Completes "Spotlight Sadie"

Mae Marsh has completed her newest Goldwyn picture at the Culver City Studios and it bears the unusual and piquant name of "Spotlight Sadie" and was written by Lewis Allen Browne.

Laurence Trimble, who directed Jane Cowl's "The Spreading Dawn" in Goldwyn's early days, directs this production.

It is described as a comedy-drama of everyday life with the playhouse as a background.

Marguerite Clark Is Back

After several weeks vacationing, Marguerite Clark starts work on "Come Out of the Kitchen," at the Fifty-sixth street studio of Famous Players-Lasky, in New York City.

This is Paramount's screen version of the successful play in which Ruth Chatterton became famous on Broadway. During her absence several sets had been built in the studio, namely the blue and white kitchen.

William Farnum, star in Wm. Fox Films

How the Strand in New York stood 'em out on curb during the run of "The Better 'Ole," distributed by World

Houdini Serial Covers the World

Sixteen Exchanges Handling Rolfe Serial for Octagon—Canada and Foreign Markets Covered

SIXTEEN established exchanges, with the number increasing weekly, and now distributing for Octagon Films, Inc., B. A. Rolfe's serial production, "The Master Mystery," starring Houdini, the handcuff king. Nearly all of the domestic territory and all foreign and Canadian territory is covered by this network of distribution, and Octagon announces that with the closing of the negotiations, now pending, every foot of important territory in the world will have been brought within reach of the exchanges handling "The Master Mystery."

Recent additions, bringing the list up to its present number, are Joseph Goodstein, who has bought the distributing rights to the picture in Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, New Mexico and southern Idaho, and Goyette Productions, Inc., Detroit, R. E. Goyette, president, booking the state of Michigan.

Other territories in the United States are covered as follows: North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Tennessee, Rolfe Productions of Atlanta, Ga.; Mississippi and Louisiana, Rolfe Productions of New Orleans; New England States, Federal Feature Film Co., Boston; western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, Rolfe Productions of Pittsburgh; eastern Pennsylvania and southern New Jersey, Arrow Film Exchange, Philadelphia; Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, Rolfe Productions of Dallas; Illinois and Indiana, Celebrated Players Film Corporation, Chicago; New York City and State, Effano Film Exchange; New York City; Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and District of Columbia, Exhibitors Film Exchange, Washington; Wisconsin, Mid-West Distributing Co.; Milwaukee, northern New Jersey; Rolfe Productions of northern New Jersey, with offices in New York City, and Ohio and Kentucky, Star Feature Film Service, Cleveland.

The Canadian bookings are being made through Regal Films, Ltd., which maintains six offices in Canada, while the foreign territories are being sold by Export & Import Film Co., New York.

Community Booking Plan in N. Y. Theatres

Success is attending the community plan for booking the Theda Bara production of "Salome," according to officials of Fox Film Corporation, which cite many examples.

The Majestic theatre in New York booked "Salome" for a full week. The first three days, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, the picture went over big, it is said. The management, however, was afraid that the attendance for the remaining days would fall off. Instead of diminishing, the crowds for the other four days were bigger than on the first three days; and the final day was biggest of all.

Immediately following this showing five other theatres in the same neighborhood booked "Salome" for extended runs. These are the Venice theatre, the Grand, the Strand, Golden Rule and Orpheum.

Sennett Comedy Offered State Right Buyers

Hiram Abrams, who recently established headquarters in the Longacre Building, New York City, announces that what is termed Mack Sennett's latest and greatest five-reel feature comedy, a travesty on current international events, entitled "Yankee Doodle in Berlin," is now being offered to state right buyers by the master comedy-producer through Mr. Abrams.

"Four times during his career Mr. Sennett has stepped out from his two-reel comedies to make a super-picture," said Mr. Abrams. "His previous longer pictures have been 'Tillie's Punctured Romance,' 'The Submarine Pirates' and 'Mickey.'

"Each of these plays has made a fortune for exhibitors, and Mr. Sennett has been scrupulous in keeping faith with the exhibitors."

Maurice Tourneur preparing for a Board of Trade scene in "The White Heather," forthcoming feature

"Stars of Glory" A Pathe Special

Leonce Perret's Production, Starring Dolores Cassenelli and E. K. Lincoln, to Be Distributed by Pathe

THE big patriotic production, "Stars of Glory," produced by Leonce Perret, and starring Dolores Cassenelli and E. K. Lincoln, will be released by Pathe as a Special Feature, and they state that it will be exploited with the same aggressive publicity and promotion that has made record breaking history for "Infatuation" with Gaby Deslys and Fannie Ward in "Common Clay."

The two stars are said to be admirably fitted to their parts. A change of title is under consideration and the play likely will be released under one that will more accurately express the big emotional value of the story.

"Pathe Exchange considers itself fortunate in adding this splendid production to its list of special feature successes," said Mr. Paul Brunet, vice-president and general manager in making the announcement. "Leonce Perret has reached a point of achievement set as an ideal by more than one high authority."

"Lieutenant Francis de Croisset, who has been studying the motion picture in America for the last three months as a commissioner of the French government, and who has brilliantly achieved on the spoken stage by 'The Hawk,' which Mr. Faversham produced some time ago, and the dramatization of 'Arsene Lupin,' said just before his recent departure that, to-morrow, the making of motion pictures will become an art; which will be achieved only when the skilled author, who knows all the requirements of the cinema, shall have a part in the direction of the picture.

"'And,' he added, 'but plays will have to be written for the films just as they are now being written for the stage. Original, imaginative plays, written especially for the medium, and produced under the watchful eyes of their authors, are essential.'

"Leonce Perret in 'Stars of Glory' has realized the ideal of his distinguished compatriot. He is both the author and the director; and how the combination of these functions has worked is shown to splendid advantage, in harmony of action, and that attention to minute detail which makes for perfection.

"'Stars of Glory' was shaped expressly for the screen. I think that it will establish a high mark, for it is art in its purest sense. Art, beauty and feeling! It is a big story of ideal love; it is a perfect poem of Patriotism; it is a wonder-tale of hearts, and one of the greatest woman picture-plays of the year."

Wheeler Dryden, Comedian, with Gray Seal

George Julian Houtain, president of Gray Seal Productions, Inc., has signed Wheeler Dryden, comedy star of leading theatrical companies in the Orient, for a series of twenty-six comedy productions, in one reel. This series will be released during 1919 and 1920.

Mr. Dryden comes to the screen after being for several years the principal comedy star of a leading theatrical company in India, China and Japan. His work is described by Mr. Houtain in the phrase, "A Page from Life." He promises consistent and plausible comedies with wholesome, clear action and plausible stories.

"Echo of Youth" Booked Heavily in N. Y. C.

With many territories sold and with foreign rights sold to Inter Ocean Film Corporation, the Graphic Film Corporation is concentrating on its many New York bookings of Ivan Abrahamson's six-reel special, "The Echo of Youth."

Charles Bryant, Leading Man in "The Brat"

In Nazimova's screen adaption of "Th Brat," Charles Bryant, who has for son time been identified as leading man f Nazimova, has again been engaged f that part.

Metro exchanges will distribute "Th Brat," which is a screen adaption by Jun Mathis from the successful play of th same name in which Maude Fulton, th author, starred for nearly eighteen montl on Broadway.

Mr. Bryant has been leading man fo Ethel Barrymore and for several of Naz mova's productions, among which wer "Toys of Fate," "Revelation," "Eye fo Eye" and "Out of the Fog."

Tourneur Progresses on New Picture

Hiller and Wilk announced this week, i a statement calling attention to Mauric Tourneur as one of the pioneers of th "independent" movement, that the pro ducer is rapidly bringing to a close wor on "The White Heather," the fourth o the Maurice Tourneur Productions. It a Drury Lane melodrama and follow "Sporting Life" and "Woman."

Mr. Tourneur is quoted as saying: "Th fate of the photoplay is dependent upon th independent producer."

Rosemary Theby in Allison Production

Rosemary Theby plays the vampire siste of Peggy with May Allison in "Pegg Does Her Darndest," the latest of tha star's Metro releases. Miss Theby's wor as a screen vampire shows her to be a actress of versatility, as her appearance in several Metro all-star series feature have been in widely divergent roles. Sh will be well remembered also as Ber Lytell's leading woman in the Metro pro duction of "Faith," a recent release.

Ann May, ingenue lead with Catherine Calvert in "Marriage for Convenience," a Keeney picture

Bessie Barriscale Returns to Coast

After a brief sojourn in New York, where she visited her sister, who was very ill, Bessie Barriscale is returning to Hollywood to resume production of photoplays under her agreement with the Robertson Cole Company, which releases the Barriscale plays through Exhibitors Mutual.

Just before leaving California, Miss Barriscale completed "Hearts Asleep," under the direction of Howard Hickman, her husband, who accompanied her on her eastern journey. Upon returning to the Brunton studios, where all the B. B. Features productions are made, Bessie will begin work on "Josselyn's Wife," a novel by Kathleen Norris which affords Miss Barriscale one of her typical characters.

"A Trick of Fate" is Miss Barriscale's current play.

Harry Carey Tours West

Universal's western star, Harry Carey, is touring the principal western cities meeting exhibitors and fans and speaking at various theatres en route.

Having completed his latest film drama, "The Outcast of Poker Flat," and being several weeks ahead of his release schedule, Mr. Carey is very enthusiastic about his tour. He will visit all of the leading cities west of the Mississippi, and Chicago, and will in addition to giving a short talk at each theatre, present a special reel that shows a little of the work of preparing one of his big dramas.

Shumway Leading Man for Lillian Walker

L. C. Shumway, one of the screen's most popular leading men, is in the principal male role opposite Lillian Walker in her latest release on the Hodkinson Corporation's program, "The Love Hunger," a screen version of J. Breckenridge Ellis' novel, "Fran," produced under the direction of William P. S. Earle. Arthur Edwin Crows did the scenario. Andrew Arbuckle, Lydia Knott, Stanley Orr and William Bletcher are other members of the cast.

Houdini, the handcuff king, in a moment in the superserial, "The Master Mystery," produced by B. A. Rolfe for Octagon Films, Inc.

"Common Cause" Breaks Record at Salt Lake

WITH the snow deep upon the ground at Salt Lake City, Utah, J. Stewart Blackton's production, "The Common Cause" jammed the big American theaters there at every performance of its run.

George Mayne, manager of the Swanson Theater Circuit, of which the American at Salt Lake is one of the chain sent a long telegram of congratulations to Vitagraph containing a strong eulogy of the production and also adds that he has also booked "The Lion and the Mouse" for a four day engagement at the American.

The enthusiastic telegram in full:

"We used Vitagraph's feature, "The Common Cause," at the American Theater, this city, our seating capacity there being 3,000. We turned the people away at both afternoon and evening performances. I want to say, giving my honest opinion, that I think "The Common Cause" the best picture ever shown at the American theater. Thursday night, in the face of the heaviest snow storm of the season, I was compelled to turn away crowds.

"We had more favorable comments on this picture from our patrons than upon any other feature picture shown at this theater. Some of our patrons saw this picture a second time and I surely am going to play it as a 'repeat.' The story, photography and direction was wonderful.

"Just saw the Alice Joyce subject, "The Lion and the Mouse," privately and have booked it for a four-day run at the American theater. Vitagraph should be congratulated on turning out subjects of this kind. If they continue to turn out pictures of this character, it means success for the Vitagraph company spelled in big letters."

Woody Visits St. Louis and Kansas City

LEAVING New York on February 21, J. S. Woody, general sales manager for Select Pictures Corporation, made a flying trip to St. Louis and Kansas City last week on business for his firm. During the last few months Mr. Woody has been unusually busy in the home office but for some time past he has been planning a series of short jumps to various Select branches, and his trip last week to St. Louis and Kansas City was the first of a number of such visits that he will make within the next few months.

From New York Mr. Woody went direct to St. Louis, where he conferred with Branch Manager J. C. Ragland at Select's exchange in that city. Mr. Woody and Mr. Ragland discussed affairs in the St. Louis territory and completed a plan whereby it will be possible to effect a great increase in the number of Select contracts in that district.

From St. Louis Mr. Woody went to Kansas City where he met Branch Manager A. H. McLaughlin and received one of the most promising local reports he has seen since he became general sales manager of the Select organization.

Mr. Woody returned to New York armed with valuable information and several new ideas which he will put to a test in other territories.

Constance Talmadge, Select star, and her director, Robert G. Vignola, going over the script, "Saturday to Monday"

The Kaiser, the Clown Quince and Hindenburg "retrenching." It's shown in "Yankee Doodle in Berlin," a Mack Sennett comedy feature handled by Abrams and Schulberg

Albert Capellani Productions Already Active

THE recently organized Albert Capellani Productions Inc., has commenced activities according to General Manager Adolphe Osso, who announced that the Solax studios has been renamed the Capellani studio where the Capellani productions will be made, and that elaborate and extensive improvements and innovations in studio equipment of every nature will be installed there at once.

"We shall spare no effort or expense," said Mr. Osso, "in order to insure or add to the quality of our productions. I can recall several instances where faulty equipment and poor facilities handicapped a prominent director to such an extent that a certain production which might have proved to be a sensation, when completed turned out to be just an average film because of a lack of proper facilities.

"The fact that the studio is to be our permanent home and the fact that we shall require the very finest studio in the East to accommodate the several companies that we shall soon have working was responsible for our decision. A good start is half the distance."

Henri Menessier, Mr. Capellani's art director, and Lou Jerkowski whom Mr. Capellani engaged as studio manager, will supervise the changes being made at the studio.

It is announced that these alterations will only delay the actual commencement of the work on the first of the Capellani Productions but a few days, for the casting of the support for June Caprice and Creighton Hale, who will play the leads in the first company, has already commenced. The title of the story chosen by Mr. Capellani for the first film has not yet been announced.

Golden Reports Progress on Serial

Reports from Joseph A. Golden, who had taken his entire company to the South in order to get some atmosphere for "The Great Gamble," the forthcoming Western Photoplay's serial starring Ann Luther and Charles Hutchison, for release through Pathe, show that he has been accomplishing much work while in the land of sunshine.

Mr. Golden writes to his partner, A. Alperstein, manager of the concern, that he has obtained much valuable material during his short absence, and has been so successful in getting the locations that he desired that he expects to get back to the city in a couple of weeks' time.

Evangeline Booth Takes Part in Lasky Picture

The final scenes of "Fires of Youth," the special production which Famous Players-Lasky is making in co-operation with the Salvation Army, under the direction of Edward Jose, are being taken at Famous Players 56th Street studio. The major portion of the production was made at the Lasky studio on the Coast, but the scenes in which Commander Evangeline Booth, head of the Salvation Army, appears in, will be taken here in the East. It is announced that an exact reproduction of the Commander Booth's headquarters has been made for the interior sets now being filmed. The cast of players includes Eugene O'Brien, Catherine Calvert, Ruby De Remer, Theodore Roberts and Robert Anderson.

Newsy Notes of Pictures

Billie Rhodes—the "little girl with big eyes," they call her in California—has proved in her recent five-reel production for the National Film Corporation, that comedy drama is her forte.

Alma Rubens has completed her first picture as a star, "Diane of the Green Van," the Leona Dalrymple ten thousand dollar prize story that was selected from a score of more than ordinarily good scenarios for her initial production.

A festive cabaret scene, a reproduction of those roof garden frolics that rest the tired business man and the wide-eyed visitor in New York, is one of the big features of Hale Hamilton's newest screen vehicle, entitled "That's Good," now under production.

An entirely new phase of native life is about to be filmed by H. D. Ashton, camera man for the Outing Chester Scenics who sailed on the Orange Nassau Friday for Port au Prince, Haiti.

Out at the Lasky studio in Hollywood there has been erected a reproduction of the interior of an old Norman Cathedral, which is being used for the wedding scene of "The Woman Thou Gavest Me," which Hugh Ford is directing from Hall Caine's novel.

Harry Carey, featured star of a score of Universal features, having completed work on his latest Special Attraction, "The Outcast of Poker Flat," adapted from several Bret Harte novels, will shortly begin a tour of the principal cities of the West.

Marion Davies, having finished "Marrying Mary," which Director Alan Dwan is now cutting, will rest, prior to beginning work at the Backer-Bacon studios on a new production, the title of which has not yet been made public.

Three box office records, held by three of the leading theatres in Ohio, were shattered last week by "The Heart of Humanity," the latest Jewel release, Universal announces.

The Eugene Walter's story, "Nancy Lee," on which Norma Talmadge has been at work for the past six weeks, was finished last week and Robert Z. Leonard, the director, is now having the film cut and titled.

Eleanor Gates, the authoress of "The Poor Little Rich Girl," has sold the motion picture rights of her latest book, just about to be published, to Maurice A. Kashin of the Broadway theatre, New York City.

"East Lynne with Variations," the Paramount-Mack Sennett comedy release of February 23, represents one of Mack Sennett's mightiest blows at gloom.

The Universal industrial department has just completed the photographing of the first motion picture fashion review and entitled "The Well Dressed Look."

When the first-run theatres of the country show "Satan Junior" on March 3, the date set for the release of this Metro All-Star series feature, Viola Dana will be seen in the role of a vampire flapper, if ever there was such a creature.

Marion Davies is starred in "The Belle of New York," through Select Pictures

MAE
MURRAY

"—and now—to steal a forbidde hour of love and laughter"

A UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTION

"It was a terrible thing to learn that she was a wicked creature"

"When h flew in at window

"Aunty insists on a minister—at once!"

MA & MURRAY
in
"The SCARLET SHADOW"

THE Universal believes that there is no better way to sell you Universal Special Attractions than to make the pictures do it.

Some people think that advertising is the way to do it, but we have found that boosting something that ought not to be boosted hurts us even more than it hurts you.

We advertise Universal Special Attractions to tell you what goods we have to sell, but we try to proportion the publicity to the merit of the picture. In the same way, we advertise the Star in just proportion to the Star's drawing-power, because no amount of printer's ink will ever make a star if people aren't interested.

The public like Priscilla Dean and Mary MacLaren immensely, and they have become exceedingly fond of Monroe Salisbury. For this reason, we are going to give them Monroe Salisbury in some exceptionally fine Universal Special Attractions, as we have already done with Miss Dean and Miss MacLaren.

The first of these Salisbury pictures is "The Light of Victory"—to be released March 17th. Watch for the formal announcement of "The Light of Victory" next week. Reserve for it now.

UNIVERSAL FILM MFG. COMPANY
1600 BROADWAY, N. Y. CARL LAEMMLE, Pres.

Priscilla Dean
"The Wildcat of Paris"
"The Wicked Darling"

Mary MacLaren
"Creaking Stairs"

Monroe Salisbury
"The Light of Victory"

Special Service Section on

Mae Murray in "The Scarlet Shadow"

PROBABLY from the title of "The Scarlet Shadow" you may conclude that this is a picture that is somewhat of the ragged edge of the sex stuff. And possibly you may be tempted, as are some exhibitors, after they find out this is not the case, to leave that impression with your patrons. If you have booked this one be sure to keep your advertising clean.

In short, we would prefer to let the title rather stand for itself. One of the surprising things about this picture is that the secret is not revealed until the last few feet of the film.

This is distinctly a clean picture. That fact and that the plot is unusual and that there is always something in suspense—the secret of the mother—defies your audience to guess the ending. In fact, until very near the end of the picture you do not know which of the men the girl is to marry.

AGLANCE at the story: Elena Evan is practically the prisoner of her maiden aunt, Alvira, who has guarded her from all men, and who is constantly reminding her of the crimson stain on the memory of Elena's mother. But Aunt Alvira has not been able to stop the world's progress even if she is living fifty years in the past, and golf links are established next door, one of the greens coming close to the hedge that hold Elena prisoner. To these links come Van Presby and a harmless flirtation ensues, with the girl finally being persuaded to slip away from home one night to go to the movies with Van.

She makes her exit down a rose trellis, but on their return she is unable to negotiate the window and Van does up to help her into her room, and there the maiden aunt discovers the pair. She arrives at one conclusion, determines that marriage is the only solution, and then guards the couple through the night. In the meantime we have been introduced to Mrs. Edith Presby, Van's mother, and a widow who longs to marry her dead husband's brother, Harvey. And so when she gets a letter from Van telling her what a beautiful girl he has met she shows the letter to his uncle, who sets out to nip the romance in the bud. He arrives at the scene just as the aunt is marshalling the young couple off to the minister and promptly interferes.

The girl herself, conscious that she has done no wrong, does not want to marry Van, but the aunt demands that the marriage shall occur or the niece shall leave her home, and so Harvey declares that since Van has compromised her Elena shall go to live with Van's mother. And so it happens.

BUT Mrs. Presby notes the interest that the man she wants is taking in Elena, and when he is called away to the west by some troubles on his ranch, the older woman determines to marry the girl off, and for this purpose uses Joseph Fleming, a millionaire new-rich, who is an utter boor in his manners. Fleming is middle-aged to boot, and his love making perfectly disgusts the young girl, and she spurns him, but later when Mrs. Presby tells her that she must marry and that Harvey especially desires it the girl agrees to accept the boor.

Then we get a flash of Harvey getting the news just as he is settling the trouble on his ranch and so he takes the first train east, arriving just after the dinner held the evening before the wedding. At this dinner the table manners of Fleming are so disgusting that the girl declares that she will not go through with the marriage, and flees from the room. While she is packing her grip to leave Mrs. Presby seeks to persuade the girl to consent to the marriage and when she refuses again upbraids her with the scarlet shadow that is upon her mother's life.

Directly after that Van, who has become maudlin drunk, seeks Elena out in his room and when he is repulsed again adds to her desperation with the taunt that she cannot afford to be found twice in the same room with the same man.

But just as Elena is about to leave the house Harvey returns from his trip, and finally the girl tells him that she had only agreed to marry Fleming because she had been told that he wished it. Harvey replies that he does desire her to marry, but to marry the man she loves and then develops the fact that Elena and Harvey love each other. But just as the girl is about to confess she remembers the scarlet shadow on her life, though she has always maintained faith in her mother.

And then, as she is about to leave, the aged gardener for Aunt Alvira arrives on the scene, "fired" because of a dispute that he had with the maiden lady over Elena's mother. He reveals that the scarlet stain is merely the fact that the mother married for the second time, and that the old maid believed this to be a terrible thing. Then the happy ending.

At left the aged gardener; center, youth, his mother and Harvey, and at right the maiden aunt who caused the trouble

These three pictures can be used for an ad., asking: Which of these men did she marry. At left the fat millionaire, at right the youth and center the winner

Comedy and the Star Two Points to Play up Strong

COMEDY is one of the strong elements in "The Scarlet Shadow." There are lots of tense moments, but you never get very far away from the laugh, and we would advise you to establish this fact in all of your exploitation. That very thing keeps the public from getting any idea that you are handing them anything like the story of a wronged girl.

At the same time another of the selling angles of this picture is the ending, and therefore the story should not be given away in your advertising or the stories that your papers are willing to print for you. You should appeal to the heart interest strong, and there is plenty of it as a basis, but do not get so deep into this as to suggest the problem angle.

With all of this keep the name of the star prominently displayed in your advertising, and especially if you design your advertising, use striking pictures of her, preferably a scene from the picture prominently enough to draw the fullest attention to your display. We have impressed upon you often that the successful exhibitor never overlooks the opportunity to play strong the charm of a beautiful woman; this is an instance where you have the goods.

MISS MURRAY has played in some strong productions recently, including "The Bride's Awakening," "Face Value," "Princess Virtue," "Her Body in Bond" and "Danger—Go Slow." She was a recruit from the musical comedy stage to the screen, and before joining Universal she appeared with Lasky-Paramount in "To Have and to Hold," "Sweet Kitty Bellars," "The Dream Girl," "The Plough Girl," "The Big Sister" and "The Primrose Ring." She was also the star in "The Mormon Maid," a special release.

We would distinctly emphasize the role in which this attractive young woman appears here. She might well be called one of the "cuddly girls" of the screen; she is particularly of the type that is able to portray young girlhood, without affectation and apparent make-up. Your public probably knows that already, and so you should call attention to the fact that she has just this sort of a role in this picture, and then tell a little more in detail just what it is.

This is a picture that you can especially afford to exploit when "in the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love," for it is distinctly a live story with little of the "heavy" sort of stuff in it—just enough to furnish the background of mystery.

As we have said before, we believe that the title here is one that needs some explanation so that one will not get the wrong impression that it is one of the scarlet stories. Therefore we would go into enough detail to give the lighter character of it without divulging the entire plot, and make the selling talk a little more extensive than usual. Here is one:

"Elena was an innocent little girl, but she had a past wished on her. Her maiden aunt was constantly telling of the scarlet shadow on her dead mother's life, and Elena believed that there was some hidden skeleton in the closet. For a long time the shadow was merely a mystery, but the time came when it stood between her and the man she loved. You'll laugh a lot at the unfolding of the story, and more when you find what the scarlet shadow really was. You'll find it a different sort of a love story, punctuated with laughs, now and then a heart throb, and complete and unexpected satisfaction at the end. It's just the sort of a story for the season of the year when new life is springing up in the world."

Then here is another one:

"Elena was a prisoner of her maiden aunt, who constantly reminded her of the scarlet shadow on her life, until she rebelled because she had faith in her mother memory.

"A young man came into her life, and the spirit of adventure led her to do so terrible a thing as to steal away from home and go to a movie with him. But an innocent accident brought this youth into her room, and there was only one interpretation that the maiden aunt could give.

"Then came a second man into her life, but as Elena herself said 'she didn't fit in with his style of architecture' and though he had millions she loathed him—and at the wedding supper she finally rebelled.

"Comes the third man then. She didn't know it at the time, but he had been the one she loved—and she found that she loved him so much that she did not want to bring the scarlet shadow over his own life. But when they both heard what the scarlet shadow really was, they both laughed—and were very happy."

HERE is an advertising suggestion that we would commend very highly. On this page we are showing three scenes from "The Scarlet Shadow." The pictures are available in the stills, but if you do not get them the cut can be made in a pinch from these, though we would recommend stronger display than we have been able to give here.

"Which of these three men did she marry?" should be the catchline, and this ought to be brought out strikingly. Then follow with the following lines:

"One came to her with the romance of a college youth, and at first sight they both thought they loved each other a lot, and they were both mighty young.

"Another offered her his millions and though he was very fat and wore a corset he tried to play Romeo in her Juliet—in a manner that will give a lots of laughs. They got as far the bridal dinner.

At left one of one-sheet; center, six-sheets, and right one of three-sheets

'And the other man? They had er spoken of love until all seemed peless. But it was together that y saw the scarlet shadow removed m the little girl's life, laughed ile you will roar—and were very ppy.

'Maybe we've already told, but k at the three pictures and decide yourself which of the three men married. Maybe you think you ow the whole story now, but even ou think you do we will promise a the surprise of your life in a mo- n picture when you see Mae Mur- in 'The Scarlet Shadow.'"

HIS same idea might well be carried out in the lobby, but in this case we uld simply make a striking display of three scene pictures with the line al- ly suggested, and under this we would

One had youth and romance; the sec- had romance and millions; and the d—well, come and see the part he ed in little Elena Evans' life."

ow when you come to the lobby dis- follow the same lines that you have n given for your newspaper copy. oid anything of the representation of let shadows or anything of the sort he front of the house.

here is a striking 24-sheet available ch contains the same picture of Mae ray in pajamas that appears on the one- t that we have reproduced. This will e a splendid cut-out for the center of r lobby display. Smaller cut-outs of one-sheets can be used. There is also ree-sheet that contains the head and of Miss Murray, with a background lowers. All of these would be even e striking for lobby display purposes ey were mounted on sufficiently large ts made out of red cardboard. A mass of artificial roses strung around the lobby will give the spring-time, romantic effect that you need.

HERE is still another idea that may be used. Have your sign painter reproduce a wedding invitation in the usual script, reading like this:

Mrs. Edith Presby requests the honor of your presence at the marriage of her ward,
Elena Evans
to
Mr. Joseph Flemming,
St. Luke's Church,
March 8, 1919.

Have this made in a sufficiently large size to attract attention and then across this use, in fac simile of a girl's handwriting: "Wedding off. Mr. Flemming too rich and too fat. Elena Evans."

This same plan might be followed in an advance campaign, but in this case we would suggest two sets of cards: Use the first in the form of a marriage invitation, except that the name of the theatre should be inserted instead of the church. Then follow this up with a card, or, better still, a handwritten personal letter, saying:

"My marriage to Mr. Joseph Flemming is off. He is too rich and too fat. I believe that you will agree that I have done right after you see the ending of my romance in 'The Scarlet Shadow' at the Empire Theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday."

READY FOR YOU

Material that You Can Get at Your Exchange

AS a convenience for the exhibitors who have booked this picture we are listing here the material which is ready prepared and which can be obtained at your local exchange:

The paper includes two one-sheets, two 3-sheets, a 6-sheet and a 24-sheet.

For newspaper advertising purposes there are ready prepared designs, either in mat or electro form in one, two and three-column sizes.

There is a one-column cut of the star and two- and three-column cuts

There are sets of 8 by 10 and 11 by 14 stills, together with a stock picture of the star. There are slides and a music cue prepared by James C. Bradford, musical director of the Broadway theatre, New York.

THIS is a picture with so much humor and so much heart appeal that you can surround it with almost any sort of a program that you desire, but we would advise especial attention to the music. The love note should be dominant in all of this and the most of the airs light and catchy.

AN effective prologue of music could be provided by simply copying that given at the Strand theatre last week and which you will find fully described in the issue of March 1. This consisted of a quartet of girls seated on the porch of a southern mansion with the river and the field in the background, singing old-time love songs, closing the several selections with "Sweet Genevieve," which was carried on the orchestra into the opening of the picture.

Any good love song, preferably rendered by a female voice, will do, but we would suggest one of the old-time songs, for, though the plot of the picture is laid in the present, the opening scenes give a breath of the old-fashioned women.

Gebest's "I Love You, Dear," is the theme suggested in the music cue supplied by the producers and the one used during the presentation at the Broadway theatre was "I Love You," from "Gloriana," used. There is a place here where the girl goes to the piano and the fat millionaire starts to sing, and here you can have burlesque music played. Broadway used "Keep the Home Fires Burning"

Bessie Love in a forthcoming Vitagraph release, "The Wishing Ring Man"

Henry B. Warner Goes to West Coast Studio

RECENTLY engaged to appear in eight photoplays for Jesse D. Hampton, H. B. Warner left for the studios at Hollywood, California.

Mr. Warner's series of pictures will be released by Exhibitors' Mutual, and Robertson-Cole Co. control the world's rights.

Mr. Warner was accompanied by his wife and baby, and intends to remain in California until his eight productions are completed. Then he predicts he may never return to the East, his previous taste of California life having been so appetizing that he is thinking of accepting the state as his own.

Jesse D. Hampton has completed all arrangements for the coming of Warner. All that remains before putting into work the initial Warner production, "The Man Who Turned White," is the selection of a leading woman, and this task will be filled by the time Warner arrives in Hollywood.

Warner is to be featured by Hampton in a series of plays referred to as "red-blooded." "The Man Who Turned White," the first of the series, is described as a high class, colorful melodrama, with South Africa as the locale. In the story, Warner has the part of an officer of the Foreign Legion, who is cashiered from the army because of an affair with a fellow officer's wife.

He becomes the chief of a band of desert bandits and captures a European girl, who later discovers he is white, not an Arab. Later Warner is regenerated, rescues the girl, and all turns out well.

This play is declared to be the type that H. B. Warner should be best in and was the style he was developing when he decided to return to the stage. Exhibitors are said to have demanded this type.

Vitagraph Completes Two New Productions

IT was announced from the Vitagraph offices this week that two new productions have been completed, one starring Gladys Leslie and the other starring Earle Williams.

Newest of popular novel turned to screen productions, "Miss Dulcie from Dixie," has been completed at the Vitagraph studio in Brooklyn, with Gladys Leslie as the star and Joseph Gleason to direct her. The book, whose title is retained for the picture, is from the pen of Lulah Ragsdale, and won a considerable place for itself in current fiction because of its sympathetic portraiture of Southern type and its faithfulness to local characteristics. It has been set for release on March 24.

Supporting Miss Leslie in "Miss Dulcie from Dixie" are to be seen James Morrison, Charles Kent, Arthur Donaldson, Agnes Ayres and Julia Swayne Gordon.

Favored by an unusually fine run of luck, the Earle Williams production, "A Gentleman of Quality," has been completed in record time at the West Coast studios of the Vitagraph Company. Sets went up with the precision of the pendulum, locations are found without difficulty and every member of the company reported on time each day, there being no breakdowns or blowouts occurring to the machines.

The cast of "A Gentleman of Quality" in its entirety is as follows: Earle Williams, Katherine Adams, Joyce Moore, James Carpenter, Robert Bolder, George Pierce and Ronald Byram. The play is based on Frederick Van Rensselaer Dey's book of the same name.

Joyce to Star in "The Cambric Mask"

Vitagraph this week announced that it has bought the screen rights to "The Cambric Mask," a Robert W. Chambers novel, and that it will be produced for the screen with Alice Joyce in the star role. "The Cambric Mask" is scheduled to follow "The Lion and the Mouse," Miss Joyce's current subject. This would make the release date fall in April, it is said.

Among the Chambers novels which Vitagraph has used as screen subjects are "The Girl Phillipa," "The Business of Life," "The Woman Between Friends," "The Fettered Woman" and "The Girl of Today."

United Managers Look Over Territory

Surveys of their respective territor have been carried out during the past t weeks by the District Managers of Uni Picture Theatres of America, Inc., in c nection with the recent installation branch managers in the World Film changes throughout the country.

In Atlanta and New Orleans new te tory has been opened and branches in tuted under the supervision of Jack Le division manager, who has appointed Jan W. Hanlon manager in the former city a who will make a selection for New Orle for the approval of J. A. Berst, presid of United.

T. L. Morse, promoted from the sa force, is appointed to the managership the St. Louis United branch, where A. Tofler, formerly of Pathe, is added to sales force following his honorable d charge as corporal in the U. S. army.

In the Mid-Western territory D. O'Donnell, district manager for United, temporarily administrating the Minneap branch pending the appointment of a s cessor to D. C. Rodgers, appointed special field work.

P. R. Wernick Returns t England

P. R. Wernick, for the past ten ye connected in various capacities with film industry in America, returned l week to England to aid in the reconstr tion work of the film industry on t side of the Atlantic. Mr. Wernick formerly connected with the selling for of Fox, Goldwyn and Select, and m aged exchanges in Detroit, Boston Buffalo. He is also thoroughly acquain with the production end of the busin Mr. Wernick was married recently to M Frances Elizabeth Burns, of Minnes His wide circle of friends wish him hap ness.

Gertrude Selby, star of farce comedies made l Macdon Pictures Corp.

lew Automaticket System Called Big Success

n demonstrating the new model Autom-cket System, the official in charge de-red that exhibitors are not expected to mechanical experts, and they did not e to be to admire the new model.

e maintained that its simplicity is so f evident that its "foolproofness of op-tion" instantly strikes the mind of the holder. The demonstrator asserted that practical features the new model con-ed from the viewpoint of ticket booth nagement has made every exhibitor an husiast on the new model Automaticket tem.

he secretary and general sales mana-, E. S. Bowman, announced that this e enthusiasm takes on the practical m of orders and reorders.

For example," he said, "one of the ding exhibitors in Washington, D. C., ered two machines shipped. Within a tnight after their arrival he ordered five re without solicitation.

Having specialized in this field for over ecade, and being in intimate touch with needs of exhibitors, the Automaticket naturally expected the new model to a success, a great success.

But our expectations were exceeded by enthusiastic and speedy 'hit' the new del has made with exhibitors," contin-Mr. Bowman.

This is readily explained by a sum-ry of some of the many points which e been perfected in the New Model, h as extreme simplicity of construction per cent fewer parts than any other chine in this field); keys of unit not in may be depressed and thus put out of way; special 'Sure Touch' composi-keys; one master lock for tickets, reg-r-and mechanism; noiseless special mo-; '3-in front and 2 behind' key arrange-nt; extreme speed and accuracy; sepa-, independent register for every ticket omination; easy installation and opera-."

ssue Hayakawa Portrays "A Heart in Pawn" laworth Pictures Corporation announces Sessue Hayakawa in "A Heart in wn," directed by William Worthington, uccessor to "Bonds of Honor" on the hibitors Mutual list of releases.

here is Oriental and Occidental flavor 'A Heart in Pawn" which, under the of "Shadows," served as a stage icle for the young Japanese star in the y days of his theatrical career.

The Avalanche" Bought for Artcraft

he screen rights to Gertrude Ather-s novel, "The Avalanche," was pur-ed by Famous Players-Lasky Corpo-on and will appear as an Artcraft of-ng starring Elsie Ferguson.

is likely that "The Avalanche" will Miss Ferguson's next picture following completion of "The Witness for the ense."

Executive committee, Board of Directors, Famous Players-Lasky. They are Adolph Zukor, Arthur S. Friend, Jesse L. Lasky, Elek Ludvigh, Walter E. Greene and Walter W. Irwin

Studio Scenes Are Most Effective

HUGH FORD, who is directing the Paramount-Artcraft Special production of "The Woman Thou Gavest Me," from Hall Caine's novel, believes that better effects can be obtained right in the studio, that can be secured by taking a motion picture company abroad to get locations.

Many foreign countries are used as settings in the picture—Egypt, India, England, etc. All of these locations are of course being constructed in the studio, but instead of regretting the impossibility of actually going to these lands for making the picture, Mr. Ford is of the opinion that the results, were this done, would not be so good.

"I have travelled all over the world, and have made many pictures in their real locales," he said, "and I have come to the conclusion that it is much better to build the sets instead of to go to them. With the progress of scenic structure in the past few years, an exact replica of any building or any sort of building or scene can be built. And it can be made exactly as the director wants it.

"If I were making a picture in Egypt, for instance, I might find a place which would be ideal except for the lack of a tree or a lake. If I found the lake, something would be wrong with that. And as nature is never perfect artistically, one has to compromise. In the studio I can put the tree where I like, stick a lake in the center or on the side and arrange to suit myself.

"A painter is fortunate, because he can take only as much of a scene as he needs. But the camera takes all there is, and cannot make the selection that is required.

"I went to Rome to make 'The Eternal City' with Pauline Frederick and except for a very few scenes, such as the famous Coliseum, which, of course, could not be successfully reproduced, we secured nothing which could not have been made as well or better in the studio.

"So instead of going to Cairo, for instance, we have erected a building that is almost a facsimile of the Shepherd's Hotel in that city. Those who are familiar with the original will hardly know that the scenes weren't taken there. In the same way we have built Indian bungalows, English streets, etc."

Mr. Ford is a firm believer, however, that travel is necessary to the director. As he has visited every country in the world he knows whether a reproduction of a scene in that country is right or wrong, and the director who has never been there, but is simply working from books or pictures, is apt to make some very apparent mistakes.

Earl Metcalfe Will Direct Flagg Comedies

LIEUTENANT EARL METCALFE, former screen actor and more recently of France, where he helped New York's "Fighting 69th" put over the wallop that spelled the downfall of Kaiserism, has been engaged to direct Paramount-Flagg comedies by Jack Eaton, of Town and Country Films, Inc., the producers of the Paramount-Flagg comedies, releasing on the Paramount program.

About ten years ago Mr. Metcalfe was playing character leads in western stock and more recently juvenile roles on the screen. In August of 1917 he graduated from the Plattsburg Training Camp with a commission of lieutenant of infantry and was assigned to the 165th Infantry, popularly known as "The Fighting 69th," of New York. He sailed for France in October of the same year and saw action for the first time in the Toul sector near Luneville, France. After a year in France he returned on a special mission and while in this country the armistice was signed. Shortly after he was honorably discharged. He recently completed an engagement as leading man for Alice Brady in a picture directed by Charles Maigne and was cast for the co-starring part with Claire Whitney in an Abraham Schomer six-reel comedy drama. He is now engaged in directing his first Paramount-James Montgomery Flagg comedy.

Classified Ads on Page 1520

Grace Darmond, at the left, is star of "What Every Woman Wants." Robertson-Cole through Exhibitors Mutual. Mary Warren, Wilfred Lucas and Barbara Tenant are in the cast

Robertson-Cole Producers Busy

Every Producing Unit of Company Which Releases Through Exhibitors Mutual Is on Schedule Time

IDEAL California weather which has prevailed for many weeks has enabled the many producers that make pictures for Robertson-Cole for release through Exhibitors Mutual to work without a hitch.

The only let up in production was occasioned by the visits to New York of Bessie Barriscale and Alma Rubens, but these stars only paid a brief call in Gotham, and would not have come East but for the fact that they were ahead of schedule.

William Desmond, whose features are made by Jesse D. Hampton, has been one of the most diligent workers. His first two attractions, "Life's a Funny Proposition" and "The Prodigal Liar" have been issued.

"Whitewashed Walls," third of his series of eight productions, has been finished, and Desmond is now high up in the Sierras working on his fourth, "Flat Gold," working title of a story by James B. Hendryx, picturized by George Elwood Jenks; who also did "Whitewashed Walls" and the "Prodigal Liar."

The locale of "Flat Gold" is Alaska, therefore the trip to Truckee. Park Frame is directing the latest Desmond work, and in the company are Vivian Rich, Mary McIver, Jack Richardson, Charles French, Walter Perry and Frank Lanning.

Stories are now being selected by the Hampton scenario department for H. B. Warner, who has just been added to the Robertson-Cole list of stars.

"Coward's Courage," an original story by Thomas J. Geraghty, scenarioized by Frances Guihan, is third in line of Sessue Hayawaka's productions for the Haworth Pictures Corporation. William Worthington is directing this piece at the Brunton studio with Dal Clawson handling the camera again. Among the players in support of Hayakawa are his wife, Tsuro Aoki, Toyo Fujita, Ruddie Post, Mrs. George Hernandez, and Francis J. MacDonald.

At the National studios the De Havens have just completed their initial two reel comedy for Exhibitors Mutual release, "What Could Be Sweeter." This is the first of a series of thirteen to be made by the De Havens.

With "The Lamb and the Lion" all ready to go to exhibitors, little Billie Rhodes is now working on her next feature, "The Love Call," which is a picturization of the book of that name.

Before leaving for New York Bessie Barriscale completed "Hearts Asleep," successor to "All of a Sudden Norma," and "A Trick of Fate," under the direction of Howard Hickman, and immediately on her return to the studio will begin work on "Josselyn's Wife."

Much secrecy is shrouding Henry B. Walthall's third feature. He has already produced "And a Still Small Voice," and "The Long Lane's Turning."

With "Diane of the Green Van," her first starring vehicle for Exhibitors Mutual release completed, Alma Rubens came to New York and while here she selected her second story; the working title is "Destiny."

Rents Studio Pending Fifth Production

Upon the completion last week of "A House Divided," J. Stuart Blackton's latest independent production, filmed at the Blackton studios, Brooklyn, the Macdon Comedy Company took possession of the Blackton studo for a period of two weeks. During the interval Mr. Blackton will occupy himself with making distributing arrangements for "The House Divided." Mr. Blackton's latest production was scenarioized by Anthony Paul Kelly from Ruth Holt Boucicault's novel of the same title. Herbert Rawlinson and Sylvia Breamer are the featured players. Mr. Blackton will also lay plans for his next production. "The House Divided" is the fourth of the Blackton productions. Releasing plans will be annonuced later.

"Echo of Youth" Opens in New York

Graphic Films Corporation's latest production, "The Echo of Youth," written and directed by Ivan Abramson and starring Pearl Shepard and Charles Richman and an all-star supporting cast, had its New ork premiere at David W. Pickner's Spooner theatre. The management of the theatre reports that the S. R. O. sign was out at each performance.

Exhibitors Mutual Mak Many Appointments

A. S. Kirkpatrick, assistant general m ager of Exhibitors Mutual Distribut Corporation, announces the appointm and assignment of district supervisors exchanges.

Joseph R. Merrick, assistant s manager, becomes supervisor of east branches, including Boston, Washingt Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Alba Detroit and Cleveland. Mr. Merrick w formerly supervisor of Pacific co branches.

S. T. Stephens, southern supervisor, tains the south including exchanges Atlanta, New Orleans, Dallas, Oklaho City and Cincinnati. His headquarters New Orleans.

O. R. Hanson, formerly an exchar supervisor, is assigned to the middle we ern branches including Chicago, Indi apolis, Omaha, Minneapolis, Kansas C Milwaukee and St. Louis.

Nute Levi, formerly branch manager San Francisco, becomes Pacific coast pervisor with the exchanges at San Fr cisco, Los Angeles, Portland, Seattle a Denver under his supervision.

The Canadian exchanges fall under supervision of James Travis, excha manager at Toronto, and the New Yo exchange will be under the supervisio S. J. Rollo, sales manager of Exhibito Mutual.

William Desmond Retur to Westerns

William Desmond, the Jesse D. Hampt star, returns to western characters in "T Prodigal Liar," distributed by Exhibit Mutual.

In Betty Compson, who plays the ch feminine part in "The Prodigal Li Desmond seems to have found a screen c posite who possesses all the naivette, p sonal charm and histrionic talent d manded.

Terriss on Thirteenth Joy

Tom Terriss has started directing Ai Joyce in "The Girl Without A Hea after completing his latest, "The Lion a the Mouse."

Since his affiliation with Vitagraph 1917 he has constantly directed Al Joyce, and in eighteen monthes they ha produced twelve pictures and are now their thirteenth production.

Exhibitor Appreciates Select Service

Sunday is the same as any other day in the week to Select branch managers when any of their exhibitors are in trouble and in need of assistance. A recent letter from the manager of a Piedmont theatre bears out the truth of this assertion. The exhibitor is J. J. Cavanaugh, manager of the Piedmont opera house, who discovered on Saturday that he was stuck with an open date on Monday. There wasn't much time left to fill, but he sent a hurry call and an S.O.S. to Branch Manager Whitaker at Select's Washington Exchange. Following is a letter he wrote Mr. Whitaker later in the week:

"Dear Sir—Surely do appreciate the trouble you went to last Sunday to get me 'A Lady's Name' in time for showing. I was disappointed Saturday on a ———— production, and I did not want to suffer another one on Monday, especially with Constance, as she is going over better every time I play her. 'A Lady's Name' arrived early on Monday and I am returning it tonight. The name of Select covers quite a good deal—Select stars, Select people and above all, Select Service.

"Thanking you,
"J. J. CAVANAUGH."

Hampton Del Ruth Is Engaged by Fox

Hampton Del Ruth, for four years scenario editor and production manager at the Mack Sennett studios, has been engaged by William Fox as editor and supervising director of Sunshine Comedies, and he took up his new work February 17.

Mr. Del Ruth has had a very wide experience in the making of comedies, and has been identified with the film industry as writer for six or seven years.

J. G. Blystone and Fred Fishback are to continue as directors of Sunshine Comedies, and it is now planned that twenty-six two-reel subjects are to be made during the year. This week the finishing scenes for "High Life in Jail" were made, and the subject has been shipped for distribution.

Alice Brady, whose next Select Picture will be "Marie, Ltd."

Carl Laemmle at Universal City

Universal's President Arrives with Party on West Coast for Semi-Annual Visit to Studios

Harry Carey, Universal featured player

ARRIVING at Universal City, after spending two days in Chicago, Carl Laemmle, President of Universal Film Manufacturing Company, was greeted by a large welcoming committee headed by Monroe Salisbury, Studios Manager William Sistrom and Priscilla Dean and following a brief reception at the executive offices he went on a tour of the production city, examining the new laboratories, new still studios, the new power plant, several new stages and wound up his first afternoon at the city with a trip to a 'Red Glove" location in the hills back of Universal City.

With Mr. Laemmle's party were P. D. Cochrane, T. D. Cochrane and Mr. Laemmle's two children, Julius and Rosabelle. Mr. Laemmle will remain at Universal City several weeks and it is expected that upon his return he will visit several Universal exchanges.

"I have found everything at Universal City moving at top speed," said Mr. Laemmle after visiting the various sections of the big producing plant, "and I am doubly certain that this great activity will mean a record year for Universal in 1919. During the past three months we have devoted a great deal of time to systematizing our physical handling of films and that we have also shown a vast improvement in the making of our pictures is also very evident at the studios.

"Mr. Julian has just completed the making of an exceptional film-play 'The Fire Flingers,' adapted from the Saturday Evening Post story by W. J. Neidig and Mr. Holubar has begun work on another extraordinary drama, 'Ambition.' We have obtained an original story by Bayard Veiller for Miss Dean's next production and have also obtained some unusual stories for Miss MacLaren, Mr. Salisbury and our other stars.

"Every one in our big organization has got the spirit of our new policies and my visit to Universal City is for the purpose of seeing that no effort or expense is spared to make the productions we have arranged for the best ever placed upon the film market.

Says "The Brand" Portrays Primitive Alaska

REX BEACH has returned to primitive Alaska again in the "The Brand," the third in his star series for Goldwyn.

One Goldwyn exchange manager who was present at the private trade showing declared that "The Brand" is a big melodramatic romance of the Yukon containing all of the action and power that made "The Spoilers" the biggest motion picture success of its day, one of the first of the big pictures.

"Exhibitor anticipation has been running high since the first announcement of 'The Brand,' and in nearly all of the larger cities Goldwyn customers have extended their playing time for this production, leaving room in their bookings for further elaboration into extended runs," he continued.

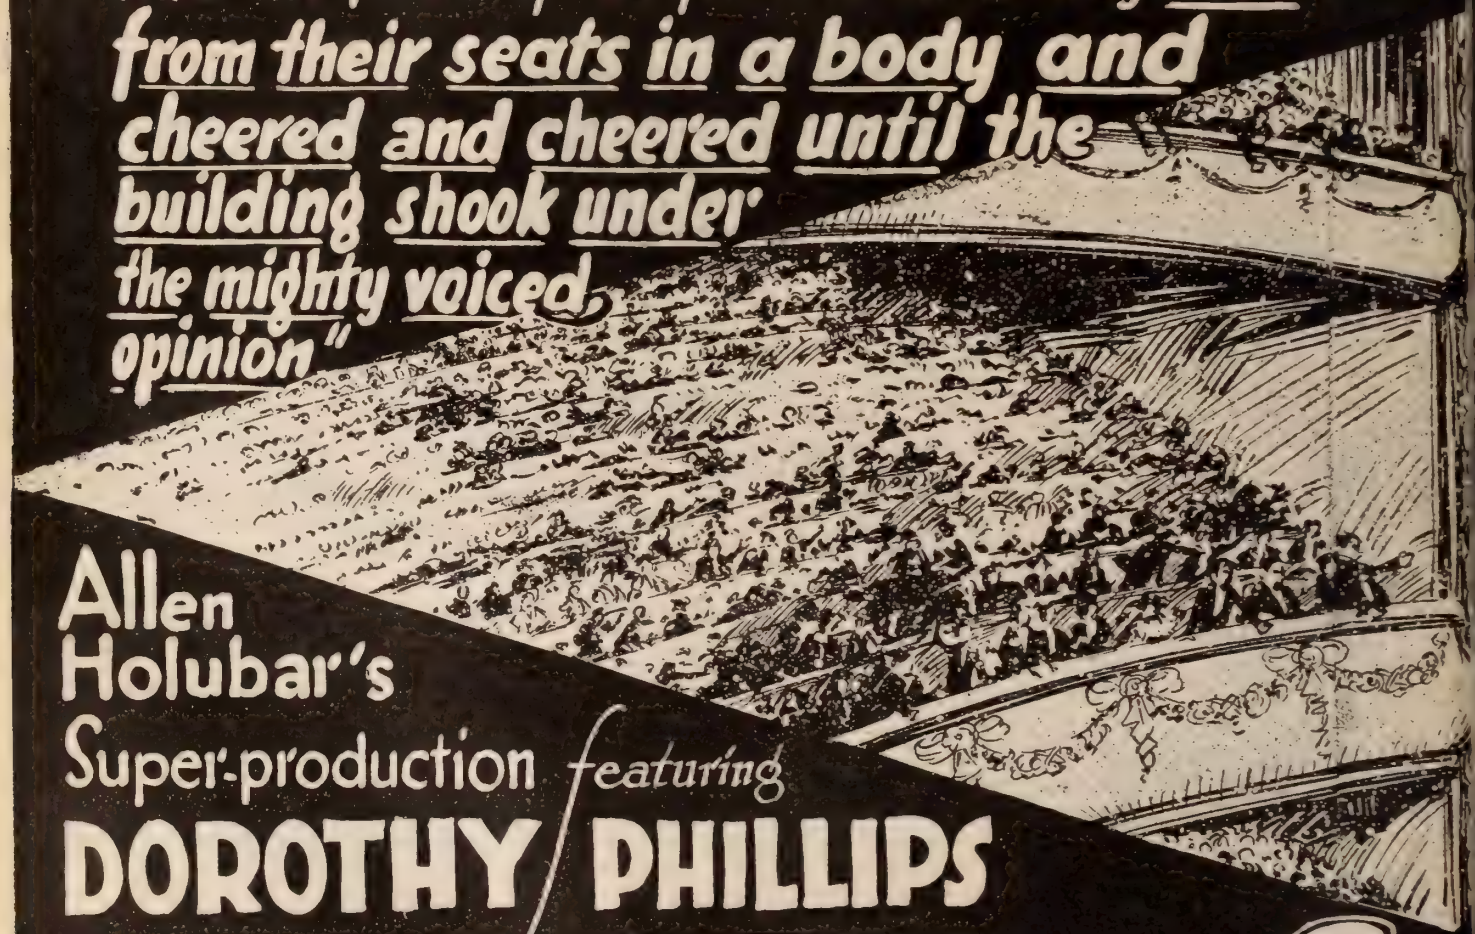
"Confirmation of Goldwyn's own opinion of the power and popularity of "The Brand" was obtained last week at a private trade showing of the picture to the critics and reviewers of the motion picture trade journals and representatives of important monthly magazines.

"The opinions of these first witnesses were unanimously and wholeheartedly enthusiastic. It is the joint opinion of the reviewers that Rex Beach has done nothing so powerful and dramatic as 'The Brand' since his first and famous picture, 'The Spoilers.'

"'The Brand,' which is directed by Reginald Barker, opens with a rush for gold in the Klondike."

Rebookings Heavy on "The Highest Trump"

"The Highest Trump" has been rebooked within a week of its original showing by a western exhibitor who has written Vitagraph as follows:



"We turned them away for the two days on which we originally booked 'The Highest Trump' and I want to say that its title is peculiarly appropriate. As regards Earle Williams' releases, this picture is surely 'the highest trump' of his picture career."

Vitagraph supplements the above with a report that rebookings have been generally heavy on "The Highest Trump," a fact which it attributes to the growing numbers of returning soldiers who have read of the airplane features of the production and naturally are deeply interested in that phase.

"The Highest Trump" was directed by James Young, and in the support of Mr. Williams are seen Grace Darmond, Robert Byram, John Cossar, C. H. Geldhart, Robert Bolder and Niles McCarty.

It rocked Montreal to

"From the time it was first shot on the screen until the conclusion not a soul in the place took their eyes from the screen and not a person left their seats and when the finish of the picture came they rose from their seats in a body and cheered and cheered until the building shook under the mighty voiced opinion"

Allen Holubar's Super-production featuring

DOROTHY PHILLIPS

"The HEART of HUMANITY"

A magazine's success is measured by its advertising. Look at the "News!"

Boys Boost "Made in America"

Chief Executive of Boy Scouts Says Time Spent in Viewing Pictures Is Good Investment

THE chief scout executive of the Boy Scouts of America is James E. West, and he is reported as having gone on record last week as being strongly in favor of having "all engaged as leaders in educational work and especially those engaged as leaders in the work of the Boy Scouts of America," see "Made in America," which was released February 16 by the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation, publishers and distributors.

Mr. West's letter, addressed "To Scout Officials," follows:

"Your attention is invited to the motion picture story of what American manhood, genius and efficiency did to make possible "Peace with Victory," which is just being released to the regular motion picture exhibitors throughout the United States. This picture is entitled "Made in America" and is semi-official in that it was produced with the cooperation of the U. S. Government and indeed was a part of the program of the Committee on Public Information.

"The last few years has witnessed so many wonderful developments of historical importance that it is difficult to have agreement as to the one thing which is most significant. To my mind one of the most significant events of the war was the demonstration of effectiveness of a Democracy as shown by the passage and carrying into effect of the draft law. Certainly all who are interested in education and particularly those of us who are giving our time to the training and development of character of boys have closely followed the various steps in the process which in so short a time gave us a well-equipped, efficient army which brought the war to an end.

"Many of us have personally visited the camps and observed processes for training and development of the man power of the nation. This new picture makes available to all alike an opportunity of getting the authoritative story of how this big task was accomplished in a way that is not only of absorbing interest but actually entertaining. I believe that the time invested to see this picture will be a good investment on the part of all engaged as leaders in educational work and especially for those engaged as leaders in the work of the Boy Scouts of America."

"The Unpardonable Sin" Opens in Detroit

HARRY GARSON crossed the continent from Los Angeles, stopped long enough in New York city to visit a barber shop and dining room with a few minutes in between spent in issuing instructions to W. H. Rudolph, his eastern representative, and left the same night for Detroit.

The Garson and Neilan production of "The Unpardonable Sin," starring Blanche Sweet, will receive its premiere at Detroit, Mich., in which city Mr. Garson owns several theatres. This is said to the first time that a big special has ever been opened in Detroit before being presented in New York, Chicago or Los Angeles.

On March 2, at the Broadway-Strand in Detroit, the big nine-reel production opens at raised prices, 35 cents to a dollar top, for an extended engagement.

The Majestic theatre at Los Angeles opens with "The Unpardonable Sin" March 9 for an indefinite run at $1.50 top admission prices.

Although Sol Lesser has purchased the California rights to this production outside Los Angeles, Messrs. Garson and Neilan are not advertising that any other territorial rights are for sale.

Extended runs at raised prices in the large theatres in principal cities of the various territories will be under the auspices of Messrs. Garson and Neilan, and whether the territorial rights will then be sold after the prospective buyers have an opportunity of seeing the production, has not been announced.

As soon as large theatres are available in New York city and Chicago, this production, personally directed by Marshal Neilan, will be placed for long runs at increased admission prices, according to W. H. Rudolph, eastern representative.

Foreign Rights Bought for "Virtuous Men"

THE first S-L Pictures productions and Ralph Ince Film Attraction, "Virtuous Men," starring E. K. Lincoln, will be distributed in the foreign markets by Sydney Garrett, president of J. Frank Brockliss, Inc., according to an announcement made by Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin this week. Mr. Garrett has the exclusive rights to this feature in the foreign markets and announces his intentions of inaugurating an extensive advertising campaign in its exploitation.

The feature of Mr. Garrett's campaign will be the use of the artistic pages recently seen in the advertising sections of the leading trade journals. The entire series of colored inserts, the work of famous artists, will be distributed in foreign lands, in addition to the specially prepared publicity stories, adapted to foreign consumption.

Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin showed recently the partially completed picture to Mr. Garrett and on the strength of material as presented in its semi-finished state, he bought outright the foreign rights. In referring to the production, he said:

"Virtuous Men" more than meets with my expectations as a production worthy of the name special. Carrying out carefully pre-arranged plans made with Sawyer and Lubin, the requirements of the foreign market were kept in mind at all times. The picture is melodramatic in the extreme, has been invested with massive settings, and best of all, tells a story of universal appeal, suited to movie audiences in all parts of the world."

French Film Interests in Big Merger

What is described as a group of the mo powerful figures and influential persona ties in the motion picture industry France, is the combination headed by Chas. Delac and M. Vandal and said to backed by unlimited capital, have succes fully negotiated for an alliance of interes whereby they assume the management a control of the oldest and largest Fren producing concern, the "Film d'Art," whi is described as the most highly perfect distributing company and famous all ov the world as the Agence Generale Cinem tographique, and what is said to be th largest and most pretentious photopl palace in the world, La Salle Marivau (Marivaux Hall).

The new organization will be known CH. Delac, M. Vandal & Cie (Delac, Va dal & Co.) with offices at 11 Boulevar Des Italiens, Paris. The merging of the interests practically places into the hand of Delac, Vandal & Co. the bulk of th production, distribution and exhibition motion pictures in France.

M. Vandal, partner in the firm of Dela Vandal & Co., has just arrived in Americ and is making his headquarters with th office of Adolphe Osso in the Broka Bldg. M. Vandal's mission is principall for the purpose of acquiring the French o other European rights to the recent Amer can motion picture successes and to estab lish an outlet for the product of his firm in France.

"The Wishing Ring Man" on March 10

"The Wishing-Ring Man," starring Bes sie Love has been set for release on Marc 10th by Vitagraph. Miss Love in this pic ture is assisted by J. Frank Glendon, Clair DuBrey, Jean Hathaway, Truman Va Dyke, Willis Marks, Alberta Lee, Dorothy Hagan, Colin Kenny and Master Ehrlin ger.

David Smith, who is directing the Bessi Love pictures, expressed especial satisfac tion with the coming release.

Those who, a few days ago, saw the first private unreeling of the picture in Vitagraph's home-office projection room concurred with the director.

Universal Adapts French Play for Screen

Universal has secured an adaption by Marie Eve of the French play, "La Femme et Le Pantin" (The Woman and the Puppet) by Pierre Louys.

As in "Carmen" the setting for "La Femme et Le Pantin" is Spanish, and the action of the play declared to be equally as dramatic as in "Carmen" though the heroine of the piece is a very much different type than the quick-tempered cigarette maker of the famed opera.

Universal has not announced for whom the new story is intended, but it is believed that because of her exceptional acting as the Apache in "The Wild Cat of Paris," the film-story will feature Priscilla Dean.

Hale Hamilton, Viola Dana, Bert Lytell and May Allison, a quartet of Metro players who are exceptionally popular throughout the country

America Theatre Wins with "The Common Cause"

A. G. Talbot, manager of the America theatre in Denver, has "cleaned up" with "The Common Cause," the J. Stuart Blackton production, according to Vitagraph announcements.

Mr. Talbot has taken pains to inform Vitagraph of his success, which was all the more gratifying because doubts quite natural with the war just terminated had assailed him when this picture, based on the war, as it is, was offered to him for a run at his wonderful theatre. The war angle worried him.

Then he saw the picture privately in the projection room of Vitagraph's Denver branch. Immediately his views changed. Here is how he describes the experience:

"For the benefit of the trade in general, it gives me pleasure to state that we have just finished a very successful run of the Vitagraph special release, Mr. J. Stuart Blackton's 'The Common Cause.' Upon viewing this picture in Vitagraph's projection room, I arrived at the conclusion that it was one of the most pleasing productions based upon the great war that I had seen, but, like perhaps many exhibitors, there lurked in the back of my head the idea that it might not be well received by the public on account of its being a 'war picture.'

"However, I case these doubts aside, advertised it big as a war picture and Blackton production, feeling that the public could not afford to turn down such a splendid picture, and am very glad to state that we have been well rewarded indeed by taking a chance.

"The run of 'The Common Cause' showed a nice profit, and I heartily recommend it to other exhibitors who are on the lookout for an unusual production of splendid merit that will bring results and give entire satisfaction."

Says Correct Atmosphere Essential in Pictures

Goldwyn officials assert that the correct atmosphere is very essential in successful producing. They refer particularly to Tom Moore's new picture, "A Man and His Money."

"In Tom Moore's latest picture there is an atmosphere of smartness rarely found in fashionable society as it is depicted on the screen," declared one Goldwyn enthusiast. "The experienced and sophisticated playgoer knows that this is too often lacking from plays which are supposed to transpire in the homes of people of wealth and distinction."

Blache Will Direct "The Brat"

Nazimova Has Started Her Second Production in Her Own Studios at Hollywood for Metro Distribution

PRODUCTION of "The Brat" will be marked in a change of directors for Nazimova. Albert Capellani, who directed her in "The Red Lantern," recently completed, having left to produce his own pictures, Maxwell Karger who, with Richard A. Rowland presents the Russian artiste, entrusted her direction to Herbert Blache. The entire production will be under the personal supervision of Mr. Karger.

Metro officials declared that Herbert Blache is one of the world's ablest directors who has achieved distinction with rapid strides by reason of his fine artistic sense and unvarying conscientious endeavor.

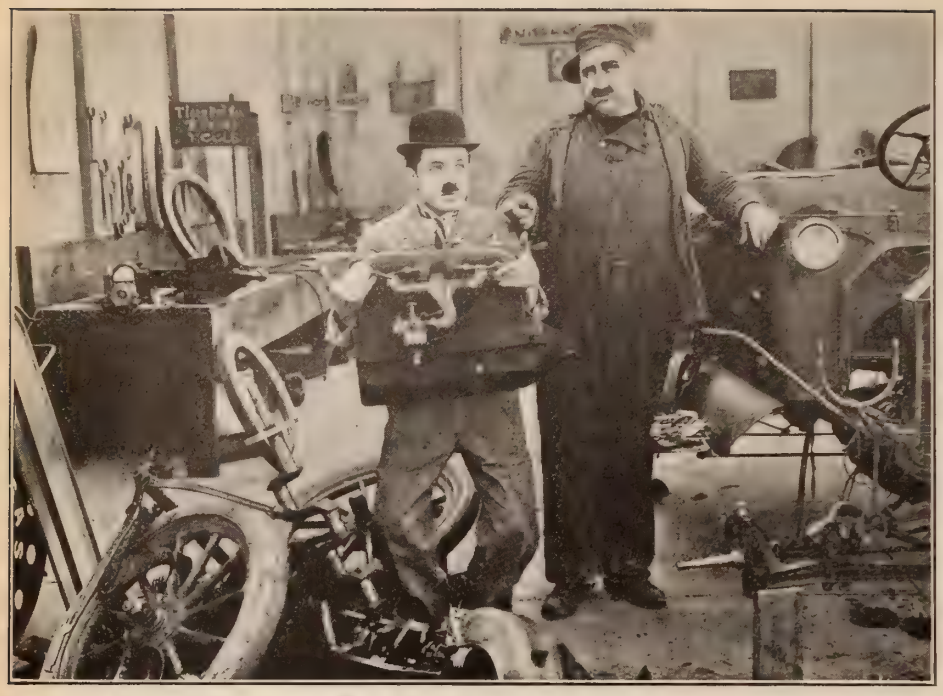
He has just finished directing Viola Dana in a picture of the Paris underworld, tentatively called "Jeanne of the Gutter," and prior to that he directed Screen Classics, Inc., big production, "The Man Who Stayed at Home," with a special cast; Ethel Barrymore in "The Divorce," and Edith Storey in "The Silent Woman."

In her comparatively brief but meteoric career as a star of the cinema, Nazimova has run the gamut of racial types from the French artist's model in "Revelation" to the Eurasian, or half-Chinese maid, Mahlee, in the spectacular and colossal Chinese drama, "The Red Lantern." Parisian in "Revelation," Gypsy in "Toys of Fate," a Bedouin girl in the sun-drenched desert in "Eye for Eye," and an untutored, wondering child-woman in "Out of the Fog"—the screen version of her great stage success, "'Ception Shoals,"—she is now to portray a character more familiar than any of these to the ken of the city-bred American.

Nazimova has already started on "The Brat," her second production to be made at the new Nazimova studios in Hollywood. She is to interpret the titular role in June Mathis's screen version of the play written by Maude Fulton, and used by Miss Fulton as a stellar vehicle on the speaking stage.

Charles Bryant, who has played opposite her in all her productions for Messrs. Rowland and Karger, saving only "The Red Lantern," will again be Nazimova's leading man in "The Brat," and a stellar cast is promised in support.

Comprehensive Press Book on Fox Pictures



WILLIAM FOX announces that the press book issued in connection with "The Forbidden Room," starring Gladys Brockwell, is very comprehensive and contains an article on "Woman Voters as Reformers," by Mary Garrett Hay, chairman of the New York City Woman Suffrage Party; a story on how Wyoming came to be the first state to have women in public office; a stirring article on the fight of Chicago's women against corruption; a comprehensive study of state laws due to women's influence, and a survey of prominent women office holders, etc.

Although this is particularly mentioned as a comprehensive press book, containing every conceivable kind of material that would be of assistance to the exhibitor in exploiting "The Forbidden Room," it is stated by the Fox Film Corporation that it is of the same standard as other press books issued with Fox productions.

"The Forbidden Room," in which Gladys Brockwell is said to have one of the greatest roles of her career, was directed by Lynn F. Reynolds and is the story of how a girl risks her reputation in a battle for love and civic righteousness.

In the cast supporting Miss Brockwell are such well known players as William Scott, J. Barney Sherry, Harry Dunkinson, Al Fremont, William Burress, T. S. Guise, Louis King, R. Dunber, Lillian West, Virginia Lee Corbin and Francis Carpenter.

Miss Brockwell plays the role of a stenographer in "The Forbidden Room." She is put in a trying predicament by men who hate her employer, '

Billy West deputizes as the mechanic in his newest comedy, called "The Chauffeur" and distributed by Bull's Eye Film Corporation

Describes Easter Week Special

Goldwyn Outlines Appeal That Can Be Made for Its Production, "The Eternal Magdalene"

"BEHIND the simple words, 'A drama of compassion,' which Goldwyn applies to 'The Eternal Magdalene,' to be first released in the big cities of America as an Easter week special, beginning April 20, lies a world of meaning and one of the tensest dramas in human history," says a Goldwyn announcement.

"The dramatic fabric of Robert H. McLaughlin's popular play, of which this big Goldwyn special production is a picturization, was constructed during one of the most unusual periods of American life; a story lifted white-hot out of an author's mind and heart and delivered with such power and directness that instantly it was recognized as one of the big plays of recent years.

"'The Eternal Magdalene' is a story of the New York or San Francisco of today and tomorrow; a story of Coshocton or North Yakima—a tenser story and situation when located in a little town or small city than when laid in the big communities where multitudes of people make the contacts of the wayward or discarded woman less conspicuous.

"The story of the magdalene is the story of the newspaper front pages across the nation and around the world; the story of the divorce courts; of retributive justice or escape from social penalties.

"When a prominent New England exhibitor, Thomas Soriero, of the Park Theatre, Boston, termed this 'a story of your town and my town' he emphasized the universality of the theme and put his finger on the reason why this big Goldwyn special production is assured of an international success.

"Goldwyn has made a production of magnitude and scope; a story of pity and forgiveness; a love story of unusual warmth; a story of the effect of the intrusion of the magdalene into a typical family of the present day in any community of this day and time."

"The Eternal Magdalene" will be seen first in Boston for the week of April 20 after a campaign of exploitation and announcement that will last from four to six weeks in advance of the first presentation.

Ready for release for months past, "The Eternal Magdalene" has been held back by Goldwyn as a great seasonable release that would make it strongest first impression at the Easter season.

The featured players in this production are Marguerite Marsh, Charles Dalton and Donald Gallaher, all well known on the screen and in the theatre.

Filled Full of Pep!

Vitagraph's two-reel "Big V" Special Comedies have earned a distinct place for themselves in theatres all over the country and for the coming year instructions have gone forth to Vitagraph's western studios that if pep, punch, pretty girls, thrills and riotous fun can be bought, they are to be obtained for each of the two-reel comedies being made.

Earl Montgomery and Joe Rock head one of the Big V Special Comedy companies and Jimmy Aubrey heads the other.

Allison Completes One

May Allison has completed her work in "The Island of Intrigue," her newest starring vehicle following "In for Thirty Days" and "Peggy Does Her Darndest." Final scenes of the production, which was directed by Henry Otto, under the personal supervision of Maxwell Karger, director-general at the new Metro studios in Hollywood, were photographed on and around the island of Santa Cruz.

Darmond and Laurel Will Support Wallace Reid

Famous Players-Lasky announces that it has made two notable engagements for "The Valley of the Giants," which Wallace Reid is to make shortly for Paramount under George Melford's direction.

For his leading woman, he will have Grace Darmond, who has appeared in many pictures opposite Earl Williams and who is described as exceedingly beautiful and talented.

Miss Darmond began her screen career with Selig in support of Tyrone Power, Otis Harlan and Harry Mestayer and later went to Astra where she did some important serials. She appeared in the Technicolor picture, "The Gulf Between," and then became identified with Vitagraph.

Kay Laurel, the Follies girl, will have a part in the picture also. Miss Laurel was one of the beauties of the Ziegfeld shows, and her poses have attained fame. She has been painted by Penrhyn Stanlaws and other noted artists.

To Increase Output of L-Ko Comedies

Since the recent arrival of Julius Stern, president and general manager of the L-Ko Comedy Company, added impetus has been noted in production at the studio in Hollywood.

Three companies are now at work, and it is the intention of President Stern and Studio Manager Louis Jacobs to increase the number of companies within a short time.

Director Vin Moore has a large company of players and several of the Beckwith lions at work on a comedy which they state will be replete with thrills and laughs.

The leading comedian is Charles Dorety, and other laugh producers assisting are Charlie, from the Orient, Ed Kennedy and others, with Eva Novak and Vera Reynolds furnishing the beauty trimmings.

Bessie Barriscale is star of "A Trick of Fate," distributed by Exhibitors Mutual

Special Service Section on

"Good Gracious, Annabelle"

BILLIE BURKE in "Good Gracious, Annabelle" presents the problem of advertising a beautiful actress in a straight farce. If you are going to play this picture, put all of your emphasis on those two angles. Don't get serious about this one. You know that a farce generally presents a practically impossible plot, but that it depends upon its humor and its quickly changing situations to please the public.

There is a big demand for farces, proven by the large number of stage productions of this variety and this picture has been made from one of the most successful of them, which had a long run in New York during the 1917-18 season and then went on the road for a long tour. This is another point that should be borne in mind in your announcements. State these facts, not merely that the picture is made from "the stage play of that name."

By advertising the humor we do not mean that you have to say to the people that they will laugh themselves to death." They have been told that so often that the very statement now arouses suspicion, but you can use catch phrases that will give this suggestive element. You don't need to be told that you have an attractive title here and that the name of Miss Burke should be played even more prominently, and therefore the chief point is that if you make your advertising too serious then the public will take the picture itself seriously, and you want them to know from the time that the title flashes on the screen that this is one of those stories that didn't happen, but keeps one interested to the end and keeps them laughing throughout.

A LOOK at the story: We are introduced to Annabelle Leigh as a young woman living in luxury at one of the most fashionable hotels. She knows nothing about money, except that it is a convenient thing to spend and the first scenes show her getting a bill for a couple of expensive gowns when she is already "dead broke" and has drawn her allowance in advance. She must have funds and so she induces one of her men friends to get some money on the shares of mining stock that she owns, she little realizing that the shares represent the control of a mine for which rival factions are battling. This money goes like the rest and Annabelle is broke again just as her equally impecunious guests are assembling for a luncheon to which she has invited them, William Gosling, her guardian, arrives on the scene just at that time and she asks him to advance her allowance and is informed that she has not only drawn her next allowance but the second and third to follow—and has spent them. And when Gosling asks for the mining shares she tells him that she has borrowed money on them and when the youth who had negotiated the transaction goes to recover these finds that he has been double crossed and that the man he got the money from holds that it is not a loan but a sale, and that the stock has now passed to George Wimbledom, an unscrupulous financier, giving him control of the disputed mine.

But in the meantime the source of Annabelle's allowance has been revealed to us. Seven years before while she was in the West with her father, now dead, there arose a fight over the control of a mine and during this one of the men, a rough-looking, bearded fellow, for her protection carries her away to his cabin. There she declares that she has been compromised and so the parson is called in and they are married. Then he sends her away and she goes east and there her checks begin to come, and she is content so long as she is permitted to lead the butterfly life.

HOW to get back to the present day end of the story: The guests are waiting and Annabelle is in a quandary until she notices a handsome man strolling back and forth across the lobby, notices the way he tips a bellboy and the size of his roll and begins a mild flirtation which results in his speaking to her. She invites him to lunch and, incidentally, she pays his bill. But in the midst of the luncheon she is summoned to the parlors by Harry Murchison with the news that his wife is suing him for divorce and that Annabelle is to be named as the co-respondent.

Just at that moment she overhears Wim-

At left Annabelle and the financier she foils; in center, the "kidnaping," and at right, when her husband comes back to her—shaven

At left 2-sheet, center 6-sheet and at right one of 1-sheets

bledom instructing his butler to get a full crew of servants for his suburban place, and Annabelle gets a big idea. She pretends to be a cook and hires herself to Ludgate, the butler, and then promises to bring a staff of servants with her. As she goes back to the luncheon room to persuade the impecunious guests to accompany her in the same roles. While this is going on Rawson slips the butler a thousand-dollar bill to be the guest at the house for a week, as Wimbledom has already said that he will not be ready to occupy the house for a month. Rawson and the "servants" arrive about the same time. Then follow the complications with the arrival of Wimbleton, the coming of Gosling to get the stock and the misunderstandings all around. But Wimbleton, a drunkard, falls asleep after having made love to Annabelle and she gets the stock from him.

Annabelle reveals her identity and she is astonished to find that Rawson is the now smooth-shaven same bearded man who carried her away to her cabin and married her. Then, of course, everything is perfectly lovely at the fade-away.

NOW remember that we have advised featuring the title of the picture and the fact that it is based on the successful farce, together with the run that it had in New York and on the road. Then let us get down to the lighter and breezier side of the selling talks:

"Annabelle was used to spending money without wondering where it came from. She invited a lot of her friends to a 'bubbly sort of a luncheon' and then found that the hotel has suddenly cut off her credit. What was the poor girl to do? And then came along a perfectly good millionaire with a bank roll that gave her an inspiration. And so she invited him to be her guest, and then let him pay for the eats. She was very much smitten with him, but she had a husband whom she could barely remember, but he sent her a check every month. She should worry, but she did when she found herself really in love with this millionaire, but she was a lucky girl and the man proved to be——. But half of the enjoyment will be lost unless you laugh through her adventures and find the answer to her romance."

HERE are a few other ones that may be used. We would advise changing these selling points with each day and, if possible, using a different cut of the star so as to get the personality appeal over as attractively as possible:

"Whoever heard of a cook staying in bed until ten in the morning and then having her breakfast served in a private parlor? But Annabelle was simply a cook who was running away from being named in a divorce suit because she wanted to keep the husband she had never even kissed, but who sent her money every month. But she made her society companions do the work. We'd hate to eat what they cooked, but you'll forget all about being hungry when you see Billie Burke as Annabelle, butterfly wife and 'cook.'"

"She didn't know any more about food than to order a good luncheon, but one time she had to beguile a copper king into paying for it. And the next moment she had to take a job as a cook to save herself and the copper king came on the scene again. She thought she was fooling him, because she kept it a secret that she had a mysterious husband that she had married seven years before and never seen again. You'll be fooled between the gurgles of laughter, but he wasn't at all—and you'll have to wait to find out why."

"'Good Gracious, Annabelle, me a cook? And I can't get up before ten in the morning and don't know the first thing to do with a fish.' But Annabelle was very broke and she had to do something to keep out of a divorce case and so she took a chance. She was married, but she flirted with a copper millionaire and then she regretted until she found that she didn't even know her own husband. Maybe you will guess the secret before she did, but you'll be kept too busy laughing to figure too closely on the unexpected turnings of this farcical story that made New York laugh for weeks."

WE would not advise you to play this picture up as a special feature or anything of the extraordinary, because the best part about it is that it is a big laughing production. Therefore, we would carry the comedy element all the way through, and you can afford to add a comedy without tiring the people. Make this a laughing bill—a fast moving performance.

This reminds us of one thing. This is farce comedy and the action should be fast, for there will be a lot of it lost if you run the picture in the ordinary manner. It should be run not slower than ten minutes to the reel so as to keep the people moving around and one development following another closely. When we saw this in the projection room at a private exhibition we were impressed by the fact that this is a film that should be speeded up, but not to the point of "racing."

Music should be light all the way through. There is a specially prepared music cue that allows the melodious numbers to prevail. There is one point in the picture when Annabelle is playing the piano. This tune is "Then You'll Remember Me," and a burlesque touch either on the piano or with a full orchestra will get laughs.

This striking twenty-four-sheet will furnish excellent cut out for lobby displays

Star's Personality and Stage Play Are Big Points

SOME exhibitors seem to work on the theory that because a star is well-known and popular that there should be ss advertising. In our opinion that is a istake, for the exhibitor should use every fort to capitalize to the fullest those as-ts. We do not believe that simply the me of a star and the title of the picture no matter how popular the star and how eat the production—are sufficient to get e maximum of business. That is the ason that we have suggested selling line at will advertise "Good Gracious, An-belle," as a production of itself.

Because she is so well known on the eaking stage and on the screen you don't ve to tell the people who Billie Burke as a matter of formal introduction, but is always well to impress upon your pub- the qualities of the star and these re-ated statements certainly have a power-l cumulative effect. That's the reason we uld tell them that she is at her best in e lighter roles. Since her first screen pearance in "Peggy," she has been mak-g friends, though in some pictures after-ards she was miscast and now is being ven the sort of roles that suit her. We lieve that it would be no mistake to re-ll her last picture, "The Make Believe ife," which left so many smiles in its ke.

Here's a line that you might use:

"'Good Gracious, Annabelle' sn't written for Billie Burke. It as one of the big New York stage ccesses, but you'll think that it was eant for her when you've seen the scinating star in this tantalizing le."

AS in the case of all beautiful stars, the picture of Miss Burke should be yed up mighty strong in your advertis-g. There are available an abundance of ese and especially if you make your own cuts we would select the best of these and have large, striking half tones used, an extra big one for the Sunday display and generous but different ones for each day during the showing of this picture.

There are also available five special single column cuts, besides eight stock single, and several two and three columns that can be used for the displays in cases where the exhibitor does not care to pay for the manufacture of his own. In any case don't use the illustrations as a mere incidental of the display. Make it the chief thing, the "eye-getter," for a picture of a pretty woman will get attention quicker than anything else. Even if you have to take more than the space that you intended to get this effect, do so, and we believe that you will find the added outlay brings more business.

You will not have as much trouble in getting the newspapers to use, in their news columns, pictures of Miss Burke as you would with the meaningless scene cuts that are so often supplied. These cuts are so prepared that any objection to lettering can be removed by having this matter sawed off.

In case where these cuts are used in advertising, we would suggest Ben Day borders for the entire display, running into the cuts and not around them.

YOUR lobby can be made more effective by passing up any stunt displays and using pictures of Miss Burke; the more of them the better. The twenty-four-sheet will supply you with an excellent cut-out and one of the three sheets will provide you with others. If you have followed the advice often given in these Special Service Sections and have been filing your pictures of the stars like Miss Burke, you should have a sufficient number to make an interesting display.

Western scenes are simply an incidental to this production—a flash back—so don't be tempted to produce anything like a mine or a cabin in your lobby. If you feel that you want a distinctive effect this can be obtained by rich hangings together with glaring standing lights or those in hanging design. In other words, the lobby should give an air of luxury. Most people like to see a beautiful star placed in such a setting. In such case framed pictures of Miss Burke should be hung around the lobby just as they are in a palatial home.

Lighting effects should be in a soft red and if cut flowers are available they will add much and they are thoroughly in keeping with the daintiness of the star and the character of the picture.

ANOTHER point worth giving special attention is the strength of the supporting cast. The leading man is Herbert Rawlinson, who was a star with another company and who has a tremendous following in various sections of the country. When it comes to mentioning other players than the star the exhibitor should use his own judgment. If they have a real appeal in your community use the name, but when there is no box office power you are simply gumming the cards.

Craufurd Kent is the "villain"—that is, as much of a villain as is permitted in a farce. Frank Losee, who has been with Famous Players-Lasky for so long, also has a prominent role.

Unusually magnificent are all the settings, both interiors and exteriors. Many of them are laid in a hotel of the wealthy and the others at the country estate of a millionaire. Billie Burke, of course, wears fetching costumes, as she always does.

But don't let any of these facts prevent you from keeping the light side of the story the main thing. Tell your people that it is a delightful farce with a tantalizing star causing all the trouble and then setting things right again and you will have put over the biggest appeal.

Harry Carey, in "A Fight for Love," Universal Special Attraction

"Virtuous Men" to Be Novelized

Sawyer-Lubin Production Starring E. K. Lincoln Will Also Have Condensed Version for the Aid of Exhibitors

IT was announced this week by S-L Pictures that the story of "Virtuous Men," the first S-L production starring E. K. Lincoln, is to be novelized. The work has been entrusted to Bert Ennis, publicity director of the organization.

The announcement states that the novelization of "Virtuous Men" was originally intended as an aid to exhibitors of the country in exploiting the Ralph Ince Film Attraction, but that due to the comment of all who have read the story, arrangements are now being made to publish "Virtuous Men" as a book. The scenario was originally co-written by Arthur H. Sawyer and Ralph Ince, who directed the film version, and lent itself admirably to the purposes of novelization. The production is a melodrama.

The novelization of "Virtuous Men" will be illustrated by scenes from the film, especially taken for this purpose during the making of the production. In addition, a well known artist has been engaged to do several paintings of E. K. Lincoln, the star of the picture and Grace Darling and Clara Joel, who appear in his support. These pictures will be reproduced in color on the frontispiece of the novel and also form part of the illustrations.

For the benefit of those exhibitors who will present "Virtuous Men," a condensed version of the novel, thirty pages in number, has been prepared for distribution to their patrons. Director Ralph Ince, who is possessed of considerable talent in drawing, has consented to illustrate this edition with a series of cartoons and sketches, including one of himself.

E. K. Lincoln, star of "Virtuous Men," left New York this week for a trip to California. Lincoln's journey to the coast will be in the nature of a vacation, following the completion of their first Ralph Ince Film Attraction. "Virtuous Men," the special production which marks the debut of Arthur H. Sawyer and Herbert Lubin in the field of film makers, also inaugurates the first of a series of Ralph Ince Film Attractions in which Lincoln will be presented as star.

Feature News Items in Gaumont's Graphic

The feature news items of international interest, as well as domestic, in the late Gaumont news reel, Gaumont Graphic No. 48, are scenes of Belgian refugees arriving home after being shut out from their fatherland for a long period due to the war; Chicago welcoming the old Eighth Regiment; Lillian Russell receiving her commission as officer of the marines; Chinese coolies arriving in Cuba to relieve labor shortage in the sugar fields; Premier George Clemenceau of France, who was shot recently by an anarchist; motorboat regatta at Miami, Fla.; Hugh Hanley-Page, the English airman, who expects to fly across the Atlantic, and S. S. Touraine arriving with troops of the Twenty-seventh Division; hero receiving the war cross.

Withey Back at Work

Chester Withey, it is announced, has recovered from an attack of influenza and has resumed his directorial work with Norma Talmadge. A dramatic story is now under way.

During a vacation of two days between "Nancy Lee" and the picture just started, Miss Talmadge visited Chicago.

World Secures Eight of Lewis Stone Pictures

It is announced by World Pictures th they have signed contracts which give the the distribution of eight super-pictures t be made during the coming twelve montl by Lewis S. Stone, who has scored in th recent releases on the World program c "Inside the Lines" and "The Man c Bronze."

Mr. Stone has begun work on the first c his pictures which will be called "Man Desire." It will be directed by Lloyd Ir graham. All these pictures will be made i the best equipped studio in California. M Stone has long been a big favorite on th legitimate stage and has a strong followin throughout the country.

As the star in the Broadway productio of "Inside the Lines" he achieved one o the big hits of the modern stage and hi subsequent appearance in other stage play was hailed with delight by theatregoers says the World.

"It is not often that a big stage sta goes from a tremendous stage success int motion pictures and there achieves an eve greater success than had been his befor the footlights," continued the announce ment, "but this is exactly what Mr. Ston has done and his decision to appear i these super-features is in response to th continuous demand of appreciative film fans everywhere."

Showman Praises "Salome'

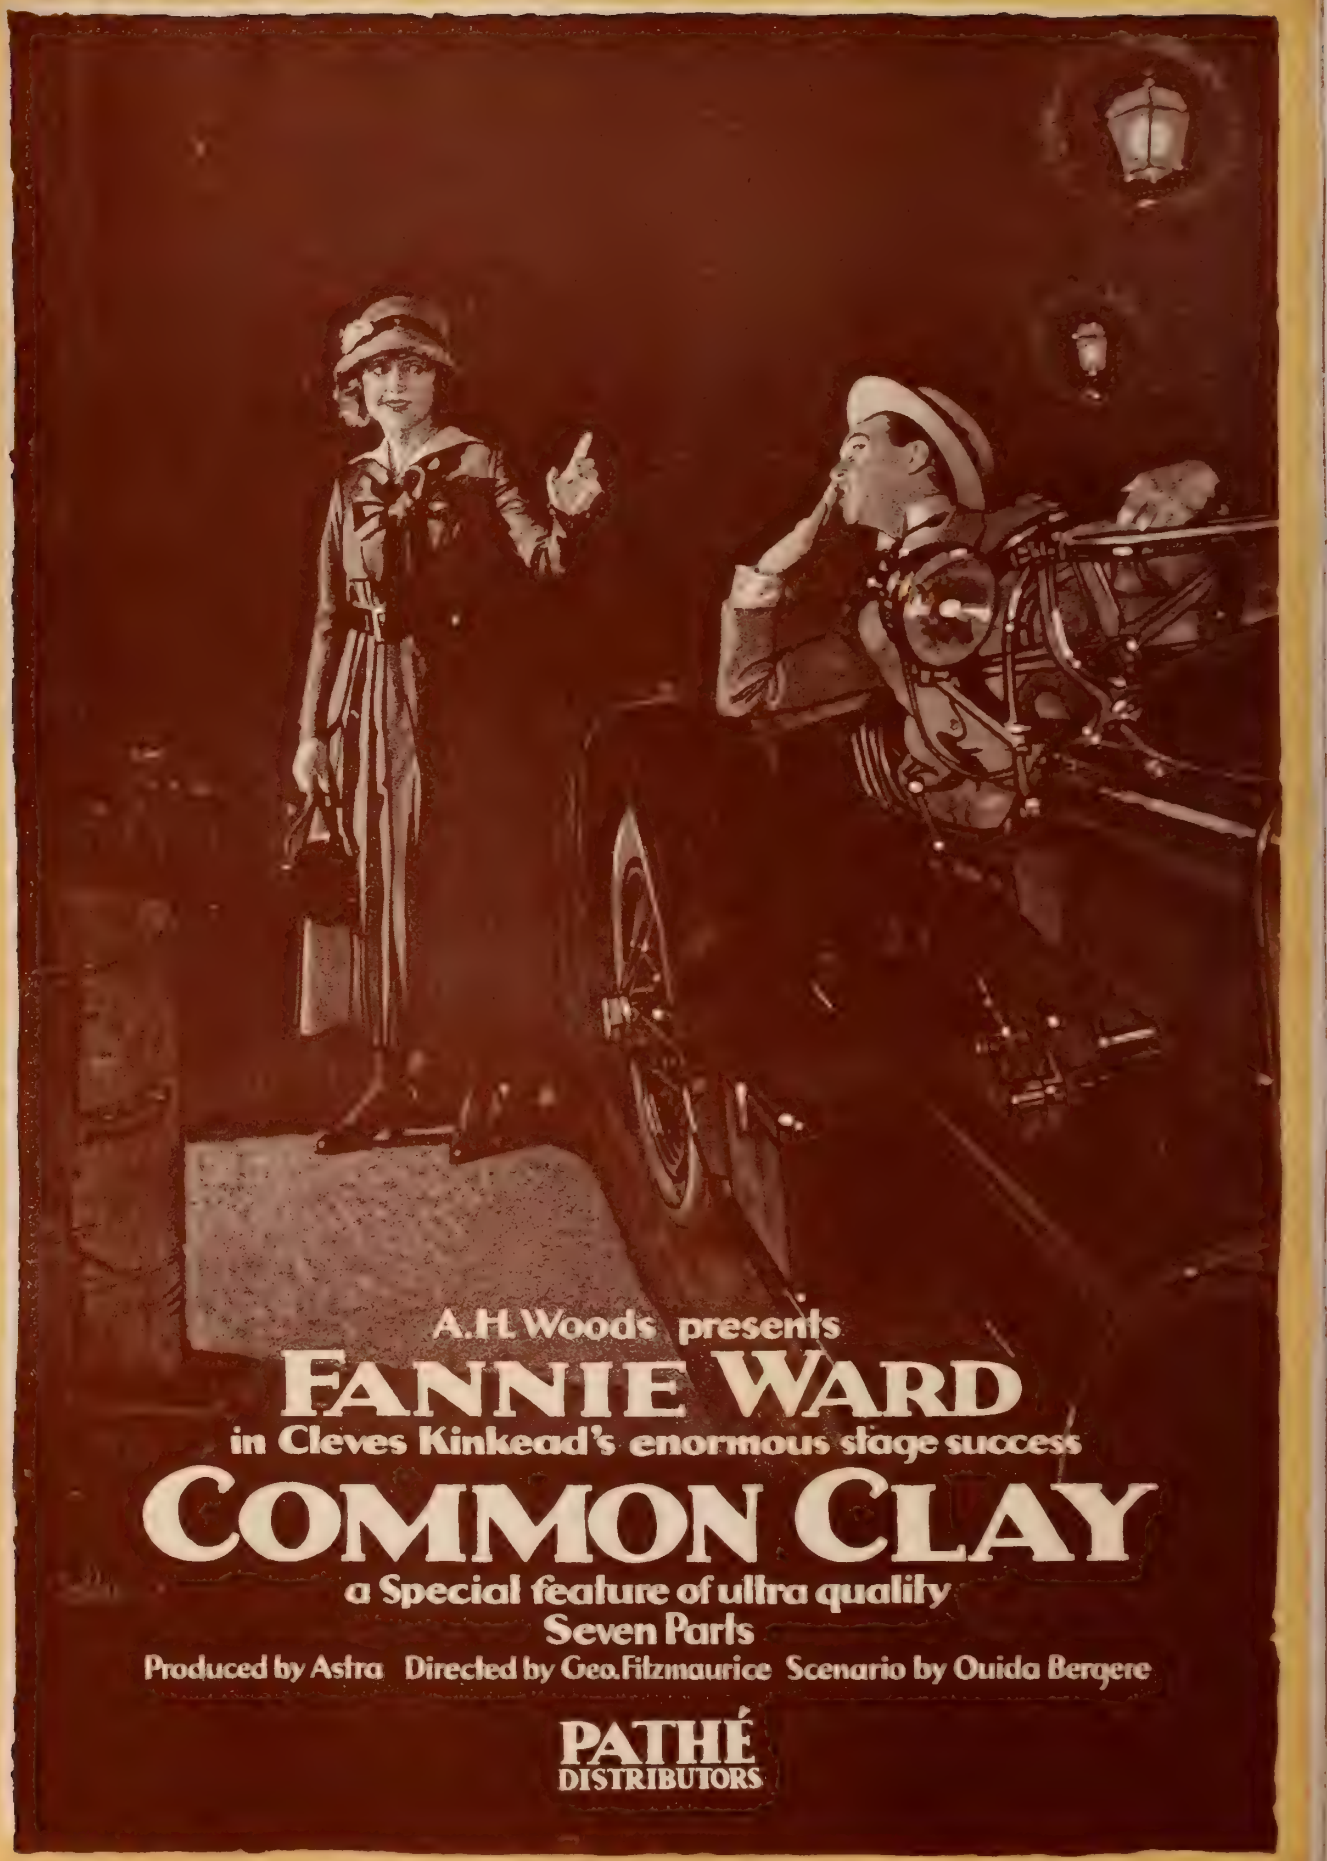
Although the chief beneficiary of an manifestation of progressive showmanshi is the exhibitor himself, it has long beer the contention of Fox officials that com paratively few exhibitors ever have playec big productions in a way big enough t extract every bit of patronage out of thei public and thus make more money whil encouraging producers to stage bigger pic tures.

An example of the great success which "Salome" is achieving wherever shown is given in the experience of the Pastime Amusement Company of Columbus, O The manager of it has just sent the following telegram to the Cincinnati office of the Fox Film Corporation: "Will hold 'Salome' for second week. Wonderful business. Cracked all records for Pastime theater."

Norma Talmadge, in "The Probation Wife," Select Picture

Extra Selected FRANK KEENAN Photoplay

FRANK KEENAN



in the adaptation of Edward Peple's famous stage success

THE SILVER GIRL

A story that touches the heart and stirs the blood

Produced by Anderson Brunton Co. Scenario by Jack Cunningham Direction by Mr. Keenan, assisted by Eliot Howe

PATHÉ
DISTRIBUTORS

A.H. Woods presents
FANNIE WARD
in Cleves Kinkead's enormous stage success
COMMON CLAY
a Special feature of ultra quality
Seven Parts
Produced by Astra Directed by Geo. Fitzmaurice Scenario by Ouida Bergere
PATHÉ
DISTRIBUTORS

The Big Ones have picked the big one of the year;
Among the nationally known houses which have booked

COMMON CLAY

are the Rialto of New York; the Orpheum and Strand of Cleveland, Merrill of Milwaukee; Riviera of Chicago; Circle of Indianapolis; Rivoli of Denver and Regent of Rochester.

Beyond question "Common Clay" is the biggest attraction that has been offered to exhibitors in many months!

Three hearty laughs, two snickers and one chuckle to each minute of running time.
HAROLD LLOYD COMEDIES
One one reel release each week beginning March 9th
Produced by Rolin
PATHÉ
DISTRIBUTORS

Charles Bryant, with Nazimova as leading man in "The Brat"

Strand Gets More Outing Chester Films

A contract providing for the presentation of the second series of Chester Outing Pictures at the Strand theatre was signed last week. Like the first series which was released at that theatre last year, these pictures are produced by C. L. Chester in co-operation with Outing Magazine. This new group, however, is much larger and includes fifty-two scenics which will be released weekly, it is said.

Patrons of the Strand are already familiar with the first fourteen subjects which included the remarkable views of a South American cataract entitled "Keieteur" and the comedy of a scenic honeymoon called "A Dam Catastrophe." The new series is even more diversified in material and ranges from the distant peaks of the Canadian mountains to the heart of the African jungle.

The first picture of the new group will be shown at the Strand on March 2 and is called "From Scales to Antlers." It traces the adventures of moose hunter in the Canadian wilds and leads up to a thrilling climax in which the huge moose registers his displeasure at being hunted even by a camera. In the more peaceful moments, the delights of camp life in Canada are shown with detailed object lessons for the aspiring camper.

Canadian Subjects for the Dominion

Clair Hague, president of the Canadian Universal, Toronto, has announced the immediate release in Canada of a series of scenics of particular interest to Canadian subjects.

The series is made up of twenty-six single reels and the views consist of vistas of scenic spots across the whole country. The pictures will be released simultaneously in various leading cities.

Another Canadian development was the first release of British Films, Limited, in Canada, under the direction of Jule and J. Allen of Toronto, during the week of February 17.

The first presentation was "Kiddies in the Ruins," which was shown at the Allen theatre, Toronto, along with "The Hope Chest," starring Dorothy Gish, as an added attraction.

About New Pictures

"Give and Take" is the title of the new seven-reel Wyndham Gitten production which will be given its premiere performance within a few weeks at one of the Los Angeles theatres. The featured player is Edward Hearn.

"Ravings of a Rounder" is to be a series of thirty-odd humorous titles, written by one of the cleverest men on the Hearst-International staff, and following one idea from beginning to end.

The management of the Walnut theatre, Louisville, Ky., used a unique pre-showing publicity campaign for "Our Teddy," the First National Exhibitors' Circuit release based on the life of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt.

E. K. Lincoln in "Fighting Through" and Zena Keefe in "The Challenge Accepted," special features on the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation's service program, are proving very popular, securing runs on big circuits. The entire Loew circuit in New York is running "Fighting Through."

Under the direction of Lynn F. Reynolds, Peggy Hyland has begun another William Fox Excel picture at Hollywood. This is the second Hyland picture which Mr. Reynolds has directed, the other being "The Unkissed Bride," which has its setting in the Ozark Mountains of Missouri.

Bert Lytell has finished his work before the camera in his newest picture, "Blind Man's Eyes," at the Metro studios in Hollywood.

One of the scenic features of "For the Freedom of the East," the Betzwood photodrama released by Goldwyn, is a reproduction of the Shrine of Buddha, China's famous and historic edifice.

Work on the eighth photoplaylet of the Stage Women's Green Room series, entitled "Romeo's Dad" and featuring Thomas Wise and Gail Kane, is being completed at the Estee studios, New York.

In featuring Albert Ray and Elinor Fair in a series of "The Sweetest Stories Ever Told," William Fox, it is stated, has adopted the policy of producing for these two young players pictures that will be peculiarly adapted to their youth, their good looks, and their great personal charm.

That Universal's new star series policy of booking its Special Attractions, which will be released weekly after March 10, is meeting with the approval of exhibitors is evidenced by the large number of letters received by executives at the New York offices since announcement of the new releasing policy was made.

E. K. Lincoln, star of "Virtuous Men," the initial Ralph Ince Film Attraction, is said to enact the most strenuous role of his film career in the special feature sponsored by Arthur H. Sawyer and Herbert Lubin.

Ferdinand Pinney Earle designed the art titles for Lillian Walker's newest picture, "The Love Hunger," which is being distributed by the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation.

Significant of the lively interest shown in one of Vitagraph's most remarkable recent releases, "Silent Strength," are the extended reviews given this production wherever shown by the screen critics of the daily newspapers.

"Alias Mike Moran," Wallace Reid's next Paramount picture, released March 2, is said to be a story with a somewhat unusual theme, in that it depicts the regeneration of a slacker through the realization of the self-sacrifice of another.

Mystery is a strong element of "Fighting Destiny," a forthcoming Vitagraph release starring Harry T. Morey.

One of the spectacular features of "Virtuous Men," forthcoming Ralph Ince Film Attraction starring E. K. Lincoln, will be the blowing up of a shipbuilding dock.

In order to secure absolute realism two Paramount companies, one under Irvin Willat, with Lila Lee as star, and the other directed by James Cruze and starring Wallace Reid, will seek distant locations.

Having recently completed "The Border Terror," a special two-reel Western drama Yvette Mitchell has begun work on a new Universal short subject, entitled "His Buddy." Pete Morrison is seen at the head of Miss Mitchell's supporing company.

Lila Lee, in "Puppy Love," a Paramount picture

Lila Lee Starts New Production

With her work held up for nearly six weeks by the illness of her director and other unforeseen setbacks, Lila Lee has at last started work on her new Paramount picture, "Hearts and Horse Thieves," and is now in Arizona, where, under Irvin Willat, who directed for Thomas H. Ince, the Paramount-Artcraft Special, "The False Faces," the exterior scenes are being taken. In this production the young star will appear for the first time in a Western locale, her first three pictures having all been laid in eastern cities. Monte Blue, who recently signed a year's contract with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, will have the leading male role.

"Poppy Love," Miss Lee's fourth Paramount picture, will be released March 2.

MacGowan Promises Universal Serial for March

J. P. MacGowan, directing Marie Walcamp in Universal's latest serial, "The Red Glove," reports that he is now on the tenth episode and hopes to have the serial completed sufficiently to permit of the opening episode's release about the second week in March. The sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth eposides are now in the cutting room.

Chaplin Engages New "Heavy" Man

It has been announced from the West Coast that Charlie Chaplin has engaged Thomas A. Wood, who weighs 500 pounds, as a foil in the comedian's pictures. It is said Wood is the largest player to appear with Chaplin since Eric Campbell, who was killed in an auto wreck a year ago.

Billie Burke in Her Latest Paramount

"Good Gracious Annabelle" is the title of Billie Burke's current Paramount feature, according to announcements of Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

It was released March 2, and is based on the celebrated play of the same name, written by Clare Kummer.

Coming Program Offerings

World Offers Variety in Its March Program

WORLD PICTURES announces the release of five feature productions for the month of March in addition to the regular releases of Prizma Master Pictures, Twice-a-Week Kinograms and the big special feature production, "The Better 'Ole,'" which is scheduled for national release on March 16.

First on the month's program is "Crook o' Dreams," starring Louise Huff, which will be released on March 3. The story was written by Forrest Halsey, the scenario was prepared by George Du Bois Proctor and the picture was directed by Oscar Apfel. Frank Mayo plays opposite Miss Huff, and other film players seen in the cast include Kate Lester, Edward Elkas, Virginia Hammond and others.

On March 10 World Pictures will release "The Unveiling Hand," starring Kitty Gordon, with Irving Cummings, George MacQuarrie, Anthony Merlo and other players seen in her support. "The Unveiling Hand" was written by Izola Forrester and Mann Page. Clara S. Beranger wrote the continuity. The director was Frank Crane.

The release scheduled for March 17 is "The Hand Invisible," starring Montagu Love, with Virginia Hammond appearing in an important role. Wallace C. Clifton wrote the story. Clara S. Beranger prepared the continuity, while Harry O. Hoyt directed the production. Others in the cast include Kate Lester and Marguerite Gale.

Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley are co-starred in one of their typical comedy productions in "Hit or Miss," which will be released by World Pictures on March 24. The story was written by Harry O. Hoyt and Hamilton Smith, while Clara S. Beranger wrote the continuity. Dell Henderson directed.

The final release of the month is "The Love Defender," which will be published on March 31, with June Elvidge as the star and with Frank Mayo and Madge Evans playing important parts. Maravene Thompson wrote the story. Tefft Johnson directed. George DuBois Proctor wrote the scenario.

Fannie Ward Heads Pathe Program March 2

"COMMON CLAY," starring Fannie Ward, heads the Pathe program for week of March 2. This is the A. H. Woods screen production of the Harvard prize play, by Cleves Kinkead.

It is interpretated by a specially selected cast of players, including such well-known names as Mary Alden, W. E. Lawrence, Helen Dunbar, Andrew Arbuckle, John Barrows, John H. Cossar, Fred Goodwin and Easter Walters.

Pathe Review No. 4, released March 2, gives an interesting slow motion analysis of juggling, showing how easily the quickness of the hand deceives the other. Picturesque Japan—Kiushiu—is shown in a series of Pathecolor studies, and Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars continues his constructive natural history exhibitions.

"The Girl of Tomorrow" is a one-reel educational, produced by the Leggett-Gruen Corporation showing the importance of the telephone in modern life.

The ninth episode of "The Lightning Raider," starring Pearl White, with Warner Oland, is called "Falsely Accused" wherein Wu involves the Lightning Raider by a diabolical plot whereby all evidence points to her having murdered Li Ching.

"Hoot Mon" is the title of the last of the Rolin comedies featuring Stan Laurel, the English comedian who spent his recent vacation in this country in acting through a series of laugh making stories by Hal Roach.

The fifth episode of the Diando serial, "The Terror of the Range," featuring Betty Compson and George Larkin, is entitled "A Threat from the Past." The apex of the many culminating thrills is reached in this chapter, where the heroine and hero indulge in a sensational ride down a mountain side in a flume overhanging a precipice.

Frank Keenan is star of the Pathe production, "The Silver Girl"

"Speedy Meade" Completed by Louis Bennison

Following his first two Goldwyn productions, "Oh Johnny" and "Sandy Burke of the U-Bar-U," Louis Bennison has just finished "Speedy Meade," which will be available at all Goldwyn exchanges about the middle of March.

"Speedy Meade" was written by J. Allen Dunn and directed by Ira M. Lowry, and in the star part Mr. Bennison portrays the smiling cowboy.

James J. Corbett and Kathleen O'Connor, in "The Midnight Man," Universal serial

New Screen Magazine Released February 21

Universal's New Screen Magazine is now being distributed and No. 1 made its appearance February 21. This number was entitled "The Reel of Knowledge," and contained seven subjects as follows:

Intimate Studies in Shoe Psychology. Did you ever notice that you can tell pretty closely a man's character by the shoes he wears? For instance.

How We Foiled the Hun on the High Seas. With the war over we now can disclose for the first time the secret of how our ships were camouflaged to evade the lurking U-boat.

A Few Moments with a Broadway Star. A glimpse on and off the stage of Mildred Le Gue, whose dancing in "Sometime" has created a hit in New York.

Laughographs. Being just a smile or two that might appeal to all of you.

The Sweet Tooth of a Nation. How a brace and bit, a wooden pail and a maple tree developed into a million dollar industry.

Those Were the Happy Days. Remember when you were a kid and mother sent you to the store in a hurry.

The Whoozit Weekly. Edited by a stupid simp and animated by Leslie Elton.

Four Essanay Chaplins Started March 1

After postponing the release of its four Charlie Chaplin's for two weeks, Essanay Film Manufacturing Company released the first one on March 1.

The first was "A Night in the Show" instead of "Shanghaied" as at first planned. This will be followed by "The Bank," "Police" and "Shanghaied" two weeks apart.

Essanay announces that this is the first showing of new prints on these pictures and that a full line of paper and advertising material is available on each picture. They are released by the George Kleine System through General Film exchanges.

Examples of the general appeal of "Upstairs and Down," the first Myron Selznick picture with Olive Thomas as the star

Prizmas Grow Popular

World Pictures reports that the demand for Prizma Natural Color pictures has reached a point where every print is in use every day of the week. Because of the fact that it requires longer to make prints of this invention, the laboratory has been unable to keep pace with the contracts made for the exhibition of this new era in motion picture production. A new laboratory is under construction. It will be twice the size of the present one and will be finished and in operation by March 25. Wherever Prizma Pictures are shown the managers report that box office receipts have jumped so that they represent standing room only.

Christie Comedies Lists Its March Releases

"Bobbie Comes Marching Home," with Dorothy De Vore playing opposite, is the Christie comedy released March 3. These one-reelers are all released by state right exchanges in the various territories.

On March 10 Ethel Lynn and Earl Rodney will be released in a one-reel comedy "Brides for Two." "Oh, What a Night" presents Bobbie Vernon and Dorothy De Vore on March 17, and on March 24 "Hard Luck" tells a story of fun and interest concerning Ethel Lynn and Jay Belasco.

Heroism in Comedy

"The Medal Winners" is the latest Lyons-Moran comedy to be photographed at the Universal City studios by the funsters.

The comedy deals with heroism, both serious and comical, and is said to provide the comedians with one of their very best stories. Mildred Moore is seen in support of Lyons and Moran.

"Are You a Mason?"

Famous Players-Lasky has announced that it has selected "Are You a Mason?" with John Barrymore in the star role, as the current release in the Success Series. Ida Waterman and Charles Dickson are in the cast.

Selznick Starts a Big Campaign

"Upstairs and Down," with Olive Thomas as Star, to Be Advertised Broadcast — Supervised by Myron Selznick

SELZNICK PICTURES CORPORATION has launched a campaign of national advertising for its star, Olive Thomas, with special reference to the first production, "Upstairs and Down," which has been completed under the direction of Charles Giblyn at the Pacific Coast studios.

This campaign was begun several weeks ago when two electric signs were installed at Times Square, New York, announcing the forthcoming production. Another and still larger installation of the same sort is being erected on the Godfrey Building and will be one of the largest theatrical signs in the world. Still another contract has been closed for a sign in Buffalo facing Lafayette Square and this will be illuminated within a week. Negotiations are under way for still more of these advertising displays in other cities.

The second phase of the national advertising campaign is being conducted through the "fan" magazines. Advertisements in two "fan" magazines will appear shortly and as each of these publications has a circulation well beyond the quarter-million mark, and a conservative estimate of magazine readers is four readers to the copy, this advertising will reach fully two million active fans, it is expected.

In addition to this, the usual publicity campaign consisting of news items and special articles is being employed so that the organization believes that within a very short time every motion picture patron in the United States will be advised of the Selznick Pictures operations.

The first production, "Upstairs and Down," has already been completed and is being cut and titled under the direct supervision of Myron Selznick, president of the company, in California.

"I am convinced," says Mr. Selznick, "that the public wants well dressed plays. The stories of sordid realism, hunger, poverty, suffering and all that sort of thing are no longer popular. The most successful pictures are those which make audiences happy. I believe that in 'Upstairs and Down' we have a combination of the comedy and romantic elements combined with luxurious settings and costuming that will make this one of the hits of the season."

The central character of the story is Miss Alice Chesterton, a pretty society girl, who is more or less engaged to Tom Carey, a somewhat slow sweetheart. Alice longs for excitement and begins a flirtation with Captain Terrence O'Keefe, a young Irish army officer. She involves him in a nocturnal escapade among the gay night resorts of New York which, although entirely innocent, is made by Alice to appear questionable. Out of pure mischief, she uses this incident to break up a love affair between the Captain and her own sister, Betty. It is not until O'Keefe advises Carey that the only way to bring this capricious young woman to terms is to "treat her rough" that her pranks are brought to an end. This is the "Upstairs" part of the story. Meanwhile "Downstairs" there is a similar affair going on which has a lively outcome.

Miss Olive Thomas appears as Alice Chesterton.

Makes Debut as Star

In "The Winning Girl," which is released February 23, Shirley Mason will make her first appearance as an individual star of Paramount pictures, although she has been seen under the Paramount banner as co-star with Ernest Truex in the John Emerson-Anita Loos productions, "Come On In" and "Good-Bye, Bill."

House Peters in Two

Two of W. W. Hodkinson Corporation's late releases, "The Forfeit," a Frank Powell-Sunset production, and "Thunderbolts of Fate," an Edward Warren production, both present House Peters in prominent roles. Jane Miller is featured in "The Forfeit" and Anna Lehr has the featured place in "Thunderbolts of Fate."

The Independent Field

Women Endorse Rothapfel Plan

Rothapfel's Unit Program Plans Receives Co-operation of Women's Forum—Celebrated Women Concerned

RECOGNIZING that the Rothapfel standard as applied to Samuel L. Rothapfel's plans for a complete program of pictures will mean to the amusement world and particularly its combination of entertaining and educational values, Helen Varick Boswell, president of the Woman's Forum, an organization numbering among its membership some of America's most celebrated women, has written Mr. Rothapfel extending to him the best wishes of the membership of the Woman's Forum and expressing appreciation for what he has done for better and cleaner pictures during his managerial duties as director of the Strand, Rivoli and Rialto theatres. Miss Boswell's letter explains itself. She wrote:

"When the club women of New York City learned that you were withdrawing from the directorship of the Rialto and Rivoli theatres, which they had learned to know and love as real temples of the best in motion picture art and in music, a very keen wave of regret was felt, and the many expressions of appreciation of what you had done for better and cleaner pictures and for setting a standard in comprehensive programs both of pictures and the best of music, were earnest and sincere.

"We are glad to find, however, that your influence will not only continue to be felt here, but that you are going to arrange programs of the best in pictures and music for the country at large, and we rejoice that all communities may have a taste of that which you have given us here so generously for so long a time! The women will be watching with appreciative eyes and hearts the efforts you will be making. Every city in this country will learn that which we so well know—that a Rothapfel production and program is one to appeal to the best that is in us.

"To the Woman's Forum you have extended great help in many ways because you liked the good work we were doing. Not only the members of this club speed you with all good wishes on your broader work, but all women interested in the real uplift and advancement of a great art.

"(Signed) HELEN VARICK BOSWELL."

Hampton Heads Zane Grey Pictures, Inc.

WITH Benjamn B. Hampton heading the executive staff, Eltinge F. Warner a prime mover, and the works of Zane Grey, author, as the basic material for productions, the Zane Grey Pictures, Inc., has been organized and work on the first of a series of Grey productions has been commenced under the direction of T. Hays Hunter at the Brunton Studios, Los Angeles. The offices of the new organization are at 3 East Forty-fourth street, New York. Charles A. Weeks, treasurer of the company, is in charge. George H. Perry will be the company's general manager on the Coast and Van Campen Heilner, one of the editors of Field and Stream, of which Mr. Warner is owner, is associated with the new organization. The author, Mr. Grey, will assist in the production of all his stories.

Mr. Grey is one of America's best known writers of outdoor stories and he has many popular works to his credit. The first of his works to be produced by the new organization will be "Desert Gold."

Mr. Hampton, president of the organization, is prominently known in the picture industry and for many years was a successful newspaper and magazine publisher. Mr. Warner, who is said to be principally responsible for the organization of the Zane Grey Pictures, Inc., is owner of Field and Stream, Smart Set and other magazines, and it was he who first recognized Zane Grey as a writer of outdoor stories. Mr. Warner will be remembered for his productions of outdoor and travel pictures and the comedies of James Montgomery Flagg. Director Hunter has produced many successful screen dramas and will be remembered for his stage productions, including "The Girl of the Golden West." Announcement as to distribution and release of first subject will be made soon.

Texas Guinan, star in two-reel westerns by Frohman Amusement Corporation

"Supply Exceeds Demand"

According to Dr. Schallenberger, president of Arrow Film Corporation, the demand for independent productions is greater than the supply, for he says, "we have received recently inquiries from at least seven territories for more pictures than we can supply. And considering the fact that Arrow has taken over for distribution five additional features during the past ten days this is remarkable."

Catherine Calvert, in "Marriage for Convenience," a Frank A. Keeney release

New Company Formed in Indianapolis

The Calvert-Harrison Feature Film Corp. has secured offices at 115 N. Pennsylvania avenue, Indianapolis, Ind., and will start the perfecting of the organization for the production of super features, it is announced.

The studios will be located on the Coast where E. H. Calvert, the well-known director, member of the Moving Picture Directors' Association, whose headquarters are in New York, will be in charge of direction.

C. Sanford Harrison, who brought "The Vigilantes" and several other features to success, will be the active business head, guiding the dollars into the proper channels, generally known as Financial Head.

Their intentions are to make three elaborate productions a year which will live up to the correct definition of "super-film."

Director Calvert will leave immediately for the Coast, taking with him the well-known cameraman, Jackson Rose, and "Rocks" May, the old time technical director, whose many years of experience should guarantee authentic settings for all their pictures.

Mr. Calvert, upon his arrival in California, will start organizing the acting company, which will be headed by several of the best-known people, both men and women, in the business, whose names they are not ready to announce at this time.

Photoplay Supplement Show Geraldine Farrar

E. W. Hammons, vice-president and general manager, Educational Films Corporation of America, advises that the next issue of the Photoplay Magazine Screen Supplement will present as its chief feature views of Geraldine Farrar, grand opera star, screen star, in her home. Mr. Hammons claims that these scenes will represent the only pictures of their kind ever exhibited. The production of these subjects is under the personal supervision of Julian Johnson and James R. Quirk, of Photoplay Magazine. The first issue of these "little journeys through filmland" is now before the public, and Educational reports extra heavy bookings and favorable comment from the exhibitors.

"Key to Power" Plans to Be Announced

Vice-President E. W. Hammons of the Educational Films Corporation announces that he will be ready in the next few days to make known his plans for the distribution of the feature dramatic production, "The Key to Power," which was completed just before the influenza epidemic.

Because the influenza continued to demoralize conditions in some of the territory, and particularly in the coal regions, Mr. Hammons felt that a large measure of the national publicity would be lost, and that it would be best to hold back any plans for distribution until the entire country would be in shape to receive the subject to the best advantage.

In response to trade-paper and general magazine advertising, preliminary to the completion of the picture, many inquiries have been received direct from exhibitors, and there have been numerous buyers making application for state rights. The backgrounds for the story, laid in the great coal fields, provide a setting that is out of the ordinary and filled with dramatic possibilities. The competent handling of the subject, with the unusually attractive advertising opportunities, make the picture especially interesting to the exhibitor.

Gittens Announces Seven Reel Picture

Wyndham Gittens, who in addition to writing, editing and cutting and directing his production, heads his own producing organization, announces that his latest production, in seven reels, will be given its premiere showing at one of the Los Angeles theatres the first part of March.

After successful years spent in writing and as editor, Mr. Gittens entered the picture field and has met with unlooked for success. "It is my modest conviction," he said, "that there must be one creative mind vitally concerned from the very beginning to the end of a picture if the greatest artistic value is to be realized."

Charlie Chaplin in the Essanay production, "A Night in the Show"

Frank Borzagi, director, and Ollie L. Sellers, production manager, of "Whom the Gods Would Destroy," the new Macauley production

United Pictures For Dominion

Ochs and Seelye Contract with Regal Film, Ltd., for Distribution of Product in Canada

THE distribution of United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., contracted last week with the Regal Film, Ltd., of Canada, the result of which contract is that all United product will be distributed in the Dominion by the latter organization. Under this arrangement United secures for its pictures the existing exhibitor connections established by this Canadian company and benefits by the special advantages arising out of Regal's control of nearly a score of theatres in the Dominion and provides for United features the representative first-run houses from Quebec to Vancouver. Regal Film, Ltd., in addition to the United product, represent First National, World Film, Metro and Select features for Canada.

In the absence of J. A. Berst, president of United, now on the Coast, Lee A. Ochs and C. R. Seelye acted for United in closing the contract and N. L. Nathanson and Joe Unger represented Regal Film, Inc. It is not stated the number of years the contract is to run, but it is announced that the contract calls for United product during a long period of years. The contract takes effect immediately. Prints of Dustin Farnum's "The Light of the Western Stars" and "A Man in the Open"; "Her Code of Honor," starring Florence Reed, and "Adele," starring Kitty Gordon, were shipped this week to the Regal Film offices in Canada.

World wide distribution for United product is completed by the contract just signed for United distribution in Canada. South America and the Orient will be handled by David P. Howells, Inc. Mr. Howells is now in foreign lands arranging for United distribution.

Sales on W. H. Productions' Re-Issues

W. H. PRODUCTIONS' reports on the sales of re-issued subjects for the past week would seem to indicate that these revised editions comedies are meeting with approval of the exhibitors throughout the country. The sales reported during the past week are:

Standard Film Exchange, Pittsburgh, Pa., has acquired the rights for western Pennsylvania and West Virginia to the series of 15 two-reel Kay Bee Union Brand Western dramas; the series of 15 two-reel Kay Bee Columbia Brand Western dramas; the series of 28 single reel Keystone Liberty Brand comedies for western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, and the series of 28 single reel Keystone Eagle Brand comedies. Bee Hive Exchange of Chicago, the rights to the series of 15 two-reel Kay Bee Columbia Brand Western dramas, and the series of 28 single reel Keystone Liberty Brand comedies for Indiana, Wisconsin and northern half of Illinois. Emerald Film Service of Kansas City, Mo., the rights to the series of 28 single reel Keystone Eagle Brand comedies, and the series of 28 single reel Keystone Liberty Brand comedies for Kansas and Missouri. Standard Film Service Co. of Cleveland, the series of 28 single reel Keystone Liberty Brand comedies, and the series of 28 single reel Keystone Eagle Brand comedies for Ohio, Kentucky and Michigan. Masterpiece Film Attractions, Philadelphia, the rights to the series of 28 single reel Keystone Eagle Brand comedies, and the series of 28 single reel Keystone Liberty Brand comedies for eastern Pennsylvania and southern New Jersey, and Greater Features Co., Seattle, Wash., the rights to the series of 28 single reel Keystone Liberty Brand comedies for Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana.

Harry Rapf Recovering

Harry Rapf, who underwent an operation at the Misercordia Hospital, is reported to be on the road to recovery. He expects to be able to leave the hospital within the next two weeks.

Capitol to Release Chicago News Weekly

Capitol Film Company will release the Midwest Screen News Magazine, according to an announcement made by J. E. Willis, general representative of the Capitol Film Company. The Midwest Screen News Magazine, according to Mr. Willis, will be represented by camera reporters in the larger cities of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Missouri. Chicago's Screen News Magazine will be issued in the form of a special edition print, with subjects entirely of Chicago interest. Eddy Eckels, who has had charge of the editing of the Chicago weekly, will supervise the presentation of the Midwest Screen News.

"Of course, there are no 'stars' in news weeklies," he conceded, "but from what I have seen of the first issue of the Screen News, there is no doubt that the exhibitors are going to recognize it in something distinctly different and unusual—'star copy' in the way of diversified pictures, is the way Jack Willis describes the new subject.

Pioneer Reports Steady Increase in Bookings

Pioneer Film Corporation announces that it is receiving encouraging reports from exhibitors throughout the country on its two independent releases, "Wives of Men" and "The Still Alarm." It is reported that continued demands for extra prints from independent exchanges in various parts of the country are coming in daily.

"Little Orphan Annie," the screen version of James Whitcomb Riley's poem, is also handled by Pioneer, and according to last week's reports, the bookings doubled that of any previous week since release. Pioneer disposed of the Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and District of Columbia territory on "Wives of Men," to the Star Pictures Corporation, Baltimore.

Stone Engages Ingraham

Lloyd Ingraham has been engaged by the Lewis S. Stone Producing Company to direct Lewis Stone in a special feature which starts production within the next few days. Mr. Stone will appear in several features during the year.

Leah Baird, in "The Echo of Youth," Graphic Production

Burton King, director of the Houdini-Rolfe serial, "The Master Mystery"

First Four-Star Picture Nears Completion

"As a Man Thinks," the first of the Four-Star pictures under production by Raver - Augustus Thomas - Baird - Irving combination, is nearing completion at the Biograph studio, Harry Raver announces. The corporate name of the new producing organization is the Artco Productions, Inc., but the pictures will be known as the Four-Star Pictures.

Augustus Thomas, the author of "As a Man Thinks," is one of America's best-known playwrights. Douglas Fairbanks' latest Artcraft release, "Arizona," is by Mr. Thomas. George Irving, directing the Four-Star pictures, will be remembered for a long list of screen successes, the latest of which was "The Silver King," presenting William Faversham. Leah Baird, the star of the production, has a number of successes to her credit. In Miss Baird's support in "As a Man Thinks" Betty Howe, who was last seen in support of Elsie Ferguson in an Artcraft release, and Warburton Gamble, who had a character role in the Faversham picture, are prominent.

Arrow Film to Distribute "Law of Nature"

Dr. W. E. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow Film Corporation, will handle the distributing rights to David G. Fischer Photoplays, Inc., production of "The Law of Nature," the story of which deals with the prohibition movement and was written and directed by David G. Fischer in collaboration with Richmond Hobson, formerly United States Senator and advocate of prohibition. The effects of over-indulgence in liquor is revealed in dramatic episodes. Prominent in the cast of players are Vincent Coleman, Dixie Lee, Frances Ne Moyer, Harold Salter, David G. Fischer and Herbert Standing. Dr. Shallenberger will distribute "The Law of Nature" on the independent market. Apollo Trading Company, recently incorporated, will handle the foreign rights.

Hammons Advises on Sunday Shows

Vice-President E. W. Hammons, of the Educational Films Corporation, stated in an interview this week that, in his opinion, a great deal could be done towards the opening of theatres on Sundays if exhibitors would endeavor to make each of their programs attractive by the intelligent selection of short subjects. "In Pennsylvania," he declared, "right at this time, a concerted movement is being made to secure Sunday opening, and the prospects are brighter than they have ever been before. Opposition to such a policy comes largely from the class of people who see nothing in moving pictures but sensationalism and low comedy, and it is this element who are best pleased with the short subject that gives the motion picture its greatest opportunity. Such subjects as the Robert C. Bruce Scenic pictures, the George D. Wright Mexican series and others of that type, will make friends and regular patrons of a class of people who could not be attracted otherwise. Exhibitors who are thoroughly awake to the possibilities to be found in their theatres will appreciate the value in building each program with the idea of pleasing all classes, and making each attraction complete in all of the five departments—music, travel, news, comedy and feature. Only by careful attention to all the details that go to complete an attractive program can really high class results be obtained, and certainly nothing less than the best type of program can be expected to win the respect and approval of a community in a campaign for Sunday opening."

"Break the News to Mother"

B. S. Moss announces the completion, under the direction of Julius Steger, of the screen version of Hugh MacNair Kahler's story inspired by the popular song, "Break the News to Mother," featuring Pearl Shepard, supported by Raymond Bloomer, Gertrude Berkley, Alice Gerard, Forrest Robinson, William N. Bailey, Joseph Smiley and Chester Barnett. Garfield Thompson did the scenario and Andre Barlatier photographed. The release date for this feature has not been announced, but it is promised for the first two weeks of March.

Pearl Shepard, in "Break the News to Mother," Moss Production

Thayer Signs Farnum for Next Picture

Otis B. Thayer, director general of Art-O-Graf Film Corporation, announces that he has signed Franklin Farnum for the leading role in "Wolves of Wall Street," a seven reel feature which Director Thayer will star at the National Studios, Denver, this week. Before leaving New York last week for Denver, Director Thayer said:

"We are going to put on something unusual in the line of feature photoplays. Our plan is to make big features from unusual and timely stories and with stars. Following 'Wolves of Wall Street' we are going to produce Caroline Lockhart's widely read story 'Me, Smith,' which I feel will make one of the biggest pictures in its line yet produced. For this picture we have secured Edmund Breeze, who is well known for his many successes. Our first production, 'Miss Arizona,' is already on the market, being distributed by the Arrow Film Corporation."

Craig Kennedy Serial Nears Completion

The new serial production of the Oliver Films, Inc., "Craig Kennedy, the Serial," a screen version of the popular Craig Kennedy stories, by Arthur B. Reeve, is nearly completed and will be ready for release about March 17, according to an announcement made this week by Harry Grossman, vice-president and general manager of the Oliver Films, Inc.

"Craig Kennedy, the Serial" was written by Arthur B. Reeves in collaboration with John W. Grey and presents in the principal roles Herbert Rawlinson, as Craig Kennedy; Margaret Marsh, Ethel Grey Terry, Kempton Greene, William Pike, Coit Albertson, Joe Marba, Donald Hall, Louis B. Wolheim and Gene Baker. Donald Mackenzie directed. The first episode of the serial will be released in three reels and the other fourteen episodes will be in two reels. The pioneer Film Corporation will give a trade showing of the first episodes the week of March 10.

"Lafayette We Come" in New England

Leonce Perret's production of "Lafayette We Come," a patriotic picture, released by Affiliated Distributors Corporation, is meeting with big success in the New England territory, according to a letter received by Affiliated from the management of the Ideal theatre, Roxbury, Mass. The management of the Ideal writes that "it is the finest production that ever played in this house."

Michigan Rights Sold

Goyette Productions, Inc., independent buyers and distributors of Detroit, contracted, last week, for the Michigan rights from Octagon Film, Inc., for B. A. Rolfe's serial production, "The Master Mystery," starring Houdini. R. E. Goyette is chief executive of Goyette Productions, Inc.

THE INDEPENDENT FIELD TICKER

Territorial Sales Reported During the Past Week

Production	Buyer	Territory
"Wives of Men" (Arrow Film Corp., New York)	Star Pictures Corp., Baltimore	Maryland, Virginia, Delaware, District of Columbia.
"The Master Mystery" (B. A. Rolfe Production)	Goyette Productions, Inc., Detroit	Michigan.

The Special Feature's Place

By Harry Reichenbach

JUST suppose that Charles Dillingham decided to take the present Hippodrome show, intact, upon a tour of the United States, stopping for one night in each city of over three thousand inhabitants. Can you imagine any man, woman or child in any city in all the land who would not, regardless of his or her financial condition, manage to scrape up the price of a ticket?

During the panic of 1907, I was advance manager of a well known actor playing in one of the season's biggest successes. We broke the season by a number of one-night stands through Pennsylvania. During that period many of the factories and large industries were issuing script in lieu of money. Other industries were closed for a short period. But in these Pennsylvania towns, the workmen maintained credit accounts at butcher and grocery stores and I learned that citizens purchased two dollars worth of supplies and sold them to a neighbor for a dollar in order to purchase tickets for the play. This was not one instance. It occurred regularly. And good plays in small towns were not matters of once or twice a month.

This brings us down to present-day theatricals and the only branch in which we are interested is the film end.

The big special feature, capably produced, scientifically assembled, properly exploited and well handled, is just the same to the average exhibitor, as the big New York success was to the one-night stand managers.

Looking back over the past five years, since Lasky released "The Squaw Man," with one or two exceptions, the big special features have been the means to maintenance for the exhibitor. Instance such productions as "The Birth of a Nation," "Tarzan of the Apes," "The Beast of Berlin," "Traffic in Souls," "Where Are My Children," "Enlighten Thy Daughter," "Hypocrites," "To Hell With the Kaiser," "Four Years in Germany," "Virtuous Wives," "Cabiria," "Civilization" and "The Unbeliever."

Now we come to the possibilities of the present special feature which the important personalities in American industrial, commercial and professional life interested in the production have entrusted to me to exploit and distribute—"Whom the Gods Would Destroy."

It was conceived, promoted and produced under the title of "Humanity," but "The Hearts of Humanity" being released previously, and having no desire to infringe on that play's success, and desiring to be as distinctive as possible, the producers decided upon the new title.

Over $100,000 was spent in its making. Sixty-one interior sets were built, the longest of which was over six hundred feet. One-half million bricks were used in construction. Historical students from prominent educational centres were called into counsel regarding the historical features. The foremost decorators and builders were secured for the purpose of making each and every detail perfect. The finest screen talent available was engaged.

Frank Borzage, a most successful director, was secured. The producer, Ollie M. Sellers, was creator of most of the unusual ideas which made the first Triangle pictures distinctive.

Two million people have been directly communicated with in regard to the film. If they have but twenty acquaintances each, it means that twenty million persons know of the picture, even before the sample print is made. Over one hundred thousand feet of negative were exposed, and from this, seven thousand feet of action, interest, entertainment will be culled. The tradespaper campaign is one of the most ambitious ever conceived and will continue for months. The daily papers, regardless of politics are favorably inclined toward the subject, and important men, such as Ex-President Taft, Henry Van Dyke and James W. Gerard have approved it.

"Whom the Gods Would Destroy" was made to place before the world, in entertainment form carrying, of course, an intense moral lesson, Woodrow Wilson's plans and ideals for a permanent society of nations, and the production was stretched out over thirteen months in order to meet changing development.

"Whom the Gods Would Destroy" has no battle scenes. It is as stated, a peace picture, with just enough strife to establish the truth of its story.

And so long as pictures of this type, special features, independent productions of vast and vital importance, of potent pulling power are made, the exhibitor need fear no combination of stars, no pooling of exchange interest.

Classified Ads.—Tell Your Wants Here

[Where advertiser is to be addressed in care of Motion Picture News send all replies to the office of publication, 729 Seventh Avenue, New York City.]

SITUATIONS WANTED

PUBLICITY CONNECTION DESIRED

Press Sheet and Ad-Man Box Q, M. P. News

Whole or part time

ACCOUNTANT—Experienced accountant, 22 years of age, released from U. S. N. R. F., desires connection as assistant operator or publicity man. Willing to go anywhere to start. References exchanged. Will consider work in film exchange. Address H. H. T., Motion Picture News.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR—Late with Bob Leonard, now with Canadian Engineers, Signal Corps. Expect to be in Los Angeles in February. Six years' experience, starting as property man with Wallace Beery. Twenty-two years old. If you want me communicate with Miss Gibsone, Mabel Condon Exchange, Hollywood.

OPERATOR-MANAGER—Operator and electrician, honorably discharged from aviation service, wishes position as operator or manager of small house in good town. Five years' experience. Can deliver the goods. Salary and all in first letter. Address O. V. Tilton, Auditorium, Defiance, Ia.

SALES MANAGER—Just out of army wishes place as sales manager and executive. Eight years' practical experience in national film distribution, organization, branch management, sales promotion, house organs and publicity. Highest New York references. Interview desired to offer concrete evidence of ability and previous accomplishments. Address B. B. B., care Motion Picture News.

ADVERTISING—Wanted, position handling advertising for photoplay concern or in responsible position directly under advertising manager. Have had extensive experience writing ad copy as well as practical newspaper and theatrical experience, press agenting large middle western houses. Am 23 years old. Address J. M. M., Motion Picture News.

STUDIO WORK—Position wanted by man who can qualify as assistant director, technical director, casting director, studio manager. Has had special experience on serials. Formerly with Pathe and Astra studios as general utility and assistant director to Louis Gasnier and Donald MacKenzie. Just completed fifteen months' service in U. S. N. R. F. Address Studio, Motion Picture News.

Lester Park presents Lillian Walker in "The Love Hunger," through Hodkinson Corporation

SITUATIONS WANTED

PUBLICITY—Who has a position for a young man, honorably discharged from the army? Previous to signing up with Uncle Sam I had been engaged in newspaper work and magazine writing. I am desirous of securing a position doing publicity or advertising work. Address L. J. B., Motion Picture News.

SALESMAN—Just received honorable discharge from U. S. Army and once more wish to take up duties as salesman. Am 20 years of age; 3 years' experience as a salesman and can furnish best references as to ability. Would be glad to take up any other position in Film game that would finally lead to the selling end. Faithfully promise no A. W. O. L. Can call at your convenience. Address M. G., care of Motion Picture News.

SALESMAN—First class film salesman discharged from U. S. Army. Capable of managing exchange. Desire to locate with reliable firm where executive ability is wanted. Highest credentials. Address R. S., care of Motion Picture News.

PUBLICITY MAN—Honorably discharged from the navy. Have had experience writing sub-titles, film editing and arranging general advertising matter. College graduate. Moderate salary with concern where there is chance to grow. Address Geo. Goldberg, 52 St. Nicholas avenue, New York City.

WANTED—Honorably discharged soldier desires position with film company. Nineteen years of age and can give best of references. Address M. Laurie, 1 East 118th street, New York City.

WANTED—Honorably discharged soldier, 19, wishes place with film company, doing anything which will be appreciated by advancement. Can furnish best references. Address James Luxemberg, 1487 Fifth avenue, New York City.

SITUATIONS WANTED

STUDIO—Position wanted by young man who can qualify as assistant director or under advertising manager. Still in navy, expecting to be discharged shortly. Graduate of technical college. Experience in newspaper and theatrical work. Address H. A. T., care Motion Picture News.

OPERATOR—Just discharged from service. Competent operator and electrician. Five years' experience; best of references. Go anywhere. Salary your limit. State all first. Address Wisconsin, Motion Picture News. H. J. Brackendor, 209 South Central Avenue, Marshfield, Wis.

PHOTOGRAPHER—Commercial photographer, 23 years of age, seeks opportunity to enter photographic end of motion pictures. Have had over six years' practical photographic experience. Canadian born, educated in England and Belgium, speak French. Not afraid of working hard. What I seek is the start and chance to learn. Address Montreal, Motion Picture News.

WANTED—Honorably discharged soldier wishes employment at anything with motion picture company. Acting preferred. Address V. Petione, 22 Prince street, New York City.

WANTED—Honorably discharged sailor desires connection in motion picture industry as salesman or any other capacity. Five years' experience on road, south and middle west. Will use all of my ability and integrity to promote your welfare. Nat Lubner, 916 Freeman St., New York City.

WANTED—For the past nine months have been with the U. S. Department of Labor at Washington. Want position in picture industry. Six years' experience as mechanic. Address D. Ward, 94 West Forty-second street, Bayonne, N. J.

YOUNG MAN—Nineteen years of age, honorably discharged from Aviation Corps, wishes position with film concern. Best of references. Address J. L., care of Motion Picture News.

ARTILLERY—Lieutenant of Artillery, 22 years old, two years Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania, desires position in production or distribution end of industry. Address F. K. M. P., care of Motion Picture News.

YOUNG MAN—Twenty-five years old, discharged from officers' training camp, naval aviation. Excellent training in seaplane, motors and automobiles. Wish position with picture company doing work along above lines, preferably. V. B. Berry, care of Capt. K. W. Perry, 200 West Ninety-fifth street, New York City.

Hart Begins Another

Having completed "The Poppy's Girl's Husband" for Artcraft William S. Hart has begun preparations on his next picture, which he has written himself in collaboration with Lambert Hillyer.

Equipment Service

CLASSIFIED DIRECTORY

FOR SALE

Theatres	Projection Machines
Chairs	Spot Lights
Converters	Ticket Machines, etc.

WANTED

Theatres	Camera Man
Positions	Projectionist, etc.

This CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING SECTION is the only place where you can state your desires and get a come back.

Second hand goods find a market.

Jobs are located.

Theatres are sold and rented.

Rate 4c per word—Cash with copy

Write

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

Los Angeles New York Chicago

Projection Music Laboratory Studio Theatre

The Tone of the Tunes

Depends on the character of construction, honest workmanship and superior material—paramount qualities scientifically employed in

The FOTOPLAYER

Constant service demands an instrument built of selected woods and special metals to withstand climatic changes and preserve the refinement of tonal quality

"The Fotoplayer which we purchased from you a year ago has been of great benefit to our business and permitted us to raise the price of admission. We are pleased to say that we are doing satisfactory business, and if we had a dozen more theatres here in Philadelphia we would have a Fotoplayer in every one of them.

—Ideal Theatre, Philadelphia, Pa.

"Recently I have bought the Wigwam Theatre and wish to say that the Fotoplayer now in use there had a great influence on me as I would not try to operate a Motion Picture Theatre without one of your wonderful instruments."

Wigwam Theatre, Los Angeles, Cal.

The FOTOPLAYER has established its supremacy in the field of picture playing by its versatility of operation. Brilliant orchestral and full toned organ effects may be obtained by hand or roll playing.

The FOTOPLAYER contains the patented double tracker device permitting an instant interchange of "sad and glad" music following accurately the theme and action of the screen story.

"From a psychological standpoint the Fotoplayer is the most human instrument made, and by simple guidance it conveys to the audience each and every meaning. In other words the silence of the screen is beautified by the charms of Fotoplayer music whether dramatic or light according to the character of the play."

—Strand Theatre, Chattanooga, Tenn.

"The Fotoplayer occupies a conspicuous place and I keep it in absolute perfect condition. Two rolls are used certain hours of the day, it is also played by a real organist and used as a background for a small orchestra during certain hours of the afternoon and evening."

Bijou Theatre, Brunswick, Ga.

The American Photo Player Co.

NEW YORK CITY
62 West 45 Street

CHICAGO, ILL.
64 E. Jackson Blvd.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
109 Golden Gate Avenue

Equipment Service

Devoted to the technical branches of the motion picture industry, containing records of the latest accomplishments in the mechanical and scientific field; projection helps, inventions and suggestions; camera devices analyzed and commented upon; musical cue sheets for important feature pictures; improvements and innovations in the building and furnishing field.

No charge is made in these departments for answering questions of any nature. Correspondence is invited.

E. KENDALL GILLETT.....Editor

All Together--Boys!

MOTION PICTURE NEWS takes pleasure this week in announcing that it has secured the man to work with you and for you in its Equipment Service Section.

Mr. E. L. Bragdon is our acquisition; and after the first of March Mr. Bragdon will be with us in the NEWS office, subscribing to and adding valuable aid to our policy of "Service to All at All Times."

We have searched long and far for the ideal man to take up this most important branch of the NEWS effort to aid the industry—Equipment Service. And we believe it will not be many weeks before you will agree with our enthusiastic belief that we have been fortunate in securing a man ideally fitted in training, ability and personality.

Mr. Bragdon is a graduate of Worcester Technical Institute. He comes to MOTION PICTURE NEWS after a number of years with the General Electric organization at Schenectady. His training has resulted in a combination of the scientific worker and all around practical man that will be of the utmost value to MOTION PICTURE NEWS readers and advertisers.

Let us make ourselves clear on one point. Let us ask the help of every one of you on this one point.

We have said above that we have secured "the man to work with you and for you."

"With you and for you!"

There is the kernel of the ambitious plans MOTION PICTURE NEWS and Mr. Bragdon have for the Equipment Service.

Shoulder to shoulder work! Cooperation of manufacturer and reader to the end that Equipment Service may be a forum and a center of service to projectionists, musicians, cameramen, theatre owners—and the manufacturers with whose products these men work.

We want you all to help.

Mr. Bragdon is not to sit here as a technical expert, discoursing profoundly, bulwarked in his own opinions, preaching at you.

Those are not his desires—nor ours.

He is to be rather the means of communication—the connecting link between those who need help in their projection, musical and other equipment problems and those who can help.

And you—everyone of you—can help.

The manufacturers will help because through Equipment Service they will be able to be of service to the field.

The projectionists can help—and must help. Join the NEWS family! Ask us questions, tell us your opinions—write us letters. In your perplexities you will find sympathetic understanding and authoritative aid; for your opinions you will find an outlet that will enable others to benefit by your thought and regard for your profession.

Projectionists who do experimenting of their own can be of considerable aid by sending us data and photographs or drawings of their devices. Don't worry about a drawing being crude, or the writing being hasty—we'll fix those things up.

Have you a booth in which you take particular pride—its spaciousness, its efficiency? Send us a photograph.

Let us have the news notes also—accounts of what projectionists are doing in your territory.

To musicians and cameramen also these thoughts apply. Keep in touch with us—we're willing, we have the facilities, so give us the opportunity we ask—to work with you and for you.

Come on now, boys! All together!

Equipment Operating Projection Questions Answered

80

Selected Questions and Answers

[At the request of J. H. B., of Philadelphia, we are reprinting here information regarding the proper placing of the projection shutter, and a discussion of screen halo, both of which appeared in earlier issues of Motion Picture News.]

Proper Location for Projector Shutter

G. Woodbury, Pomeroy, Ia., "Would you please give me your opinion as to where the revolving shutter should be located? Some operators claim it should be set as close to the lens as possible, while others maintain that it should be at the dissolving point of the projected beam. I have experimented with it at both these places and I believe that the result is better when it is located at the dissolving point. You have no doubt tried both of these positions and have come to a conclusion as to which is best."

Reply: When a projector shutter of the outside type is so mounted that it cuts the projected light beam at the so-called dissolving point, i. e., at the image of the front condenser surface formed some distance in front of the projection objective, the screen illumination is not cut off abruptly from side to side as the shutter blade passes through the beam, but is gradually diminished all over the area of the projected disc, which becomes so faintly illuminated as to appear altogether dark before the shutter blade has passed entirely through the beam. The theory of this dissolving effect will be gone into on a future occasion, but its practical significance is that a shutter with slightly narrower blades than are customarily used will serve to cut off all visible illumination from the screen before the projected beam has been entirely masked, if this shutter is so placed as to cut the projected beam at the locus of the image of the front condenser surface. As the use of narrower shutter blades permits the condition for the elimination of flicker to be more nearly approximated than is the case with shutters of customary dimensions, it would seem to be highly desirable that the shutter be always mounted to rotate in the plane of the condenser image, but in practical operating certain drawbacks to a strict adherence to this dictum become apparent.

In the first place it requires to be pointed out that the only advantage of the arrangement under consideration is the opportunity which it affords of approximating to no-flicker conditions by permitting a slight reduction in the width of the shutter blades. If, however, the shutter blades are not reduced in width, no improvement is effected in the screen results by placing the shutter at the so-called dissolving point of the projected beam, or, in other words, the results will be substantially the same as if the shutter were mounted close to the lens. Thus it is seen that under some circumstances, as, for instance, when an objective of short E. F. is used, it is not feasible to locate the shutter at the plane of the condenser image, because in the case of short focus objectives the projected beam commences to diverge so rapidly that no reduction in the width of the shutter blades is possible.

Again, with other objectives and arrangements of the projector optical system, the image of the front condenser surface is sometimes found to be located 12 or 18 inches, or more, in front of the objective, in which event an extension requires to be added to the shutter spindle if it is resired to have the shutter cut the projected beam at the so-called dissolving point. There seems at first glance to be no objection to extending the shutter spindle forwards in this manner, but it is soon found in practice that a shutter located so far from its actuating gears subjects the shutter gears to considerable strain, which shortly results in serious wear. It is possible, however, to attach a special bracket to the projector mechanism which will allow the shutter spindle to run in a bearing located somewhere near the shutter itself, and in this case most of the strain on the shutter gears is removed. In most cases, it is carrying things to ridiculous extremes, however, to mount a projector shutter 18 inches or more in front of the objective, for the improvement in results is very slight in any case.

Has Halo Around Screen

Mr. Chas. Patrick, Paris, Mo., writes as follows: "I have been an operator for over two years and have always gotten along fine until very recently, and I now need help. I am using a Power 6A with rheostat. The throw is 63 ft., making a picture 13 by 9 ft. 10 in. We use alternating current, Cycles 60, Amperes 10, Voltage 110. Carbons 5/8" White A. C. Special.

Now here is the trouble I am having. If I have the lamp-house back as far as it will go, I get more light than at any other place I can set it, but with it pushed all the way back I have a light circle all the way around the picture, about three feet from the picture, and if I push the lamp house forward until this light around the picture disappears, I then have a dark spot on the screen and the light in the picture is not so good. We use two 7½" condensers. Kindly help me out of this trouble and I will be very much obliged."

In reply: So long as the correspondent uses a rheostat in his his A. C. arc circuit he is working under very unfavorable conditions, indeed, in so far as the production of a good screen illumination from a given amount of current is concerned. It is generally known that the use of a rheostat is very wasteful of current, and in the case of the A. C. arc it can be replaced to good advantage by a transformer, or economizer, as such devices are usually termed. The economizer, if properly chosen and installed, will effect a great saving in current, and in addition will give a screen illumination more free from ghosts than is generally secured through rheostatic control when A. C. is used. If a really excellent quality of screen illumination is desired, such as can only be secured with the D. C. arc, a Mercury Arc Rectifier could be installed to advantage. Either a transformer or a rectifier would soon pay for itself from the amount saved on the current cost incident to the correspondent's present mode of operation. Before leaving the subject of current, we note that the correspondent specifies that he uses 10 Amperes. This it appears must be a misstatement, because we cannot conceive of any one trying to project a 13-ft. picture with only 10 Amperes of A. C.

Passing next to the manner in which the correspondent is troubled with a circle of light all around his projected picture, when his lamp-house is moved back as far as it will go, this is easily explained, although it might seem somewhat puzzling at first glance. When the lamp-house is in its rearmost position stray light from the front surface of the condenser system escapes past the sides of the machine head and is projected through the machine port to the screen, where it is noticed as a halo surrounding the picture. The intensity of this aberrant light from the condensers can be much diminished by painting the inside of the condenser mount dead-black, while it may be entirely prevented from reaching the screen by inserting a piece of sheet metal into the machine port, which is provided with two round holes of just sufficient diameter to allow the M. P. and the stereo beams to pass uninterrupted to the screen.

Prevention is, however, better than cure, and it appears that the correspondent could secure a much more intense and satisfactory screen illumination by making a change in his condenser system, which is at present incorrect for the objective which he is using. From the data submitted, it appears that the projection lens is 4¼" or 4½" E. F., and it is likely that a 6½"-7½" condenser combination would improve the screen result very materially over that which the correspondent now secures with the two 7½" condensers. Not only will the 6½"-7½" combination permit the lamp-house to be moved closer to the aperture, thus gaining in available illumination and preventing the halo from appearing around the screen picture, but the shorter focus condenser system will also allow the arc to be brought closer to the rear condenser, with an attendant gain in the flux collected at this point.

The correspondent's optical troubles may be easily remedied, but his fundamental requirement is an economizer or rectifier.

What Do You Think?

WHAT phase of projection work or theatre management in general should be improved? Express your opinion; it is the only way we can do away with the evils which beset the industry.

Change-over punch marks are wrong. They should not be tolerated. Public opinion and expressions from our leading projectionists will stop it. Add your disapproval to that of the others who are against the custom.

The following is to the point.

February 13, 1919.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS,
729 Seventh avenue,
New York City, N. Y.

Gentlemen:

In the February 15th issue I read Mr. Werlans' letter on punch marks. Some parts of his letter are very good, but I cannot agree with him in several things. First, does he realize what the waste of film would be by using his method of a cross scratched in the corner of one frame for a period of one year? Well, here are the figures for you. I take it he changes every day. The usual show now consists of a feature and comedy (say seven reels) to the show. This would mean from two to six marked frames in the entire show.

Take three marked frames. For example, 365 days times three frames is equal to 1,095 marked frames. We all know there are sixteen frames to a foot of film. Divide 1,095 by sixteen; this is equal to 68 feet 5¼ inches. This would be the waste for one year at one theatre. He says, "Don't blame the operators for using the change-over mark." There is no excuse for operators or projectionists using change-over marks. If they can remember the scene where a nice little girl dives into the water and that is the end of the reel, why not use it as the change-over scene?

Say we take a new two-reel comedy and send it out to the exhibitors. In a year's time it is used by 150 exhibitors. We will say fifty of these use the change-over marks of some kind. Then at the end of the year there are no punch marks left in the film, they having been cut out in the course of the year by the other 100 users of this comedy. The footage of this comedy will be cut down from four to thirty feet in the use of change-over marks.

If the exchange releases a two-reel comedy every two weeks of the year, this would be twenty-six comedies in a year. By taking the average footage loss as fifteen feet per comedy twenty-six times, we would have 390 feet. This is the loss in footage, due to change-over marks alone. We all know it is impossible to say what the actual loss is to a film from change-over marks, but I think this will show a little what it means to continue mutilating the film. It is just as easy to make a note of the change-over scene as it is to punch the film full of holes. It also gives the critic a good chance to knock the Projectionist.

I think if the exchange would let their chief inspector have charge of a few copies of their various releases, they could get the goods on our friend punchers. The cost of repairs could be made against the theatre man, which I think would result in friend manager and projectionist getting together and seeing to it that it does not happen again. It is a hard fight to do away with the punchers, but some day they will be eliminated.

If this letter is O. K. I may be tempted to write again.

Wishing you all the luck in the world, I remain,

Yours truly,
G. WALDO,
Chief Projectionist, Strand theatre.

NEW THEATRES BUILDING

ILLINOIS

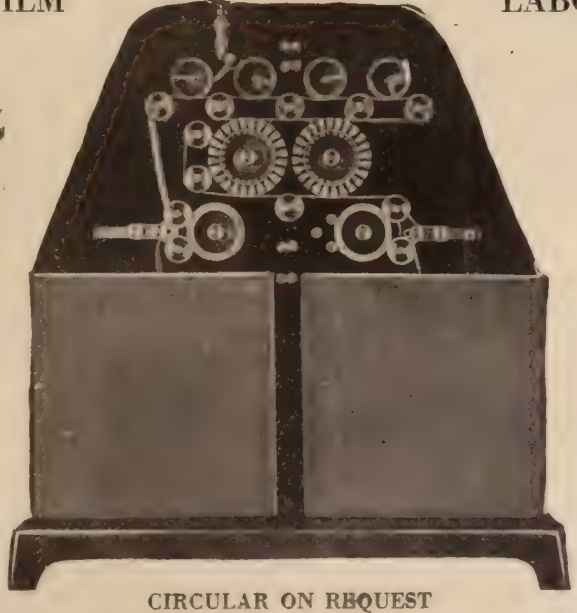
Dixon people are organizing a stock company to build a theatre with 1,200 seating capacity at First street and Galena avenue.

LOUISIANA

L. M. Ash, of the Saenger Amusement Company, announces that a $125,000 theatre will be erected this summer at Monroe.

ANNOUNCING A NEW

CLEANING AND POLISHING MACHINE



FOR THE FILM LABORATORY

No Sprockets

Film Fed by Rubber Rolls

Cleans a Reel in About Half Time Required on Other Machines

Price $450.00

Film is Cleaned Four Separate Times Before Reaching Buff Wheels

About Half the Size and Weight of Other Machines

Price $450.00

CIRCULAR ON REQUEST

MOTION PICTURE APPARATUS CO., Inc.

110 WEST 32nd STREET FARRAGUT 4779 NEW YORK, N. Y.

STANLEY FRAME COMPANY

STANDARD ONE-SHEET AND PHOTO COMBINATION

LOBBY DISPLAY FRAMES

Built to Last

SEND FOR NEW CATALOG

SPECIAL PHOTO CASE

STANLEY FRAME CO.
440 WEST 42nd STREET NEW YORK

The Essential Requirements
for Improved Projection
are
SPEER CARBONS

SPEER Alterno Combinations for A.C. Work
and
SPEER Hold-Ark Combinations for D.C. Work

Produce Incomparable Results

Write today for descriptive folders. Read the unbiased opinions of operators

Place an order now with your Supply House

"The Carbons with a Guarantee"

Manufactured by
SPEER CARBON COMPANY
ST. MARYS, PA.

Directors and camera men rely on the latitude, speed and dependability of

EASTMAN FILM

That this confidence is not misplaced is shown by the results on the screen.

Identifiable by the words "Eastman" and "Kodak" on the film margin

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Cue Sheets Latest Hits | Music | Musical Equipment

Valuable List of Agitated Movements

Musical Editors,
Motion Picture News,
New York City.

Gentlemen:

Referring to the enclosed page from your valuable publication, dated February 8, I want first to say, "Thanks for the uplift," and to beg a continuation of such helpful articles as the enclosed, as well as all others appearing in your paper, and believe me, gentlemen, that I miss none of them, for which, again, much thanks.

I am operating an American Photoplayer orchestral organ at the Crystal theatre, and am in charge of the music department for the Crystal Amusement Co. of Daytona, Fla. I ask you only for a list of such music, composers of same, etc., and do not want to trouble you to ascertain if such music is cut in rolls, in other words, if you'll extend me the courtesy that you offer musicians in general, I'll be glad to do the exhaustive hunting of roll-music and get all of the list that you send me that can be had.

Thanking you in anticipation of this list of battle agitatos and hurries, I am,

Yours, musically and for good music,
V. J. A. Baradel.

In the issue of the Motion Picture News, dated February 8, the editor of these columns has promised to furnish to any musician upon request a list of standard musical works from which hurries and agitatos can be extracted and which can be effectively employed as an accompaniment for battle scenes and fights. Since the publication of that article, scores of demands for such lists have reached us, a fact which quickly convinces us that most musical libraries are short of such material. To comply with the demand of our valued readers and to fulfill the purpose of this page, we herewith quote the following standard works, containing agitated movements, recitatives and hurries.

1. Olympia Overture, by E. Ascher.
2. Credo from the "St. Cecile Mass," by Gounod.
3. Flying Dutchman Overture, by R. Wagner.
4. Herodiade Fantasia, by Massenet.
5. Peer Gynt Suite No. 2, by E. Grieg.
6. Finale from the Opera "Ariele," by Bach.
7. Rustle of Spring, by Sinding.
8. Erl King (Liszt arrangement), by Bach.
9. Orgies of the Spirits, by Iljinsky.
10. Evening Breeze, by Langey.
11. Rienzi Overture, by Wagner.
12. Fantasia "Ein Maerchen," by Bach.
13. Scotch Poem, by MacDowell.
14. Il Guarany Overture, by Gomez.
15. Intermezzo, by Arensky.
16. Coppelia Ballet, "Czardas," by Delibes.
17. Faust Ballet, by Gounod.
18. Mirella Overture, by Gounod.
19. Vivo Finale, from Symphonette Suite, by Berge.
20. Rondo, from Beethoven Sonata Pathetique, by Berge.
21. Lion Chase, by Koelling.
22. Unfinished Symphony, by Schubert.

For the information of our correspondent and any others interested in this subject, as far as obtaining music rolls for the above-mentioned compositions, we would refer them to the Filmusic Company of Los Angeles, Cal., who are specializing in the manufacture of music rolls suitable for film work.

The Editors.

Musical Review of Latest Compositions

1—"Beautiful Ohio"—The waltz which never fails to make good. Start every job with "Beautiful Ohio" and they'll never leave the floor. (Shapiro, Bernstein Co., 47th St. and Broadway, N. Y.)

2—"The Battle for Democracy"—A new "Victory" overture, by Frank Fuhrer. A big-feature descriptive Overture, that depicts the various phases of the world war from the beginning to the end. This is NOT a medley of Allied national airs, but is an original descriptive composition containing tranquil, prayer, battle and triumphal march movements, with bits of Allied airs interpolated at various intervals to introduce that nation's entrance and part in the war. (Fillmore Music House, Cincinnati, Ohio.)

3—"Think Love of Me," by Frank H. Grey. The House of Fox is famous for its high-class successes, and never before has it offered anything more beautiful than "Think Love of Me." A melody of purest type exquisitely worked out and developed. A fine concert number and excellent for use as a Moving Picture theme. The Waltz also is now ready and it has that ryhthmic swing which characterizes the "Hit" in the Ballroom. (Sam Fox, Cleveland, Ohio.)

4—"Wedding March"—John Philip Sousa presents America's new Wedding March. Dedicated to the American people and the friends of Democracy throughout the world, this new "Wedding March" is a work of world-wide interest. Inspired by the universal demand for a new Wedding March, of a calibre which would displace the foreign marches heretofore used, it was a task of love for John Philip Sousa and the result was this great composition. The great American public will welcome and demand this Wedding March. (Sam Fox.)

5—"Have a Smile for Everyone You Meet and They Will Have a Smile for You"—Overnight success—greatest of all fox trots on the biggest novelty song published by Bert Rule. (Fischer-Witmark Orch. and Band Dept., N. Y.)

6—"As You Were"—Introducing "For Mary, the Baby and Me." Two big hits merged into one great one step—By Gaskill and Monaco. (Fischer-Witmark Band and Orch. Dept.)

7—"Dear Little Boy of Mine"—Another E. R. Ball overnight ballad success. An excellent waltz number—play it and make a real big hit. (Fischer-Witmark Band and Orch. Dept.)

8—"Romantic Suite"—A beautiful suite of love and romance containing four complete separate numbers, "Shepherd's Pipe," by Grieg, "Why," by Schumann, "Remembrance," by Schumann, and "Third Barcarolle," by Rubinstein; four exceptionally valuable concert or encore numbers. (Belwin, Inc., 701 Seventh Ave., N. Y.)

9—"Royal Suite"—A masterpiece opening with the entry of the royal cavalcade, then comes the gracious and gallant minuet (a la Boccherini), followed by the comedy in the waiting rooms of the aides and servants, humorously portrayed by the "Trot du Cavaliere," closing with the pretentious and spectacular banquet scene. (Belwin, Inc.)

10—"Russian Suite"—A unique and characteristic Russian Suite opening with the attracting of the populace by the call of martial airs, then comes intense excitement in a unique Russian agitato, followed by a beautiful plaintive, and then the everlasting Russian peasant dance. (Belwin, Inc.)

"Teddy" Helps Promote Motion Picture

An aid for the promotion of "Our Teddy," the authorized screen version of Colonel Roosevelt's life and works, has appeared recently in the shape of a song called "Teddy," which McClure Productions, Inc., arranged with Waterson, Berlin & Snyder, the well known New York music publishers, to produce.

COMMERCIAL LABORATORY WORK

In all its branches, receives INDIVIDUAL attention. Has the QUALITY and PUNCH which SELL prints.

RELEASE WORK

Specially equipped for QUANTITY production. Uniform SUPERIOR QUALITY such as only EXPERTS with scientific supervision can produce.

SPECIALTIES

If you have work requiring EXPERT SCIENTIFIC knowledge, we are BEST qualified to do it.

Empire City Film Lab., Inc
345 West 40th St., New York City

Bryant 5437 Bet. 8th & 9th Aves.

SWAAB'S MOTORS

for Power 6A and 6B are pleasing their users—not a single one has fallen down or been returned. They are sold for $37.50 and $40.00 respectively and are complete absolutely. Dealers do not recommend our Motor Equipments because they cannot make anything on them. We have priced them so that the Exhibitor gets the best price regardless of the Dealer. We are exclusive distributors of the SIMPLEX Machines. We repair all makes of machines and sell all supplies. Your old machines taken in trade for SIMPLEX.

LEWIS M. SWAAB

1329 Vine Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

The words of the song are by William J. McKenna, and the music by Ted Snyder. It is dedicated to the "fighting father of the fighting Roosevelts."

Exhibitors have not been slow to make use of this simple and inexpensive means of pushing "Our Teddy" in their localities. The idea of tying up the Roosevelt picture with a popular song about the Colonel was carried out with smashing success recently by the manager of the Eighty-first street theatre, New York City, who secured four wounded soldiers and organized them to the "Pershing Overseas Quartet." They sang before and after each showing of "Our Teddy" and were a valuable adjunct in packing the house during the picture's run.

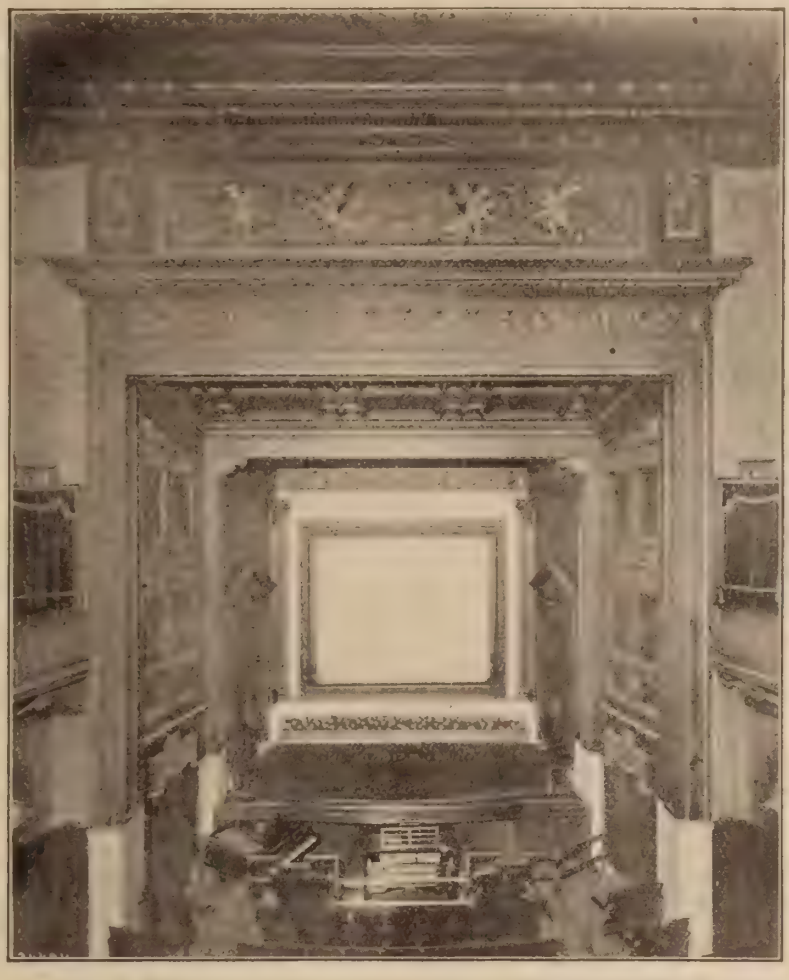
Monarch Music Co. Not Member of American Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers

MOTION PICTURE NEWS have just received a letter from the Monarch Music Company of Boston, Mass., informing them that they are not members of the American Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers, and have created a special Service Department to help exhibitors solve their musical problems. They also announce that through their special Service Department they will at any time furnish to any exhibitor professional copies of any music they publish.

One of their latest hits entitled, "Wishing Land," is an exceptionally well-written number and most adaptable for the needs of the film player. The composer of this famous song is no less a man than J. Will Callahan, author of the world-known "Smiles" and "After All."

The music editor of these columns earnestly suggests to every musician that he avail himself of the valuable service and assistance by the Monarch Music Company of Boston, Mass.

Store Features Song in Window Display



Woolworth's Five and Ten-Cent Store in Boston recently featured a window display of the late song, "Then You'll Come Back to Me," which has been dedicated to Constance Talmadge, and bears her picture on the cover. The management kept the sheet music display for two weeks.

When the song was written the producers decided that it should be dedicated to one of the stars of the screen, and decided upon Constance Talmadge, who is presented in Select Pictures by Lewis J. Selznick. So, naturally, Miss Talmadge's face adorns the music's cover.

The success of the piece was instantaneous, with the producers gallantly giving the credit to Miss Talmadge. Charles R. Rogers, Select's New England manager, arranged for a big window display in Woolworth's Boston Five and Ten Cent Store.

"Tad," the cartoonist, trying out a Fotoplayer

THE ESTEY ORGAN IN THE MODERN THEATRE, BOSTON

People Talk About It

A good many high-class, first-run picture theatres have found the way to please larger and more critical audiences with

The Estey Theatre Organ

It has made its success in response to a growing popular demand, just as films have improved and the theatre itself has improved.

Many use it exclusively to interpret the photo-plays. Any kind of a musical program can be adapted to the Estey Pipe Organ. It is unquestionably the best music for motion picture theatres.

Besides, people talk about it, like it—it gives your theatre prestige. It draws the crowds.

Without cost to you, we will send an expert to look at your theatre, tell you what kind of an organ you could use best, and give you an estimate of the cost. We will also tell you some theatre near you that has an Estey Pipe Organ, where you can see it and talk to the owner.

THE ESTEY ORGAN COMPANY, BRATTLEBORO, VERMONT

You can hear the Estey Pipe Organ at any of these branches:

Studios in New York, 11 West 49th Street; Philadelphia, 1701 Walnut Street; Boston, 120 Boylston Street; Los Angeles, 633 South Hill Street

Sharlow's Patented

all metal and Wood Hub Film Reels with patent film clip in all sizes. Also manufacturers of Fibre Lined Shipping Cases, Export Cases, Hand Carrying Cases, Rewinding Tables, Film Cabinets, Film Racks, Sheet Metal and Asbestos Projection Booths.

Sharlow Brothers

410-412 West 42nd St. } NEW YORK CITY
439-441 West 41st St. }

Producers that suffer delays and disappointments at the hands of the DEVELOPER and PRINTER should investigate EVANS' SERVICE.

Our reputation for quality, responsibility and promptness deserves your immediate attention.

EVANS FILM MFG. CO.

416-24 West 216th St. New York City

Telephone St. Nicholas 3443-3444

Phone Bryant 6808

MADE IN AMERICA
FILM RAW STOCK

"THE ROOT OF THE MOVIES"

If it is high grade sensitive films for motion pictures you want, we have it and are now ready to serve you.

BAY STATE FILM SALES CO., INC.

220 West 42nd Street NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.

A. G. STEEN, Special Representative

"NEWMAN" BRASS FRAMES AND RAILS

Read what C. A. Morrison of The Princess Theatre, Hartford, Conn., says about Newman Quality:

Gentlemen:

We have purchased quite a number of Brass Frames and Easels, together with Brass Ticket Rail and Three-Sheet Brass Poster Frames of your Company.

All of these goods reached us in perfect condition and the quality was the best. I have told several other managers in the city of your goods and in several instances orders have been sent you—all of which goes to show that your best advertiser is a satisfied customer.

PRINCESS THEATRE CO., Inc.
C. A. Morrison, Mgr. Hartford, Conn

INSIST ON THE NAME "NEWMAN" WHEN BUYING FRAME

Write for New 1918 Catalog

The Newman Mfg. Company

ESTABLISHED 1882
Frames, Easels,
Rails, Grilles,
Signs, Choppers
Kick Plates, Door Bars

717-19 Sycamore Street, Cincinnati, Ohio
68 W. Washington Street, Chicago, Illinois
Canadian Representative—J T Malone Rialto Theatre Bldg., Montreal, Canada
Pacific Coast—G A Metcalfe, San Francisco Cal.

We manufacture the frames in various finishes which do not require polishing.

LATEST MUSIC CUES

"THE HIGHEST TRUMP"

(Earle Williams-Vitagraph)

Specially selected and compiled by M. Winkler.

The timing is based on a speed limit of 14 minutes per reel (1,000 ft.)

Theme A: "Impish Elves" (Winsome Intermezzo), by Borch
Theme B: "The Crafty Spy" (Original Descriptive Mysterioso), by Borch

1—"Tragic Theme" (Dramatic), by Vely (2 minutes), until—At Screening (telephone-bell).

2—"Dramatic Suspense," by Winkler (3 minutes), until—T: "Richard, John Paget's" (electric door-bell).

3—Theme A (2 minutes), until—T: "There, there, it's all over" (telephone-bell).

4—"Dramatic Agitato No. 38," by Minot (3 minutes and 15 seconds), until—S: When police arrive.

5—"Capricious Annette" (Moderato Caprice), by Borch (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "To Bickers the change in his" (electric-bell).

6—"Over the Top, Boys" (American March), by Berg (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—T: "Richard realizes that if he" (marching soldiers).

7—Theme A (45 seconds), until—T: "Do you realize that you are."

8—"Dramatic Tension," by Levy (2 minutes), until—T: The interests of the Anson.

9—Theme B (3 minutes), until—T: And that night Richard Paget.

10—Theme A (1 minute), until—T: "You will see John in uniform."

11—"On to Berlin" (Direct cue segue to Theme A) (1 minute and 15 seconds), until—T: On to Berlin (piano only according to action).

12—"Dramatic Agitato," by Hough (15 seconds), until—S: When scene fades to spies.

13—"Aces High" (Aviation march), by Roberts (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—T: After several months' training (aeroplane effects).

14—Theme B (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—T: "Our planes are being."

15—"Theme A (1 minute and 15 seconds), until—T: The last precious hours.

16—"Over There" (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—T: In France three weeks later.

17—"Scherzetto" (From Symphonette Suite), by Berge (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—S: When John drops message.

18—Theme B (1 minute), until—T: With the evening.

19—Theme A (2 minutes), until—T: "Paget won't be able."

20—"Furioso No. 11," by Kiefert (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: Next day the raid.

21—"Review March" (Military Maestoso), by Berg (1 minute and 15 seconds), until—T: And to Richard Paget with his.

22—Repeat: "Aces High" (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: The best laid plans of mice (tolling-bell).

23—Organ only (Andante Pathetic) (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—S: When bride and groom enter church (tolling-bell—wedding scene).

24—Repeat: "Aces High" (30 seconds), until—S: When bride and groom re-enter aeroplane.

25—Repeat: Theme B (1 minute and 15 seconds), until—T: The long awaited day when.

26—"Agitato No. 69" (Allegro Agitato), by Minot (1 minute), until—S: When John enters aeroplane (battle effects).

27—Repeat: Theme B (1 minute), until—S: Smoke signal.

28—"Alborada" (Allegretto Caprice), by Andino (45 seconds), until—T: While back in America.

29—"Oh, Frenchy" (Popular American song) (1 minute), until—T: At the French headquarters.

30—"Dramatic Narrative," by Pement (45 seconds), until—S: When French scene fades.

31—"Furioso No. 60," by Shepherd (30 seconds), until—T: With the time drawing near.

32—"Tragic Theme," by Vely (3 minutes), until —T: The little inn where their (watch for explosion).

33—"Agitato No. 49," by Shepherd (3 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "You wear the uniform of America."

34—"Dramatic Tension No. 36," by Andino (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "If you're a Secret Service" (watch for explosion).

35—Repeat: Theme A (1 minute), until—T: "But nothing like the side of"—until * * * * * END.

"Heart of Humanity" Ballad for a Record on the Graphophone

CHARLES HARRISON, tenor, has been chosen to sing "Heart of Humanity," a ballad inspired by the Jewel photodrama. "The Heart of Humanity," for the Columbia Graphophone Co. "Heart of Humanity" will be made into a record and marketed as one of the June numbers, by Columbia. The Columbia agencies and music dealers everywhere, selling music published by Waterson, Berlin & Snyder, are co-operating with exhibitors displaying the film feature, and the idea of showing the film feature and, in connection, introducing the song of the same title, has proved a big success in every city in which the production has been shown to date

Universal film exchanges have been supplied with orchestrations of the song, and also are providing exhibitors with slides bearing the words of the chorus.

"THE WOMAN ON THE INDEX"

(Pauline Frederick-Goldwyn)

Specially selected and compiled by M. Winkler

The timing is based on a speed limit of 14 minutes per reel (1,000 ft.)

Theme: "Think Love of Me" (Moderato Ballad), by Frank H. Grey

(Used by permission of Sam Fox, through Belwin, Inc., 701 Seventn avenue, New York City.)

1—Lento Allegro (From Symphonette Suite), by Berge (1 minute and 55 seconds), until—T: "Pauline Frederick as Sylvia."
2—Continue to action (1 minute and 55 seconds), until—T: "If I am to take care."
3—"Dramatic Suspense," by Winkler (1 minute and 55 seconds), until—T: "And in the same neighborhood."
4—"Sinister Theme" (Dramatic), by Vely (3 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "I found her downstairs."
5—Theme (1 minute and 40 seconds), until—T: "And after a severe illness."
6—Continue to action (1 minute and 25 seconds), until—T: "When a short time had passed."
7—"Dramatic Reproach," by Berge (2 minutes and 35 seconds), until—T: "And when the gang was ready."
8—"Adagio" (from Pathetic Suite), by Mozart (4 minutes), until—T: "The Bull's got him."
9—"Dramatic Agitato," by Hough (2 minutes and 10 seconds), until—T: "I'll turn state's evidence."
10—Theme (1 minute and 50 seconds), until—T: "Charged with murder."
11—Continue ff (1 minute and 20 seconds), until—T: "Three years later."
12—"Prudence" (4/4 Entr'acte), by Luz (45 seconds), until—T: "And in the same city.
13—Continue to action (3 minutes and 40 seconds), until—T: "I must see in my office."
14—Theme (3 minutes), until—T: "The God of chance has."
15—"Dramatic Tension No. 36," by Andino (1 minute and 50 seconds), until—T: "A little later."
16—"Reve D'Amour" (Melodious Allegretto), by Zamecnik (3 minutes and 15 seconds), until— T: "The next morning."
17—"Romance" (From Chopiniana Suite), by Chopin (3 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "And one afternoon."
18—"Cradle Song" (from Tragic Suite), by Gottschalk (2 minutes and 40 seconds), until—S: Close up of index of police record.
19—Theme (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "Take the first train."
20—"And Yet" (4/4 Melody), by Hathaway (4 minutes and 20 seconds), until—T: "I have great news for you."
21—Theme ff (2 minutes and 55 seconds), until—T: "I'm sorry, Mrs. Maber."
22—"Pizzicato Mysterioso," by Minot (4 minutes and 25 seconds), until—T: "Why did you send that note?"
23—"Elegie" (From "Pathetic Suite"), by Luz (1 minute and 50 seconds), until—T: "Does your husband know?"
24—Continue ff (1 minute and 35 seconds), until—T: "Well, what's the idea?"
25—"Dramatic Fantasie," by Bach (2 minutes and 40 seconds), until—T: "Don't worry, it's all right."
26—Theme ff (1 minute), until * * * * * END.

17—"Andante Dramatico No. 62," by Borch (2 minutes), until—T: "I want you to call up Ryan."
18—"Dramatic Finale No. 63," by Smith (1 minute and 15 seconds), until—T: "If any disclosures are made."
19—"Dramatic Tension No. 64," by Borch (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "I'll give you thirty days."

"THE BRAND"

(Kay Laurell-Goldwyn)

Specially selected and compiled by M. Winkler

The timing is based on a speed limit of 14 minutes per reel (1,000 ft.)

Theme: "Think Love of Me" (Moderato), by Grey

Used by permission of Sam Fox, through Belwin, Inc., 701 Seventh Avenue, New York

1—"Mountain Song" (From Mountain Music Suite), by Borch (3 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "Early in November."
2—"Sunrise on the Mountain" (From Mountain Music Suite), by Borch (3 minutes and 55 seconds), until—T: "What's the matter, little woman?"
3—Theme (30 seconds), until—T: "After Barley had gone."

(Continued in next column)

Theatre and Exchange Mailing List Service

We rent lists of or address contemplated or existing theatres, exchanges, state rights owners, publicity mediums and producers compiled as to territory, class, etc. Twenty thousand changes were recorded in our list last year. Its use means a saving to you of from 10 to 50% in postage, etc.

MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY CO N202

FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK Phone, 3227 Chelsea

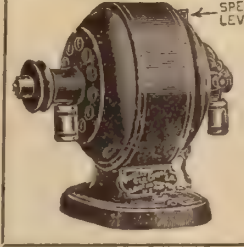
Addressing Multigraphing Printing Typewriting

(Continued from preceding column)

4—Continue to action (1 minute and 35 seconds), until—T: "first marriage ceremony."
5—"Sparklets" (Moderato), by Miles (50 seconds), until—T: "What McGill called home."
6—"When You Are Truly Mine" (Moderato), by Lee (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—T: "By midwinter Ophir awoke."
7—"Dramatic Narrative," by Pement (2 minutes and 40 seconds), until—T: "Have you struck anything?"
8—"Bleeding Hearts" (Andantino Sentimento), by Levy (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—T: "To make matters worse."
9—Continue ff (1 minute), until—T: "Bob, I'm married."
10—"Dramatic Reproach," by Berge (1 minute and 20 seconds), until—T: "Careful as they were."
11—"Dramatic Recitative," by Levy (2 minutes and 50 seconds), until—T: "I love you like a father."
12—Theme (1 minute and 25 seconds), until—T: "But things went from bad."
13—"Dramatic Suspense," by Winkler (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—T: "Until long after dark."
14—"Half Reel Storm Furioso," by Levy (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "By midnight the storm."
Note: pp. during interior scenes.
15—Continue ff (3 minutes and 40 seconds), until—T: "We picked 'em up."
Note: With ad. lib., snow storm effects.
16—"Agitato No. 69," by Minot (1 minute and 55 seconds), until—T: "But McGill had friends."
17—"Furioso, ff," by Kiefert (40 seconds), until—T: "Two years of profitless."
18—Theme ff (2 minutes and 5 seconds), until—T: "Far away in the heart."
19—"Lento Allegro" (from Symphonette Suite), by Berge (4 minutes and 55 seconds), until—T: "Ablaze with hatred."
20—"Perpetual Motion," (Allegro Agitato), by Borch (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "News of the John Daniels' strike."
21—"Savannah" (Alaskan one-step), by Rosey (2 minutes and 5 seconds), until—T: "Following the strong."
22—Theme (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—T: "Having broken his silence."
23—"Valse Divine" (Valse Lento), by Rosey (3 minutes and 55 seconds), until—T: "Four hours he passed."
24—"Hunkatin" (Popular one-step), by Levy (2 minutes and 40 seconds), until—T: "Shall I send a girl up."
Note: Begin pp. ff. during dance hall scenes.
25—"Sinister Theme," by Vely (3 minutes and 35 seconds), until—T: "Come with me and I'll show you."
26—Theme (3 minutes and 35 seconds), until—T: "No! No! Don't go."
27—"Hurry No. 1," by Langey (1 minute and 50 seconds), until—T: "Now, go and carry my mark."
28—"Tragic Theme," by Vely" (1 minute and 15 seconds), until—T: "Come, we'll go now."
29—Theme ff (50 seconds), until * * * * * END.

"THE LION AND THE MOUSE"

(Alice Joyce-Vitagraph)



Specially selected and compiled by M. Winkler.

The timing is based on a speed limit of 14 minutes per reel (1,000 ft.)

Theme: "Bleeding Hearts" (Andantino Sentimento), by Levy

1—"Dreams of Devotion" (Heavy Dramatic Emotional Characteristic), by Langey (4 minutes and 45 seconds), until—At Screening.
2—"Ecstasy" (Passionato Moderato), by Zamecnik (2 minutes), until—T: Judge Rossmore and his wife (telephone-bell).
—"A La Mode" (French One-step), by Rosey (45 seconds)), until—T: In Paris, where oy a strange.
4—Theme (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—T: Jefferson Ryder.
5—"Dramatic Recitative," by Levy (30 seconds), until—T: "While in America John Ryder."
6—"Kathleen" (Valse Lento), by Berg (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—T: "And one evening not long after."
7—Theme (1 minute and 15 seconds), until—S: When Shirley gets telegram.
8—"Longing" (Andantino Crazioso), by Floridia (4 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "The trip across seemed."
9—"Admiration" (Moderato Grazioso), by Jackson (3 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "I wish to see my son" (door-bell).
10—Theme (2 minutes), until—T: "Dinner's on de table, ma'am."
11—"Adagietto" (From Symphonette Suite), by Berge (1 minute and 15 seconds), until—T: "You mean you would throw."

(Continued on next page)

Electric Motors for Moving Picture Machine

1/10 H. P. Variable Speed Alternating or Direct Current. Price $18. Also all styles of fans.

Fidelity Electric Co.

Lancaster, Pa.

THE BARTOLA

Is built for Motion Picture Theatres. Will improve your music and pictures. Easy Terms. Send for catalogue.

CHAS. C. PYLE, General Sales Agent, 707-712 Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill. Factory, Oshkosh, Wis.

TransVerteR

Perfect Light Control

At the will of the Operator

THE amperage can readily be regulated to light or dark pictures as easily as turning gas up or down.

At the same time, the voltage lowers and raises automatically in proportion to the changing length of the arc.

The Transverter insures a perfect arc, a steady, bright, white light and more artistic projection of pictures without waste of current.

You can make a perfect dissolve with two-arc Transverter

The Hertner Electric & Mfg. Co.
1908 West 114th St., Cleveland, O.

LE FILM

The Greatest Weekly Trade Paper of
MOTION PICTURES AND THE STAGE PRINTED IN PARIS
1457 Broadway New York
Telephone Bryant 5602
26 RUE DU DELTA, PARIS
878 TALCAHUANO, BUENOS AIRES
Subscription, One Year, $6.00

(Continued from preceding page)

12—"Dramatic Suspense," by Winkler (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "I wish I could help you" (automobile effects).
13—Theme (2 minutes), until—T: "Shirley, father says he can't."
14—"Melodie" (Moderato Con Grazioso), by Friml (3 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: The lion and his power.
15—"Menuetto All'antico" (Allegretto Grazioso), by Karganoff (4 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "And then the American Octopus."
16—"May Dreams" (Moderato Serenade), by Borch (4 minutes), until—T: "Do you realize that we're."
17—"Elegie" (Adagio Serenade), by Barmotine (4 minutes), until—T: "Before I go to Washington."
18—"Melancolie" (Larghetto 4/4), by Bubeck (3 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "Miss Green is here, sir."
19—Theme (3 minutes and 45 seconds), until—S: When mother and son enter room.
20—"Scherzetto" (From Symphonette Suite), by Berge (4 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "Miss Green, you say here."
21—"Dramatic Tension No. 9," by Andino (1 minute), until—T: "The night of the Ryder reception."
22—"Sleeping Rose" (Valse Lento), by Borch (3 minutes), until—T: "I'm going to see Ryder."
23—Theme (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—S: As scene fades to Shirley and Jefferson.
24—"Withered Flowers" (Pathetic Intermezzo), by Kiefert (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "That Rossmore woman is."
25—"Dramatic Tension No. 36," by Andino (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—T: "If he is impeached."
26—"Dramatic Agitato No. 38," by Minot (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "Can you find the combination."
27—"Dramatic Narrative," by Pement (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—T: "Mr. Ryder, this deception."
28—Theme (1 minute), until—T: "Well Jeff, she's a wonder"—until * * * * * * END.

Complete Plan Book Follows, Beginning on Page 1538

Write for our list of Guaranteed Rebuilt Machines
AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY
Largest Exclusive Dealers to the
MOTION PICTURE TRADE
300-302 Mallers Building
5 So. Wabash Avenue
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS
Dealers in Motiograph, Standard and Simplex Moving Picture Machines, National Carbons, Minusa Screens and Everything for the Theatre.
WE SELL ON THE INSTALLMENT PLAN

THE SCHEDULE OF FILM RELEASES
As Published In
MOTION PICTURE NEWS
POSSESSES A DISTINCTIVE STYLE ALL ITS OWN

Business Offerings

WANTED—Bell Howell Camera State shutter degree and accessories also lowest cash price. Rubinstein, 100 West 119th Street, New York.

CAMERAMAN, fourteen years' practical experience, wishes to connect with producer who is desirous of obtaining the services of a thoroughly reliable man with exceptional ability. Address Camera, c/o Motion Picture News.

FOR SALE, CHEAP. Four horsepower Wotton Generator, automatic ticket seller, exhaust fan, projection lenses, Booth, Electric sign "Puritan," Arc lamps, Screen, and lot of other articles. S. Kronholtz, Stamford, Conn.

The Argus Lamp & Appliance Co.

"One of the Argus Enterprises"

Watch for Our Ad in Next Issue!

E. E. FULTON CO., Chicago
Manufacturers of the FULCO Line of Specialties and Moving Picture Accessories
Be you an Operator, Theatre Owner, Exchange Manager, Supply Dealer or Producer, get in touch with us and we will advise you in what you are interested.

Equipped with UNIVERSAL Motion Picture Camera

"You get the picture and get away before the other fellow is ready"

BURKE & JAMES, Inc.
240 E. Ontario Street, Chicago
225 Fifth Ave. New York

VENTILATE & COOL BY TYPHOONS
TYPHOON FAN COMPANY NEW YORK 281 LEXINGTON AVE.

MODERN EQUIPPED STUDIOS FOR RENT

UNEXCELLED FILM LABORATORIES AND STUDIOS CO. INC.
120-124 School St.
YONKERS, N.Y.
TELEPHONE — 4600 YONKERS

HIGH CLASS DEVELOPING AND PRINTING

"WE NEVER DISAPPOINT"
TELEPHONE BRYANT 5576
CROMLOW FILM LABORATORIES
INCORPORATED
220 WEST 42ND STREET
NEW YORK
ALLAN A. LOWNES GEN. MGR.

Everything the Showman Needs on Every Picture Released

The Complete Plan Book

Compiled by Peter Milne

Pictures Reviewed in Advance

[In addition to Advance Reviews—covering pictures shown too early to be included in The Complete Plan Book—readers will also find under this heading each week the reviews of short features and serial episodes.]

"A Heart in Pawn," with Sessue Hayakawa

(Haworth—Robertson-Coles—Directed by William Worthington)

It is rather difficult, if not impossible, to fully convey to you how good this picture is. The only way it could be done successfully would be to resort to superlatives; but as superlatives have lost their meaning when employed to praise a picture, the only way left by which to do it is to state that it is twice as good a picture as Mr. Hayakawa's best contribution.

Throughout the entire length of the feature, a good size lump, to use a slang expression, sticks half way into the throat, which one continually tries to gulp down, but hardly with success. The picture simply works havoc with the deeper emotions; anyone who will succeed to keep his eyes dry deserves to be called a hero.

It is a well known fact that people, however unemotional they may try to appear in their daily affairs, like to cry in a theatre; and as the dark atmosphere of a picture theatre is conducive to such a state, it makes it easier for people to abandon themselves to their feelings; so your patrons ought to get more than their money's worth out of this picture.

The plot is based on the Japanese stage success "Shadows." The hero is married secretly to a Japanese beauty. His greatest desire is to complete his studies in an American college, but is unable to do so owing to lack of funds. His wife, who loves him dearly, secretly pledges herself as a Geisha girl for four years, receiving a lump sum for her future services. This sum she hands to her husband, telling him it comes from the family savings.

The hero departs for America, while the heroine begins fulfilling the terms of her contract. Her beauty attracts a banker, who becomes infatuated with her. During one of his intoxicated revelries he attacks her. In defence of her honor she kills him. Thus she is arrested, tried and condemned to death.

The hero is acquainted with the occurrence through a letter, which he receives during a banquet given to him by the college students for his admittance to their exclusive fraternity. Shocked by the sad news, he abandons himself to drink and becomes a derelict, but a friendly doctor, who had taken an interest in him, restores him again to his former self.

The continual work endangers the doctor's health. Feeling that he has not long to live, he reveals to the hero that the mother of his daughter, his only child, was also a Japanese, and that it is his wish that they marry. After his death, the young couple marry and return to Japan.

The hero is now a doctor with a fame. He devotes himself closely to the study of the cure of hereditary evils. While lecturing to the women prisoners, he is shocked to notice his wife amongst them. The shock weakens him so that he is unable to continue the lecture, therefore he begs the attendants to dismiss the inmates. His wife remains behind. The sorrow-reduced hero approaches her and exchanges a few words with her. He reveals to her that down deep in his heart he shares her sufferings. With tears in her eyes she reveals to him that she had given birth to a daughter, their daughter, in prison. She begs him to find her and raise her in a manner worthy of her great father.

Sad and broken down in spirit, the hero returns to his home on an island. The little waif whom he picked up from the streets to raise, by her childish talks causes him to find out that she is his own daughter.

The heroine escapes during the night and comes on the island. She finds the hero and tells him that her irresistible love, and her ardent desire to once more hear from his lips that he still loves her, drove her to this desperate measure, and that she will then be content to die. The hero tells her "I was told you were dead, so I married again." Their little child now enters the room and the mother embraces her affectionately. As the prison guards approach the house, the heroine runs out, throws herself into the lake, and drowns herself.

Pathetic as the end of the heroine is, it could not be otherwise and be logical. Besides it is a different ending than what one sees in the majority of the pictures; it leaves a person somewhat sad but not with a bitter taste.

The acting of Mr. Hayakawa is unexcelled; so is that of his wife, Tsuru Aoki. Released through Exhibitors' Mutual. Lengh, 5 reels.—P. S. Harrison.

"The Man of Might"

(Vitagraph Serial—Fourth Episode)

THE exciting situation in this episode is where the hero traces the villains in a Chinatown; they had gone there after getting hold of a part of the flag from a friend of the hero.

The hero is told by the Chinese priest that a part of the flag will be found in the basket close to a budda. While searching for the flag, the Chinaman presses a button, the left hand of the statue lowers and clasps the hero by the neck. Another button is pressed, and the right hand, holding a sharp knife, starts coming down. But the villains now come out from their hiding place, take the hero and throw him into the sewer through a secret hole in the floor. The heroine is held captive.

"Tad" Gives Fotoplayer the Once-Over

The American Photoplayer Company announces that T. A. Dorgan, the cartoonist, familiarly known as "Tad," became quite enthusiastic over the Fotoplayer upon his recent visit to the West Coast. "Tad" is said to have declared that the double tracker patented device used on the instrument was a revelation to him. The instant change from sad to glad music for the accurate picture accompaniment and the array of orchestral traps gave him the impression that the Fotoplayer produced everything from a barnyard cackle to a Boston Symphony.

GEORGE FITZMAURICE

Producer of

"Common Clay"

Special Service Section on

Fannie Ward in "Common Clay"

IF you have booked this production we would advise you to give its exploitation more serious consideration than you do the average picture. You cannot afford to pass this along with only a cursory examination, for then you may be apt to regard it as the common sort of a shop girl story, and if you do you will fail to get the appeal out of it.

Your two strong points are the popularity of the star, Fannie Ward, and the fact that this is the picture version of the play of the same name, which A. H. Woods produced at the Republic theatre, New York City, for a run of a year. At a time when all the world is talking about democracy we would make an especial appeal along that line, following the idea expressed by Kipling when he wrote: "The colonel's lady and Julia O'Grady are sisters under the skin."

After you have understood what the story is about you will understand that it is not the usual story of the "wronged girl," but rather the conflict between two women—between their outlooks on life and society. For here is a girl that resisted the temptations of the fast life in New York and yielded only to love, the love of a man who promised to marry her and who meant to keep that promise and was only foiled for a time by the deception of his mother.

HERE'S a glance at the story:

Ellen Neal is a poorly paid clerk in a millinery store, where she earns barely enough to buy the cheap clothing that she wears and to pay her board in her poverty stricken home where she lives with a mother who has been a drudge and a drunken father. Then there comes back into her life Jennie Peters, once an employe of the same shop, but now an employe of Benderi's cabaret. After many temptations she induces Ellen to come with her merely on a visit to the cabaret. There she meets Arthur Coakley, scion of a rich family, but she resists all temptation and soon goes on to her home.

Weeks pass and contrasting her sordid surroundings to those of the cabaret she finally consents to go again, this time on an amateur night and to give a song, which she does. Again she meets Coakley and yields to his invitation to be driven home in his machine. But the father sees them together and when she enters the house there follows a gripping scene in which she is driven from the house. She has none to whom to turn except Jennie, and so she returns to the cabaret. Then it is that a midnight supper at Brady's is suggested and without knowing the character of the place she consents to join the party. But soon all the others slip away except Coakley, who attempts to attack her. At that moment the police raid the place. It is the story of the man against the girl, and the police treat her as a woman of the streets.

With freedom the next day she secures a position as a maid in the home of Mrs. Fullerton, a society woman, and there she quickly comes to idolize the son, Hugh, who at first regards her only as a pretty little servant girl. Coakley is a friend of the family and first makes his first proposals to her, and when she spurns him, seeks to convey the wrong impression with the statement that "she was the cutest little girl at Benders."

BUT the call to war comes and Hugh enlists. It is then that the girl confesses to him her love, and finds that the son of her rich employers loves her. She is the victim of love, but it is clear to the spectators that it is a case of reciprocated love if there is no ceremony then.

A couple of years have elapsed and we see Ellen's mother urging her to force the Fullertons to support her baby, but the father declares that this is the usual story and refuses. But Judge Filson, counsel for and chum of Fullerton, is first inclined to believe the girl, but is finally persuaded to serve against her when she employs a lawyer to bring suit. Then it is that the insinuating remark of Coakley's is employed. He is persuaded to tell an entirely different story of the evening in the room at Brady's from the true one and does so when the case comes to trial in private chambers. Tense scene follows tense scene, one of them coming when Coakley, on account of the girl's age, faces the charge of either perjury or a graver one.

But another follows when the supposed mother of Ellen testified, and tells the story she had held inviolate. Ellen is not her child, but that of a dancer who brought the baby to her for safekeeping, and without revealing the name of the father found her grave in the river. It is when he hears the name of Ellen's real mother that Judge Filson realizes that he is her father and that he has been seeking to tarnish the name of his own daughter. But with that revelation Ellen withdraws her case with the dramatic statement:

Fannie Ward's personality brought out striking in these three scenes

At left as maid, at right as mother and in the center Ellen comes into her own

"My mother, when she went down didn't drag anybody with her. I want to be like she was. She made her mistake, but, my, she was square."

AFTER the trial is over Judge Filson confesses to Ellen that he is her father and takes her home to be his "ward." In the meantime it has been revealed to the spectators that not alone is Hugh Fullerton ignorant of the advent of the baby, but that he has been writing her from France letters of fervent love which have been intercepted and hidden by his mother, who fears the disgrace to the family name. When the war is over Hugh comes home, his almost first question being for Ellen, and then he learns the truth. He swears that he will seek her if it takes him a lifetime and beg her on his knees to marry him. But Ellen has disappeared and it is not until some time later that Judge Filson gives a dinner in honor of his daughter. She is so changed by her gown that the others do not recognize her, but Hugh does and he quickly takes her in his arms.

And Judge Filson says to the boy's parents:

"You thought she was common clay—but she had proved pure gold."

We have outlined this story at length to show that you can present the proper sort of exploitation of this picture without giving any offense. There are some frank situations, but these handle themselves through the way that the story has been put together, and so long as your patrons know the real purity of the girl there will not be any criticism, unless you pave the way for it by your advertising.

ORDINARY "catch lines" are not likely to make the situation clear and therefore in selling talks we would go into this fully enough so as to make the story clear. Here are a few suggestions:

"What a difference position in life makes! The Fullertons had their place in society and they believed little Ellen, a maid in their household common clay. They did not know that she had resisted the temptations of the city, but had yielded to the honest love of their son. And after he had gone away to war, they sought to blacken her name. But when they learned in the end that she was the daughter of their dearest friend, they learned, too, the truth—that she was of pure gold."

Remember that this is not a story of the underworld, of the fast New York life or anything of this sort. Don't be tempted to use such lines unless you have a mighty cheap class of patronage. They are mere incidents of the story. It is not a story of a girl who did wrong because she sought a life of pleasure, so keep those things out. It was only love, and there are lots of cases like this far removed from the dance halls. How much better this one:

"Lure of the dance hall and the temptations of the great city did not affect little Ellen Neal. One glance at what they meant and she became a servant in a rich home, and there she fell in love with the son and heir. He truly loved her, but went away to war and his letters were kept from her and the news from him, by a mother who regarded her as common clay. And when the youth came home and learned the truth he sought for the girl until he found her—for in his love he knew the gold."

Or this:

"Rich Mr. and Mrs. Fullerton had no use for common clay and when they learned that she had yielded to the honest love of their son they drove forth the little maid employed in their home and then sought to blacken her name. But when they learned that she was the daughter of their dearest friend and when they saw her in silk and lace they concluded that she was pure gold. But the boy knew it all the time and nothing but deception had kept them apart all that time. To some all who lack wealth and 'family' are of the clay; others know when the heart is true—that all does not need to glitter to be gold."

WE believe that these selling lines tell enough of what the story is about and tell it closely enough in keeping with the character of it to suffice. As we have said, we would advise against any short sentences that are likely to mislead, and at the same time we would avoid telling the whole story of the offering, for the many dramatic turns that it takes is the main thing about the plot that is going to create word of mouth advertising among your patrons.

We would certainly mention in this advertising the fact that this is taken from the Harvard Prize play by Cleves Kinkead, which was produced by A. H. Woods and which ran at the Republic theatre for fifty-two weeks with Jane Cowl and John Mason in the leading roles. It was presented "on the road" by six different companies and therefore ranks as one of the best known of the modern productions.

If possible to get a list of regular patrons of the legitimate theatres we would use a special mailing list for "Common Clay," calling attention to those facts and challenging them to let you prove with this offering that the screen is even more convincing than the spoken drama.

If there is a college in your section you can get added business by sending a letter to each of the professors and students advising that this picture was made from the play that took the prize at Harvard for the best American dramatic creation.

Striking twenty-four-sheet indicates character of the paper available

Striking Cuts of Star Should Be Used in Displays

AMONG the motion pictures that have never been forgotten is "The Cheat," and in this Fannie Ward was the star. There are some sections in which repeat engagements have been run long after the original, and exhibitors where such is the case and where there was a big hit scored in her latest successes, "The Yellow Ticket" and "The Narrow Path," will do well to call attention to that fact in their exploitation of "Common Clay."

Miss Ward was a noted actress of the speaking stage before she came to the screen. She is a St. Louis product and began her stage career at the age of fifteen, appearing in some of the biggest Broadway successes and then duplicating her success in England. She came to the screen about four years ago, at the time many of the most famous of the stars were deserting the speaking stage for the camera.

In many of the productions in which she has appeared she has attracted unusual attention by her ability to play young girls, and in this she is no exception for in the beginning of this production she is supposed to be under eighteen. You can capitalize this fact in your exploitation, especially if you are in a large community, by getting the beauty shops to co-operate with you. They might use a picture of Miss Ward in the window and then a card, "If you patronize this shop you will have the same wonderful beauty that Fannie Ward displays as a girl of seventeen in 'Common Clay' at the Empire theatre."

IF you are making your own advertising layouts we would suggest that you use a striking one of Miss Ward. In one layout we have illustrated two that will fit in mighty well with the spirit of the picture, one of her shining shoes and the other a figure of her with her hands clasped. We would rather prefer to keep out any of those showing the baby, because you haven't the full space to explain all you would need in that connection. If you prefer line cuts you will find a striking one in the February 22 issue of the NEWS.

There is a very strong cast here. Mary Alden, who entered motion pictures along with Mary Pickford and many of the big stars, and who later scored many successes with Fine Arts-Triangle, has one of the most striking parts in this picture, though it is small. Andrew Arbuckle, who appears as her father, has another striking character bit.

W. E. Lawrence, the leading man, has quite a following, and Fred Goodwin is really the "villain" of the picture in the role of Andrew Coakley. John H. Caesar, Fred Goodwin, Helen Dunbar and John Barrows are others who are mighty well known. If you have room list the members of the supporting company, but don't do it if you are using only small space.

GEORGE FITZMAURICE, who has directed this picture, is responsible for some of the biggest of successes and has been doing the chief work for Astra, which produced this picture. "Big Jim Garrity," "New York Blind Man's Luck" and "The Mark of Cain" may be mentioned as some of his pictures that are known everywhere.

One thing about the work of Mr. Fitzmaurice is the faithful selection of sets and exteriors. Critics have said of his work that when he arranges a setting, no matter whether it represents a palace or a police station, that even the smallest detail will be found right. Reviewers of this production have paid particular attention to the direction.

For Reviews of "Common Clay" See Page 916 of February 8 Issue

You might make an interesting newspaper story out of this phase of the story, especially if you can get hold of a dramatic critic who saw the stage production and get him to write how much more vividly the screen can present such action than the speaking stage.

WE have already suggested that there should be nothing freakish in your advertising and the same rule should apply to your lobby display. We would confine this largely to pictures of the star and scenes from the production. There are large pictures of the star and 22 by 28 colored scenes from the offering that will give you all the exploitation that you need, provided you play strong the name of the picture and the fact that it was a great stage success.

Especial attention should be paid to the music with this, whether you have an organ or a full orchestra. There is a ready prepared music cue, and the screening of this picture will suggest to you numerous selections that you can use. Love music and the more sympathetic selections should be used. The scenes in the cafe call for jazz stuff that any director has at hand.

Setting of this picture should be comedy as far as possible. A slap stick comedy or an animated cartoon will be found full of contrast here. But you are appealing to the better class of patronage with this picture and such an audience will appreciate high grade scenics, interesting news reels and matter that will instruct but will at the same time vary the program.

Vocal or instrumental numbers should be in a love strain, this being again a case where the old poems are the better. "Listen to the Mocking Bird," "Annie Laurie" or "Love's Old Sweet Song" are suggested. Don't get into the "popular" stuff that has a jazz turn. Here is a chance for a presentation that will make people talk about your theatre.

"THE BRAND"—GOLDWYN

A Rex Beach Story of the Far North That Rings the Bell

WHEN it comes to the Alaskan melodrama, it must be admitted that Rex Beach has the edge on the average scenario writer—and a pretty big edge it is. "The Brand" is the most forceful case in point since Mr. Beach's previous big thriller of the north, "The Spoilers." In conception, treatment and presentation it is vastly superior to the usual story of the Alaskan gold fields and dance halls that we so often receive.

Mr. Beach, of course, knows his Alaska and this counts a lot. He dwells on no petty themes, but sways his people of the north by primitive emotions aroused to their highest pitch. Here in "The Brand" the simple tale of a woman who had to learn to love, a big-hearted man who loved, and a shrivel-souled fellow who had no desire to learn, takes on a force almost fierce in the final summing up. Laid, as it is, against the broad panoramas of the snow-fields, and to divert to the particular, in one raging storm, the emotions and acts of the members of the triangle which might appear picayune in fields closer home, take on a significance as vast as their backgrounds.

Mr. Beach's work had the benefit of Reginald Barker's direction, nothing to pass over lightly to be sure, and of three most agreeable performances. Russell Simpson as the old prospector creates a perfect character. Kay Laurell, another recruit from the Follies, has a certain appeal and when playing with either of the other leads, shows a sincerity of expression that is telling. Robert McKim, long known as heavy in Ince pictures, plays his role excellently. Mention must also be made of the photography and the realism of the snowstorm. The technical details, in fact, always measure up the high standard maintained by the drama itself.

If specials are your specialty, to overlook "The Brand" you must shut your eyes.—Length, 7 reels.—Released March 9.—Peter Milne.

THE CAST

Alice Andrews.....Kay Laurell
Dan McGill.....Russell Simpson
Bob Barclay.....Robert McKim
Hopper.....Robert Kunkel
The Child.....Mary Jane Irving
By Rex Beach.
Directed by Reginald Barker.
Photographed by Oliver T. Marsh.

CATCH LINES

Rex Beach's most powerful work since "The Spoilers."

A picture laid in the Alaskan wilderness written by a man who knows as much about the Alaskan wilderness as he does about writing—see "The Brand," Rex Beach's greatest drama of the north.

A strong drama of the Alaskan wilderness, where men and women love and hate with a will—acting on the impulse always—not the impulse of the moment but the impulse of long days of thought and suffering.

He was branded—a cross was cut into his forehead! Why? Because he was guilty of the biggest crime of all! See the answer in "The Brand."

Kay Laurell of the Follies in New York, plays the girl in the case—quite a long jump from the Ziegfeld roof to the Alaskan wilderness, but Miss Laurell negotiates the distance with ease—see her and an all-star cast in Rex Beach's "The Brand."

AD TALK

Rex Beach stories are always treats, so the announcement that his latest Goldwyn picture, "The Brand," is coming to the ———— theatre on ———— of ———— week may be taken as bearing unusual interest and significance to the exhibitor. Patrons of the ———— still remember his last production, "Laughing Bill Hyde," the picture that introduced Will Rogers to the screen. "The Brand" is quite a different type of story. It is dramatic straight through from first to last while the previous picture contained a large portion of comedy. That Mr. Beach is at home in whatever field of the drama he tackles is well proven by these two offerings.

"The Brand" tells the story of a vaudeville dancer, deserted by her partner in the Alaskan mining town of Ophir, who marries a kindly old prospector, Dan McGill. His great love for her takes her mind off her past for a while but it is not a long time before the monotony of a hard winter in the north begins to drive her to distraction—and distraction comes in the person of her partner, who returns to Ophir. One day Dan finds them in each other's arms and, his heart broken, he drives them forth into a raging blizzard. How retribution finally overtakes the intruder, how repentance comes to the girl and a better understanding to Dan McGill are events that are told in the swift-moving, highly dramatic story.

Kay Laurell of the Ziegfeld Follies, is seen as the girl, Russell Simpson takes the role of Dan, while Robert McKim is the heavy. The picture was produced under the direction of Reginald Barker, who has caught the bigness of the Beach story and communicated it to the film in all its original power.

THE STORY

To the town of Ophir, in Alaska, come stragglers from the states, Bob Barclay, a vaudeville actor, who has heard of the gold rush, and Alice Andrews, his partner in more ways than one. Bob deserts Alice to go north in search of gold and she, believing he will not return, marries Dan McGill, an old prospector, when he proposes. Dan loves her tenderly but all his love cannot compensate for the lonely hours she spends in the far north. When Bob returns she begs him to take her away. Dan discovers them in each other's arms and drives them from his home. They are unable to go far owing to the terrific storm that rages and Dan, believing the town too small for the three of them, sets forth himself.

It is the general belief that he has perished but only a year or so later he is revealed as the mysterious owner of a new strike, the man who made the town of McDaniel, the same name as he is known by. To this town come Alice and Bob, the latter now a professional gambler, the former a dance hall girl, due to Bob's tyranny. He tells her to see "McDaniel," with the idea of bleeding him for his money and, despite the heavy beard, Alice recognizes him as her husband. She takes him to see her child—their child—and at the sight of the youngster, Dan works himself into a rage against Bob.

Going to the saloon he drags him from the card game, forces him back over the table and with the sight of his pistol brands a cross on his forehead. Bob is driven from the town by the adherents of Dan while he returns for his wife and child to take them to his home.

SUGGESTIONS

"The Brand" is that type of picture that is its own best advertisement. Booked for a long run, as it undoubtedly deserves to be and will be, the attendance will grow with each succeeding day. In announcing it, particularly if you are giving it an extra-long run, dwell on this fact and on the reasons why:

Because Rex Beach himself considers it ranks next to his "The Spoilers."

Because Rex Beach knows Alaska as probably no author does today.

Because it is of extra power and extra length.

Because it contains three fine performances from Russell Simpson, Kay Laurell and Robert McKim.

Because it was directed by Reginald Barker.

Because it contains wonderful snow-storm scenes.

If you follow out such a plan in your advertising your public will immediately sense that you have something unusual to offer and that you are really sincere in your announcements. Your sincerity starts with mentioning Rex Beach. Everyone knows who he is.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—Lithographs are provided in ones, threes and sixes, while a rotogravure one-sheet is also among the accessories.

LOBBY DISPLAY:—Stills are furnished in three sizes, 8 x 10, 11 x 14 and 22 x 28, all colored.

(Continued on page 1544)

Two-column ad cut

"THE MAN HUNTER"—FOX

No Chance for a Kick Here; Fits Star Exceptionally Well

WILLIAM FARNUM fans, as well as other picture theatre patronizers, should have no kick coming after seeing "The Man Hunter." The story of it is the sort that fits the star particularly well; it gives him an opportunity of displaying his strength. The manly spirit of a hero of this type, a spirit that will stand by right, but will not tolerate wrong, finds full expression in the picture. The hero of it hunts three continents to find the villain that brought him unjust degradation. He overtakes him in a ship sailing around the world. The ship is wrecked, and he finds himself with the villain and the heroine on an island. Although at his mercy, his magnanimous spirit forbids him taking advantage of his victim; but when the villain attempts to harm the heroine, he rushes to her rescue. During a struggle upon the edge of a towering cliff, the villain loses his balance and falls over it on the rocks below.

The two shipwrecked are shortly rescued, and the heroine restored to her parents; but in the end a marriage between them results.

The title sounds catchy and should help no little in drawing the crowds.—Released Feb. 23.—Length, 6 reels.—P. S. Harrison.

THE CAST

George Arnold.....William Farnum
Helen Garfield.....Louise Lovely
Henry Benton.....Charles Clary
Joseph Carbin.....Marc Robbins
Florence.....Leatrice Joy
Written and Directed by Frank Lloyd.
Photographed by Billy Foster.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—Two one-sheets; two three-sheets; one six-sheet; one twenty-four-sheet. All paper serve to bring out the actionful, fighting character of the production to a good degree.

LOBBY DISPLAY:—Ten 8x10 black and white photographs; ten 11x14 black and whites; three 22x28 photographs (colored.)

PRODUCTION CUTS AND MATS:—Eight two-column; four one-column. Although there are a love scene and a comedy scene among this selection the general tone of these cuts again accentuates the dominant fighting note of the play.

Star cuts of Farnum are in stock at all Fox exchanges in one and two-column size.

ADVERTISING CUTS:—These are provided in one, two and three-column sizes, action and fight again being the dominating note in both pictures and arguments.

SLIDE AND MUSIC CUE SHEET also available at all Fox exchanges.

AD TALK

A picture that is the result of such a wonderful combination of talent as is "The Man Hunter," which will be offered at the ———— theatre on ———— of ———— week is worthy of more than passing consideration. William Farnum, a star known for his various powerful character portrayals, has the featured part in this subject, while Frank Lloyd, perhaps the ablest of William Fox's large staff of directors, wrote and produced the picture. In his picture he has provided the star with one of those fighting parts in which his public is so glad to see him. It is a big part for a big actor and it's handled in a big way—and for that matter so is the entire picture. Mr. Lloyd is a man who never stoops to the conventional, the obvious, in his various works for the screen. Originality, virility and an atmosphere of bigness mark all his works. Photoplay followers will remember his hand in such masterpieces of the screen as "Les Miserables" and "A Tale of Two Cities." "The Man Hunter," original with him, is well worthy of ranking with these two classics of literature.

Mr. Farnum has the role of George Arnold, a man swindled of his fortune and who is determined to make the swindler pay. His pursuit leads him across the Atlantic a couple of times, but eventually Arnold gets his free way to vengeance and has the added satisfaction of realizing that his own score is multiplied by that which the girl he loves holds against the man.

Mr. Farnum receives support of the highest order from Louise Lovely, Leatrice Joy, Charles Clary and Marc Robbins.

THE STORY

George Arnold, a wealthy man of London, awakes one morning to the realization that he proposed to a lady of the party he was on the night before. The lady, Florence, is not of his kind, yet the inward honesty and steadfastness of the man lead him to the impulse to seek her out the next morning with the idea of keeping his word. On the way to see her he meets one of his friends, Harry Benton, who induces him to invest his savings in an oil-stock proposition that looks good. Shortly afterwards George discovers that his holdings are worthless and that he is penniless, more than that, that the girl he was going to offer himself to was implicated in the scheme to ruin him.

Benton and Florence go to America and George pursues. Arrived there he is penniless. He goes to work on the docks and soon becomes known throughout the lower portion of the city for his morose attitude and his superhuman strength. Finally he learns that Benton seeks to marry Helen Garfield, daughter of a financial man of the United States. A party in which Helen and Benton are members sets sail for Europe. George ships aboard as a stoker and on the trip over encounters Benton on deck and engages him in a fight. George is cast in chains.

The ship is wrecked and the only survivors are George, Helen and Benton. The latter insults the girl and another fight between him and George ensues with the result that the villain is killed. Helen's gratitude for his defense of her soon ripens into love and when the two are rescued from the island where they were cast they plight their troth. And George is made happy when he returns to civilization and discovers that the oil stock has at least proved of value.

CATCH LINES

A chase for vengeance for ten thousand miles!

William Farnum in one of the greatest fighting roles of his career—if you like Farnum you like fights—physical, mental, moral. "The Man Hunter" is loaded with them—see it or miss a hundred thrills.

From London to New York to a desert island—a fight to the death—the love of a girl—action, action, action—the keynote of "The Man Hunter," William Farnum's greatest thriller.

George Arnold was reduced to a pauper's state in an hour. His millions were swept away—all because of the deceit of a man and a woman—that meant battle with George Arnold and fight he did. See him in "The Man Hunter"—you'll love this fighter as portrayed by William Farnum.

Two-Column Ad Cut

"WHAT EVERY WOMAN WANTS"—ROBERTSON-COLE

Looks Good Enough for Treatment as a Special Production

LET this picture be one of those you choose to advertise strong. You can treat it as a special and get by with it in fine shape, because it has the merits. It is true that it lacks the advantage of a high-salaried star, but it is equally true that its interesting and consistently developed plot, especially its catchy title, more than make up for that disadvantage. Besides, the entire cast consists of screen artists, such as would do credit to any special production. Their acting is never exaggerated; they live their part.

The theme of the story is a love affair. The heroine marries her employer, when her sweetheart, an aviator fighting in France, is reported as missing. The husband soon discovers that sympathy is what prompted him to marry her, not love; so he neglects her. The hero, who was not killed, but was made a prisoner, escapes and returns. The husband is found murdered and the wife is accused of the crime. It develops, however, that he was unintentionally killed by the maid, who was in the act of pleading with him not to give her up to the authorities for a theft she had committed. In the end, the heroine finds happiness in the arms of the hero.

The dresses worn by Miss Darmond are gorgeous; they should help bring in the women.

The suspense in the picture is very strong. It is clean, therefore should have a wide appeal.—Length, 5 reels.—Distributed through Exhibitors Mutual.—P. S. Harrison.

THE CAST

Horace Lennon.....Wilfred Lucas
Gloria Graham.....Grace Darmond
Philip Belden.....Forrest Stanley
Timothy Dunn.....Percy Challenger
Marston Hughes.....Bertram Grassby
Phyllis Miles.....Barbara Tennant
Norman.....Claire Du Brey
Sylvia.....William De Vaull
Mamie Vezey.....Mary Warren
Attorney for Defense.....Charles French

By William Parker.
Directed by Jesse D. Hampton.
Released through Exhibitors' Mutual.

CATCH LINES

Do you know what every woman wants? "What Every Woman Wants" will tell you in no uncertain terms—see it at the ———— theatre.

"What Every Woman Wants." It is love, clothes, good times. See Grace Darmond in the lavish photoplay now at the ———— theatre.

Beautiful Grace Darmond, supported by an all-star cast.

Grace Darmond in gorgeous clothes in a gorgeous photoplay.

In which the mysterious death of Philip Belden nearly brings tragedy to two innocent lives.

She thought her sweetheart dead in France and married another suitor. She was unhappy, and then the other man returned. What was she to do?

AD TALK

Another of the excellent Robertson-Cole featurse will be presented on the screen of the ———— theatre on ———— of ———— week when "What Every Woman Wants" is shown for the first time in this city. This picture is based on a strong story by William Parker, having as its central figure Gloria Graham, a stenographer, just about as pretty as any stenographer could be, which is very preetty indeed. Gloria's love of good clothes sometimes runs away with her better judgment. She forgets that love doesn't always come with fine raiment, and so, after she has heard that the man she loves has been killed in France, she marries her employer, Horace Lennon.

Lennon doesn't make a very good husband. Gloria finds him faithless and discovers that good clothes fail to constitute a happy existence. And when the report of Philip Belden's death proves erroneous and he returns Gloria finds herself in a sorry plight. How matters are brought to a happy conclusion is a section of the story powerfully told. There is a mysterious murder and both Gloria and Belden are implicated. Evidence brought in at the last minute frees them and they go their joint way happy.

Grace Darmond plays the role of Gloria, and besides furnishing a most capable performance looks and dresses her part to perfection. A cast of universal strength was assembled to support the star, and includes Wilfred Lucas, Forrest Stanley, Percy Challenger, Barbara Tennant and Bertram Grassby.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—Two one-sheets, one three-sheet, one six-sheet, one twenty-four-sheet.

LOBBY DISPLAY:—Eight 11x14 photographs and one title card; two 22x28 photographs.

CUTS:—Cuts are provided in one and two-column sizes, while a thumbnail program cover cut is also supplied. A three-column (mat only) is also furnished. There is a good one-column ad cut containing a large interrogation point with the title of the picture written across it, while another shows star in interrogation point.

Slide and music cue sheet also procurable at all Exhibitors' Mutual exchanges.

THE STORY

Like most every other girl, Gloria Graham loved clothes. She was beautiful and she saw no reason why she shouldn't have clothes to match her features. But she was merely a stenographer in the office of Horace Lennon, and her slim pay would not permit her to satiate her longing for beautiful raiment. In the same office with her worked Philip Belden, a true-blooded American youth, who was much in love with Glaria. The latter shared Philip's feelings, though she realized that marriage to him meant a continued unsatisfied longing for clothes. Then came the war, and Philip immediately entered the American aviation service.

Lennon soon began to take a marked interest in Gloria, and even arranged that she could pur-

(Continued on page 1546)

Two-Column Publicity Cut

"THE BETTER 'OLE"—WORLD

Novel and Very Entertaining; Characterizations Good

THERE is plenty of clean and wholesome comedy in "The Better 'Ole," as well as some pathos; and though it appears to drag a little now and then, due perhaps to its unusual length, it should give excellent satisfaction to picture goers of all tastes, because of its novelty. It is different than the usual run of pictures.

The plot is based on the stage play of the same name, now playing at the Cort Theatre, which in turn got its birth from cartoon sketches drawn by Mr. Bairnsfather while serving at the front with the British Army. These sketches had gained great popularity at the time. This plot depicts the every day life of three soldier friends.

Into the hands of Old Bill, one of the three friends, falls by chance a paper giving instructions to a German spy to blow up a certain bridge after the French troops have crossed over, so as to cut off their retreat. Instead of notifying his superiors, Old Bill, afraid lest the military red tape prevent timely measures, determines to take matters in his hands. Before the time set for the destruction of the bridge, Old Bill reaches the secret place, kills the German spy and blows up the bridge, thus preventing the French troops from crossing. Old Bill is arrested as a spy suspect, but when the French General notifies the British General that the courage of one of his men had saved the lives of thousands of French soldiers, he is decorated for bravery under fire.

As the picture has been produced in England, the British atmosphere is faithful in the extreme. The characters seem to live their part.—Released March 17.—Length, 7 reels.—P. S. Harrison.

THE CAST

Old Bill.....Charles Rock
Bert.....Arthur Cleve
Alf.....Hugh E. Wright
Maggie, Old Bill's Wife.....Mary Dibley
Jim, the soldier poet.....Hayford Hobbs
Lil, his sweetheart.....Lilian Hall Davis
The Spy.....Alfred Phillips
Victoire.....Michelin Potous
Suzette.....Marguerite Blanche
The Inspired Singer.....J. M. Wright
The Juggler.....Sid Jay
The Grouser.....Hansell Fane
The French Colonel.....M. Crommelynck
The British Colonel.....F. Adair
The French Peasant.....Fernand Leane
The Great Adventurer.....R. Scott

By Captains Bruce Bairnsfather and Arthur Eliot.

Produced by George Pearson, Welsh-Pearson Film.

AD TALK

The management of the ——— theatre takes a great deal of pleasure in announcing for its attraction for all next week, "The Better 'Ole." "The Better 'Ole"—this title will instantly be recognized by all those who keep up with the times. Firstly, it will suggest Captain Bruce Bairnsfather's famous cartoon of the same name. Old Bill and his comrade are crouched in a shell hole, the high-powered explosives bursting in the air. The comrade has evidently been complaining and it is Old Bill who says, "If you knows of a better 'ole, go to it." This cartoon has been seen by practically everyone in the United States, in England, in France. It sums up the style of all the Bairnsfather drawings.

This cartoon and others of the Bairnsfather series which were published in book form under the title of "Fragments from France," was the inspiration of a play and with Captain Arthur Eliot, the originator of the series, prepared the piece. Ever since its inaugural performance in England the show has been sweeping the world like wildfire. There are now seven companies playing it in the United States alone.

This play was made into picture form in England and it is this subject that will be presented at the ——— theatre next week. The antics of Old Bill and his comrades, Bert and Alf, have been transferred to the screen retaining all their original humor and human touches. With the English and French setting supplied it by the producers it stands as one of the greatest achievements ever recorded on the screen, certainly a reproduction of the life of the British soldier in the trenches more faithful than any other that has come to this side of the water.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—Two one-sheets; two three-sheets; six-sheet; one twenty-four-sheet.

LOBBY DISPLAY:—Two 22 x 28 photographs; eight 11 x 14; eight 8 x 10. These photographs are reproductions of Captain Bairnsfather's cartoons in carbon finish, uncolored so that they may also be used in the making of special cuts.

ADVERTISING CUTS:—Cuts of Old Bill are furnished in three sizes. This is the same figure that has been used to advertise the play. The one-column is reproduced on this page. Smaller explanatory cuts are provided with each of the figure-heads.

PRODUCTION CUTS:—Two three and one two-column cuts illustrating the productions are also provided in mat form and may be obtained at World film headquarters.

Other accessories provided on this production include half-sheet cards, heralds, slide, elaborate press book and music cue sheet.

CATCH LINES

The ——— theatre is the best 'ole in town this week—"The Better 'Ole" is playing there. The wonderfully humorous and human story of Old Bill and the other musketeers of the trenches in lasting form.

"If yer knows of a better 'ole, go to it"—who doesn't know the cartoon that made that saying famous? You'll see all Captain Bairnsfather's cartoons brought into living, breathing beings on the screen at the ——— theatre.

Old Bill, Bert and Alf, the musketeers of Captain Bruce Bairnsfather's "Fragments from France," are in the movies now. They're in cartoon form and are still on the stage—see them at the ——— theatre, now.

"The Better 'Ole," the play that proved the English sense of humor every bit as fine as the American—if you want to enjoy an hour of hearty laughs see "The Better 'Ole" at the ——— theatre.

SUGGESTIONS

The live showman immediately sees a wide avenue of advertising possibilities in "The Better 'Ole." The cartoons of Captain Bairnsfather's have been circulated throughout the country in the book, "Fragments from France," while the play is such a success that the companies now playing it number six or seven. With all this free publicity given the picture it is hard to see how any exhibitor can fail to make money on the production.

Use the cuts of Old Bill liberally because these have become well known used in the exploitation of the play. The stills contain reproductions of other Bairnsfather's cartoon, which will make ideal cuts that the newspapers will be glad to use. Don't overlook them. "The Better 'Ole" is one of those infrequent pictures that gives you the real opportunity to tie up with your local book store in exploiting the picture. Ads placed in the window of the shop along with the display of the book will create a real interest. It would even pay you to secure a copy of the book, clip the pages neatly and arrange these as a lobby display. The various cartoons will attract attention immediately.

You've got "The Better 'Ole" now. Go to it.

THE STORY

"The Better 'Ole" is a picturization in living form of the cartoons of Captain Bruce Bairnsfather, published under the title of "Fragments from France." A story has been interwoven through the series of pictures telling of the trials and tribulations of Old Bill, Bert and Alf, the three modern musketeers of the trenches. Their experiences constitute a story full of humor, the real humor of the British Tommy, the humor of the trenches and the humanness of them, too. Interwoven with their respective careers is the romance of Bill's niece and another soldier and Old Bill's own romance with his wife, Maggie.

The story of the picture can not be set down in detail here. Truth to tell, there is no actual story. "The Better 'Ole" is fragmentary, presenting the humorous side of life in the trenches, and yet withal it holds together in a most remarkable fashion.

Ad cuts

"SMILES"—FOX

Lee Children in One That Sets a Record for Them

THIS is a far better contribution than any one of those released in the past featuring the Lee children. The plot in " Smiles " is more substantial, and the comedy situations more laughable. The addition to the cast of the dog, which has appeared in " Hoopa-La " as well as " The Old Maid's Baby," helps to make the picture more amusing. This dog seems to enjoy acting; he is very intelligent, as he does things no ordinary dog would do, even if trained.

Of course, this picture will appeal chiefly to children, but grown ups should derive no little enjoyment out of it. Besides, when you have a large number of youngsters in a theatre and you get them to laughing with all their heart, adults can't help but join in the chorus.

The picture also contains some thrilling situations.—Released Feb. 23.—Length, 5 reels.—P. S. Harrison.

THE CAST

Jane ..... Jane Lee
Katherine ..... Katherine Lee
Lucille Forrest ..... Ethel Fleming
Tom Hayes ..... Val Paul
Madame Yelba ..... Carmen Phillips
Wagner ..... Charles Arling
Housekeeper ..... Katherine Griffith

Written by Ralph H. Spence.
Staged by Arvid E. Gillstrom.

CATCH LINES

" There are Smiles that make you happy "—that's the kind you'll find in " Smiles," the latest picture of the Lee kiddies now at the ——— theatre.

The most amusing picture in which Jane and Katherine Lee have appeared.

More antics from Jane and Katherine Lee—the only pair that can make practical jokes humorous.

Question: When is it funny to see Jane and Katherine Lee playing checkers on a hotel lobby floor with a high silk hat?
Answer: When the hat doesn't belong to you. You'll laugh at " Smiles "—this is only one of the many amusing things in it.

AD TALK

Jane and Katherine Lee, the Fox baby grands, will hold the center of the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week when their latest picture " Smiles " is shown for the first time in this city. " Smiles " again shows the children up to their usual pranks, this time turned to the patriotic service of running down a pair of German spies bent on securing valuable information in the possession of one Tom Hayes. Tom has fallen out with the children's aunt, Lucille, owing to the fact that he has resigned his commission in the army to perfect a radio process. The importance of his task prevents him from disclosing to Lucille the nature of it and as a result he is obliged to bear her accusations of his cowardice.

Of course it is up to Jane and Katherine to run the spies to the ground and prove to their pretty aunt that Tom is one of the most patriotic men in the world. This they succeed in doing to the accompaniment of the smiles implied in the title. There are not only a bunch of these during the course of the five reels, but a welcome amount of laughs that, mingled with the thrills of the story, serve to create a welcome combination of various sorts of entertainment.

The stars are supported by a cast of capable players, including Ethel Fleming, Val Paul, Carmen Phillips, Charles Arling and Katherine Griffith. Ralph H. Spence prepared the story, while the direction was in charge of Arvid E. Gillstrom.

THE STORY

Jane and Katherine are in despond when their father is reported killed at the front. Alone in the world, as regards immediate relatives, they are sent, by parcel post, to an aunt, Lucille. Children soon forget sorrow, no matter how serious its nature, and before long Jane and Katherine are fairly reeking havoc in the household of Aunt Lucille. This young woman has fallen out with her sweetheart. Tom Hayes is his name, and ever since he resigned a perfectly good commission in the army, Lucille has regarded him as a slacker. Little does she know that Tom has been granted his discharge to permit him to work on a radio invention.

Lucille takes the kiddies to the seashore, there hoping to find amusement for them. And indeed they find plenty of amusement. Their pranks set the whole neighborhood in consternation and everyone about the place finds it hard to lead a normal existence with the children plying their tricks. Secret Service men appear on the scene. They are looking for a German spy by the name of the Gray Swan. They are at a loss as to whether the Gray Swan is a man or a woman, but soon a man named Wagner and an opera singer bearing the ferocious name of Madame Yelba appear at the resort and act just like German spies should act.

The Secret Service men admit themselves hard put to it when it comes to getting evidence on the strangers, but it doesn't take Jane and Katherine long to show them up in their true colors when they start their pranks with the aliens as the objects of them. Madame Yelba proves to be the Gray Swan and a very dangerous personage after Tom's plans. The children's disclosures prove to Lucille that she has misjudged Tom and all ends happily.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—Two one-sheets; two-three-sheets; one six-sheet.
LOBBY DISPLAY:—Ten 8x10 black and white photographs; ten 11x14 black and white photographs; three 22x28 colored photographs.
PRODUCTION CUTS:—Six two-column; four one-column. All cuts serve to bring out the humor of the play.
Star cuts of both leads are also obtainable.
ADVERTISING CUTS:—Three two-column; two one-column. Both pictures and arguments used in these cuts serve to bring out the humorous nature of the picture.
SLIDE AND MUSIC CUE SHEET also available at all Fox exchanges.

SUGGESTIONS

To top an advertisement on this feature you might use a bar or so of the popular song " Smiles." If you arrange your own advertising have the artist fix up a picture of the Lee kids in a parcel post package, their heads and feet protruding of course. Have the package addressed to the patrons of your theatre and underneath a line saying, " a bundle of laughs for all who attend the show " or some kindred sentence.

Of course comedy should be the dominating note in all advertising and the more striking you bring this out the better for your business. You might say that it is the best picture the Lee kids have done recently, as this seems to be the general opinion.

Two-column ad cut

"THE GIRL DODGER"—PARAMOUNT

Author Comes in for Big Share of Credit; Rare Comedy

HATS off to J. G. Hawks, the author. Any man that will conceive such a story deserves the honor. There is enough material in the picture to make three stories instead of only one. Every new situation, every new twist, could form the nucleus of a new plot.

"The Girl Dodger" is a comedy in the real sense of the word, a comedy with strong suspense and some thrills. But the beauty of it is the fact that it is presented in a realistic manner. In other words, although it is hardly probable that such things could happen in real life, the illusion is so perfect that the spectator thinks they are happening then and there.

As to the comedy end, you can get an idea how laughable some of the situations are when you know that the hero finds himself at a dress ball affair minus his pair of pants, running around the hotel in B. V. D.'s, and unsuccessfully trying to avoid prying eyes.

The story fits Mr. Ray better than any of those furnished him at any time in the past; and he is at home in it. Credit is also due to Director Jerome Storm for the skilful handling of the characters as well as for the intelligent choosing of locations.—Released Feb. 9.—Length, 5 reels.—P. S. Harrison.

THE CAST

Cuthebert Trotman, "The Girl Dodger" ..... Charles Ray
Anita Graham ..... Doris Lee
Harry Travistock, "The Gloom Buster" ..... Hal Cooley
Billy, the Gent ..... Jack Nelson
Pinkie le Rue, a Chorus Girl ..... Leota Lorraine
By J. G. Hawks.
Directed by Jerome Storm.
Photographed by Chester Lyons.
Supervision of Thomas H. Ince.

CATCH LINES

He dodged girls—all kinds and then suddenly found himself where he had to entertain Pinkie of the Gaiety chorus! He would have bought his way out, but he didn't have any money—and Pinkie was coming!

A Charles Ray comedy means a string of laughs wrapped around a real, human character—that's "The Girl Dodger"—you won't be able to dodge it.

Charles Ray is the college stude again in "The Girl Dodger"—but the plot's not the usual cut-and-dried thing—marrying the rich fellow's sister and all that—it's surprisingly original and funny! See it and see Charles Ray in the most human role of his career.

Charles Ray is the star and he's one of the strongest rays we've ever projected on our screen in "The Girl Dodger." Take away a share of his brilliance.

AD TALK

Charles Ray will be the star at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week in his latest Paramount-Ince photoplay entitled, "The Girl Dodger." All those who know and delight in Ray's work will have more than ample cause to rejoice in "The Girl Dodger," for it awards him another of those bashful, awkward roles along with a thoroughly human and in many respects original plot. The plots of the Ray pictures are, however, the least things about them. It is the star's long line of characterizations that has brought him his present fame and popularity and to say that his interpretation of the role of Cuthebert Trotman, the gentleman of the title in "The Girl Dodger" is his best performance to date is by no means stretching the point.

Cuthebert, the girl dodger and the stude of the college, is suddenly called upon, through a peculiar series of circumstances, to entertain an expected chorus girl guest of Harry Tavistock, the "gloom buster." Another peculiar series of circumstances brings Anita Graham in place of the chorus girl and Cuthebert gets the identities all mixed. In a highly amusing and human scene he entertains the lady at dinner and—in the way of a cordial—falls in love with her. How the affair progresses to a happy finish is told in "The Girl Dodger" in a most amusing and delectable fashion.

Supporting the star are Hal Cooley, Doris Lee, Leota Lorraine and Jack Nelson. The story is the work of J. G. Hawks, while Jerome Storm had charge of the direction.

THE STORY

Cuthebert Trotman, of Barrytown College, is evicted from his room by the landlady because he persists in spending his allowance on books and not on the rent. He takes refuge in the palatial quarters of Harry Tavistock in the boarding-house next door. Ordinarily Harry would have nothing to do with Cuthebert, but he proves to be a particularly handy person to convince Tavistock, Sr., that Harry should remain in college and not be taken out and put to work.

One night Harry has a date to entertain Pinkie, a chorus girl, in his rooms at a dinner. His mother calls up from a nearby beach and insists that he motor out to take dinner with her and his fiancee, Anita Graham, a young lady of considerable wealth. Harry presses Cuthebert into service to entertain Pinkie and sets off for the party, remarking in no uncertain terms that it's pretty tough to have to dine with your fiancee when you only love her money. An automobile mixup causes Anita to arrive at Harry's rooms for assistance and Cuthebert believes she is Pinkie—also he falls in love—and so does Anita.

Several times afterwards Cuthebert essays to see Anita, but he cannot find her. At last she invites him to a dance at the beach. He spills ice cream on his trousers and retreats to a room where he washes them and hangs them on a radiator to dry. Billy, the Gent, from another room reaches over and purloins the trousers, believing to find in them a bank-roll. And Billy's activities are suddenly brought to the attention of other guests when various articles of jewelry are missed. Cuthebert seeks to find his nether garment and gets in Anita's room. He takes refuge in the closet, there donning a pair of her riding trousers. Harry enters the room and insults Anita, at which Cuthebert breaks out, thrashes Harry and makes him apologize. The moonlight does the rest.

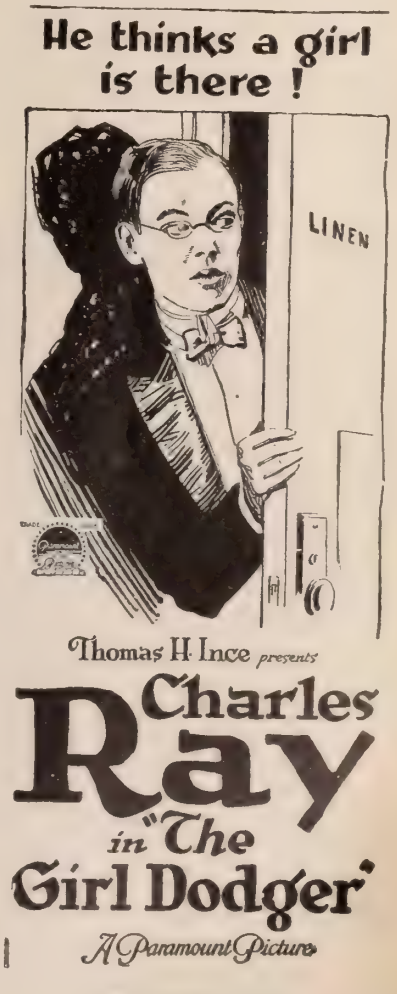
ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—Two one-sheets; two three-sheets; one six-sheet; one rotogravure one-sheet. Average scenes were selected from which to make paper—the real laughs could have been better conveyed.

LOBBY DISPLAY:—Eight 8x10 black and white photographs; eight 11x14 sepia photographs; one 22x28 sepia; 8x10 photographs of star.

CUTS AND MATS ON PRODUCTION:—Five one-column; three two-column; two three-column. Here the comedy in the picture has been brought out to excellent advantage.

STOCK CUTS AND MATS OF STAR:—Five one-column; three two-column; two three-column.



ADVERTISING LAYOUTS:—One three-column; one two-column; one one-column. These cuts are unusually good, containing humorous pictures and good arguments—they are dressed in the usual Paramount style.

SLIDE AND MUSIC CUE SHEET are obtainable at all Paramount branches.

SUGGESTIONS

The exhibitor need not be told the value of a Charles Ray picture, particularly one of his best as "The Girl Dodger" undoubtedly is. Use his name heavily, stress the fact that he is the college "stude" again, but in an altogether different sort of story and dwell on the boy's character, that he felt terribly embarrassed with girls and had one practically thrown at him. You can promise a lot of laughs in the five reels, laughs that will be sure to arrive and make good your promise.

A rather original idea for copy would be to show a picture of Charles Ray with his body bent over, a succession of girls passing over his head as if thrown. Work in in back of him a picture of Doris Lee with some such line as "He was so busy dodging these girls that he never noticed this one." Any such idea that will serve to bring out the comedy of the picture in a new and striking fashion will suffice.

One-column ad cut

"THE WORLD TO LIVE IN"—SELECT

Presents Alice Brady in New Role; Some Situations Exaggerated

IN "The World to Live In," Miss Brady is presented in an entirely new role; and she portrays it convincingly. She is introduced as a heartless girl, who loves the good things of life, which have been denied her; so, among her many admirers, she chooses as friends those who have the most money, to supply her the innocent pleasures she craves. The spectator, however, is now and then given a glimpse of her inner self, her soul, which is clean, kind and generous. In the end, she finds real happiness in the arms of a poor minister, who loved her sincerely and was firm in his belief that some day she would see real light.

Some of the situations are really exaggerated, nevertheless they are none the less impressive on account of their fine treatment. There are numerous spots throughout the picture which reach the heart.

It is a clean and entertaining picture which should have a good appeal.—Length, 5 reels.—P. S. Harrison.

THE CAST

Rita Charles.....Alice Brady
Carrie Billings.....Virginia Hammond
Ida.....Zyllah Shannon
Doctor Varian.....W. P. Carleton, Jr.
Hugh Chalvey.....Earl Metcalfe
T. J. Olverson, Jr.....Robert Schable
The Bride.....Anne Cornwall

By W. Carey Wonderly.
Scenario by Margaret Turnbull.
Directed by Charles Maigne.
Photographed by Al Liguori.

CATCH LINES

She took all and gave nothing—what was her fate to be—see "The World to Live In."

She was a tinpanner, a salamander—neither bad nor good—she didn't know what life really was—but she found the truth in "The World to Live In."

Rita Charles didn't know what love was—that was her trouble—she spent her nights taking all and giving nothing—she thought she was enjoying life, but in reality it was giving her nothing because she refused to look it square in the face—see the fascinating story of Rita Charles as portrayed by Alice Brady in "The World to Live In."

Rita Charles thought she was Hugh Chalvey's pal—and then came the question, could a girl be a real pal to a man? The answer is in "The World to Live In."

AD TALK

Rita Charles is what is known as a tinpanner. By day she works as a stenographer, by night she delights in courting the attention of men—taking all, giving nothing. Hence the title, tinpanner. A sort of salamander type she is—selfish, worldly wise, living to get the most out of life and not knowing how to go about getting it. Rita has forgotten that there is such a thing as love in the world, that's her particular trouble, that's what makes her a tinpanner. It is in this role that Alice Brady will be seen in "The World to Live In" which comes to the ———— theatre on ———— of ———— week. It is her most recent Select picture and is said to be one of the most daring, yet withal innocently entertaining pictures in which she has appeared.

Miss Brady handles the role of Rita Charles excellently, summoning to it all the varied talents that she seems to hold at instant command. She makes Rita a thing to be pitied and admired at once, makes her a living, breathing girl, the sort of young woman that abides by the hundreds in the big cities, esspecially in New York where this story is laid. It was written by W. Carey Wonderly, who knows his locale, and evidently his topic, thoroughly. His story has a number of original twists and works to a denouement of considerable force.

Margaret Turnbull made the scenario from the Wonderly story while the direction of the picture was in charge of Charles Maigne, the man who has achieved such success directing previous of the Alice Brady pictures. In the cast appear W. P. Carleton, Jr., Earl Metcalfe (only recently returned from service in France); Robert Schwalbe, Virginia Hammond, Zyllah Shannon and Anne Cornwall.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—Two one-sheets (one star personal and one scene); two three-sheets (same); one six-sheet (scene) and one twenty-four-sheet (star portrait special for this production).

LOBBY DISPLAY:—Nine 8x10 black and white scenes and title card; seven 11x14 colored scenes and title card; two 22x28 horizontal flats, colored scenes; one 22x28 star portrait, colored, upright (stock).

CUTS (ELECTROS):—Two one-column; two two-column; one three-column, these containing production scenes. Star cuts are provided in one-half, one and two-column sizes.

SLIDE AND MUSIC CUE SHEET available at all Select branches.

SUGGESTIONS

The main character of this production, that of Rita Charles which is portrayed by Miss Brady, may be made the center of advertising and with good results. To dwell on the character of this tinpanner, as the species is known, is, in itself, to create a good selling point. By following such a course you get a little "wickedness" into her character and, at the same time, if you handle the material properly you can counterbalance this with sympathy.

Mention the author's name and the director's. Wonderly is well known in the magazine field, Charles Maigne in the directorial end of the art. Mention the star's stage success in New York, which is one of the phenomenal hits of the season. It is to be hoped that you have used a line stating this fact in Miss Brady's previous productions. It has proven a most satisfactory exploitation angle.

THE STORY

Rita Charles is a $25-a-week stenographer who looks as if she made $100 a week. Her main object in life is to get all she possibly can out of it. She will be a "pal" to any man—only a pal—if he will show her a good time. Rita Charles is one of those girls who are forever playing with fire, but through some miracle always escapes being burned. In ordinary society this type of girl is known as a tinpanner.

Rita—this particular tinpanner—was stenographer to T. J. Olverson during the day and "pal" to Chalvey, a wealthy New Yorker, at night. At a wedding she meets Dr. Varian, a handsome young settlement doctor. He immediately falls in love with her and she becomes deeply interested in him, but as she knows he cannot give her what she considers the all-important thing in life—money—she does not encourage him.

When she learns that Chalvey is about to go South for a year she tries to make him propose, but Chalvey does not think that he loves her enough to marry her.

After having made friends with Olverson, Jr., Rita is told by T. J. Olverson that he does not want to lose a good stenographer because of a good-for-nothing son, and that she should take a month's vacation at the expense of the firm. She goes to Atlantic City. Chalvey follows her and proposes. She tells him she loves another man and cannot marry him. Love and happiness eventually enter her life when Dr. Varian appears on the scene.

"THE BRAND"

(Continued from page 1538)

PRODUCTION CUTS:—Two two-column; three one-column. All contain scenes serving to bring out strong, dramatic character of the production.

ADVERTISING CUTS:—Two two-column; two one-column. Dressed in the usual Goldwyn style and in varying sizes, these cuts serve the same purpose as the production cuts and are backed up by good catch-lines.

SLIDES AND MUSIC CUE SHEET are also among the accessories to be obtained at all Goldwyn exchanges.

Two-column cut

"THE ECHO OF YOUTH"—GRAPHIC

Cast Is Good and Picture Is Unusually Compelling

IVAN ABRAMSON augmented his well known directing abilities by consistently selecting an excellent cast embracing all well known names and every artist peculiarly fitted for each respective part.

The picture is intensely dramatic at times and the necessary touches of comedy in the proper places are capably interpolated by William Bechtel in the character of the old time "legit" actor.

Leah Baird is a splendid "vamp," and Charles Richman registers perfectly as the newly elected judge who is forcibly brought face to face with an echo of his youth which for a time threatens to bring down his house. Marie Shotwell is excellent as the "Grand Dame," and the juvenile part is made prominent by Jack McLean. Pearl Shepard is a clever ingenue capable of portraying all emotions. The story is compelling, scrupulously clean, and has the happy ending.—Released Feb. 16.—Length, 6 reels.—Tom Hamlin.

THE CAST

Peter Graham.....Charles Richman
Olive Martin.....Leah Baird
Harold Martin.....Jack McLean
Anita Graham.....Pearl Shepard
Thomas Donald.....William Bechtel
Ruth Carlyle Graham.....Marie Shotwell
Written and directed by Ivan Abramson.

SUGGESTIONS

Of course the big situation in this picture is the fact that the boy and birl discover that they have the same blood and can not marry. It's rather a ticklish situation, but inasmuch as afterwards they discover their first conclusions were all wrong you can play it up strong and end your argument with a AND THEN——. This will leave the spectator up in the air and then if you have any kick on the moral effect of your advertising you can point to the "and then" as an alibi. However, patrons of the Abramson school of melodrama revel in this sort of stuff, so if you play the picture go the limit on it.

Mention the strong cast that appears and set down some of the most successful of the past pictures that you have played, such as "Enlighten Thy Daughter," the product of the same producer. Those who enjoy the Abramson output will recall the character of these productions and will more than likely be well and ready to see "The Echo of Youth" when it comes around.

An advertisement might be made of the figure of Charles Richman in abject terror. In the background have a wierd looking monster or a large mouth, emitting fire, with the words, "The Echo of His Youth" written across it.

AD TALK

Ivan Abramson's vital drama, "The Echo of Youth," will be presented at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week. This photoplay bears the Graphic trademark and is said by critics to be the strongest picture that Mr. Abramson has yet created. As written and produced by him it tells the story of a young man and woman who fall in love with one another and then joyfully repair to their homes to break the precious secret to their parents. Then through a series of highly dramatic situations it is revealed that the young people are half brother and sister! Revealed for the moment alone, however, for later it develops that the woman who had brought the boy up had claimed him as her son for the sole purpose of exacting blackmail from the girl's father. When the truth comes out all is settled happily.

Throughout the duration of this photoplay there are innumerable situations of an intensely dramatic character. The author's play on the various human emotions is strong, he has builded his photoplay with care, taste and intelligence and he has derived the full strength from the dramatic highlights. In his work he has been aided by an exceptionally able cast, principal in which are Charles Richman, Leah Baird, Jack McLean, Pearl Shepard, Marie Shotwell and William Bechtel while Howard Hall, Peggy Shanor and Philip Van Loan appear in parts of importance.

Admirers of Mr. Abramson's craft will find in "The Echo of Youth" that he has reached heights heretofore unattained. That it will be a success is a point on which everyone who has seen the picture seems to agree.

THE STORY

Harold Martin, a Boston reporter, meets and falls in love with Anita Graham, daughter of a New York judge, who is attending school there. The love is mutual and the two decide to make a trip to New York to tell their parents. But a surprise awaits them. At the height of Judge Graham's career Olive Martin, a former cabaret singer, visits him and demands money for her silence regarding her son. Successful in this she determines to force her hand, to get Graham to divorce his wife that she may take her prominent place in the social world. Her son is none other than Harold Martin but the parents know nothing of their children's love. Olive is unsuccessful in her attempt at home wrecking but she does succeed in breaking into society as a singer. When Harold returns to his home with Anita to introduce her to his mother they find the judge there.

The awful truth dawns on Judge Graham and he takes his daughter home. He confesses all to his wife. Years before he was infatuated with Anita. An attachment had sprung up between them and they were to be married when a quarrel separated them. Anita had gone South and shortly afterwards had written that she had borne Graham a son. Regularly he sent her money for the boy's support. At the same time Olive tells Harold all this. He is horror-struck. At this juncture Donald, Olive's brother-in-law, appears and accompanies Harold on a mysterious trip to Judge Graham's home. There he tells the story of Olive's falsity. Harold is his son, motherless, the adopted child of Olive to make her blackmail easy. Thus the love affair of Anita and Harold progresses to a happy ending after all. Olive is forced to accept defeat while Judge Graham receives his wife's forgiveness.

CATCH LINES

The boy and girl loved—delighted in their "secret" they went to tell their parents—only to be shocked into the terrible realization that they had the same father!—and then, but see "The Echo of Youth," one of the strongest photoplays ever made.

In which the echo of a man's youth comes to mock his ears.

An all-star cast, including Charles Richman, Leah Baird, Pearl Shepard, Marie Shotwell, Jack McLean, Peggy Shanor and William Bechtel —every part a gem in a setting of rare jewels.

Ivan Abramson himself acknowledges this as his greatest work—with such a recommendation need more be said?

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—Two one-sheets; two three-sheets; one six-sheet; one twenty-four-sheet.

LOBBY DISPLAY:—Ten 8 x 10 black and white photographs and title card; eight 11 x 14 sepia photographs and title card; two hand-colored photographs, 22 x 28.

CUTS:—Publicity cuts furnished on this production are three one-column; three two-column and one three-column.

Other accessories furnished on this production are two colored slides; a two-color 14 x 22 window card, heralds, press book, music cue sheets and music scores.

"THE SPIDER AND THE FLY"
Charles Richman and Leah Baird in a scene from "The Echo of Youth" GRAPHIC FILM CORPORATION

Two-column publicity cut

"THE LOVE HUNGER"—HODKINSON

Wild Melodrama, Says Reviewer; Don't Blame Director

THIS is a mediocre offering, for the production of which no one can blame the director. Mr. Earle has often shown in the past what he can do; " T'Other Dear Charmer " is only one example. It is the story that is to blame, which is not the sort that would interest a present day audience. It is a wild melodrama, in which things happen without a justified motive, and contrary to the way they would have happened in real life. The chief trouble of it is the fact that, in putting the story into a working plot, the translation was perhaps kept too close to the outline of the book; and as not all good book stories can be made into good pictures, a wide license should be assumed for making such changes as they would make the plot conformable with the picture requirements.

Miss Walker has done all a conscientious player could do to make something out of the impossible situations.—Released Feb. 23.—Length, 5 reels.—P. S. Harrison.

THE CAST

Fran ..... Lillian Walker
Abbott Ashton ..... L. C. Shumway
Hamilton Gregory ..... Herbert Prior
Mrs. Gregory ..... Lydia Knott
Grace Noir ..... Allene Hale
Bob Clinton ..... Andrew Arbuckle
Jakey ..... William Bletcher
Simon ..... Stanley Orr
Mrs. Jefferson ..... Mrs. Drew

By John Breckenridge Ellis.
Scenario by Arthur Edwin Crows and William P. S. Earle.
Directed by William P. S. Earle.
Photographed by Philip E. Rosen.

CATCH LINES

Fran found that she needed her whip in other places than the circus ring—and, strange enough, where she had most use for it was in the home of Hamilton Gregory, pillar of the Littleburg church!

Another charming Lillian Walker picture—the star appears in a most congenial role.

Fran was hungry for love—she couldn't find it in the home of Hamilton Gregory, but she came upon it back in the circus.

AD TALK

On ———— of ———— week the management of the ———— theatre will offer for the first time in this city " The Love Hunger," an unusual feature picture starring Lillian Walker. Adapted from John Breckenridge Ellis' novel, " Fran," this picture offers the star the role of a supposedly homeless and nameless girl who presents herself at the door of Hamilton Gregory's house and asks to be taken in. Hamilton Gregory is the pillar of the Littleburg church, and has just returned from a camp revival meeting, where he preached on charity, about it beginning at home and all that. And so Fran, as the girl calls herself, is given a place in the Gregory household.

All is not exactly well behind the door at which Fran knocked. Gregory is what many people might call a rank hypocrite. He deceives his loving wife the while he showers affections on his secretary, Grace Noir. Fran attempts to straighten matters out, to smash the third angle of the eternal triangle, but she meets with litle success. And then of a sudden come still further revelations regarding Gregory. Grace, wishing to get rid of Fran, has sent a messenger to the next town to look into her past and has discovered little. What is brought to light, however, is still more data concerning the checkered career of Gregory.

The story comes to a stirring climax in a series of circus scenes. A rather peculiar ending, you think, for such a story. But wait! See " The Love Hunger " at the ———— theatre and learn of the past of Gregory and the hopes of Fran for the future. Miss Walker is delightful in the stellar role, and the producers have surrounded her with a cast of unusual merit.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—One one-sheet; two three-sheets; one six-sheet.

LOBBY DISPLAY:—Eight 11x14 colored photographs and title card; one 22x28 colored scene; one 22x28 of star.

CUTS:—One one-column cut of Lillian Walker is obtainable and may be used in either advertising or publicity programs. Two-column scene cuts are also supplied through Hodkinson.

Slide and music cue sheet on hand at all Pathe exchanges.

THE STORY

To Hamilton Gregory, respected pillar of the Littleburg church, comes Fran, a homeless girl, who has heard of his kindness and who makes it plain that she has come to stay. The home of the Gregorys is not all that it should be. Gregory has no affection for his wife, preferring instead to devote his atentions to his secretary, Grace. Grace takes a dislike to Fran and sends Bob Clinton to the next town to pry into her past. Fran atends school where Abbott Ashton is superintendent and a strong attachment springs up between the two.

Fran does her best to make Gregory get rid of Grace, but to no avail. However, she makes known to Gregory that she is his daughter by a wife whom he deserted. She keeps silent before all others, not wishing to hurt the present Mrs. Gregory, whom she loves. When Grace learns of Gregory's deception of his wife she urges him to leave with her, and they plan to do so when Fran enters, snapping a long whip. She bids them stay, but withdraws when Grace tells her that Clinton is tracing her past.

The circus comes to Littleburg. Ashton asks Fran to go with him, but she makes an excuse. Sickness prevents the regular lion-tamer from performing that night and a masked girl takes her place. It soon develops that she is Fran. The circus has been her past. The lions are restless and it is only after a thrilling scene that Fran gets them under control. Seeing her in this danger, Gregory's heart goes out to her, but he is too late, even though he acknowledges her as his daughter before the crowd. Fran finds the happiness and comfort that her father denied her as the wife of Ashton.

SUGGESTIONS

Display the title of this film prominently, as it has a catch to it and will attract attention. Also run a line saying that it is an adaptation of John Breckenridge Ellis' " Fran," as this novel was popular. Miss Walker's name should have a prominent position. Dwell on the predicament of the central character, Fran, in finding love. Say that she finds it only after the severest tribulations. This will serve to get some sympathy into your copy. The film really doesn't offer any extensive advertising possibilities along other lines.

"WHAT EVERY WOMAN WANTS"

(Continued from page 1540)

chase clothes on his account. The time came when it was necessary for Gloria to make use of Lennon's generosity. The only suit she possessed was ruined while under the pressing iron. This put her in Lennon's control, as it were. Then came word that Philip had been killed in action. Lennon proposed marriage to Gloria, and, seeing a chance to gratify all the worldly desires she possessed, she accepted.

Her wedded life was unhappy, for she found her husband was untrue. Philip, instead of being killed, returned from the war a wonderful speciman of man. He learned of Gloria's marriage and condemned her before learning the true circumstances. He called on Gloria, and while in Lennon's house a short was fired. Philip, rushing out, found Lennon dead on the lawn. Suspicion was cast upon both Gloria and Philip, for it could be proved that each had a motive. Gloria shielded Belden, and was arrested herself and brought to trial. The prosecution contended that Gloria married Lennon for " What Every Woman Wants " and endeavored to prove the motive for his death. Things were black for Gloria, when Sylvia, a probationer who was maid for the Lennons, broke down and confessed it was she who murdered Lennon.

It seemed that several valuable articles had been missing from the Lennon home, and because she was a probationer, Sylvia naturally was accused by Lennon. The latter threatened to turn her over to the authorities again, and it was while pleading with Lennon that a pistol she carried for effect went off accidentally and killed him.

SUGGESTIONS

You certainly have a fine title to play up in connection with the exploitation of this picture. Show it prominently in any sort of advertising you undertake and you are practically sure of good results. Couple this title with the beauty of the star (use her photographs liberally to drive this home), and you will have a display that all readers will find it hard to resist. A good point to feature in your advertising would be to answer the title with a number of questions, thus still further arousing the curiosity. Let the background of your advertising copy contain a large interogation point. This, particularly if printed in heavy black, will surely attract attention, besides serving to drive still further home the significance and mysterious quality of the title itself.

Three-sheet poster

"TWILIGHT"—DE LUXE

Delightful Picture of Youth; Construction Is Good

PICTURE goers ought to receive this picture well. It is a delightful offering, the love of two young folk being its theme. It takes place in a logging country, where the heroine, when a baby, is found by the father of the hero. She is adopted and raised as a member of the family.

Although the story is well constructed and able to hold the interest, it is the splendid portrayal of the heroine's role by Miss Kenyon that stands out most prominently. Her natural sweetness adds to the realism.

One of the exciting features in the picture is a big forest fire set by the villain in revenge. The rescue of the heroine from the house, which was surrounded by the fire, by the hero at the risk of his life, is thrilling as well as inspiring.

The picture is clean.—Released Feb. 22.—Length, 6 reels.—P. S. Harrison.

THE CAST

Twilight.....Doris Kenyon
Jim Anwell.....Frank Mills
Elise Charmant.....Sally Crute
Dr. Henry Charmant.....George Lessey
Jules.....Harry Lee
Kate Anwell.....Edith Warren
Graham.....William Hartman
Hogan.....Grif Davis
Brent.....Charles Brooks

By Vingie E. Rose.
Scenario by Louis Joseph Vance.
Directed by J. Searle Dawley.
Photographed by Ned Van Buren.
Technical Director, Joseph I. Clement.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—Two one-sheets; two three-sheets; one six-sheet.
LOBBY DISPLAY:—Photographs are provided in two sizes, 11 x 14 and 22 x 28.
PRODUCTION CUTS:—Two one-column; two two-column; one three-column.
ADVERTISING CUTS:—One one-column; one two-column; one three-column.
SLIDES AND MUSIC CUE SHEET also furnished through all Sherry exchanges.

SUGGESTIONS

"Twilight" is a love story, pure and simple, although it is backed up by a goodly portion of thrills. Feature the love element, however, and write this variety of copy around the star, Doris Kenyon, as all who have seen her well realize how suited she is to this type of play. Use her pictures as extensively as possible. You can safely call her the most beautiful girl on the screen, if you believe this will have any attraction to your patrons.

AD TALK

On ——— of ——— week "Twilight," a feature starring the beautiful Doris Kenyon will be shown for the first time in this city at the ——— theatre. "Twilight" is an adaptation of a story by Vingie E. Roe, which appeared in the Metropolitan Magazine under the title of "The Alchemy of Love." The screen version was made by none other than Louis Joseph Vance. Mr. Vance is a writer of no mean ability himself. Many of his works have been transferred to the screen and he has prepared a number of original stories for the camera. Recently, however, he has been working in the capacity of scenarist on the Doris Kenyon pictures, a fact which goes to show the talent that is behind the De Luxe product.

"Twilight" tells the story of a girl brought up in the forests and loved by Jim Anwell, a lumberman. She sustains a severe shock and loses her mental faculties and the rest of the photoplay relates the thrilling events incident to the restoration of her mind. Miss Kenyon appears to splendid advantage in the title role, while she receives fine support from such well known screen players as Frank Mills, Sally Crute, George Lessey and Harry Lee.

The picture was produced under the direction of J. Searle Dawley and is one of the most artistic achievements of this notable producer.

THE STORY

Twilight, the adopted daughter of the Anwells, grows up with Jim, the son of the house and grows to love him. At his father's death, Jim takes charge of his forest lands and by his aggressiveness soon broadens them and nets for his mother, the girl he loves, and himself, a comfortable income. He makes an enemy of Jules, a man he discharges from his employ for drunkenness. Dr. Henry Charmant, a noted brain specialist, arrives with his daughter, Elise, for a vacation. Elise is fascinated by Jim Anwell, a type of big man she has never met before.

One night Jim arrives home to find Jules struggling with Twilight. He had attempted to rob the safe. Jim, a deputy sheriff, takes his handcuffs and attempts to snap them on Jules' wrists. One of them proves insecure and Jules makes his escape. Later while Twilight is alone in the woods, Jules attacks her. She repulses him and he falls from a cliff. Going below, Twilight sees his motionless form and believes she has killed him. As a result she becomes mentally deranged and Dr. Charmant tells Jim that only a miracle will restore her.

Jules sets fire to Jim's forest. Twilight, alone in the cabin with Elise, plays like a child with the shadows, unmindful of danger. When Jim enters, Elise throws her arms around his neck, saying she loves him. This statement partially restores Twilight's mind. Elise escapes from the forest, leaving Twilight alone in the cabin. Jules enters to search for the key with which to liberate himself from the handcuff. Twilight combats him and he snaps the other cuff on her wrist. Jim enters to take Twilight away, as the danger has now grown great and is obliged to lug Jules along on his shoulder. He falls exhausted and Twilight, her memory now fully restored, drags him to safety through the burning trees. Dr. Charmant is willing to admit that "Love has worked a miracle where science failed."

In which love works a miracle where science fails.

Doris Kenyon in a worthy successor to "Wild Honey"—another story of the big outdoors—one that vibrates with life in every scene.

Full of the heart interest touches that make the smallest pictures great—full of the spectacular scenes that dwarf the small pictures.

A rare combination of heart interest and dramatic punch.

She was as beautiful as Twilight, so they named her that. See the wonderful love story told in "Twilight"—it soothes and thrills.

Two-column scene cut

"A MARRIAGE FOR CONVENIENCE"—KEENEY-SHERRY

Strong in Action and Character Portrayals

A MELODRAMA strong in action and character portrayals, with the story and plot construction verging onto the "old and tried" in dramatics, "A Marriage for Convenience," presenting Catherine Calvert in the featured role, is raised to a plane of fascinating drama by the good performances of star and support, and the rapid-fire action that comes after the introducing and proceeds through the remaining episodes.

A girl's sacrifice for her younger sister is the general theme and were it not for the fact that the author, E. Lloyd Sheldon, has resorted to old formula in constructing his plot, there would have been no one element to keep this offering from the top rung of the ladder that leads the way to sustaining drama on the screen.

The fact cannot and will not materially obstruct this drama from the roadway to the public's approval. The star and support by finished portrayals of the principal roles detract from this phase of the play and pass it by as a negligible quantity. Miss Calvert is prominently casted and is given a role that best suits her strongest qualities as a screen actress. In the role of the younger sister, Ann May, who is an excellent type and a clever little ingenue, strikes a good contrast. George Majeroni in the principal character role shares in the honors, and Henry Sedley as the villain gives a villainous performance. Blanche Davenport does well in a not-too-prominent part. Edward Burns in the straight lead is not given much of an opportunity to share honors with the others. The direction, by Sidney Olcott, is generally good. Some details were neglected. His night scenes showing a lawn fete were done well. Length, 5 reels.—Joseph L. Kelley.

THE CAST

Natalie Rand.....Catherine Calvert
Barbara Rand.....Ann May
Oliver Landis.....George Majeroni
Howard Pollard.....Henry Sedley
Mrs. Landis.....Blanche Davenport
Ned Gardner.....Edward Burns

By E. Lloyd Sheldon.
Scenario by Bennett Musson.
Directed by Sidney Olcott.

SUGGESTIONS

Center your advertising of this feature around the fact that the girl seeks to avenge her sister's wrongs and discovers that the guilty man is her own husband! This, you will admit, is a situation around which many a strong argument can be built. A good plan would be to word an advertisement carefully, giving no hint of the heroine's marriage, telling of her determination to avenge herself on the man who wronged her sister and working up to your big point slowly, but in short, punchy lines, finally ending up with the line THAT MAN WAS HER HUSBAND. You'll get a lot of suspense and a lot of punch into your copy if you follow this plan.

The exhibitor himself best knows how Miss Calvert's previous pictures have gone. But take stock of this title before you plasteh a star's name all over and forget about that catchy little line "A Marriage for Convenience." It is a title which suggests many things to the reader, which each elaborates on in his mind and which will bring people to your house. Use it prominently, no matter how much you feature Miss Calvert.

AD TALK

Catherine Calvert will be the star on the ———— screen on ———— of ——— week, when the latest Frank Kenney picture, "A Marriage for Convenience," is shown for the first time in this city. "A Marriage for Convenience" is a strong melodrama whose central figure is a girl proud of her long line of soldier ancestors and determined to hold up their spirit and self-determination in her own life. Miss Calvert appears in this role, Natalie Rand, and in the strong melodrama that is written around her does work of an exceptional order.

Natalie's sister Barbara has been blinded by a fall sustained while she was escaping from the brutal attack of a man. Natalie swears vengeance, determines to seek out the man and make him pay. To this end she marries a rich man, considerably older than herself, but one who professes great love for her. To do this she must forfeit her own love and disappoint her fiance bitterly, but Barbara must be avenged. With the money gained through her marriage she is able to send Barbara sufficient funds to have an operation performed which is successful. But the man cannot be found. The guilty party is nowhere until Natalie makes a startling discovery. Her husband is the man!

How this story is brought to a conclusion as thoroughly powerful as its denouement will not be revealed here, but suffice it to say that all those who visit the ———— theatre while "A Marriage for Convenience" is being shown will find themselves amply rewarded. Miss Calvert is supported by a strong cast that includes George Majeroni, Ann May, Henry Sedley and Edward Burns.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—Two one-sheets, two three-sheets, one six-sheet.
PRODUCTION CUTS:—Two one-column, two two-column, one three-column.
ADVERTISING CUTS:—One one-column, one two-column, one three-column.
LOBBY DISPLAY:—Scene stills and star protographs are furnished in two sizes.

Slide and music cue sheet available at all Sherry exchanges.

THE STORY

Natalie Rand determines to avenge herself on the man who attacked her sister, Barbara. Barbara had been lured to a road-house by some man and to escape him had jumped from a window. The shock of the fall had rendered her blind. In order to procure funds for an operation to restore her sight, Natalie marries Oliver Landis, a man of wealth, sacrificing her love for her fiance, Ned Gardiner. It never dawns on Natalie that Oliver is the man responsible for her sister's injuries, nor is he aware of the relation between his wife and Barbara. Barbara is sent away to have the operation performed.

Natalie learns that Pollard, a business associate of her husband's, took Barbara to the road-house and believes him to be the guilty man. She confronts him with a pistol and is threatening him with death when Oliver arrives. He forces Pollard to accuse the innkeeper himself of the crime and then induces his wife to leave vengeance for him. He departs with Pollard and the two men quarrel. The fight ends with Pollard falling over a cliff to his death. Oliver returns to his home and reports Pollard searching for the innkeeper.

Then Oliver discovers that Barbara has returned and realizes who she is. He attempts to blind her by turning on the lights in her room prematurely, but luckily Barbara's eyes can stand the strain. Natalie attempts to shoot Oliver, but he wrests the pistol from her and takes his own life, fearful that his crimes will descend on him. Thus is Natalie avenged, and a happier day dawns for the two sisters.

Two-column cut

"THE UNVEILING HAND"—WORLD

A Melodrama That Often Oversteps Bounds

"THE UNVEILING HAND" is a melodrama that goes so far as to overstep the usual bounds prescribed by convention and which, as a consequence, appears unconvincing when it so oversteps. That these constructive errors are quite frequent, it must be confessed, although in some measure the speed of the action and the unusualness of the theme serve to counterbalance them.

The story, by Mann Page and Isolla Forrester, is woven about a situation that gives promise in the mere telling. The spectacle of a woman mourning the death of a husband (when he is still alive) and idolizing his memory when in reality he is a worthless scamp, contains more than a modicum of dramatic possibilities. As developed, however, its originality and possibilities of dramatic force suffer and one might be tempted to write "average melodrama" after it if the standard of melodrama, particularly that offered by World, had not been considerably elevated of late.

Kitty Gordon has a suitable role and plays it acceptably while a cast that includes Frederick Warde, Irving Cummings and George MacQuarrie renders adequate support.—Length, 5 reels.—Released March 17.—Peter Milne.

THE CAST

Margaret Ellis.....Kitty Gordon
Judge Ellis.....Frederick Warde
Philip Bellamy.....Irving Cummings
Bob Harding.....George MacQuarrie
Col. Harding.....Reginald Carrington
Mrs. Bellamy.....Margaret Seddon
Dr. Wallace.....Warren Cook
Hassan.....Anthony Merlo

Story by Mann Page.
Scenario by Clara S. Beranger.
Directed by Frank Crane.
Photographed by Max Schneider.

CATCH LINES

Kitty Gordon in her best picture offering her the role of a woman who idolized a departed husband for ideals he never possessed.

False genius captivated Margaret Ellis—she loved to glory in the memory of her departed husband—and then this man appeared again!

Is it better to hold a good but false opinion of the departed—or is it better for us to know them in their true colors?—"The Unveiling Hand" answers that question in a powerful and dramatic fashion.

Kitty Gordon in a splendid picture, supported by such noted artists as Frederick Warde, Irving Cummings and George MacQuarrie.

A drama that takes you from a sleepy little college town to the midst of an African desert—surprises, surprises, surprises!

AD TALK

Kitty Gordon will again be the star of the ——— theatre's program on ——— of ——— week when the World release, "The Unveiling Hand," is exhibited for the first time in this city. There is much about "The Unveiling Hand" that stamps it as an unusual piece of work. It was written by those two well-known authors, Isolla Forrester and Mann Page, and tells the story of Margaret Ellis, who married Philip Bellamy, a college professor, because she was urged to by those who believed it would be Philip's ruin if she refused him. She accompanies him on an exploring expedition to Africa, where he proves himself a moral weakling. While exploring a temple it caves in and, on the word of an Arab, Margaret and Bob Harding, her great admirer, believe him dead and leave for home.

In the college town Philip's memory is idolized. He is spoken of as a great contributor to the cause of scientific research. Margaret leads in his praises. Then on the very day of the unveiling of a tablet in his memory—Philip Bellamy returns, a mere imitation of the man he once was. How the story is worked to a conclusion after this terrificly strong dramatic crisis forms a conclusion to "The Unveiling Hand" that is one of its many merits.

Miss Gordon appears to splendid advantage in the stellar role and receives adequate support from such well known artists as Irving Cummings, George MacQuarrie, Frederick Warde, Anthony Merlo and Warren Cook. The picture discloses a varied background while the direction of Frank Crane has much to commend it.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—One six-sheet; two three-sheets; two one-sheets.
LOBBY DISPLAY:—Two 22 x 28 colored photographs; eight 11 x 14 colored; eight 8 x 10 black and white.
CUTS AND MATS:—Advertising cuts are three in number, two one-column and one-two-column.

Production cuts are two three-column and one two-column.

Star cuts of Kitty Gordon also procurable.

SUGGESTIONS

The point to feature in advertising this production is the unusual situation in which the heroine is involved when she proceeds to idolize her supposedly dead husband as a great man when in reality he is living and a cad. Any manner in which you can present this situation so that it will catch the attention will be suitable. It must be admitted that it has a touch of originality and if properly presented it will attract a good measure of notice.

THE STORY

Margaret Ellis becomes the wife of Philip Bellamy, a young college professor and archaeologist, just before he sails for Africa on an exploring party. She has only consented to the union at the urgent request of her father and Philip's mother, who insist that it is her duty and that Philip will never succeed without her. So, her love blinded by her devotion to duty she refuses the proposal of Bob Harding, business manager of the exploring expedition, and accepts Philip. In Africa, Philip proves to be selfish and a cad. When Margaret lies low with the fever he steals the only bottle of brandy and empties it. He then sets out to look around and finds an ancient temple half buried in the sand. Hassan, a native who nurses a hatred for Philip, watches the walls of the temple cave in and entrap his enemy with glee. He returns to the camp and reports him crushed to death.

The explorers break camp and return to the college town. Margaret, though she never bore Philip any real love, now idolizes him because of his contribution to the cause of science. A tablet is erected for him and his name is spoken of in reverence. On the day of the unveiling, Philip returns, a victim of drink and hashesh, determined that Bob and Margaret plotted against him. He makes her life miserable by taunting her and completely destroys her sacred memories of him. She flees from him to a distant part of the town.

Hassan reappears as the servant of a doctor who attended Margaret on the expedition. He sees Philip threatening Margaret and in a rage stabs and kills him. And then Margaret accepts the sincere love that Bob has always held for her.

Two-Column Ad Cut

"PAID IN FULL"—PARAMOUNT

Miss Frederick Is at Her Best Here; Story Compelling

PAULINE FREDERICK, in the past, has been featured in many a picture that has made a hit wi the public, but it is doubtful if any of them can compare with " Paid in Full " in dramatic strengt In fact, there is more dramatic intensity in this than any two of her old pictures.

The story is deeply interesting and impressive. It arouses contempt for the villain and sympathy f the heroine; and as it winds up according to the wishes of the spectator, it leaves a feeling of satisfacti and content.

The scenario, intelligently constructed by Charles E. Whitaker, is based on the stage play by Euge Walter. It is built mainly upon a husband's contemptible act: He urges his wife to dishonor herself, that he may be saved from going to the penitentiary for theft. But the wife would rather die than comm such an act. Such an honorable stand wins the admiration of her husband's employer, who hands her receipt for the amount stolen, Paid in Full. All love for her husband has become extinct, so she leav him with contempt and follows a former admirer who loves her honorably. The husband commits suici

" Captain Williams," the character whom Eugene Walter immortalized in the stage play, is convin ingly portrayed by Frank Losee. In fact, the entire supporting cast is good. The direction also is exc lent.—Released Feb. 23.—Length, 5 reels.—P. S. Harrison.

THE CAST

Emma Brooks.....Pauline Frederick
Joe Brooks.....Robert Cain
Jimsy Smith.....Wyndham Standing
Capt. Williams.....Frank Losee
Mrs. Harris.....Jane Farrell
Beth Harris.....Vera Beresford

By Eugene Walter.
Scenario by Charles Whittaker.
Directed by Emile Chautard.

CATCH LINES

To save him from jail he expected his wife to surrender herself to the man who held him in his power!

He blamed his wife for the theft he committed—the coward's cry—retribution overtook him—see " Paid in Full."

The greatest of Eugene Walter's dramas.

One of the most thrilling battles of wits ever screened—a scene remarkable for its high tension is that between Emma Brooks and Captain Williams when the woman comes to plead for her husband—see it brilliantly enacted by Pauline Frederick and Frank Losee.

A screen version of Eugene Walter's great stage success of a dozen years ago. A photoplay that is as moving, thrilling and potent as its original counterpart—don't miss it—the play thrilled blase Broadway—it will thrill you.

AD TALK

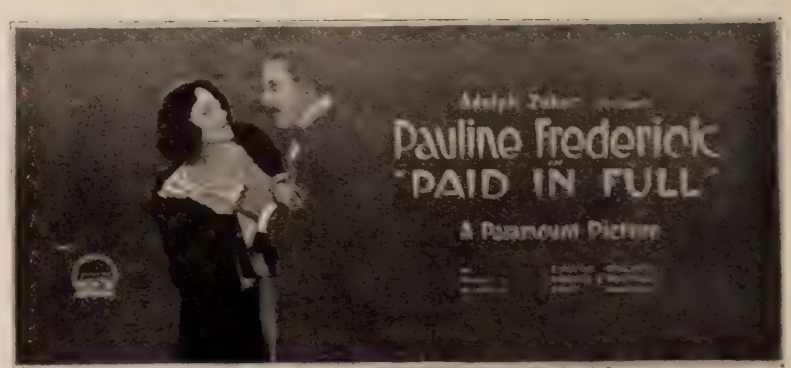
Eugene Walter's celebrated play, " Paid in Full," has been made into a Paramount picture and will be seen at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week with Pauline Frederick in the stellar role. " Paid in Full " was produced as far back as 1907 and yet it is a striking commentary on the real worth of the production that it ranks as big an attraction today in its new form as it was on the boards so long ago. The story of the woman who is sent forth by her husband to save him from being jailed by his employer from whom he stole, holds as highly dramatic and as intensely interesting as ever and Miss Frederick appears to splendid advantage in the leading role.

We will not go into details of the plot here. Suffice it to say that when " Paid in Full " was produced it marked a new era in modern drama, marked a new style of play which has been copied many times since but never equaled. Mr. Walter is one of the most skilled of all dramatists. Other of his works have been adapted to the screen with great success, notably " The Easiest Way," in which Clara Kimball Young was starred. And it appears that each one of them gains in strength in its new sphere of production.

Miss Frederick receives support of the best sort in the picture, the cast including such competent players as Robert Cain as Joe Brooks, Frank Losee as Captain Williams and Wyndham Standing as Jimsy Smithy. Charles Whittaker made the scenario from the play while Emile Chautard directed the picture.

THE STORY

Joe Brooks has never been able to make much headway as the cashier of old Captain Williams and as a result he and his wife, Emma, reside in a poor Harlem flat in New York City. One day a large sum of money comes into Williams' office after the safe has been closed and Brooks pockets it, intending to replace it the next day. However, that night a series of circumstances arise which make him more than ever discontented with his lot and, as Captain Williams sails for South America the next day, he keeps the money and tells Emma that he has had a substantial raise. Jimsy Smith, who has been Emma's admirer since her school days, knows full well that Joe is lying about his raise but says nothing.



When Captain Williams returns he discov the shortage and calls at Brooks' home. discovers Jimsy with Emma and suspects. W Joe comes in he says nothing but before he g out he takes his employee aside and tells him t he knows everything. After Jimsy has gone tells Emma that it is up to her to see the Capt and straighten things out. He robbed for h he says, and now it is her duty to clear h Knowing full well his meaning, Emma visits t Captain's rooms determined to patch up the l in some fashion and save herself.

Her attitude pleases Captain Williams. thinks first she came to sell herself to him when she resists him he declares his faith women restored and gives her a receipt for t

(Continued on page 1551)

Reproductions of paper furnished on this picture

"THE SEALED ENVELOPE" BLUEBIRD

Will Compare Favorably with Many Successful Specials

ALTHOUGH a program release, "The Sealed Envelope" will compare most favorably with many specials for which you have to pay many times the amount of money to acquire. It is a crook melodrama, handled so realistically that it keeps one in continual suspense. Its action is rapid, and as the situations appeal to the emotion of tender pathos, should satisfy the picture hunger of your patrons.

Both the hero and heroine are given human parts, so they awaken the sympathy.

Barring a reference to a suggestive situation, the picture is clean. This reference is made by a subtitle and concerns the heroine. It is disclosed that the villain, a crook politician, had betrayed her; but as no actual scenes of the occurrence are shown, the effect this subtitle produces could not be taken offensively.—Released Feb. 17.—Length, 5 reels.—P.S. Harrison.

THE CAST

Lena ..... Fritzi Brunette
Slaney ..... William Sheer
Biggs ..... Joseph Girard
Gregory ..... Charles Dorian
By Harvey Gates.
Directed by Douglas Gerrard.

THE STORY

Peter James Slaney and Lena, living at the same boarding house, discover between them a bond of sympathy. Slaney has been a master crook and his past comes before him with the appearance of a stranger who tells him he knew Slaney before he "went up." The stranger persuades Slaney to break into the home of John Biggs, the political boss. He offers $2,500 with the alternative, if he refuses, of exposure. Slaney accepts the proposition and is given a sealed envelope with instructions to be opened only in the Biggs mansion.

In the designated room he discovers a child of three or four who begs Slaney to take her away. He takes the child to Lena, throwing away the sealed envelope. Lena admits that she once had a child, who would have been about the age of this one Slaney rescued, had it not died. That night Slaney is arrested. Truman, Biggs' emissary, who has been charged by his employer to get a master crook to secure the return of the child, sees Slaney and obtains his release for the purpose. But Slaney is knocked out by thugs and taken to the county hospital.

When Slaney returns to the boarding house Lena has gone with the child, knowing that Slaney would want it protected at any cost. She is befriended by Madge, a girl of the underworld. They try to blackmail Biggs by claiming the child is Lena's and Biggs is the father. Gregory, brother of Biggs' divorced wife, declares that he hired Slaney to get the kiddie in order to build up a case against the political boss. The sealed orders were to get the child. Biggs in the midst of a hot political campaign, submits. Slaney and Lena plan to go to the country to start anew—to "raise chickens—and everything."

AD TALK

A picture of unusual interest is "The Sealed Envelope" which comes to the ———— theatre on ———— of ———— week with Fritzi Brunette as its star. It presents a story of political and underworld life with a charming romance interwoven and is presented in the best style of that clever writer, Harvey Gates, whose past contributions to Bluebird pictures have been favorably noted. The story of "The Sealed Envelope" opens in that haven of the writer, the boarding house of a poorer quarter of the city. Right here, however, the parallel between this and other pictures laid in the same opening setting ceases. The events which transpire thereafter are unusual and fraught with exciting incident.

Slaney, one of the boarders, is the only member of the establishment who treats Lena with respect. Their affair progresses smoothly until Slaney is delivered a mysterious message. Unless he consents to break into the home of Boss Biggs, the messenger says, he will be railroaded up the river and to jail. After a futile argument Slaney agrees to turn the trick and receives his instructions in a sealed envelope not to be opened on any condition until he had gained admittance to the Biggs home. So Slaney goes about his mysterious job, breaks into the house and opens the envelope.

Now to tell the contents of the envelope here would be to tell the contents of the story, which we do not purpose to do. We will say, however, that that sealed envelope holds a wonderful entertainment for you and if you miss the picture any of the days it is running at the ———— theatre it will not be our fault. Don't forget the dates—or the envelope.

CATCH LINES

What did the mysterious sealed envelope contain—why were its contents so guarded? Secrets for you to discover at the ———— theatre where one of the liveliest of modern melodramas is playing.

He was forced to break into the home of Boss Biggs—his instructions were given him in a sealed envelope—not to be opened until he had gained his position within the closely guarded home—when he at last fulfilled his agreement and broke the seal of the envelope he found—? ? ?

A thrilling story of politics and the underworld with a pretty romantic thread interwoven—Fritzi Brunette and William Sheer are the leads—a fine pair in a fine picture—don't miss it.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—Two one-sheets; two three-sheets; two six-sheets.

LOBBY DISPLAY:—A variety of scene stills from the production and star photographs in the various standard sizes are furnished on this picture as on all Bluebirds. Aside from their use as lobby display they can be employed in the making of any special cuts the exhibitor desires. Title and synopsis cards are furnished with each set to complete the display.

CUTS AND MATS:—Stock one and two-column cuts of star are obtainable at all Bluebird exchanges. One and two-column cuts special for this production are also procurable while in mat form, a two-column advertisement is provided.

SLIDE AND MUSIC CUE SHEET among the accessories on hand at all Bluebird exchanges.

SUGGESTIONS

Bluebird has offered a good title on this production, one which lends itself well to unique advertising. In circulars, heralds, throwaways, the matter should be printed in the form of a sealed envelope. Print on the outside "Don't open this until you have seen 'The Sealed Envelope' at the ———— theatre." Some short announcement inside will suffice. However, this would entail an expense that most exhibitors running the picture for only a few days could not meet. But the same idea can be carried out in newspaper and lobby advertising. Advertisements in the form of an envelope could be inserted with printed matter on the outside of a mysterious character, urging the reader to see the picture in order to discover the contents of the envelope.

As the picture contains a touch of mystery this idea will be by no means amiss. It should prove a good money-getter. Bluebird is usually generous with its titles. Don't let the advertising possibilities in them escape you.

"PAID IN FULL"

(Continued from page 1550

amount Joe stole. Jimsy is waiting for Emma at the door and escorts her home. He awaits outside the Brooks' apartment while Emma enters and hands Joe a receipt. Realizing his true character she leaves him and he, seeing himself as others see him, takes his life and leaves Emma free to marry the faithful Jimsy.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—Two one-sheets; two three-sheets; one six- sheets; one twenty-four-sheet; rotogravure one-sheet. The dramatic high lights are generally well brought out in this paper.

LOBBY DISPLAY:—Eight 8 x 10 black and white photographs; eight 11 x 14 sepia; one 22 x 28 sepia; 8 x 10 photographs of star.

CUTS AND MATS ON PRODUCTION:—Five one-column; three two-column; two three-column. These contain strong dramatic scenes and good poses of star.

STOCK CUTS AND MATS OF STAR:—Five one-column; three two-column; two three-column.

ADVERTISING LAYOUTS:—One one-column; one two-column; one three-column. Dressed in the usual Paramount style these advertisements contain good pictures and word arguments of equal power.

SLIDE AND MUSIC CUE SHEET also obtainable at all Paramount exchanges.

SUGGESTIONS

Unquestionably, the title of this play is a big advertising asset and, combined with the drawing power of Pauline Frederick's name, it presents a formidable card. The play, though produced many years ago, was played extensively in the large cities, on the road and in stock. There is hardly a man or woman in the country who can not remember seeing it or at least of having heard of it. Play it up big then and mention Eugene Walter's name along with all announcements of it, for he is a playwright of no little distinction. If you think your patrons are not familiar with him, mention the fact that he is the author of "The Easiest Way," in which Clara Kimball Young was starred on the screen. As this was one of her most successful pictures it will undoubtedly be recalled by many.

Scene cut

"THE WISHING RING MAN"—VITAGRAPH

Its Naturalness Puts Its Over; Star Is Good

WITHOUT a punch, "The Wishing Ring Man" gets over—gets over by virtue of its simplicity of story, of it total disregard for the highly dramatic, the sensational and the high lights of dramatic presentation Bessie Love's simplicity, her unconscious moods and the realization by David Smith who directed and Vitagraph which produced, saw in Margaret Widdemer's novel, of the same title, not the rudiments of strong drama but the essence of that homely touch Louise Olcott in her fiction, or James Whitcomb Riley in his poetry, made famous.

"The Wishing Ring Man" is not going to hold you to your seats by virtue of its sensationalism, its stunts or its strength of dramatic expose, but it is going direct to the hearts of those who understand the poetic fancy of childhood, the romance that children see in their childish construction of "castles in the air" and of those who haven't forgotten their "Alice in Wonderland" or their strange adventures with "Alladin and His Wonderful Lamp."

Bessie Love's venture with the "wishing ring man" is going to the hearts of the women, the children and those who haven't forgotten their childhood. To those who revel in the melodramatic offering, the stunt picture and the sex problem, there is not much in the way of gratification in "The Wishing Ring Man." Miss Love's appearance alone and her fine portrayal of the authoress' chief character of the little girl who seeks romance and a rendezvous from the straight-laced environment of her grandparents, are sufficient incentives and sufficient reward for any and all who see this Vitagraph offering, which pretends nothing but offers much in the way of wholesome, romantic drama via the screen.

G. Marion Burton prepared the scenario and she has realized the qualities that mean most in the authoress' intentions. J. Frank Glendon, as Miss Love's leading man, is not the type we would have selected, but he gives a good performance. Jean Hathaway, Claire Hathaway, Clarie Du Brey, Truman Van Dyke, Willis Marks, Alberta Lee Dorothy Hogan and Colin Kenny give good support.—Length, 5 reels.—Released March 10.—Joseph L. Kelley.

THE CAST

Joy Havenith.....Bessie Love
Dr. John Hewitt.....J. Frank Glendon
Mrs. Hewitt.....Jean Hathaway
Gale Maddox.....Claire Du Brey
Clarence Rutherford.....Truman Van Dyke
Grandfather Havenith.....Willis Marks
Grandmother Havenith.....Alberta Lee
Phyllis Harrington.....Dorothy Hagan
Allen Harrington.....Colin Kenny

By Margaret Widdemer.
Directed by David Smith.

CATCH LINES

She was nineteen and didn't relish the idea of dressing like a child to be the inspiration of her grandfather's sentimental poems. No more would you. See how Joy found a way out in the charming photoplay, "The Wishing Ring Man."

In which the girl does the proposing—the man accepts because he wants to amuse her and then finds himself completely captivated by her! One of the most amusing and human little pictures that we have presented in a long time.

Bessie Love in the best photoplay she has had of recent months. A charming story of romance and homely comedy and sentiment, adapted from the well-know novel of the same name.

AD TALK

What would you do if a little girl whom you scarcely knew should calmly claim you as her fiance? Just what John does when Joy thus adopts him is charmingly told in "The Wishing Ring Man," the Vitagraph Star Series release, featuring Bessie Love, and which will be seen in the ———— theatre on ————. The feature is from the widely-read book of the same name by Margaret Widdemer, and gives Miss Love one of her most appealing roles.

Joy is a lonely child, who is forced to dress in art frocks and be the inspiration of her grandfather's sentimental poems until she rebels and claims John as her own, so she may make her first visit away from hime. John adopts her as his fiancee for the month and the make-believe betrothal becomes a very serious matter for both, for they quickly learn to love each other, Joy, however, not knowing that he cares for her. She believes he has given his love to a society girl and rather than mar his happiness she steals away in the night and returns to her own home, heartbroken. John, of course, quickly follows, and all misunderstandings are cleared away.

The feature was produced at Vitagraph's Hollywood studio, under the direction of David Smith, and in the supporting cast are J. Frank Glendon, Jean Hathaway, Claire Du Brey, Truman Van Dyke, Willis Marks, Alberta Lee, Dorothy Hagan, and Colin Kenny.

SUGGESTIONS

Bring out the comedy, the homely humor and the sentiment in your advertising. The picture directs its appeal to the finer emotions and there is no way in which you can advertise it as a thrilling producer or possessed of blood and thunder situations. The public knows Bessie Love and knows the type of pictures in which she appears. If you can get it over in reasonable language that "The Wishing Ring Man" is considered the best of her recent work you have done much.

THE STORY

Joy Havenith, though she is nineteen years old is forced by her grandparents with whom she lives to wear short dresses, do her hair up in pigtails and act generally like a child, so that her grandfather may receive inspiration for his crop of sentimental poems. Joy suffers under this punishment and confides her secret sorrows to

(Continued on page 1553)

BESSIE LOVE
Vitagraph Star, in Scene from
"THE WISHING RING MAN"
Two-column scene cut

"THE PRODIGAL LIAR"—Robertson-Cole

Helps You Greet Your Patrons with a Broad Grin

WITH pictures of this caliber you gather courage enough to stand at the door of your theatre and greet your patrons with a smile. It is a thoroughly enjoyable comedy-drama with Western flavor, in which the comedy situations are clean and wholesome.

An uncle's desire to have some fun with his niece living in the East, forms the basis of the story. She is about to visit him in his ranch in the West, for the purpose of meeting some real bad men. The uncle induces the hero, a wealthy young man, to assume the identity of a notorious highwayman. The deception proves successful, and she swallows the bait. She listens to his tales with awe. The real holdup man, however, breaks jail, and as the heroine happens to be in his way, he abducts her; but the fictitious highwayman becomes a real hero and saves her from his hands. In the end, the heroine is told that the affair was staged for her benefit. But she now feels real love for the hero, and as he responds to her sentiments, they become unitd.

The situation showing the heroine hitting the hero on the head with a rock, presumably to cure him from aphasia, as she is made to believe by her uncle, will make a spectator roar from laughter. Length, 5 reels.—P. S. Harrison.

THE CAST

Percival Montgomery Jenks....William Desmond
Jim Rainey .....Louis Morrison
Paddy Donohue .....Walter Perry
Hope .....Betty Compson
Steve Logan.....Frank Lanning
Produced by Jesse D. Hampton Features Corp.
Story by George Elwood Jenks.
Directed by Thomas N. Heffron.
Released by Exhibitors Mutual.

CATCH LINES

Monte didn't want to be a liar, but his partner made him dodge the truth when his niece came to the ranch. Monte was obliged to pose as a bad man to provide local color and excitement for the girl—but she fell in love with him anyway. Fast, sprightly and amusing is "The Prodigal Liar."

Monte told the girl he was suffering from aphasia and so she looked the matter up. She found that a swift blow on the head might restore the reason of an aphasia victim and so one day a large rock descended on Monte's brain pan. Good night! When he came to—that's the part that will be revealed on the screen at the ——— theatre where "The Prodigal Liar" is now showing.

William Desmond and Betty Compson—a happy starring combination—don't miss them in "The Prodigal Liar," one of the funniest pictures seen around here this season.

AD TALK

What may a prodigal liar be? That question is humorously answered in the latest release of the Robertson-Cole Company entitled, "The Prodigal Liar," which will be shown at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week with William Desmond in the stellar role. At all events whether the prodigal liar is good or bad it may be said here and now that the comedy offered in this picture is some of the smartest and most original that has ever been cast on the screen. William Desmond appears to fine advantage in the title role, while opposite him appears charming Betty Compson, the well known serial heroine and comedienne. Her role here is one particularly well suited her talents and with Mr. Desmond she unites to form one of the real pleasing teams of the day.

Hope Deering arrives in the West to visit her uncle Jim. Uncle Jim wants to give Hope a little excitement and fulfill her ideas about the thrills of the West and so he trots Monte out as a bold, bad bandit. Hope surrenders completely to the supposed desperado and when he recounts his wild deeds she almost throws herself at his feet. To make himself even a more romantic figure he complains that he is suffering from aphasia. Hope learns that the way to cure this malady is to deliver a smashing blow on the head of the patient, and one day while Monte isn't looking a rock descends on his placid dome and puts him out of the running for a while.

What happens when he comes to forms the thrilling climax of this amusing feature. We have had plenty of western thrillers and eastern comedies. This picture reverses the order of things and lays its comedy in the West, and the results are more than gratifying.

THE STORY

Monte, a rancher, poses as a bad man at the suggestion of his partner, Jim Rainey, in order to furnish excitement for his niece, Hope Deering. Hope is completely taken in by the trick and, moreover, falls in love with the man she supposes is a ruffian. Monte is for telling her all about the hoax, but as he started lying he sees no other way out than to go on lying. To make his case more involved he adds that he is suffering from aphasia, that he is living only in the present, his past a blank behind him. This also appeals to Hope and she sets about making inquiries regarding the cure for this malady. She questions Uncle Jim about it and he tells her that aphasia victims may have their memory restored by receiving a severe blow on the head. So Hope decides on action.

So one day she seizes an opportunity and delivers Monte a smashing blow with a rock, which nearly puts him out of the running for ever. He comes to, however, and is considerably surprised, not to say rather peeved. He has a bump that feels like the world. But when he comes around he discovers that the real outlaw in the case has made off with Hope. He quickly mounts his horse and gives pursuit over the hills, finally overtaking the bandit as he is threatening to blow Hope's heart out of the world unless she give it to him.

Monte makes short work of the bandit and takes Hope in his arms. After that he has a tall amount of explaining to do regarding his reputation as a bandit, his aphasia and the bump on his head, but Hope doesn't mind in the least. She has enjoyed the trick as much as anyone involved and she is perfectly willing to accept Monte as a normal gentleman.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—Two one-sheets; one three-sheet; one six-sheet; one twenty-four-sheet. All paper very well brings out character of the production.

LOBBY DISPLAY:—Eight 11x14 photo gelatines and title card; eight 22x28 photo gelatines and title card.

CUTS AND MATS:—One one-column; one two-column. Mats provided for each of these. A thumbnail cut and program cover cut also provided (no mats). A three-column mat included in list. These cuts and mats so designed as to be equally valuable in text stories or in advertising matter.

SLIDE AND MUSIC CUE SHEET also obtainable at all Exhibitors-Mutual exchanges.

SUGGESTIONS

This is a comedy with William Desmond, and as Desmond certainly knows how to do comedy you can praise it considerably and promise a good lot of laughs. The story has several original twists in that a college graduate is called upon to pose as a bad man just to give the heroine a thrill. This situation will awaken interest if related in your copy.

Desmond has quite a following, and his Robertson-Cole pictures are building it up. Use his name in all advertising. And don't forget Betty Compson. From Christie comedies to the serial to five-reel features she has traveled and success greets her in each new field. Use her name, for she is also fairly well known by this time.

"THE WISHING RING MAN"

(Continued from page 1552)

the portrait of a merry-looking Colonial great-aunt that hangs in the hall. One day while she is engaged in this innocent confession Dr. John Hewitt, a young physician, steals up behind her and listens to her. She believes that he is sent as her sweetheart and tells him so. Laughingly, he agrees. He departs without telling her his name and Joy gives him the name of "The Wishing Ring Man" because he had told her that all she had to do to get anything she wanted was to wish for it after the manner of olden times.

During the summer, Joy is invited to spend a vacation with a married couple but her grandfather refuses having made up his mind that Joy shall never leave him unless she is engaged. The couple have said that Dr. Hewitt is to be a member of the party and, not knowing who he is, Joy says that she is engaged to him. He enters at that moment and laughingly carries out the plan. But that summer the two fall seriously in love. Joy's only unhappiness is due to the fact that the doctor is supposed to be engaged. When she believes that he does not love her she returns to her portrait and is again pouring out her woes when her hero returns for her and makes sure that she understands he loves her.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—One one-sheet; one three-sheet; one six-sheet.

LOBBY DISPLAY:—Two 22 x 28 colored photographs; eight 11 x 14 black and white photographs and title card.

8 x 10 photographs of star are also provided for use in making additional display, extra cuts, etc. A set of 5 x 7 black and white scene stills are provided for the same purpose.

CUTS:—One two-column (scene); one one-column (scene); one two-column (star); one one-column (star). Cuts are fashioned for use in the compilation of advertisements, for use in text stories or for program announcements.

SLIDE AND MUSIC CUE SHEET also obtainable at all Vitagraph exchanges.

A SHORT synopsis is often required for the theatre program.

Late comers will refer to it to become acquainted with that portion of the story that has passed.

Clip the synopses in the Plan Book.

They are written specially for this purpose.

They are compact; thoroughly informative.

And they are the right thing for newspaper use, too.

In and Out of West Coast Studios

By J. C. Jessen

Vitagraph News Bits

Vitagraph has engaged a mysterious new player. She is Princess Della Patra of Egypt, who arrived in Los Angeles this week, and is now being cast in a new Vitagraph play, the title of which has not been announced.

Earle Williams will soon begin work on a new picture, it is said, the story being from the pen of H. H. Van Loan. Its title has not been announced, neither has the nature of the story been divulged.

Word received in Los Angeles this week from Truckee, Cal., indicates that Antonio Moreno and Carrol Holloway in their new serial, "Perils of Thunder Mountain," are making great speed with production of the picture. Kate Price has joined the company, and last week Mr. Moreno gave a birthday party to the company. Among those in attendance were William Desmond of the Hampton company, and Anna Q. Nilsson of Metro.

The first of Vitagraph's new Larry Semon Comedies is a pretentious two-reeler, with more than seventy-five people constantly appearing in the scene. The nature of the story is a burlesque of serial thrills, and it is stated that Semon and his dare devils, in a spirit of riotous fun, have set a pace to make serial directors sit up and take notice.

Fox Studio Doings

William Farnum has again joined the film colony in Los Angeles. He arrived from the East on Wednesday, February 19, accompanied by Al. Selig, his personal publicity representative. Mr. Farnum's first picture on his return trip to the West Coast will be "Wolves of the Night," which will be made under the direction of J. Gordon Edwards, which incidentally will be Mr. Edwards' thirty-third play for Fox. He directed twenty pictures in which Theda Bara was the star. The locale of Mr. Farnum's play is in a western mining country, with a number of scenes representing mining incidents in Chile. The first scenes in the picture were shot on Tuesday, February 18, in which Farnum does not appear.

Gladys Brockwell is starting a new picture for Fox. It is called "The Divorce Trap," and was written by Jasper Ewing Brady. Dennison Clift prepared the scenario, and it will be filmed under the direction of Frank Beal. It is a problem play. Among some of the most prominent people who will appear in the cast are William Sheer, William Scott, Francis MacDonald, John Steppling, Betty Schade and Melbourne MacDowell. Miss Brockwell plays the part of a telephone girl who marries the son of a millionaire, with resulting unhappiness. The title of the play is "Married in Haste." Frank Beal has been engaged as director by the Fox organization and will be in charge of filming this story.

"Up Against It," the comedy drama in which Albert Ray and Elinor Fair are being featured, is nearing completion. The picture is being directed by Arthur Rosson. Ray plays the part of a young man who has been accustomed to plenty and unaccustomed to work. His wife causes his income to be stopped, thereby compelling the young man to go to work to earn a living. He accomplishes a miracle by soon landing a job that pays him $20,000 a year.

POINTS OF INTEREST

Metro, Goldwyn and Universal Show Great Production Activity

THE greatest production activity at the motion picture studios in and around Los Angeles last week appeared to be at the Metro, Goldwyn and Universal plants, although all other studios reported more or less activity. Madame Nazimova began production on her latest play, "The Brat," while the May Allison, Bert Lytell, Anna Q. Nilsson, Hale Hamilton and other companies are at work. At Goldwyn Tom Moore finished a picture and work on another Rex Beach product is under way, with Reginald Barker as director. The Pauline Fredericks, Mabel Normand and other companies remain active.

Cecil B. DeMille is in the middle of production of the Edgar Selwyn story, and several other Famous Players-Lasky companies continue production. The Vitagraph lot is a busy place, while at the Chaplin studios the camera continues to click intensively on Chaplin's forthcoming releases. Douglas Fairbanks is completing "Something for Somebody," and at the Brunton plant Dustin Farnum is planning production on a new picture. Frank Keenan has just completed "The Gates of Brass," and Jack Pickford, Sessue Hayakawa and other stars at the Brunton studios are busy.

At the Fox lot no less than five productions were under way, while there is more or less activity at the Ince studios in Colver City.

Paramount-Artcraft

Katherine McDonald's newest filmplay for the Artcraft-Paramount program "The Woman Thou Gavest Me," directed by Hugh Ford, has just been completed. The play is from the novel of the same name by the late Hall Caine.

Lila Lee, who has been in Arizona working on location scenes in a new picture, has returned to Los Angeles with the company directed by Irving Willat.

Cecil B. DeMille's new production by Edgar Selwyn is about one-third finished. Since the recent success of his latest play, "Don't Change Your Husband," Mr. De Mille announces that he is striving to make a picture of Mr. Selwyn's play that will surpass in artistic arrangement and story that of "Don't Change Your Husband." Hence, instead of completing the play in the four weeks planned for it, he will probably take five or six weeks to make the picture. Elliott Dexter plays the leading male role.

Douglas Fairbanks' newest picture, a combination eastern and western subject, known under the working title of "Something for Somebody," is being completed at the Lasky studios. Albert Parker is the director. It is a story that opens in New York and has a dramatic—or, rather an unusual—ending in the West.

About Metro Players

Bert Lytell is now at work on his new Metro play taken from two Boston Blackie stories appearing in the recent issue of a popular magazine. The scenario was prepared by Finis Fox, and the working title of the picture is "The Powers That Prey." John Ince is the director, and Alice Lake is his leading woman. She was recently featured in Universal productions with Herbert Rawlinson. Henry Kolker has a prominent part in the story. Lytell plays the part of a gentleman crook.

Hale Hamilton has started a new picture tentatively called "After His Own Heart." It is from a magazine story by Ben Arnes Williams, and the scenario was written by A. S. LeVino. Naomi Childers is his leading woman. It is a society comedy drama, in which the hero suddenly loses his fortune, and then desperately seeks a job. He finds work, but something he has never before known anything about. How he made good is the theme of the play.

Viola Dana, having finished "Jeanne of the Gutter," a story of the Paris slums, is taking a vacation between pictures. May llison is in the midst of production on her test play, "Orchestra D-2," a story by ate Jordon, taken from the Saturday vening Post. George D. Baker is the rector, and prominent in support of Miss llison are Ben Wilson and Walter Per-al.

Here and There

Olive Thomas has finished "Upstairs d Down," which was made under the di-tion of Charles Giblyn. It is a picture de from the stage play by the same ne. She has already begun rehearsals a new production.

'roduction has begun on Clara Kimball ung's new picture, "The Love Quest," ich is being made under the direction W. T. S. Earle at the Brunton studios. e continuity was written by Monty Kat-john.

'om Moore, who recently made a trip San Francisco for scenes in latest film-y for Goldwyn, has completed the play, which has not as yet been named. rry Beaumont was his director. Moore yed the part of a traffic policeman, and vas for traffic scenes that the company ted the northern city. The title of his t production for Goldwyn will be "The City of Comrades," it is announced, a story by Basil King, taken from the Saturday Evening Post. There is a rumor afloat that there will be a change of directors in the making of Tom Moore's next picture, the rumor further saying that Beaumont is to direct another Goldwyn star.

Pauline Frederick's third picture for Goldwyn, now in production at the Goldwyn studios, at Culver City, was scenarioized by Willard Mack, her husband, it was announced this week at the studios. It is from a novel written by George Van Schaick. Hobart Henley is the director, and Thomas Holding is her leading man. Hardee Kirkland has a prominent part in the play, as has also Corinne Barker. With the completion of this film Henley will leave Goldwyn and return East where he plans on making film plays to be known as Hobart Henley productions.

rank Keenan Announces a Splendid Cast

athe Exchanges, Inc., reports that nk Keenan has announced a splendid in his support in his latest Pathe Ex-Selected Star Photoplay, "The Silver l."

he photodrama is from the play of the e name by Edward H. Peple, and the nario is by Jack Cunningham, Frank nan was assisted in its direction by t Howe, and the production was made he Anderson-Brunton studios.

mong the members of the cast in sup- of Mr. Keenan in "The Silver Girl" Catherine Adams, George Hernandez, ald McDonald, Irene Rich, Herschell all and Cliff Alexander.

ille Lee Stewart, star of "The Eleventh ommandment," Robertson-Cole production

Hollywood Hookum

MARCH 8, 1919 NEWS MORE NEWS

Tolerably fair.

Sheldon Lewis is in our midst.

These are the days of income tax reports.

Rumor has it Harry Garson has gone to New York.

Frank Keenan was pinched for conducting a shell game.

Al Selig's in town. He was accompanied by Bill Farnum.

Carl Laemmle is on his way west to rebuild Universal City.

Frank Powell is thinking about hitting the rattler for New York.

Kay Laurell is now listed among the players at the Lasky Studio.

Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran have now been dubbed "The twin funsters."

Lucille Hutton is next to play in a Clara Kimball Young Company picture.

Bert Lytell threatens to buy a hat and quit wearing a cap a day at a time.

Tom Geraghty expected to make the last payment on his Underwood this week.

Sammy Goldwyn Goldfish is expected to be at the West Coast studios shortly.

Jack Pickford was seen with a black eye last week, but it came off that evening.

Betty Schade has moved her make-up box from Mr. Goldwyn's lot to Mr. Fox's place.

Bessie Barriscale and friend husband, Howard Hickman, flitted New Yorkward last week.

Luther Reed has put away the suit of khaki, and is now wearing a white sweater.

Lila Lee discovered a dog on the Arizona desert last week that could wag its tail.

Bill Beaudine has discovered a wax that greatly improved the shape of his mustache.

Jack Pickford threatens to make his trips to and from exterior locations by airplane.

Jacques Jaccard is back from "over there" directing two-reel melodramas for Universal.

Fred Niblo has never found a puzzle he could not solve. He even works them in his sleep.

The vital statistician of U City Zoo reports the arrival of a baby leopard and four baby goats.

Handsome Jim Corbett's Chow dog won't eat except from a plate, and sleeps only on the bare floor.

Pauline Fredricks has graduated from the Tamale eating school. She took a correspondence course.

Joe Rock, who dare-devils in Vitagraph comedies, is to be seen daily going about in a new Stutz.

Seasons mean nothing to Ed LeSaint, for he gets a haircut after every picture he directs.

Dorothy Dalton is to wear some handsome gowns in her next picture which may or may not be news.

One of John Ince's New Year resolutions was, it became known this week, that he would get a shave every day.

Hampton Del Ruth now signs "editor and supervising director William Fox Sunshine Comedies" after his name.

Edwin Carew is suffering from frost bitten toes, but he kept the story warm while at Truckee last week.

Jack Cunningham is now wearing colored glasses with tortoise shell rims; also a black and white collar.

George D. Baker was seen comfortably seated in one of our well known movie theatres one evening this week.

Charley Chaplin is left-handed, but is a regular southpaw artist when it comes to throwing bejammed bread.

Billie Rhodes was on a personal appearance tour last week with "Hoop La" in San Francisco and Bay towns.

May Allison reports a turkey will gobble at the age of one day, and she should know, for she has 2,500 at her farm.

Sid Chaplin on being interviewed by HOOKUM stated that Charley Chaplin had lost money in the past eighteen months.

Al Holubar has been classed as genius who has arrived by the local press. They like the "Hearts of Humanity" he made.

Harry Carey is doing one night stand personal appearance tour to and from Chicago en route by Seattle, and returning by Oklahoma.

Kitty Gordon was in San Francisco last week to see the town and make personal appearances so that the town could see Kitty.

Bill Sheer, jockey, pugilist, actor and producer, is going about in a gray Stutz creation, accumulated since returning from San Francisco.

Louise Lovely worked twenty-six days in "The Man Hunter" with Bill Desmond, changed costumes thirteen times, and began work on February 13.

Joe Brandt has started on a tour of the world or the U. S. to let the exhibitors know just how good Universal pictures really are.

Victor Schertzinger mistook a book of blank checks for notes the other day, and immediately played the piano. The air was "I'm Sorry, Dear."

Scott Sidney claims the best way to make comedies is to sit down and dope out a good story and then shoot it. We'd like to hear other views on this.

While discussing camera matters with Dev. Jennings the other day, HOOKUM learned Jennings is one of the few cameramen who did not invent the motion picture camera.

Prexy Frank Beal of the M. P. D. A., had his mustache, that he never wore, trimmed this week, so the megaphone would fit around his mouth. He is at the Fox studio.

Ida May Park has taken her megaphone and scenario factory from Universal City to Tom Ince's place, and there Ida is going to direct Louise Glaum in emotional plays. Emotion is quite popular these days.

Lynn Reynolds took the weather man's word for it, and made interiors this week believing there would be a leaking of the clouds, but every day there was wonderful sunshine for exterior shooting, and Lynn is off the weather man.

Bill McAdoo has received a bale of scenarios from promising writers which he has forwarded to Douglas Fairbanks and the United Artists. One writer says he will not charge anything for his story if President Wilson will play in the picture.

A. Hull Shirk attempted to put one over this week by getting a bird's eye view of the Lasky studio from an air plane. J. R. Scott, the publishing photographer, was nearly blown out of the machine, and vows airplane work was not meant for still photographers.

Now that Jack Doyle has doubled the price of admission at his well known Tuesday night meetings, and prices of merchandise at Vernon Country Club have soared way up in the sky, many are of the opinion a benefit should be given Jack Doyle and Baron Long.

Nick Duneaw performed his parlor magic trick of bending a dime with his first finger and thumb while standing on the Alexandria rug, and then there was a chorus of "marvelous." Because of despoiling the money, Nick cannot afford to have his hair cut.

Enid Bennett has been playing a scene that shows an old chapel room with an organ that swings on a pivot and discloses a private hidden passage to a secret room. Up to this time nothing spooky has appeared. If Gene Allen were there, he'd report the ghost would walk on Saturday.

Charley Fuir, Bull Montana, Spike Robinson and other celebrities were busy this week conferring with Mrs. Western Union, sending messages of condolence to Pete Gridley (Schmidt) Smith. All sent fifty-word night letters to Old Point Comfort, telling Pete how many happy days they wished him and his bride.

Rumors of the week: W. S. Hart has signed to make two pictures for Mystery Film Company at a half million each, and is then to retire.

William Hart has signed with Artcraft for eight pictures.

Bill Hart is to return to the United Artists.

HOW TO PHOTOGRAPH CELEBRITIES

HOOKUM staff has been busy for the past two weeks interviewing publicity men of the United Artists' Association, and sufficient data has been collected to compile a correspondence course on the subject of "How to pose the subjects for publicity pictures." According to all reports the four celebrities took positions for a group picture according to previous instructions given by their publicity man. The famous line "reading from left to right" had been given consideration. Douglas Fairbanks, it is reported, stood at the extreme left in all of the pictures. In several Miss Pickford, it is reported, took the extreme right. HOOKUM cannot give all the details, but the newspaper artists tell us instructions came to them to reverse the photo in making the cut. The caption was "reading left to right, Mary Pickford, etc."

Index to Complete Plan Book and EXHIBITORS' BOX OFFICE REPORTS

EDITOR'S NOTE—Exhibitors will find here a complete list of all feature pictures for the current quarter arranged alphabetically as an index to The Complete Plan Book for this period, naming the picture, the producer, the star, the release date, and designating the issue of MOTION PICTURE NEWS which contained the original review.

The following also contains our reviewer's opinion encompassed in a brief single line and gives the comments of exhibitors who have shown the picture and forwarded their opinions. And we also publish a final line fairly summarizing a consensus of all opinions received on each picture. As many of the exhibitors do not comment on every picture (merely checking it Big, Average or Poor), we arrive at the consensus not only by the actual comments made and published, but are also guided by the reports from exhibitors who have made no actual comments but have merely checked the box office value of the picture.

All the pictures mentioned are five-reel features, unless marked otherwise. Serials are reviewed also. At the conclusion of this department will be found the "Flash-Backs," being comments on films released previous to December 8, 1918.

PICTURE BRAND STAR RELEASED PLAN BOOK

ADELE (UNITED) KITTY GORDON (JAN. 26).....FEB. 1
(Six Parts)
"Exhibitors who are 'larry' of war pictures at this time need have no hesitancy in booking this for the full run."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"A good picture liked by all and well produced. Big to average business." "Good, but patrons are tired of war stories. Average to big business."
Consensus—"Good picture, good puller."

ADVENTURE SHOP, THE (VITAGRAPH) GRIFFITH (JAN. 6).JAN. 11
"Better than an average picture."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Fair picture." "Star not popular here. Picture not much."
Consensus—"Satisfactory picture, average puller."

AFTER THE WAR (ARGOSY) CUNARD (JAN 26).....JAN. 11
"Timely subject possessing unusual advertising possibilities."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"A strongly dramatic story with star's work exceptionally good, as well as her support. Another good offering for city trade. Good business."

ALL OF A SUDDEN NORMA (EXHIBITORS-MUTUAL) BESSIE BARRISCALE (DEC. 29) .....DEC. 28
"Star plays 'Within the Law' Society drama."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Excellent. Very pleasing. New star for our house."

AMAZING IMPOSTER, THE (AMERICAN) MINTER (FEB. 2).FEB. 8
"Lots of ginger in this one. Star's features better."—M. P. News.

AND A STILL SMALL VOICE (RBSN-COLE) WALTHALL (DEC. 23) (Six Parts) .....DEC. 21
"Walthall satisfactory in drama built on old lines."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"New star for our house. Picture and story excellent. Photography too dark in some parts."

ARIZONA (ARTCRAFT) FAIRBANKS (DEC. 8).....DEC. 28
"Fairbanks slips a cog, but production should please."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Second run first two days big, next two days average. Return date in three weeks." "Undoubtedly the poorest Fairbanks on the Paramount program." "Good; Fairbanks' best."
Consensus—"Excellent production with big drawing possibilities."

AS THE SUN WENT DOWN (METRO) EDITH STOREY (FEB. 10) .....FEB. 22
"Edith Storey in screen version of Baker's play."—M. P. News.

BELOVED IMPOSTER (VITAGRAPH) LESLIE (DEC. 16)..DEC. 21
"Light one with fine photography and good scenes."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Just fair and nothing startling." "Pretty picture. Average business."
Consensus—"Satisfactory picture, average puller."

BEYOND THE LAW (EMMETT DALTON) DEC. 22.....DEC. 14
(Six Parts)
"Entertaining picturization of the Dalton Brothers' story."—M. P. News.

BLUFFER, THE (WORLD) ELVIDGE (JAN. 20).....JAN. 18
"An expose of society's seamy side that is entertaining."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Very pleasing program offering." Average business."
Consensus—"Pleasing picture, average puller."

BONDS OF HONOR (EXHIBITORS-MUTUAL) HAYAKAWA (JAN. 19) .....FEB. 8
"This picture should not fail to please wholly."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Splendid in every particular." "Very good. Pleased our patrons. Big business." "A dandy picture. Very gripping. Best double exposure ever produced. All pleased."
Consensus—"Splendid picture, strong puller."

BRANDING BROADWAY (ARTCRAFT) HART (DEC. 15).....DEC. 7
"Star keeps you guessing in subject which is bound to go."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Good picture. Pleased everybody. Played to good business under adverse conditions." "Big business seven days." "Good, but not up to Hart's pleasing quality. Star remains good card."
Consensus—"Excellent production with strong drawing powers."

BREED OF MEN (ARTCRAFT) W. S. HART (FEB 2).....FEB. 15
"Star registers strongly in one that should please everybody."—M. P. News.

BREEZY JIM (TRIANGLE) CRANE WOLBER (FEB. 23)....FEB. 22
"Shows its age plainly. Hot stuff for hero worshippers."—M. P. News.

CABARET GIRL, THE (BLUEBIRD) CLIFFORD (DEC. 30)..JAN. 4
"The title tells the whole story."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Average business."

CALL OF THE SOUL, THE (FOX) BROCKWELL) (JAN. 19) JAN. 18
"'Wronged Girl' story with few moments that appeal."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Pleased. We had no complaints." "Well liked. Extra big business."
Consensus—"Satisfactory picture, good puller."

CANNIBALS OF THE SOUTH SEAS (EXHIBITORS MUTUAL) MARTIN JOHNSON'S.....DEC. 15
Exhibitor Comment—"Big business. Now in its second week with me and playing capacity. Don't let imaginative ideas account of lack of clothes keep you from booking this winner." "Picture gave good satisfaction." "Held up the show to big business."
Consensus—"Excellent picture with great drawing powers."

PICTURE BRAND STAR RELEASED PLAN BOOK

CAPTAIN'S CAPTAIN, THE (VITAGRAPH) JOYCE (JAN. 6).JAN.
"Popular Alice Joyce in an average story."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Not good. Poor business." "Joyce misplaced. Has no right in comedies. Picture not liked. Consequently business 'flopped' after opening." "Fair. Poor vehicle for Alice Joyce." "Pleased all." "Not so good as 'Everybody's Girl.'" "Average business."
Consensus—"Fair picture, average puller."

CAROLYN OF THE CORNERS (PATHE) BESSIE LOVE (MAR. 9) .....MAR
"Strong story, but a little loose. Muman touches plentiful."—M. P. News.

CHEATING CHEATERS (SELECT) C. K. YOUNG (JAN. 19)..FEB.
"Crook play that gives star chance to do excellent work."—M. P. News.

CHILD OF M'SIEU (TRIANGLE) BABY MARIE OSBORNE (FEB. 16) .....FEB. 2
"Film lacks heart interest, action and suspense."—M. P. News.

CODE OF THE YUKON (SELECT) LEWIS (DEC. 23).....DEC. 2
(Six Parts)
"Outdoor scenery loves this. Plot built on revenge."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Pleased average." "Santschi holds this up. A good drama, not scenic." "Fair picture, average business." "A satisfactory production. Ferris not known here, only through his work in 'The Barrier.' Poor drawing card."
Consensus—"Satisfactory picture with average drawing powers."

COME AGAIN SMITH (HODKINSON) J. W. KERRIGAN (FEB. 10) .....FEB.
"Fits the star like proverbial glove; interest is plentiful."—M. P. News.

COMMON CAUSE, THE (BLACKTON-VITA) (JAN. 5).....DEC. 7-1
"Contains all elements necessary to pleasing entertainment."—M. P. News..
Exhibitor Comment—"Best war picture we have run or seen yet. Drew big business and pleased all."

COMMON CLAY (PATHE) FANNIE WARD (MARCH 2)....FEB.
"Audience will likely praise this Ward picture."—M. P. News.

COURAGE FOR TWO (WORLD) CARLYLE BLACKWELL (FEB. 17) .....FEB. 1
"Star with Miss Greeley offer fine comedy drama."—M. P. News.

CRAVING, THE (BLUEBIRD) FRANCIS FORD (JAN. 13)..JAN. 1
"Holds suspense clear through. Staging well done."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"A novelty in photography, nothing more. Might go tsrong in 'bone-dry' territory as a 'turrible' example of what 'likker' will do to a man. Business was a poor average."

CROOK OF DREAMS (WORLD) LOUISE HUFF (MAR. 3)....MAR.
"Clever story with star in appealing role."—M. P. News.

CROWN JEWELS (TRIANGLE) ANDERSON (DEC. 15).....JAN.
"Critics may find fault with direction of this."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Poor business."

DANGER—GO SLOW (UNIV.-SPEC.) MAE MURRAY (DEC. 9) (Six Parts) .....DEC. 2
"Heart interest and suspense plentiful here."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Pleased big." "A very good picture." "Star not known; average business." "A good clean picture. Should please most anywhere. Six reels a little too long. Could have been put in five."
Consensus—"Fine picture with good drawing powers."

DANGER ZONE, THE (FOX) TRAVERSE (DEC. 29).....JAN. 1
"Melodrama sheds sensationalism, but little realism."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Pleased. Big business." "Fair picture, fine sets. Drew fair for new star." "Patrons liked this one."
Consensus—"Satisfactory picture, good puller."

DAY DREAMS (GOLDWYN) MADGE KENNEDY (JAN. 12) JAN. 2
"One of the REAL artistic offerings; cast excellent."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Star is fine but the picture is too much like Marguerite Clark 'Fairy' stuff." "Apple sauce. One more like this and Madge is finished. Impossible story. Fine staging and photography are all that save it." "Good picture but not star's best." "Silly, impossible story, but beautiful scenes, and star is popular. Big business." "Stories like this don't go here." "Very poor. The worst Kennedy has ever done. The Duck was the star. Story to blame."
Consensus—"Fair picture, average puller."

DIVORCE, THE (METRO) ETHEL BARRYMORE (JAN. 20)..JAN. 2
"Star in a brilliant screen achievement."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Best story this star has had for some time. Very classy picture indeed. Average business daily to extra big Saturday." "The sort of a picture that will fill your house and cure your box office. At least in cities, but possibly will be over the heads of small town patrons. The best thing Barrymore has had in ages. And she makes the most of it."
Consensus—"Excellent production, strong puller."

DON'T CHANGE YOUR HUSBAND (ARTCRAFT) DE MILLE'S (JAN. 26) .....FEB.
"Points a moral to married folk, or those to be married."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"A very fine production. One of the best. Big business." "Extra big business seven days straight."
Consensus—"Excellent production, strong puller."

Exhibitors' Own Box Office Reports

ICTURE BRAND STAR RELEASED PLAN BOOK

RIFTERS, THE (HODKINSON) KERRIGAN(JAN. 6).....
Exhibitor Comment—" Story, star and cast very good. Photography and direction good. Finishing poor. Very spotted and the titles all exceptionally dark, detracting greatly from good qualities of production. A fault that this producer don't remedy, even with all the complaints."

UB, THE (PARAMOUNT) WALLACE REID (JAN. 19).....JAN. 25
" Well produced and entertaining farce of crook sort."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Excellent picture." " Immense." " Good picture, average drawiug power." " A fair Reid picture. Big business."
Consensus—" Excellent production, good puller."

NCHANTED BARN, THE (VITAGRAPH) BESSIE LOVE (JAN. 27) .....JAN. 25
" Has all good points necessary to interesting picture."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Very good. Average business."

YE FOR EYE (METRO SCREEN CLASSICS) NAZIMOVA (DEC. 8) (Seven Parts).....NOV. 30
" Ace high for artistry and star is good."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Went over big four days at advanced prices." " Extra big and big business all week." " Most wonderful drawing card. Well liked. Always a sure hit in the house."
Consensus—Extraordinary picture, tremendous puller."

VERY MOTHER'S SON (FOX) (DEC. 8).....JAN. 4
" Director strikes sincere human note even in war picture."—M.P. News.

AIR ENOUGH (AMERICAN) FISHER (DEC. 29).....JAN. 4
" This should get over with non-critical audiences."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Very good. Big business." " Good." " Dandy picture. Big business." "A pleasant picture to watch."
Consensus—" Good picture with good drawing powers."

AITH (METRO) BERT LYTELL (FEB. 3).....FEB. 8
" Picture with deep appeal and excellent star."—M. P. News.

ALSE FACES (PARAMOUNT-ARTCRAFT) WALTHAL (FEB. 16) .....MAR 1
(Seven Parts)
" Strong melodrama of the spy sort; should please."—M. P. News.

IGHTING THROUGH (HODKINSON) E. K. LINCOLN (JAN. 27) (Six Parts) .....FEB. 1
" An example of excellent production with patriotism uppermost."—M. P. News.

OR FREEDOM (FOX) WILLIAM FARNUM (DEC. 29)....JAN. 11
(Six Parts)
" Picture looks like good stories were scarce."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Went over great. Well liked." " Fine picture. Bad weather but big business." " Very fine picture. Big business two days." "Fine picture but did not draw. People thought it a war picture."
Consensus—" Fine picture, strong puller."

OR THE FREEDOM OF THE EAST (GOLDWYN) (JAN. 19) (Six Parts) .....JAN. 25
" Has features to exploit that should put it over."—M. P. News.

ORTUNE'S CHILD (VITA.) GLADYS LESLIE (FEB. 10)..FEB. 8
" Heart appeal is there and photography and sets also good."—M. P. News.

AME IS UP, THE (BLUEBIRD) RAY-CLIFFORD (JAN. 20) JAN. 25
" Pictures in this class are rarity these days.'—M. P. News.

IRL OF MY DREAMS (ROB.-COLE) RHODES (DEC 15) DEC. 14
(Six Parts)
" Billie Rhodes registers to advantage."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Great. Patrons pleased. Billie Rhodes scored big." " A corking good picture but don't get the money." " An extraordinary comedy. Get it quick before the other fellow." " A real success. Excellent picture. Extra big business seven days."
Consensus—" Excellent picture, big puller."

IRL PROBLEM, THE (VITAGRAPH) CORINNE GRIFFITH (MAR. 3) .....MAR. 1
'Matinee sort of picture; display of women's wear."—M. P. News.

IRL WITH NO REGRETS, THE (FOX) PEGGY HYLAND (JAN. 26) .....FEB. 8
" Clean crook play that should give complete satisfaction."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Nothing big, though satisfying. A crook story with a punch."

OLD CURE, THE (METRO) DANA (JAN. 13).....JAN. 18
" Star's cleverness and much foolishness makes continued laugh."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Extra good. The best Dana production ever played. One continued laugh. Average business." " Well liked. Average business. " Big business." " Very good picture. Big business." " Well liked. Always draws business."
Consensus—" Excellent picture, good puller."

OOD-BYE BILL (PARAM'NT) MASON-TRUEX (DEC. 15) DEC. 21
" Laugh at the Kaiser's expense; film padded some."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" About the worst yet." " Very good comedy drama." " One day cured me. Took it off and substituted ' The Squaw Man.' "
Consensus—" Ordinary picture with fair drawing powers."

O WEST, YOUNG MAN (GOLDWYN) T. MOORE (DEC. 29).FEB. 8
" Situations are unreal but it's a Tom Moore production anyway.—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Well liked. Extra big business." " Picture nothing but Moore, but Cannibal picture held up tht show." " Not his best but held up well second day." " Nothing extra in picture but went over all right." " Good picture. Extra big business." " Good Comedy Western." " Very tame after Tom Mix play."
Consensus—" Fine picture, big puller"

REATEST THING IN LIFE (ARTCRAFT) L. GISH (DEC. 8).JAN. 8
" Griffith strikes human note again—characters all real."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Splendid; typical Griffith." " Great picture and pleased." " Splendid, and Griffith's name brought them, too." " Indeed very pleasing. Exhibitors cannot over-advertise this one."
Consensus—" Excellent production with tremendous drawing powers."

REAT ROMANCE, THE (SCREEN CLASSICS) LOCKWOOD (JAN. 19).....JAN. 25
(Six Parts)
' Romance and adventure story laid in beautiful setting."—M. P. News.

REAT VICTORY, THE (SCREEN CLASSICS) (JAN. 6).....JAN. 4
" Fact and fiction combined in a war history."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Duck this one. Simply a rehash of old war stuff. Withdrew it third day. " If you haven't an orchestra to help put this thing over the Lord help you."
Consensus—" Ordinary picture, satisfactory puller."

APPY THOUGH MARRIED (PARAMOUNT) ENID BENNETT (FEB. 23) .....MAR. 1

PICTURE BRAND STAR RELEASED PLAN BOOK

" Amusing film that also appeals to finer emotions."—M. P. News.

HARD BOILED (PARAMOUNT) DOROTHY DALTON (FEB. 2) .....FEB. 15
" Light story but should please all your patrons."—M. P. News.

HEART OF GOLD (WORLD) HUFF (FEB. 10).....JAN. 25
" Romance with comedy touches and plenty of suspense."—M. P. News.

HEART OF HUMANITY, THE (JEWEL) PHILLIPS (JAN. 5) JAN. 25
(Nine Parts)
" A war subject that should draw larger crowds each day."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Great. Greater than ' Birth of a Nation ' or ' Heart of the World.' Big to extra big business seven days. Will hold over at advanced prices." " Most satisfying picture ever played this theatre. Couldn't take care of the people. Seven days." " Standing room all week, two shows daily."
Consensus—" Extraordinary production, tremendous puller."

HEART OF WETONA, THE (SELECT) N. TALMADGE (JAN. 5) JAN. 4
" The best Norma Talmadge yet."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Extra big business." " Average business. " Big business. Pleased." " A splendid picture well received." " Very good; one of her best." " Always good." " Second run, big business."
Consensus—" Excellent production with strong drawing powers."

HELL ROARIN' REFORM (FOX) TOM MIX (FEB. 16).....MAR. 1
" Full of action and interest; star has human part."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Tom Mix is there with the goods. Big business."

HERE COMES THE BRIDE (PARAMOUNT) J. BARRYMORE (JAN. 19) .....FEB. 1
" John Barrymore and good cast make most of usual story."—M.P.News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Comedy forced and mechanical. Average business." " An entertaining picture that amused and sent them out well pleased. Proved more satisfactory from a business standpoint than I had anticipated." " Average to big business." " Very good and pleased all."
Consensus—" Satisfactory picture, good puller."

HER INSPIRATION (METRO) ALLISON (DEC. 30).....JAN. 18
" May Allison in average romantic drama."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Big business." " Fair. A pleasing picture but not her best." " Above the average for program picture."
Consensus—" Satisfactory picture, good puller."

HIDDEN TRUTH, THE (SELECT) ANNA CASE (JAN. 20)...FEB. 1
" Combination of Western Mystery, Society and Melodrama."—M.P.News

HIGHEST TRUMP, THE (VITAGRAPH) WILLIAMS (FEB. 3) .....FEB. 1
" Entertaining spy and war drama with loads of action."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Good picture, average business." " Star's name got an average opening. Buried all photos pertaining to war. An excellent picture but war pictures are impossible."
Consensus—" Fine picture, good puller."

HIS PARISIAN WIFE (ARTCRAFT) FERGUSON (JAN. 19)..FEB. 8
" Elsie Ferguson has never appeared to better advantage."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Only fair. Star is pretty but not a drawing card. " Average business." " Ferguson's best. Went over big. They all liked it." " Very fair picture. No one but Ferguson could get it over." " Excellent in detail. Good story. Most satisfactory. Extra big business seven days."
Consensus—" Satisfactory picture, good puller."

HITTING THE HIGH SPOTS (METRO) LYTELL (DEC. 9).DEC. 21
" Comedy near the end saves this picture."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Excellent picture. Pleased patrons. " We never showed a picture that pleased more. A wonderful picture." " A good picture, well liked. Good business. Star well liked in these parts."
Consensus—" Excellent picture with strong drawing powers."

HOOP-LA (ROBERTSON-COLE) BILLIE RHODES (JAN. 26) FEB. 22
"Another boost for Billie Rhodes; Clean comedy."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—Good. Star and picture well liked by our patrons."

HOPE CHEST, THE (PARAMOUNT) D. GISH (DEC. 29).....JAN. 4
" A human little story that will please."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Very nice picture. In a class by herself and very well liked. Story very good." " Very good indeed. Dorothy Gish will bring in the money after a few more like this." " My people still talking about this one. A dandy comedy with heart interest. Keep Gish in this line of stuff and Pickford can say good-bye to us and we will not shed copious tears."
Consensus—" Satisfactory picture, good puller."

I'LL SAY SO (FOX) GEORGE WALSH (DEC. 22).....NOV. 16
" Walsh fans will like it but it contains no other appealing elements.—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Big business." " Cleaned up. Broke our house records." " Good. Sub-titles great. Big business." " Fair picture. Other attractions outdrew it. This star has lost ground." " Good picture. Average business." " Very good. A regular Walsh picture. Big business."
Consensus—" Good picture with strong drawing powers."

INDESTRUCTIBLE WIFE, THE (SELECT) ALICE BRADY (JAN. 26) .....MAR. 1
" A regular matinee picture. Go easy."—M. P. News.

IN FOR THIRTY DAYS (METRO) ALLISON (JAN. 27).....JAN. 25
"An obvious comedy, but one which gets the laughs."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Good program picture to average business."

IN THE HOLLOW OF HER HAND (SELECT) BRADY (DEC. 29) .....JAN. 11
" All things unite to make this Brady triumph."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Drew well; only fair as to pleasing." " Good picture, good story, average business."
Consensus—" Fine picture, good puller."

IRISH EYES (TRIANGLE) STARKE (DEC. 15).....DEC. 21
" Opinion may vary in regard to this as entertainment."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Average business."

I WANT TO FORGET (FOX) NESBIT (DEC. 15).....JAN. 4
" Second Nesbit vehicle is ordinary spy melodrama."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Well named. We all want to forget. Average business." " Fair program picture. Should not be classed as a standard." " It got by very well to average business."
Consensus—" Fair picture, average puller."

JANE GOES A-WOOING (PARAMOUNT) MARTIN (JAN. 5).JAN. 18
" Care given in producing it but story is not unusual."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—" Average business." " Pleasing production. Story rather weak. Has been in better ones." " Nice picture. Pleased majority. Vivian Martin becoming better liked."
Consensus—" Fair picture, average puller."

The Index to The Complete Plan Boo

PICTURE BRAND STAR RELEASED PLAN BOOK

JOHNNY-ON-THE-SPOT (METRO) HALE HAMILTON (FEB. 17) ..... MAR. 1
"Average comedy drama made interesting because of star."—M. P. News.

KEY TO POWER, THE (EDUCATIONAL) (DEC. 22)..... DEC. 14
(Six Parts)
"Human touches make this interesting."—M. P. News

LADY'S NAME, A (SELECT) C. TALMADGE (DEC. 9)..... DEC. 28
"Polite comedy of this popular star's type."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Stories like this are always welcome. Extra big business." "Very good picture. Big and extra big business."
Consensus—"Fine picture, strong puller."

LAW THAT DIVIDES, THE (HODKINSON) KATHLEEN CLIFFORD (JAN. 20) .....
Exhibitor Comment—"Big business. Good program picture. Many favorable comments. Good story."

LIFE'S A FUNNY PROPOSITION (EXHIBITORS' MUTUAL) WILLIAM DESMOND (JAN. 6)..... FEB. 22
Exhibitor Comment—"Star is new in our house. Average business. A clean picture, well liked."

LIGHT OF WESTERN STARS, THE (UNITED) DUSTIN FARNUM (JAN. 5) ..... OCT. 26
"Works up well in rugged outdoor atmosphere."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Big business seven days." "Good picture." "Big business." "Very good picture. Big business three days." "Broke all records both days. Run continuous. Couldn't handle them." "Sorry I could not hold it longer. Extra big business." "Fine picture. Big business."
Consensus—"Excellent picture, big puller."

LIGHT, THE (FOX) THEDA BARA (JAN. 12)..... JAN. 25
"Bara has best story in a good while; of vampire type."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"'Flu' scare affecting business. Average to big."

LION AND THE MOUSE, THE (VITAGRAPH) JOYCE (FEB. 24) ..... FEB. 22
(Six Parts)
"A special of the full-blooded variety."—M. P. News.

LITTLE MISS HOOVER (PARAMOUNT) CLARK (DEC. 29). JAN. 4
"Miss Clark's charm in a pleasing setting."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Average picture. Her other pictures have hurt her as a drawing card and this one didn't get over real good." "Nothing to enthuse over. Somebody ought to give Marguerite Clark a story with some meat on it. Too obvious and somewhat cheap ideas."
Consensus—"Fair picture with good drawing powers."

LITTLE ORPHANT ANNIE (PIONEER) COLEEN MOORE (DEC. 22) (Six Parts) ..... DEC. 21
"They don't make them more touching than this one."—M. P. News.

LITTLE WHITE SAVAGE, A (BLUEBIRD) CARMEL MYERS (F5B. 24) ..... MAR. 1
"Story handled skillfully; holds interest throughout."—M. P. News.

LITTLE WOMEN (W. A. BRADY-PARAMOUNT) JAN. 5..... NOV. 23
(Six Parts)
"This attraction will appeal chiefly to the literary element."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"One of the cleanest pictures ever made. Thoroughly enjoyed by patrons." "Artcraft sent our mailing list letters. This brought out a big house for the first night. Picture pleased some, but majority didn't enjoy it. After it got noised around our second day was poor. Perhaps it is a fine picture, but we can't see it here. Since playing it we have heard many complimentary remarks for it." "Given special treatment and this picture is a winner. Worked the churches and schools and turned them away. Great chance for a good musical director to put this picture over."
Consensus—"Fine picture, good puller."

LONG LANE'S TURNING, THE (ROBERTSON-COLE) HENRY B. WALTHALL (FEB. 10)..... FEB. 22
"Story improbable but should please great number of fans."—M. P. News.

LOVE AUCTION, THE (FOX) PEARSON (FEB. 9)..... FEB. 22
"Charged with high power emotionalism."—M. P. News.

LOVE IN A HURRY (WORLD) BLACKWELL (JAN. 13)..... JAN. 11
"Nice romance against background of sane spy drama."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Got by and that's all." "Big to average business."
Consensus—"Pleasing picture, average puller."

LOVE NET, THE (WORLD) MADGE EVANS (DEC. 30)... DEC. 21
"Star in story of childhood and second childhood."—M. P. News.

LOVE'S PAY-DAY (Triangle) MORRISON-THEBY (DEC. 1).. DEC. 7
"Characters fail to win sympathy but production work is good."—M. P. News.

LUCK AND PLUCK (FOX) GEORGE WALSH (FEB. 2)..... FEB. 15
"Stunts and Speed Characterize star's latest."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Walsh dandy. Played to big audience. Brought this star back to popularity. Extra big business two days." "Average business."
Consensus—"Fine picture. Strong puller."

MADE IN AMERICA (HODKINSON) (FEB. 16..... MAR. 1
(Eight Parts)
"Shows making of American soldier, stages of training."—M. P. News.

MAGGIE PEPPER (PARAMOUNT) ETHEL CLAYTON (FEB. 23) ..... FEB. 22
"Reviewer thinks it will cause walls to bulge."—M. P. News.

MANDARIN'S GOLD (WORLD) KITTY GORDON (FEB. 10).. FEB. 8
"Well cast drama sustained by expert handling and unusual atmosphere."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"A god story capably handled by the gorgeously gowned Kittie. And her support was satisfactory. It pleased our patrons, and that's what we are in business for. Big business."

MAN OF BRONZE, THE (WORLD) STONE (DEC. 9)..... DEC. 21
"Another Stone picture presenting appealing story."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Average business." "Very good. Pleasing. Business hurt by 'flu.'"
Consensus—"Good picture with average drawing powers."

MAN IN THE OPEN, A (UNITED) DUSTIN FARNUM (FEB. 23) ..... FEB. 15
(Six Parts) "Star's second 'United' big in every respect."—M.P.News.

MAN WHO WOULDN'T TELL (VITA) WILLIAMS (DEC. 9) DEC. 14
"Here's a spy subject that should deliver goods."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Pleasing picture." "Pleased immensely." "Extra big business." "People tired of war pictures." "Very good. Big business." "Poor business." "Pleasant picture to watch."
Consensus—"Fine picture with good drawing powers."

PICTURE BRAND STAR RELEASED PLAN BO

MIDNIGHT PATROL, THE (SELECT) INCE CAST (FEB. 3) FEB
"Production of high quality. Strong action story."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Big business seven days."

MIDNIGHT STAGE, THE (PATHE) KEENAN (JAN. 12)..... JAN
"Powerful Western with Keenan in dual role."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Attendance better than average considering o influenza scare. Production excellent. Star at his best. Photograph direction and scenes of the best. Action tense, gripping, and ve realistic. Entire week." "Big business."
Consensus—"Excellent picture, strong puller."

MILLIONAIRE PIRATE, THE (BLUEBIRD) MONROE SALISBURY (FEB. 10) ..... FEB
"Story of impossible kind, but good acting puts it over."—M. P. New

MOLLY OF THE FOLLIES (AMERICAN) MARGARITA FISHER (FEB. 16) ..... FEB
"Should prove entertaining to all; clean theme."—M. P. News.

MORAL DEADLINE, THE (WORLD) JUNE ELVIDGE (FEB. 24) ..... FEB
"Familiar yet appealing plot is basis of star's vehicle."—M. P. News

MRS. WIGGS OF THE CABBAGE PATCH (PARAMOUNT) MARGUERITE CLARK (FEB. 9)..... MAI
"This is Miss Clark's best picture in a long time."—M. P. News.

MYSTERY GIRL, THE (PARAMOUNT) CLAYTON (DEC. 27). DE
"One for the imagination with lots of real entertainment."—M. P. New Exhibitor Comment—"Fair picture to average business." "Poor bus ness." "Very good. Big business." "Hard to understand. St good. Badly put together. O. K. after one and a half reels "It pleased, but is not one of Miss Clayton's best hits." "Not up the Paramount standard. This is one of Paramount's ten per ce mediocre."
Consensus—"Good picture with good drawing powers."

NARROW PATH, THE (PATHE) FANNIE WARD (DEC. 15).. DE
"One of the 'wronged girls' kind with no appeal to emotions."—M. P News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Very good picture." "Big business."
Consensus—"Fine picture. Big puller."

NATURE GIRL, THE (BLUEBIRD) MESERAU (JAN. 6).... JA
"Above the average—exteriors delight to the eye."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Average business."

OH, JOHNNY (GOLDWYN) BENNISON (JAN. 19)..... FEB
"Comedy of contrasts marks Louis Bennison's screen debut."—M.P.New Exhibitor Comment—"New star made impression." Big business "New star went nicely. They liked him." "Pleased all. Go drawing card. Big business two days." "Very good, but star unknown. He should become very popular."
Consensus—"Fine picture, big puller."

OLD MAID'S BABY, THE (PATHE) BABY MARIE OSBORNE (FEB. 23) ..... FEB
"Weak story that little star handles well; should please."—M. P. New

ONCE TO EVERY MAN (FROHMAN) SHERRILL (DEC. 29). DEC
(Six Parts)
"Starts and ends in fight with many punches between."—M. P. New

OUR TEDDY (FIRST NATIONAL) ROOSEVELT FILM (JAN. 19) (Six Parts) ..... FE
"Entertaining to unusual degree; thrills enough for anyone."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Fair picture. Did not run it second day." "W a disappointment. William Nigh, director, did not maintain his hig standing on 'Four Years in Germany.' Will require hard work put it over. Average business."
Consensus—"Ordinary production, average puller."

OUT OF THE FOG (METRO) NAZIMOVA (FEB. 17)..... FEB
(Seven Parts)
"A triumph of the Pictorial Art."—M. P. News.

OUT OF THE SHADOW (PARAMOUNT) FREDERICK (J 5) ..... JAN.
"Star strikes good one after several months."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Very fair production. Better than the last t she has had." "Drew well. Fine picture." "The best showi Pauline Fredericks has made for months. The story is good, with t suspense element in evidence."
Consensus—"Satisfactory picture, good puller."

PEGGY DOES HER DARNDEST (METRO) ALLISON (FEB. 24) ..... MA
"A May Allison comedy that registers nicely."—M. P. News.

PERFECT LADY, A (GOLDWYN) KENNEDY (DEC. 8)..... DEC
"Star blends the tear and the smile delightfully."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Splendid picture that any place bothered wi local censorship should see." "Everybody enjoyed it. Great bu ness." "Well liked, but didn't draw as well as we expected."
Consensus—"Excellent picture with fine drawing powers."

POOR RICH MAN (METRO) BUSHMAN-BAYNE (DEC. 28).. JA
"Two stars in a rather sluggish comedy-drama."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Pleased. Average business first day, extra b Saturday." "Average picture. Stars help to put it over. Extra bi average to big in three days." "The best made by these people f ages. Pleased everyone." "Very good entertainment with popul stars."
Consensus—"Satisfactory picture, good puller."

PRODIGAL WIFE (SCREENCRAFT) BOLAND (DEC. 22).. DEC
(Six Parts)
"Sex play considered remarkable by interviewer."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Fair. Good story but poorly directed and acte Title has good drawing power."

QUICKSAND (PARAMOUNT) DORO. DALTON (DEC. 22).. DEC
"Reviewer thinks picture was wrecked at the start."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Everybody liked star and picture. Wonderf directing." "Pretty thin. Average business."
Consensus—"Satisfactory picture, good puller."

RACING STRAIN, THE (GOLDWYN) MAE MARSH (DEC. 22....
Exhibitor Comment—"Extra good attraction." "Picture pleased. Go conventional story." "Picture pleased. Star seemed quite at ease a the picture pleased at each performance."
Consensus—"Fine picture, good puller."

RESTLESS SOULS (TRIANGLE) ALMA RUBENS (FEB. 2).. FEB
(Six Parts)
"Skilful handling makes delicate subject very good picture."—M.P.Ne

Gives You All Data on the Pictures

PICTURE BRAND STAR RELEASED PLAN BOOK

ROMANCE AND ARABELLA (SELECT) CONSTANCE TALMADGE (FEB. 3) .....FEB. 15
"Good star saves weak story; romance is keynote."—M. P. News.

ROMANCE OF HAPPY VALLEY, A (ARTCRAFT) D. W. GRIFFITH'S (JAN. 26).....FEB. 8
"New Griffith picture seems a sure-fire winner."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Average business." "Average business seven days." "Splendid production. Pleased immensely and drew after third day. Opened poor, closed big."
Consensus—"Pleasing production, average puller."

ROPED (UNIVERSAL SPECIAL) CAREY (JAN. 18).....JAN. 4
(Six Parts)
"Star should please everybody in this production."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Good picture and pleased, but opened just after the 'Flu.' Average business."

ROUGH NECK, THE (WORLD) LOVE (FEB. 3).....FEB. 1
"Latest Montagu Love picture shows excellent team work."—M.P.News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Extra big business."

SANDY BURKE OF THE U-BAR-U (GOLDWYN) LOUIS BENNISON (FEB. 23) .....FEB. 15
"Western subject full of human appeal and action."—M. P. News.

SEA WAIF, THE (WORLD) LOUISE HUFF (DEC. 30).....DEC. 28
"Love story made sustaining by skillful handling."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Big business." "Don't know why but World pictures are slipping fast. Both days we showed this picture it rained, but doubt if good weather would have improved business. Poor business."
Consensus—"Fair picture, average puller."

SECRET GARDEN, THE (PARAMOUNT) LILA LEE (JAN. 12) .....JAN. 25
"Plenty of action but not the happy type for star."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Story punk. Awful." "Rotten pitcure. Poor business." "Lila Lee gaining. Fair story." "Weak. Direction fair. She will never be a star. Hasn't the goods."
Consensus—"Ordinary picture, poor puller."

SET FREE (BLUEBIRD) EDITH ROBERTS (DEC. 16)....NOV. 16
"Light romantic drama with lots of entertainment."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Average business." "Average." "Big business." "Rotten. Poor business."
Consensus—"Fair picture with average drawing powers."

SHADOWS (GOLDWYN) GERALDINE FARRAR (JAN. 26)..MAR. 1
"Should break all records. Many good points shown."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Very fine production. Star has fine opportunities. Has strong suspense element. Well directed, good plot. Big business." "Everyone voted this the best Farrar yet." "Patrons claim it one of the best she has done. Very good picture to big business."
Consensus—"Excellent production, strong puller."

SHADOWS OF SUSPICION (SCREEN CLASSICS) HAROLD LOCKWOOD (FEB. 23) .....MAR. 1
"Last Lockwood picture starts well but slumps at finish."—M. P. News.

SILENT STRENGTH (VITAGRAPH) HARRY T. MOREY (FEB. 17) FEB.15
"Dual role subject that looks good. Should please all."—M. P. News.

SILVER KING, THE (PARA-ARTC.) FAVERSHAM (JAN. 12).JAN. 18
"Melodrama that offers much chance for criticism."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Faversham as a motion picture attraction is almost nil. The new generation did not think much of the picture. The old scoffed at automobiles and modern contraptions in the classic of forty years ago. Pretty good picture, at that, tough. Average business." "Good. Of the old school type. Well produced and good cast. Average business."
Consensus—"Satisfactory picture, fair puller."

SIS HOPKINS (GOLDWYN) MABEL NORMAND (FEB. 16)
Exhibitor Comment—"Pleased very much. Was very good outside of overdoing the part in one or two scenes."

SPENDER, THE (METRO) BERT LYTELL (JAN. 6).....JAN. 4
"Excellent comedy backed by wholesome philosophy."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Excellent; great; let's have more of them." "Bert Lytell at his best since 'The Lone Wolf.' Made a great hit with the people. Cannot say enough for 'The Spender.'"
Consensus—"Excellent picture, strong puller."

SQUAW MAN, THE (ARTCRAFT) DEXTER (DEC. 15).....NOV. 16
(Six Parts)
"This should please and also draw very well."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"This was so good simply had to repeat it. Don't fail to book this winner." "Two days to big busines at advanced prices. Exceptionally good." "De Mille did himself proud on this one, the cast being splendid. The fact that this has been done in stock so many times, to say nothing about a previous picture, was responsible for just average business."
Consensus—"Excellent production with strong drawing powers."

STRANGE WOMAN, THE (FOX) BROCKWELL (DEC. 8)...OCT. 12
(Six Parts)
"A lengthy discussion on Free Love versus Marriage."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Brockwell's best. Good picture. Pleased." "Very good. It can be bosted." "Splendid. Sub-titles extra good. Big business."
Consensus—"Fine production with good drawing powers."

STRING BEANS (PARAMOUNT) RAY (DEC. 22).....DEC. 21
"Ray fans will welcome this interesting one."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Typical Ray picture that pleased very well." "Ray in his element. Just the sort of picture he is liked in best." "Keep ray in this stuff and no exhibitor ought to kick. City-bred director who opened the show with a moonlight scene, in which chickens were scratching around, ought to check up on his rural stuff."
Consensus—"Satisfactory picture with good drawing powers."

STRIFE OF THE SOUTH (BLUEBIRD) EDITH ROBERTS (FEB. 3) .....FEB. 22
"Don't say any more about this than you have to."—M. P. News.

SYLVIA ON A SPREE (METRO) WEHLEN (DEC. 16).....DEC. 28
"She glimpses a 'fast' life that is extravagant, anyway."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Just an average picture. Pleasing. Big business." "Like all Metros. Pleased." "Picture well liked but star doesn't draw."
Consensus—"Fine picture with good drawing powers."

PICTURE BRAND STAR RELEASED PLAN BOOK

TODD OF THE TIMES (PATHE) KEENAN (FEB. 9).....FEB. 1
"Star's work is good and story has been treated well."—M. P. News.

TOO FAT TO FIGHT (GOLDWYN) McINTYRE (DEC. 15)..DEC. 14
(Six Parts)
"Nobody loves a fat man but they'll vote for this one."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Excellent production. Big business." "Poor business. "Very good, mut war pictures are dead." "Fair picture but this type of story is passe now. Only fair business."
Consensus—"Good picture, good puller."

TOO MANY MILLIONS (PARAMOUNT) REID (DEC. 8)....NOV. 16
"Too much talking and posing in this picture."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Fine picture and should have drawn big business on longer run." "A very good picture that drew well. Pleased everybody. Very novel ending. Slightly too much posing by Reid." "Big to average business."
Consensus—"Fair picture with average drawing powers."

TRICK OF FATE, A (EXHIBITORS-MUTUAL) BARRISCALE (FEB. 24) .....MAR. 1
"Bessie Barriscale is doing best work of her career."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Very pleasing story. Above the average program picture."

TWO GUN BETTY (HODKINSON) BARRISCALE (DEC. 16).DEC. 14
"Bessie Barriscale pleases in a 'Different' role."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Best she played. Is getting to be a favorite." "If anyone wants a surprise Western comedy drama, book this. Gave great satisfaction to exceptionally large audience."
Consensus—"Excellent picture, strong puller."

UNDER THE TOP (ARTCRAFT) FRED STONE (JAN. 12)...JAN. 18
"Star's new Artcraft stands up better than his first."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Average to poor business." "Too mechanical. Star 'camera conscious.'" "The story and star were rotten. Nobody liked them. Poor business."
Consensus—"Fair picture with ordinary drawing powers."

VAGABOND OF FRANCE, A (PATHE) KRAUSS (JAN. 26)..JAN. 18
(Four Parts)
"French-made picture shows padding. Titles need improving."—M.P.News.

VENUS IN THE EAST (PARAMOUNT) WASHBURN (JAN. 26) JAN. 8
"If you get by with this picture you should be satisfied."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Very good picture. Big business." "They liked this one. Nice story. Washburn pleased them."
Consensus—"Satisfactory picture, good puller."

VIRTUOUS WIVES (FIRST NATIONAL) STEWART (JAN. 5).JAN. 11
"Lavish production marks star's return to screen."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"First class in every respect. Wonderful cast. Highly complimented on this one." "Extra big to highly pleased audiences." "Extra big business." "Splendid production. Pleased large audiences. Some complaints on story not following book."
Consensus—"Excellent production with exceptional drawing powers."

WAY OF A MAN WITH A MAID, THE (PARA) WASHBURN (DEC. 29) .....JAN. 11
"Good example of the 'better story' we hear about."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Highly entertaining. Clean and well done." "Big business." "Poor business." "Well liked. The kind they want." "Good heart interest story. Satisfied most everyone. Flagg comedy with it killed whole show. Terrible stuff."
Consensus—"Fine picture with very good drawing powers."

WHAT LOVE FORGIVES (WORLD) CASTLETON (JAN. 6).JAN. 4
"Interesting with good comedy titles but not well balanced."—M.P.News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Just picture, no story or action." "Average business."
Consensus—"Fair picture with average drawing powers."

WHEN A MAN RIDES ALONE (AMERICAN) RUSSELL (JAN. 19) .....JAN. 11
"Rapid action Western is William Russell's latest."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Very poor, no story, no excitement, very tiresome, clean melodrama, not one redeeming feature." "Fine picture, big business."
Consensus—"Fair picture, average puller."

WHERE THE WEST BEGINS (AMERICAN) WILLIAM RUSSELL (MAR. 2) .....MAR. 1
"Another good picture to William Russell list."—M. P. News.

WHO CARES (SELECT) CONSTANCE TALMADGE (JAN. 19) JAN. 25
"Story of light pleasing sort; should be enjoyed by all."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Constane was winsome in this light role and gave promise of great things when she is older in the emotional scenes."

WHO WILL MARRY ME? (BLUEBIRD) MYERS (JAN. 27)..FEB. 8
"Comedy and pathos blended in this Universal film."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Good picture. Big business."

WHY GERMANY MUST PAY (SCREEN CLASSICS) (JAN. 19) JAN. 25
"German atrocities again, with a good romantic interest."—M. P. News.

WICKED DARLING, THE (UNIVERSAL) PRISCILLA DEAN
(Six Parts)
"Strong picture that keeps interest alive all through."—M. P. News.

WIFE OR COUNTRY (TRIANGLE) MESTAYER (DEC. 29)..JAN. 11
"A good idea, but an ordinary picture."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Average business."

WILDCAT OF PARIS (UNIV.) PRISCILLA DEAN (DEC. 30) NOV. 30
"Picture is clean, strong, and should appeal universally."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"A very interesting picture. A little bit rough but enjoyed by all. Great box office attraction." "My patrons thought it a fine production. It went over especialy big." "Strong picture for older people."
Consensus—"Fine production, big puller."

WILD HONEY (DE LUXE) DORIS KENYON (DEC. 22)...DEC. 21
(Six Parts)
"A different kind of Western with a striking star."—M. P. News.

WIVES AND OTHER WIVES (AM.) MINTER (DEC. 15)...DEC. 14
"One of the star's best yet."—M. P. News.
Exhibitor Comment—"Average business." "Fine business. Weather bad." "A fair picture only." "Big business." "Average business seven days." "Minter well liked. Big business." "Star pleasing. Story light but very acceptable."
Consensus—"Fine picture with very good drawing powers."

WOMAN, WOMAN (FOX) EVELYN NESBIT (JAN. 26).....FEB. 8
"Deals boldly with sex question; morals of heroine lax."—M. P. News.

ZERO HOUR, THE (WORLD) ELVIDGE (DEC. 23).....DEC. 14
"An involved offering dealing with fake clairvoyants."—M. P. News.

"Flashbacks" on Earlier Releases

Individual Opinions on Earlier Releases Received During the Past Week

"Hell Morgan's Girl" (Universal)—"Good picture. Not as strong as the title would suggest."

"The Street of Seven Stars" (Sherry-General)—"Good clean picture. Big business."

"Why I Would Not Marry" (Fox)—"Extra big business. Sensational title drew in the crowds, but picture did not appeal to the majority."

"A Japanese Nightingale" (Pathe)—"Good clean picture. Beautiful scenes. Nothing big."

"Red Blood and Yellow" (Sherry-General)—"Just fair. Nothing big. Starring G. M. Anderson."

"To the Highest Bidder" (Vitagraph)—"Just ordinary picture to average business."

"The Woman Who Gave" (Fox)—"Story insipid. Star can't act, but looks pretty good."

"To Hell with the Kaiser" (Metro)—"Went over second run in fine shape. Patrons pleased."

"Les Miserables" (Fox)—"Went big three days. Turned people away."

"Her Man" (Pathe)—"Above the average. Very well liked. Nothing big."

"Nine-Tenths of the Law" (Mitchell Lewis)—"Very well acted. Very good average picture to good crowds."

"Birth of a Nation" (State Rights)—"Fifth run to packed houses, continuous shows."

"Ramona" (State Right)—"Turned people away second run. Print in good condition."

"Lafayette We Come" (Exhibitors Mutual)—"Good picture. Business average, but too high in rental price for picture."

FLASH BACKS——MARCH 8 ISSUE ....

"Going Straight" (Norma Talmadge)—"Star very strong. Extra big business."

"Out of the Night" (Calvert-Sherry-General)—"A good story and star is a comer. Good to look at but conscious at times and camera shy. Ought to improve with the right direction. Took very well with our audiences and is a total stranger to them. Business good two days."

"Treat 'Em Rough" (Mix-Fox)—"Mix becoming very good card. Picture full of thrills. It can be boosted."

"The Bargain" (Wm. S. Hart)—"Hart had not been shown in this city for several months only in short stuff at the cheaper theatres, and naturally went over big. It was a typical Hart success, with the appeal and heart interest that is usually found in his pictures. Big business two days."

"Hoarded Assets" (Vitagraph)—"One of the poorest pictures of Morey's that we have ever shown. Disappointment to audience. Poor business."

"Prisoner of the Pines" (Hodkinson)—"Very poor. Not up to Kerrigan's standard."

"Marriage" (Calvert-Sherry-General)—"Very good. Story well worked out and interesting. Good business."

"The Return of Mary" (Metro)—"Fine in every respect. Pleased audiences. A great many good comments on the play. Extra big business."

"Five Nights" (Paragon)—"Gave excellent satisfaction to extra big business. The feature itself is just an ordinary love drama but it is the way it was put on that makes it different. Don't judge the picture by the posters. The one-sheet looks like an advertisement of a burlesque show."

"The Heart of Rachael" (Hodkinson)—"Barriscale drew from average opening to big business last two days. Big snow storm."

"Mirandy Smiles" (Vivian Martin-Paramount)—"Very pleasing picture to extra big business."

"Wives of Men" (Florence Reed)—"Big advertising possibilities. Extra big business. Picture is there to back it up."

"Temple of Dusk" (Hayakawa)—"Star popular. Story rather sad but picture was good and was enjoyed. Big business."

"Prisoner of the Pines" (Hodkinson)—"Very poor story for Kerrigan. Average business."

"The Mantle of Charity" (American-Fisher)—"They like Miss Fisher here. Nice picture and to big business."

"The Law of the North" (Paramount)—"Story not quite the style patrons like to see Ray in. Scenery beautiful and it went over good."

"The Man from Funeral Range" (Paramount)—"Star popular. Went over big."

"Daughter of the Old South" (Paramount)—"Poor business."

"Law of the North" (Paramount)—"Average business."

"When Do We Eat?" (Paramount)—"Repeated to average business."

"The Woman Who Gave" (Fox)—"Star Good. Drawing power big. Story good. Best of satisfaction."

"The Make-Believe Wife" (Paramount)—"Very good. Burke popular star."

"Such a Little Pirate" (Paramount)—"Above the average."

"Buchanan's Wife" (Fox)—"Very good. Best this star has appeared in for a long time."

"Pals First" (Metro)—"Picture went over good. Big business."

"The Tiger Man" (Artcraft)—"Picture well received. Big business."

"Nine O'clock Town" (Paramount)—"Popular star. Good picture. Extra big business."

"Rough and Ready" (Fox)—"Second run to big business."

"The Bells" (Pathe)—"Poor business."

"Wild Life" (Triangle)—"Big business two days."

"A Dog's Life" (First National)—"Extra big business with Chaplin."

"Convict 993" (Pathe)—"Average business."

"Waifs" (Pathe)—"Average business."

"Forbidden City" (Select)—"Very good. Always draws here."

"A Fool There Was" (Fox)—"Not much 'biz' on this."

"Queen of Hearts" (Fox)—"Average business."

"The She Devil" (Fox)—"Not as good as most of hers."

"Sauce for the Goose" (Select)—"She is always there for us because she plays the kind people want."

"Poppy" (State Right)—"Big business on return date."

"When a Woman Sins" (Fox)—"Turned 'em away. Really is a good pictures."

"Les Miserables" (Fox)—"No go at all. Flopped a plenty."

"Brave and Bold" (Goldwyn)—"Average business."

"Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots" (Select)—"Fine. Extra big business. The kind that people seem to want here."

"Daughter of the Gods" (Fox)—"Average business two days."

"Swat the Spy" (Fox)—"Lee Kids are no drawing cards. They made just one—'Two Little Imps.'"

"The Road Through the Dark" (Select)—"'Flu' ban just lifted. Peopl still afraid. Picture drew average business."

"The Woman Who Gave" (Fox)—"Average business. Got by, be not big."

"Mr. Logan U. S. A." (Fox)—"Splendid. Fine. Big business."

"Better Half" (Select)—"Good picture. Cold weather. Averag business."

"The Savage Woman" (Select)—"Some liked it very well. Big business.

"Blue Blood" (Goldwyn)—"Average business."

"The Belgian" (seven-reel state right)—"News reels. Took off afte first day."

"Kultur" (Fox)—"Good, but people don't want this kind of story now.

"The Plunderer" (Fox Re-issue)—"Photography dark in places. Goo otherwise."

"On the Jump" (Fox)—"Good drawing card for us. Give him som good stories. Big business."

"The Rainbow Trail" (Fox)—"Good picture. Average business."

"Her Only Way" (Select)—"If Eugene O'Brien would only play wit her all the time. This comes from our customers constantly."

"Soldier's Oath" (Fox)—"Not very clear film. Average business."

"The Kid Is Clever" (Fox)—"He is good. Big business. If the would just give him good stories."

"Other Men's Daughters" (Fox)—"Not very good. Average business.

"Fame and Fortune" (Fox)—"Very good. Big business."

"For Husbands Only" (Jewel)—"Very clever picture. Well staged Good director. Star going over strong. Business good."

"Romance of Tarzan" (First National)—"Very good production. Bi business."

"Two Brides" (Paramount)—"Why do they make 'em? Poor business.

"The Hope Chest" (Paramount)—"Keen picture. Star's best work Extra big business."

"Her Mistake" (Screencraft)—"Would have been better in five reels Story only fair. Got business owing to Evelyn Nesbit's notoriety. Pictur well cast in support."

"Queen of the Sea" (Fox)—"Fairy spectacle well done, but—her tw pictures before it were enough of Kellermann in Fairyland. Make modern story introducing her swimming and it will go. As it is—busines hardly fair."

"The Make-Believe Wife" (Paramount)—"Not much punch but a class production. Good business three days."

"Impossible Susan" (Metro)—"Susan is impossible. Fair progra offering."

"A Daughter of the Old South" (Paramount)—"Average program offe ing. Poor business. Frederick slipping."

"Riddle Gawne" (Artcraft)—"Patrons see improvement. Extra bi business."

"Let's Get a Divorce" (Paramount)—"Title drew them in. Pleased.

"Love's Conquest" (Paramount)—"Poor business. Another Cavalieri.

"Daughter of Destiny" (First National)—"Average business."

"Milady of the Beenstalk" (Pathe)—"Took pretty good."

"Tarzan of the Apes" (First National)—"Capacity both days. Every body pleased."

"The Little Girl Next Door" (State Rights)—"Good for Monday."

"Woman Between Friends" (Vitagraph)—"Very good. Pleased ou patrons."

"Eyes of Julia Deep" (American)—"Nice story. Average business."

"That Devil Bateese" (Universal)—"Good nature or mother's story."

"Toys of Fate" (Nazimova)—"Strong picture. Big business."

"Broadway Scandal"—"Good average program picture. Averag business."

"The First Law" (Pathe)—"Poor business."

"Successful Failure" (Triangle)—"Average business."

"Ordeal of Rosetta" (Select)—"Her best so far but the dream saved it.

"Hobbs in a Hurry" (Pathe)—"A cracker-jack comedy drama. On of Bill's best. Good business three days."

"Battling Jane" (Artcraft)—"Very pleasing comedy drama. Goo business two days."

"Shoulder Arms" (First National)—"Greatest comedy of all time Turned away thousands. Wonderful business."

"Heart of the Sunset" (Goldwyn)—"Pleased, although slow."

"Testing of Mildred Vane" (Metro)—"Picture well liked but Allisc will never be a star."

"Shoulder Arms" (First National)—"Best drawing card in America."

"Out of a Clear Sky" (Paramount)—"Not up to Clark standard."

"Thirty a Week" (Goldwyn)—"Well received. Moore liked."

"A Woman of Impulse" (Paramount)—"Better than Cavalieri's oth pictures, if that means anything."

"The She Devil" (Fox)—"Better than the other recent Bara progra pictures."

"The Patriot" (Triangle Re-issue)—"Drew fair. Not a big picture."

"Those Who Pay" (State Rights)—"A good picture, but failed to g the crowds."

"'Till I Come Back to You" (Artcraft)—"Great picture. Kinds wo derful. Good business."

"Say Young Fellow" (Artcraft)—"Big business two days. N 'Doug's' best, but very good."

"The Eagle's Mate" (Artcraft)—"Decidedly punk. Ridiculous. Poore Pickford we ever played. Average business."

"The Woman Who Gave" (Fox)—"My patrons did not care for Nesb Them's my sentiments."

"Savage Woman" (Select)—"Improbable story put over by star—Mi Young."

"The Lesson" (Select)—"Just five reels of film."

"Daughter of Destiny" (First National)—"Petrova in good feature big business."

"Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots" (Select)—"Very light fluffy comedy, pretti staged and directed, but nothing to it. Just gets by."

"Dawn Maker" (Triangle Re-issue)—"Big business."

"Street of Seven Stars" (Sherry-General)—"First run. Poor business

"Her Only Way" (Select)—"Average business."

"Fighting Blood" (Farnum-Fox)—"Big to average business."

"My Four Years in Germany" (First National)—"Didn't do the busine we should. Excellent picture. Made big hit with all who saw it. Goo bye, war stuff here. Came back strong on second day. Made a big hit."

"Married in Name Only"—"Good picture, average business."

"Mother" (State Rights —"Good picture, but does not appeal to masses

"A Pair of Silk Stockings" (Select)—"Good comedy, but did not draw

"Hugan the Mighty" (Bluebird)—"Not to his standard. Avera business."

Advance Information on All Film Releases

All forthcoming film, also current and earlier releases, made by both the independent and the regular producers, in short subjects as well as features, are arranged alphabetically with all the later releases at the top of each respective list instead of at the bottom.

AMERICAN FILM COMPANY, INC.
(See Pathe Exchanges)

ARTCRAFT PICTURES
(See Famous Players-Lasky Exchanges)

BEAR STATE FILM COMPANY
(At State Right Exchanges)
The Vigilantes

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS
(See Universal Exchanges)

BURLINGHAM TRAVEL PICTURES
(See General Film Exchanges Through Sherry Service)

CHRISTIE FILM COMPANY COMEDIES
(At State Right Exchange)
Mar. 10—Hard Luck
Mar. 3—Bobby Comes Marching Home
Feb. 24—Welcome Home
Feb. 17—Four of a Kind
Feb. 10—Salvation Sue
Jan. 27—You Couldn't Blame Her
Jan. 20—Good Gracious Bobby
Jan. 13—Oh, Baby!
Jan. 6—Five Hundred or Bust

COSMOFOTOFILM COMPANY
(At State Right Exchanges)
The Hypocrites

EDUCATIONAL FILM CORP. OF AMERICA
(Through State Right and Educational Exchanges)
Mar. 3—The Washington Air Patrol
Feb. 24—What Is a Mexican?
Feb. 17—A Day with Carranza
Feb. 10—An Indian Love Story
Feb. 3—Indian Life
Feb. 1—Photoplay Magazine Screen Supplement
Jan. 31—Bringing the Boys Back Home (Y. M. C. A.)

BRUCE SCENICS
—Before Breakfast
—Men Met in the Mountains
—Nature—Hot and Cold
—The Pale Pack Train
—The High Horse
—Horizon Hunters
—Nature—Rest and Motion
—The Wolf of the Tetons
—Scenic Succotash
—The Lonesome Pup
—Frozen Thrills
—Separate Trails
—Sundown
—The Restless Three
—The River Gray and the River Green
—The Wanderer and the Whoozitt
—A Wee Bit Odd
—Tales of the Tall Timber
—'Tis Tough to Be Tender
—The Tides of Yesterday

EXHIBITORS MUTUAL EXCHANGES
Mar. —A Heart in Pawn (Sessue Hayakawa)
Mar. —The Lamb and the Lion (Billie Rhodes)
Feb. —Shadows (Sessue Hayakawa)
Feb. —Diana of the Green Van (Alma Rubens)
Feb. —Long Lane's Turning (Henry B. Walthall)
Feb. —A Trick of Fate (Bessie Barriscale)
Feb. —The Prodigal Liar (William Desmond)
Feb. —Final Half; Cannibals of the South Seas
Feb. —What Every Woman Wants (Grace Darmond)
Jan. —The Eleventh Commandment (Ralph Ince Production)
Jan. —Hoop-La (Billie Rhodes)
Jan. —Bonds of Honor (Sessue Hayakawa)
Jan. —Life's a Funny Proposition (William Desmond)

FRAND COMEDIES
Mar. 2—The Wig-Wag System (Elinor Field)
Feb. 23—Their Baby (Elinor Field)
Feb. 16—Almost a Hero (Elinor Field)
Feb. 9—Merely Marrying Mary (Elinor Field)
Feb. 2—How to be Happy Though Married (Elinor Field)
Jan. 26—Easy Payments
Jan. 12—Some Mother (Elinor Field)
Jan. 19—No Man's Land
Jan. 5—Accidental Heroes (Elinor Field)

FOTHACKER OUTDOORS
Feb. 16—Out Wyoming Way
Feb. 9—A Bit of God's Country
Feb. 2—Doing the Dells
Jan. 26—Western Stuff
Jan. 19—Bulls and Bears
Jan. 12—Geesers and Geysers
Jan. 5—Teetotalers, Tea and Totem Poles

FAMOUS PLAYERS—LASKY EXCHANGES

ARTCRAFT
Mar. 23—The Girl Who Stayed at Home (D. W. Griffith's)
Mar. 16—The Poppy Girl's Husband (William S. Hart)
Mar. 9—The Marriage Price (Elsie Ferguson)
Mar. 9—Johnny Get Your Gun (Fred Stone)
Mar. 2—Alias Mike Moran (Wallace Reid)
Feb. 2—Breed of Men (William S. Hart)

PARAMOUNT
Mar. 30—Peppy Polly (Dorothy Gish)
Mar. 30—Little Comrade (Vivian Martin)
Mar. 30—The Malefactor (John Barrymore)
Mar. 23—The Sheriff's Son (Charles Ray)
Mar. 23—Partners Three (Enid Bennett)
Mar. 16—Extravagance (Dorothy Dalton)
Mar. 16—Three Men and a Girl (Marguerite Clark)
Mar. 9—The Poor Boob (Bryant Washburn)
Mar. 2—Puppy Love (Lila Lee)
Mar. 2—Good Gracious Annabelle (Billie Burke)
Feb. 23—Maggie Pepper (Ethel Clayton)
Feb. 23—Paid in Full (Pauline Frederick)
Feb. 23—The Winning Girl (Shirley Mason)
Feb. 16—Boots (Dorothy Gish)
Feb. 16—You Never Saw Such a Girl (Vivian Martin)
Feb. 9—Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch (Marguerite Clark)
Feb. 9—The Girl Dodger (Charles Ray)
Feb. 9—Two Brides (Lina Cavalieri)
Feb. 2—Hard Boiled (Dorothy Dalton)
Feb. 2—Happy Though Married (Enid Bennett)

PARAMOUNT-ARTCRAFT SPECIALS
Feb. 16—False Faces (Henry B. Walthall)

SUCCESS SERIES (Re-Issues)
Mar. 30—Sold (Pauline Frederick)
Mar. 23—Rose of the Rancho (Special Cast)
Mar. 16—Rage (Mary Pickford)
Mar. 9—Freckles (Jack Pickford)
Mar. 2—Temptation (Geraldine Farrar)
Feb. 23—Are You a Mason? (John Barrymore)
Feb. 16—Puddin' Head Wilson (Special Cast)
Feb. 9—Belladonna (Pauline Frederick)
Feb. 2—The Crucible (Marguerite Clark)

ARBUCKLE COMEDIES
Mar. 2—Love (Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle)
Feb. 16—The Pullman Porter (Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle)
Jan. 5—Camping Out (Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle)

DREW COMEDIES
Mar. 16—Once a Mason (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew)
Feb. 2—Romance and Rings (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew)

FLAGG COMEDIES
Mar. 30—Beresford of the Barboons (Montgomery Flagg Film)
Feb. 2—One Every Minute (Montgomery Flagg Film)

SENNETT COMEDIES
Mar. 23—Reilly's Wash Day
Mar. 9—The Village Smithy
Feb. 23—West Lynne with Variations
Feb. 9—Rip and Stitch—Sailors
Jan. 26—Never Too Old (Mack Sennett Film)

BRAY PICTOGRAPHS
Mar. 30—Comets
Mar. 23—Indoor Gold
Mar. 16—Most Popular Girl in World
Mar. 9—Birth of a Tornado
Mar. 2—Hatching an Eagle a Day
Feb. 23—A Kid Railroad
Feb. 16—Hand Grenades
Feb. 9—War Brides
Feb. 2—Winter Sports

BURTON HOLMES TRAVEL PICTURES
Mar. 30—Zamboanga
Mar. 23—Glorious Versailles
Mar. 16—Gay Parie in Wartime
Mar. 9—Making Sombereros in Manila
Mar. 2—Cabaret of Old Japan
Feb. 23—London Plays Ball
Feb. 16—War Women of England
Feb. 9—St. Dunstan's Happy Blind
Feb. 2—American Y. M. C. A. in London

FILM CLEARING HOUSE EXCHANGES

INDEPENDENT SALES CORPORATION
Dec. —Wanted for Murder (Elaine Hammerstein)
Dec. —A Romance in the Air (Bert Hall-Edith Day)

TEN-TWENTY-THIRTY SERIES
Dec. —Her Mistake (Julius Steger Production)
Dec. —Life's Greatest Problem (Blackton Production)
Dec. —A Woman's Experience (Bacon-Backer Production)

Advance Information on All Film Release

(Continued from preceding page)

FIRST NATIONAL EXCHANGES

Feb. 3—Our Teddy (Roosevelt Pictures)....5
Jan. 5—Virtuous Wives (Anita Stewart)....5
The Romance of Tarzan (Elmo Lincoln)....
Shoulder Arms (Charlie Chaplin)....3
Italy's Flaming Front (Italian Official War Pictures)....
Pershing's Crusaders (Official Government Feature)....
My Four Years in Germany (Ambassador Gerard's)....

FOX FILM EXCHANGES

STANDARD PICTURES

Apr. 20—The Siren's Song (Theda Bara)....5
Apr. 6—Wolves of the Night (William Farnum)....5
Mar. 23—Thou Shalt Not (Evelyn Nesbit)....5
Mar. 9—When Men Desire (Theda Bara)....5
Feb. 23—The Man Hunter (William Farnum)....6
Feb. 9—Every Mother's Son (all-star cast)....5
Jan. 26—Woman, Woman (Evelyn Nesbit)....5

VICTORY PICTURES

Mch. 16—Never Say Quit (George Walsh)....5
Mch. 2—The Forbidden Room (Gladys Brockwell)....5
Feb. 16—Hell Roarin' Reform (Tom Mix)....5
Feb. 2—Luck and Pluck (George Walsh)....5
Jan. 19—The Call of the Soul (Gladys Brockwell)....5
Jan. 5—Treat 'Em Rough (Tom Mix)....5

EXCEL PICTURES

Apr. 6—Married in Haste (Albert Ray)....5
Mar. 23—The Unkissed Bride (Peggy Hyland)....5
Mar. 9—Gambling in Souls (Madlaine Traverse)....5
Feb. 23—Smiles (Jane and Katherine Lee)....5
Feb. 9—The Love Auction (Virginia Pearson)....5
Jan. 26—The Girl With No Regrets (Peggy Hyland)....5

PRODUCTIONS EXTRAORDINARY

Cleopatra (Theda Bara)....8
Les Miserables (William Farnum)....8
A Daughter of the Gods (Annette Kellerman)....8
Salome (Theda Bara)....8

THE GREAT NINE

Feb. 23—Hoodman Blind (William Farnum)....5
Feb. 16—The Darling of Paris (Theda Bara)....5
Feb. 9—The Soul of Broadway (Valeska Suratt)....5
Feb. 2—Infidelity (Dr. Rameau's)....5
Jan. 26—Under Two Flags (Theda Bara)....5
Jan. 19—The Broken Law (William Farnum)....5
Jan. 12—Regeneration (Special Cast)....5
Jan. 5—The Serpent (Theda Bara)....5

SUNSHINE AND TOM MIX COMEDIES

May 4—A Lady Bell Hop Secret....2
Apr. 20—The House of Terrible Scandal....2
Apr. 6—Tom and Jerry Mix....2
Mch. 23—Money Talks....2
Mch. 9—Six-Cylinder Love (Tom Mix)....2
Feb. 23—His Musical Sneeze....2
Feb. 9—A Roman Cowboy (Tom Mix)....2
Jan. 26—Oh, What a Knight....2
Jan. 12—Hearts and Saddles (Tom Mix)....2

MUTT AND JEFF CARTOONS

Mar. 16—William Hohenzollern, Sausage Maker....½
Mar. 9—Wild Waves and Angry Woman....½
Mar. 2—Firemen, Save My Child....½
Feb. 25—The Pousse Cafe....½
Feb. 16—Five Thousand Miles on a Gallon of Gas....1
Feb. 9—The Bearded Lady....1
Feb. 2—Landing An Heiress....1
Jan. 26—Dog-gone Tough Luck....1
Jan. 19—The Hula Cabaret....1
Jan. 12—Here and There....1
Jan. 5—The Lion Tamer....1

FROHMAN AMUSEMENT CORPORATION

(At State Right Exchanges)

Once to Every Man (Jack Sherrill)....
My Own United States (Special Cast)....Through Metro
God's Man (H. B. Warner)....9

GARSON-NEILAN PRODUCTIONS

(Producing for Open Market)

The Unpardonable Sin (Blanche Sweet)....9
The Hushed Hour (Blanche Sweet)....

GAUMONT COMPANY

(At State Right Exchanges)

Tuesdays—Gaumont News....1
Fridays—Gaumont Graphic....1

GENERAL FILM EXCHANGES

KLEINE SYSTEM, GEORGE

Triple Trouble (Charley Chaplin)....
Behind the Lines in Italy....
Conquered Hearts....

SHERRY SERVICE, WILLIAM L.

Mar. 9—Marriage for Convenience (Catherine Calvert)....6
Mar. 2—Love and the Law (Edgar Lewis Production)....6
Feb. 23—Twilight (Doris Kenyon)....
Feb. 16—Calibre 38 (Edgar Lewis Production)....
Feb. 2—The Son of a Gun (G. M. Anderson)....
Jan. 5—Wild Honey (Doris Kenyon)....

BURLINGHAM TRAVEL PICTURES (Sherry Service)

The Gornergrat Railway....
Lovely Lucerne....
The Riviera of Lake Leman....
Scrambles in the High Alps....
Allied War Heroes Arrive in Switzerland....
The Pilatus Railway....
Unknown Switzerland (The Lotschenthal)....
Facing Death on the Blumlisalp....

RAINBOW COMEDIES

Hooverizing (Lillian Vera-Eddie Bouldon)....
The Pipe of Peace (Lillian Vera-Eddie Bouldon)....
The Camouflaged Baby (Lillian Vera-Eddie Bouldon)....
How She Hated Men (Lillian Vera-Eddie Bouldon)....
Some Judge (Lillian Vera-Eddie Bouldon)....
My Lady's Slipper (Lillian Vera-Eddie Bouldon)....
Nearly a Slacker (Lillian Vera-Eddie Bouldon)....

AMERICAN RED CROSS

Russia a World Problem....
New Faces for Old....
Homeward Bound....
Victorious Serbia....
First Aid on the Piave....
Rebuilding Broken Lives....

GOLDWYN EXCHANGES

STAR SERIES

Mar. 30—Spotlight Sadie (Mae Marsh)....
Mar. 23—Daughter of the Mine (Madge Kennedy)....
Mar. 16—A Man and His Money (Tom Moore)....
Mar. 9—The Brand (Rex Beach Cast)....
Feb. 23—The Woman on the Index (Pauline Frederick)....
Feb. 16—Sis Hopkins (Mabel Normand)....
Feb. 2—The Bondage of Barbara (Mae Marsh)....
Jan. 26—Shadows (Geraldine Farrar)....
Jan. 12—Day Dreams (Madge Kennedy)....

BENNISON SERIES

Feb. 23—Sandy Burke of the U-Bar-U (Louis Bennison)....
Jan. 19—Oh, Johnny (Louis Bennison)....

SPECIALS

For the Freedom of the World....
The Manx-Man....
Social Ambition....
Honor's Cross....
Blue Blood....
Rex Beach's Heart of the Sunset....
For the Freedom of the East (Betzwood)....

CAPITOL COMEDIES

Apr. 6—The Midnight Alarm ("Smiling Bill" Parsons)....
Mch. 23—The Potum of Swat ("Smiling Bill" Parsons)....
Mch. 9—The New Breakfast Food ("Smiling Bill" Parsons)....
Feb. 23—A Master of Music ("Smiling Bill" Parsons)....
Feb. 9—Have Another ("Smiling Bill" Parsons)....
Jan. 26—The Big Idea ("Smiling Bill" Parsons)....
Jan. 12—You Know What I Mean ("Smiling Bill" Parsons)....

FORD EDUCATIONAL WEEKLY

Mar. 23—What Uncle Sam Had Up His Sleeve....
Mar. 16—The Land of Enchantment....
Mar. 9—The Story of Steel....
Mar. 2—Good to Eat....
Feb. 24—Rough Stuff....
Feb. 17—Where "The Spirit that Won" was Born....
Feb. 10—Canada's Mountain of Tears....
Feb. 3—Carrying Old Glory to the Seven Seas....
Jan. 27—Hang It All....
Jan. 20—The Truth About the Liberty Motor....
Jan. 13—What Uncle Sam Will Do for Two Cents....

HILLER AND WILK, INC.

(Pictures Handled in the Open Market)

The Silent Mystery (Francis Ford Serial)....
Woman....
The Wrath of the Gods....
The Battle of Gettysburg....
Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman....

HART, FAIRBANKS, KEENAN, TALMADGE RE-ISSUES

Fifty Fifty (Norma Talmadge)....
The Social Secretary (Norma Talmadge)....
The Devil's Needle (Norma Talmadge)....
Going Straight (Norma Talmadge)....
Children in the House (Norma Talmadge)....
The Drab (Frank Keenan)....
Bride of Hate (Frank Keenan)....
The Sins Ye Do (Frank Keenan)....
Jim Grimsby's Boy (Frank Keenan)....
The Thoroughbred (Frank Keenan)....
The Americano (Douglas Fairbanks)....
The Matrimaniac (Douglas Fairbanks)....
American Aristocracy (Douglas Fairbanks)....
Manhattan Madness (Douglas Fairbanks)....

dvance Information on All Film Releases

(Continued from preceding page)

Half Breed (Douglas Fairbanks)
ting with Fate (Douglas Fairbanks)
gie Mixes In (Douglas Fairbanks)
Good Bad Man (Douglas Fairbanks)
lfe Lowry (William S. Hart)
Desert Man (William S. Hart)
Square Deal Man (William S. Hart)
Gunfighter (William S. Hart)
thful Tulliver (William S. Hart)
Devil's Double (William S. Hart)
Return of Draw Egan (William S. Hart)
Dawnmaker (William S. Hart)
tive God (William S. Hart)
Patriot (William S. Hart)

DKINSON CORPORATION, W. W.

See Pathe Exchanges)

DEPENDENT SALES CORPORATION

See Film Clearing House Exchanges)

AN FEATURE PRODUCTIONS

At State Right Exchanges)

or Honor (Leah Baird-James Morrison).....7
nan Clay (Mollie King).....5

WEL PRODUCTIONS, INC.

See Universal Exchanges)

EINE SYSTEM, GEORGE

See General Film Exchanges)

TRO EXCHANGES

24—Peggy Does Her Darndest (May Allison).....5
17—Johnny on the Spot (Hale Hamilton).....5
10—As the Sun Went Down (Edith Storey).....5
3—Faith (Bert Lytell).....5
27—In for Thirty Days (May Allison).....5
20—The Divorcee (Ethel Barrymore).....5
13—The Gold Cure (Viola Dana).....5
6—The Spender (Bert Lytell).....5

ZIMOVA PRODUCTIONS

17—Out of the Fog (Nazimova).....7
s of Fate (Nazimova).....7
for Eye (Nazimova).....7
lation (Nazimova).....7

EEN CLASSICS, INC., SPECIALS

Great Romance (Harold Lockwood).....6
Great Victory (Special Cast).....
First (Harold Lockwood).....6

ZIMOVA PRODUCTIONS

See Metro Exchanges)

THE EXCHANGES

6—The Silver Girl (Frank Keenan).....5
23—Go Get 'Em Garringer (Helene Chadwick).....5
9—Carolyn of the Corners (Bessie Love).....5
2—Common Clay (Fannie Ward-Astra).....7
23—The Old Maid's Baby (Baby Marie Osborne).....5
9—Todd of the Times (Frank Keenan).....5
26—A Vagabond of France (Henri Krauss).....4
12—The Midnight Stage (Frank Keenan).....5

ERICAN FILM COMPANY, INC.

16—Molly of the Follies (Margarita Fisher).....5
2—The Amazing Imposter (Mary Miles Minter).....5
19—When a Man Rides Alone (William Russell).....5

DKINSON, W. W., CORPORATION

23—The End of the Game (J. Warren Kerrigan).....5
9—The Forfeit (House Peters).....5
23—The Love Hunger (Lillian Walker).....5
10.—Come Again Smith (J. Warren Kerrigan).....5
27—Fighting Through (E. K. Lincoln).....6
20—The Law that Divides (Kathleen Clifford).....5
6—The Drifters (J. Warren Kerrigan).....5

DE IN AMERICA (Series) Hodkinson

ht One-Reel Episodes)
7—Eighth, Forward Ever Forward.....1
31—Seventh, Overseas to Victory.....1
24—Sixth, The Hated K. P.....1
17—Fifth, Building the Soldier.....1
10—Fourth, Victory Army in the Making.....1
3—Third, The Rookie.....1
24—Second, Nine Million Answer.....1
16—First, Made in America.....1

IN COMEDIES

13—Just Dropped In (Harold Lloyd).....1
6—Ring Up the Curtain (Harold Lloyd).....1
30—Next Aisle Over (Harold Lloyd).....1
23—Friend Husband (Harold Lloyd).....1
16—Look Out Below (Harold Lloyd).....1
9—I'm On My Way (Harold Lloyd).....1
2—Hoot Mon (Stan Laurel).....1
Feb. 23—On the Fire (Harold Lloyd).....1
Feb. 16—Toto's Troubles (Toto).....1
Feb. 9—Ask Father (Harold Lloyd).....1
Feb. 2—Hustling for Health (Laurel).....1
Jan. 19—Love's Young Dream (Goulding).....1
Jan. 12—Wanted, 5,000 (Harold Lloyd).....1
Jan. 5—Do You Love Your Wife? (Laurel).....1

POST TRAVEL SERIES

Jan. 5—Japan of Today (2).....1
Jan. 12—Shanghai.....1

THE LIGHTNING RAIDER (Serial)

(Fifteen Two-Reel Episodes Astra Serial Starring Pearl White, Warner Oland, Henry Gsell)
Apr. 13—Fifteenth, Wu Fang Atones.....2
Apr. 6—Fourteenth, Cleared of Guilt.....2
Mar. 30—Thirteenth, the White Roses.....2
Mar. 23—Twelfth, Hurled Into Space.....2
Mar. 16—Eleventh, The Bars of Death.....2
Mar. 9—Tenth, The Baited Trap.....2
Mar. 2—Ninth, Falsely Accused.....2
Feb. 23—Eighth, The Cave of Dread.....2
Feb. 16—Seventh, Meshes of Evil.....2
Feb. 9—Sixth, The Mystic Box.....2
Feb. 2—Fifth, The Brass Key.....2
Jan. 26—Fourth, Through Doors of Steel.....2
Jan. 19—Third, Underworld Terrors.....2
Jan. 12—Second, The Counterplot.....2
Jan. 5—First, The Ebony Block.....3

THE TERROR OF THE RANGE (Serial)

(Seven Two-Reel Episodes Starring George Larkin and Bessie Compson; Produced by Diando)
Mch. 16—Seventh, Run to Earth.....2
Mch. 9—Sixth, Tangled Tales.....2
Mch. 2—Fifth, A Threat from the Past.....2
Feb. 23—Fourth, The Midnight Raid.....2
Feb. 16—Third, The Chasm of Fear.....2
Feb. 9—Second, The Hidden Chart.....2
Feb. 2—First, Prowlers of the Night.....2

NEWS AND REVIEW REELS

Sundays—Pathe Review (Educational).....1
Mondays—Official War Review.....1
Wednesdays—Pathe News.....1
Saturdays—Pathe News.....1

PERRET PRODUCTIONS, LEONCE

(Producing for the Open Market)
—A Soul Adrift (Dolores Cassinelli).....
—Stars of Glory (E. K. Lincoln-Dolores Cassinelli).....

RAPF PRODUCTIONS, HARRY

(At State Right Exchanges)
—Wanted for Murder (Elaine Hammerstein) Ind. Sales Corp.....6
—Sins of the Children.....

RAVER PRODUCTIONS, HARRY

(At State Right Exchanges)
—The Liberator (Maciste Serial).....

SELECT EXCHANGES

Feb. —The World to Live In (Alice Brady).....5
Feb. —Children of Banishment (Mitchell Lewis).....5
Feb. —The Belle of New York (Marion Davies).....5
Feb. —Romance and Arabella (Constance Talmadge).....5
Jan. —The Indestructible Wife (Alice Brady).....5
Jan. —Cheating Cheaters (Clara Kimball Young).....5
Jan. —Who Cares (Constance Talmadge).....5

SPECIALS

The Hidden Truth (Anna Case).....5
Ruling Passions (Julia Dean-Edwin Arden).....5
The Midnight Patrol (Ince Production).....5
The Cavell Case (Julia Arthur).....5
The One Woman (Special Cast).....6

SELZNICK PICTURES CORPORATION

(No Distribution Plans Announced Yet)
—Upstairs and Down (Olive Thomas).....5

S-L PICTURES

Virtuous Man (E. K. Lincoln) Ralph Ince Attraction.....

SHERRY SERVICE, WILLIAM L.

(See General Film Exchanges Outside New York State)

SOUTHERN FEATURE FILM COMPANY

(At State Rights Exchanges)
Beyond the Law (Emmett Dalton).....6

STATE RIGHT EXCHANGES

DOLL VAN FILM CORPORATION (CHICAGO)

(In Illinois, Indiana and Southern Wisconsin)
The Mad Lover.....
Public Defender.....

Advance Information on All Film Release

(Continued from preceding page)

Carmen of the Klondike
The Grain of Dust
Hearts of the World
The Crucible of Life
Nine-tenths of the Law
The Belgian
The Zeppelin's Last Raid
Those Who Pay
Just a Woman

DOO LEE FILM COMPANY, INC. (NEW YORK STATE)

The Woman Who Dared....7
The Libertine....6
Babbling Tongues....7
Married in Name Only....6
Her Bargain....6
A Man's Law....5
Human Clay....5
One Law for Both....8
Sins of Ambition....7
A Slacker's Heart....7
Cleopatra....5
The Lonesome Trail....5
Mothers of Liberty....6
Gaumont News and Graphic
Jester Comedies (Tweed Dan) once a month....2
The Silent Mystery (Serial in Fifteen Two-Reel Episodes (Francis Ford
Mae Gaston and Rosemary Theby

TRIANGLE EXCHANGES

Feb. 23—Breezy Jim (Crane Wilbur)....5
Feb. 16—Child of M'sieu (Baby Marie Osborne)....5
Feb. 9—Secret Marriage (Mary MacLaren)....5
Feb. 2—Restless Souls (Alma Rubens)....5

UNITED PICTURE THEATRES

(See World Film Exchanges)

UNIVERSAL EXCHANGES

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS

Mar. 3—A Taste of Life (Edith Roberts)....5
Feb. 24—The Little White Savage (Carmel Myers)....5
Feb. 17—The Sealed Envelope (Fritzi Brunette)....5
Feb. 10—The Millionaire Pirate (Monroe Salisbury)....5
Feb. 3—Sue of the South (Edith Roberts)....5
Jan. 27—Who Will Marry Me (Carmel Myers)....5
Jan. 20—The Game's Up (Ruth Clifford)....5

SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS

Mar. 17—The Light of Victory (Monroe Salisbury)....5
Mar. 10—The Scarlet Shadow (Mae Murray)....6
Feb. 24—The Wicked Darling (Priscilla Dean)....6
Feb. 10—Creaking Stairs (Mary MacClaren)....6
Jan. 27—Roped (Harry Carey)....6
Jan. 13—After the War....5

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS, INC.

Feb. 10—The Heart of Humanity (Dorothy Phillips)....9

I-KO COMEDIES

Mar. 5—A Ragtime Romance (Lynch-Smith-Dunn)....2
Feb. 26—Lions and Ladies (Hardy-Mann-Gore)....2
Feb. 17—Call the Cops (Billy Armstrong)....2
Feb. 5—Hop, the Bell Hop (Armstrong)....2
Jan. 27—It's a Bird (Mann)....2
Jan. 22—The Freckled Fish (Novak)....2
Jan. 15—Charlie the Little Dare Devil....2

CENTURY COMEDIES

Mar. 12—Society Stuff (Alice Howell)....2
Feb. 10—Behind the Front (Alice Howell)....2

NESTOR COMEDIES

Mar. 17—Home Run Bill (Billy Mason)....1
Mar. 10—The Hole in the Wall (Special Cast)....1
Mar. 3—A Poor Prune (Sammie Burns)....1
Feb. 24—The Movie Queen (Jane Bernoudy)....1
Feb. 17—Them Eyes (Ben Wilson-Neva Gerber)....1
Feb. 10—Mixed Wives (William Farney)....1
Jan. 27—He was No Lady (Vernon)....1
Jan. 20—Only a Janitor (Beery)....1

LYONS-MORAN STAR COMEDIES

Mar. 17—Lay Off....1
Mar. 10—Chicken a La King....1
Mar. 3—Oh Ethel....1
Feb. 24—Mixed Tales....1
Feb. 17—His Body for Rent....1
Feb. 10—Up the Flue....1
Feb. 3—Kitchen Police....1
Jan. 27—Marry My Wife....1
Jan. 20—Sing Rose, Sing....1

WESTERN AND RAILROAD DRAMAS..

Mar. 22—A Prisoner for Life (Eddie Polo)....2
Mar. 15—The Black Horse Bandit (Helen Gibson—Pete Morrison)....2
Mar. 8—The Flip of a Coin (Pete Morrison)....2
Mar. 1—Riding Wild (Helen Gibson)....2
Feb. 22—Raiders of the Range (J. Warren Kerrigan)....2
Feb. 16—Tapering Fingers (Ridgeway)....2
Feb. 9—A Proxy Husband (Violet Mersereau)....2
Feb. 2—Sure Shot Morgan (Carey)....2
Jan. 25—The Border Terror (Mitchell)....2
Jan. 18—The Ghost Girl (Roma Drew)....2
Jan. 11—Rosalind at the Gate (Stonehouse)....2
Jan. 4—The Secret Peril (Helen Gibson)....2

THE LURE OF THE CIRCUS (Serial)

(Eighteen Two-Reel Episodes Starring Eddie Polo.)
Mar. 17—Eighteenth, The Last Trick....
Mar. 10—Seventeenth, a Race with Time....
Mar. 3—Sixteenth, The Knockout....
Feb. 24—Fifteenth, The Stolen Record....
Feb. 17—Fourteenth, Flames....
Feb. 10—Thirteen, A Plunge for Life....
Feb. 3—Twelfth, A Strange Escape....

THE RED GLOVE (Serial)

(Eighteen Two-Reel Episodes Starring Marie Walcamp)
Mch. 17—First, The Pool of Mystery....

NEWS AND MAGAZINE REELS

Mondays —Hearst News (International)....
Wednesdays—International News....
Fridays —Current Events (International)....
Fridays —New Screen Magazine (Universal)....

VITAGRAPH EXCHANGES

Apr. 7—The Cambric Mask (Alice Joyce)....
Mch. 31—Fighting Destiny (Harry T. Morey)....
Mch. 24—Miss Dulcie from Dixie (Gladys Leslie)....
Mch. 17—A Gentleman of Quality (Earle Williams)....
Mch. 10—From Headquarters (Special—Anita Stewart)....
Mch. 10—The Wishing Ring Man (Bessie Love)....
Mch. 3—The Girl Problem (Corinne Griffith)....
Feb. 24—The Lion and the Mouse (Special-Alice Joyce)....
Feb. 17—Silent Strength (Harry T. Morey)....
Feb. 10—Fortune's Child (Gladys Leslie)....
Feb. 3—The Highest Trump (Earle Williams)....

BIG V SPECIAL COMEDIES

Mch. 10—Damsels and Dandies....
Feb. 17—Scamps and Scandal....
Feb. 10—Soapsuds and Sap-Heads....
Feb. 3—Love and Lather....
Jan. 27—Footballs and Frauds....
Jan. 20—Traps and Tangles....

THE MAN OF MIGHT (Serial)

(Fifteen Two-Reel Episodes Starring William Duncan)
—Fifteenth, The Rescue....
—Fourteenth, The Living Catapult....
—Thirteenth, The Flood of Despair....
—Twelfth, The Volcano's Prey....
—Eleventh, The Ship of Dread....
—Tenth, Double Crossed....
—Ninth, The Crashing Horror....
—Eighth, The One Chance....
—Seventh, Into the Trap....
—Sixth, The Height of Torment....
—Fifth, The Human Shield....
—Fourth, The Gripping Hand....
—Third, The Creeping Death....
—Second, The Leap Through Space....
—First, The Riven Flag....

THE IRON TEST (Serial)

(Fifteen Two-Reel Episodes Featuring Antonio Moreno and Carol Holloway)
Jan. 27—Fifteenth, Riding with Death....
Jan. 20—Fourteenth, Desperate Odds....
Jan. 13—Thirteenth, Hanging Peril....
Jan. 6—Twelfth, The Span of Terror....

WARREN, EDWARD, PRODUCTIONS, INC.

(At State Right Exchanges)

Weavers of Life....
Souls Redeemed....

WESTERN IMPORT COMPANY

(At State Right Exchanges)

Mickey (Mabel Normand)....

WORLD FILM EXCHANGES

Apr. 28—The Price of Doubt (All Star Cast)....
Apr. 21—The Quickening Flame (Montagu Love-June Elvidge)....
Apr. 14—The Scar (Kitty Gordon-Irving Cummings)....
Apr. 7—The Little Intruder (Louise Huff-Johnny Hines)....
Mch. 31—The Love Defender (June Elvidge)....
Mch. 24—Hit or Miss (Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley)....
Mch. 17—The Hand Invisible (Montagu Love)....
Mch. 10—The Unveiling Hand (Kitty Gordon)....
Mch. 3—Crook of Dreams (Louise Huff)....
Feb. 24—The Moral Deadline (June Elvidge)....
Feb. 17—Courage for Two (Carlyle Blackwell)....
Feb. 10—Mandarin's Gold (Kitty Gordon)....
Feb. 3—The Rough Neck (Montagu Love)....
Jan. 27—Heart of Gold (Louise Huff)....
Jan. 20—The Bluffer (June Elvidge)....

SPECIALS

Mar. 16—The Better 'Ole....
Feb. 10—What Shall We Do With Him?....
Jan. 6—Under Four Flags (Official Government Picture)....

UNITED PICTURE THEATRES

—Her Code of Honor (Florence Reed)....
Feb. 23—A Man in the Open (Dustin Farnum)....
Jan. 26—Adele (Kitty Gordon)....
Jan. 5—The Light of Western Stars (Dustin Farnum)....

KINOGRAMS (News Reels)

Tuesdays—Kinograms....
Saturdays—Kinograms....

CENTRAL STATES

NEW YORK OFFICE, 729 Seventh Avenue CHICAGO REPRESENTATIVE, 220 So. State Street

School Teacher Censorship Proposed for Sunday Pictures in Indiana

CENSORSHIP of Sunday motion piutures by school teachers was proposed in an amendment to the pending bill to egalize such shows when it got to second reading. The amendment drawn by Senator Negley makes the superintendent of schools in any city or town "chief censor" of pictures o be exhibited on Sunday and provides that the chief censor nay commission regularly employed school teachers to act as leputy censors.

The amendment will provide that no picture shall be exhibted on Sunday until it has been exhibited in full in the presnce of the chief censor or one of the deputies and shall have been certified as "being either 'historical' or 'educational' in nature, and 'moral' in tone and character."

Viewing of pictures would take place at 10 a. m. each Saturday. If the picture to be shown on Sunday is also shown to public audience at the time the censor views it on Saturday, he amendment proposes that the censor "may at any time during such exhibition order such exhibition stopped until the audience shall have left such theatre and all admission fees have been returned at the box office, and then such exhibition shall proceed in the presence of such censor and only such other persons as he or she may direct shall remain." The right of excluding other persons is limited so that municipal or police officials shall not be barred. Provision is made for a payment by the manager of the theatre to the censor of $1 for each picture censored, this to be compensation in full for the ensorship duties.

The original bill provides that the police authorities of each ity and town, and mayor of any city and the board of trustees of any incorporated town, shall have the power to prohibit any noving picture show when in their judgment it is offensive, obscene or immoral or operated in violation of the rules of the ity or town concerning the giving of such shows on Sunday. Senator Negley would amend it so as to make their action in uch cases mandatory, and also to put on the authorities the uty of closing shows not having the certificate from the ensor provided for in the Negley amendment.

Capitol Opens Detroit Exchange

THE Capitol Film Company has opened a Detroit Exchange in the Film Building, and has appointed Charles W. Perry s manager. The Capitol from the start will put out three wo-reel subjects every week, one railroad drama, one comedy nd one Western. Later there will be more releases. These ubjects are brand new and have never been issued before.

Mr. Perry is probably one of the best known film men in the state. He assumed charge last Monday morning. Recently he was special representative for the Independent Sales Corporation and for many years exchange manager for Pathe, both in Detroit and Boston.

"Get Them Out of the Lobby Into the Theatre with Short Subjects," Says Schlank

"PACKED lobbies do not always mean fat profits these days," was Ike Schlank's philosophy last week. Mr. Schlank, who is president of the Capital Film Co., with executive offices in Indianapolis and twenty-two branch offices in the process of opening, is firm in his belief that his concern has solved the biggest problem facing the exhibitor today.

"I know of more exhibitors than I can count," remarked Mr. Schlank, "who are playing to capacity, and at the end of the week the 'dope' sheet shows either a total loss or a profit so meagre that it is discouraging.

"The whole trouble is the long-drawn-out picture, which excludes any possibility of emptying the houses during the rush hours at a rate that will permit the manager to quit worrying. Every man knows he must give his patrons a diversified program, but the troublesome factor is the lack of the 'short' feature.

"The Capital Film Co. has made a careful survey of the situation and has proven the practicability of the solution it offers in the districts of each of the six branch exchanges already opened," added the enthusiastic Mr. Schlank. "Cut out the draggy feature. That's the only way out. That's why we are restricting our releases to two and three-reel features and single and double-reel comedies. The public wants 'pep.' They want stars. We've got all the stars in the world at our disposal. The short feature is the one way to get 'pep' and —better by far—the one and only way to increase the number of people who can get in to see your show when you have got a good one.

"Passers-by," continued Schlank, "are not going to stop and fight their way into a theatre where a crowd chokes a lobby for an hour at a time. It even drives the regular patrons to the competitor or back home, disgruntled with the movies in general.

"Think it over," was the diminutive energy dynamo's parting bit of philosophy. "I know whereof I speak, and by the stacks of signed Capital contracts pouring in on every mail, there are hundreds of exhibitors who have also seen the handwriting on the wall."

And Ike left us with no room for doubt that he was just as confident as General Foch was that Hindenburg would NOT reach Paris.

THE CENTRAL STATES

March 8, 1919

Interesting Items of Elgin

RETURN showing of Douglas Fairbanks in "A Modern Musketeer" led the bill at the Star the week of February 17. Other attractions included Earl Williams and Grace Darmond in "The Highest Trump," Mutt and Jeff in a comedy, Catherine Calvert in "Marriage," Harold Lloyd in "Check Your Baggage," Marguerite Marsh in "Conquered Hearts," a comique, "Round the World in Nine Minutes;" the Sidney Drews in comedy, return showing of Fatty Arbuckle in "The Cook, a comedy, "Freckled Fish;" Pearl White in "The Lightning Raider," Florence Reed in "A Woman's Law," and Mary Miles Minter in "Wives and Other Wives."

IN the month of March the Grand is promising a radical change in stars from the program which earlier months of the year have offered. Select picture bookings, inclusive of a great many pictures starring Norma and Constance Talmadge, are almost "played out" and Manager Newman expects to temporarily suspend their booking and give the greater part of March to Paramount programs. He has promised two Marguerite Clark pictures for near bookings to pacify the clamoring for this little favorite—"Out of a Clear Sky" and "Prunella," and pictures by Lila Lee, Fred Stone and Ethel Clayton.

ALICE BRADY in "The Hollow of Her Hand" and Marion Davies in "Cecelia of the Pink Roses" drew only fair crowds to the Grand the week of February 10. "The Code of the Yukon" went considerably better.

ANOTHER big plunge will be taken by Manager Fay in bringing "The Heart of Humanity" to the Temple for showing March 11. That date is one of the three paydays of the great Elgin National Watch factory in the month, the time when the bigger part of the town comes downtown of an evening to shop and seek entertainment in the films. He is expecting extensive crowds and making preparation to put the picture over tremendously.

THE Grand announces the coming of "The Shepherd of the Hills" for showing February 24, 25 and 26. The ten-reel picture is planned for the week's feature.

IN the week of February 17 the Grand offered Constance Talmadge in "Who Cares," Elsie Ferguson in "Hearts of the Wilds" and Wallace Reid in "The Man from Funeral Range."

THE comedy bill at the Temple the week of February 17 included showings of "Pearls and a Peach," "His Dark Past," "Some Mother," "How Is Your Hsuband?" "Only a Janitor," "Know Thy Wife" and "Hoop La, the Circus Girl." Serials were Houdini in "The Master Mystery," fifth episode; Eddie Polo in "Lure of the Circus," the Weekly News and Screen Telegram and Current Events. Other pictures included Mary Boland in "A Woman's Experience," Mabel Normand in "A Touch of Rheumatism," "The Coming of Faro Nell," J. Warren Kerrigan and Lois Wilson in "The Drifter," Monroe Salisbury and Ruth Clifford in "The Millionaire Pirate."

MARY PICKFORD in "Amarilly of Clothesline Alley," shown at the Crystal February 18, led the week's picture bill there. Other stars and pictures of the week were Ella Hall and Priscilla Drew in "Which Woman?" Ruth Roland and George Larkins in "Hands Up," Harry Morey in "The Game With Fate," Gladys Leslie in "Little Miss No-Account," Little Bobby Connelly in "Just What Bob Wanted," the Katzenjammer Kids in "Pep," and the comedy, "Counts and No Accounts."

MITCHELL LEWIS was shown in Elgin both at the Grand and at the Temple on Saturday, February 15. At the former house he played in "Code of the Yukon" and at the Temple in "Life's Greatest Problem." Both shows went good.

MANAGER Fay crowded the Temple for afternoon and evening performances of Priscilla Dean in "The Wildcat of Paris" Tuesday and Wednesday, February 12 and 13. The picture made tremendous appeal and there is probability of return showing at later date.

FOLLOWING his policy of bringing to town as soon as possible after their release the superproductions in pictures, Manager Fay will bring Mabel Normand in "Mickey" to the Temple February 25, 26 and 27. He is making preparations for extensive and universal advertising and is shutting his eyes and plunging deep, expecting to bring back great spoil. He is of the opinion that the current showing of "Mickey" in the many Chicago and suburban playhouses will be material aid to his own advertising. The bringing of "Mickey" is the most elaborate undertaking assumed by Manager Fay since his taking possession of the Temple last Summer.

FOR the third time since the new year Manager H. P. Rorig, of the Orpheum, offered opportunity to see the widely-popular "Tarzan of the Apes" to his patrons Thursday, February 21. The two previous showings, attended by special advertising displays in windows, newspapers and billboards, crowded the house for regular afternoon and evening performances and school children's matinee performances for two days each. He expects with the last showing to clean up the demands for return showings and to soon follow with an offering of "The Romance of Tarzan."

VIOLA DANA in "Blue Jeans" featured the bill at the Orpheum in the week of February 17. It was shown on Wednesday, the 19th. Other stars and pictures of the week included Lewis S. Stone and Marguerite Clayton in "The Man of Bronze," May Allison in "Her Inspiration," Norma Talmadge in "Her Only Way," and June Elvidge in "The Zero Hour." There was showing also of the educational film, "The Truth About the Liberty Motor."

MANAGER GUS COOK of the Crystal theatre, Dundee, is making his deep plunge into production speculation in bringing to his town on Friday, February 21, the great "Hearts of the World" picture. He is showing it with special orchestra, with special matinee performances at 55 and 28 cents admission, and in the evening at 55 and 83 cents admission, prices including war tax. Seats for the night performance are reserved. He is expecting the greatest crowds ever entertained in this playhouse.

Kohls Uses Surprise on Lincoln's Birthday

DIRECTOR LEO S. KOHLS, of the Riviera theatre, sprang a timely surprise on patrons of that house on Lincoln's birthday, by presenting F. S. Jones as Abraham Lincoln.

This act followed the overture and from the enthusiasm with which it was received by an audience that packed the theatre from top to bottom, composed of Chicago's elite, proved Mr. Kohls' ability to please the public. Round after round of applause greeted this masterly innovation.

Heard in Detroit

EDDIE McGRATH, who left the Broadway Strand theatre fter four years of continuous service last week, was presented vith a silver loving cup when he made his final appearance as he soloist of that playhouse. The cup was the gift of employes f the theatre and management. Just as Mr. McGrath was nishing his nightly performance the orchestra struck "Auld ang Syne," after which J. Fred Lawton made the presentation peech. Miss Hilda Barr will be the soloist for two weeks dur- ng which she will introduce some novelties.

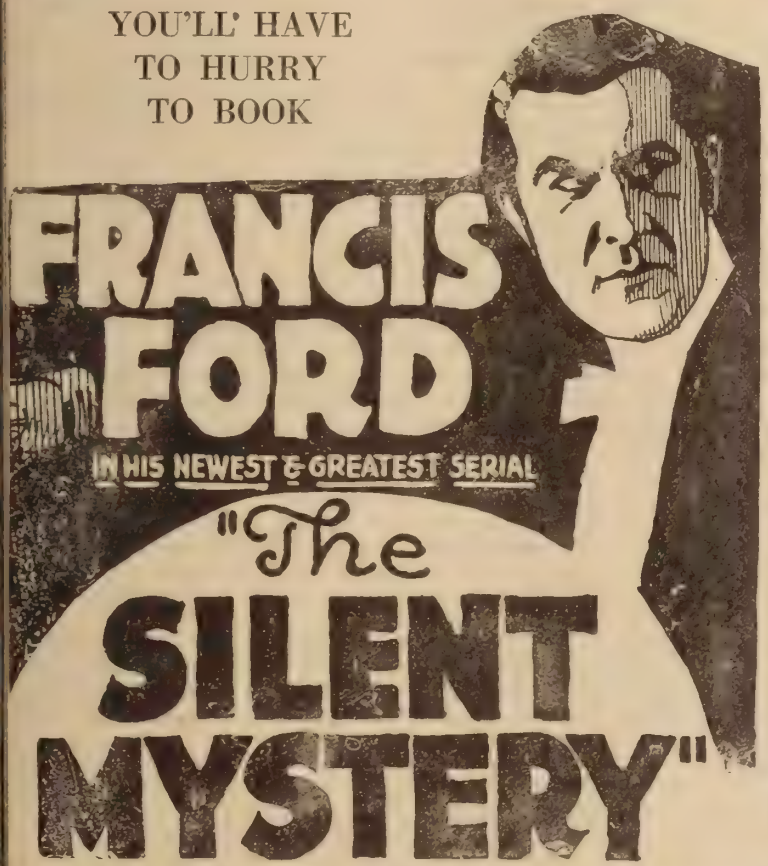
THE FINE ARTS theatre, one of the most prosperous neigh- orhood playhouses in the city, has been sold by Henry G. uthard to William C. Gunsche. Alvin Smith will continue as anager with full authority. The house will be redecorated nd about $15,000 will be spent in this effort. A new $10,000 rgan will be installed. The orchestra, under DeMotte Giblo, im.

AT a meeting of the Detroit Motion Picture Exhibitors' eague in the Hotel Tuller last week a resolution was adopted nanimously condemning the dishonest exhibitor who steals xtra days and sub-rents films. According to the exchange anagers certain state exhibitors have been bicycling films to great extent. The complaint has been made of exhibitors in istant parts of the state.

THE Arthur S. Hyman Attractions has opened a new suite of fices in the Film building and moved into one of the most eautiful suites in the city. The private offices are finished in iffany with blue, gold and old rose as the predominating olors. Indirect lighting and all of the most modern equip- ent has been installed making it an attractive place in which transact business affairs.

A SPECIAL meeting of the Detroit Exhibitors' League was held in the Hotel Tuller Thursday, February 27, according to an announcement made by President Kirchner. Every exhibitor in the city and state was invited.

WHEN "Wanted for Murder," an early attraction at the Washington theatre, is shown, the star, Elaine Hammerstein, will appear personally in that playhouse. Manager W. A. Haynes, of the Independent Sales Corporation, has planned a number of special festivities for her.



E. O. GURNEY, who spent a few days in Detroit as travelling auditor for Universal, sailed from Vancouver, B. C., for the Orient February 27, for a two-year trip to establish a system in the Universal exchanges there. Mrs. Gurney accompanied will continue.

"THE HEART OF HUMANITY" made such a phenomenal two-weeks' run in the Alhambra theatre, Toledo, that General Manager H. C. Horater wired W. D. Ward, Detroit Jewel, manager, for a third week. The second week in Toledo surpassed the first week's run, he declares.

Council Rescinds Action on Proposed Sunday Closing at Flint

THE movement to close places of amusement in Flint on Sundays appears to have struck a snag. Ald. Homer Vette, one of the signers of petitions for the Sunday closing, who offered a resolution to submit the matter to a vote of the people backed up on the proposition at the last meeting of the common council and offered a resolution rescinding the former action. The resolution was adopted and the request for Sunday closing lies pigeon-holed where it probably will remain.

In explaining his action of offering a resolution rescinding his former action, Ald. Vette stated that he had been requested by numerous people "for good reasons" to refrain from submitting the question to a popular vote. He offered no reason.

CHARLES RAY in "THE CLUE"
The FIRST one of the Films you have been waiting for
A two-reeler every two weeks

THOMAS H. INCE
KAY-BEE
Westerns

that MADE them FAMOUS with Charles Ray
Sessue Hayakawa
Anna Little
Clara Williams
Walter Edwards
All new and re-titled
Better than ever
Phone, write or wire

BEE HIVE EXCHANGE

MILWAUKEE — Toy Building
CHICAGO — 207 So. Wabash
INDIANAPOLIS — 109 W. Maryland

They Say in Chicago That—

MILDRED HARRIS (Mrs. Charles Chaplin), accompanied by Blanche Sweet, passed through Chicago Wednesday, February 19, and was a guest at the Blackstone.

BEN BEADELL, assistant manager of the Select, Chicago office, is now covering Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin, and reports big business.

JACOB COOPER, owner of the Twentieth Century theatre, Chicago, made a flying trip recently to Milwaukee—could it be that Mr. Cooper has designs on the city that made some things famous.

FRED AIKEN, Chicago manager Select office, with his ever-present smile, says that never in his many years' experience has he met so many satisfied exhibitors as those using Select pictures. The gentleman looks forward to great things for the forthcoming release of "The Probation Wife," featuring Norma Talmadge. He says that all their specials are keeping right up in the front row.

CHAS. H. DARRELL, of the John H. Kunsky Detroit Circuit, has been in Chicago arranging for new novelties to be used in all their houses. The gentleman closed a deal with Willis and Eckels, owners of Film Craft, to make a line of special film trailers, announcing coming attractions. Willis and Eckels specialize in life-trailers which have created a furore in all of Chicago's leading picture theatres.

"MOVIE HONEY," which is to be published twice a month in the interests of the Beehive Exchanges, Chicago, Milwaukee and Indianapolis, has made its first appearance. R. C. Cropper, the head of the works, has done himself proud, and is sponsoring a cleancut-up-to-the-minute, snappy publication. Keep it up, Friend Cropper, and you will have them all talking about you.

LOUIS B. MAYER, the guiding star of the Anita Stewart Productions, spent several days in Chicago, stopping at the Blackstone—"Some Star"—"Some Productions"—"Some Man"—and, according to Harry Weiss of the Central Film Co., the Blackstone is Some Boarding Place; just the place, he says, for a regular fellow like Mr. Mayer is.—Watterson Rothacker echoes "Amen."

CARL LAEMMLE, the wide-awake and aggressive president of the Universal Film Co., just passed through Chicago on his way to the Coast. The gentleman claims that his chief trouble at the present time is getting good scenarios. He has issued explicit instructions to his scenario department that there are to be no more stories used that in any way deal with "John Barleycorn."

JOSEPH A. SHAFFER, publicity manager of the Ascher Bros. circuit of picture palaces, left for Rockford to put over a big campaign for their Midway theatre of that city for the opening of the picture, "A Romance of Happy Valley." Joe says that he will make every inhabitant of Rockford and surrounding country sit up and take notice, or he won't come back.

LOU SHUTT, advertising manager of Select Pictures, Chicago office, is throwing out his chest with pride, having just completed the installation of what seems to be one of the most perfect systems for the handling of posters and advertising matter of all kinds on each production. Mr. Shutt'e many years of practical experience in the film game since it started have been of great help in the perfection of the system.

CHAS. C. PYLE, general sales manager of the Bartola Musical Instrument Co., is still in the east—business must be good, Charlie, to keep you from your home fireside so long.

THE CAPITAL FILM CO. opened their seventh branch exchange last week at Detroit, Mich. They have secured excellent space in the Film Bldg., and early reports were to the effect that Detroit is looking with considerable favor upon the new short feature idea.

THE RIALTO THEATRE, Champaign, under the management of Chas. H. Clark, is doing splendid business.

FRANK L. SMITH, formerly manager of the Indianapolis Branch of the Capital Film Co., has been made special representative of their concern. When last heard of, Frank was on his way to the Philadelphia Exchange to aid the local manager, Phil Greenburg, on a special campaign on the new two-reel features.

GEO. KLEINE made a quick jump to New York Sunday on the Century for a Monday A.M. landing—something doing?

JULIUS BURNHEIM, assistant manager of the Universal office, Minneapolis, made a special trip to Chicago to "Say Uncle," or rather "Howdy" to his uncle, Carl Laemmle.

W. G. MAXEY, president of the Bartola Musical Instrument Co., Oshkosh, Wis., has just made a flying trip to Chicago. Mr. Maxey is certainly a busy man.

"THE SILENT MYSTERY" had a pre-release showing at the Star theatre Sunday, February 16. The picture kept the house packed all day and evening and will run the entire week.

MERRILL SMITH, the genial manager of the Kleine System, has been confined to his home with a bad cold—hurry up, Merrill, and get back on the job.

WASHINGTON'S Birthday, February 22, marked the opening of the serial, "Silent Mystery," at the Balaban and Katz palatial Central Park theatre. This is the first time the house has ever shown a serial picture.

W. C. LAMOREAUX, manager of Ascher Bros. Chateau theatre, turned a new trick with the presentation of "Mickey," February 19 and 20, using five young ladies dressed as Mickey, two of whom sang the song followed by three in an artistic dance, accompanied by the same melody. Others used one. "Billy" thought if one was good five would be better. They were.

W. M. FAY, manager Temple theatre, Elgin, jumped in and out of Chicago three times last week. Looks as though the gentleman was flirting with several large features.

A. TEITEL reports that he is doing a wonderful business with his new process for preserving new films. In the last month he has treated some of the biggest features, such as "And the Children Pay," "Mickey," and the new historical eight-reel production not yet released, entitled "The Chosen Prince." He is also busy cleaning prints of "Salome" for the Wm. Fox Co.

New and Old Films CLEANED and CONSERVED A. TEITEL
112 North La Salle Street, Chicago, Illinoi

Central States Edition Brings Results Promptly and Plentifully

"The first thing I look for is the chatty, keenly interesting Central States Section," said an Indiana Exhibitor, "it has the home town appeal."

With Dubuque Exhibitors

BIG advertising and Douglas Fairbanks' own drawing power brought the Grand a tremendous business February 5, 6 and 7, when "He Comes Up Smiling" was shown. The picture opened to good afternoon and extra big evening houses, and during its engagement kept the good work up. The picture was considered one of the best ever done by the athletic star. The leading lady, Marjorie Daw, is a great favorite.

"THE ZERO HOUR," with June Elvidge, played to fair houses February 5 and 6 at the Dreamland. Miss Elvidge was well liked, but the majority of her followers did not care for the picture. A Gaumont news reel was also shown.

MANAGER BOYLE, of the Dreamland, has installed two modern, up-to-the-minute Simplex projection machines. With these machines and his mirror screen the Dreamland pictures are the cleanest and clearest shown in the city.

TOM MOORE and Hazel Daly were well received at the Family theatre February 5, when they co-starred in "Brown of Harvard." Both of the young players are popular at this theatre and are players of ability. The picture drew an excellent week-day house.

NUMEROUS improvements at the Liberty theatre, under the capable management of Harry A. Wilbur, have been quietly going on for the past few weeks. The house now boasts of a new ventilation system, so constructed that the air is kept continuously pure and free from a surplus amount of carbon dioxide, and the heating plant has been changed to accommodate a larger and better furnace. The projection department has been improved to the extent of a new gold fibre screen, "second to none in the city," as Manager Wilbur expressed it.

HOWARD HICKMAN made his début as a star in Dubuque February 5 and 6, when he appeared at the Princess theatre in "Blue Blood." Large audiences greeted the picture both days.

"THE DANGER GAME," with Madge Kennedy, proved a most appropriate vehicle for the star in the opinion of Family theatre patrons, who had the pleasure of viewing it February 6. Every picture made by Miss Kennedy seems to be better than its predecessor; her plays are always good, clean, wholesome comedy dramas that appeal to all classes of people. Tom Moore headed a good supporting cast.

"THE DEEMSTER," the film adaptation of Hall Caine's novel of the same name, was shown at the Family theatre February 7 to excellent houses. Derwent Hall Caine, the star, proved himself especially fitted to the role he portrayed.

WILLIAM DUNCAN pleased picture fans who attended one of his latest pictures, "Deuce Duncan," shown at the Liberty theatre. In this picture one saw glimpses of the dashing horsemanship of the athletic star that were surprising as well as gratifying. A very good crowd attended the feature.

"THE BIRTH OF A RACE" ran a highly successful three-days' engagement at the Majestic theatre February 6, 7 and 8. The picture attracted splendid houses at a greatly increased rate of admission.

A PRISCILLA DEAN feature, "She Hired a Husband," and a Ben Wilson comedy, "Let's Fight," formed the program at the Star theatre February 6 and 7. On Saturday "The Wine Girl," with Carmel Myers, made a distinctive hit with the Star's patrons. She proved to be the most popular star the theatre has featured since its opening.

KITTY GORDON, Frank Mayo and Muriel Ostriche played at the Liberty theatre February 10 in "Tinsel."

SINCE "Vive la France" Dorothy Dalton's popularity in this city has increased by leaps and bounds. "The Mating of Marcella," a Dalton feature, came to the Princess February 7 and 8, and turned out to be a great drawing card. Friday's houses were good and on Saturday it kept the crowds standing outside the theatre.

THE reappearance of Edith Story in Dubuque theatres after several months' absence was hailed with delight by numerous followers of the actress. Her picture, "The Silent Woman," was shown at the Dreamland theatre February 7 and 8.

THE Times-Journal, co-operating with the Dubuque picture houses, has agreed to run a section of the paper devoted entirely to the screen. Of course, the department is not large at present, but the exhibitors are realizing the value of a certain amount of publicity and are beginning to increase their advertising, thus entitling them to increased reading matter. The plan is, from all appearances, working out very well.

FRED STONE made his initial appearance in pictures in Dubuque Monday and Tuesday, February 10 and 11, at the Grand in "The Goat."

Seeing Shows Around Dubuque

THE features shown at the Plaza theatre at Manchester, Ia., during the latter part of the week of February 2 were "The Keys of the Righteous," with Enid Bennett; "Eve's Daughter," with Billie Burke, and "Flowers of the Dusk," with Viola Dana. On Sunday, February 9, Mary Miles Minter was seen to advantage in "The Eyes of Julia Deep." The picture was repeated Monday. Madge Kennedy starred in "The Kingdom of Youth" on Tuesday, while "The Thing We Love," with Wallace Reid, was the Wednesday feature. Elsie Ferguson held the boards on Thursday in "The Song of Songs."

ON Thursday, February 6, Norma Talmadge took the patrons of the Star theatre at Decorah, Ia., by storm when she appeared in one of her best vehicles, "De Luxe Annie."

"SAY, YOUNG FELLOW," was voted to be Fairbanks' best picture this year by the patrons of the Palace theatre at Waverly, Ia., where it was shown to large houses on Sunday and Monday, February 9 and 10.

THE manager of the Star theatre at Decorah, Ia., booked "The Crisis" for showing on Monday and Tuesday, February 10 and 11. The picture was shown at only slightly raised prices because, as the manager stated in a public announcement, he made so much on the Chaplin picture shown recently that he could afford to show "The Crisis" at a reduced rate to show his appreciation of the patronage of Decorah people.

CHARLES RAY and Harold Lloyd held the boards Saturday, February 8, at the Grand theatre at Anamosa, Ia. The former played in "The Hired Man" and the latter in "She Loves Me Not." Both of the young men are great favorites here.

"BRAVE AND BOLD," with George Walsh, was shown to fine houses Saturday, February 8, at the Cozy theatre at Dyersville, Ia.

THE Dreamland theatre at Galena is continuing to show the best possible pictures. On Monday, February 10, "He Comes Up Smiling," a late Fairbanks release, packed the house; Tuesday's program was "Hidden Fires," with Mae Marsh. On Wednesday that splendid actress, Louise Glaum, played in "Wedlock;" on Thursday "A Law Unto Herself" was shown. Friday's bill was "Her Great Chance," with Alice Brady, and the week closed with the showing of "One More American," with George Beban, on Saturday.

SOME of the big attractions booked for showing at the Dreamland theatre at Galena during February and March are "Hearts of the World," "The Eyes of the World," "The Squaw Man" and "The Greatest Thing in Life."

News and Gossip of Springfield Theatres

THE SAVOY certainly is pulling the crowds with Vitagraph's "A Fight for Millions." Manager Kerasotes had on the thirteenth chapter Sunday, February 16, and played to big business. Other pictures on the same program were Helen Gibson in "The Canyon Mixup" and a two-reel L-Ko comedy. For Monday the Savoy had "Tangled Lives," with Harry Morey, and "Fatty's Canine Friend," a two-reel comedy; Tuesday, Barbara Castleton in "Empty Pockets;" Wednesday, a special feature; Thursday, "The Brazen Beauty," with Priscilla Dean; Friday, twefth and thirteenth chapters of "The Iron Test," and "The Square Gambler," with Broncho Billy; Saturday, Mildred Harris in "Borrowed Clothes."

W. S. HART in "The Two-Gun Man," Theda Bara in "The Soul of Buddha," Tom Mix in "Mr. Logan, U. S. A.," and Theda Bara in "Under the Yoke" are some of the pictures that have been stacking the crowds in for Ben Rovin, at the Amuse-U. The Fox stars are certainly hot favorites in the region of Sixth and Washington, and Ben has only to flash a banner and a slide announcing the coming of a new play to insure himself a packed house.

TWO things that are worrying local exhibitors at present are the 5 per cent reel tax and the censorship bill that is being agitated at the Capitol at present. It is expected the up-State film contingent will be on hand to fight the measure when it comes up and it is hoped that the bill will be unsuccessful. Petitions have already been sent in opposing the proposed 5 per cent film tax, and it is the feeling here that the bill will be defeated.

THE CAPITOL started the new Francis Ford serial, "The Silent Mystery," the first part of March.

THE GAIETY has signed for ten Keystone comedy re-issues, starting with Mack Sennett's "His Valet."

"THE WILDCAT OF PARIS," Universal special, with Priscilla Dean, did big business for the Princess on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, February 16, 17 and 18. Miss Dean has developed into quite a favorite here and her following is now large. A Vitagraph comedy, "Soapsuds and Sapheads," was also on the program. The following pictures were booked by the Princess and shown in the order named: February 19-20, Sessue Hayakawa in "Bonds of Honor;" February 21-22, Bessie Barriscale in "Two-Gun Betty;" February 23-24-25, Alice Joyce in "The Lion and the Mouse;" February 26-27, Billie Rhodes in "Hoop-La;" February 28 and March 1, Dustin Farnum in "The Man in the Open."

MANAGER GUS KERASOTES notified MOTION PICTURE NEWS' correspondent that he was so dissatisfied with "The Stafford Mystery," a Mutual picture, with Billie Burke, that he has decided to cancel all Mutual productions, to take effect at once. Mr. Kerasotes states that he was sold this picture with the understanding that it was a genuine Billie Burke five-reel production, and after running it saw that it was nothing more than five reels of "Gloria's Romance." Mr. Kerasotes is under the impression that he was "buncoed" and feels that he should not deal further with the company until the wrong has been righted. The program for the Royal for the week of February 16-22 follows: Sunday, chapter 13 of "The Lure of the Circus" and two other short subjects; Monday, Carlyle Blackwell and June Elvidge in "Hitting the Trail;" Tuesday, Evelyn Nesbit in "The Woman Who Gave;" Wednesday, Kitty Gordon in "Merely Players; Thursday, Gladys Leslie in "Wild Primrose;" Friday, the Lees, Jane and Katherine, in "Swat the Spy;" Saturday, Louise Glaum in "The Goddess of Lost Lake." Manager Kerasotes announces that "Under Four Flags" will be shown for a run at the Royal early in March.

MAJOR H. T. LOPER, owner of the Kimbark theatre, Chicago, is visiting his son, Harry Loper, manager of the Lyric theatre. The elder Loper announces that things are very good in Chicago at this time.

A SUMMARY of the week of February 9-15 reveals the news that Charles Ray had four good days at the Vaudette with "The Girl Dodger," and Lina Cavalieri followed for three more in "The Two Brides" to fair patronage. The Gaiety did well with "Don't Change Your Husband," and also played to goodly crowds with Geraldine Farrar in "Shadows." The Princess did well for three days with Mildred Harris in "When a Girl Loves," and also was satisfied with business on William Desmond in "Life's a Funny Proposition" and Lucille Lee Stewart in "The Eleventh Commandment," both pictures showing two days each. For the same week the Lyric had George Walsh in "Luck and Pluck," May Allison in "In for Thirty Days," Hale Hamilton in "$5,000 an Hour," and Emmy Wehlen in "Sylvia on a Spree." Manager Loper had no complaint to make on the week's business.

THE MAJESTIC has finished showing the Vitagraph serial, "A Fight for Millions." No new serial has been contracted for at this writing.

MARGUERITE CLARK in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," with an Arbuckle re-issue and Burton Holmes Travelogue, were the attractions at the Vaudette February 16, 17 18 and 19. At the Gaiety William Faversham in "The Silver King" and "Fatty" Arbuckle in "Camping Out" were holding forth. The Princess had Priscilla Dean in "The Wildcat of Paris," and the Lyric, Virginia Pearson in "The Love Auction."

THE GAIETY bookings for the future reveal Mae Marsh in "The Bondage of Barbara," W. S. Hart in "Breed of Men," and Mabel Normand in "Sis Hopkins." The Vaudette has Elliott Dexter and Ethel Clayton in "Maggie Pepper; "The Winning Girl," with Shirley Mason and Niles Welch, and "The Poor Boob," with Bryant Washburn. The Lyric has Bert Lytell coming in "Faith," Charlotte Walker in "Every Mother's Son," and then starts in to show Select pictures.

THE CAPITOL revived Charlie Chaplin in "The Immigrant" for Sunday, February 16, and did a whale of a business. "The Lightning Raider, with Pearl White, was also on the bill, and the two pictures delighted capacity crowds. Madge Kennedy followed on Monday in "The Glorious Adventure," along with a Christie comedy. The bill for the rest of the week, ending February 22, was: Tuesday, William Desmond in "The Pretender," and "The House of Terrible Scandals," a three-reel Fox comedy; Wednesday, Mitchell Lewis in "Nine-Tenths of the Law;" Thursday, Mary Pickford in "The Dawn of a Tomorrow," and "Ramble Along," a Lloyd comedy; Friday, "The Girl of My Dreams," with Billie Rhodes," and Eleanor Field in "The Girl on the Box," Strand comedy; Saturday, "The Terror of the Range," chapter 3, and Billy West comedy, "He's In Again."

GUS KERASOTES enjoyed two big days' patronage with William Farnum in "Les Miserables." Gus was about the only exhibitor in the city who had nerve enough to play this film, most of the managers figuring it a poor "draw." "Les Miserables" with foreign cast played the Chatterton several years ago and was a failure financially. This is where the deduction came in that Farnum couldn't put the picture over in Springfield. But it proved a money-maker for the Royal and Gus Kerasotes deserves credit for trying what others shied at.

FOR the past two weeks Louie Kerasotes has lost out on the Universal serial, "The Iron Test," and the manager of the Savoy is real angry. Whether it is the fault of the exchange or the express company Louie does not know. Savoy patrons were greatly disappointed and walked away from the box office when informed the serial had not arrived.

"THE HEART OF HUMANITY" played the Avon theatre, Decatur, for five days, starting February 23. A special orchestra was engaged, and the prices for the big picture run from 25 cents to one dollar. Two performances were given daily. One of the heaviest advertising campaigns ever put over by any theatre in this section of the country was used by the Avon.

FROM the outlying houses comes the cheering news that business is much better than at this time last year. This refers to the Empress, North End Circle, Palace and Pekin theatres.

MISS NELL KEMPER has left for New York City to become identified with the International News Service. Before leaving for Broadway, Miss Kemper came in and wrote on this editor's typewriter, thereby acquiring the distinction of being the greatest film celebrity that has yet used said machine.

"Mickey" and F. O. Are Synonymous in This Section

F. O. NEILSON, head of the Mickey Productions, Chicago office, has struck his gait, and bids fair to break old records, which is going some, as the gentleman's past performances have a string of medals tacked on them a mile long.

The combination of a first-class man and a first-class picture, such as "Mickey," is something hard to beat.

Neilson at present holds the record of being the busiest man in Chicago's film world, and is getting mighty few hours' rest out of each twenty-four.

The neighborhoods in which "Mickey" has been played to an enormous business are sending in for repeats, thick and fast. The Deluxe Theatre, with a seating capacity of approximately 1,200, played "Mickey" February 16 and 17, repeating on the Pantheon and Lakeside, and according to reports their receipts for the two days eclipsed anything in the history of the house since it was built.

The success of the picture has afforded Mr. Neilson an opportunity to hand his army of friends among the exhibitors a great big juicy plum, filled with real money, that will keep him in their minds as a pleasant memory.

Express Companies Disappoint Seventeen Illinois Exhibitors

ED KUNZ, of Springfield, Ill., was short his picture one day last week, and by long distance found that it was due to arrive on a late afternoon train. Mr. Kunz went over to the station and met the train, thinking to hustle the film right over to the Princess as soon as possible.

But there was nothing for him. He asked the expressman if he had any film for the Princess, and the answer was in the negative. Then the expressman volunteered the following information:

"We pulled out of St. Louis leaving seventeen packages of film on the platform. All were billed north. Why we pulled out before they were put aboard the train is something I cannot answer."

And so Ed Kunz, along with sixteen other exhibitors between Springfield and St. Louis, spent the afternoon gnashing his teeth and spouting angry words, and waiting hopefully for his picture to get in.

How can you expect an exhibitor to have a nice disposition when every one is trying to take a fall out of him?

Gathered in Green Bay

PAULINE FREDERICK, Paramount star, played in "La Tosca" in the Orpheum theatre February 20-21-22-23. Her work pleased patrons of the house.

"THE MAN FROM FUNERAL RANGE," a Paramount film in which Wallace Reid is featured, was offered February 21-22 in the Colonial theatre.

EDITH ROBERTS was seen in the Bluebird production, "Sue of the South," at the Royal theatre February 21-22. The story is an interesting romance.

"THE TESTING OF MILDRED VANE," a Metro film, was given February 16 in the Colonial theatre. May Allison was in the lead.

DOROTHY DALTON was screened in the Paramount picture, "Vive La France," in the Colonial theatre, February 17-18.

"CHEATING CHEATERS," with Clara Kimball Young in the leading role, was exhibited in the Grand theatre February 20-21-22-23. It is a Select.

CHARLES RAY appeared at the Orpheum theatre in the Paramount picture, "The Family Skeleton," February 13-14-15-16.

THE Goldwyn film, "The Bondage of Baraba," was exhibited February 19-20 in the Colonial theatre. Mae Marsh was seen as the star.

ANNETTE KELLERMANN, of the Fox studios, was presented in the film "Queen of the Sea," at the Orpheum theatre February 10-11-12.

MARY PICKFORD was presented in "Johanna Enlists," an Artcraft picture, February 17-18-19, at the Grand theatre. She was greeted by large audiences.

MARY MILES MINTER was seen in a comedy film entitled "The Eyes of Julia Deep," produced by the American Film Company, in the Royal theatre, February 19-20.

"FIVE THOUSAND AN HOUR," a Metro film, was given February 9 at the Colonial theatre. Hale Hamilton, a new actor at this house, was in the leading part.

MADAME OLGA PETROVA played in the Royal theatre in "The Light Within," on February 18.

"WHEN DO WE EAT," a Paramount picture, was given February 10-11 at the Colonial theatre, with Enid Bennett taking the leading role.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS was enjoyed in the picture, "He Comes Up Smiling," from the Artcraft studios, when he appeared at the Grand theatre February 10-11-12.

JOHN BARRYMORE was seen in "Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman," at the Royal theatre February 12-13.

HAROLD LOCKWOOD played in the Metro picture, "The Great Romance," at the Colonial theatre February 12-13.

Here and There in Fond du Lac

MANAGER SMITH of the Bijou has booked the big Drury Lane spectacle, "Sporting Life"—a Paramount Special—for March 24, 25 and 26. Mr. Smith will advance the price to 25 cents for this picture.

MANAGER AINSWORTH, of the Orpheum, has booked Geraldine Farrar in "The Hell-Cat" for March 24, 25 and 26.

ORPHEUM patrons are due for a real treat on March 17, 18 and 19, when they will have an opportunity to see that tremendous puller, the Pathe picture "Infatuation," featuring Gaby Deslys. Manager Ainsworth was able to secure this picture at a figure that will permit him to let his usual prices stand. He plans to advertise the picture heavily. Large oil paintings of the film star will be hung in the lobby throughout the performance.

MANAGER VOLLERT of the Henry Boyle made a ten strike when he booked Mabel Normand in "Mickey," which scored big.

In Indianapolis and Indiana

A TEMPORARY restraining order directed against the owners and proprietors of the Rialto theatre, Illinois street and Kentucky avenue, to prevent them from wrecking the building occupied by the tailor shop of Fred J. Geile, 11 Kentucky avenue, was granted by Judge Linn D. Hay in Superior Court, Room 2, Thursday. Geile says he holds a five-year lease on the room that will not expire until June 1, 1921. The work is being done to enlarge the Rialto theatre. Judge Hay set the hearing on a permanent injunction for Monday morning at 9 o'clock. The temporary restraining order names Fred B. Leonard, the Lenwood Amusement Company, Hubert H. Woodsmall, Charles J. Wacker and the Jennings Company as defendants.

THE Ben Ross Feature Film Corporation, of Indianapolis, was incorporated Thursday at the Statehouse. Capital, $10,000. Motion pictures. Directors: Benjamin Ross, Ethel Ross, Wetzel Swartz.

REPRESENTATIVES of motion picture theatre owners and operators met Thursday afternoon with the board of public safety for further discussion of means of eliminating overcrowding in theatres with the consequent dangers of panic, but definite action was postponed pending further consideration of orders received yesterday by motion picture houses from the state industrial board and approved by H. H. Friedley, state fire marshall. The order, copies of which also were sent to the board of public safety and to Blaine H. Miller, city building commissioner, forbids the crowding of persons in the aisles and passageways of theatres and requires that no more persons be standing in the rear of any theatre than there are seats in the back row. Passageways to exits all must be clear, the order requires. The board at a preliminary conference with the motion picture men last Saturday evening told them that steps must be taken to overcome all dangerous overcrowding in the lobbies and rear aisles or passageways.

T. G. PERFECT, principal owner of the Huntington Motion Picture Company, announced Thursday that he will start the construction of a new motion picture theatre at Huntington that will seat 1,000 persons.

MISS CLARA BURNSIDES, superviser of women police, has announced a committee of seven women who will censor moving pictures shown in Indianapolis on Sunday. The committee was appointed following a meeting of the Indianapolis indorsers of photoplays. Miss Burnside said the committee will not endeavor to criticise photoplays in general, but will devote its attention to those considered of an objectionable nature. The committee is composed of Mrs. David Ross, 3851 North Pennsylvania Street; Mr. Theodore Wagner, 1445 Broadway; Mrs. H. O. Phillips, 2510 Park Avenue; Mrs. Fred Pettijohn, 2423 Central Avenue; Mrs. Melvin E. Robinson, 2037 Ashland Avennue; Mrs. Charles Davidson, 417 East Seventeenth Street; and Mrs. O. C. Lukenbill, 1002 East Washington Street.

CAPITAL FILM COMPANY, Indianapolis, increased the number of its directors from five to nine.

Condensed News of Flint

EMPLOYES of the Dort Motor Car Co. had the opportunity on February 21 of seeing themselves in motion pictures, when the first showing of an advertising film entitled "From Peace to War and Back Again," was given its initial showing at the Orpheum theatre. The film shows the Dort shops in the days before the war and then during the war when the company was making trucks for the army, and then again making automobiles after the war ended, and includes scenes of Dort employes celebrating the signing of the armistice on November 11. The scenario is by H. S. Daniels, advertising manager for the company. All the employes of the company who could attend were the guests of the management at the premiere.

IF Manager Charles Garfield does not pack 'em in every day of a week's showing of "The Heart of Humanity," which opens at the Orpheum theatre March 9, it won't be on account of a lack of publicity. He is giving the film the greatest advertising campaign ever staged for a motion picture in Flint. He has the city plastered with advertising, having used 25 twenty-four-sheets, 15 six-sheets and 150 ones, 10,000 heralds and 200 window cards, besides contracting for 800 inches of newspaper space and renting second and third-story windows in downtown locations where he has special announcements painted in oil colors. His newspaper space includes three large front-page advertisements in a weekly labor paper. He has been making special announcements from the stage of the Orpheum at every performance, and the whole town is talking and wondering about the picture now. He has fixed a scale of 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children for all performances. Though the picture will be shown at the Washington theatre in Detroit beginning the same date as in Flint, Mr. Garfield was the first Michigan exhibitor to sign a contract. He says he paid the highest price ever paid for a picture in Flint on a rental basis.

BUSINESS with "The Greatest Thing in Life" for the first half of the week of February 17 at the Garden theatre was only fair. Elsie Ferguson in "The Danger Mark" drew very well the last half of the week.

WHILE Manager Lester Matt of the Strand theatre had advertised only a three-day run of "Salome," business was so good that he held the film over for two extra days. He had the crowds standing in line at practically every evening performance and the picture seemed to give excellent satisfaction.

Happenings in Madison

THE movie houses in Madison have not had an exceptionally big week, with but one or two exceptions the pictures have been just ordinary and the attention correspondingly medium. The managers are talking about the big things "coming," not the "whirlwind on today." Truly big features are on the books of every theatre in the city and there is little question but that the coming weeks will mean a large total of business.

PROBABLY the biggest and best attended show during the current week has been "Virtuous Wives," which ran for four days at the Grand theatre. The strongest patronage was from the University students, and the house was filled to capacity every evening. Mr. McWilliams announces the booking of a return engagement of Charlie Chaplin's "Shoulder Arms." This will be its third appearance at the Grand, but McWilliams is confident that it still has a big drawing power in this vicinity. He has also booked Charlie Chaplin's new picture, "Sunnyside."

MR. McWILLIAMS has just returned from a three-day booking trip to Chicago. He is filled up on "fine pictures" until May.

THE FULLER THEATRE played a return engagement of "The Great Love," which was interrupted earlier in the season by the flu epidemic. The picture drew an appreciative audience and was shown for three days. The Fuller netted a good business on "Innocent Eyes."

THERE are balmy days ahead for the new Strand theatre. Such pictures as the "Silver King," "Breed of Men," "False Faces" and "Romance of Happy Valley." Mr. Desormeaux has announced an early showing of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch."

MARY MILES MINTER in "The Amazing Impostor" drew the largest crowd for the Majestic theatre this week. Other attractions included Crane Wilbur in "Unto the End," "Mollie of the Follies," "The Strange Women." Among the coming pictures is "Woman! Woman!" starring Evelyn Nesbit Thaw.

THE WEST COAST

Communications Pertaining to "West Coast" Section Should Be Sent to Our
LOS ANGELES REPRESENTATIVE Telephone Pico 780 618 WRIGHT & CALLENDER BLDG.

Metro Directors, Players and Writers Colonize in Hollywood

"METRO is a big, happy family," has been said of that organization from its inception, and now it is becoming a colony. That is to say, a Metro colony is budding in Hollywood just a few blocks from the studios where Director General Maxwell Karger hangs his hat (when he isn't too busy to look for a hook) and where all the parrot brand pictures are being made.

Anna Q. Nilsson started the colony when, a few months ago, she started the corner bungalow in Contentment Court, on Wilcox avenue, a step beyond Hollywood boulevard. There are five of those quaint green and white dwellings in the court, but when Miss Nilsson became a resident she was the only Metroite.

A vacancy occurred. As Rosemary Theby, who appeared in "Faith" and several other Metro pictures, was looking for a bungalow, and as Rosemary and Anna Q. are chums, the former became a tenant. Next Luther A. Reed, of Karger's scenario staff, arrived with his mother from the East, and they found a haven in Contentment Court, accounting for three of the bungalows.

The fourth of the five dwellings became vacant, so Naomi Childers, Bert Lytell's leading woman in his new picture, "The Blind Man's Eyes," put in a bid for it and moved in. The fifth is occupied by Harry Hilliard, who isn't a Metroite, but he's a prominet motion picture actor and Metro may get him yet.

Elks Lodge Entertain with Motion Pictures

THE Elks Lodge took possession of the Clemmer theatre Monday night at 9:30 for a theatre party in honor of Harry Girard, the Clemmer organist, who is an Elk, and Mrs. Girard, who in professional life is Agnes Cain Brown.

Both have frequently entertained the lodge members on their former frequent professional visits to Spokane.

The regular Clemmer program, featuring Sessue Hayakawa in "The City of Dim Faces," was presented with special organ and vocal solos by Mr. Girard.

Mrs. Girard made her first public appearance since coming to Spokane and sang a group of Japanese songs in costume. The Elks quartet sang and former Mayor Hindley proposed the Elks toast at the mystic hour, 11 o'clock.

Seattle Unionists Cause Many Theatres Inconvenience and Money-Loss

CORRESPONDENCE from Seattle states that after the strike was broken in Seattle and all the unions except the shipyard men were going back to work, the managers asked all the theatrical unions if it would be safe for them to advertise in the dailies that the shows would be open Monday night.

Every union said "Certainly, we'll be with you." Consequently, advertisements were placed in the papers, signed by the managers as a whole that all the theatres would be open Monday.

The same "Reds," however, who were making politics out of the strike in the first place, tried to recall all the union men who went on strike until Tuesday afternoon in order to show their power. In nine cases out of ten, this proved to be a joke. However the operator's union decided to stay out, but they did not notify their managers.

Consequently when the crowds came to the movies and theatres the managers began looking for their operators. When they did not show up, some of them did the operating themselves and also had to clean up their houses.

The musicians' union has been commended by the managers, as they were anxious to keep their contracts with the managers and were right on the job, when they said they would be. While some of the managers operated their own machines, others hired operators, whose names they had on file. Some of these have been definitely engaged.

Brunton Installs Gymnasium for Players

ROBERT BRUNTON has introduced into his studios in Los Angeles, an idea that is entirely new so far as picture plants are concerned. He has started the erection of a gymnasium for the teaching of physical culture and personal hygiene. It will be equipped with complete apparatus, including shower and electric baths. Boxing, wrestling, and other muscular exercises that make for the upbuilding of the body, will be included in the course. The work is to be in charge of Paul Mullen, a well known physical instructor. Mullen was formerly connected with Bothner and Woods of New York, Gilmore's of Chicago, and more recently, the Western Athletic Club of Los Angeles. It is to be a case where, not the tired business man, but the tired actor, will find a haven of recreation from his intensive duties. There will also be a department with facilities for women.

THE WEST COAST

In and Around Denver

JOSEPH J. GOODSTEIN, well known in Philadelphia, arrived in Denver from Colorado Springs ten days ago and has organized the Arrow Photoplays company, of which he is president and general manager. He has established headquarters at 1735 Welton street. He is already off to a good start in this territory. President Goodstein arranged for a trade showing of Houdini at the Ogden theatre, 11:30 Friday morning, February 28, and mailed invitations to all local exhibitors as well as members of the Denver Press club, the Ad club and the Optimists club.

O. F. WOODY, who recently lined up with the sales force of Select out of Denver, has left for Salt Lake City where he will establish permanent headquarters as representative of Select pictures in the state of Utah. Manager Lotz, of the Denver exchange, believes he will be better enabled to serve the interests of Utah exhibitors by this arrangement.

THE FILM EXCHANGE BOARD OF TRADE of this city which, since its organization about a year ago, has earned a reputation for fair adjustments of grievances of exchanges against exhibitors, has now adopted a broader plan which is already bringing the beneficial results which were anticipated. The new plan provides that exhibitors as well as exchanges is privileged to submit any grievances which have otherwise failed of adjustment. As now arranged, when complaint is made by an exhibitor against an exchange, the matter is promptly submitted to a committee made up of exhibitors and exchange men. In an arrangement of this kind harmony is bound to prevail and absolute fairness is assured. It cannot then be said that the decision rendered is one-sided. If a case arises wherein the complaint is against an exchange manager who is chairman of the grievance committee, provision is made for his temporary resignation and the appointment of a temporary chairman, who will act as chairman until a decision of the case is reached. Inasmuch as the plan fully meets the demands of both sides for fair treatment, it is recommended for the consideration of boards in other cities.

PRESIDENT FRANKEL, of Supreme Photo-Plays corporation, announces the purchase of State rights in Denver territory of twenty-four Arbuckle releases, sixteen Tom Mix releases and also twenty-four Keystone two-reel comedies. They are also handling Gathem one-reel patriotic features. H. A. Kyler, of the local Supreme headquarters, who is now in New York, advises that he has purchased five Ivan productions, as follows: "Sins of Ambition," "Babbling Tongues," "One Law for Both," "Human Clay," and "Married in Name Only." F. W. Normand, who recently joined the Supreme road force, is covering Eastern Colorado this week.

DISTRICT MANAGER EDWARD ARMSTRONG has left for Salt Lake, where he will attend a meeting on February 26 of Universal division and district managers in western territory. The conference will be under the direction of General Sales Manager J. R. Schnitzer, of New York.

"COMMON CLAY," a popular Pathe special, was on for a week's run, beginning February 22, at the Rivoli, on Curtis street.

MANAGER T. Y. HENRY announces that there is a good demand and numerous inquiries from exhibitors relative to General's cycle of classics, which are now arriving. Among these pictures, which will shortly be released in Denver territory, are Antony and Cleopatra, Quo Vadis (recently endorsed by President Wilson), Julius Caesar, Othello, The Last Days of Pompeii, and Spartacus.

MAURICE WOLF, former manager for World at Salt Lake, and D. Callahan, who until recently was in charge of the Triangle exchange at Dallas, both of whom were transferred to Denver as manager of their respective companies, are well pleased with the change and with their new surroundings. Both are hale fellows well met and natural born optimists.

J. W. HEISMAN, special representative of Triangle, was a recent Denver visitor. He is now en route for coast cities, including Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Seattle.

SALIDA exhibitors are up against it again. All places of amusement have been closed a second time on account of influenza.

JOE YEAGER, of Trinidad, was a recent Denver visitor and while here booked "The Heart of Humanity" for his three theatres.

THE STRAND, on Curtis street, has booked its first serial. "The Red Glove," starring Marie Walcamp, starts at that theatre beginning March 17.

HARRY LOGUE, of Edwards & Logue, proprietors of the Isis, at Lander, Wyo., came to Denver a few days ago to arrange for Universal service.

Spokane News and Views

A LOS ANGELES firm has offered assistance in making Spokane a mecca for motion picture producers. In a letter to the Spokane Chamber of Commerce the Romayne Super-Film company expresses its desire to co-operate in any attempt to organize the industry in the city and State. The company has offered to rebuild pictures, complete unfinished ones, or offer suggestions in the making of films.

HARRY CAREY, well known screen star, was in Spokane Friday, appearing before Spokane audiences at the Casino theatre at all performances that day. Carey is best known for his portrayals of Western characters.

THE Spokane-made motion picture known as "Fool's Gold" and later renamed "Undermined," which was to be placed on the Eastern market for sale as soon as it had been finished and printed, is reported to have left the hands of the printer about four days ago, ready for the trade showings.

DUSTIN FARNUM popularized the Majestic, drawing record crowds to the little theatre this week with the Zane Grey story, "Light of the Western Stars." J. W. Allender, manager, has screened many of his super-productions at the Auditorium owing to the limited seating capacity at the Majestic, but the Auditorium was showing "Cannibals of the South Seas," Martin Johnson's production.

MME. NAZIMOVA in the Metro production, "Eye for an Eye," held the boards at the Class A for four days and was succeeded there by "The Wildcat of Paris." "Eyes of the World," with its all-star cast, had its second showing in Spokane, playing at the Lyric, another Allender theatre. Douglass Fairbanks greeted Spokane admirers from the screen again, showing in "Arizona" at the Liberty.

In Portland Film Circles

THE week commencing Saturday, February 15, was the biggest in the history of Portland photoplay theatres, the first three days of the week far eclipsing all attendance records for several downtown houses and overflow crowds packing others to capacity.

THE personal appearance of two stars, Harry Carey at the Strand, and Baby Marie Osborne at the Majestic; and the presentation of "Mickey" at the Peoples, with Mischa Gutterson, famous Russian orchestra director, and Cecil B. DeMille's "Don't Change Your Husband" at the Liberty, were the big attractions of the week.

NOT only did the four houses in question play to capacity crowds for the three days at every performance, but waiting throngs at the Peoples and Majestic formed a line for many hours extending a block from theatre entrances, necessitating the employment of police to regulate sidewalk traffic.

THE recent "flu" scare is over, and this, coupled with excellent show weather, plus parades to welcome home-returning warriors from overseas and unusual attractions, were responsible for the bonanza picture week.

THE PEOPLES and Liberty conducted unusually big advertising campaigns in the newspapers exploiting their pictures, the big Liberty in particularly going the limit on "Don't Change Your Husband," with Paul E. ("No-Bull") Noble the publicity pilot.

TOM McDONALD, former Butte newspaperman, is now a Universal salesman out of Portland, receiving his appointment from Gus A. Metzger, new Western division chief.

FRANK TALBERT has assumed his duties as travelling auditor of the West for Universal. He was formerly auditor of the Northwest branches, auditor of the Star theatre before that, and once made a trip to Alaska as special representative for Universal.

ERNEST P. RUSSELL, organist of the California theatre, San Francisco, was a Portland visitor last week. He was on his way to Seattle.

H. H. BROWNELL, Seattle manager for Exhibitor Mutual; Carl Stearns, Metro chief in Seattle, and A. W. Eden, Select's Northwest boss, were all recent Portland visitors.

S. MORTON COHN, president of the Strand Theatre Company, and prominent capitalist and theatre magnate of California and the Northwest, is back in Portland after a year spent in Los Angeles.

JOYRIDERS stole the nifty new Oldsmobile belonging to Walter Armstrong, manager of the Strand theatre, last week. A hurry-up call to the police resulted in recovery next day, with the speedometer showing an added mileage of 150 miles.

CHICKENS come home to roost and children don't forget, particularly when a publicity scheme that hits them in a soft spot is utilized. This was proved in Portland when H. C. Stevens showed "The Yellow Dog" at his Burnside theatre, in Portland. Although several months had elapsed since the distribution of the badges of the Boy Detectives of America, his theatre was mobbed by youngsters displaying their badges and demanding admission to the picture.

"DOC" C. S. CREWS, of the Liberty theatre, Walla Walla, reports another record smashed. "The Birth of a Nation" hung up his first big attendance mark. This went by the boards when "The Kaiser" was shown, and now "Hearts of Humanity" has gone that one better.

Seattle Exchanges and Accessory Firms

EXHIBITORS FILM EXCHANGE
INCORPORATED
Member of First National Exhibitors Circuit
NOW BOOKING
SHOULDER ARMS A DOG'S LIFE
MY FOUR YEARS IN GERMANY
TARZAN OF THE APES ROMANCE OF TARZAN
PERSHING'S CRUSADERS THE STILL ALARM
ITALY'S FLAMING FRONT RAFFLES, Etc., Etc.
COMING!
ANITA STEWART SUPERFEATURES MARY PICKFORD SUPERPICTURES
1200 FOURTH AVE., SEATTLE, WASH. F. V. FISHER, Manager

GREATER FEATURES COMPANY 2020 THIRD AVENUE Phone—Elliott 941 SEATTLE, WASH.
Starting on Third Year—Now Batting 600%
Short Reel Subjects Also Features JACK LANNON, Owner

"NOTHING but the personal appearance of Tom Mix has a chance to equal the Sunday attendance record of the Strand theatre when Harry Carey interviewed his friends from the stage," asserts Walter Armstrong.

FRANK T. BAILEY, president of the Montana Amusement Company and head of the American theatre, is back in Butte after a few days visit in Spokane, where he is interested in the Liberty theatre. "Spokane did not have any trouble like Butte experienced the past 10 days," said Mr. Bailey. "In general business is good and the show men are all doing fairly well. They, however, look forward to much better business as the season progresses."

Mrs. Kate Nixon of Reno Entertains Film People on Washington's Birthday

MRS. KATE NIXON, wife of the late Senator Nixon of Nevada, who conducts the Majestic theatre at Reno, Nev., invited a number of branch managers to visit Reno and her estate nearby over Washington's Birthday and to witness the winter sports at Truckee on Monday, February 24.

Mrs. Nixon is a millionaire many times over, and arranged for a special train from San Francisco for the occasion. The lucky managers were her guests for the entire trip, and the occasion was a red letter day for the Film men.

The World arranged to take along its camera man of the Kinogram, and hoped to finish some pictures in time to show them to the excursionists before they reach San Francisco again.

If possible the pictures were to be rushed through and shown at the Majestic at Reno the following Monday night.

Ruth Roland, George Larkin and Easter Walters, Pathe serial players, at the Astra studio at Glendale, Cal.

Los Angeles Exchanges & Supply Houses

UNIVERSAL FILM EXCHANGES, INC.
Successor to California Film Exchange
DAVID BERSHON, MANAGER.
Distributors of Universal, Jewel and Lois Weber Productions, Blue Bird Photoplays, Century and Lyons & Moran Comedies
822 S. OLIVE ST.

LOUIS HYMAN
Manager
ALL STAR FEATURE DISTRIBUTORS, Inc.
514 West Eighth Street

Advertise Here—
Where It Will Pay You
Make Us Prove It!

WANTED Used Theatre Chairs, Motion Picture Projectors, and everything pertaining to motion pictures. Buying from us saves you 25 to 50 per cent.
MOVIE EMPORIUM
Calmy Brothers, 752 So. Olive St.

J. SLIPPER & COMPANY
PICTURE MACHINES
Simplex, Motiograph, Baird
Minusa Screens
Hertner Transverters
Theatre Supplies
728 So. Olive Street
Send for Catalog

What They Say in Seattle

L. A. DRINKWINE, proprietor of the Palace, Tacoma, was a recent visitor on Film Row, Seattle. The strike did not affect the moving picture houses in Tacoma one bit, as the union men in Tacoma fathomed the trick and would not break their contracts in order to please a few "Reds," who were not union men at heart.

H. B. WRIGHT, formerly a salesman with "Select," is now employed as a salesman by the Exhibitors' Mutual Distributing Corporation.

TWO PICTURES, "The Temple of Dusk," in which Sessue Hayakawa is the star, and "And a Still, Small Voice," in which Henry B. Walthall stars, both went over the top where they were shown. The former was played at the Mission and the latter at the Strand. Both pictures are handled by the Exhibitors' Mutual Distributing Corporation.

THE Northwest branch of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation are getting the small communities of the Northwest interested in their famous educational films. In many cases they co-operate with clubs in the towns or communities. H. V. Hills of Dryad, Wash., is one who concedes the value of these pictures and will conduct a weekly showing of them at the local school. Although Pateros, Wash., is a small community, its citizens have large enough visions to see the importance of these educational pictures and consequently 200 residents have formed the "Pateros Show Fund" in order to be able to have a weekly showing of them. They have contracted, on a guaranteed basis, for ten consecutive educational films with the Seattle office. R. G. Raines will promote this idea with the aid of E. A. Quist, salesman from the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation if this plan proves workable in Pateros. Thus the Seattle office is making two blades of grass grow where only one grew before. The Woman's Club of Goldbar, Wash., has also made arrangements to show these pictures once a week at the local school house. This club also shows the films on the co-operative plan.

GEORGE P. ENDERT, assistant manager of Northwest branch of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, wishes to announce through the MOTION PICTURE NEWS that the rumor circulated that he was going to New York for a month's vacation is absolutely untrue.

¶Every time an exhibitor mentions his favorite trade paper to a film salesman, exchange manager, or the New York office—

¶He helps his favorite trade paper to give him a still better paper and still more Service.

¶Which is your favorite trade paper?

¶Do you give it a boost at every opportunity that presents itself?

¶Think it over.

SMILING BILL DRUMMOND, of the George Kleine System, has been receiving wonderful response on his campaign with the Bigford and Chaplain reissues. Bill also announces that he has signed some first runs with John Hamrick who will run them in the Rex.

W. W. ARMSTRONG, a film distributor from Western Canada, was in Seattle recently to confer with Mr. Drummond of the George Kleine System.

MR. M. J. COHEN, well known in Seattle, is now with Sol Lesser, San Francisco.

CHARLEY H. CODE is cleaning up for the General in Spokane and neighboring territory.

H. S. HARGRAVE, who has been booking for Goldwyn in the Seattle and Northwest office, has been forced to give up his position because of sickness. Although one of the youngest bookers along Film Row, he showed good ability in this line.

JACK RANTZ, proprietor of the Liberty and Rialto, Bremerton, Wash., recently played "Mickey" at the Rialto. Mr. Rantz said that although he has had many big productions and always done good business, he never knew that there were so many people in Bremerton who were so anxious to see a good show.

"JOE" DONNELLY has returned to Seattle after a whirlwind campaign through Montana with "The Fall of Barbary Coast."

IT IS CLAIMED that Al Bloom, booker and office manager for Metro, lost at least nine pounds the two days of the strike when the street cars were not running, as he was compelled to walk.

JOHN HAMRICK, proprietor of the Rex, Seattle, has recently returned from a trip to Los Angeles where he went on account of his health.

THE METRO FILM COMPANY has booked "Out of the Fog," in which Nazimova is starred, with the Clemmer, for the week beginning March the ninth.

AMONG those recently seen along Film Row were Messrs. Swanson of Everett and Zable of Olympia.

JOE LUCAS, picture man of Centralia, Wash., paid a visit to Film Row last week and, realizing that the managers, assistants, salesmen, bookers, etc., were always willing to serve him, he thought that he ought to serve them at least one day in the first month of the year. So he invited all the managers and the other exchange men and all the office girls who could go to a box party at the Moore theatre, which is playing Orpheum Circuit vaudeville. After the show a nice little trip was taken down to "Puss'n Boots," where the girls could eat all the ice cream and candy they desired. And they did. So did the men.

W. F. McCORMICK recently signed up with Madame Paul, of Olympia, all the pictures Goldwyn will produce for a solid year.

L. J. SCHLAIFER has been released from the Bremerton Navy Yard and is now back at work in civilian clothes selling films.

E. J. ABBOTT, of Sedro Wolley, Wash., has contract for all Goldwyn pictures he has not used and renewed his Goldwyn contract for another year.

THE Ford Weeklies that have been taken over by the Goldwyn offices are going in great style. The Seattle office has made contracts with five houses in one week for them.

F. W. BOWEN, of the Peerless Film Exchange, Seattle, has opened "The Ring" at Kirkland, Wash. Three shows will be given each week.

H. P. NEVILLS has closed "The Gem," at Conrad, Mont., and Messrs. Lavin and Lock will operate the "Orpheum," the only one in Conrad. Mr. Nevills has accepted a position at the "Orpheum."

A. F. EDWARDS, of Reedsport, Ore., who operates a circuit of moving picture houses at Reedsport, Lakeside and Gardner, has been forced to close all of them except the one at Reedsport on account of "flu" conditions.

R. R. PRATSCH, proprietor of "The Idle Hour," Tacoma, Wash., is another who recently signed for a full one-year service for Goldwyn pictures.

PETER DAVID, manager of the "Liberty," Tacoma, Wash., has recently purchased the "Dream" and "Stewart" picture houses in Puyallup, Wash. It is the intention of Mr. David to build up a circuit.

A RECENT visitor to Film Row was W. G. Ripley, manager of "The Rex," Aberdeen, Wash.

GILL HEYFRON, formerly of Missoula, Mont., has purchased an interest in the Colonial, Seattle, which heretofore was owned exclusively by Mr. Danz. Mr. Danz will continue to manage it.

MANAGER MEAD, of the Universal and Select Features, is arranging for a special trade showing of "Heart of Humanity." He will "put it on" at one of Seattle's big houses and invite all the film men and women in the neighborhood to be present. When "Heart of Humanity" was put on in Spokane for a trade showing, those present were more than impressed with this remarkable picture.

DUHEM
MOTION PICTURE MFG. CO.
Films Made to Order
EXPERT DEVELOPING, PRINTING AND COLORING
CAMERA OUT-FITS AND RAW FILM SUPPLIED

CAMERA MEN
SENT ANYWHERE

985 Market Street, San Francisco, California

WINFIELD-KERNER COMPANY
Studio Lighting
325-327 East Sixth St. Los Angeles
Phones Pico 2646-12215

SLIDES Title Cards and Film
L. A. SLIDE & FILM CO.
122 WEST THIRD ST., LOS ANGELES

THEATRE SETTINGS
EDW. H. FLAGG SCENIC CO.

Telephone: Hollywood 1290
GEORGE W. CHAPMAN CO.
Incorporated
EVERYTHING IN MOVING PICTURE PROPS.
Specialties: Miniature Sets and Plaster Breakaways
5155 Santa Monica Boulevard
Los Angeles, Cal.

News of the Week in San Francisco

HAROLD MOORE, formerly with the Kleine system, has become associated with the M. & R. exchange. The latter has recently secured the Al. Jennings picture, "The Lady of the Dugout," and has already booked it on the T. & D. circuit. The M. & R. has also secured "Mother, I Need You," featuring Enid Markey and Edw. Coxen. When the Jennings picture is shown at the Tivoli in this city, Al. Jennings himself will appear and make a talk.

SAM WHITEHEAD, special representative in the southern part of the State for the M. & R., was in San Francisco recently and reports the theatres in that section to be doing an excellent business.

WHEN Harry Carey was in town three days last week he was accompanied by his wife and was piloted around by Harry Carney, special representative of the Universal. Carey spoke in a dozen theatres during his stay and was heard by over 16,000 people. He received a good welcome wherever he appeared, and in some of the theatres in the part of town where the Latin element prevails his reception was enthusiastic. His wife, who has retired from the stage, was at one time a well known screen artist. She is the daughter of a former vaudeville star, Fuller Golden, and acted under the name of Olive Fuller Golden.

NEWTON E. LEVI, District Manager of the Exhibitors Mutual Distribution Corporation, is now on a visit to the southern part of the State. He will be away about six weeks and will visit Denver and Salt Lake before returning home. During his stay in Los Angeles a number of exhibitors of San Francisco are going to that city and under the direction of Mr. Levi will visit the various studios, especially the Mutual, and see "how it is done." Among the exhibitors who will make the trip are C. W. Midgley, of the American, Oakland; James Beatty, of the Liberty, Fresno and San Jose; Berty Levy of Princess, San Francisco and Larry Lund, of Broadway, Oakland.

E. M. LOY, a Mutual salesman, is just back from a two weeks' tour through the San Joaquin valley. He reports a very successful trip in placing Mutual contracts.

WILLIAM ALEXANDER, western division manager of the United Picture theatres, is a visitor to San Francisco, accompanied by his wife.

THE GENERAL has just released two pictures which are receiving much praise. "Caliber 38," a picture of the northwest woods and "Chaplain Bog Four."

MERL HOWE, one of the prominent exhibitors of Southern California, is in San Francisco as the guest of Irving Lesser.

MACK SENNETT is to appear in person at the Tivoli when it runs "Yankee Doodle in Berlin."

M. J. COHEN, of All Star Features Distributors, says that "Mickey" broke all house records at the California theatre.

RALPH O. PROCTOR, western division manager of the Pathe, came to San Francisco from Los Angeles a few days ago and intends to stay a month. On his way up in his machine he visited every exhibitor in the San Joaquin valley. He intends to pursue this policy throughout his territory. After covering the territory continuous to San Francisco he will motor up to Portland. Thence covering Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Utah, Colorado and back to Los Angeles by the southern route. The distance as laid out will run close to 8,000 miles.

JOE BRANDT, assistant treasurer of the Universal Film Manufacturing Co., is in San Francisco on a country-wide tour, on which he expects to meet the serial going public of the big cities and hear from them first hand just what kind of film stories are liked best and which type of player is looked upon with greatest favor. Brandt, who has selected the casts for and personally supervised the production of two new Universal serials, "The Red Glove," starring Marie Walcamp, and "The Midnight Man," with James J. Corbett in the leading role, says good serial stories are always in demand and advises the scenario writing public to consider carefully what is essential to a successful continued story on the screen. While here Brandt had consultations with the Chronicle and Examiner regarding the new serials which the papers are to run. He also took up with the Chronicle the new screen magazine which will be known as the San Francisco Chronicle Screen Magazine and in which the paper is co-operating with the Universal in producing. The first release of this magazine is scheduled for February 21.

MORRIS EPSTEIN, of the Universal, is leaving for a trip through the San Joaquin valley.

"THE WILDCAT OF PARIS," featuring Priscilla Dean, is reported by the Universal to be having a phenomenal run in the suburban theatres.

SOL LESSER has just secured "The Unpardonable Sin," featuring Blanche Sweet. The play deals with the situation after the war in conquered Belgium. Miss Sweet takes the dual role of two sisters, one in Belgium and one in America. Wallace Beery plays heavy in the picture and is said to have excelled his past performances.

P. C. MOONEY, district manager for the Fox Film Co., is here on one of his regular visits. He comes in from the northwest and will go south from here.

E. W. WALDO, auditor of the Fox Film Corp., with headquarters in New York, is in San Francisco on his rounds of the Coast, checking up the business of the various branch exchanges.

RAY OLVISTEAD, who handles "Over the Top" throughout the northwest and who is well known in the Los Angeles district, has made connections with the General Film headquarters in this city.

F. E. SAMUELS, special representative of the General Film Co., spent a couple of weeks in this city during which time he appointed T. B. Mathewes, a former salesman for the General, as local manager. Mr. Samuels is now in Seattle and will return East by way of Los Angeles.

THE PACIFIC MAIL STEAMSHIP CO. has sent out a request through the Foreign Trade Department of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce for films for display in China. The company is particularly anxious to secure films showing American industries. The Overseas Agencies, Ltd., is also preparing to send out films on the steamer Nanking for free display in the Orient.

M. L. MARKOWITZ, manager of the Universal Film Exchange and director director of the Alhambra theatre, says that his experiment in putting a tabloid musical comedy on at the Alhambra has met with instant success. One of two changes have been made in the personnel of the company which strengthened it materially and it now looks as if the members are in a fair way to become popular with the music loving people of this city. But Mr. Markowitz's new departure was not the only winner at the theatres. The weather has been normal and every house has played to first class business throughout the entire week. A few more weeks of such business and the managers will forget the losses from the epidemic and begin to wear the smiles "that won't come off."

Flickers on the Screens of Butte

CHARLES G. KELSEY, former moving picture machine operator in Butte, is another of the boys from the ranks of the show game who went overseas and made good. He was with the 32d Division and took part in many of its battles. Writing to his father he tells of being with the Americans who captured the famous Hill No. 230. He says that he was wounded by a high explosive shell during the night of April 2. "I was pretty badly shaken up, but after two months in the hospital began to feel fine and now am as good as ever," he writes. Kelsey laid on the battlefield for many hours until aid reached him the day after he was wounded.

MARTIN JOHNSON'S "Cannibals of the South Seas," in two feature productions, is now being booked through Montana by J. S. Nelson. He represents the Exhibitors' Mutual Distributing corporation out of the Seattle office. Mr. Nelson visited central Montana the past week.

ALBERT J. HEINECKE, manager of the Judith theatre, Lewistown, and acting president of the State Exihibtors' League, was a Butte visitor the past week. He reports the show game as going good in the Judith basin metropolis.

TOM F. McDONALD, who has been a news writer on the Daily Miner the past year, has returned to the show game. He left this week for Portland, Ore., where he accepted a position on the road for the Universal Film exchange. Mr. McDonald was with the Montana Amusement company in various capacities for eight years. He was formerly manager of the American theatre, Butte, and also of the Peoples' Hip. For a time he managed the Isis in Missoula. Local news writers and showmen attended a banquet given in his honor upon the eve of his departure from Butte. Mr. McDonald was accompanied by his wife and children.

E. G. IVINS, editor of the Daily Democrat-News, Lewistown, and also engaged in the theatrical business, passed through Butte last week for Salt Lake City, where he met his niece, Beth Ivins, of New York, the star of "The Scarlet Trail." He will accompany her to Los Angeles, where her brother is a practicing attorney. Miss Ivins expects to be permanently located in Los Angeles hereafter.

BUTTE showmen suffered during the week ending February 6 owing to the complete tie-up of the street car service. However, operation was resumed on that date and conditions are gradually working back to normal, with several of the unions voting to return to work. The street railway motormen and conductors did not go on strike but merely refused to work because of fear that those who walked out of the mines might perpetrate some violence. With 800 soldiers stationed here in command of General Watson there is no longer any fear of disorders. Show business continues good notwithstanding the fact that so many men are out of employment, due to the walkout following a cut in the miners' wages of $1 a day.

WITH Knowles as orchestra leader and Parks at the organ, music continues to be a pleasing feature at the American. This house is meeting with success in its run of the serial, "The Lightning Raider."

"THE HEART OF HUMANITY," the thrilling Universal super-feature, was booked by Manager Bailey of the American for a run starting February 24.

THE LIBERTY'S attraction opening February 16 was "Quo Vadis." It played to good business.

THE ANSONIA did well with Ethel Barrymore in "The Divorcee" February 19-20.

Directory of San Francisco Exchanges

MICKEY THE BIG SUCCESS
Yankee Doodle in Berlin
Mack Sennett's 5 Reel Attraction
Rentals and Percentages on D. W. GRIFFITH'S
HEARTS OF THE WORLD
"TIMELY TOPICS" "GAUMONT"
FROM LITERARY DIGEST NEW AND GRAPHIC
ALL STAR FEATURES DISTRIBUTORS, Inc.
SOL L. LESSER, PRESIDENT
191 Golden Gate Ave., SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
514 W. 8th St., LOS ANGELES, CAL.

TURNER and DAHNKEN
BRANCH OF
FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS' CIRCUIT, Inc.,
Music Rolls Exchanged—Supplies of All Kinds
134 Golden Gate Avenue San Francisco, California

ALTA SLIDES
Best Slides and Film for every purpose
24 HOUR SLIDE SERVICE
ALTA SLIDE CO.
1028 Market St. 61 G. G. Ave
SAN FRANCISCO.

G. A. METCALFE
Distributor
POWER'S MACHINES—
SPEER CARBONS
117 Golden Gate Avenue
San Francisco, Cal.

M AND R
SOMETHING NEW COMING
730 So. Olive St.
Los Angeles
107 Golden Gate Ave.
San Francisco

BRECK PHOTOPLAY SUPPLY COMPANY
DISTRIBUTORS OF
Simplex Projectors
Theatre Equipment and Supplies
NATIONAL CARBONS
98 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco

With Los Angeles Theatres and Exchanges

H. S. MERRITT, salesman for the World Film, has left for a visit in Arizona, where he will be calling upon exhibitors during the next two weeks.

A. R. PATTON, branch manager of Mutual exchange, suffered a slight relapse of influenza on Saturday, February 1, and was unable to be at his desk at the Mutual exchange during the next two or three days.

FRED STONE in his latest Paramount-Artcraft picture, "Under the Top," has been booked for a week's run at Clune's auditorium, beginning February 10. It is planned by the Artcraft-Paramount exchange and the management of Clune's auditorium to put on a preliminary advertising campaign that will be different from anything ever seen in Los Angeles. Mr. Stone expects to stage a circus arrangement that will be a part of the "big street show" to precede the showing of the picture. Clune's famous "circus van" and horses, with all their bells, will once more be seen on the streets of Los Angeles in connection with the showing of "Under the Top." Announcement of the big advertising plans were made by Branch Manager Harry Ballance of the Artcraft-Paramount exchange.

New Theatres Building In West

CALIFORNIA

A theatre building will be erected on West Canon Perdido street, Santa Barbara, to cost $30,000. E. C. Jackson is the owner.

WASHINGTON

Anacortes will have a co-operative union theatre, with Fred Fisher, Stanley B. Anderson and E. E. Kidder as trustees.

WYOMING

At Riverton, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Mote have secured the vacant lot adjoining the Acme theatre, and will erect a 900 capacity theatre this spring.

Heart to Heart

Showing how ten minutes of your time can help us --and help you.

¶ The West Coast Edition of Motion Picture News costs us a lot of money. It costs just as much as would a separate publication published locally in Los Angeles or San Francisco. But it's worth it to us—Because it enables us to say that NO OTHER FILM PUBLICATION covers the West Coast as thoroughly, and with such intimate news and gossip as does Motion Picture News.

¶ We have often thought though—What a wonderful West Coast Edition we could get out, how much more money we could spend, how much more Service we could give—If every theatre manager in the West Coast territory sat down one night and wrote a twenty word note to his exchanges and the New York offices telling what the West Coast Edition meant to him because of its crisp, human, local items. Has it ever occurred to you? Why we could break speed limits in Service!

¶ Will you do it? Will you let us know about it? And then watch our smoke!

Simplex

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Important Notice.

OWING to the mass of matter awaiting publication, it is impossible to reply through the department in less than two to three weeks. In order to give [illegible] (at cost), will receive carbon [illegible] department reply, [illegible] Special [illegible] by mail [illegible] Both [illegible] booklet [illegible] booklet [illegible] 25 cents, money [illegible] or both for 10 [illegible] postage stamps. Every [illegible] operator should [illegible] of these questions. You may [illegible] without a lot of study.

New Simplex Revolving Shutter and Lens.

The motion [illegible] has now to [illegible] the [illegible] Simplex Projector [illegible] development [illegible] lines. We have [illegible] ample tests of the new shutter, which will be known as the "Extra-lite" shutter, and are prepared to say that the screen result is good. The shutter gives, according to Professor M. F. Weinrich, Ph.D., of Columbia University, from eleven and five-tenths to twenty per cent. more light than the ordinary shutter in every day use, the smaller percentage being where it is compared to the two-wing shutter, and the [illegible] shutter, [illegible] prepared [illegible] screen illumination [illegible] shutter [illegible] which [illegible] three-wing [illegible] will tell [illegible] shutter [illegible] per less than a [illegible] of its [illegible] per-[illegible] cut. The cut, however, [illegible] the whole story, because [illegible] elaborated in that way would, [illegible] was nothing [illegible] it, as you all know, print [illegible] grading [illegible] the [illegible] metal from [illegible] which [illegible] in two sheets, [illegible] between [illegible] exactly speaking, [illegible] which, is a filler [illegible] which absorbs a portion of the [illegible] on the part of the shutter [illegible] as the [illegible] eliminates all [illegible] and all [illegible] the blacks. With two [illegible] side by side one with [illegible] and one with [illegible] editor was [illegible] which was which [illegible] values of white and black [illegible] [illegible] it seems to me, marks a [illegible] advance in the optical equipment [illegible] revolving shutter is properly an individual part of the optical train of the projector) because by its use we shall effect a saving in light, which means electric power and coal, amounting certainly to considerable and which the learned professor sets at the figures already given.

We witnessed a very interesting test of this phase of the matter when Mr. Edwin S. Porter filled in the opening spaces of the shutter with opaque cardboard and projected a picture with only the light passing through the perforations of the blade. I might add that projectionists receiving these shutters will find the open spaces blocked with cardboard. I would advise them to conduct their own little [illegible] by projecting a picture [illegible] cardboard. [illegible] will [illegible] [illegible] found in certain cities [illegible] and correspondence has [illegible] Imperial Flooring." This [illegible] not to "dust off" at all [illegible] feet—that is to say, [illegible] in a theater which is [illegible] slight degree flexible—[illegible] its moderate bending will not [illegible] light in weight—about the [illegible] floor, or, rather, on an old floor [illegible] is moderate, considering [illegible] foot.

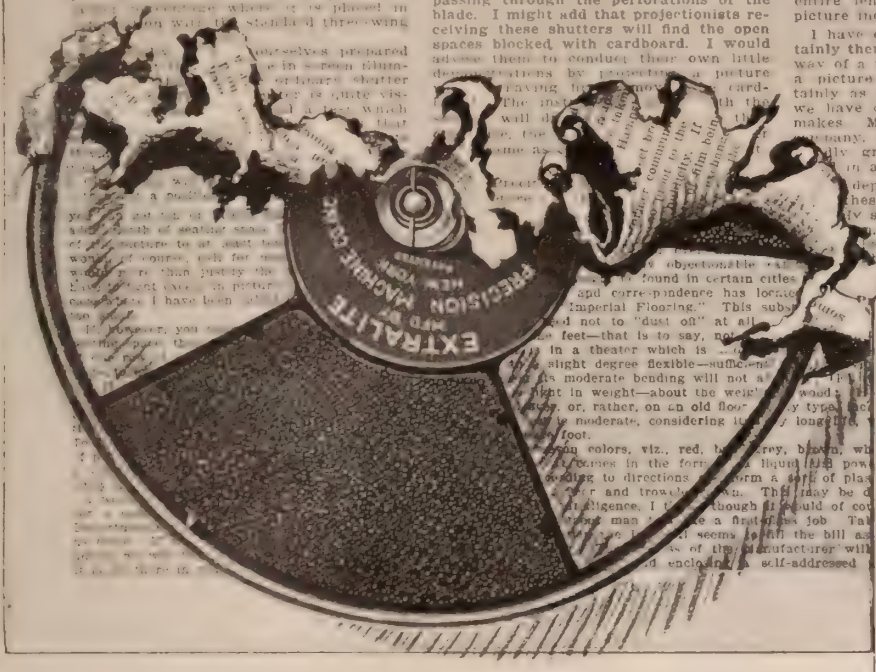
[illegible] colors, viz., red, [illegible] comes in the form [illegible] according to directions [illegible] and trowel [illegible] intelligence, I [illegible] though it [illegible] man [illegible] seems [illegible] of the manufacturer will [illegible] enclosing [illegible]

[illegible] it will after January 1 be a regular part of the Simplex [illegible] The company will, [illegible] rather to the [illegible] to individual [illegible] man-[illegible]

By its use you can get the same screen brilliancy with less current or greater screen brilliancy with your present current. From the demonstrations witnessed, we are prepared to give this shutter the unqualified endorsement of this department and to recommend it to projectionists [illegible] theatre managers.

[illegible] Precision Machine Company are [illegible] lens manufacturing [illegible] got into it [illegible]

[illegible] Cost la Guerre.



By the act of the [illegible] commandeering almost [illegible] output of our lens factories, the company [illegible] placed in a position where projectio[illegible] were absolutely unprocurable. In [illegible] of sitting down like a dog with [illegible] tail and howling at the moon, [illegible] Precision Machine Company got busy [illegible] habit of theirs. The result is a new [illegible] lens factory which is right now turning [illegible] projection lenses equal, so far as the particular editor is able to see, to anything we have had in that line for low these [illegible] many years.

Let it not be understood that the Precision Machine Company has [illegible] two old maids and a boy to make [illegible] or four lenses. As a matter of fact, they have a thoroughly equipped lens factory, capable of turning out projection lenses in any reasonable quantity at this time, the intent being to increase the plant's capacity until the company can take care of the entire lens consumption of the moving picture industry.

I have examined these lenses and certainly there is nothing better made in the way of a mount. The lens itself projects a picture having sharp definition—certainly as sharp as other lenses of what we have come to recognize as standard makes. Mr. Edwin S. Porter, of the company, claims for the new lens a decidedly greater depth of focus than is found in anything else on the market.

[illegible] department will have more to say [illegible] these lenses in the near future. We [illegible] speak of those which we have tested, and know [illegible] at this [illegible]

We can't keep a good thing under cover

EXTRALITE SHUTTERS ARE MAKING PROJECTION HISTORY

ALL NEW SIMPLEX EQUIPMENTS ARE FITTED WITH EXTRALITES

SINGLE EXTRALITES $16.50

TWO AND THREE BLADE TYPES.

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.
317 East 34th St. New York

Where supreme leadership is established you always find Envy hard at work.

The reward of leadership is widespread recognition, which we thoroughly enjoy.

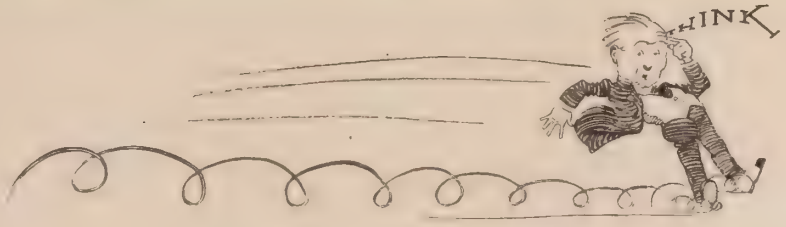
The punishment, fierce denial and detraction—for at the leader are aimed the shafts of the envious.

Those capable of merely accomplishing the commonplace spitefully wail as they descend to the level of common scolds.

As the First National Exhibitors' Circuit dominate their field, so, in the art of developing and printing, stands

Rothacker

FILM MFG. CO. CHICAGO, U.S.A.



There are reasons—
Come and see them.

MARCH 15, 1919

Motion Picture News

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

DOMINATES THE FIELD

EVER STOP TO THINK—

THAT when you get a contract for Paramount and Artcraft Pictures you get a franchise—and at no added cost—to show week in and week out for a full year the finest moving pictures made.

Every exhibitor of Paramount and Artcraft Pictures is a partner with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation—a partner whose views carry a mighty big lot of weight, a partner who prospers as the corporation prospers, who is vitally interested in contributing to its success.

Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
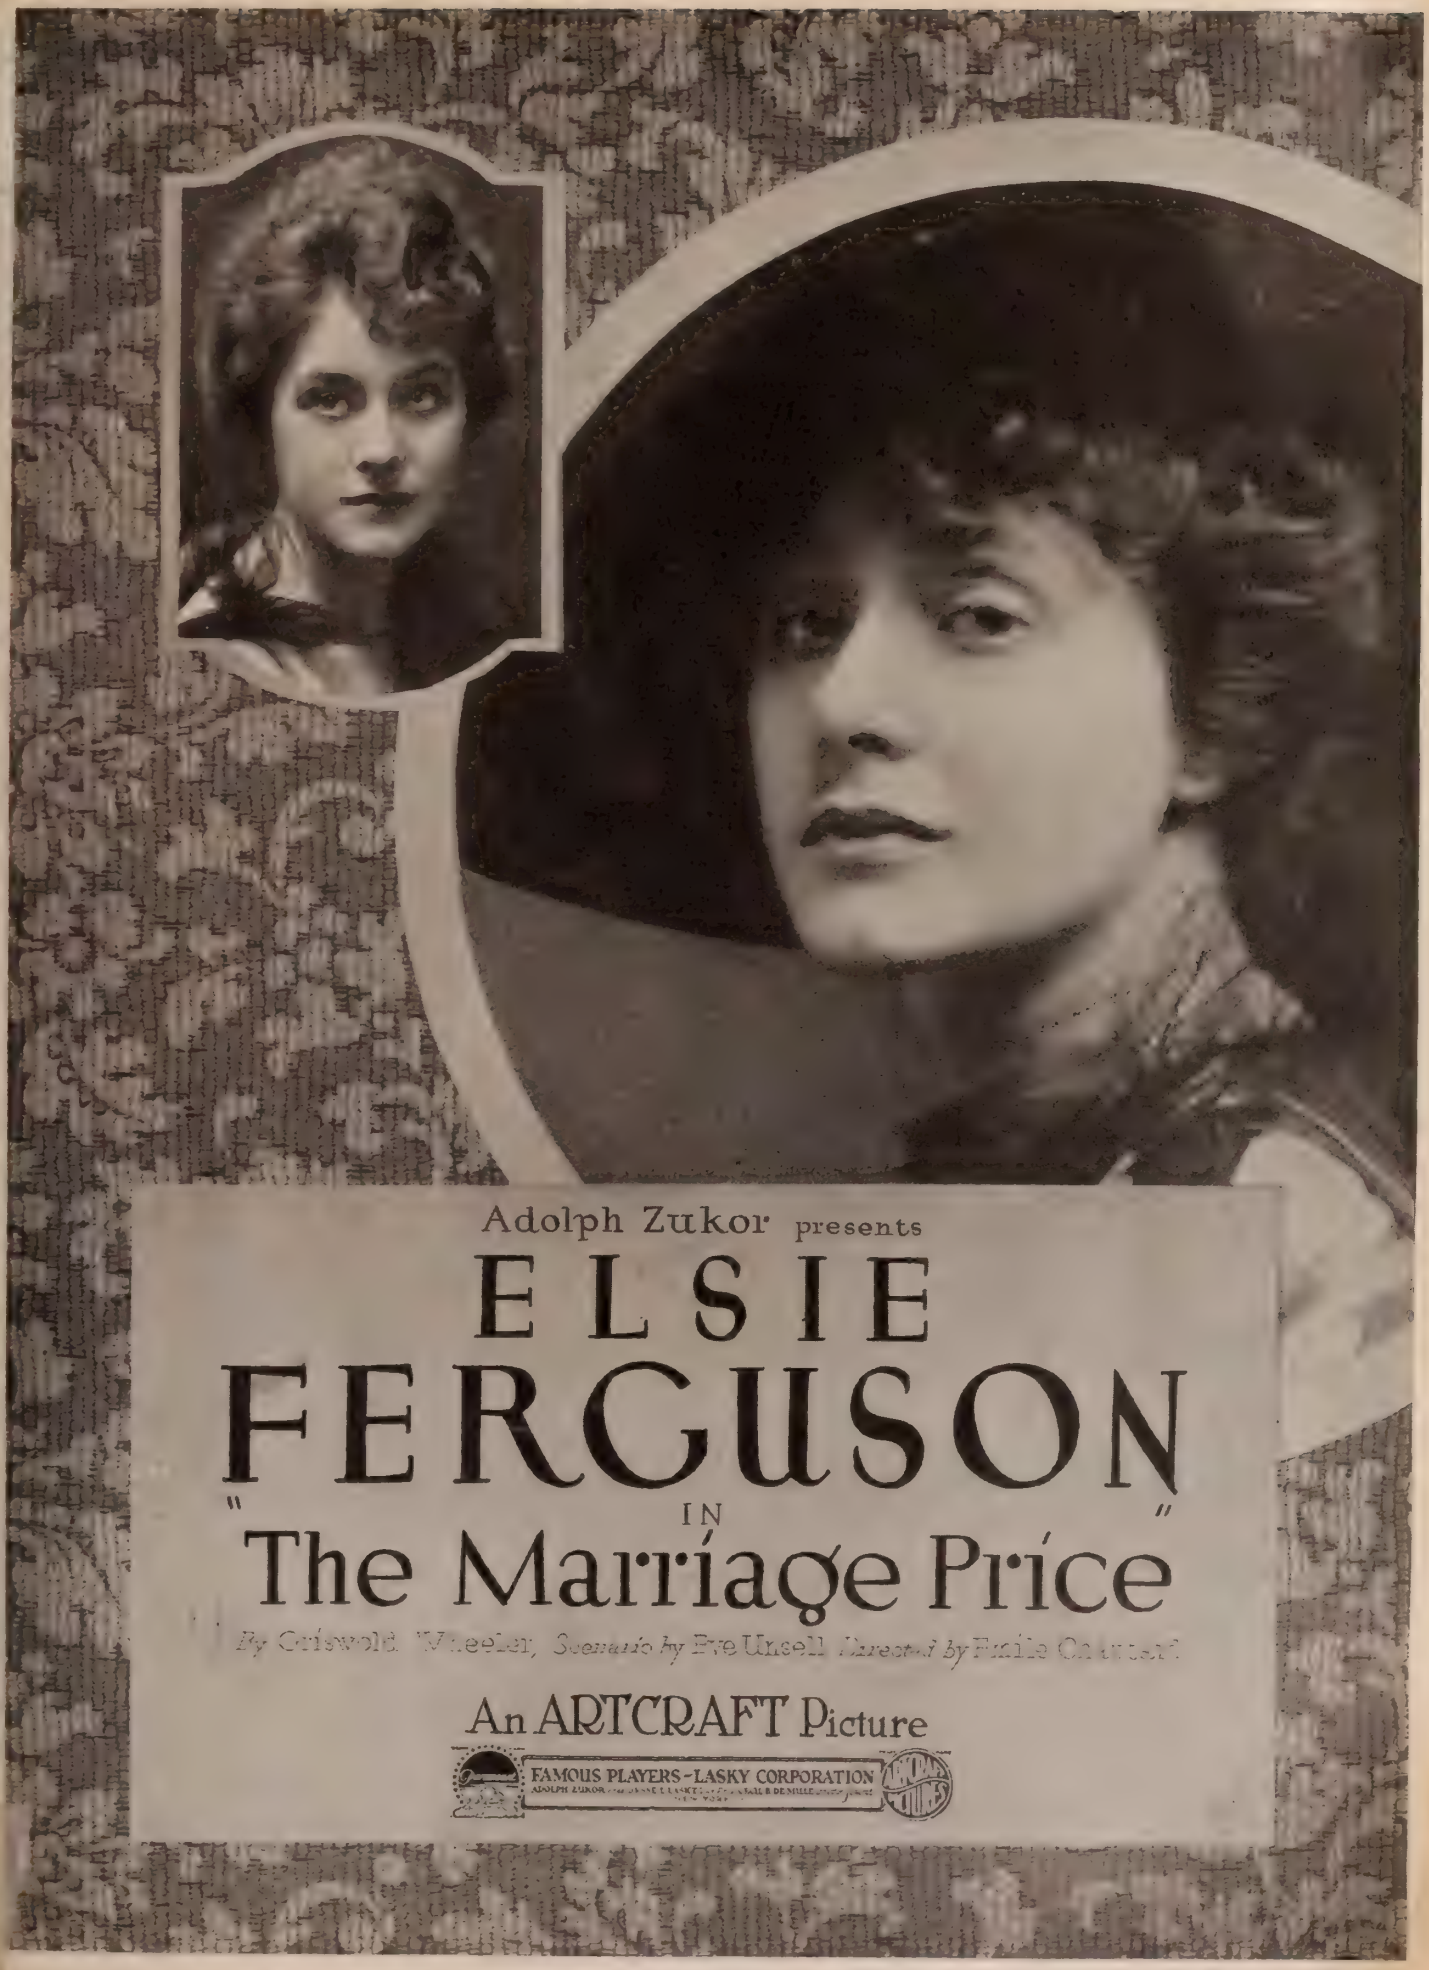
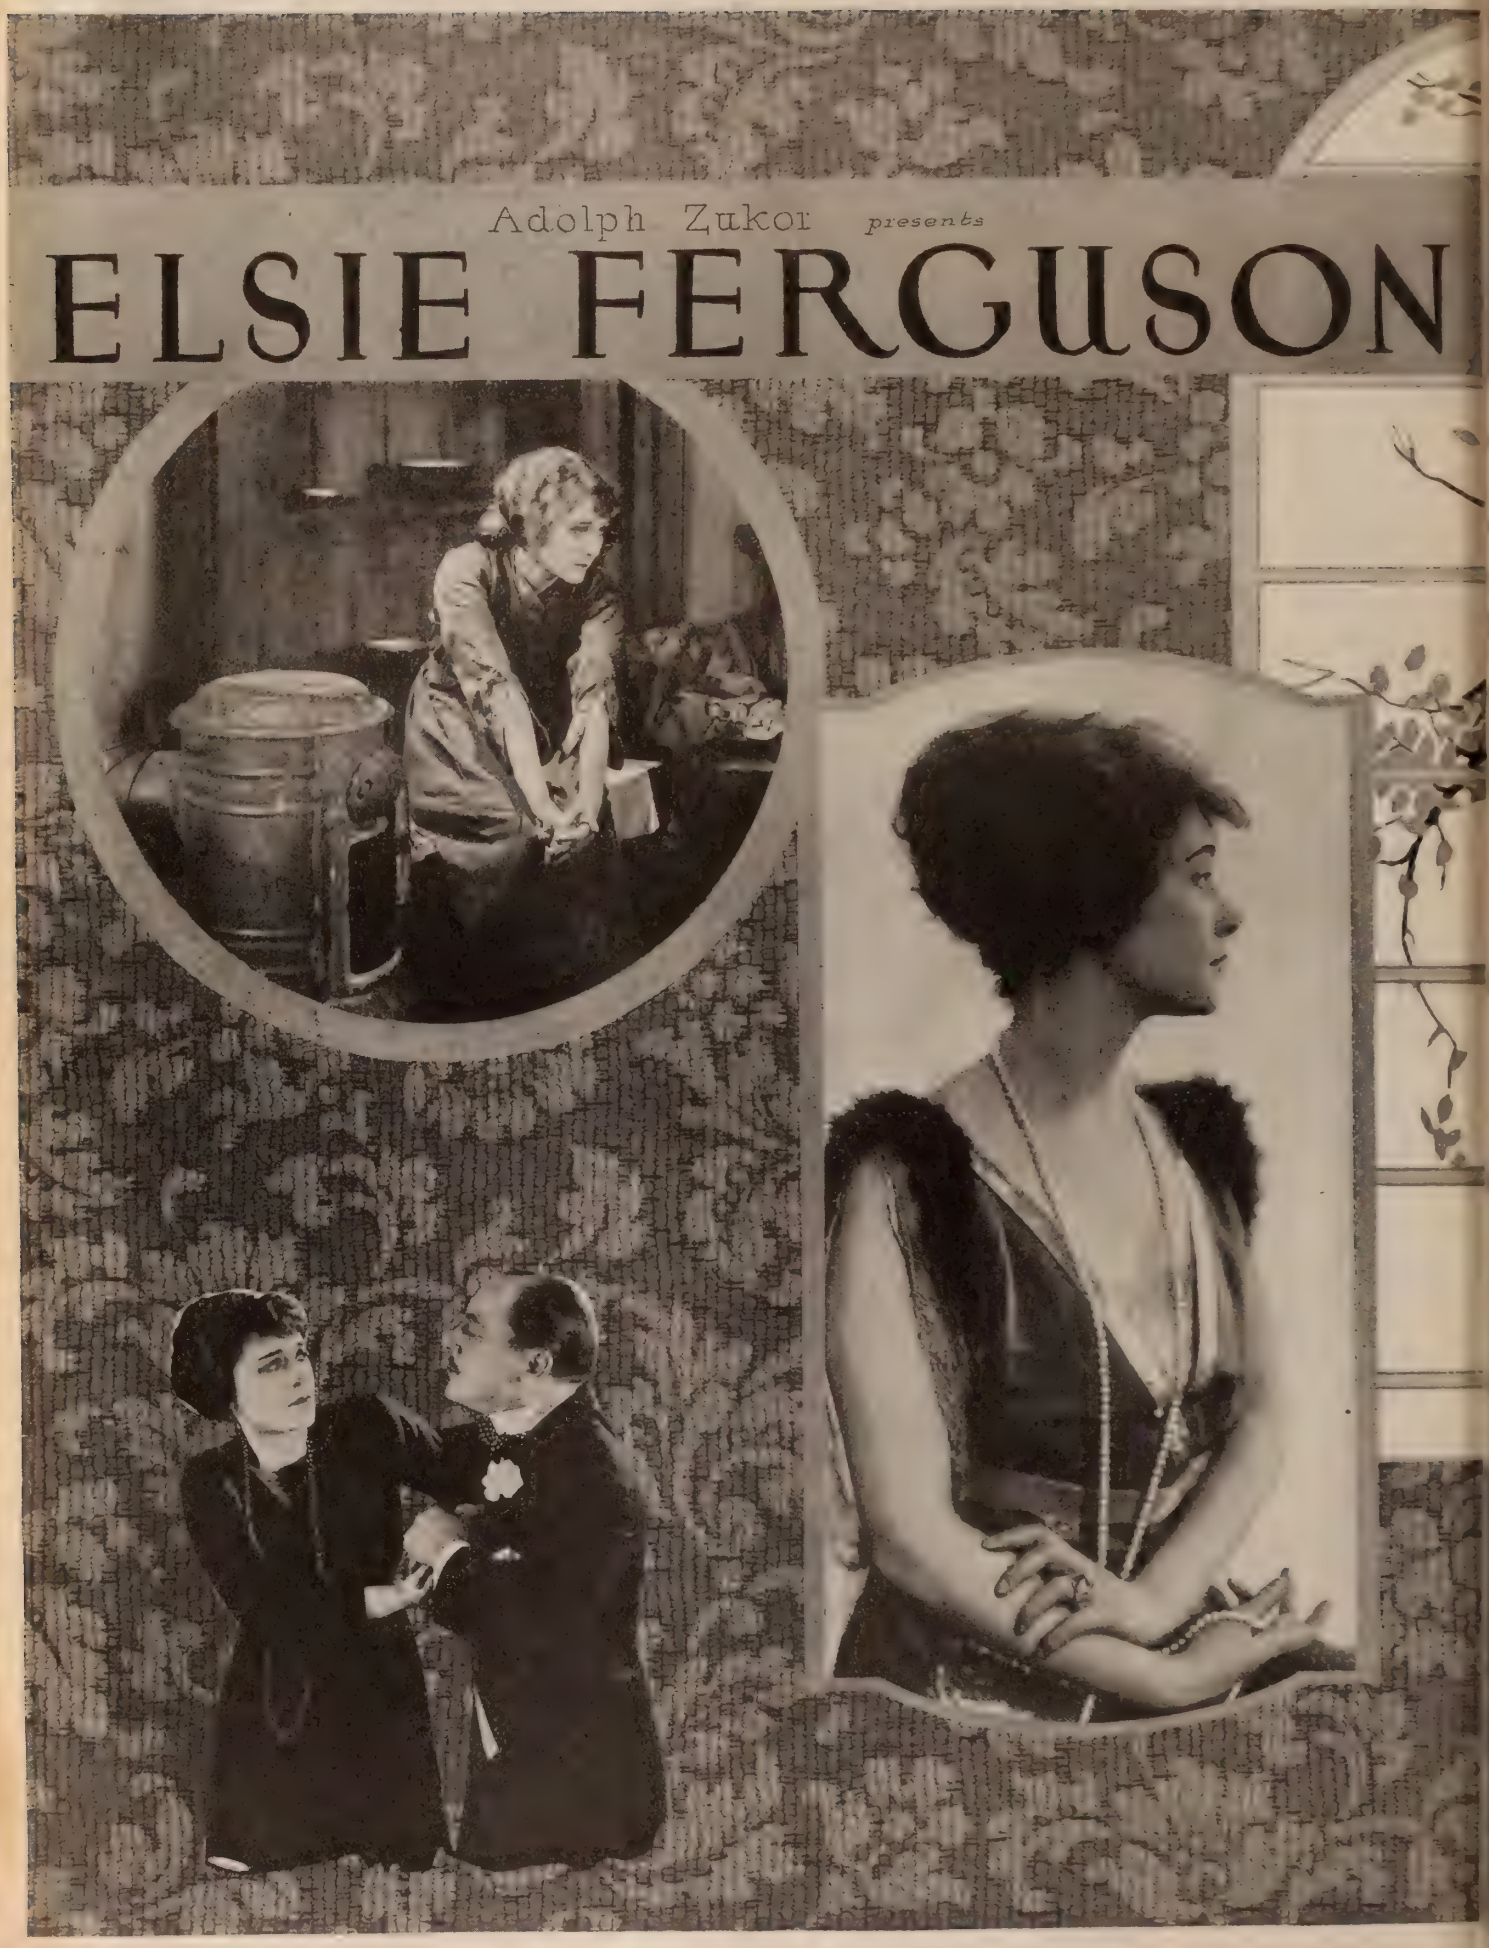
NEW YORK

ARTCRAFT PICTURES



VOL. XIX-NO. 11 Entered as Second Class Matter, [illegible] at the P.O. Office at New York, N. Y., under the Act of March 3rd, 1879 PRICE 15 CENTS



Published Weekly—$3.00 a year

Chicago — 729 Seventh Avenue, New York — Los Angeles

EXHIBITORS tell us that Mildred Harris draws just as much money for them as the best known international grand opera star. To the best of our belief, she also nets more. The reason isn't hard to find. It's simply because she's a remarkable actress playing in the very finest pictures that the screen has shown. Added to this, her married name (Mrs. Charles Chaplin) is the source of additional revenue to you which can not be ignored. All in all, Mildred Harris in a Lois Weber Production is the safest and best bet on the list today. If you are wise, you'll give her a week straight. Give " Borrowed Clothes " and " When a Girl Loves " two days each—then run " The Price of a Good Time "—" The Doctor and the Woman "—and " For Husbands Only " one day each. Your nearest Jewel Exchange will give you help and advice. See them today.

Adolph Zukor presents
ELSIE
FERGUSON
IN
"The Marriage Price"
By Griswold Wheeler, Scenario by Eve Unsell, Directed by Emile Chautard
An ARTCRAFT Picture
FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION

Adolph Zukor presents
ELSIE FERGUSON

We have secured good advertisers to talk to YOU. Listen to them!

Adolph Zukor .. presents
ELSIE
FERGUSON
IN
"The Marriage Price"
An ARTCRAFT Picture
When You Advertise It—
PROMISE a stirring story of a beautiful woman who couldn't resist the lure of luxury, a woman who married for money—and who strangely found happiness.
Promise a sumptuous production, featuring a "Horseshoe Dinner," a banquet of millionaires with fine horses as the guests of honor.
Promise one of Elsie Ferguson's finest pictures.
And you'll make good on every promise.
FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director-general
NEW YORK
ARTCRAFT PICTURES

SELECT SP PICTURES
SELECT SP PICTURES
Joseph M. Schenck
presents
NORMA
TALMADGE
in another of her peerless screen creations
"THE PROBATION WIFE"
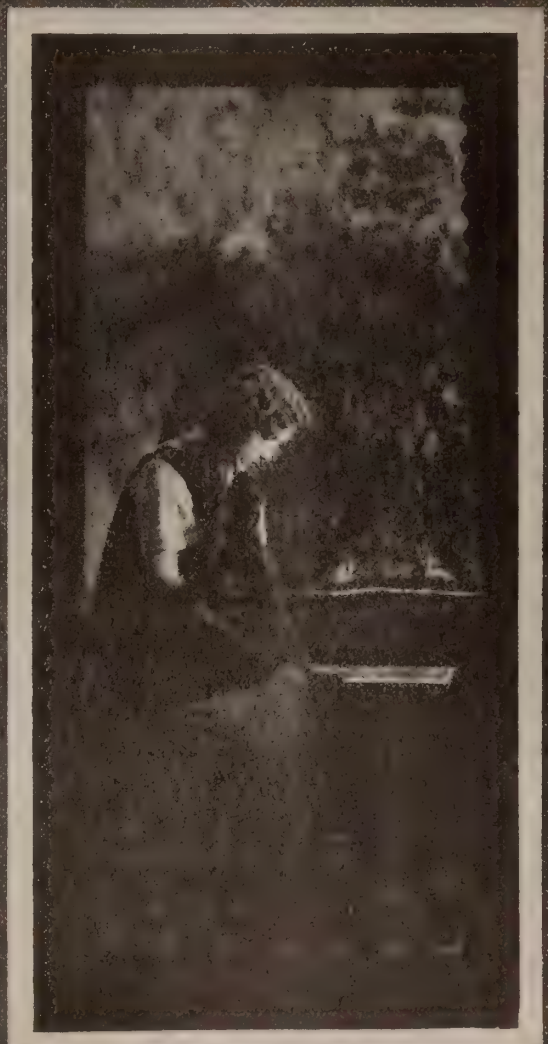
by Angie Ousley Ronner
Scenario by Kathryn Stuart
Directed by S. A. FRANKLIN
SP

BESSIE LOVE



brings the magic of these pages to life in one of the most superbly produced pictures of many, many months.

"THE WISHING RING MAN"

by

Margaret Widdemer

combines the box-office qualities of a best-seller's popularity and the quaint charm and winsomeness of one of the screen's premiere artistes.

Your patrons will expect much from this ideal story-star combination, and their anticipations will be far exceeded.

Directed by DAVID SMITH

A Real Picture

is

"THE WISHING RING MAN"

"'The Wishing Ring Man' is going to the hearts of the women, the children and those who haven't forgotten their childhood."

Motion Picture News.

"Excellent attraction. A sweet, charming little story. Entertainment of the wholesome kind. A production of the best. 'The Wishing Ring Man' can be depended upon to bring the money into the box-office."

Exhibitor's Trade Review.

"It has the airy touch so much appreciated when presented as it is here. Bessie Love is charming and vivacious in the part of Joy Havenith, whose first name she does not belie."

Moving Picture World.

VITAGRAPH

Albert E. Smith, President

Across the table from you in the bright restaurant.

Beyond the wall that divides your apartment from her own—weeping her heart out in the darkness.

At the glove counter rubbing elbows with your wife or daughter.

In the seat beside you at the theatre; watching her own heartaches on the screen, or choking her conscience in bitter defiance.

There she is—the riddle of all ages and today.

What are you going to do with her, or for her?

She is the problem of your town and my town. Will she answer you with a sob or a sneer?

The ETERNAL MAGDALENE

She is Everywhere

From the famous play by Robert H. McLaughlin

GOLDWYN

REX BEACH'S

Tremendous Drama of the Yukon

THE BRAND

Produced under the supervision of GOLDWYN - - Directed by Reginald Barker

THE CRITICS ARE UNANIMOUS

MOTION PICTURE NEWS: A Rex Beach story of the Far North that rings the bell. If "specials" are your specialty to overlook "The Brand" you must shut your eyes.

EX. TRADE REVIEW: Rex Beach and Goldwyn have spared no pains to make "The Brand" stand for all that is excellent in motion pictures. The story is of great power and appeal and its romance grips and thrills.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD: A story of strong passions gives "The Brand" the great inspiration that made "The Spoilers" such a success. Also, "The Brand" has the punch at the end that you have been taught to expect.

N. Y. TELEGRAPH: Few, if any photodramas, ever presented are as impressive in production or more engrossing in story than "The Brand." "The Brand" will be remembered when scores of other pictures are forgotten.

WID'S DAILY: "The Brand" is a Rex Beach drama of Alaska that has great elemental force; certain to interest almost any kind of audience. Certain to score a popular great success. A production to make a noise about.

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDWYN President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

They Start and They Finish

Exhibitors who sign contracts for Capitol Comedies immediately discover that these comedies are a franchise. They carry something with them besides the plot and the star.

That something is popularity. They at once prove to exhibitors that they draw additional patronage into their theatres.

From the beginning of his screen career "Smiling Bill" Parsons has been liked by audiences. This explains why, out of more than 3,000 theatres playing Capitol Comedies, less than fifty theatres have discontinued them from the day the first comedy was released almost one year ago.

There are 26 Capitol Comedies a year. One every second Monday.

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDWYN President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

LOUIS BENNISON in Speedy Meade

WRITTEN AND DIRECTED BY IRA M. LOWRY

As Fast as a Bolt of Lightning—

Quick on the draw—with a hole in the center of his target.

Swift to plant a mighty right in defense of the injured and oppressed, with an equally mighty left in reserve.

Quick with his romantic, dare-devil eyes to win the heart of a girl.

Quick to fight for a friend and instantly knowing his enemies.

That's why they called him "Speedy Meade."

This tips you off to book his third Betzwood Star Series production and his entire series of six productions, distributed exclusively by Goldwyn.

"Speedy Meade," released March 23, is as fast and thrilling as a motor engine responding to a three-alarm fire.

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDWYN President

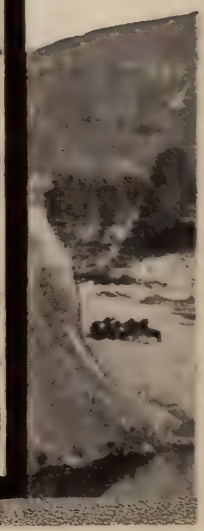
16 East 42nd Street New York City

Action-Melodrama Means Money at the Box-Office



Time and again this is proved by exhibitors of motion pictures. The newest proof of it and the prevailing success of the moment throughout America is Zane Grey's powerful drama of the west, "THE BORDER LEGION" starring BLANCHE BATES and HOBART BOSWORTH, directed by T. Hayes Hunter.

In all of the larger cities the big houses that the local public expect to see give shelter to the popular successes of the screen have booked "The Border Legion" and done a splendid business with it.

Merely as a reminder: This is a story of the romantic, colorful, gold-mad days of lawless California in the wild days of '49. If you need a money-maker, here it is.

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDWYN President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

ANNOUNCING

An early trade showing of

"The House Without Children"

A PHOTO-PLAY

From the Drama of the same name

By ROBERT H. McLAUGHLIN

Author of

"The Eternal Magdalene"

Directed By

S. R. BRODSKY

Photographed By

E. M. REYNOLDS

Under the Personal Supervision of the Author

Produced By

THE ARGUS ENTERPRISES INC.

815-23 Prospect Avenue - Cleveland

HARRY MAZE JENKS

LONDON ENG.

Offers to the American trade a number of photoplays representing the best in recent British production. Photographed among the surroundings which have become famous in literature—written by well-known authors, some of whose names are famous in America—and played by the best talent obtainable—this group of pictures should have a strong appeal for American audiences.

There are love stories among them, picturing quaint bits of gypsy caravan life,—melodrama with all the thrills of the race track and stage—strong dramatic stories showing the higher type of English life, and, in contrast, stories of picturesque lower classes with all the humor and pathos which have such a strong human appeal.

With these pictures as a nucleus, Harma photoplays is prepared to enter into arrangements for regular production for the American market with an organization of unquestioned standing.

Mr. Jenks will be in New York, at the Hotel Astor, about the middle of March and will be pleased to make appointments with principals only for the screening of these pictures.

Harma Productions

The Great Impostor

A strong dramatic offering with an unusual punch

FIVE REELS

The Splendid Coward

From the novel by Houghton Townley

SIX REELS

Master of Men

From the story by E. Phillips Oppenheim

FIVE REELS

A Romany Lass

A story of absorbing interest of life among the gypsies

FIVE REELS

Deception

An exciting story of woman's deceit

FIVE REELS

White Star

A romance of the turf and stage

FIVE REELS

Big Money

From the novel by May Wynne

FIVE REELS

Nature's Gentleman

A story founded upon caste prejudices

FIVE REELS

Mr. Jenks also offers several photoplays produced by Clarendon Films

HARRY MAZE JENKS
101 Wardour Street, London, W. 1
Cable, Harramajen-Ox, London

SHOULD A WOMAN GAMBLE— WITH MONEY, LOVE, HONOR, LIFE?

TRAGEDY AND ROMANCE GO HAND IN HAND IN

The Great BACON-BACKER PRODUCTION of

A WOMAN'S EXPERIENCE

PAUL M. POTTER'S Dramatic Masterpiece

The Famous Author's Most Sensational Story Since "TRILBY" and "ARSENE LUPIN"

STARRING MARY BOLAND

NUMBER THREE OF

The Big Special Productions

At $10—$20—$30 Per Day

No. 1—Julius Steger's Masterpiece

Evelyn Nesbit in "HER MISTAKE"

No. 2—The Sensational J. Stuart Blackton Super-Feature

"LIFE'S GREATEST PROBLEM" Starring Mitchell Lewis

No. 4—The Sensational Frank Reicher Production of Isabel Ostrander's world-famous novel

"SUSPENSE" Starring Mollie King

All exceptional show propositions with extraordinary advertising angles and recognized box office value

Bookings placed by
INDEPENDENT SALES CORPORATION

Distributed through
FILM CLEARING HOUSE, Inc.

She doesn't–you do

YOU know, in the fourth reel of the good old melodrama, where the heroine wrings her hands and moans that "the woman pays, pays, pays?"

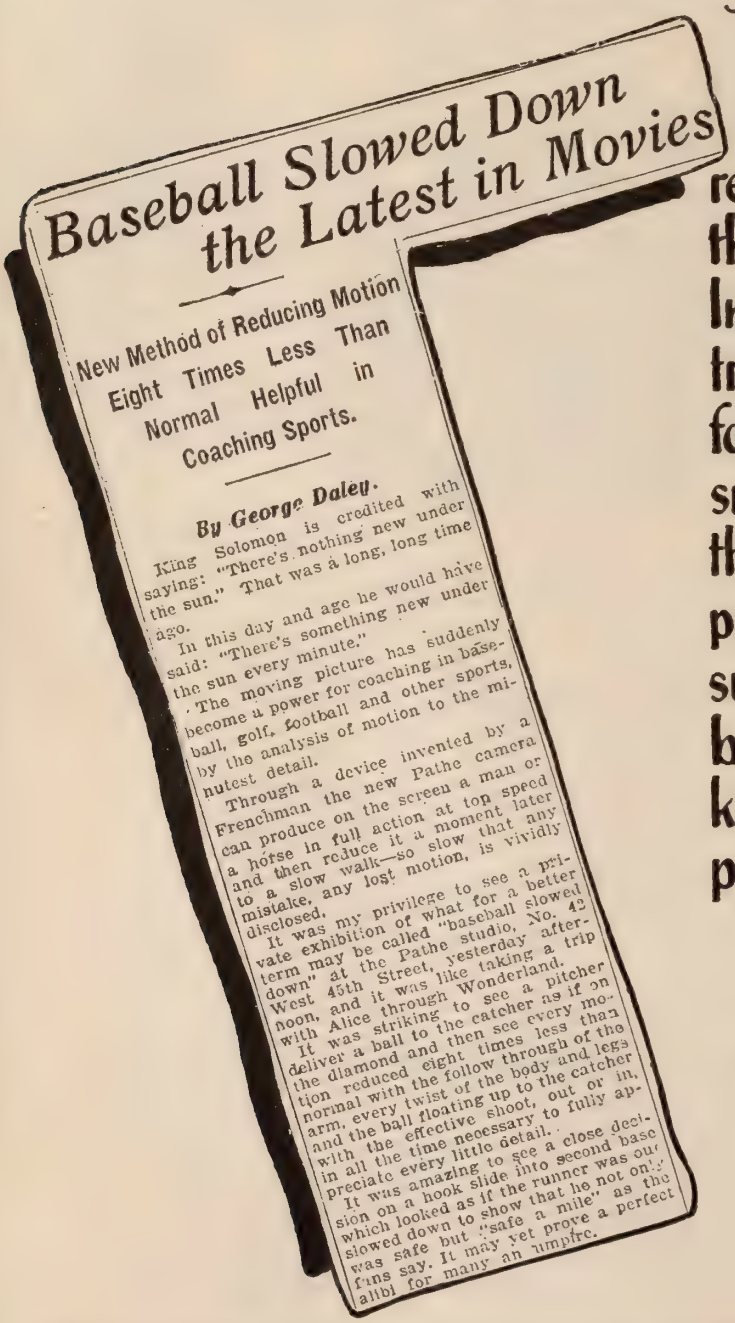
Stuff and nonsense! You pay.

Three years ago the exhibitors paid $131,000 a week for two five-reel features from the distributing company of which Mr. Hodkinson was then president.

Now that this same company has come under the producer control and is putting out three five-reelers a week, do the exhibitors pay $200,000, which is the proper proportionate increase?

They do not. They pay approximately $370,000.

This is exactly why Mr. Hodkinson established a distributing organization of his own, to continue his policy of building up the exhibitor's business through better and better pictures at fair, square rentals.



W. W. Hodkinson Corporation

527 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

"Absolutely fascinating" said the newspaper men who were shown the

PATHÉ REVIEW

a film magazine

Baseball Slowed Down the Latest in Movies

New Method of Reducing Motion Eight Times Less Than Normal Helpful in Coaching Sports.

By George Daley.

King Solomon is credited with saying: "There's nothing new under the sun." That was a long, long time ago.

In this day and age he would have said: "There's something new under the sun every minute."

The moving picture has suddenly become a power for coaching in baseball, golf, football and other sports, by the analysis of motion to the nutest detail.

Through a device invented by a Frenchman the new Pathe camera can produce on the screen a man or a horse in full action at top speed and then reduce it a moment later to a slow walk—so slow that any mistake, any lost motion, is vividly disclosed.

It was my privilege to see a private exhibition of what for a better term may be called "baseball slowed down" at the Pathe studio, No. 42 West 45th Street, yesterday afternoon, and it was like taking a trip with Alice through Wonderland.

It was striking to see a pitcher deliver a ball to the catcher as if on the diamond and then see every motion reduced eight times less than normal with the follow through of the arm, every twist of the body and legs and the ball floating up to the catcher with the effective shoot, out or in, in all the time necessary to fully appreciate every little detail.

It was amazing to see a close decision on a hook slide into second base which looked as if the runner was out slowed down to show that he not only was safe but "safe a mile," as the fans say. It may yet prove a perfect alibi for many an umpire.

Here is a one reel picture, released every other week, that is off the beaten track. In each number will be found travel pictures (mostly in the famous Pathécolor), scientific subjects of popular interest, the wonderful slow motion pictures, humorous or sport subjects, not much of each but always of a length and kind that will interest every person in any theatre anywhere.

Ask your nearest Pathé exchange to screen it for you. You'll be delighted with it!

PATHÉ
DISTRIBUTORS

In high regard—
Pathé News

"I want to tell you of the high regard with which the Pathé News is held by the patrons of the Alhambra Theatre as well as myself.

"We were the first people in Milwaukee to show the News, some eight years ago. We have shown it practically continuously.

"We feel that no program, regardless of star or production, would be complete without the News."

George Fischer, Manager
Saxe's Alhambra Theatre
Milwaukee

Twice a week and always the best

PATHÉ
DISTRIBUTORS

THE UNPARD

Didn't need New York to "Put It Over" !!
Stopped busy Detroit dead still in its Tracks!!
All eyes turned on the Broadway Strand — even business was forgotten!!

Opened in Detroit, Sunday, March 2nd for the First Time Anywhere to $4,754.80 Receipts!!

11,000 Paid Admissions!!
20,000 People turned away!!
$100,000.00 Territory Sold in One Day!!

Breaking All Box Office Records!!!
Upsetting All Traditions of Showmanship!!!

THE BIGGEST OPENING THE WORLD

WRITE OR WIRE QUICK FOR FIRST RUN IN

Address
HARRY GARSON AEOLIAN

With

BLANCHE SWEET

Directed in Person by

MARSHALL NEILAN

ONABLE SIN

BOX OFFICE STATEMENT

Sunday, March 2 - -	$4,754.80
Monday, March 3 - -	3,081.20
Tuesday, March 4 - -	3,187.60
Wednesday, March 5	3,192.10

AT PRICES ADVANCED TO $1.00 IN A THEATRE SEATING ONLY 1400 AND--JUST AROUND THE CORNER FROM NOWHERE!!

NOTE. At the time of going to press the lines at the Broadway Strand, in a blinding blizzard, still extended around the block leading from both directions. The difference in the gross receipts of Sunday and the week days is accounted for by the Matinee Prices which prevail on week days!!

HAS EVER SEEN — BAR NONE!!!

YOUR TERRITORY—PERCENTAGE ONLY

HALL NEW YORK

THE UNPARD

$100,000.00

Over One-Hundred-Thousand Dollars worth of Territory sold the opening day to such shrewd buyers as

CLARK & ROWLAND, Western Penn. and W. Virginia
FRANK HATCH, Ohio
SOL LESSER, California
JULE & J. ALLEN, Canada

who made it a point to be in Detroit at the opening, and approximately over $100,000 in offers for other territory refused!!

AIN'T - IT - A - "SIN"?

MONEY turned away from Box Offices!
MONEY turned away from State Right Buyers!

—AN "UNPARDONABLE SIN"!!!

WRITE OR WIRE QUICK FOR FIRST RUN IN

Address
HARRY GARSON

AEOLIAN

With

BLANCHE SWEET

Directed in Person by

MARSHALL NEILAN

ONABLE SIN

The Great Big 10 Reel Production of Major Rupert Hughes' astounding story which has already sold over the 2,500,000 mark!

Acknowledged by all who have seen it to be one of the few Big things of the Screen—and backing up this opinion by the Biggest Opening ever accorded any other Production anywhere—by the tremendous business being done daily and the unbounded enthusiasm of the audiences, such as has never been witnessed in any theatre, which proves again—

THE - STORY - IS - THE - THING!!

OUR TERRITORY—PERCENTAGE ONLY

ALL NEW YORK

BILLIE RHODES

in "The Lamb And The Lion"

Presented by NATIONAL FILM CORPORATION OF AMERICA

Billie hits top-notch speed in this. Her seven league boots make her step some, but not quite fast enough when she attempts to hold up a woman who determines to marry her to a rich man's son just for revenge.

Released through

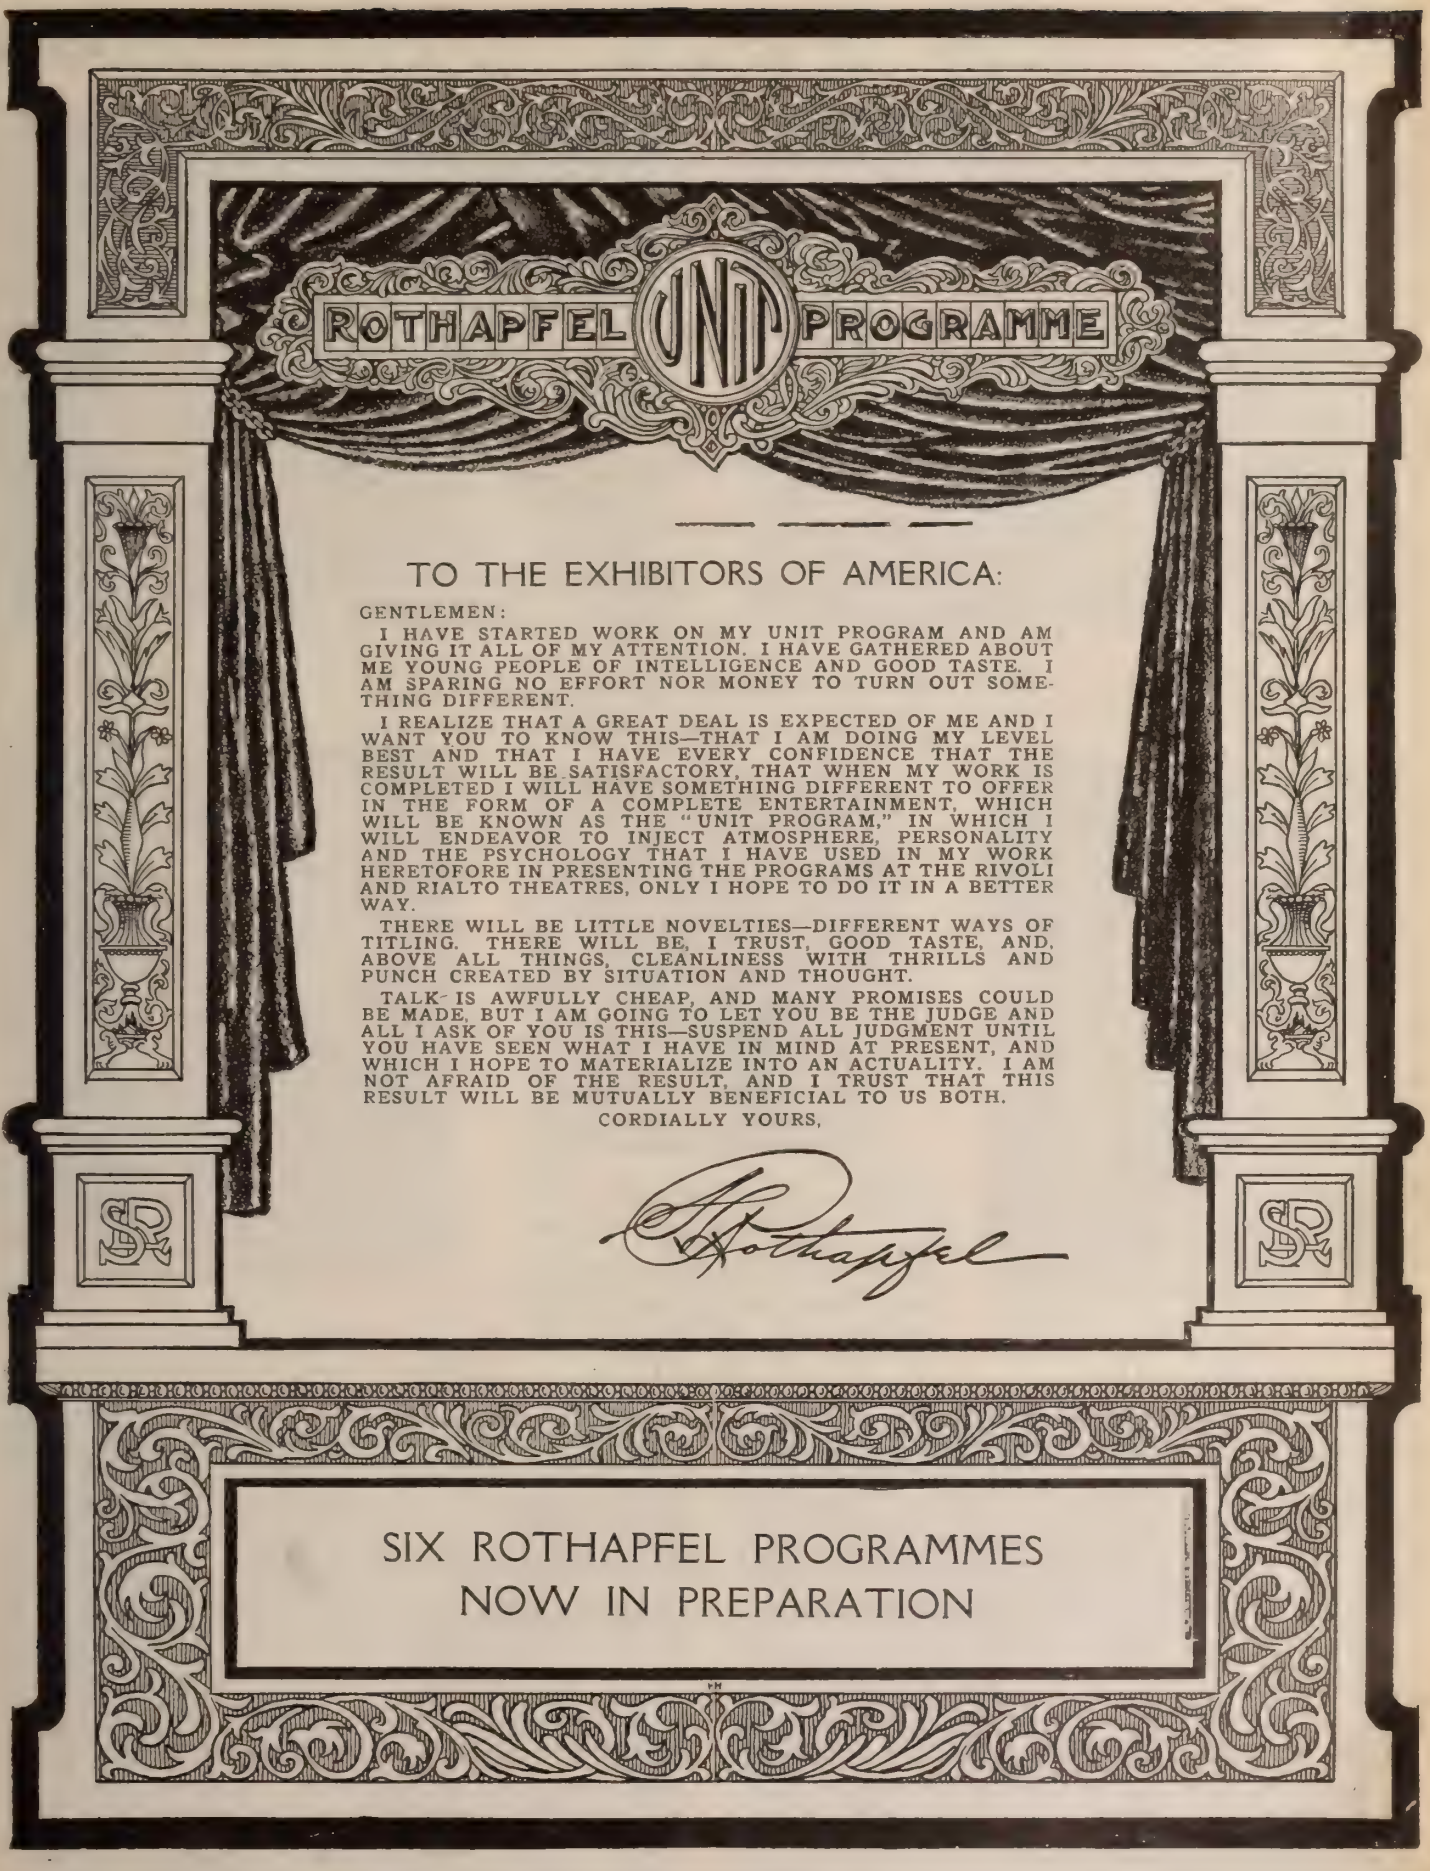
EXHIBITORS MUTUAL

ROBERTSON-COLE COMPANY
DIVISION OF FILMS
BANKERS and EXPORTERS
FOR THE PRODUCER

HENRY B. WALTHALL

in "The Long Lane's Turning"

Produced by THE NATIONAL FILM CORPORATION OF AMERICA



A timely and forceful subject that has strong advertising features in It's bearing on the prohibition situation. It has a mighty appeal to every audience in the forcefulness of it's gripping story. It is from the book by Hallie Erminie Rives. One of the biggest popular fiction successes in years

Released through

EXHIBITORS MUTUAL

ROBERTSON-COLE
COMPANY
DIVISION OF FILMS
BANKERS and EXPORTERS
FOR THE PRODUCER

ROTHAPFEL UNIT PROGRAMME
COMPLETE FROM OVERTURE TO FINAL CURTAIN
MUSIC
ESPECIALLY ARRANGED FOR THE WHOLE PERFORMANCE EFFECTS
SCENIC AND LIGHTING EFFECTS PECULIAR TO THE PICTURES FEATURE
AN ELABORATELY STAGED SPECIAL PRODUCTION
COMEDY
THE LAST WORD IN UP-TO-THE-MINUTE HIGH CLASS COMEDY
TOPICALS
EXCLUSIVE - SERVICE NEWS AND MAGAZINE REELS
NOVELTIES
SCENIC, CARTOON AND NOVELTY SUBJECTS
SPECIALS
ANIMATED TITLES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS
ALL PRODUCED UNDER THE PERSONAL SUPERVISION OF SAMUEL L. ROTHAPFEL
SIX ROTHAPFEL PROGRAMMES NOW IN PREPARATION

ROTHAPFEL UNIT PROGRAMME
TO THE EXHIBITORS OF AMERICA:
GENTLEMEN:
I HAVE STARTED WORK ON MY UNIT PROGRAM AND AM GIVING IT ALL OF MY ATTENTION. I HAVE GATHERED ABOUT ME YOUNG PEOPLE OF INTELLIGENCE AND GOOD TASTE. I AM SPARING NO EFFORT NOR MONEY TO TURN OUT SOMETHING DIFFERENT.
I REALIZE THAT A GREAT DEAL IS EXPECTED OF ME AND I WANT YOU TO KNOW THIS—THAT I AM DOING MY LEVEL BEST AND THAT I HAVE EVERY CONFIDENCE THAT THE RESULT WILL BE SATISFACTORY, THAT WHEN MY WORK IS COMPLETED I WILL HAVE SOMETHING DIFFERENT TO OFFER IN THE FORM OF A COMPLETE ENTERTAINMENT, WHICH WILL BE KNOWN AS THE "UNIT PROGRAM," IN WHICH I WILL ENDEAVOR TO INJECT ATMOSPHERE, PERSONALITY AND THE PSYCHOLOGY THAT I HAVE USED IN MY WORK HERETOFORE IN PRESENTING THE PROGRAMS AT THE RIVOLI AND RIALTO THEATRES, ONLY I HOPE TO DO IT IN A BETTER WAY.
THERE WILL BE LITTLE NOVELTIES—DIFFERENT WAYS OF TITLING. THERE WILL BE, I TRUST, GOOD TASTE, AND, ABOVE ALL THINGS, CLEANLINESS WITH THRILLS AND PUNCH CREATED BY SITUATION AND THOUGHT.
TALK IS AWFULLY CHEAP, AND MANY PROMISES COULD BE MADE, BUT I AM GOING TO LET YOU BE THE JUDGE AND ALL I ASK OF YOU IS THIS—SUSPEND ALL JUDGMENT UNTIL YOU HAVE SEEN WHAT I HAVE IN MIND AT PRESENT, AND WHICH I HOPE TO MATERIALIZE INTO AN ACTUALITY. I AM NOT AFRAID OF THE RESULT, AND I TRUST THAT THIS RESULT WILL BE MUTUALLY BENEFICIAL TO US BOTH.
CORDIALLY YOURS,
S. L. Rothapfel
SIX ROTHAPFEL PROGRAMMES
NOW IN PREPARATION

Fan Stuff In The Series Of New

This is where and how she hears his name for the first time, and—

This is where she accepts that name for life

ROMANCE!

These two make almost all of the trouble for ——

"Virtuous Wives" and "A Midnight Romance" are the two new ones to date

THRILLS!

The maid? With soft hands, regal beauty and charming smile.

The outdoor locations are just as striking as ——

—— The wonderful interior sets in every scene

March Release Of The Anita Stewart Pictures

This scene ends the search for the long lost—But take a look at the—

MYSTERY!

Situation here and figure out for yourself, if you can, who she is.

Louis B. Mayer

presents

ANITA STEWART

IN

"A MIDNIGHT ROMANCE"

A LOIS WEBER PRODUCTION

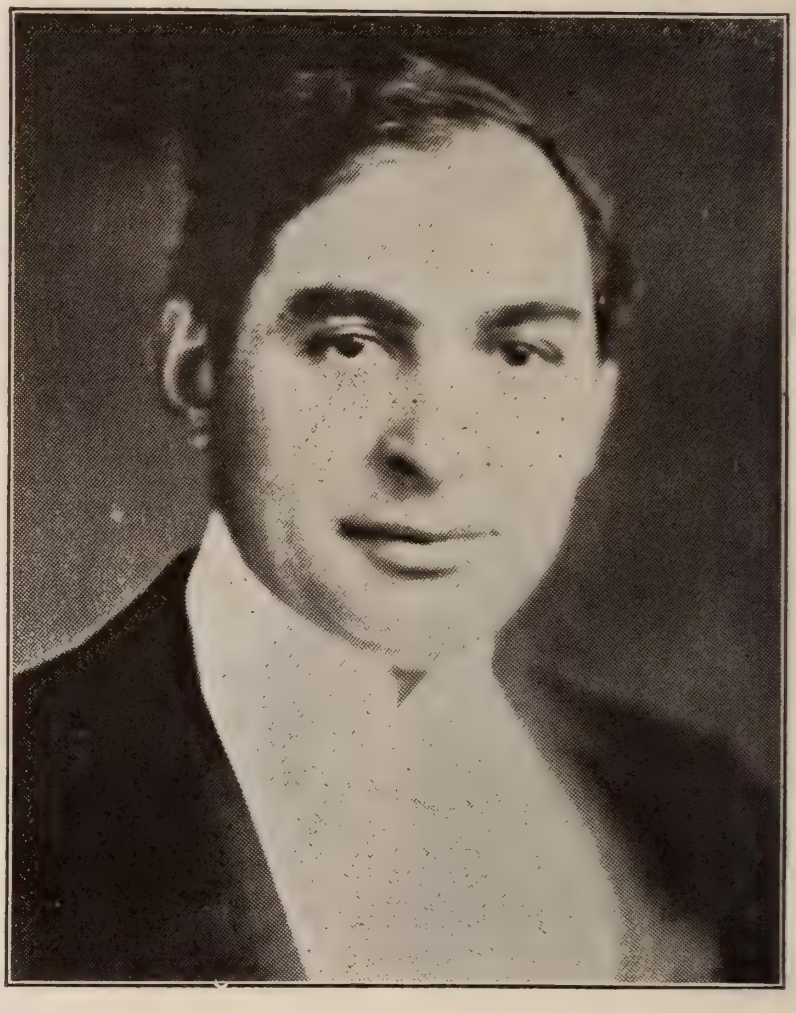
From the story by Marion Orth

A "FIRST NATIONAL" ATTRACTION

The group stared, amazed at the girl in maid's dress. Could it be?—

SUSPENSE!

At last! Their eyes had not deceived them. She was caught.



Not all the romance is in garden settings —— Nor all the action in private rooms

THE DEMON'S SHADOW

The
Reissue Serial Extraordinary
Featuring

MITCHELL LEWIS
MARGUERITE SNOW
AND JAMES CRUZE

"We Are Booked Solid On All Prints For The Next Sixty Days."

Is the Report on This Unusual Serial from Quaker City Feature Film Co.

1325 Vine St., Philadelphia

Other Exchanges Where You Can secure the Serial that is Booking Solid are:

Merit Film Corporation, 126 West 46th St., New York.

Sipe Film Company, 67 Walton St., Atlanta

Day Film Corporation, 412 Ferry St., Pittsburg

A. Rosenthal, Suite 402, 220 So. State Street, Chicago.

Gardiner Syndicate, 47 W. Swan St., Buffalo

Federal Feature Film Company, 17 Piedmont St., Boston.

Variety Pictures Corporation, 412 E. Baltimore St., Baltimore.

Exchangemen: THERE ARE A FEW EXCELLENT TERRITORIES AVAILABLE. GET OUR PROPOSITION

WIRE OR WRITE

ARROW FILM CORPORATION

W. E. Shallenberger, President

Times Building, New York

SELZNICK PICTURES

Elopement scene from "Upstairs and Down"

HARRISON FISHER SAYS

OLIVE THOMAS

is the most beautiful girl in America

MYRON SELZNICK SAYS

UPSTAIRS AND DOWN

is a snappy society story, tailor made for the lovely star

READY SOON; EIGHT LIKE IT YEARLY, PRODUCED BY CHARLES GIBLYN

SELZNICK PICTURES
CORPORATION

Myron Selznick - - - - President and General Manager
Charles Giblyn - - - - Vice-President and Director General
501 Fifth Avenue, New York

We have secured good advertisers to talk to YOU. Listen to them!

CHARLIE AND "OLD BILL

They have ushered in peace w laughs and to the tune of gr

BOOK "THE BETTER 'OL
FILM TO-DA

The Best Criticisms Without Exception Ever Accorded a Motion Picture Feature by the New York Newspapers

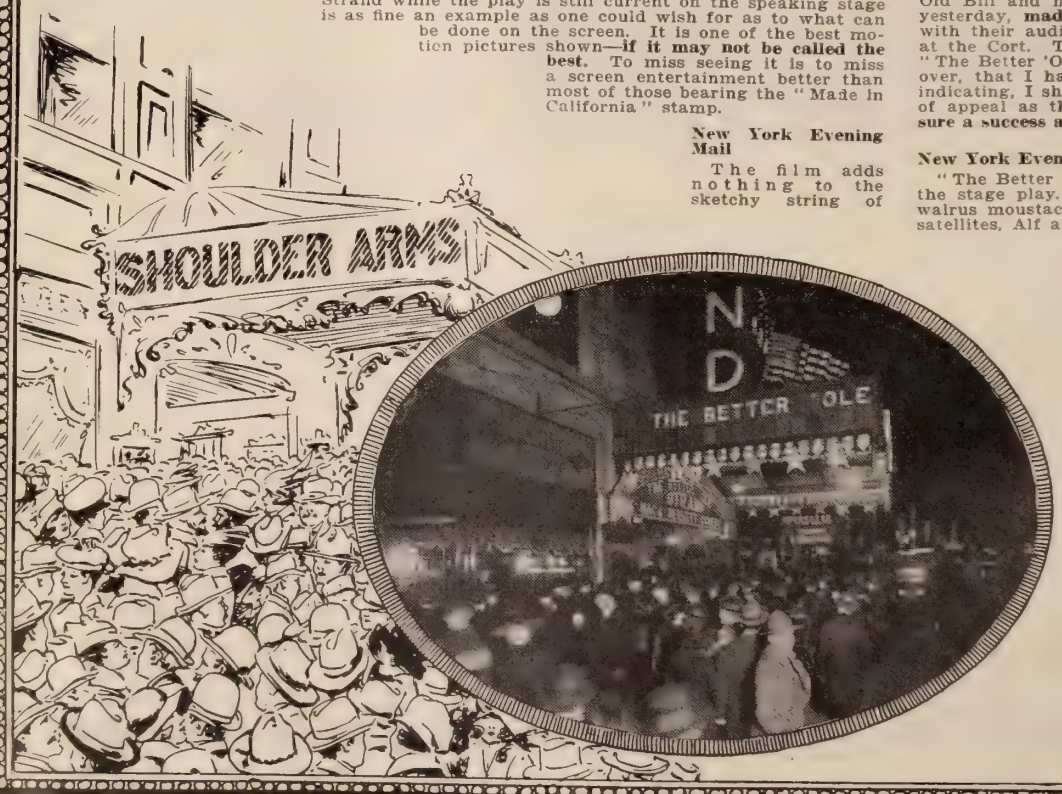
New York Evening World

"The Better 'Ole" shown in motion pictures at the Strand while the play is still current on the speaking stage is as fine an example as one could wish for as to what can be done on the screen. It is one of the best motion pictures shown—if it may not be called the best. To miss seeing it is to miss a screen entertainment better than most of those bearing the "Made in California" stamp.

New York Evening Mail

The film adds nothing to the sketchy string of Bairnsfather cartoons in the way of romance, but them level as an appealingly human portrayal of cha Old Bill and his pals, as they were shown at the yesterday, made friends as quickly, or almost as q with their audiences, as they do in the Coburn pro at the Cort. The comedy situations were quickly g "The Better 'Ole" is one of the few feature pictures over, that I have heard applauded in the movie th indicating, I should say, that it has much the same of appeal as the play. And if it has that it is al sure a success as it need be.

New York Evening Telegram



"The Better 'Ole" as a photoplay has more variet the stage play. It has not lost any of the humor walrus moustached figure of "Old Bill" together w satellites, Alf and Bert. The story written around C is told with humor and a l and wholly characteristic on the screen as on the The acting is admirable. T ture will be thoroughly enj all who see it.

New York Times

"The Better 'Ole" o screen is still "The Better It has the unmistakable of Bairnsfather's human hum it gives what will be to m illuminating and thorough joyable picture of the life sented in his cartoons.

New York American

"The Better 'Ole," a ph relating to Bruce Bairnsf famous cartoons, is the st

CAN SHAKE HANDS NOW!

a barrage of big business!

FROM WORLD

traction at the Strand. The stage play of the same name is enjoying a national vogue. The screen version attracted record patronage yesterday, due to the truthfulness of its philosophy and atmosphere—the universal appeal and good will of its story—the splendid enactment of characters by a celebrated company.

New York World

"The Better 'Ole" is an excellent movie version of the celebrated play and cartoons by Bruce Bairnsfather.

New York Tribune

"The Better 'Ole" is attracting big crowds. It is thoroughly as satisfactory as any portrayal of the Bairnsfather comedy could be. At any rate the people swarmed into the Strand to see the picture and everybody seemed to be delighted with it. They applauded all during the performance whenever Bill scored a hit, sang a song, blew up a bridge or got decorated, and they applauded loudly at the finish. Especially when Alf's lighter finally performed the function for which it was designed.

New York Sun

The screen version of "The Better 'Ole" adapted by the Cinema Distributing Corporation and seen yesterday at the Strand makes it possible for the cartoon Iliad of the Great War to be doing business in three mediums simultaneously—on the screen—on the stage—and in the book stores. Charles Rock's Old Bill compares well with that of Charles Coburn, even to the artistic sincerity of grimy fingernails. The film adheres successfully to the play at the Cort except for the introduction of a poet—but when did poets ever matter in this world?

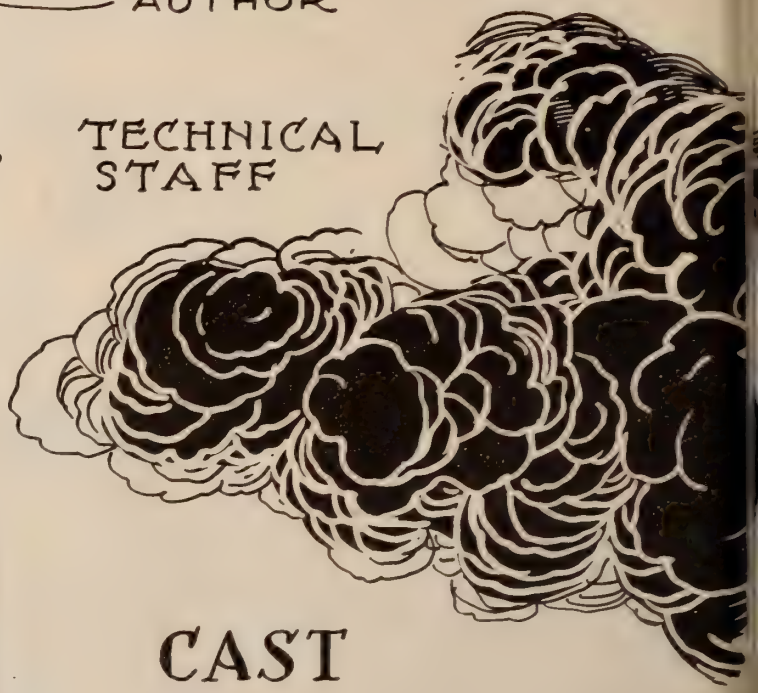
New York Journal of Commerce

"The Better 'Ole" made a very strong appeal on the screen at the Strand at its initial showing this week. All of the lovable characteristics of Old Bill were effectively presented by Charles Rock. Arthur Cleave as the philandering Bert and Hugh Wright as Alf compared favorably with Mr. Coburn's companions in the stage version. Those who have enjoyed Bruce Bairnsfather's cartoons and character sketches on the stage will appreciate the little incidents and humorous bits that have been introduced into the screen story. No better screen entertainment has been presented at the Strand.

New York Telegraph

Bruce Bairnsfather's humorous inspiration is running at the Strand Theatre to crowded business. Old Bill, Alf and Bert belong among the immortals. The picture is admirably done and the types have stepped from the stage to the screen with no loss in humor or in faithfulness. The little jokes on red tape were much appreciated by the audience.

Backed by the Greatest Advance Advertising Campaign in Feature History: We show you how to tie it all to your house with a single week's work.



AN ENTIRE YEAR OF EFFORT
ON THE PART OF THIS UNHEARD OF COMBINATION OF TALENT

MACAULEY PHOTOPLAYS INC. —— PRODUCER
CHARLES R. MACAULEY —— AUTHOR

FRANK BORZAGE
OLLIE L. SELLERS

TECHNICAL STAFF

NAN BLAIR
MILTON MANASCO
JACK MACKENZIE
SIDNEY R. FLOWER

CAST OF PLAYERS AND THEIR FORMER ASSOCIATIONS

JACK MULHALL	LASKY
PAULINE STARKE	GRIFFITH
KATHRYN ADAMS	FAMOUS
HARVEY CLARKE	INCE
JEAN HERSHOLT	TRIANGLE
WILTON TAYLOR	VITAGRAPH
CHARLES FRENCH	INCE
MILLARD WILSON	JEWEL
WALTER WHITMAN	TRIANGLE
EDDIE HEARNE	FOX
NANINE WRIGHT	UNIVERSAL
GEORGE PIERCE	LASKY
ALBERTA LEE	GRIFFITH
BETTY SCHADE	GOLDWYN
UTAHNA LA RENO	METRO
WALTER PERKINS	FOX
WILLIAM DYER	FOX
WILLIAM V. MEINKE	JEWEL
JOHN CASSAR	WORLD
FRANK NEWBURG	TRIANGLE

ROTHACKER FILM MFG CO.
LABORATORY DETAILS

TWO MILLION LETTERS MAILED THROUGHOUT AMERICA. EVERY DAILY PAPER IN THE WORLD BRIMMING WITH HEADLINES ON THIS SUBJECT

ONE YEAR IN THE MAKING

MACAULEY PHOTOPLAYS INC.

WILL OFFER THE IMMACULATE
PSYCHOLOGICAL ENTERTAINING SCREEN PRODUCTION

A ROMANCE OF TODAY TEEMING WITH EXCITING EPISODES WITH WOODROW WILSON'S LEAGUE OF NATIONS AS THE BACKGROUND

IT CONTAINS ALL THE ELEMENTS
OF A SERIAL, IS A DIGNIFIED PRODUCTION
AND COMES AT JUST THE RIGHT TIME

DISTRIBUTION ARRANGEMENTS TO BE ANNOUNCED SHORTLY

MACAULEY PHOTOPLAYS INC.
516 FIFTH AVE., N.Y.

HARRY REICHENBACH, SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE

THOU SHALT NOT!

EVELYN NESBIT

IN

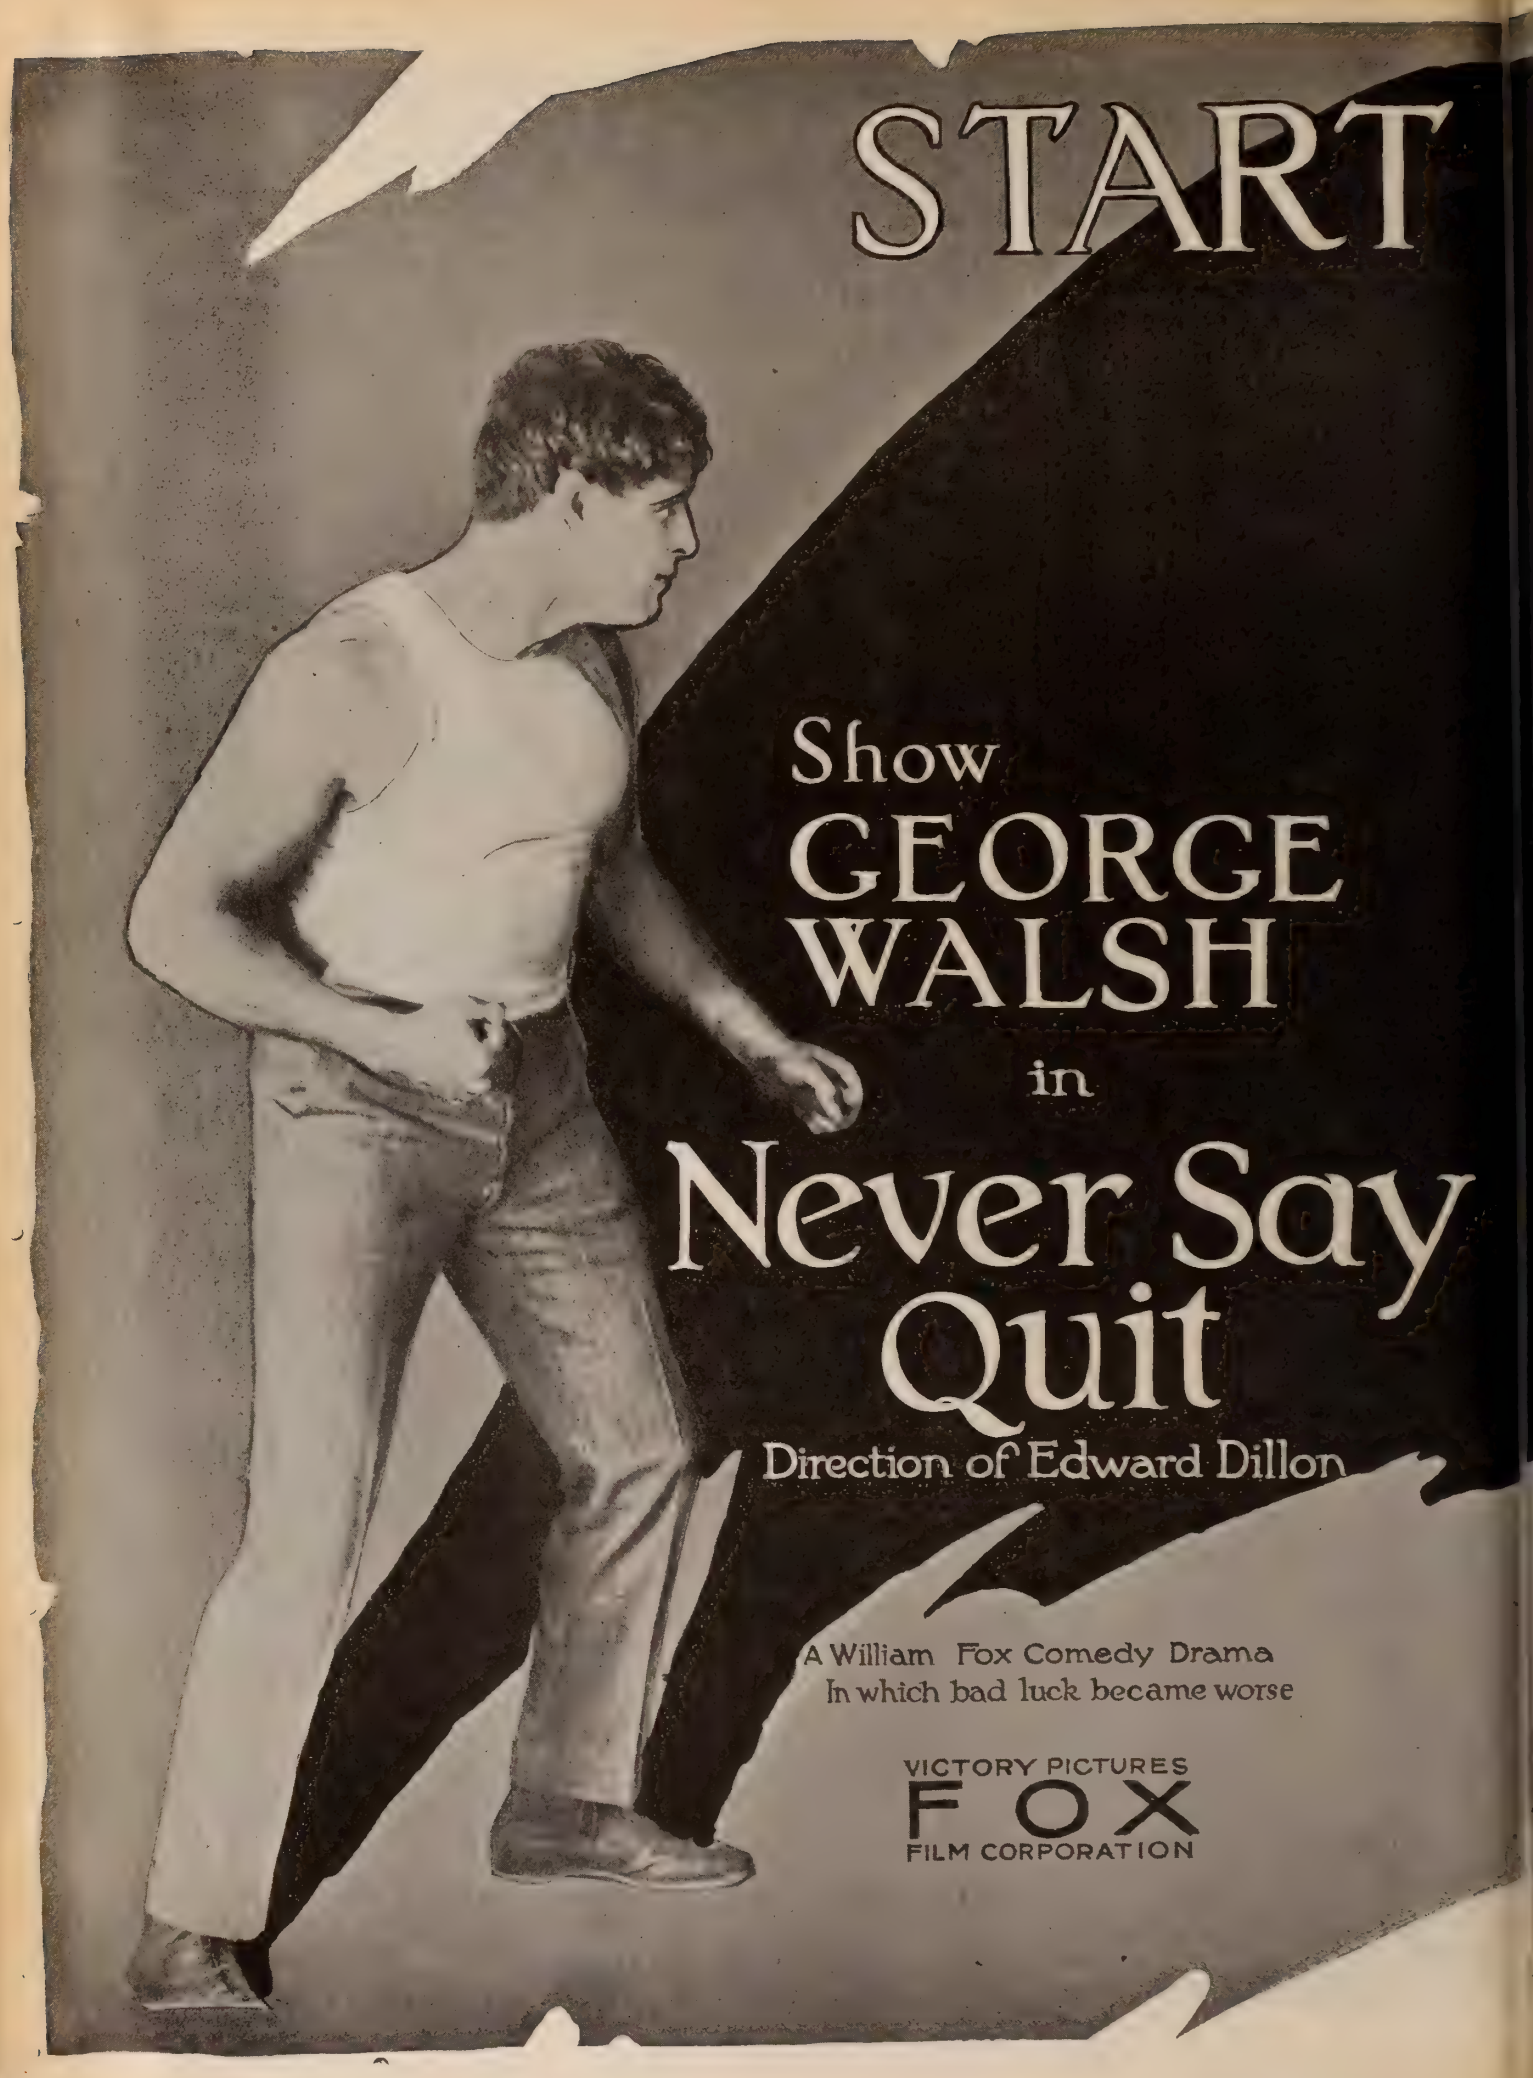
A STORY OF A GIRL WHO CAME BACK

ONE OF THE TRULY GREAT PICTURES OF THE SEASON

A

WILLIAM FOX PRODUCTION

DIRECTED BY



CHARLES BRABIN

STANDARD PICTURES

FOX

FILM CORPORATION

START Show
GEORGE WALSH
in Never Say
Quit
Direction of Edward Dillon
A William Fox Comedy Drama
In which bad luck became worse
VICTORY PICTURES
FOX
FILM CORPORATION

THINGS!

Crowds Riot! Turmoil Reigns!

Triangle Presents

the renowned character actor

GEORGE FAWCETT

in

"THE RAILROADER"

A picturization of the aggressive career of a famous politician.
A screen version of Albert Payson Terhune's novel, "Caleb Conover—Railroader."

Released by the

TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

1457 Broadway New York

GIVE THE PUBLIC WHAT IT WANTS

The Public Wants to Be Shown—and That's As It Should Be.

Every Exhibitor, Literally Speaking, Was Born in Missouri—And That Is As It Should Be.

Don't Trust Yourself at all times to know what the Public likes—

There's just a wee possibility that your dope is based slightly upon the custom of things rather than following "The Fickle Fancy to Which Your Patrons Turn."

There never was a better dopester in the world than the Public itself.

It is Tired to Death with Stereotype Pictures of Padded Lengths.

It never did like its entertainment served a la usual routine.

STOP AND THINK IT OVER —Seriously!

The Capital Policy is Foremost STARS in Short FEATURES.

You will find a New Wrinkle of Things if you will investigate the CAPITAL IDEA of 2-part—Dramas, Comedy-Dramas, Society and Problem Plays; Satirical and Slap-Stick Comedies; Railroads and Westerns—all with the most sensational Printers Ink and Lithographs ever created.

In fact the One Program that is Really Diversified and CHOCK FULL OF PEP.

CAPITAL FILM CO.
Indianapolis Ind. Ike Schlank-Pres.

CLEVELAND — 401 SLOAN BLDG. ST. LOUIS — 3431 OLIVE ST
INDIANAPOLIS — 211 WIMMER BLDG. KANSAS CITY — 3rd Floor GLOYD BLDG
CHICAGO — 220 SO. STATE ST. PHILADELPHIA — 1314 VINE ST.
MINNEAPOLIS — 421 LOEB ARCADE BLDG. MILWAUKEE — 415 TOY BLDG.
DETROIT — 63 E. ELIZABETH ST.

The more YOU read these advertisements the more useful to YOU we can make the "NEWS."

United pictures are your pictures.

DUSTIN FARNUM

IN

A Man in the Open

That which constitutes a big picture is not always to be summarized in a few words. In the case of "A Man In The Open" there are a number of things that go to make it big. One is the character the star portrays, another is the remarkable "story" interest and the skillful manner in which the highlights of the plot have been handled, and still another is the wonderful scenic and photographic effects provided.

It is big from every angle.

—M. P. News.

By Roger Pocock
Directed by Ernest C. Warde

United Picture Theatres of America, Inc.

1600 Broadway J. A. BERST, Pres. New York

The Prophecy—

The germ of United's idea was the organization of a producing and distributing company controlled completely by the exhibitors of the Nation—a co-operative, self-supporting medium for placing high grade film productions in the hands of exhibitor members at the lowest possible cost—eliminating the middleman and his profits. The founders of United foresaw the wonderful growth of this idea and its far reaching benefit to the Exhibitors of America.

The Fulfillment—

From the germ of an idea United has grown into a powerful instrument in the hands of its exhibitor owners—an instrument that today is serving high grade film productions to more than 1,900 theatres of the Nation—productions that are breaking house-records from Coast to Coast—an instrument that is placing these high grade film productions in the hands of its exhibitor members at a cost far lower than they could possibly obtain them elsewhere if they were buying these productions as individual units instead of through the channels of co-operative purchase. United Picture Theatres of America has fulfilled its prophecy and its youthful success is only an indication of its future power.

Our local exchange manager will prove to your satisfaction that you can save big money by becoming a stock holding member NOW.

UNITED Branches at WORLD FILM Exchanges

Foreign Distributor:
DAVID P. HOWELLS, Inc.
729 Seventh Ave., New York

For Canada:
REGAL FILMS, Ltd.
Toronto, Ont.

United Picture Theatres of America, Inc.

1600 Broadway J. A. BERST, Pres. New York

C. L. CHESTER

presents

OUTING CHESTER PICTURES

TRAVEL ADVENTURES

of

NATURE GOOD NATURE

and

HUMAN NATURE

Produced by C. L. CHESTER in co-operation with OUTING MAGAZINE; released each week exclusively through the following exchanges:

BOSTON PHOTOPLAY CO.,
52 Broadway, Boston, Mass.

FIRST NAT. EXHIBITORS' EXCHANGE OF N. J.,
729 7th Avenue, New York City.

FIRST NAT. EXHIBITORS' EXCHANGE OF N. Y.,
509 5th Avenue, New York City.

ELECTRIC THEATRE SUPPLY CO.,
13th & Vine Streets, Philadelphia, Pa.

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS' CIR. OF VA.,
904 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS' CIR. OF VA.,
146 Marietta St., Atlanta, Ga.

QUALITY FILM CORP.,
414 Ferry St., Pittsburg, Pa.

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS' CO. OF OHIO,
402 Sloan Building, Cleveland, Ohio.

BIG FEATURE RIGHTS CORP.,
Rex Theatre Building, Louisville, Ky.

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS' CIRCUIT OF THE N. W.,
400 Film Exchange Building, Minneapolis, Minn.

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS' CIRCUIT OF THE N. W.,
Fay Building, Milwaukee, Wis.

H. LIEBER COMPANY,
24 W. Washington St., Indianapolis, Ind.

GRAND CENTRAL FILM COMPANY,
Grand & Lucas Aves., St. Louis, Mo.

ARTHUR S. HYMAN ATTRACTIONS,
202 New Film Building, Detroit, Mich.

CELEBRATED PLAYERS FILM CORP.,
207 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS' EXCHANGE, LTD.,
1318 Standard Bank Building, Vancouver, B. C.,

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS' EXCHANGE,
833 S. Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal.

TURNER & DAHNKEN,
134 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco, Cal.

STERLING FILM CORP., 1417 Farnam St., Omaha, Neb.

CONGRATULATIONS, Maxwell Karger, and to you Mr. John Ince, as director, our cordial appreciation for the selection and direction of a production so tense, so absorbing, so tremendously gripping in story and action that you have given a great vehicle to a great star and presented a new big opportunity to

BERT LYTELL

of which he has made the most in

BLIND MAN'S EYES

It's a Metro All Star Series production that is further evidence that these are the only standardized pictures in the world.

As for Mr. Lytell—you know him already in "Hitting the High Spots" in "The Spender" and in "Faith." Now see him in a production that stamps him as one of the greatest stars on the screen. "Blind Man's Eyes" was adapted by June Mathis from the novel by William McHarg and Edwin Palmer and is released March 30.

METRO PICTURES CORPORATION

How can an advertiser continue advertising? By giving YOU value.

"GIVE and TAKE"

Two million fighting men are coming home. What are we going to say to them when they ask for JOBS? Are we going to PATRONIZE them—or are we going to admit them to the FULL PARTNERSHIP they have earned?

CAPITAL and LABOR is the tremendous issue of the day. A gigantic theme for a STORY—a vivid drama, filled with action, mystery, suspense, surprise—the greed and great-heartedness of men—the laughter and tears of women.

A dramatic romance of things as they are

IN SEVEN REELS

WYNDHAM GITTENS

PRODUCTIONS Los Angeles

T. H. Davison

will shortly present

a

Mammoth British Production entitled

"Women Who Win"

in which

Her Majesty Queen Mary

H. R. H. Princess Patricia of Connaught

H. R. H. The Crown Princess of Sweden graciously consented to actually play a definite part

The most unique Film ever produced

(6 Reels)

World's rights controlled by

T. H. Davison

171. Wardour Street, London, England

Cables: DAFILSAGE, London

JUST A PLAIN NUT!

Cracked Every 2 Weeks

Gale Henry

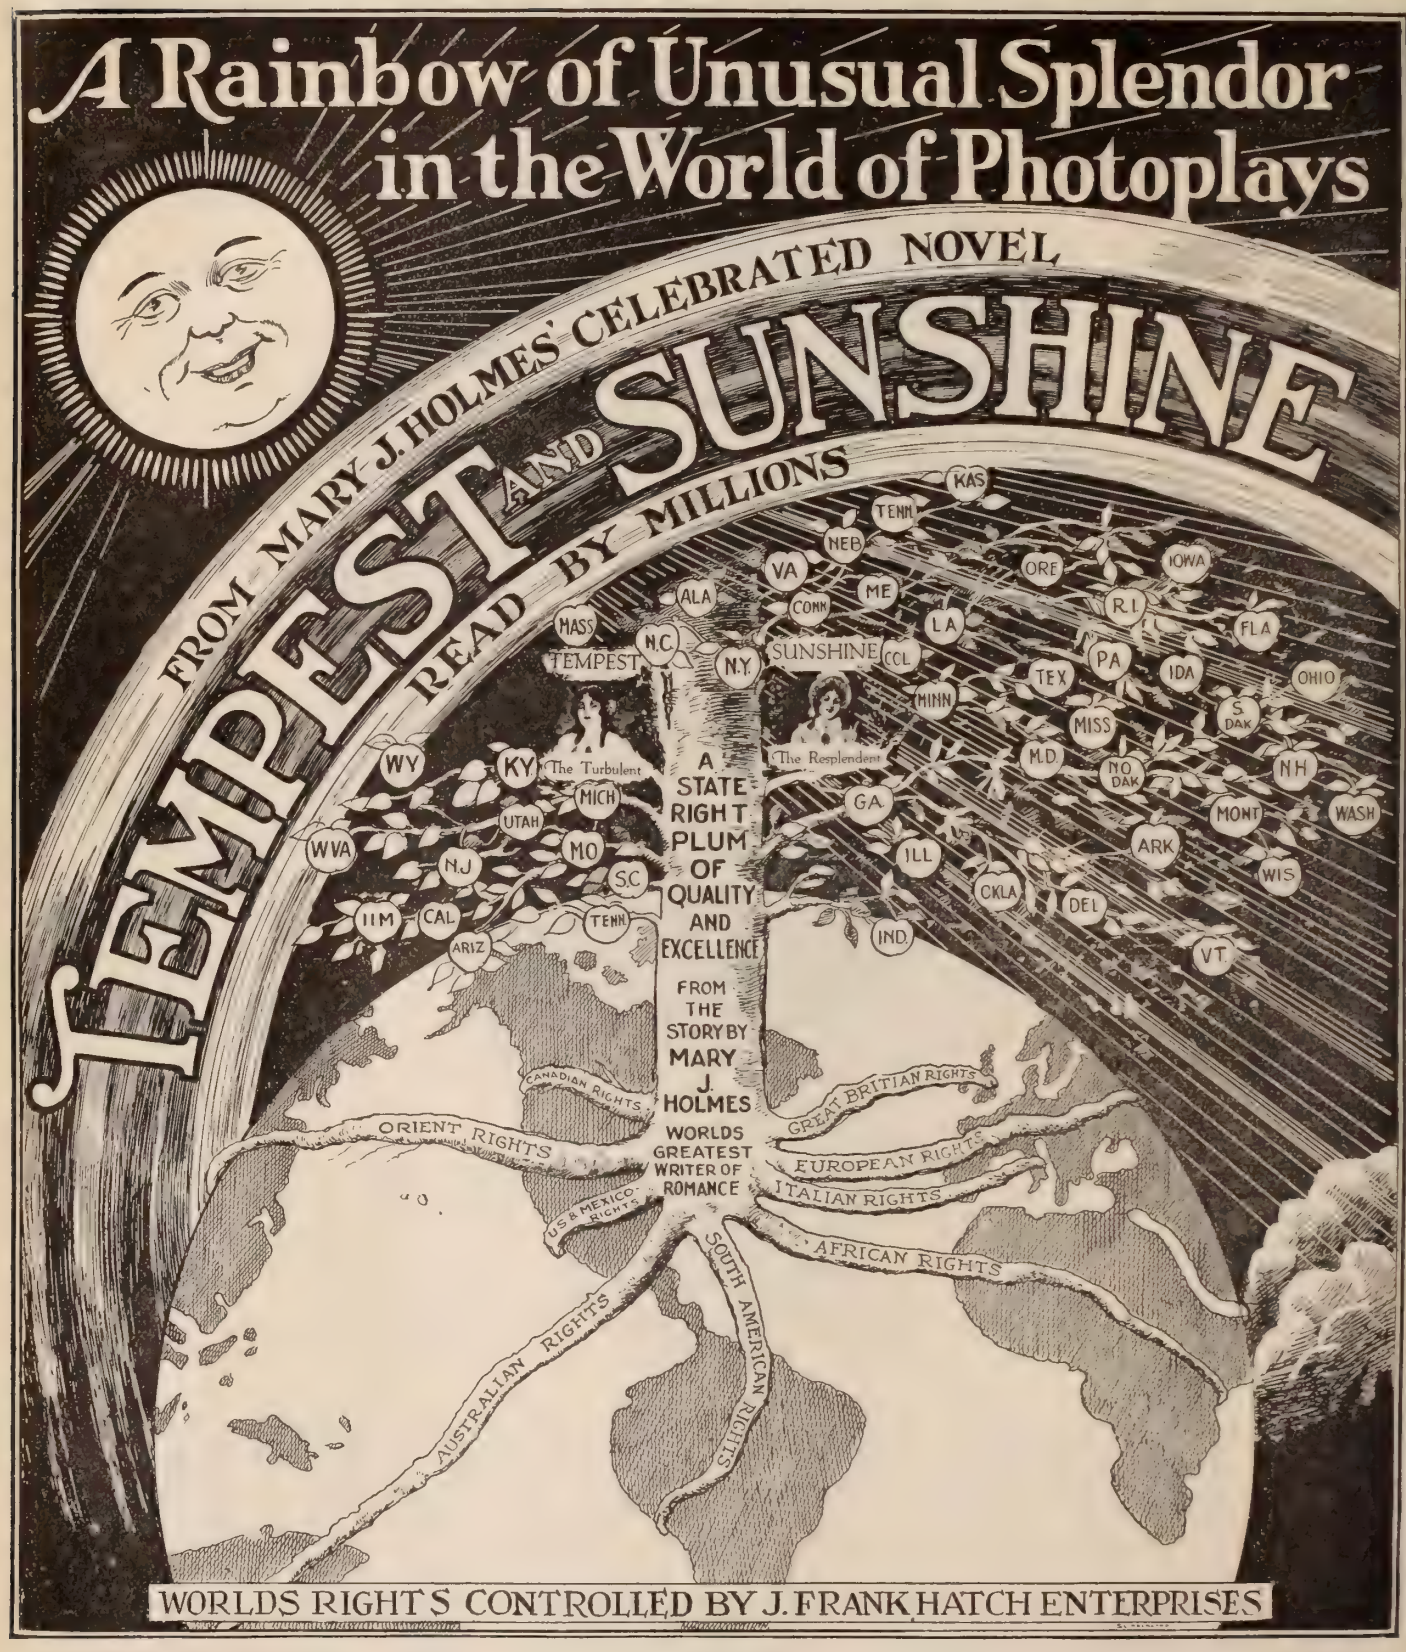
Two Reel Comedies

STATE RIGHT MEN GET BUSY

BULLS EYE FILM CORP.

729 7th Avenue, New York

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers



EARL SCHENCK

FEATURED as LAFAYETTE in

"The SPIRIT OF LAFAYETTE"

¶ "A leading man whose Versatility and Technique have brought consistently favorable comment on his work in an unusually wide range of characterizations." "An actor—not a type."

STATE RIGHT BUYERS

For Territory Rights address

J. FRANK HATCH ENTERPRISES, Inc.

912 LONGACRE BUILDING

NEW YORK CITY

THINGS YOU MUST HAVE NOTICED

The Policy of Gaumont is not to "crow" every time

Gaumont News

AND

Gaumont Graphic

SECURE AN ADVANTAGE OVER COMPETITORS

The following selections at the Rivoli and Rialto Theatres, New York City, tell the story

Week of	GAUMONT	ALL Competitors
Feb. 9th	9 Subjects	12 Subjects
Feb. 16th	7 "	9 "
Feb. 23rd	10 "	9 "
Mar. 2nd	9 "	6 "

The computation is on the basis of three to one

As Usual—11 Pages of Exploitation Aids in the Service Bureau This Week—See page 1629

Motion Picture News

Vol. 19 No. 11. March 15, 191

The Week in the Film World at a Glance

FEATURES

IT'S A LONG, LONG TRAIL (WM. A. JOHNSTON)..1623
SPEAKING EDITORIALLY 1624
DEALING IN PERSONALITIES.....1625
WHAT DO YOU DO FOR YOURSELF? 1629
FRANKLIN URGES THEATRES TO SHOW POWER..1631
WHAT LIVE WIRES ARE DOING.....1633
HOW NEW YORK STAGES THE SHOW.....1634
CLASSIFIED ADS 1684
REVIEWS IN COMPLETE PLAN BOOK.....1702
NEW BOX OFFICE REPORTS.....1716
RELEASE DATES ON ALL PICTURES.....1721

NEWS OF THE WEEK

Hiram Abrams Joins Star Forces.....1626
English Film—American Print 1626
Theatre Construction Continues 1627
More Films for Wilson.....1627
Predicts Largest Theatre Circuit.....1628
Live News of the Producers.....1640
Glances at the Program.....1665
In the Independent Field.....1680
Complete Plan Book 1701
In and Out West Coast Studios 1668
Hollywood Hookum 1676

OF SERVICE TO EXHIBITORS

Exhibitors' Service Bureau 1629
What the Producers Have to Say 1640
Special Service Sections 1653-1663-1673-1677
News of the Independent Producers 1680
Equipment Service Section 1685
Music Department 1696
Advance Reviews 1701
Reviews in Complete Plan Book 1702
Box Office Reports and Plan Book Index.....1716
Releases, Current and Coming 1721

COMPLETE PLAN BOOK

Pictures Reviewed in Advance.....1701
"The Forbidden Room" (Fox).....1702
"Satan Junior" (Metro) 1703
"A Taste of Life" (Bluebird).....1704
"Her Code of Honor" (United).....1705
"The Scarlet Shadow" (Universal Special).....1706
"It's a Bear" (Triangle).....1707
"A Heart in Pawn" (Robertson-Cole).....1708
"The Two Brides" (Paramount).....1709
"The Hand Invisible" (World).....1710
"The Light of Victory" (Universal Special).....1711
"Boots" (Paramount) 1712
"A Gentleman of Quality" (Vitagraph).....1713
"Sis Hopkins" (Goldwyn) 1714
"Put Up Your Hands" (American).....1715
Index to Plan Book and Exhibitors' Box Office Reports...1716
"Flashbacks," Index Concluded and New Theatres Building 1720

Newsy Announcements of the Week Found in the Ad-Pages

Artcraft Promises Great Things in Elsie Ferguson's "The Marriage Price" 1569-70-71-72
Norma Talmadge in Another of Her Peerless Screen Creations, "The Probation Wife".....1573
Vitagraph's Latest Feature Release and Other News....1574-75
About Goldwyn's "The Eternal Magdalene," Strong Advertising Arguments 1576
Critics Unite Regarding the Latest Rex Beach Offering, "The Brand" 1577
The Bill Parsons Comedies.....1578
Louis Bennison's Next Is "Speedy Meade".....1579
Goldwyn's "The Border Legion".....1580
Robert McLaughlin, "Eternal Magdalene" author, Comes Forward with Special Attraction in "The House Without Children" 1581
Introducing Harry Maze Jenks of London, England, and His Eight British Productions.....1582-83
"Woman's Experience" is No. 3 of Independent Sales Corporation's Special Productions.....1584
Hodkinson's Policy 1585
Products Proffered by Pathe.....1586-87
A Brace of Exhibitors-Mutual Releases of Unusual Interest 1592-93
Rothapfel's Program: "Complete From Overture to Final Curtain" 1594-95
Mitchell Lewis Among Those Present in Reissue of "The Demon's Shadow" by Arrow Film Corporation.....1598
Bulls Eye Branches Out With New Comedy Series Featuring Gale Henry 1616
"Man in the Open," a Big United Picture—Prophecy and Fulfillment of the Company 1610-11
First National Exhibitors Makes Announcement of Interest 1596-97
The Outing Chester Pictures 1612
Capital Film Hands Out a Bit of Advice.....1609
George Fawcett in a Terhune Story for Triangle.....1608
The Olive Thomas Picture Will Be With Us Soon.....1599
Inter-Ocean on "The Better 'Ole" 1600-01
About "Whom the Gods Would Destroy".....1602-03
William Fox's Latest Release—Productions of Note.... 1604-05-06-07
Metro's Latest Special 1613
Wyndham Gittens Emerges With a Special Entitled "Give and Take" 1614
Earl Schenck in "The Spirit of Lafayette," a James Vincent Production 1617
"The Spirit of Lafayette," a James Vincent Production...1612
More English Productions 1615
Harry Garson Busy Presenting Neilan's "The Unpardonable Sin" 1588-89-90-91
Educational's Cartoon Series 1621
Riesenfeld's Opinion on the Chaplin Reissues.....1622
Universal's Special Production, "The Light of Victory,' Featuring Monroe Salisbury.....1649-50-51-52
James Vincent's "Spirit of Lafayette"—Tells All About 1669-70-71-72
How "The Turn in the Road," Exhibitors-Mutual Release, Stood Them Up in Los Angeles for Eight Weeks.... 1659-60-61-62

WM. A. JOHNSTON, Pres. and Editor. HENRY F. SEWALL, Vice-Pres. E. KENDALL GILLETT, Sec. and Treas.
ROBERT E. WELSH, Managing Editor FRED. J. BEECROFT, Adv. Manager.

Published on Friday every week by MOTION PICTURE NEWS, Inc., 729 Seventh Ave., New York, N. Y. 'Phone 9360 Bryant. Chicago Representative, W. M. Hight, 220 So. State St.; 'Phone Harrison 7667. Los Angeles Representative, J. C. Jessen, 618 Wright and Callander Building (Hill at Fourth St.); 'Phone Pico 780. Subscription $2 a year, postpaid, in United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands. Canada, $3. N. B.—No agent is authorized to take subscriptions for Motion Picture News at less than these rates. Have the agent who takes your subscription show his credentials and coupon book. Western Union registered cable address is "Picknews," New York.

Copyright, 1919, by Motion Picture News, Inc.

"the mark of distinction on any program"

Robert C. Bruce American Scenics

Robert C. Bruce, with his companions, "Dane" the great hound, and "Buddy" the little fuzzy dog, have made the "Bruce American Scenics" the best known and best loved series of scenic pictures in photoplay. The current release is "The Restless Three" with a new subject available twice-a-month.

George D. Wright Mexican Travels

Mexico, land of mystery, is always the source of "front-page" headlines in every newspaper. With George D. Wright, your audiences may see this fascinating country as vividly as they might on an adventuresome trip. "What is a Mexican" and "A Day with Carranza" will next be seen in the theatres.

International Black and White Comedies

"Judge Rumhauser," "The Shenanigan Kids" and "Happy Hooligan" are just beginning a new series of cartoon comedies, the first of which is "Judge Rumhauser's Miscue" released March 10th. "The Ravings of a Rounder"—something new in moving picture comedy—is now issued, making, with the cartoon, a split-reel.

Photoplay Magazine Screen Supplement

"The Stars As They Are"—Clever, intimate pictures of all the favorite players at work and at play—built in a snappy single reel by Julian Johnson and James R. Quirk, of Photoplay Magazine. Geraldine Farrar, Warren Kerrigan, Mae Marsh, Edith Storey, William Russell, and others, in the next release.

Ditmars' Living Book of Nature

Fifty-three of the finest half-reel subjects that can ever be devised for a theatre program. Any exhibitor in America, who has not used the full series, is assured of an audience attraction that will make friends and patrons. Comedy aplenty, and genuine interest and enthusiasm, are found in these subjects.

"booking at your nearest Educational exchange"

EDUCATIONAL FILMS CORPORATION OF AMERICA

729 7th AVENUE NEW YORK, N.Y.

Broadway Features Essanay-Chaplins

Read what the manager of the Rivoli and Rialto Theatres, Broadway, New York, says:

Mr. Wm. A. Johnston,
Publisher, Motion Picture News,
New York, N. Y.

February 17, 1919.

Dear Mr. Johnston:
I am sure that you will be interested in the "Chaplin Revival" which we are starting next week at the Rialto theatre. . .

We are endeavoring to demonstrate the permanent value of the good pictures. No one questions the permanent and lasting value of good music, good books, good painting. But the young art of the motion picture has not yet sufficiently asserted itself.

Still we have some pictures good enough and old enough to warrant their re-presentation under metropolitan auspices as "old masters" or true classics of the screen.

The first of these pictures will be Mr. Charles Spencer Chaplin's "A Night in the Show" at the Rialto beginning Sunday.

Yours,
(Signed) Hugo Riesenfeld,
Managing Director,
The Rivoli and The Rialto Theatres.

Four of Charlie Chaplin's greatest pictures are now heading programs in first-run houses throughout the country—everyone a classic in comedy

"A NIGHT IN THE SHOW"
"THE BANK"
"POLICE"
"SHANGHAIED"

Try to get an early release date

NOW BOOKING

George Kleine System Distributors

Representatives at all General Film Exchanges

ESSANAY
GEORGE K SPOOR PRESIDENT

Perfection Pictures

"When you see it in 'The News' It's News"

Motion Picture News

HAS THE QUALITY CIRCULATION OF THE TRADE

"The Exhibitors' Medium of Communication"

Volume 19, No. 11 March 15, 1919

It's a Long, Long Trail

IN an interesting interview prior to his departure for Los Angeles, Samuel Goldwyn sets forth his ideal of producing policy for the coming year in this issue of MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Summed up, Mr. Goldwyn's platform for his corporation activities in the next twelve months is: "Fewer pictures, better pictures, and longer runs."

Sounds familiar, doesn't it? Especially to those of you who have followed the NEWS editorial policy back to the seemingly distant days of 1915.

"Fewer pictures, better pictures—and longer runs."

Three definite factors so closely related that they stand or fall as one. We can't have better pictures unless we have fewer pictures, we can't have longer runs unless we have better pictures; if we make fewer pictures we will make better pictures.

Mr. Goldwyn sets forth his plans clearly and courageously. His next steps and the results will be watched with interest by the entire industry.

* * * * *

It's Been a Long Time Coming

THERE was a time, not so many months ago, when the advocate of "fewer pictures, better pictures, and longer runs" had a far from pleasant existence.

His arguments were met with the blunt statement, "You don't know anything about the business end of the game. We admit that you are right in theory.

"But don't you know that we have big exchange systems to support? And that the only way of meeting that overhead is by turning out more and more pictures—splitting distribution expense over a greater number of subjects?

"No, we'd like to make fewer pictures and better ones, but we can't. Your theory is great, but we know the business."

And so the endless cycle continued. First, the creation of top-heavy distribution systems; then, the flooding of the market with surplus, unwanted product in order to keep these exchange systems busy.

But conditions are changing.

Mr. Goldwyn's statement and decision only voices the unspoken sentiment and determination of practically every big producer.

The change dates from the time of the influenza shut-down. Film men got together then and talked cold turkey. And plain facts are noted for their ability to clear away the fogs of misunderstanding.

Will the day come when we will thank the enforced shut-down of the industry for making the starting point to bigger and better things?

Starting at the Other End

LONG before the influenza shut-down brought manufacturers to a vision of cold truth, MOTION PICTURE NEWS determined to do its share in the fight for "fewer and better pictures and longer runs" by starting at the other end—with the exhibitor.

Fewer and better pictures could not be profitable for manufacturer or exhibitor unless they brought longer runs—and the exhibitor could not successfully extend his runs unless he had every possible advertising and presentation aid.

So, over two years ago, we established the Exhibitors Service Bureau. Later, we originated the Special Service Section on the unusual production requiring special exploitation. Then followed The Complete Plan Book, the most popular and most used single feature ever incorporated in a picture trade paper.

We believe we may be pardoned for placing squarely on the records our contention that we have done our share to bring about the benefits accruing to an industry based on a policy of "fewer pictures, better pictures and longer runs."

We believe we may go further and say that we have done a goodly share of the work to bring this about.

We thank the manufacturers for their appreciation of this work as shown by the use during the year just past of close to four hundred more pages of advertising than any other paper.

We thank the shut-down for prompting clear thinking in production and distribution plans. Clear thinking there will mean clear thinking in the use of trade mediums.

And the answer there—just as inevitable as the answer to the campaign for "fewer pictures, better pictures, and longer runs"—is concentration.

* * * * *

And Still They Come

NEW YORK'S legislature isn't going to have just one motion picture censorship bill to consider.

Not satisfied with the bill already introduced which provides for a Film Commissioner at a $7,500 salary, a Buffalo legislator has presented a bill calling for three salaries of $4,000.

The legislator graciously states that he believes the creation of a censor board of three to view all pictures shown in New York would be of immeasurable benefit to the industry.

"The people do not want vulgar, indecent pictures," is the trend of his thoughts. "And by its tender guidance the censor board would keep the industry in the straight path leading to bigger and more permanent profits."

(Continued on next page)

Editorially Speaking:

(Continued from preceding page)

These law-makers just overwhelm us with their generosity.

But they don't compliment us on our intelligence.

If it takes three political appointees with $4,000 a year brains to bring the industry to the Promised Land then we are certainly in bad shape.

And Mr. McAdoo, for example, should have his salary reduced by $196,000 annually.

The industry is overpaid if Solomons can be hired for $4,000 a year.

* * * * *

We Hesitate to Say It

WE would hesitate to intimate that the important personages comprising the "Big Four" are engaged in the pleasant pastime of "spoofing" the industry.

We really do.

Perhaps it is all accidental.

But if it is premeditated we hasten to congratulate the "Big Four" on the showmanship and publicity sense shown in thus far keeping the combination in the limelight.

First a startled industry hears that five of the biggest drawing cards have combined to handle their own production and distribution.

Just enough time elapses for the industry to absorb that fact, and not enough to wear out its welcome, when——

Mr. McAdoo is named as general counsel. More gasps, more surprise.

Then the proper time lapse. And between each of the following happenings the same gasps and same time lapse:

Announcement that the "Big Four" will open its own exchanges in every section of the country, book only on percentage to first runs, and book each picture as a complete show to run as long as it will draw.

News that Oscar Price, assistant director general of railroads, was to be president of the United Artists Distributing Corporation.

Then a bulletin that Hiram Abrams is to be general manager of the distributing end.

And follows the corollary that Bennie Schulberg will be assistant general manager.

What will next week bring? And the next?

* * * * *

The British Producer's Problem

T. H. DAVISON, who offers a coming big British production to the American market in the advertising pages of this week's NEWS, has struck one means of solving the problem of the foreign picture in this field.

His letter includes the statement: "We are taking two negatives; one especially for America."

This is a thought that has occurred to many of us in viewing British productions offered for the United States.

Frequently it has been possible to see angles of the production that could have been elaborated, twisted or condensed to the advantage of the picture commercially in this country. Often, but a few hundred extra feet of negative would do the trick.

This is one angle for the solution of the British producer's problem. And that angle is a pressing one if we may judge from reports of production activity in the British isles.

It behooves American distributors and producers to give thought to that problem in cooperation with the Britisher. A share of sincere reciprocity will be needed to successfully maintain the present market for the American production in Great Britain.

* * * * *

An American in France

WHILE speaking of foreign reciprocity there comes to our desk the announcement that William Fox, Winfield Sheehan and Abraham Carlos have sailed to Europe for a long stay. Then follows this interesting statement: "In Southern France and in England studios will be either leased or built to take care of the enlargement of Mr. Fox's producing activities."

Truly an international organization—and an international industry!

The statement follows:

"Mr. Fox feels that this is a peculiarly opportune time for the establishment of a producing plant in France; that the closer friendship inspired by companionship in arms and sacrifice means not only a vastly increased demand by the French and English for American pictures, but a lively desire on the part of the American public to see pictures in these settings and filmed in these places. Thus there will be a mutually beneficial exchange of films between the three countries.

* * * * *

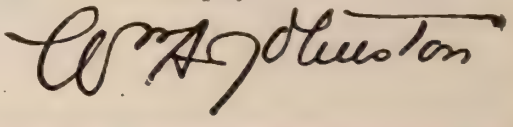
Sunday Shows in New York

THERE will be a hearing next Monday at Albany on the bill providing local option on the question of Sunday motion picture shows in New York state.

The hearing will be before the Senate codes committee. Much depends on it.

But the exhibitors promoting the campaign in favor of a free Sunday are wise in not planning a circus delegation to Albany for that day. Film magnates, film company lawyers, and hack lobbyists mean little to the law-maker at Albany.

This is no time for junkets or barnstorming.



* * * * *

Stage and Screen Helping Each Other

WHEN Anthony Kelly's play, "Three Faces East," was produced on Broadway we expressed the wish that it could only be placed on the screen simultaneously.

We hazarded the thought that a successful screen presentation would be far more apt to help the revenues of the spoken play than it would be likely to injure them.

Last week New York saw this tried out. "The Better 'Ole" was presented on the screen simultaneously with the stage run. We are certain that the stage success and the numerous road companies have added immeasurable value to the picture. And we would wager that picture patrons who saw the delightful picture left the Strand theatre as ready-made customers for the play.

Dealing in Personalities

"His Work Has Brought a Just Reward"

HERE'S the rapid moving person who is now General Manager of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company.

Five months ago Tarkington Baker joined Universal as head of the publicity department.

And now he's General Manager!

But in the months between there is a story of the organization of covering Universal's coast to coast distributing organization—on a new scale and with new ideas.

A job so well done that he was told to tackle a bigger one. And already we hear reports that he is going to repeat.

Tarkington Baker joined Universal from the desk of managing editor of the Indianapolis Star.

The oldtimers among us will remember him further back than that—to the time when he was adding fame to the names of William A. Brady and the Shuberts.

When the news broke that Hiram Abrams had been selected as distribution chief by the "'Big Four" the rush for membership in the "I Told You So" Club broke all records.

Each corner of the Astor lobby held a film man who "knew all the time that it would happen."

So—before the "I Told You So" Club gets its clubhouse—your weekly friend "Personalities" puts in his claim to charter membership. Look up the files—the records prove it.

Barring the Abrams announcement the week was rather shy of news. Harry Garson finally stepped to bat with "The Unpardonable Sin" and according to reports banged out a home run. The story of the Detroit opening is on page 1641. Before stepping on the train for Los Angeles Samuel Goldwyn announced the corporation's new policy for the coming year. The story is on page 1626. Read between the lines.

William A. Brady nominated a committee to assist C. F. Zittel in the matter of building a clubhouse for the Motion Picture Club of America. It includes Adolph Zukor, Samuel Goldwyn, Marcus Loew, Jules Brulatour, Richard Rowland, William Fox, J. Stuart Blackton and Ricord Gradwell.

Los Angeles could almost boast a Universal convention this week. P. D. Cochran, head of the Poster Department, is there on a vacation. Tom Cochrane, on his way to the Orient, stopped off there. Joe Brandt is there on serial matters, while Pat Powers and Carl Laemmle are there on general principles.

Fred Schaefer has given up his work as publicity director for General Film preparatory to making some big announcement on his own hook.

There comes to our desk a card saying, "Merritt Crawford. Promotion and Publicity for Individuals and Pictures. Longacre Building, 1476 Broadway."

Good luck to you, Merritt, old scout.

Saw C. F. Zittel and Whitman Bennett lunching together on Tuesday. If we didn't feel a bit tired we could start a whirlwind of Hearst-Paramount rumors on that clue.

Among the state rights buyers who dropped in during the week was W. E. Drummond, of the Special Features Company, Knoxville, Tenn. Mr. Drummond went back with the rights for Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia and Florida on "Once to Every Man," "Stolen Orders" and the Maciste serial.

We'd like to feel as proud as Harry Schwalbe ought to feel over that dinner of appreciation at the Hotel Astor last Saturday evening. To have associates as busy as those First National men are journey from every section of the country to join in a spontaneous tribute like that is reward enough for many sacrifices in this troubled world. And we'd like to feel as proud as Harry Schwalbe's associates do feel about him.

H. H. Cudmore of the Argus Lamp Company, Cleveland, dropped in to say "hello" at the NEWS office during the week.

Tim Coop has received some interesting offers for "Democracy" the big British special he is offering for this market. Have you seen it yet?

Earl Hammons will be no fit risk for the insurance companies after this. On Wednesday he flew over Washington by aeroplane.

You can't dodge these fillum people. Monday found us lunching at the Hotel Chatham, far from the beaten path and to our minds far from picture men. We glanced around—and a few tables away sat, J. D. Williams, Harry Schwalbe, Millard Johnson, C. L. Yearsley and others of the First National.

And not far distant sat George Backer—late film man.

F. O. Nielson, general manager of the Mickey Film Corporation, of Chicago, was a recent NEWS visitor. You ought to hear him tell about the records "Mickey" is breaking in that territory. Has eight prints working and came on to New York for two more.

Reports that are drifting in from the New York convention at Syracuse would indicate that "them babies" have at last more than evened the score with Lee Ochs.

The up-State theatre men were far from gentle. Poor Lee had a most unhappy time.

And we are told that on the train going to Syracuse the Old Guard was gleefully proclaiming it's determination to "stampede the convention."

But what a Waterloo—or Waterlou—or Waterlee!
It is rumored that several fence-squatters narrowly escaped broken ankles in their rush to climb aboard the Cohen-Berman-O'Reilly band wagons after the fray.

And speaking of New York State exhibitors there is an article in this week's issue by Harold Franklin aimed directly at them. It's on Page 1631. Turn to it.

Still another trade paper has announced an "Exhibitors' Bureau" to aid in advertising and presentation of pictures.

Come on in, boys, the water's fine!

We know—we've tried it for two years.

NEWS FROM THE COAST

LOS ANGELES (Special to Motion Picture News).—Douglas Fairbanks has completed "The Knickerbocker Buckaroo," his last picture for Artcraft and leased the former Clune studio where he will shortly begin production on his first United Artists subject.

William Sherrill has leased the studio in Hollywood formerly used by Metro for the Texas Guinan subjects. He has engaged Cliff Smith, former William S. Hart director.

Victor Schertzinger, who has been with Ince three years, directing Charles Ray and Dorothy Dalton recently, has signed with Goldwyn and begins work there March 10th.

Joseph DeGrasse, former Universal director, has been engaged by Ince and is now directing Charles Ray.

Frank Lloyd, director of recent William Farnum releases, announces that he will produce independently in the near future.

HIRAM ABRAMS JOINS THE STAR FORCES

Former Paramount Head Is Announced as General Manager of "The Big Four"—Schulberg Assists Him

THE United Artists' Association, including Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks and D. W. Griffith, announced March 5 that Hiram Abrams, formerly of the Paramount Pictures Corporation and later with Famous Players-Lasky under the reorganization, has been engaged as general manager of the new organization, of which the stars are the principals.

A wire to MOTION PICTURE NEWS March 5 announced that Mr. Abrams left Los Angeles on that date for New York, where he will confer with Oscar Price, president of the United Artists' Association. The Board of Directors is expected to be announced later.

The news of the securing of Hiram Abrams as general manager follows the announcement that Wm. G. McAdoo, former Director General of Railroads, had joined the Artists as counsel.

William S. Hart, who was included in the association when it was given birth, and who later announced his withdrawal, this week stated he would not make an announcement of his future plans until the latter part of this month.

English Film — American Print

"Women Who Win" Filmed in England Is Made Attractive to United States—Leads Are Well Known

"WOMEN Who Win," the English-made production in six reels in which Her Majesty, Queen Mary, appears, is to be made attractive to the American exhibitor and film patron as well as his brother in England, it was announced in a letter this week to Motion Picture News from T. H. Davison, of London.

Mr. Davison stated that two negatives of the production are being taken, one for England and the other especially for the United States.

The producer of "Women Who Win" is Percy Nash, who is assisted by Fred Durrant. The photography is by J. C. Ree Mason. Mr. Davison is handling the film, controlling the world rights. In his letter, Mr. Davison stated that owing to the illness of Mary Dibley, one of the principals, the production will probably be delayed a little, but that prints are expected to be ready within the near future, probably this month.

It is said that Her Majesty, Queen Mary, is so interested in "Women Who Win" that she took a definite part in its production. On the 10th of February, this year, in the gardens of Clarence House, St. James Palace, the producers had the honor of including in the picture Princess Patricia of Connaught and the Crown Princess of Sweden. They also acted a definite part in the film, it is said. The two artistes with them were Miss Unity Moore and Miss Phyllis Villiers.

Miss Villiers, who has one of the leading roles, is making her first appearance on the screen in England in this picture. She toured America for two with Frank Benson's company, and is looked upon as one of the leading English stars in filmdom.

It is announced that "Women Who Win" is not a propaganda feature, but it has been specially written by Miss Almaz Stout, who is chairman of The Society of Lady Journalists in England. The film has been made with the object of helping a society there known as Women's Service—that is to say the society participates in the profits on the sale of the production.

Miss Unity Moore, another of the leads, is well known on the vaudeville stage in England, and was recently married to a cousin of Sir Douglas Haig, Commander-in-Chief of the British armies? Miss Mary Dibley is the wife of General Ames, also very well known as a film star in England.

Sunday Fight Keeps Up in Ohio State

The fight to legalize Sunday movies continues merrily in Ohio, and the Buckeye State managers are jubilant over a decision handed down by Judge J. H. Platt, Tiffin, Ohio, in which he quashed indictments returned against Arthur Buck and Harry Mackay, who operate picture shows in Fostoria, Ohio. They were arrested for giving shows on Sundays and were brought before the grand jury, which returned eight indictments against them. Judge Platt decided that they were not violating the law.

This decision handed down by Judge Platt shows the wide difference of opinion that exists in Ohio regarding the interpretation of the Sunday amusement law. Some maintain that the law means picture shows, but other judges contend that when the law was passed motion pictures were not in existence, therefore motion picture shows are exempt from the law.

Bohemian Ball This Week

The Bohemian Ball, under the personal direction of C. Ray Severance, has been scheduled for Webster Hall, New York, Friday evening, March 7.

One of the "catch lines" used in announcing the ball was: "Dance from nine till dawn and forget July 1."

Billie Weston, model of Clara Tice, is slated as hostess.

Simplex Installed in New Majestic, Detroit

The Michigan Motion Picture Supply Company, of Detroit, under the management of C. A. Weddige, has succeeded in making numerous important Simplex installation. One of the latest of these installation was made at the New Majestic theatre, of Detroit, of which Chas. Branham is manager.

Mr. Branham made exhaustive investigation into the merits of the various commercial projectors now on the market and would not be complete without two Simplex Projectors to take care of the high-class projection which will be expected at this theatre. Everything in the line of improvements in theatre building is apparent to the observer on entering the New Majestic. Much care has been taken in laying out the projection room, and patrons at this theatre are assured of seeing at all times projection of the highest type.

Mr. Weddige is highly enthusiastic over the prospect of Simplex sales for the coming season and predicts that within a short time the Simplex Projector will be a part of the equipment in every house of importance in Michigan.

Pennsylvania Board Loses a Member

Whether a new chairman of the Pennsylvania State Board of Censors will be appointed to succeed Frank R. Shattuck of Philadelphia, who died February 26 at Atlantic City, has not as yet been intimated from the office of Governor Sproul at Harrisburg, but the unofficial impression prevails that no new chief censor will be named until the legislature disposes, in one way or the other, of the pending bill which would repeal the law providing for the present board of censors and substitute a Bureau of Amusements, with a commissioner as the head.

It is pointed out that the two remaining members of the board, Dr. Ellis P. Oberholtzer, the secretary, and Mrs. C. E. Niver, can keep the routine business of the office running, and that it will only be a month or two at most until it is known what the legislature is going to do about the substitute plan.

Goldwyn Announces Definite Policy

Samuel Goldwyn, before leaving March 5 for California, announced a definite decision as to his company's policies for next season.

"You can say for our Goldwyn organization," he said, "that Goldwyn for its third season will have fewer pictures to offer exhibitors next year—and better pictures.

"The fact is that at tne rate at which exhibitors are going now they threaten to exhaust all the literary material in the world. There simply are not enough stories. Where Goldwyn has made a star series of eight pictures with a single star, we shall perhaps make only four."

Mr. Goldwyn expects to be in Los Angeles for two months.

Representative Attendance at Operators' Ball

At the Lincoln Birthday Ball in the New Amsterdam Opera House, under the auspices of Moving Picture Machine Operators' Local 306 of New York, there was not only a very large attendance, but also a most representative gathering.

Among others present in addition to the previous list published were Margaret Marsh, Herbert Rawlinson, Mr. Grossman, Mr. and Mrs. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Greene, all of the Oliver Films Company.

Mr. Mathews and Mr. Lemke of the International Alliance were also there, as were the following honorary members: Senator and Mrs. James J. Walker, Judge Jacob S. Strahl, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Williams, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Porter, Mr. Earl of the Nicholas Power Company, Will C. Smith of the Power Company, Dave Narcey, William C. Franke, former business agent of Local 182, Boston, now sales manager of the Precision Machine Company; Mr. Palmer, Harry Abbott of Local No. 1 of International Alliance, Ralph Piehling, business agent of Nocal No. 4, Mr. Kelly of Local 390 International Alliance, and Joe Hornstein of the United Theatre Equipment Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Rabell, of the Independent Movie Supply Company, were also present, as were Mr. and Mrs. Jawitz, of the Popular Film Company; Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Perlmutter, of Famous Players; Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Johnson, chief operator of the William Fox Theatres; Harry Scherl, of the Bronx Strand Theatre, and Henry Coles, secretary of the Cinema Exhibitors' Association of the Bronx.

Benjamin Chapin Series Shown to School Children

Through the courtesy of the Buffalo Branch of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, the public school administration of Ithaca, N. Y., was able to have a special showing of three of the ten episodes of the Paramount-Benjamin Chapin series, "The Son of Democracy," for the pupils ofthe Ithaca schools on Lincoln's Birthday.

In acknowledgment of this concession, Branch Manager Fox has received the following letter from Miss Alice M. Evans, of Ithaca:

"We have today returned to you the three chapters of the life of Abraham Lincoln. We feel that we could have had nothing that would have brought to our boys and girls more clearly the personality of Lincoln. You will find a check enclosed. Many thanks for your courtesy in helping us to have the film for February 12th."

Brunet on Commerce Board

Paul Brunet, vice-president and general manager of Pathe Exchange, Inc., has been appointed one of the Board of Governors of the Franco-American Board of Commerce and Industry. This organization has been formed to promote business relations between France and the United States, and is expected to have an important and valuable influence in the retention of the cordial friendship existing between the countries.

A recent Banquet given by the Toledo (Ohio) Theatre Managers' Association. The organization has been very active in framing a bill, already presented to the Legislature at Columbus, legalizing Sunday motion pictures

Theater Construction Continues

South Bend, Ind., May Have House to Seat Over Two Thousand—New York Gets Another Theatre

THEATRE building, especially of the motion picture sort, continues at a steady pace, according to reports received by MOTION PICTURE NEWS during the week just past.

Among the latest houses planned is one at South Bend, Ind., to cost over $100,000 and to seat 2,500 people. Long Island is also to have a new motion picture house, in Far Rockaway at Moot avenue, according to announcements.

The Pittenger Grand, in Centralia, Ill., has changed hands, it is announced. Charles W. Hall is now manager of the theatre.

A corporation in which William S. Pettit and Samuel B. Althouse are financially interested, and other interests represented by Mrs. T. H. Silverman, will erect a new theatre in Far Rockaway at Moot avenue and James street. This announcement comes from the offices of B. S. Moss, the theatrical manager, who has closed with the new corporation to lease and operate the theatre.

Plans have already been drawn up and work on the new theatre starts at once.

The Blackstone Theatre Corporation is contemplating the erection of a magnificent moving picture theatre in South Bend, Ind., which will have a seating capacity of 2,500 people and to be erected at a cost of $100,000. The prospectus as prepared by Henry L. Newhouse of Chicago shows one of the most up-to-date theatre buildings ever erected in the Middle West.

In an interview Frank T. Milner, manager of the Blackstone Theatre Corporation, stated that the names on the prospectus are a guarantee of the ability of the men to carry out the entire scheme. But because of a desire to seek the active cooperation of those who are to be Milner's neighbors he decided to sell a reasonable amount of stock to citizens of South Bend.

It is intended to begin work on the new structure about May 1, and the first performance is scheduled for September.

Schwalbe Dined by Franchise Holders

A testimonial dinner to Harry L. Schwalbe, secretary-treasurer of First National Exhibitors' Circuit, as an evidence of appreciation for his loyalty to the Circuit and his allegiance to his associates in it, was given at the Hotel Astor on Saturday night by a number of the franchise owners and employees.

The dinner was proposed and arranged by Colonel Fred L. Levy, president of the Big Feature Rights Corporation of Louisville, Ky., which owns the First National franchise in that territory. With his return to Louisville early this week imperative, Colonel Levy was obliged to arrange the affair on short notice, with the result that only the nearby eastern and southern members were able to be present.

Those present were Mr. Schwalbe, J. D. Williams, Colonel Levy, Louis B. Mayer, John H. Kunsky, Frank Ferrandini, R. D. Craver, Lieutenant James Anderson, E. M. Mandelbaum, Jacob Fabian, Jr., E. I. Church, William Vogel, A. Warner, Harry Warner, Moe Mark, Walter Hayes, Wynn Jones, Albert Gray, Millard Johnson, Max Spiegel, Joe Lee, C. L. Yearsley, William Morgan, George Grant, and E. J. Hudson.

More Films for Wilson

As part of the entertainment arranged for President Wilson aboard the George Washington, on his return trip to the Peace Conference in Paris, the Community Motion Picture Bureau obtained from Exhibitors' Mutual the following pictures:

Martin Johnson's "Cannibals of the South Seas," "Bonds of Honor," a Haworth feature starring Sessue Hayakawa, "The Prodigal Liar," a Jesse D. Hampton production, with William Desmond in the leading role; four Strand comedies, and "The Adventurer," one of the Chaplin-Mutual series.

Predicts Largest Theatre Circuit

United Picture Theatres of America Aspires and Expects to Become Largest Theatre Circuit in World

LLOYD WILLIS, assistant to President Berst of United Picture Theatres of America, has prepared a chronology and ventured a prediction in reference to past, present and future successes and aspirations of the United Plan.

In an interview for Motion Picture News Mr. Willis graphically gives his idea of the fulfillment of a prophecy and its meaning in dollars and cents, as follows:

"The Prophecy—The germ of United's idea was the organization of a producing and distributing company controlled completely by the exhibitors of the national co-operative, self-supporting medium for placing high grade film productions in the hands of exhibitor members at the lowest possible cost—eliminating the middleman and his profits. The founders of United foresaw the wonderful growth of this idea and its far-reaching benefit to the exhibitors of America.

"The Fulfillment—From the germ of an idea United has grown into a powerful instrument in the hands of its exhibitor owners—an instrument that today is serving high grade film productions to more than 1,900 theatres of the Nation—productions that are breaking house records from coast to coast—an instrument that is placing these high grade film productions in the hands of its exhibitor members at a cost far lower than they could possibly obtain them elsewhere if they were buying these productions as individual units instead of through the channels of co-operative purchase. United Picture Theatres of America has fulfilled its prophecy and its youthful success is only an indication of its future power.

"The Demonstration—United Picture Theatres of America is a reality—it is today the largest and most powerful theatre circuit in the world. Its members include the biggest and best theatres in the United States. On its advisory board are the leading exhibitors of America. Its family of stars are appearing in productions bigger and better than any in which they have heretofore played. Its sales force is the most efficient in the industry. Its production plans for the present and for the future insure rapidity of future growth equal or greater to its marvelous growth during the past few months.

"And the reason for all this is very simple indeed. United has built upon a solid foundation—and in this solidity it has broken away from all precedent in the motion picture industry. Upon this foundation of permanency it has erected a structure which will live when all other film companies will have passed into a memory. This foundation is a full partnership between the owners of theatres—a cooperative exhibitor—owned and controlled producing and distributing organization—eliminating all reckless expenditure in producing, avoiding all waste of money and reckless expenditure of time—abolishing the middleman and his profit and giving to the exhibitors themselves not only the full financial benefit accruing to them from better film productions at cheaper rentals than they can possibly obtain elsewhere, but returning to them in the form of dividends any extra earnings that may accrue from the intelligent handling of their organization by the officials, who are responsible to them for the management of United.

"By assessing each exhibitor member for a percentage of the negative and distribution costs of each United production, our exhibitors are enabled to play United pictures at a rental cost which assures them of a generous profit. Their membership in United wipes out for all time the Advance Deposit evil. The initial purchase by an exhibitor of his United stock franchise makes available for him every production released by our organization. This initial purchase in the average instance does not exceed in amount, the sum he would normally deposit with another company on the Star Series basis.

"For instance, an exhibitor is paying $50.00 a day for three days on a Star Series basis for features that may be equivalent in drawing power to United productions. This means that he must have on deposit with one or more film companies $150.00 for every star whose pictures he has contracted for. That is the usual one-picture deposit. If this exhibitor has under contract five such stars, he will have on deposit $750.00 with one or more of the film companies. Every time he adds a new star on the Star Series basis he must put up another deposit equivalent to the picture rental of one production for each Star Series. These deposits lie idle. They earn him no dividends. The money is merely being held—and used—by the film companies with which he is doing business. They are using his money without making any return to him for its use.

"For that same $750.00 he can purchase three shares of stock in United Picture Theatres of America. This stock franchise carries with it full eligibility as a member of United Picture Theatres of America—not only full voice in the management of United's affairs, but, the privilege of playing every United production at a certain percentage of the negative and distribution cost. This percentage is a fixed one. It is determined at the time a stock franchise is awarded him. It is based upon his customary rental price for features of a drawing power similar to those of United.

"This is the whole story. There is nothing complicated about the United plan. It is simply a matter of arithmetic and of good sound common sense business methods applied to an industry that heretofore has been dominated by methods that would not and could not be countenanced in any other field of big business."

Louis Loeb Marries

Louis Loeb, statistical expert of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, who gained fame about a year go with his Trained Turtle Circus, has taken out a life membership card in the Happy Husbands Club. The bride is—or was—Constance Michaels, unanimously voted the prettiest girl in the accounting department of the Famous Players-Lasky organization.

Mr. Loeb has been with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation for several years, coming from the old Paramount Pictures Corporation. For the past six months he was on the payroll of Uncle Sam, serving in the army. Upon being honorably discharged he was taken back at the Paramount-Artcraft offices.

Pennsylvania Decision

According to an opinion rendered by the Pennsylvania Attorney General's office, and written by Deputy Attorney General William I. Swoope, the Pennsylvania State Board of Motion Picture Censors is not required to grant a third examination of a film which has been passed upon once and then re-examined and approved with certain eliminations.

A. E. Smith Goes West

Albert E. Smith plans to go to California this month to attend a family reunion at the home of Mr. Smith's father in Santa Barbara. George Smith, a brother, who is in charge of Vitagraph affairs in London, is now en route. Other brothers will be there, it is expected.

Famous Players Distribution Makes Promotions

The distribution department of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation has seen several promotions during the past week, four members of that organization having been moved up to important posts.

S. R. Kent, who has been with the company five months and formerly sales manager of the General Film, has been given the permanent supervision of the Kansas City, St. Louis, Des Moines and Omaha branches, with headquarters in Kansas City. He will also act as temporary manager of the Kansas City office until another manager is appointed to take H. P. Wolfberg's place, the latter having been placed in charge of the Cincinnati exchange.

Harry H. Buxbaum has been placed in charge of the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and Cleveland branches, all activities in these exchanges coming under his direct supervision. F. C. Bonistall, who has also shown exceptional progressiveness and was formerly assistant manager of the Pittsburgh branch, has been promoted to the managership of this office.

The distribution department of the Famous Players-Lasky organization, under the general supervision of W. E. Greene and Al Lichtman, has had a number of changes during the past three months.

Sawyer-Lubin Back from Palm Beach

Arthur H. Sawyer and Herbert Lubin returned to the offices of S-L Pictures this week from Palm Beach, Florida, where they have been for the past five weeks. Their long stay in the South was necessitated through a severe siege of illness, which attacked both executives of the S-L organization at the same time. Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin will immediately commence work on the final details preparatory to presenting "Virtuous Men."

This production, to be released as a Ralph Ince Film Attraction, stars E. K. Lincoln, and marks the debut of Sawyer and Lubin into the field of picture makers. In accordance with previously arranged plans, work will be commenced on the second Ralph Ince Film Attraction within the next two weeks. During their long stay at Palm Beach the S-L executives put in final form a new continuity.

Blackton Addresses Advertising Club

J. Stuart Blackton was guest of honor and invited speaker at the meeting of the Advertising Club of New York, at its headquarters at 47 East Twenty-fifth street, Tuesday evening, March 4. The subject of Commodore Blackton's speech was the use of motion pictures as a medium for advertising. He cited the splendid results which many big commercial houses have achieved with productions which they have themselves made for advertising purposes and also stressed other ways in which the screen can and doubtless will become an even more potent factor in the advertising world.

Exhibitor Service Bureau

What Do You Do For Yourself?

IT was only about eighteen months ago that where there was found an exhibitor in a smaller community who was trying to do things in an unusual way, seeking to build up his patronage through the surrounding country and really trying to get the most out of each picture, that he was hailed as one of the wonders of the industry.

Within that year and a half there has been a marvelous change. These pages are filled each week with accounts of notable things that are being done by exhibitors down to the smallest communities. For instance, there is in this issue the story of how a man in a town of 522 not only made big features pay him but brought the farmers from miles around to do their trading in that town. This man owns one of the stores and profits both ways.

This story is well worth your reading and we are not discounting the efforts of this gentleman when we point out that this very plan of having feature days and advertising them to the surrounding country through the cooperation of the merchants was recounted in the "Diary of a Successful Exhibitor" which appeared in these pages nearly a year ago.

But we are calling your attention to this matter because we believe that every exhibitor is missing a chance for better business unless he studies the matter that appears here carefully. This matter is printed solely for the benefit of the exhibitor and the reams of material that come to this office have to meet the test: "Is this something that will benefit the exhibitor?" If it does not meet that test it finds temporary lodging in the wastebasket.

WHEN the Exhibitors Service Bureau was inaugurated it was a comparatively rare thing to get in personal touch with the exhibitor. Some times he would send in a stray idea, but the policy of a trade paper publishing a large amount of this matter all bearing on the exhibiting end was something unknown. We do not need to call your attention to the change that has come. Nor do we have to call your attention to the fact that there was no such thing as SERVICE for the exhibitor before this department was started.

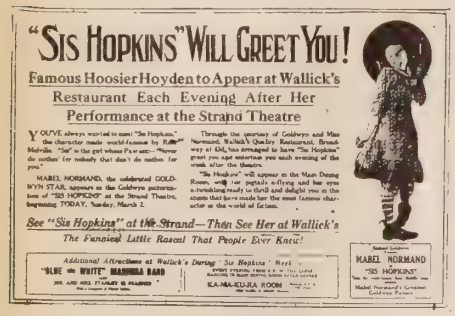
The change? Already this morning there are fifty-two letters on our desk asking for service. They range all the way from asking for the best color for the interior of a theatre down to where to obtain a two reeler that was made some eight years ago. There are a bunch of them asking advertising advice, two asking for complete presentations of big features. There are others telling how they have followed advice given in these pages or in letters written them direct.

And we have not been publishing the letters telling how the exhibitors are following the plans given here. It is perfectly proper that they should do so. These pages are the exhibitors' alone and there is no reason why any person except the exhibitor should get credit for the ideas that are advanced here.

BUT there is another angle to this: It was not many months ago that a comparatively new interest entered a large city. The chief services were tied up with exhibitors who were already established in that city. The new man had a mighty hard time getting pictures and therefore he determined to do more with them. Accounts of some of his presentations appeared here and he told of an experience he had a little later in buying a picture. He was asked an exorbitant price for it and was told plainly that he appeared to be making such a success with pictures that he could afford to pay more.

That was some eighteen months ago. Today that exhibitor practically has the pick of the pictures in that city and we haven't the slighest doubt that he gets a lot of them at lower rental than some other house would have to pay. In short, the exchange men are anxious to get their pictures into this theatre because they know of the prestige that accrues from the production appearing there and being given the presentation that it receives there and the accounts that are published. Exchange men admit that the booking of a picture at that house practically assures its demand over the entire territory because of the attention that is attracted to it.

And it is a sure thing that the exchange man, unless he is a product of theories of by gone years is going to do more to aid the exhibitor, large or small, who is trying to get the most out of each production, trying to get better prices and increase the length of his run, trying to put his house on a higher level.



We can cooperate further: We want you to study carefully the ideas that are outlined here and then to have your own. We already have the great forum of the exhibitors established here. Let's make it a bigger one.

We are waiting for you that have not yet come into the fold.

"The Better 'Ole" and "Sis Hopkins" Are Given Unique Exploitations During Their Run at Strand

IT is mighty seldom that New York theatres do anything in the way of special exploitation of pictures, but during the past two weeks the Strand has had the advantage of additional appeals to the public first with "The Better 'Ole" and then with Mabel Normand in "Sis Hopkins."

Last week there appeared in this department a full account of the presentation of "The Better 'Ole" calling attention to the special musical setting of Old English airs and then a trench scene with a singer,

"SIS HOPKINS" WILL GREET YOU!

Famous Hoosier Hoyden to Appear at Wallick's Restaurant Each Evening After Her Performance at the Strand Theatre

Y OU'VE always wanted to meet "Sis Hopkins," the character made world famous by Rose Melville. "Sis" is the girl whose PA'S an etc.—"Never do nothin' for nobody that don't do nothin' for you."

MABEL NORMAND, the celebrated GOLDWYN STAR, appears in the Goldwyn picturization of "SIS HOPKINS" at the Strand Theatre, beginning TODAY, Sunday, March 2.

Through the courtesy of Goldwyn and Miss Normand, Wallick's Quality Restaurant, Broadway at 47th, has arranged to have "Sis Hopkins" greet you and entertain you each evening of the week after the theatre.

"Sis Hopkins" will appear on the Main Dining Room, with her pockets a-flying and her eyes a-twinkling ready to thrill and delight you in the stunts that have made her the most famous character in the world of fun.

See "Sis Hopkins" at the Strand—Then See Her at Wallick's

The Funniest Little Rascal That People Ever Knew!

Additional Attractions at Wallick's During "Sis Hopkins" Week

"BLUE and WHITE" MARIMBA BAND

KA-MA-KU-RA ROOM

MABEL NORMAND in "SIS HOPKINS"

How a New York restaurant advertised the appearance of "Sis" costumed as "Old Bill" singing "Up from Somerset." But this week Joseph H. Plunkett, the managing director of the Strand, adds some additional facts about the exploitation. To quote him:

"In the advertising I took care to get over the fact that comedy was an outstanding feature of the film, and that the war was simply the basis for that comedy, but I by no means passed upon the fact that the locale was in Flanders and England, and that Old Bill was an English soldier, because if I had the audience would not have come prepared for the rich comedy that Old Bill pulls.

"We were not sorry for preparing our audiences to laugh—and to cry—by telling them just what we had, and another reason we were not sorry was that the very nature of the picture made it a novelty to a public that witnesses only American stories, American scenes, American incidents, American atmosphere. I am convinced we did a larger business because we told the whole truth inasmuch as, firstly, the people who had heard about the humor of Old Bill wanted the original wit devoid of Americanisms, and, secondly, those who didn't know Old Bill wanted to see a novelty, which was exactly the sort of story we were presenting.

"I made my lobby a cartoon one, because the books of Bairnsfather's cartoons are available in every town and there are dozens of funny pictures to pick from. The Wednesday preceding the initial showing of the film we had the cartoons neatly framed and people constantly came into the lobby for a look and a laugh. The laugh was sure. The comedy vein that first made Bairnsfather famous—and it was in these cartoons—could always be relied on to send them out with a smile.

"I am sure that this was great advance advertising, because people like to tell about anything that has made them laugh. People do not tell Ford jokes to advertise that automobile, but because they think their friends will laugh at them. It is simply the most natural thing in the world to tell something to the other fellow that you surmise will get a smile out of him. The best investment I ever made for my lobby was in these cartoons, and I wish I had another picture with a cartoon side to it.

"There is something about a cartoon that makes people stop when they might be persuaded to walk by the lobby containing the usual still. For this reason I think the producers of 'The Better 'Ole' were wise in making their posters enlarged cartoons, because they will get extra street advertising, just as cartoons in the lobby make for extra lobby attention, and the exhibitor who wants an extra flash has got to figure out advertising plans that aren't routine and absolutely are stunts."

Quite a different sort of exploitation was done by the Strand in cooperation with Goldwyn in advertising Mabel Normand in "Sis Hopkins." A girl was secured to impersonate "Sis" and she was seen in all parts of the city the Saturday before the opening of the engagement at the Strand and all during the week that the picture was shown. This girl wore a costume exactly like that Miss Normand affects in the picture, carrying a parasol and adorned in Charlie Chaplin shoes, lace pantalettes and wooly rainbow stockings, to say nothing of the famous hat that helped to make Rose Melville famous in the stage production. In addition she carried a carpet bag on which were printed the words "Meet Sis Hopkins at the Strand theatre. . A riot of fun."

On Sunday evening, "Sis Hopkins" was on the job with more earnestness than before. The Strand had long lines of ticket-seekers, and "Sis" kept them in high spirits by mingling with the crowds, eating peanuts and popcorn and offering her confections to the women and children.

During the week's run of Mabel Normand in "Sis Hopkins," the model will continue to amuse and thrill the pedestrians. She will visit the fashionable shops on Fifth avenue, take rides in the Fifth avenue busses, hop on and off street cars and automobiles, promenade about the uptown and downtown districts, and, in general, make herself as conspicuous as the pig tails she wears.

Another novel exploitation stunt was staged by Goldwyn's Service Department in collaboration with Wallick's Restaurant. A half-page advertisement was inserted in the New York Telegram on Sunday.

In addition, Mr. Wallick announced the extra attraction in all the smaller advertisements inserted in the New York Sunday and daily newspapers. The lobbies of the Hotel Wallick and its restaurant are covered with scene stills from the play and portraits of Mabel Normand.

Ignoring precedent for the moment, Mr. Plunkett started his lobby display of Mabel Normand portraits and "Sis Hopkins" stills three weeks prior to the engagement

"Sis" as she appeared on New York streets of the picture. "Sis Hopkins" is a big, important attraction, he argued, and deserving of all the extra publicity an exhibitor can accord it. Half of the panel space in the Strand lobby was turned over to "Sis Hopkins" and this continued until the week previous to the opening of the engagement, when all the panels were filled with "Sis Hopkins" portraits and stills.

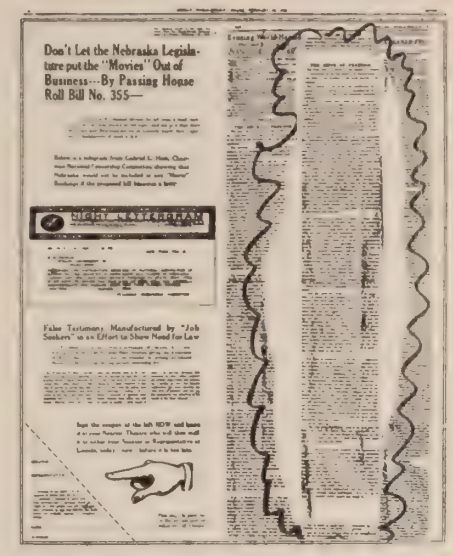
In addition to this display, a mammoth heart, five feet tall and made entirely of artificial flowers (red roses and white daisies) was placed in the main lobby, directly over the entrance. Hidden beneath the floral display were scores of tiny colored lights, which illuminated the heart into one grand tableau of color. Across the center of the heart appeared these words, designed, of course, in flowers in harmony with the rest of the heart: "That ain't your heart you're cutting, Ridy, it's mine—Sis." At the top of the floral heart appeared a photograph of Mabel Normand in a scene from the play and the hand-lettered announcement of the coming of the picture.

The quicker you realize that your program is something to sell and not something with which to bunk the public the sooner you are going to get into your house the people who will come back again.

Franklin Urges Theatres to Show Power

By Harold B. Franklin



Manager, Shea's Hippodrome, Buffalo

WE have had much talk about the power of the screen. At every large gathering of exhibitors more or less is said about the great work accomplished by the screen for the government. We, of the motion picture industry, know that motion pictures exert an influence, second to none, with the public. The biggest asset of the motion picture is the good will of the majority of the American people. It has never been disputed that the screen is a tremendous factor in spreading propaganda. Is it not about time that we used our screens in furthering our own projects? Charity begins at home. Why let this Niagara of power go to waste? Let us saddle it and show the professional reformers of the country that they cannot interfere with an industry that fills an important place in the hearts and lives of the everyday American. Let us show that the screen can reach many millions of people daily. If we have a Sunday problem or a censorship problem it is because we are neglecting the use of the most valuable medium for the spreading of propaganda that has ever been conceived.

It is nothing unreasonable that the motion picture industry wants. It believes it is entitled to the just right of conducting its own business without the interference of cranks, radicals and paid reformers. It is up to the industry to use the screen and show these men up. The real American who believes in the principles of our great constitution does not favor Sunday closing nor censorship in any form. The true American will not try to handicap an institution that has served the public unselfishly. Motion pictures have earned the respect and confidence of most of our truly great citizens. I do not remember an instance of a really "big" man objecting to Sunday movies, nor demanding censorship.

And now, upon the threshold of many legislative problems, let the motion picture industry show that it is equal to the task. Let it show the power of the screen by creating a tremendous sentiment in favor of Sunday motion pictures and against censorship in any form.

It is up to the industry to want Sunday motion pictures so hard that nothing in the world can stop it. But the industry cannot stop merely by wanting it. It is necessary to muster its forces and plan a publicity campaign that will reach every nook and corner from New York to California.

One of a series of page advertisement being used by Omaha theatres to fight censorship

At the convention of the New York State Exhibitors' League in Syracuse recently, the writer in association with Max Spiegel, of New York, placed before the New York exhibitors a publicity plan that included every possible phase of publicity that could be procured through the motion picture theatre.

The plan entailed a principal point from which the publicity would emanate, with a field organization that would see that this publicity was followed out by the exhibitor. On account of the great expense involved, it was deemed impossible to adapt the plan unless the manufacturers would co-operate to the extent of furnishing the publicity men that could carry out the plans of such a campaign. However, no publicity plan, no matter how carefully arranged, could be effective without the full co-operation of the exhibitors themselves.

In Buffalo we secured through the use of our screens, a little over 100,000 signed petitions, with more to come. All these petitions are arranged by districts, and carefully bound and addressed to the respective district assemblymen and state senators. Slides and trailers are used in every theatre. Four minute men are speaking in sections where needed. The entire six newspapers here have gone on record editorially in favor of Sunday motion pictures. The support of labor organizations is also being secured.

Let every live exhibitor in the state of New York appoint himself a publicity director and call his co-exhibitors in session immediately. Let them print petitions and arrange for booths, slides and trailers. Let them send their petitions to the Exhibitors' State League, Times Square Building, New York, and use every possible conceivable method in publicity. Exhibitors are publicity men by trade. If they do this, Sunday moves will become a fact, and the success in the State of New York will inspire every locality in the country to insist upon their just rights.

What the motion picture industry lacks is a central body to watch adverse legislation and other problems. Associated with such a body should be an administrative organization that could at short notice mobilize the screens of the country in a standard plan of publicity. Such an agency entails much work and expense, but its purpose is well worth serious thought by the principal powers of the industry. And the exhibitors of the country would gladly cooperate with such an agency providing that the men placed in charge merit the confidence of the exhibitors. The scope of such a plan would be of tremendous value in protecting the industry against unjust legislation throughout the whole land. In the meanwhile, let the exhibitors of the state of New York pave the way.

Teddy Bear Display Brings Business to Elgin Theatre

Orpheum theatre, Elgin, Ill., reports that interest in the Teddy bear is still mighty strong in this section and this was proved with the manner in which they were used to advertise "Our Teddy" or "The Fighting Roosevelts." There happened to be a vacant store next to the theatre and the window was secured and a number of the Teddy bears placed on display.

ADVISORY BOARD, EXHIBITORS SERVICE BUREAU

Thomas D. Soriero, Park theatre, Boston, and Strand theatres, Lowell
Harold B. Franklin, Shea's Hippodrome, Buffalo.
Edw. L. Hyman, Film Director, U. S. Liberty Theatres, New York.
E. Mandlebaum, Loew's Stillman theatre, Cleveland.
Mrs. Joseph Grossman, Standard theatre, Cleveland.
George J. Schade, Schade theatre, Sandusky.
H. C. Horater, Alhambra theatre, Toledo.
Mark Gates, Dayton theatre, Dayton, O.
S. Barret McCormick, Circle theatre, Indianapolis.
Theo. L. Hays, New Garrick theatre, St. Paul.
A. J. Moeller, Theatre de Luxe, Detroit.
Sid Laurence, Alhambra theatre, Detroit.
Chas. G. Branham, Majestic theatre, Detroit.
C. Edgar Momand, Garden theatre, Flint, Mich.
Leo A. Landau, Butterfly theatre, Milwaukee.
Charles C. Perry, Liberty theatre, Camp Cody, Texas.
W. S. McLaren, Majestic and Colonial theatres, Jackson, Mich.
Willard C. Patterson, Criterion theatre, Atlanta, Ga.
E. V. Richards, Jr., General Manager, Saenger Amusement Co., New Orleans.
C. A. Lick, New theatre, Fort Smith, Ark.
F. L. Newman, Royal and Regent theatres, Kansas City, Mo.
Herbert J. Thacher, Strand theatre, Salina, Kan.
H. M. Thomas, Strand theatre, Omaha.
Ralph Ruffner, Rialto theatre, Butte.
A. H. Hilton, Paramount theatre, Lewiston, Idaho.
George E. Carpenter, Paramount-Empress theatre, Salt Lake.
Sam W. B. Cohn, Spokane.
E. J. Myrick, Liberty theatre, Portland, Ore.
A. S. Kolstad, Liberty theatre, Hood River, Ore.
H. L. Percy, Rialto theatre, Medford, Ore.
P. E. Noble, Publicity Manager, Liberty and Columbia theatres, Seattle.
Eugene H. Roth, California theatre, San Francisco.
J. A. Partington, Imperial theatre, San Francisco.
Sidney Grauman, Grauman's theatre, Los Angeles.
A. C. H. Chamberlin, Opera House, Madera, Cal.

Your Idea and Ours

COLONIAL THEATRE, Sioux Falls, S. D., believes in doing things the right way, in going after business with both hands when it has a big chance. This page advertisement appeared in the local papers on Wednesday, the day before the start of the picture. More than the enterprise in using a full page of space, we are mighty glad to see that the Colonial did not merely make a big splurge in the Sunday issue and then expect that to carry the business through the mid-week change. The theatre advertised the bill for the first half of the week on Sunday and then came back with this smash on Wednesday. We don't need a look at the box office report to be able to say that we know the Colonial did big business.

And it is a mighty good ad, but we believe that it would have been more effective all the way around to have reduced the size of the lower case type, so as to have left more space between the type and cut and border. It has something of the crowded effect. But at that it is one of the best displays in a smaller city that we have seen and this ought to encourage other theatres to go a smash once in awhile and see the effect on their business.

A patron in time will bring nine.

THIS is a case where the manner in which the display is made justifies to some extent the employment of equal attention to two features. But before you consider that we have reversed ourself on our general opinions let us first quote Mark Gates, managing director of the Dayton theatre, Dayton, O., as saying that all house records were broken on the showing of the first instalment of the Martin Johnson cannibal pictures. Therefore, every one knew what these were about when the announcement was made of the second portion of them.

At the same time the Dayton was able to book Billie Rhodes' circus picture, "Hoop-la," and therefore made a circus picture of the entire announcement. It is the sort of advertisement that is going to have the same appeal as a circus advertisement. The flash is there, but there is no sound reasoning for the sale of either picture. It's a good stunt, on occasion, but we would not use the plan very often. We would much rather have followed the same idea and have advertised that "We are going to give a big circus, with a free 'concert,' without selling you tickets for it," and then have played one picture the strongest.

Excuses generally alibi incompetence.

WHILE typographically it is not all that we could desire, Fitchburg, Mass., shows a splendid opportunity of localizing the interest in a picture. This ten inch four column advertisement on "Heart of Humanity" is based on opinions of the people who have already seen the picture.

There has been a ten strike with the opinion of the mother of two boys who are "Over There" after having fought through the war for this country. We would have played her opinion even stronger and instead of having boxed off the lower opinions, we would have made a box feature of this one.

Especially after the run of a picture is well under way we believe that such a display is worth far more than all the things that the manager of the theatre could say about it. But still there is a line in connection with this picture that should not be omitted in any advertisement—"The picture that will live forever."

IN the first place the Tom Moore theatres, Washington, allow nothing to interfere with keeping the theatre itself foremost, and that is a mighty good idea. The Rialto is a new house and the atmosphere of the theatre is kept in the high lights. But the Rialto is doing the biggest advertising of any of the Washington theatres and is finding that it pays. This one on Fannie Ward in "Common Clay" occupies 11½ inches across three columns.

We believe that the theatre is doing the right thing here in playing the name of the star and the title of the picture as the two main things, and certainly it is correct in devoting most of the selling argument to the fact that this has been made from the A. H. Woods stage success. But we do think that the whole thing could have been improved by having used a few explanatory lines under the cut indicating the trend of the picture. As it stands the cut is meaningless and even one who has already seen the picture has to study for a few moments to remember just what was said when this situation came on the screen. Use cuts, but make them tell a story. If they do not tell it themselves, then put in the reading matter that does.

Let's say: "This is my PATRONS' theatre."

CRITERION THEATRE, Atlanta, got a mighty good effect with this hand-drawn display, but it could have been improved by keeping the descriptive matter smaller and leaving even more white space and then in bringing the name of the star up a little stronger. We don't care particularly for lettering that is too fancy because we believe that it loses something of the punch.

But we are being particular severe here

What Live Wires are Doing

because Manager Patterson is one of the best advertisers in the country and when we want to find fault with his displays we do have to look to the minor things. He has brought out the personality of Constance Talmadge cleverly through the use of the film and he has done the proper thing in announcing that "A Lady's Name" was written by the same man responsible for "A Pair of Silk Stockings," which scored a great hit in the Georgia capital. The line at the top: "Here is a young woman who advertised for a husband and could not understand why her 'fiance got mad'" is a good one.

Nothing is "trouble" when it brings success.

FROM one issue of the Racine, Wis., Times-Call we are able to select advertisements of the screen version of two great stage successes, "Common Clay" and "The Lion and the Mouse." The leading theatres of Racine use liberal space, but the common failing of all of them is the resort to black type for emphasis.

Rex theatre has used twelve inches across five columns and Tom Norman, the manager, has put two strong points into the boxes that he used. One of these calls attention to the fact that he has bought the Wisconsin rights and the other quotes the admission prices that he is charging and then invites the people to take a look at the Chicago papers, which circulate extensively in Racine, and see the prices that are being charged there.

This display could have been improved in many ways. First, a name plate which we always advocate instead of boxing off the name of the theatre in the center. Next the dates should have been used in much lighter type and the name of the star larger. The words "In the title role" mean nothing. Any person knows that the star has the chief role, so why go further. Use of a larger cut, or specially one of Miss Ward, and this brought up in one of the corners would have been much more compelling to the eye. Then the whole type matter should have been more centered so as to have left more white space between it and the border. And just another caution: When you are using heavy type, use a light border and the white space around it and get the contrast. The main impression that one gets here is that the theatre has used considerable space—and has filled it all up, though the advertisement is mighty well written.

Bijou theatre has obtained this contrast to some extent by using the lighter border, but the printing of the cut is so bad as to mar the display. The circle behind the picture of Miss Joyce is supposed to show a lion, but even in the original newspaper display which we have and which is fifteen inches across five columns, it can be scarcely figured out after close study. Exhibitors using this paper should be careful of their half tones and at least ask the stereotypers to "underlay" them in order to get the better effects. There is much more contrast here in the display, but the selling argument should have been indented and more space left all around the border.

WHILE the newspaper is to blame because the cut did not print any better than it did the Cozy theatre, Topeka, Kan., has achieved a clever effect and fairly good advertising on Billie Rhodes in "The Girl of My Dreams." But it could have been improved a whole lot if there had been a name plate for the theatre and this had been used either in the upper left hand corner, running next to the cut or in the lower left. We would have used the name of Billie Rhodes ahead of the title and we would have brought up close to the patrons the fact that she was one of the most delightful stars in comedy. Her name is well enough known, but the thing to do in this case was to associate her with feature pictures, of which this is her first. The selling lines are very good, but the trouble about the general display is that this would have been passed over as the average feature and the chance to "sell" the popularity of a new feature star was lost.

There is too much space devoted to the attraction for the last half of the week and the argument is too involved. The displays says of "The Doctor and the Woman" that this is "the most intricate disclosure ever made of American hospital life." In the first place picture audiences are not looking for "intricate disclosures" and we cannot imagine a lesser appeal than the suggestion of an operation. There is plenty of selling argument here without touching on anything that might be revolting to some of your patrons.

You have to burn the midnight oil of advertising to awake to the golden dawn of prosperity.

Put your theatre on MAIN STREET no matter where it is actually located.

How New York Stages the Show

IT looks very much like stage successes as made into motion pictures are scoring big hits with New York audiences. This week the Rialto is showing Fannie Ward in "Common Clay" and the Strand has Mabel Normand in the Rose Melville success, "Sis Hopkins." Some of the others in the past month have been "The Better 'Ole" and "Mrs. Wiggs" at the Strand; "Cheating Cheaters," "Paid in Full" and "Out of the Fog" ('Ception Shoals) at the Rivoli and "Maggie Pepper" and "The Lion and the Mouse" at the Rialto. And it has proven without exception that right here in New York where so many thousands saw those plays on the legitimate stage the crowds to see them on the screen have been immense.

In addition to the feature at the Rialto there is the latest Arbuckle comedy, "Love," the last one of the Dr. Sugden picture lectures and some attractive musical numbers.

Rivoli is playing William Farnum in "The Man Hunter." Unless we are mistaken this marks the debut of Farnum at the Rialto or Rivoli. There is also a Sunshine comedy, "His Musical Sneeze," "Canoe and Campfire," a Prizma, and a wonderfully clever "Torch Dance."

Supplementing the rural comedy of "Sis Hopkins" the Strand is also playing Fatty Arbuckle in "Love" together with Pathe analysis of motion and animal pictures. A vocal number is cleverly united with the overture this week.

At the Broadway Director Kashin is doing a new stunt with a Chaplin picture, in addition to the feature, Monroe Salisbury in "The Light of Victory." He has so much success with the Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Chaplin idea and then with uniting the comedian's first production with his last that he is now reviving the first of the million dollar comedies, "A Dog's Life," and calling attention in circular letters to the fact that he is the original Chaplin "reviver" of New York houses.

Strand Theatre

HERE is an especially pleasing musical arrangement at the Strand this week, beginning with the overture where a clever effect is used. The main curtain comes up for the overture with the house in darkness and the stage is red. After a few bars of selections from "Cavalleria Rusticana" the stage curtains part, revealing the cathedral window setting, and then after a few bars from the harp Richard Bold and Redfern Rollinshed, tenors, sing "Siciliana" from the opera from behind the stage, never appearing before the audience. Then as the last notes of the voices die out the orchestra takes up the other selections. There are clever effects here with the chimes, the organ alone carrying a few bars, and then the violins taking up the refrain, leading into the crashing, firey finish. At the end the lights fade down into purple for the scenic.

"From Scales to Antlers" is an Outing-Chester which first introduces us to fish and then takes us among the moose. The picture tells the adventures of a man and his guide on a camping trip. We see them catching fish and cooking their evening meal, together with many brilliant scenes along the river, and then we have some most remarkable shots of swimming moose. At one place the boat comes up close along the king of them all, and again when we see the young racing behind his mother the audience breaks into applause. Here again the music scores for a trio, "Souvenir du Rigi" is employed, piano, flute and French horn being employed.

Strand Topical opens with Pathe pictures of the vanguard of the Twenty-seventh Division reaching New York on the Rochambeau. There are a series of fine shots of the transport with her crowded decks and waving men, and of the Red Cross girls on the pier to welcome the boys home. "Panama Exposition March" is the stirring accompaniment. Then come Current Events pictures of the tests of the Ford Eagle boats at New London, Conn., showing how they are able to turn in almost their own length. "The Ford" is very aptly played here. Pathe follows with scenes in the Marysville, Cal., flood with water up to second floor of houses, and then a number of amusing scenes. "Tempeste" is played for these.

Then come "Topics of the Day" with the usual number of laughs. Some of those that get the heartiest appreciation are: "How about passing the servant problem along to the peace conference?", and "One cup of milk costs $750 in Moscow, which indicates that the dairymen have the Russian situation well in hand." Another one runs: "A St. Louis spinster was recently kissed in a dark hallway and there hasn't been a light there since." "Little Birch Canoe" is played through these.

News is taken up again with Current Events pictures of Yankees on leave in France climbing the foothills of Mt. Blanc. There are a lot of laughs as some of the soldiers get harmless falls in the snow and at the snowball battle that follows, the good humor being increased by the music, "My Chocolate Soldier Sammie." From the same sources come pictures of the commission which drafted the constitution of the League of Nations, and here, to much enthusiasm, we have cheers for Henry White, Gen. Bliss, Admiral Benson and Lord Robert Cecil. "Achievement" is the music. Current Events also supplies the big smash at the end with President Wilson leading the parade of the returning soldiers in Washington. There is one shot that shows the wounded soldiers looking on and cheering. "National Emblem March" is the exceedingly militant music for this.

Then the stage curtains part showing a set with an open window in the center and curtained ones at either side. Then we have the trio from "Attilla" sung by Joseph Martel, baritone, Richard Bold, tenor, and Irene Fallin, soprano. The lights are in red for this selection.

Next follows the feature, Mabel Normand in "Sis Hopkins." At the opening we have the last two strains of "Pastorale" and then "Old Home on the Farm," following through with "Mirielle" and "Cricket's Serenade." When New Harmony general store is flashed on the screen we get "Bees" and then "Canzonette" for the fight and "Baby Dreams" as the boy goes to tie Sis' shoe. With the title "Close your eyes," the theme, "Berceuse" is used for the first time. Then after that the theme comes back again and when the couple run away "Demande et Response" is played, the organ taking up the music at the title "Have I the honor of addressing" and continuing for seventeen minutes.

Orchestra comes back with the title "That night after supper" with "Romance," repeated agitato appasionate as the girl sees the boy trying to chop out the heart that he had carved in the tree. Then when Sis says: "Ridy, that ain't your heart you're cutting, it's mine" we have "Berceuse" again, and then when the couple are seen at the spring discovering the oily water "Au Fait" is played until the girl suggests that her father may be selling the land now, and then we have an intermezzo, and then a comedy allegro as the boy and girl start the chase on a bicycle and in the notary's office "Baillage" until the scene where the check is filled out and here the music becomes "Marionette," continuing until the scene where the boy and girl are again seen at the tree and the theme is brought back until the finish.

Then Redferne Hollinshead sings "The Bonny Banks of Loch Lomond" and "Forever is a Long, Long time" in a most delightful manner.

After this comes a Pathe Analysis of Motion, showing here high and broad jumpers. "Ecstasy" is used until the high jump, when the organ takes up the music and continues until the Pathe-Ditmars pictures of "Strange Babies," including lion cubs and the like. No. 3 of "Suite Enfantine" is played by the orchestra for this.

In full keeping with the rural atmosphere given the bill by the feature, then comes Fatty Arbuckle in "Love." At the screening of this "Yankee Girl" is played through twice, and then follows through

Tips From First Showings Here

"After All" and "Mary Ann" until the men are seen at their duels with the brooms, when the tune changes to "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean," which continues until the ladder breaks and then we have the organ, with imitations for five minutes, and then at the end, as Fatty and the best man go down the steps, we have "Any Kind of a Man" played through to the end.

"The Lost Chord" is the organ solo.

Rialto Theatre

IN preparing a Special Service Section last week on "Common Clay" we advised you to pay especial attention to the music when you show that offering, saying: "Love music," and the more spmpathetic selections should be used. And we have been seeing the presentations at the Rialto and Rivoli so long that while we were looking at the Fannie Ward feature "cold" in the projection room we could well imagine the sort of musical setting that Dr. Riesenfeld would give it when it came to his theatre. And we were right.

And how wonderfully does a splendid orchestral setting improve the enjoyment of a feature. Even to one who has to see many pictures the music converts seeing them from a duty into pleasure. In fact, though we had already studied "Common Clay" carefully so as to analyze it for exhibitors, we sat through it again at the Rialto this week—and enjoyed it all the more. We regret that many of the selections used are the numbered ones of which we have told you so often, but you will be able to get a number of suggestions from the Rialto score.

"Mignon" is the brilliant overture at the Rialto this week, and this is played with the lights all gold. This selection at different times takes in all of the instruments in a way that brings out the fullest melody.

After the overture the orchestra plays a few bars and then we have the third of a series of three lectures by Dr. Leonard Sugden on prizma pictures of Alaska, the title of this one being "Alaskan Gold." We don't mind confessing that we were glad to know that this is the last of the series, for we do not care for a lecture, no matter how short, as a portion of a motion picture entertainment.

Sascha Fidelman, violinist and concert master of the Rialto, then brilliantly renders Wieniawsky's "Romance" to great applause, and then we have the Rialto magazine, opening with Gaumont pictures of President Wilson leading the returning soldiers in their parade at Washington. Dirigibles are shown flying overhead and there is a fine close-up of President Wilson and Vice-President Marshall. Then connecting right up with the big meeting held at the Metropolitan Grand Opera House on the eve of the President's sailing to Europe, there were shown Gaumont pictures of former President Taft heading the Peace League at Portland, Ore. The second trio of "Hearts of America" is used for the Washington parade, and then "Giddy Giddap" for the Taft views.

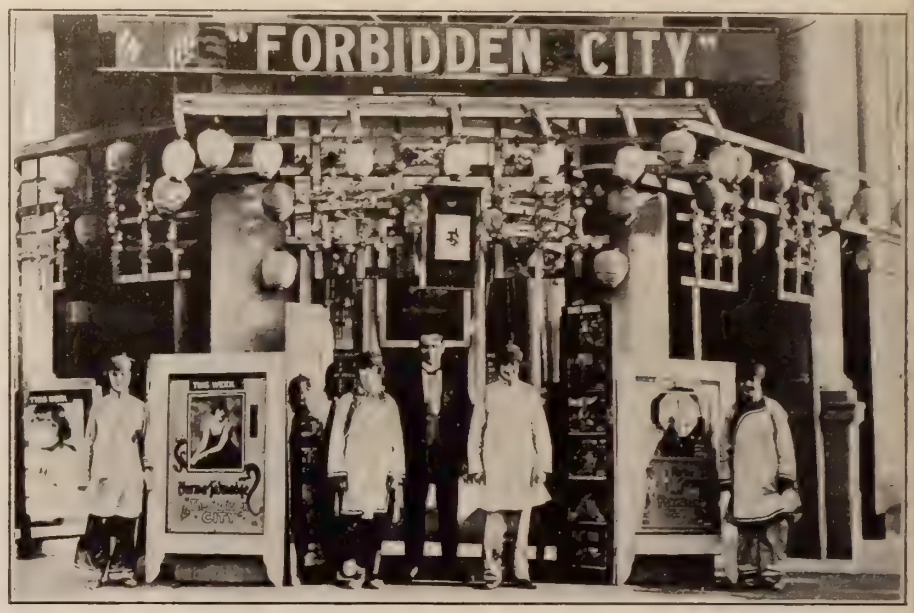
Cartoon lobby display used by Strand theatre on "The Better 'Ole." For story see page 1630

From Universal Current Events come pictures of skiing and a sailor lad winning honors at the meet. First there are a few bars of "I Found the End of the Rainbow" played, and then when the men begin skiing the orchestra fades out to effects, and then with close-up of the sailor we have "I Found the End" repeated, from the beginning. Kinograms shows us an old ferryboat converted into a floating palace for New York children. Here we have a polka and a two-step, each played once through, and then follows through "I Can't Do That Sum" with some of the "kiddie" stuff. Production Manager Joseph Larose always tries to get some of the "kiddie" stuff in the weeklies at the two theatres, and its producers generally realized the pleasure that these tots give the audiences and the laughs that they create there would be more of this intimate, human stuff.

Then connected together are two Gaumont pictures, one of these showing the miles of grandstands on Fifth avenue from which the parading heroes will be cheered, and here "Step With Pep" is used until the scenes with the arrival of the Twenty-second Engineers, a part of the New York division, and these are greeted with wild cheering, while the orchestra crashed out "Here They Come."

After Martin Brefel and Edoardo Albano sing the duet from Bizet's "Pearl Fishers" we have the feature, Fannie Ward, in "Common Clay." The feature is screened to the music of "In a Garden" and then, as the former clerk seeks to persuade Ellen to come to the cabaret, we have "Valse Triste," and then with the scenes in the cabaret we get "Shim-me." As we are shown the passing of the dreary weeks we get "Jaelius Moon," and then with the title "Home?" we have the first two strains of "Valse Triste" used. As a matter of fact, this selection is coupled up with the lonesomeness of Ellen. This is followed through with a numbered selection and then "Valse Triste" used as she takes her hat from the drawer, and when her father enters the room there is a numbered selection played to action.

With the title of amateur night at the cabaret "Baby Doll" is played, and then "Can't You Hear Me Callin'" as Ellen comes on to do her song. "Sensation" is used for the scene of the dog chasing her, "Miniature Valse" as she steps into the auto, a numbered selection as she enters her home and is denounced by her father and then "Valse Triste" as she leaves the house. Then we have numbered selections as Coakley tries to attack her, and for the raid with the waltz theme played again as she pleads her case to the police.



Music Hints For Entire Programs

Then comes the title "Two months later" and we have "Flatterer," followed by a numbered piece for Richard Fullerton, and then with the coming of Coakley "You'll Find Old Dixie" is used. Then with the title "After a quiet evening" the organ takes up the music and plays through the dramatic trial scene. The orchestra comes back as we see the girl accepted as the daughter of Judge Filson, and as she goes into the room and looks at young Fullerton's picture we have Nevin's "Romance" played as a 'cello solo. Then with the title showing the change that time and school training has made in Ellen we have "Evening," and at the title "And when the boys come back" there is played "When You Come Back," starting at the trio. Then when young Fullerton is thinking of the girl and there is a fade in of her Nevin's "Romance" is used again. "Frou Frou" is played for the arrival of Coakley, and then when Fullerton repeats "Not good enough for me?" "Twilight" is effectively used. With the title vacation days we have Grunfeld's "Romance" and then Nevin's at the end where the young soldier recognizes the girl and takes her to his arms.

On account of the length of the program the second orchestral number is omitted, and for the same reason the comedy, Fatty Arbuckle in "Love" has been decidedly trimmed. The old duel stuff with the brooms, which, we believe, was seen in "The Waiter's Ball," and the scenes in the well have been cut out, but we cannot say that these excisions have hurt the comedy in the slightest.

Musical selections used in the comedy are, in their order: "Barnyard Blues," "A la Carte," "Hi Sine," "Waiting," "Minnehaha," "Matrimonial Fox Trot," "The Wedding of the Sunshine and the Rose" for the wedding scenes and "Hop Along" for the fast action stuff at the end.

Carroll Martin's "The Melody of Peace" is the organ solo.

Manager W. E. Jones, of the Superba theatre, San Diego, Cal., gave his theatre a distinctly Oriental atmosphere during the showing of "The Forbidden City." His girl ushers were in Chinese costumes

Rivoli Theatre

WE have heard no more wonderful rendering of a musical number in a motion picture theatre anywhere than that of "Tasso," Liszt's symphonic poem, which is being played as the overture at the Rivoli this week. The great musician got his inspiration for this composition by hearing gondoliers sing the verses of "Tasso" in Venice. It is plainting in itself, but the gondoliers gave it, Liszt wrote, "a peculiar intonation by drawing certain notes which at a distance produce an effect not unlike the reflection of long streaks of fading light mirrored on the waters."

Before the curtain goes up the lights of the whole theatre are turned down in a deep blue and when the orchestra is revealed it is bathed in the same color. There are plaintive strains on the French horns and then on the strings, on the harp and finally the violins taking it up in the same strain. Then about half way the lights come up to red, fading into gold toward the end and coming up to full gold at the very finish.

"Canoe and Campfire," the scenic, is a Prizma and right at the start it brings in some fine shots of a boat right on the edge of falls. During the first part of this "Mountain Music" is played, much of this being carried on the 'cello and giving a wild, mysterious effect that is doubly pleasing here. With the title "A bit of carelessness" showing the forest fire started by the campers the organ takes up the music. There are some fine shots of the flames mounting into the very tops of trees.

With the house lights all red the curtains part revealing an effect of brown curtains with a seat at the right of the stage and a small evergreen on either side. As the curtain parts Mme. Pascova is standing with almost her back toward the audience and then she turns gracefully and begins to sing "Pleurez Mes Yeux" from "Le Cid."

To the music of Rachmaninoff's "Melodie" we are shown Gaumont pictures of the devastation that the Germans left in their wake at Bruges, with the harbor littered with wreckage. The music is rather mournful with the horns carrying a great portion of it and so it is most suitable right here. From Gaumont then come pictures of the Paris to London aerobus. "Old Fashioned Way" is played for the most of the scenes with the motor effects for the flying machine. This same music continues through Gaumont pictures showing Jules Vedrines landing on the roof of a Paris department store.

Pathe takes us to Guantanimo Bay where we have some of the brighter life of the boys on the battleships at practise there and then Current Events show us trials of the Eagle boats. "Before the Mast" is used for both of these numbers, being played twice through. Under the title "No hook and tackle needed here" Gaumont shows us the annual run of smelts at Kelson, Wash., and here "Second Arabesque" is played in the G major chord. From the same source come pictures of the flooded Seine in Paris with Chopin's "Prelude" employed.

Final punch comes with Pathe pictures of the arrival of the vanguard of New York's division, already described, and then a Kinogram showing Secfetary Baker congratulating E. V. Armstrong, the first American to bring in a German prisoner. "Twenty-second Regiment March" is used for both of these.

With "The Torch Dance" which has been arranged by Adolf Bolm of the Metropolitan Opera House before a scenic setting by John Wanger we are given one of the most interesting classical numbers that we have yet seen. With the lights in red the stage curtains part and we see in the center of the stage a lone column, with steps from either side leading up to it as if for worship. There is a wonderful background of blue velvet draperies for the whole thing. There is a girl in white on either side of the column, kneeling, and in front one in red, all of them holding torches. The two in white come down and the three then execute a beautiful dance, ending the number by returning to their opening poses.

Then comes the feature, a considerable part of the music consisting of the numbered selections. At the start "Tulips" is used and then with the flash back "April Buds." For the introduction of Benton, the stockbroker, there is "In the Silence of the Night" and for the old solicitor "Only a Year Ago." "Old Cremona" is played as Arnold visits the girl and then with the scenes showing the celebration at his bachelor dinner we have "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," changing to a number selection with the change of scenes and then to "This is the Life" as we are brought back to the banquet room.

New York's Way

There is a lot of action music through this picture for the fights and at the very end we have the love music brought in first with the title "A woman's love" when "Told at Twilight" is introduced as a 'cello solo and later when the girl comes into the office the full orchestra coming into action.

There is a screamingly funny comedy in "His Musical Sneeze," a Sunshine product. It gets the title from one of the characters, who when he sneezes make a noise like a trumpet and you can well imagine that Dr. Riesenfeld hasn't lost the opportunity to get the most possible laughs here with the imitations that he uses. A considerable portion of the story centers around a fox hunt. The selections that are used in order; are numbered selection, "Kentucky Was Lucky When She Raised a Girl Like You," "Palmetto Hop," "No Conversation," "Do Re Mi," "A Hunting Scene," "Dreaming," "Go Get 'Em," "Oui, Oui Marie," then an allegro vivance, "That Hoaning Trombone" for some of the sneeze stuff and "Lion Chase" at the end.

Ivry's "Scherzo in C Major" is the final organ solo.

This bill struck us as being an especially well balanced one because the overture might have said to be mournful, though brilliant, then plenty of light stuff coming in between, a tense feature and then a lot of laughs at the end that always sends the patrons away delighted with life.

The Broadway

MANAGING Director Maurice A. Kashin, of the Broadway Theatre, scored such a success by producing the first film that Charlie Chaplin ever made and showing at the same time the latest work of the million-dollar screen actor, that this week he is showing the first of the comedies under the First National contract. This, "A Dog's Life," has never before been shown at the Broadway, though it was seen at the Strand and other leading theatres.

In this connection Mr. Kashin took advantage of a little newspaper item in S. Jay Kauffman's "Around the Town" column in the Globe, where that writer said: "That's a capital idea of Dr. Riesenfeld's to revive the Chaplin comedies at the Rialto, even if Mr. Kashin at the Broadway did it first." So Mr. Kashin reproduced this item on his circular letter and then called attention to the fact that he was showing "A Dog's Life" this week. That is the sort of stuff that makes people talk about the theatre.

The display on the exterior of the lobby this week consists of the name of Mary MacLaren and the title of her latest production, "The Amazing Wife," in electric lights on the right and left-hand arches and in the center the reproduction of a huge silver dollar with the face of Chaplin breaking through it. Inside the lobby and just above the entrance to the theatre itself there is a huge reproduction of a dollar bill, and to the left is an announcement of the picture and to the right "A million of these have bought a million laughs."

Here is the display of E. N. Collins, Liberty theatre, Electra, Texas, on "Cannibals of the South Seas." He relied largely on cut-outs from the poster material

The overture this week is Nicolai's "Merry Wives of Windsor," selected principally because of the word wives being reflected in the title of the feature, "The Amazing Wife." James C. Bradford conducts his Broadway Concert Orchestra admirably during this selection. A dark house, amber flood on orchestra pit, and red stage is the lighting scheme.

The Broadway Topical Digest follows. The music played as an opener during the trick announcement title is Sousa's new march, "Solid Men to the Front." Scenes from Current Events showing the Peace Envoys at Paris open to big applause, with a musical accompaniment of Goetzl's "Democracy." Views of Henry Ford's new eagle boat, taken from the same source, are then screened to Boulton's "Yankee Tars." Then follow views of American soldiers on an outing in the snow-clad Alps. A new number, very pretty, and unpublished as yet, composed by a friend of Mr. Bradford, is used; it has been tentatively called "Poppy Waltz."

Another selection from Current Events, The Cities of the Dead, showing the desolation of Northern France, shown to the accompaniment of Chopin's "Nocturne." Then follow scenes from Screen Telegram showing the funeral of Sir Wilfred Laurier. Grieg's "Ase's Death," from the Peer Gynt suite, was used. Wilson in the Victory Parade at Washington, selected from Current Events, is shown to the tune of "America Never Took Water." Screen Telegram supplies the finishing applause number in the form of Pershing decorating heroes. Sousa's "Bullets and Bayonets" is used here.

This week, inasmuch as the number following called for organ music, Topics of the Day is screened to the tune of a jazz number.

Following Topics came a violin and 'cello duo by A. Coan and B. Taylor, respectively, who rendered Handel's Largo from "Xerxes." The lights are blue at the start, but at the first violin movement changed to red with an amber spot.

The feature is Mary MacLaren in "The Amazing Wife." The opening selection is Godard's Adagio Pathetique. The musical hit of the feature is Dvorak's Largo from his New World's Symphony. The oboe part is admirably played. A noteworthy lighter number is the "Baby Doll" fox trot from "Some Time." "David," a symphonic poem, is rendered, and is probably the most effective number of all.

Charlie Chaplin in "A Dog's Life" closes the show. The most effective musical stunt is the spot where the girl sings the song in the cheap cabaret and all assembled weep. A trombone and 'cello provoke great merriment in burlesquing "Just a Song at Twilight."

At intermission, Edward F. Johnston renders Grieg's "To Spring" on the organ.

Hays Uses Real System with Lost Article Problem

Of course the leading theatres of the country and, for that matter, many of the smaller ones give especial attention to articles which are dropped in the theatre by patrons and turned in to the management by the ushers or others who have found them. But Theo. L. Hays, managing director of the Garrick and Liberty theatres, St. Paul, has cut a little touch of class on the method of extending this service.

He has provided a quantity of heavy manilla envelopes for enclosing the articles that are turned in and there is marked on the envelope the character of the article together with the location at which it was found and the date. A special file cabinet is maintained and in this way the patron on inquiring for a lost article and giving the date on which it was lost will receive prompt attention instead of having to look through a quantity of the articles. Mr. Hays reports that this little thing has impressed his patrons with the service they receive at his theatres.

How Scout leaders cooperated with New Garrick theatre, Minneapolis, in advertising "Our Teddy" and a group of them before the theatre with its display. These boys canvassed 20,000 homes personally

"Circus Days" Crowd Small Town Theatre and Bring Greatly Increased Trade to Merchants

EVER try a "circus day" with your theatre? No, we do not mean to play a circus at that time, but to go out to get the big crowds for that day and have them streaming into the town just like they would come if a circus was playing there.

That is what has been done with wonderful success in Pleasureville, Ky., a town with a population of 522 and a theatre with a seating capacity of 250. Big attractions are now being played for two days each week and the crowds are coming with such regularity and in such numbers that new prosperity is being given the town. Some of the attractions that have been run for two days are "Virtuous Wives," "My Four Years in Germany," "Tarzan of the Apes," "Shoulder Arms" and "A Dog's Life."

Now there was another reason behind all of this besides the desire for the theatre to make money. Will G. Bryant, who owns the theatre, is also one of the leading merchants. He later started a motion picture theatre which he called the star, buying cheap releases and charging ten cents admission. But he was impressed with one thing—that these pictures did not draw people from out of town, but on circus days they came from every neck of the woods. And incidentally his store and all the others profited from the increased trade.

The big idea came to him on one of his visits to Louisville when he saw "The Battle Cry of Peace." He went to the exchange to get the rental price for his own and was staggered when he was told that it was $20 a day. But he decided to take a chance and try out the "circus day" idea and this he did with such success that the Star took in $75 at an admission price jumped to 35 cents and all of the stores did immense business as the result of the attraction of people from the country around. That convinced Mr. Bryant, but he went further and is now running the features for two days and is getting twice as much with one day.

And the increase in his business at his store is just as great and permanent because the farmers know that they can always see a splendid attraction at the Pleasureville theatre (for it was renamed to identify it with the town) and make their purchases at the same time.

Discussing his experience with motion pictures, Mr. Bryant said: "I believe this is a lesson for every small town in the United States and one that can be followed with advantage. It shows that providing high class entertainment for thousands of people and quickening the business of a small town can be done by big specials.

"For years people in the country have wanted to go to the larger towns and the cities that they might see the pictures of which they read, but which the small picture houses near them have neglected to bring, chiefly from fear the people would not attend at advanced prices.

"My experience proves they will attend. Not only that, they are delighted to have the opportunity to come.

"When I first started my theatre I ran the small program pictures. These did little more than give an idea of what a motion picture is. They are of no more real worth today than the first films that were put out to show people the wonderful new invention—motion pictures.

"There are few people now who have not seen enuogh pictures to have outgrown the novelty and to have cultivated taste and they are not satisfied with the simple little picture plays of former days.

"I have drawn people to the 'Pleasureville' by some big picture they have read about who had never been in a picture theatre before.

"When the people understand, as they quickly learn that they can come to town and see the same famous picture that has been shown in Louisville they don't hesitate. To justify the time spent in the trip to town they arrange to transact there any business they may have and make any purchases they require. This causes them to buy more things from the town merchants, which they might have postponed purchasing until they made a trip to the city.

"I believe a man should take just as much interest in his town, no matter how small, as he would if he were living in a metropolis. I want to be alive to anything that would boom Pleasureville, just as I would to anything that would boom Louisville or New York, if I were living there. If I stay in Pleasureville all my life I will benefit from it. If I move to a larger city I will be better fitted for citizenship there. Everything that brings the people to Pleasureville makes it a more thriving town and means more business for everybody here.

"My theatre used to be the 'Star.' I changed the name to 'Pleasureville' because I want it to be identified with the town. I want the town and the theatre to benefit by their mutual advertising.

"I am convinced that the merchants of every business center would do well to see that their town, no matter how small, has a picture theatre that will show feature pictures to bring in the people from the country around.

"If the manager is backward they should organize a Board of Trade and get the pictures even if they have to put up a guarantee. The cost of this would be so small that the opportunity for their own families to see the pictures would repay them. But they wouldn't lose on this guarantee. Instead they would soon see the benefit.

"Advertising is essential. This problem is simple in a way, but calls for careful study in another. The main thing is to let all the people in your territory know about your pictures.

"The manager should study his territory. He should determine from just what radius he can draw people. In these days of automobiles and interurbans most towns can cover an amazing lot of territory; enough to give them a city population.

"He should make it his business to learn how his patrons are distributed through his territory, so he may be sure that his posters and announcements are properly placed. He should gain knowledge of the roads and the means of transportation so he will be sure he is not over-looking any opportunity to develop new patronage.

"In advertising he should use all the neighborhood paper that will reach any of his territory. He should see that his posters are so distributed that everyone in his territory may be reasonably expected to see one. He should get the cooperation of the merchants in distributing announce-

(Continued on page 1639)

For the showing of "The Belle of New York," the Walnut theatre secured the cooperation of the Woolworth store for display of songs dedicated to Marion Davies

San Francisco Theatre Enlists Aid of Police In Giving Publicity on "Midnight Patrol"

WHEN the Thomas H. Ince special, "The Midnight Patrol," was shown at the Tivoli theatre, San Francisco, the management of that house did not neglect to put over the local appeal and as the result the production ran a full week to extraordinary business.

The Tivoli management, assisted by H. L. Knappen, branch manager of Select's San Francisco Exchange, put over one of the biggest publicity stunts ever executed in the neighborhood of the Golden Gate. San Francisco was literally covered with twenty-four sheets and window cards while the newspapers got their share of big space advertising. Nor did the Tivoli forget the biggest bet of all, the Police Department. Early in the campaign for "The Midnight Patrol" week the management got the police interested and set aside 100 loge seats for Tuesday night, for their special benefit. The entire week was then dedicated to the police, and Chief D. A. White accepted an invitation to speak on behalf of the Police Widows and Orphans Association.

On Tuesday night, the big night of the week, the street was jammed from curb to curb with throngs watching "Frisco's finest" lined up for their pre-arranged entrance.

When the coppers marched to their seats the entire house rose as one person and cheered them to the echo. Chief White was unable to be on hand, but Captain Dan O'Brien was detailed to the task of making the speech.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he said, "in 'The Midnight Patrol,' which is soon to be flashed on the screen, you are to see reproduced thrilling incidents which I know from my own experience as a member of the Chinatown squad, were actually experienced in real life in Chinatown. The part portrayed by Rosemary Theby was actually lived by Miss Grace Cameron, of the Chinese Mission on Sacramento street, just on the edge of Chinatown. She achieved fame throughout the country a few years ago by having effected the rescue at great hazard to herself of several slave girls from the dens of Chinatown as they then existed.

"The picture will have an added interest to you for the reason that it is to a great extent a home made product. The scenario having been written by Denison Clift, a former newspaperman of this city and a native son who knows Chinatown like a book. The picture emphasizes the fact that our brave soldiers have counterparts in every-day life in our civic heroes, the members of the police department, everyone of whom risk their lives and limbs for your protection."

This same plan can be worked in any city where there is a sufficiently large force to have one of these benefit associations. Aside from the spectacular side the members of the force become the best boosters in the world for the picture and your theatre generally.

FOUR OF THEM

Quartet of Special Service Sections in This Issue

THERE are four Special Service Sections in this issue of the NEWS. These are prepared by experts, and exhibitors who have arranged to show these pictures will do well to study these, and others that appear week after week, carefully.

These sections do not pass on the merits of the picture at all, but members of our staff are sent to see these at private advance showing and then study the way that the exhibitor can get the most out of each production. In other words, it is expert selling advice to you to pass along to the public.

Many of you do not see the picture before you buy it, because you cannot, but scores have written to us that these special sections have enabled them to determine whether a certain offering was fitted to their own house. Others have written us that the practical talks on each picture have encouraged them to get out and do more. That's a good sign.

Then turn and read these four sections—and preserve them if you are going to show any of the pictures.

Exhibitor Puts Over Bigness of Film with His Check

Manager Athenas George attracted much attention to the Victoria theatre, Harrisburg, Pa., by a stunt that he used in advertising Theda Bara in "Salome." He decided that the best way to impress the public with the lavishness of the production which he was about to run for a week was to let the people know how much rental he had paid.

So he had reproduced in exact size and color the check for $5,000 that he had given the Fox Film Corporation and then thousands of these were struck out and literally covered the city. On the back of the check there were other selling arguments, telling of the immense task in making the production.

"Circus Days" Pull Big Business to Small Town House

(Continued from page 1638)

ments and in passing the word around of his big pictures. The telephone system of most rural sections can be used to spread the news and the Telephone Exchange can be made a valuable ally. The rural free delivery affords opportunities that are obvious.

"My motto is 'Nothing too good for Pleasureville.' I'm going to book all the big features. In my town I have found that one big picture a week running two days is just right.

"We don't have to wait for the circus to bring the people once a year now. We have 'big pictures' two days a week and the crowds they draw are better for business than the circus crowds were.

Live News from the Producers

Wm. Fox to Produce "Checkers"

Popular Stage Play Will Have Unusually Large Cast for Screen Version—Price Paid Said to Be Large

RUMORS have been in circulation in the trade for some time that William Fox had purchased the motion picture rights to a stage play and was about to produce this as a special attraction. Mystery surrounded the story and very little information could be obtained regarding the name of the play or its nature.

The mystery was solved this week by the announcement that the play is "Checkers." Director Richard Stanton already is at work on the production, which, it is said, is planned to be the most elaborate picture William Fox ever has produced.

One of the biggest casts ever assembled for a motion picture is now at work. The cast includes nearly fifty principals and, it is understood, will be headed by one of the best known stars now playing before the camera. The racing scenes which helped make "Checkers" will be photographed at one of the Southern race tracks.

"As a stage play," said a Fox announcement, "Checkers" was one of the biggest moneymakers of the American drama. When it was first produced it set a new high-water mark for breathless action and big scenic effects. The racing scene in which Checkers, the jockey, rode to victory, has been long acclaimed as one of the most exciting episodes ever put on the boards.

"Season after season, for fifteen years, Tommy Ross toured the country in this play, making money for himself and the producers. It is estimated that the author, Henry Blossom, Jr. alone cleared upwards of $1,000,000 on the piece.

Evelyn Nesbit is here registering a tense moment in the William Fox photoplay, "Thou Shalt Not," the story of a girl who came back

"The price paid for the motion picture rights of "Checkers" is the largest ever expended by a motion picture producer for a novel or stage play. For years numerous picture producers have tried to obtain the film rights to "Checkers," but William Fox was the first to meet the figure at which the play was held.

"Checkers," it is expected, will be released this spring as a big special feature.

Hayakawa in Thirty-four Hundred Houses

ACCORDING to an announcement issued by Exhibitors' Mutual, there are thirty-four hundred theatres throughout the United States, a large percentage of them representative first run houses, that are showing the Sessue Hayakawa features produced by the Haworth Pictures Corporation.

This is declared to be a record which few stars attain, and evidence aplenty of the increasing popularity of the Japanese actor.

Seven days' runs on the Hayakawa pictures have been booked by the following representative first run theatres throughout the country:—

Crown, Houston; Jewell, San Antonio; Orpheum, Ogden, Utah; American, Colorado Springs; Strand, Denver; Riviera, Chicago; American, Salt Lake City; Alhambra, Indianapolis; Rialto, Birmingham; Modern and Beacon, Boston; Palace, New Orleans; Butterfly, Milwaukee; Echo, Syracuse; Strand, Erie, Pa.; Strand, Buffalo, N. Y.; Blue Mouse, Baltimore; Rialto, Washington, D. C.; New Garrick, Minneapolis; Newman, Kansas City, Liberty, Seattle; Clune's Auditorium, Los Angeles; Roth's California, San Francisco.

Marcus Loew has booked the Japanese as an attraction at many of his foremost theatres, including the New York, while Poli's, B. S. Moss, Keith's and Jensen and Von Herberg have booked him over their entire circuits.

Hayakawa has produced four features under his contract with Haworth whereby he will make eight photodramas for release by Exhibitors' Mutual. "Temple of Dusk," "His Birthright," "Bonds of Honor" and "A Heart in Pawn" are already released.

Much praise has been heard on all sides for "A Heart in Pawn," reviewed in this issue of Motion Picture News.

Miss Beranger Writes for Famous Players

Clara S. Beranger, the well known scenario writer, has been secured to do continuities on a free lance basis by Famous Players-Lasky, according to an announcement made this week.

The arrangement, it is said, does not bind Miss Beranger nor Famous Players-Lasky to an agreement that limits the writer's work to this one organization, but leaves her free to do original work in other directions. Miss Beranger, it is announced, is to do at least one continuity a month for Famous Players-Lasky.

Last week she completed the continuity of "Come Out of the Kitchen" from the play by H. E. Thomas. This production, which will be used as a starring subject for Marguerite Clark, has already been put in work at the studio. Miss Beranger also did the continuity of "Girls," by Clyde Fitch, also for Marguerite Clark. At present she is working on the scenario of "The Firing Line," by Robert W. Chambers.

Theatres Cluster Bessie Love Bookings

Two Bessie Love pictures in a week at the same theatre is a pretty fair test of a star's popularity. Information received at the home office of Vitagraph from more than one theatre indicates that rebookings of the previous Bessie Love releases, "Dawn of Understanding," coming on top of that star's new release, "The Enchanted Barn," have clustered the Love offerings on one week's program.

In several cases the two pictures have been played on successive days, a day has intervened between the showings in other cases, but the most unusual use of the Bessie Love films was made by a Middle Western exhibitor who bracketed the two pictures, advertising the performances as "Bessie Love Day."

David Smith is directing Miss Love, and there is no doubt a satisfaction for him as well as for his dainty star, in the splendid reception the Bessie Love pictures are receiving.

Says Fox Picture Was First Across Rhine

According to a postal card received from Private Jack Flaherty, at Coblenz, by his brother Charles, a motion picture actor a Fox picture was the first film to cross the Rhine. The card stated: "I saw you in a William Fox picture, 'The Broadway Sport,' and it went over big with the boys It was the first film shown to the boys over the Rhine, and they just howled with joy. Don't expect to be home until summer."

Nan Blair, who devoted an entire year on the continuity of "Whom the Gods Would Destroy"

Macauley Feature Long in Producing

The story "Whom the Gods Would Destroy," which is an adaptation from C. R. Macauley's original story, "Humanity," is credited by the Macauley Co. with having required more time to create than any other filmized work to date.

When Mr. Macauley first conceived the notion of producing the picture, he submitted the idea to a number of prominent men, including President Wilson, Secretary of Navy Daniels, Secretary of War Baker, Attorney General Gregor, all the other cabinet officers, and a number of prominent professional men to whom the idea appealed with the result that Mr. Macauley went into the Maine woods, where he spent five months creating the foundation of the story "Humanity."

Upon his return to New York from Maine, Mr. Macauley and Nan Blaire began working on the details of the story, and two months were spent at Mr. Macauley's home, with several hours each day devoted to following the trend of changing conditions in Europe.

All in all, between Mr. Macauley and Miss Blaire, an entire year has been spent exclusively on the story, "Whom the Gods Would Destroy."

"Little Women" Elicits Praise of Fans

"Little Women," a Paramount-Artcraft Special, is bringing to the offices of Famous Players-Lasky Corporation numerous letters of appreciation from picture-goers.

"On the evening of Tuesday, February 11th, I visited the Adelphi theatre at Eighty-ninth street and Broadway, and saw the motion picture, "Little Women," which I consider a wonderful success.

"Such clean plays cannot fail in doing good and I for one am glad that more of that stamp are constantly being introduced.

"The above-mentioned picture play drew a full house of refined people on the evening that I attended.

"Keep on! Give us more and more such plays, for the benefit of young and old.

(Signed) "MISS M. P. PASCAL."

"Unpardonable Sin" in Detroit

First Big Special to Open Off Broadway — Opens to $1.00 Top — $100,000 Worth of Territory Disposed of OPENING at the Broadway Strand, Detroit, last Sunday, Harry Garson nine-reel special, "The Unpardonable Sin," a screen version of Major Rupert Hughes' novel of the same name, directed by Marshall Neillan and starring Blanche Sweet, is reported to have played to the largest houses ever recorded by the management of any Detroit theatre, with either a picture or a stage production as the attraction. The receipts for Sunday are reported as $4,754.80, with thousands of Detroitites having to return to their homes without getting nearer to the box office than a half a block. In his report Wm. H. Rudolph, general manager for Harry Garson, states that four lines reached out from the box office at each performance on the opening day and extended for more than a block away, the people of two of the lines waiting to get to the box office and those of the other two, holding tickets and waiting to get in. Monday's receipts showed $5,081.20 and Tuesday's $3,187.60. The picture showed at advanced prices of $1.00.

Mr. Rudolph calls attention to the fact in announcing the opening of "The Unpardonable Sin" that it is the first picture in the history of exhibition which has opened in Detroit before showing in New York. And he states that its success establishes for all time the fact that a big production, with merit, does not need the approval of a New York audience before making its appearance in other parts. "Its success in Detroit far exceeded our expectations," he said, "and I am thoroughly convinced that a picture, big in theme, in acting direction and production, as 'The Unpardonable Sin' is can open away from Broadway with as much advantage accruing to its merit as though it had first elicited the approval of the Broadway audiences.

"In addition to making the biggest success of any opening ever staged in Detroit with a picture at $1.00 top prices, Mr. Garson disposed of more than $100,000 worth of territory on his production, and three of the biggest independent buyers took this amount—Clarke and Roland, Pittsburgh, taking western Pennsylvania and West Virginia; Frank Hatch, Ohio; Sol Lesser, California, Arizona and Nevada, and Allen Brothers, Canada. And Mr. Garson refused to dispose of territory for which another $100,000 was offered.

"Mr. Garson has decided to handle all the first runs himself, on percentage and 'The Unpardonable Sin' will be given a special run in every large city in the country. This week, it opens at the Majestic theatre, Los Angeles, to $1.50 top price and as soon as we can arrange for a theatre in New York, it will be opened here at $1.00 top.

"'The Unpardonable Sin' is big in every sense of the word. Director Neillan, Miss Sweet and her supporting cast—all have done work that Mr. Garson, myself and all who have seen, are proud of. Bearing in mind that during the first three days of its opening run in Detroit, this week, 'The Unpardonable Sin' played to an average of 11,000 people, one cannot gainsay the fact that the picture is as represented—big in every respect.

"It is a screen version of Rupert Hughes' most successful novel—the author's work that gave rise to more favorable comment than that of any other work of fiction published in the last ten years. Its theme offers innumerable advantages for strong dramatic presentation and under the direction of Marshall Neillan these advantages have been grasped, with the result that Harry Garson has a big production and one of which he may well be proud."

Earl Schenck Featured

Earl V. Schenck, featured as Lafayette in "The Spirit of Lafayette," is generally referred to as a leading man whose versatility and technique are above the average. They have brought him favorable comment on his work in an unusually wide range of characterization.

Mr. Schenck is now with Vitagraph, in the production "A Stitch in Time," which Ralph Ince is directing.

New Educationals

New releases of the International cartoon comedies, announced by the Educational Films Corporation of America, will include "A Smash Up in China," with the notorious Happy Hooligan in another of his brave exploits, and "Snappy Cheese," which is to be the second of the "Judge Rumhauser" releases on the new schedule. "The Ravings of a Rounder," which are to be released on the same reels with these cartoon subjects, will be "The Bolsheviki" and "Fashions."

Vice-President E. W. Hammons, of the Educational, is especially pleased with the manner in which the new cartoons are resuming their former bookings, which were necessarily discontinued on account of the influenza epidemic.

W. H. Reissues Get Good Bookings

The Strand Features Company, Detroit, distributing W. H. Productions Kay-Bee re-issues in Michigan, reports that 65 per cent. of the houses in Michigan are booking these re-issues. "All our exhibitors are well pleased with the business which these subjects are bringing them," the report concludes, "and the exhibitors are inquiring for other W. H. Productions' re-issues.

W. H. Productions reports that the same satisfaction is reported from other exchangemen handling its subjects. A complete line of advertising on each series of re-issues has been prepared by W. H. There are posters and 8 x 10 photos for each subject of the series of single-reel Keystone re-issued comedies; Liberty and Eagle brands and the the two series of Kay Bee Western dramas; the Columbia and the Union brand.

Irene Castle Joins Paramount

Famous Dancer and Screen Star Engaged By Famous Players-Lasky for Robert W. Chambers Story

IN the screen adaptation of Robert W. Chambers' story, "The Firing Line," the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation has secured Irene Castle, internationally known dancer and motion picture star.

Mrs. Castle has just returned from England, where for the past seven months she has been working in American and British hospitals. During her stay in England she appeared by command before the King and Queen on one occasion, and at another time gave a performance at the welcome entertainment accorded Gen. Joffre on his visit to London. A nervous breakdown compelled her to give up her work there after many months of most exacting labor.

"The Firing Line" first appeared in serial form in the Saturday Evening Post in the early part of 1907. It proved one of the most popular magazine stories at that time and a year later was published in book form by D. Appleton & Co.

The central character is Sheila, the adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cardross, New York millionaires, who also have three flesh-and-blood daughters. She does not know of her adoption until she overhears a chance remark.

Mrs. Castle has for several years been one of the most popular figures in the entertainment world. She started her stage career in vaudeville and subsequently married Vernon Castle, who lost his life a year ago while serving as a Captain in the British Flying Service.

As a dancing team the Castles established a reputation unparalelled by any other professional dancers in recent years. Later they continued their success in musical comedy, their last appearance being in "Watch Your Step." Mrs. Castle's first great success in motion pictures was made in the serial "Patria," and later with Pathe she was seen in "Sylvia of the Secret Service," "The Girl from Bohemia," "Stranded in Arcady," etc.

The locale of "The Firing Line" is New York and Palm Beach and the photoplay will be filmed in those places. The director has not yet been named, but it is understood that one of the best known producers in the country will handle the production.

Irene Castle, who has been signed by Famous Players for "The Firing Line"

C. E. Shurtleff Secures Jack London Stories

SCREEN rights for a period of five years to all the stories of the late Jack London, noted writer of red blooded adventure stories, has been acquired by C. E. Shurtleff, formerly General Sales Manager of the W. W. Hodkinson Film Corporation and at one period the Sales Manager of Select Pictures Corporation.

Mr. Shurtleff left New York City for the West Coast and has just returned from his thirty day trip after concluding the contract with Mrs. Charmian London, wife of the late author, of the exclusive screen rights to all of his works.

"The story is the play and the play's the thing," declared Mr. Shurtleff. "Now that I have the stories I just want to secure the best director it is possible to get. And the cast must be composed of real screen people who fit their respective roles in these stories of brawn and virile action.

"Another thing I am going to insist upon," continued Mr. Shurtleff, "and that is the 'locale.' If the story tells of the South Sea Islands, then the entire acting company shall be located actually upon these same South Sea Islands.

"Some attempts were made to screen a few of Jack London's stories a great many years ago when motion picture production was in its swaddling clothes, and I consider that all the big opportunities were lost by not being then able to properly portray the big scenes in a heavy calibre manner.

"Mrs. Charmian London and Mrs. Eliza Shepard, the sister of Mr. London, have given me permission to portray any of the ranch scenes necessary on their own famous 'Valley of the Moon' ranch in Southern California. They had two sad experiences in those early productions but are now confident that these stories will be put on in the big way they deserve and thus prove a monument in honor of the lasting memory of Jack London," concluded Mr. Shurtleff.

New York offices will be opened at once and production activities will soon be under way as Mr. Shurtleff states that the necessary financing for the big venture has already been taken care of.

"The Call of the Wilds" will be among the first to be produced.

Liked Select Feature

President Wilson, on his home coming trip aboard the George Washington, is said to have expressed a wish to see Constance Talmadge in "Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots" the second time, according to Select Pictures Corporation.

His wish was granted at once, and accordingly the Select organization feels highly elated.

Gordon Theatre Opens with Simplex Machine

The New Liberty theatre, Cambridge, Mass., which is the latest of the Gordon Circuit, opened its doors March 3.

The Liberty is looked upon as the finest of a large number of beautiful houses in the Gordon Circuit, no expense having been spared to procure the latest and best equipment throughout.

One of the features of this theatre is the projection room which is looked upon as a model in these parts, being equipped with Type "S" Simplex motor-driven Projectors equipped with arc controls. The installation of these two projectors was made by the Boston Motion Picture Supply Company under the direction of Mr. Cecil Wood.

May Produce Educationals

Raymond C. Heine, promoter of "The Children's Hour Shows," is in New York City with the idea of interesting some producers in the making of purely educational films for schools.

Mr. Heine stated that he operated an exchange some time ago in Kansas City which supplied the schools of four States and that in Topeka he had all the school film schedules entirely in charge. He declared that school teachers were too antagonistic generally to theatres and therefore would not as a rule co-operate with them because they were private enterprises.

To produce educational films solely for schools is Mr. Heine's idea, and he states that he has several educators in hand who are prepared to finance the plan.

Henry Otto Is Directing May Allison

May Allison's newest picture, "The Island of Intrigue," is directed by Henry Otto, whom Metro considers one of the leading directors of the motion picture industry.

Mr. Otto had the burlesque, comic opera and legitimate experience before starting to direct pictures and this was considered a valuable training. He directed Harold Lockwood in the Screen Classics, "The Great Romance," and also directed among others, "Big Tremaine" and "Mister Forty-four."

Henry Otto, Metro director

At the left is a moment in the Universal production, "The Amazing Wife." In the centre is Mary MacLaren, the star of the production. At the right is another scene in the picture

Magazine Staff Sees the Kenyon Picture

"Twilight," starring Doris Kenyon and produced by De Luxe Pictures, Inc., was given a successful private showing to the executive heads of the various departments of Metropolitan Magazine, in which the story of "Twilight," written by Vingie E. Roe, originally appeared under the title of "The Alchemy of Love."

Carl Hovey, managing editor of Metropolitan Magazine, said to Theodore C. Deitrich, president of De Luxe Pictures, Inc.:

"Many stories that have appeared in Metropolitan Magazine have been made into photoplays. Usually the story is so changed and distorted that little remains of the original. With 'Twilight,' however, you have not only retained all of the good qualities of Miss Roe's original story, but every addition that has been made has enhanced the dramatic value of the picture. I have never seen such remarkably beautiful lighting and scenic effects, while the acting of Doris Kenyon is a revelation. 'Twilight' is truly a wonderful picture."

Naomi Childers Leads for Hale Hamilton

Nami Childers is described as a young actress whose beauty is surpassed only by her ability and natural talent. She is the leading woman for Hale Hamilton in his Metro picture, "After His Own Heart."

The story is from the novelette by Ben Ames Williams in the All-Story Weekly, adapted by A. S. Le Vino, and under the direction of Harry L. Franklin, who directed the star in "Five Thousand an Hour," "Johnny on the Spot" and "That's Good."

Two Added to Universal

Two more were added to the publicity staffs of Universal Exchanges last week. Miss Henrietta Luscher has been assigned to the Milwaukee Universal Exchange, and Frederick C. Hinds, recently mustered out of the navy and formerly press agent of the Orpheum at Minneapolis, has succeeded George Guise as publicity for the Minneapolis Universal under the management of James V. Bryson.

Adds Another Feature to List

Universal Shipping Prints of Old Bluebirds to Exchanges—Butterfly Brand and Serials in List

WITH the release of Universal's Bluebird feature, "A Taste of Life," starring Edith Roberts, the company began a special campaign for bookings and rebookings on Bluebird photoplays. New prints of former Bluebrid features are now being shipped to Bluebird exchanges from Universal's Fort Lee laboratories and new paper is being prepared for the poster campaign.

In letters and pamphlets the Universal exchanges are sending out to thousands of exhibitors, the box office value of Bluebird releases for 1918 and early 1919. The attention of exhibitors is called to the list of stars presented in these releases, among them Dorothy Phillips, Carmel Myers, May Murray, Monroe Salisbury, Edith Roberts, Ruth Clifford, Louise Lovely, Violet Mersereau, Frank Keenan and Lois Weber, and it is also pointed out that the exhibitors who have not already shown these pictures have had plenty of opportunity to judge them by what other exhibitors have recorded by their showing.

Universal calls attention to the quality of scores of Bluebird features and speaks of the success of some of the releases of last fall, among which are "That Devil Bateese" and "Hugon the Mighty," two productions starring Monroe Salisbury; "The Brazen Beauty," featuring Priscilla Dean, "The Love Swindle" and "The Deciding Kiss," with Edith Roberts; and "The Wine Girl," "A Society Sensation," "All Night" and "A Broadway Scandal" featuring Carmel Myers. Attention is also called to the release of last spring titled "Broadway Love," featuring Dorothy Phillips, supported by William Stowell, Juanita Hansen and Lou Chaney; "The Long Chance" with Frank Keenan and "Scandal Mongers" featuring Lois Weber.

New prints of several Bluebird Special productions, among them "Mother o' Mine" which features Rupert Julian and Ruby LaFayette, "The Grand Passion" featuring Dorothy Phillips and William Stowell and "Hell Morgan's Girl," featuring Dorothy Phillips.

In addition to boosting former Bluebird releases Universal exchangemen have for some time been conducting a special campaign on Butterfly releases. Among the Butterflies, which are about one year old, are Harry Carey in "The Secret Man," "The Man from Montana," "Wild Women," "Bucking Broadway," Zoe Rae in "The Magic Eye," "Danger Within" and "My Little Boy," Ella Hall in "Beauty in Chains," "A Mother's Secret" and Louise Lovely in "The Wolf and His Mate," "The Lair of the Wolf," "The Girl Who Wouldn't Quit" and William Stowell in "Fighting Mad."

Bobbie Vernon returns from the Navy to Christie Comedies in "Bobbie Comes Marching Home," with Dorothy De Vore

Col. Levy Buys "Mickey" for Kentucky

The Big Feature Rights Corporation of Louiseville, Ky., holds the First National franchise for that territory and also buys other big features.

It is announced that the president of that company, Col. Fred Levy, has purchased the Kentucky rights for the Mabel Normand feature, "Mickey"

This first panel pictured above looks startling enough for anybody. Leah Baird, in the center panel, looks on calmly enough, however. There are rumors of more startling scenes to come in the coming Leah Baird release, "As a Man Thinks," from Augustus Thomas' successful Broadway play. The picture to the right is another moment in this intensely dramatic story of New York life

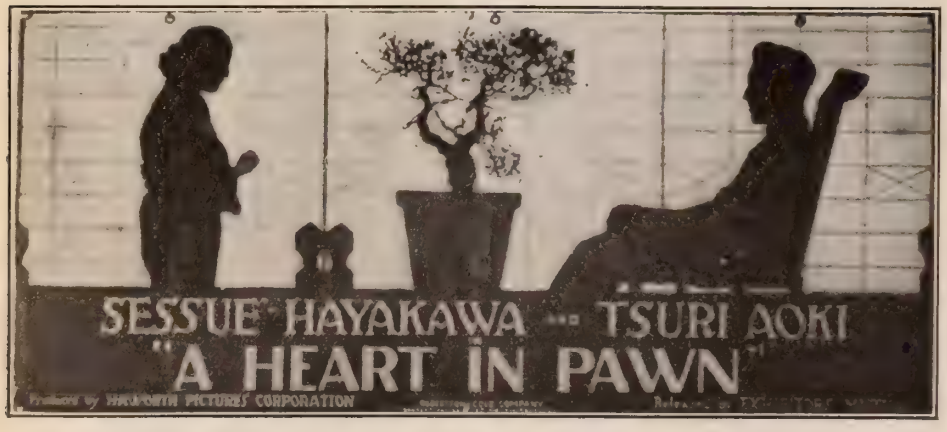
Far West Also Books "Lion and Mouse" Big

ACCORDING to the booking charts of Vitagraph, "The Lion and The Mouse" is sweeping the West Coast. The Alice Joyce production is registering heavily in every other territory also.

Many examples of increased bookings are noted by an official at Vitagraph headquarters, who said:

"Since the New York premiere at the Rialto, the few who had waited for confirmation of their judgment have hastened to get on these charts. Thus it is that 'The Lion and the Mouse' has been booked for week runs in such metropolitan centers of that section as San Francisco, Portland, Seattle and Los Angeles, with dates being pre-empted in behalf of the great Klein picturization in all cities of importance tributary to these or forming the big railroad or auto stops between them.

"Jensen & Von Herberg, controlling extensive booking interests, arranged the Seattle and Portland openings of 'The Lion and the Mouse.' They assigned the picture to the Liberty in Seattle and to the Colonial in Portland. Both of these are pre-eminent photoplay houses in those cities.



"The monster Tivoli secures 'The Lion and the Mouse' for the original San Francisco run. In Los Angeles the Victory theatre houses the play for a week as the trail-blazer for subsidiary and subsequent showings there.

"In the meantime the picture is sweeping along in the East, Vitagraph reports. Bookings in that part of the country reaching the home offices of Vitagraph just prior to press time include the Palace at Buffalo, the Alhambra at Pittsburg, the Metropolitan at Washington, the Strand in Rochester, the Hippodrome at York, Pa., and coming closer to home the big houses of Camden and Newark. Greater New York bookings were augmented by the dating up of the Regent, the Heights and the Amphion, Brooklyn."

Allison's Late Picture Considered Best

After reviewing May Allison's latest picture, "Peggy Does Her Darndest," officials of Metro Pictures Corporation pronounce it the best that the star has done, not excepting her "In For Thirty Days," which has proved, according to Metro reports, her biggest success yet released. The trade press and newspaper critics pronounced "Peggy Does Her Darndest," Miss Allison's most original comedy-drama.

The story is by Royal Brown and was adapted to the screen and produced under the direction of George D. Baker. Miss Allison has the role of Peggy, an amateur detective whose exploints in recovering a diamond stolen from her father, form the basis of the play. Robert Ellis is her leading man and Frank Currier, Rosemary Theby, Dick Rosson, Augustus Phillips, Sylvia Ashton and Wilton Taylor appear in support.

One of the unique styles of posters supplied to help in the exploitation of "A Heart in Pawn"

Current Lytell Feature "Blind Man's Eyes"

Bert Lytell's feature released through all Metro exchanges March 10, is entitled "Blind Man's Eyes" and deals with the struggles of a young man accused of murder on circumstantial evidence.

"Blind Man's Eyes" was originally written as a novel by William McHarg and Edwin Balmer, and has enjoyed a great popularity. It was adapted to the screen by June Mathis of the Metro scenario staff, and directed under the personal supervision of Maxwell Karger, by John Ince.

"Stitch in Time" Under Way

"A Stitch in Time," former dramatic success, which is to be Gladys Leslie's next starring production for Vitagraph, with Eugene Strong as leading man, is now well under way, it was announced this week. Ralph Ince is directiong the production.

"Miss Dulcie from Dixie" is the name of Miss Leslie's current feature. It is from the book of the same name by Lulah Ragsdale, and was directed by Joseph Gleason. It is set for release March 24.

Poster Innovation by Exhibitors Mutual

Exhibitors Mutual declare that a daring departure in posters has been made on their twenty-four sheet issued for "A Heart in Pawn," the latest Sessue Hayakawa production.

This unique poster shows a silhouette of Hayakawa and Tsuru Aoki in black against a background of warm, luminous yellow which throws the figures into striking relief, accentuating the Japanese atmosphere.

"While this is a radical departure from prescribed forms," said H. F. Turrill, director of posters for Exhibitors-Mutual, "it is one which by its extreme color contrast and sharp delineation of line and figure, conveys the maximum amount of carrying power visually, which is the first essential in a twenty-four sheet poster. The individuality and striking color makes it stand out in a group of posters and holds the attention by the beauty of its massed color effects."

Famous Artist Praises Star of Pathe Release

Leonce Perret's patriotic feature, "The Stars of Glory," has been re-titled and will be released by Pathe under the title "The Unknown Love." Dolores Cassinelli is the featured player, supported by a cast of well known screen artists.

Pathe is in receipt of a letter from W. DeLeftwich Dodge, a prominent American artist now traveling abroad under the patronage of the Government, which gives the artist's opinion of impressions left by photographs of the star of "The Unknown Love," Miss Cassinelli. The letter follows in part:

"Miss Cassinelli personifies, in semblance, the spirit of beauty and the spiritual inspiration and aspiration which are shown in all of the great masterpieces of Christian art. Her's is the face that is going through the great galleries of Europe, one sees in the Madonna, the Magdalen, the Saint Cecelia and other gloriously impressive characters of sacred history and legend. Being a classic, she is a type that mus inhere for all times in real art, whatever may be its mutations."

"Prairie Gold" Stars Mary MacLaren

Mary MacLaren's next Universal special feature will be an adaptation of Sinclair Lewis' "Prairie Gold," to be produced under the direction of Tod Browning, who directed Priscilla Dean in her three most recent productions.

Following the completion of her last picture, "The Amazing Wife," under the direction of Ida May Park, Miss MacLaren went to the California mountains for a rest, after which she will commence work on "Prairie Gold." "The Amazing Wife" opened at the Broadway Theatre this week. The story deals with an orphan girl's efforts to gain happiness.

Arbuckle Finishes "Love" in Record Time

"Fatty" Arbuckle completed his Paramount comedy "Love" in record time, it is reported, just before leaving Los Angeles for his New York visit. The comedy was released March 2.

He will start work on a new comedy immediately upon his return from the East. The new one will deal with high finance, in which "Fatty" will carelessly juggle big figures as the average juggler handles glass balls.

First of De Haven Comedies Announced

"What Could Be Sweeter" is announced as the first of the series of DeHaven comedies produced by the National Film Corporation for Robertson-Cole Company, to be released on the Exhibitors' Mutual program. Carter De Haven and wife, Flora Parker, favorably known in the theatre, are starred. Harry Rattenbury and William J. Gordon are prominent members of the cast. Carter De Haven has the role of a small-town mechanic who claims that he can fix anything.

Select Cites Advance Bookings

"The Probation Wife," a March Release, Starring Norma Talmadge, Said to Be Booking Heavily

Constance Talmadge, in "Saturday to Monday," Select Picture

SELECT attributes the heavy advance bookings on "The Probation Wife" to the hearty reception accorded Norma Talmadge's recent Select attractions, "The Forbidden City" and "The Heart of Wetona."

They state that Select branch managers are wiring hurry orders for prints and that intensified bookings are reported everywhere.

During the week of March 9th to 15th "The Probation Wife" was shown at the New York Rivoli theatre, while Branch Manager Fred C. Aiken of Select's Chicago exchange has wired for prints to cover a two-week run at the Chicago Bijou Dream.

The run of "The Probation Wife" at Sig Faller's Bijou Dream commenced on March 9th and continues until March 22d. During this period "The Probation Wife" has also been booked at other Chicago houses.

Select's Cleveland branch has ordered two rush prints to cover play dates at the Stillman and Alhambra theatres in that city. In each instance "The Probation Wife" will have a run of one week.

Louisville, Ky., another first run city, will have Miss Talmadge's March attraction for four days at the Alamo, while a week run is scheduled at the Jefferson theatre in Dallas, Tex.

In Washington, H. C. Crandall's Knickerbocker and Metropolitan theatres will divide a week's run on "The Probation Wife," playing at the Metropolitan four days and the Knickerbocker three days. The play dates for Washington started on March 9th.

Select's Detroit office ordered an advance print for an early week-run at the Madison theatre, while an advance date of a week-run has also been booked at the Walnut Street theatre in Cincinnati. The runs in Detroit and Cincinnati begin on March 16th, with another March 16th booking for a week-run at the Alhambra theatre in Indianapolis.

In addiiton to these bookings the exchanges from which these accounts are handled have ordered prints for advance runs in other local theatres.

Evidently based on the successes of Miss Talmadge's recent attractions, the advance orders for prints on "The Probation Wife" are said to have broken all records.

National Board Honors Nazimova Production

"OUT of the Fog," the latest Nazimova production, was selected by the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures as the representative American picture to be shown at the demonstration of European and American Artistry in Photoplay Production on Tuesday, March 4th, at 8.30 o'clock at Wurlitzer Fine Arts Hall, 118 West 41st street, at which educators, editors, artists and others of prominence and distinction were present.

This is especially gratifying to the Nazimova Productions because of the great compliment paid in the selection of the powerful Nazimova play, and shows that the great work this celebrated artist is accomplishing has attracted the attention of men of letters and art both in America and abroad.

"Out of the Fog" is the screen adaptation of Nazimova's stage success, "'Ception Shoals," by H. Austin Adams, and has caused unusual and widespread admiration throughout the country. Critics and public have said that the story is more particularly fitted for the screen than the stage and it has provided the talented Russian actress with a type of character that she can draw with perfect conviction and sincerity.

In selecting this Nazimova production as worthy of showing the best in American photoplay art, the board also shows that the high ideals and character of the production which this star at all times aims to attain is meeting with just and widespread recognition, according to Metro officials.

"Out of the Fog," which was adapted by June Mathis and Albert Cepellani and directed by Mr. Capellani, is equally popular with the general public as shown by the reports of exhibitors throughout the country.

As successful as "Revelation," "Toys of Fate" and "Eye for Eye" have been, Richard A. Rowland and Maxwell Karger, who present the Nazimova Productions, believe this latest superfeature of the star will exceed in popularity those productions.

Hamilton Starts One

Hale Hamilton started work this week in his fourth production as a Metro star. The name of the picture is "After His Own Heart," a modern screen comedy romance adapted by A. S. Le Vino from a four-part novelette by Ben Ames Williams. Harry L. Franklin is Hamilton's director.

Pathe Busy Launching New Serial

Exploitation Aids Being Prepared for Next Serial, "The Tiger's Trail," Starring Ruth Roland

THE launching of a new serial, with the many details necessary for intense exploitation, is now occupying the home offices of Pathe Exchanges, Inc., and just now the best brains of the organization are focused upon the forthcoming serial release, "The Tiger's Trail," starring Ruth Roland.

Many conferences are being held in the office of Paul Brunet, vice-president and general manager, and many schemes of exploitation are being discussed. As in the past, Pathe will make every effort to create a ready made audience for the exhibitor who books its serials. The various methods of exploitation are being gone over and many new ideas are being brought forward.

An extensive canvass of exhibitors is being made to ascertain just what methods of co-operation upon the part of the distributor are conducive to the best results.

The relative values of poster campaigns, newspaper spreads and national magazine campaigns have all been weighed, and while the plans are still in the formulative state, the exhibitor may rest assured that "The Tiger's Trail" will be exploited in the same comprehensive manner as have been the many previous serial releases by Pathe.

No stone will be left unturned to give the fullest assistance to the exhibitor who books "The Tiger's Trail," and Mr. Brunet and his associates are hopeful that this serial may even eclipse the many records that are being made just now by "The Lightning Raider."

From Glendale, California, where "The Tiger's Trail" is being produced, comes the news that the serial will be ready some time ahead of the release date set for April 20.

Pearl White and Henry G. Sell, in the jungles of Brazil, in the Pathe serial, "The Lightning Raider." This is episode No. 8

Reports from the studio indicate that Miss Roland in the role of Belle Boyd has one even better suited to her talents than that of "Hands Up!" her greatest previous success.

The earlier episodes have been reviewed at the home office, and have elicited the highest praise from the officials who have seen them, and they predict that "The Tiger's Trail" will unquestionably be another great big winner in the long list of "best bets" released by the House of Serials.

Lionel Atwill Supports Elsie Ferguson

What is described as a cast of more than usual merit is provided for Elsie Ferguson's new Artcraft picture, "The Marriage Price," which was released March 9.

The dramatis personæ includes, among others, the names of Wyndham Standing, who has appeared as leading support of Mme. Petrova and Pauline Frederick in Paramount pictures; Clairette Anthony, the beautiful young Belgian artist, who is a direct descendant of Rubens; Robert Schnable, Maud Hosford and Marie Temper.

Of special interest right now, it is declared, is the appearance, in one of the most prominent roles, of Lionel Atwill, who is supporting Frances Starr on the legitimate stage in David Belasco's production, "Tiger! Tiger!" at the Belasco Theatre, and is sharing the highest honors with the star.

Mr. Atwill's career on the stage is described as meteoric, he having risen in a few years from comparative obscurity to a position among the foremost English actors. He began his career in 1905 as a footman in the London production of "The Walls of Jericho," and ten years later he appeared in a notable revival of the same play, enacting the leading male role of Jack Frobisher.

In London Mr. Atwill has frequently been seen in Ibsen plays with conspicuous personal success. In 1916 he came to this country, appearing at the Thirty-ninth Street and Bandbox theatres in New York in "The Lodger," a play by Horace Annesley Vachell. He was engaged by Arthur Hopkins the following season for the latter's revival of Ibsen repertoire, in which he appeared as leading man with Mme. Nazimova in "The Wild Duck," "Hedda Gabler" and "A Doll's House." His engagement by Mr. Belasco followed.

Prominent Artist Added to Fox Staff

Fox Film Corporation announces that future press books prepared on Fox features will contain the work of one of New York's best known artists, whose name is not announced. During the past few months Fox press books have contained the work of Charles Dana Gibson, Harrington Mann and George Grant, all well known artists. Fox's Exhibitors Service Bureau will make this department one of the features of its work.

Secrecy Regardig Florence Reed's Picture

Florence Reed's latest picture, now under production by the Tribune Productions, Inc., for the United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., program, is said to offer a theme that will prove a surprise to the picture public when it is shown. United is withholding the announcement of the subject matter and the title until the completion of the picutre. John M. Stahl, who has directed Miss Reed, in many of her successes on the screen and who will be remembered for his productions of the Lyncoln Cycle series, is directing her latest picture. Hugh Thompson, David Powell and Gareth Hughes, three actors of prominence are in the supporting cast which includes May MacAvoy, Mildred Cheshire, Florida Kingsley, Harold Entwistle, Tom McGuire, Phil Lord, Edward Miles and Mrs. Jennings. The production will be completed in about ten days.

Boston Gets Simplex Booster

Cecil Wood, the late chief projection engineer for D. W. Griffith and a familiar figure in the world of projection, has completed arrangements with the Boston Motion Picture Supply Company of Boston, who are the Southern New England distributors for the Simplex Projector, whereby he will act as special representative for that concern.

Mr. Wood, who is looked upon as an expert in the field of projection and projection room installation, has already succeeded in making several high-class Simplex installations in and around Boston during the first week of his New England debut.

Cash Joins Universal Publicity Staff

M. Lowell Cash, for some time photoplay editor of the Indianapolis News, is the latest addition to the publicity forces of the Universal Film Exchanges, Inc., according to an announcement by Tarkington Baker, director of publicity.

Mr. Cash arrived in New York from Indianapolis, February 24, and took up his work as publicity manager of the Big U Exchange, 1600 Broadway, immediately.

Tom Terris, director of "The Lion and the Mouse," Vitagraph film, starring Alice Joyce

Earle Williams Liked in the South

Earle Williams' latest picture on the Vitagraph program, "The Highest Trump" has met with greater success in the South than any of his previous releases, according to reports received from Vitagraph's Southern branches. To verify this statement, Vitagraph's branch exchange in Virginia forwarded the following excerpt from a review of this picture, which appeared in a Wheeling, West Virginia daily:

"Here is a picture that probably will go down in film history as one of Earle Williams' best. It is good from start to finish and adaptable to any class of patronage. It is so good, in fact, that it is difficult to know just how to distribute the praise. James Young directed it, and under his skillful guidance the work of the star has registered 100 per cent. Grace Darmond is a wonderful second."

Barnett Buys "Peggy" for Ohio and Kentucky

The seven reel feature, "Peggy," in which Billie Burke registered so heavily throughout the country, has been acquired from Triangle Film Corporation for Ohio and Kentucky by Bert Barnett, of the Star Feature Film Service of Cleveland and Cincinnati.

It was only two months ago that Mr. Barnett secured the rights for the same territory for B. A. Rolfe's serial, "The Master Mystery," starring Houdini, the handcuff king.

It is asserted that Bert Barnett is using the same advanced methods in marketing and distributing as he evidenced so many years while owner of the Paramount franchise for the Minneapolis territory.

Capital Film Begins Releasing Comedies

Ike Schlank, president of Capital Film Company, announces that the first of the series of two reel comedies to be released by Capital will be given to the exhibitors this week. The first three of the first series will be western comedies featuring Victor Potel, known as Slippery Slim. Harry Todd, Margaret Joslin and Augustus Carney will be seen in support. The comedies are titled: "Eggs Is Eggs," "The Hose-Cart Brigade" and "Gasoline Bronchos."

To handle the increased business, Capital Film has opened three new exchanges, one each in Detroit, Kansas City and Milwaukee. N. A. Weinbaum is in charge of the Milwaukee office; Charles W. Perry of the Detroit office, and J. W. Morgan of the Kansas City branch.

Films "Josselyn's Wife"

After a brief rest Bessie Barriscale is back to the Brunton Studios and has started "Josselyn's Wife," from the Katherine Norris novel. Howard Hickman, the director obtained atmosphere for the locale of this story while on a recent visit east.

"Hearts Asleep," written by M. B. Havey, is the Barriscale production that follows "A Trick of Fate," which Exhibitors Muntual reports is a hugh success.

"Fatty" Has Something to Say

Roscoe ("Fatty") Arbuckle, After Signing with Mr. Zukor for Three Years and a Few Millions, Talks on His Work

ROSCOE (Fatty) Arbuckle, he with the rotund smile, who has signed, recently, his full name to a contract involving a few millions and three years of his time, said contract bearing the name of Adolph Zukor, party of the second part, acting for and in the interest of Paramount, gathered around him members of the press, one day last week, and told them all about his past, present and future in the comedy game. Roscoe was in pretty much of a hurry for he didn't want to miss the gala festival of the Mardi Gras, held this month at New Orleans. It is reported that this is to be the last Mardi Gras festival which formed a strong argument for Roscoe's hurried departure from New York, whither he had come after signing his contract at Kansas City last week.

Roscoe's chief optimistic note sounded most clearly when he called attention to the success his comedies were having throughout the country and his chief pessimistic note sounded most flat when he deplored the lack of suitable comedy scripts for his line of comedy. "I receive hundreds of scenarios and stories and suggestions and what-not, every week," he said, "and I consider myself fortunate if in going over them I can find one out of the bunch that contains the faintest hope. It is said that 'there is nothing new under the sun.' I heartily agree with the person who uttered those lines—there isn't—or do I expect anything absolutely new or original.

"If the comedy writers of today would only realize this and instead of working out something weird and original (as they think) they would take the 'old and tried,' deal with from a new angle and combine the human touch with this new angle—then I and every other comedian would get something worth considering and worth time and money in transferring to the screen.

"Time is no object or expense if I have the proper idea to start with. It hasn't got to be fantastical, or weird or superhuman as most people think who submit scripts for my approval. Just the plain, everyday actions of human beings told in a comedy way and presented in the comedian's own way. That's what the public wants—something all can understand and something all have seen or can associate incidents in their own lives with.

"Good comedy is in great demand by frequenters of the motion picture theatre. They want to laugh, but first they must be furnished with situations and comedy work that have a laugh in them. That is my purpose in this business. I try and ascertain what the people want and to the best of my ability I try and give it to them in the best way possible, barring all consideration of time and expense so long as to my own satisfaction and those associated with me, I am turning out product that gives this satisfaction.

"According to reports from my comedies received by Paramount and myself, I have succeeded. But I want to go further—I want to give them something they have never had before and something in the comedy line that will bring them back the second, the third and the fourth times, my work is on the screen.

"On my return to the Coast, these matters are to be, as they always have been, paramount in my work—trying for the best that is in me, my staff of assistants and everything connected with the productions of Arbuckle comedies. I am proud of my record for the past years, and I am proud of the manner in which Paramount has handled them and proud of my opportunity to afford comedy amusement for the millions whom I consider my friends and boosters."

Lee A. Ochs on Tour of Country for United

LEE A. OCHS vice- president, Picture Theatres, Inc., left New York this week on a tour of the country in the interests of United exhibitor-members. He will go direct to Los Angeles to consult with J. A. Berst, president of United, who has been actively engaged in that organization's business on the Coast for several weeks. Mr. Ochs' trip is reported to be of special significance and to be connected with pending contracts. From Los Angeles Mr. Ochs will make a tour of the country in the interests of United exhibitor-members. He will be absent from New York for several months, it is announced.

Before leaving Mr. Ochs concluded final arrangements for a campaign among exhihitors by special representatives, and an extensive advertising campaign exploiting the United co-operative plan, and United star attractions throughout the country. William Alexander, E. J. O'Dinnell, Walter R. Scates and Jack Levy who are in charge of the divisional arrangements for the West, Middle West, New England and Eastern territories respectively have been called into consultation at the New York offices and the field forces under their supervision have been augmented. Bill board, trade journal and local advertising figures prominently in the plans for the most intensive exploitation.

Mr. Ochs said in this connection: "With our first three productions launched with success and with other offerings immediately to follow, which we are confident will exceed the first in merit and drawing power, there has been a highly gratifying access to the ranks of United exhibitor-members. Within the last three weeks alone three hundred additional theatres have enrolled under the United banner, bringing the list of houses that we serve to more than 1900, and representing most of the large exhibitors throughout the country. Added to the quality of United's initial releases is added the importance of the union with World Film for the distribution of United features and the agreement with the Peerless Studios at Fort Lee whereby big productions are to be made for United.

Pathe's Novograph Pictures Please the Fans

The Pathe Review containing the Novagraph analysis of motion pictures of baseball plays is meeting with a success among the "fans" all over the country, according to reports from Pathe. The athletic organizations of seven inland colleges have asked for prints to aid in the training of their players. Malcolm McLean, writer on the Chicago Post, shows how keen is the appreciation of the Review in a communication from Maurice Mason, one of his loyal followers.

"I wish you would take a slant at a baseball curiosity now being shown in motion pictures," said Mr. Mason. "It comprises a series of baseball plays, carried out by regular players—first, at regular high speed; and then the same play photographed by an 'ultra-speed' camera, which makes each play eight times slower than the eye took it in. The result is a picture analysis of a pitched ball, a tag-out at second base, a hit by the batter—all so slow as to be positively weird. The players move as if in a trance, the ball travels leisurely from the player's hand or bat, the 'break' on the ball pitched is very clear and the play that looked so close at second is seen to be a plain tag-out by the baseman, the umpire being proved correct in his decision. I saw it yesterday at the Orpheum theatre, on State street, opposite the Palmer House. It was contained in a special 'Pathe Review.' It was the most unique, novel fascinating thing a baseball fan ever witnessed. You ought to see it!"

Pathe announces that the Review will soon show a series of sports pictures, taken recently at Saranac Lake, where C. P. Watson, president of the Novagraph Co., with his own camera man and a Pathe expert "shooter," put through a series of striking evolutions on the ice. Edmund Horton, world's champion hurdle skater, Claudius Lamy, world's champion barrel-jumping skater, and Robert G. McLean, world's champion fancy and speed skater, will be seen in action.

Famous Players Buys Two Stage Plays

The Famous Players-Lasky Corporation has purchased the screen rights to J. M. Barrie's play, "The Admirable Crichton," and Walter Browne's "Everywoman," two of the most popular stage productions of recent years. Arrangements for the screening of the two subjects were completed by Jesse L. Lasky, First Vice-President in Charge of Productions, and the work of filming will be started in the near future.

Both productions will be staged at the California studios of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation and "The Admirable Crichton" will be personally directed by Cecil B. DeMille, Director General of the Lasky studios.

"The Admirable Crichton" was written for the stage and was first produced in 1902 at the Duke of York's Theatre in London. The following year it was presented in New York at the Lyceum Theatre with William Gillette in the stellar role.

"Everywoman," a modern morality play in five canticles, was produced at the Herald Square Theatre, New York, in February, 1911, shortly after the death of its author, Walter Browne. It was later moved to the Lyric Theatre.

Lehrman Plans to Produce on Coast

Plans for the making of Henry Lehrman Comedies in Los Angeles are going forward, and it was stated this week that definite arrangements for studio space would be made known within a few days. Mr. Lehrman, it is understood, is associated with very well known people of the film industry, and negotiations for release of two or more pictures monthly have been made. It is said plans will provide for twenty-six comedy subjects to be made and released annually.

Lehrman has been identified with the making of screen comedies since the early days of the industry.

Kremer Closes Territory on Hamilton Comedies

Victor Kremer, Victor Kremer Film Features, New York, returned, this week from the Coast where he transacted business of importance in the interest of the Company. Mr. Kremer stopped off in Chicago and Washington, D. C., and reports that he closed with the Unity Photoplays Company, Chicago, disposing of the Illinois rights to four Shorty Hamilton comedies and with the Exhibitors Film Exchange, of Washington, for Maryland, District of Columbia, Delaware and Virginia. On arriving in New York he closed with the Elk Photoplay Company for Greater New York on the same subjects.

New Screen Company

A company organized for the manufacture of motion picture screens has been incorporated in Hartford, Conn., with a capitalization of $150,000 and named The Eureka Screen Company, Inc. The incorporators and officers are William H. Currie, president; Dr. Henry McManus, vice-president; C. P. Rockwell, treasurer, and Dr. G. O. McLean, secretary. The parent office and factory will be located in Hartford and operated under the direction of the patentee and production manager, Wilbur Davis. The New York office is located at 17 West Forty-second street and in charge of the president, William H. Currie.

DeMille's Latest Production Progressing

Cecil DeMille reports from the Famous Players-Laskey studio on the Coast that work on his screen version of Edgar Selwyn's story, "For Better, For Worse," is progressing rapidly. For several days, last week, work was delayed on account of the illness of the stars, Elliott Dexter and Gloria Swanson. Raymond Hatton, Tom Forman, Wanda Hawley and Eylvia Ashton are prominently cast.

Y. W. C. A. Enters Film Producing Field

Miss Sutherland Griffith of California is in charge of the newly created motion picture section of the national Young Women's Christian Association. As she is said to have had a long experience as a motion picture actress herself, Miss Griffith's knowledge is thoroughly practical, and it is said she possesses, in addition, a constructive imagination to plan big things.

Besides planning and supervising the taking of Association films for this country, Miss Griffith hopes to send exhibits of films showing modern American life, work of women and Association work, similar to that requested by the Y. W. C. A. in France for women working in munition plants to Russia, South America and the Far East.

In this way the Motion Picture Section expects to be of service along educational as well as recreational and publicity lines.

Rothacker's Work Is Praised by Hatch

J. Frank Hatch, of the Hatch Film Company, Newark, after reviewing a print of "Tempest and Sunshine" just received from the laboratories of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, of Chicago, declared that when it comes to real printing, the Rothacker concern is there.

It is reported that a number of eastern laboratories to whom the negative was submitted, declared that they would be unable to make satisfactory prints from the negative furnished.

Consequently the Rothacker Company officials feel highly elated at the eulogy received from Mr. Hatch. He stated that the best evidence that he was more than pleased with the work is that he was forwarding to Rothacker two other negatives of subjects and desired positive prints made from them also.

Taylor Holmes Completes His First Triangle

"It's a Bear" is the title of Taylor Holmes' first special comedy production for Triangle, and it will be released March 16.

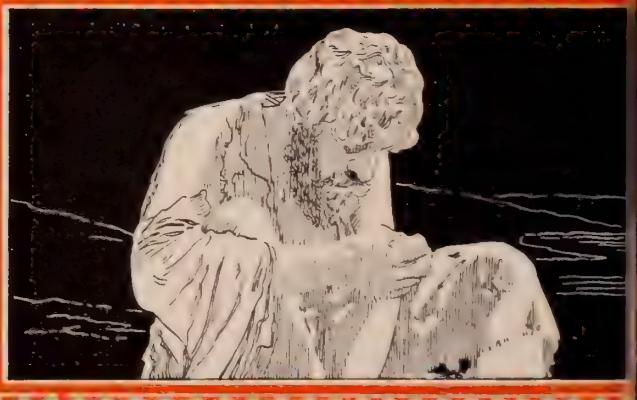
The story was written by Nina Wilcox Putnam and Norma Jacobsen and is said to furnish Mr. Holmes with exceptional opportunities to display humorous talent.

It was produced in the Culver City studios under the direction of Lawrence Windom, and has the western locale. Supporting Mr. Holmes are Edna Phillips Holmes, Vivian Reed and Howard Davies.

Big Circuits Are Booking "From Headquarters"

Anita Stewart's "From Headquarters" has already been contracted for by the Fox, Poli and Moss circuits, according to Vitagraph. Foremost houses in all parts have already wired options, and when "From Headquarters" reaches the market on March 10, few gaps will be left, if any, in the "first showings" list, say officials of this organization.

Monroe Salisbury

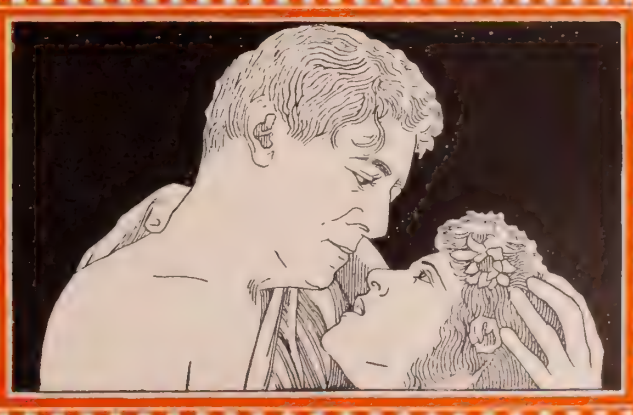


You are dead to Home, Country and Friends

Monroe Salisbury

HERE is a really big picture—big in the action that sweeps its hero out of his native land and lands him, human wreckage, on a palm-fringed le of the southern seas—bigger ill in the intensity of the emotions at will surge up in every breast.

ONROE Salisbury never had any picture with half the opportunity fered him in this great throbbing ama made from George Hull's fa- ous Scribner's story, "Breathes ere a Man."—In the really tremen- us end-scene this virile actor rises the greatest heights of dramatic lent.



OOK "The LIGHT of VICTORY" because it's a Universal Special traction. You'll book this Star's llowing release because it's a lisbury Picture!

"The Light of Victory"

A Universal Special Attraction

UNIVERSAL MADE

the two new words in the picture business. The two new words that mean a new grade in productions. The two words that you are going to see very, very often from now on, either in your own theatre or your foremost competitor's.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS

are Universal Made—a wonderful combining of realistic drama and artistic staging that will not be bettered until we, ourselves, better it. Show them consistently and you'll be able to say, like many another shrewd exhibitor: "I'm universal made!"

UNIVERSAL FILM MFG. COMPANY
1600 Broadway, N. Y.
CARL LAEMMLE, President

Mary MacLaren
"VANITY POOL"
"CREAKING STAIRS"

Priscilla Dean
"KISS OR KILL"
"THE WILDCAT OF PARIS"
"THE WICKED DARLING"

Harry Carey
"THREE MOUNTED MEN"
"HELL BENT"
"ROPED"

Special Service Section on

"The Light of Victory"

WAR is a background only for "The Light of Victory," and if you are going to play this picture, we would be sure to make it clear that this is not the usual war picture, for the mere use of the name of the star and the title might leave that impression. Tenseness, the wonderful love of a girl and the underlying strain of patriotism are the things that should be brought out in handling this picture.

Here is another case where you do not want to take a flash impression, but to study carefully what you have and to make the best appeal to your particular community. Because slavery to liquor is the underlying motive the picture may be played in connection with the prohibition trend, but not as a prohibition picture, because it is not propaganda. These distinctions may be considered too nice, but they may count in the results at your box-office.

Of course, you know that the star should be played strong here. We would advise the use of the name of Monroe Salisbury in much larger type than anything, and then we would be sure to call attention to the fact that this has been made from the story by George Hull which appeared in Scribner's Magazine. Now let's get down to some of the strong points of the story:

LIEUT. GEORGE BLENTON had graduated from Annapolis with the same class as Lieut. Commander Crips and Jane Raveslee, to whom he is engaged, is unable to understand why the two have not attained equal rank, until it dawns upon her that his slavery to drink is the reason. At a lawn party given at her home just before the war starts this secret is revealed to her.

War comes and we find Blenton next on the U. S. S. Victory, and Captain Ravenslee entrusting him with the secret code book of the navy to be taken to the British admiral. But in the rainstorm and hearing a group of roysterers in a saloon singing "Over There," the temptation is too much for him. He enters and takes a drink. At first he refuses, and when the United States is toasted he replies: "I will go to hell for the United States," and the next title has emphasis with "And he did." Our next shot is of him being picked up on the sidewalk by fellow officers. The code book is missing, and when he is returned to the ship Captain Ravenslee and the other officers decide that to hide the disgrace they will try him. He is found guilty and then left with a revolver to administer his own punishment. But again the desire for drink is too strong.

Again he seeks solace in the bottle and after drinking fires a shot into the air. The captain rushes down and finds that he still lives, and then announces that Lieut. Blenton is "dead—dead to your family and your country," and he is landed on the island of Tafofu, stripped of his insignia and left there "to rot." A year passes and see him become "Keoki, the beach comber," a slave to gin, and now taken to himself a native woman as a wife, that she may catch the fish that will enable him to satisfy his craving.

JUST as we see this native wife so disgusted with Blenton and his desire for drink that she runs away from him for a boatman, we have a flash back to America, with Jane learning from one of Blenton's fellow officers that he still lives. Her love for him is so strong that she determines that she will redeem him and so starts for the island.

But just as his native wife leaves him Lehua, half white and half native, who has loved him, enters the game. She does the trading with the small boats that now and then come to the island and she has the stock of liquor. It is under this appeal that she wins him, but gradually under her influence he is weaned away from the desire. She brings him to semi-respectability, inducing him to shave and care for himself, even to the point of becoming friendly with the only white man on the island, Andy, the keeper of the light. Their friendship ripens to the extent that Andy shows Blenton an arrangement he has invented to work the light when the machinery fails.

From Andy, Blenton borrows books. One of them is the poems of Walter Scott, and the first poem he reads is the one, "Breathes there a man with soul so dead." He is so angered that he hurls the volume from him and seeks solace in drink, hurling Lehua away from him when she seeks to stop him.

In the meantime Jane is on her way and the liner on which she is a passenger is sunk by a submarine commanded by Capt. Eric von Prohme, who abandons all of the other passengers to their fate except Jane, whom he wants for his own. He takes her on board the submarine, and a little later gets a wireless message from Otto Schmidt, a German trader who visits the island, notifying him that the "Victory" is headed for the island. And so the submarine starts for the island.

SCHMIDT, too, is infatuated with Lehua and she worms from him the secret of his activity, and then seeks the aid of Blenton to forestall the plot, but the former officer has already cursed the United States and now he is too deep in drink to be aroused to his duty. Then Lehua turns to

At the left Jane a prisoner in the German submarine; in center, Blenton as he appears after his complete degeneration, and at right as he is stripped of his naval uniform

At left scene of Schmidt with the half caste girl who loves Blenton; in the center Blenton is aroused by the shot which kills the lighthouse keeper, and on the right he spurns Jane for Lehua

Andy, and in order to prevent the Victory from entering the harbor that night and being sunk by the submarine which Lehua has discovered hiding in an estuary, he wrecks the machinery of the light.

Von Prohme brings Jane ashore with him just at the time that the wrecking of the machinery is discovered. Then the Germans bring Andy to Lehua's cabin, and there in the presence of the girl he is shot after he admits that he has done the damage to prevent the submarine sinking the battleship. It is in fleeing from the sight that Jane rushes into the adjoining room and there discovers Blenton. But Lehua follows her and Blenton takes the half-breed in his arms.

Blenton is just sane enough to realize that something is wrong with the light, and to the horror of both Jane and Lehua he emerges from his stupor and tells the Germans that he knows how to operate it. But once there the sight of the ship on which he once served regenerates the man, and instead of working the light in its regular flashes he sends a code message which carries the information that the submarine is in hiding and gives its location. The guns of the Victory get busy and the submarine is destroyed just as Blenton and the German captain begin the death struggle which end with Von Prohme being hurled from the lighthouse to his death. But Blenton's triumph is short-lived, for he is in turn shot by Schmidt and falls to his death. He is dead when Jane reaches him. But the price has been paid, and he has died truly for his country, and the last flash shows the final honors being paid him on the Victory.

WE have mentioned the prohibition angle and have warned against playing this as propaganda, and unless you have a mighty strong element in your community to which you wish to appeal we would make the liquor portion of the story an incidental in the selling talks. Like this:

"Lieut. Blenton was a fighting man of the American navy, but he lost the battle to the craving and with it the secret code book with which he had been entrusted. And when he refused to wipe out the disgrace he was landed on a Pacific island. He was dead to his fellows and to the country that he cursed, but not to the girl who loved him, and she came just in time to see him do a heroic deed—to see the light of victory."

Here is another:

"'I'll go to hell for the United States,' pledged Lieut. Blenton, and he did. He lost every battle with himself, turned companion to a half breed of a Pacific island, cursed country and forgot sweetheart—but before the end the light of victory came to his eyes and a hero, regenerated and honored by those who had condemned him to be an outcast. His country was first to him when the crisis came—and he atoned for all that he had done."

And then getting the woman element into it a little stronger:

"What a wonderful thing is the love of a good woman! Lieut. Blenton betrayed himself and his country, because he could not resist the craving. But Jane still loved him with a love that took her half way around the world—just in time to find that the man without a country could still be stirred by love for his native land—just in time to see him bathed in the light of victory over his weakness. And she was content that he had been redeemed."

READY FOR YOU

Material that You Can Get at Your Exchange

AS a convenience for the exhibitors who have booked this picture we are listing here the material which is ready prepared and which can be obtained at your local exchange:

The paper includes two 1-sheets, two 3-sheets, a 6-sheet and a 24-sheet.

For newspaper advertising purposes there are ready prepared designs, either in mat or electro form, in one, two and three-column sizes.

There is a one-column cut of the star, and two and three-column cuts.

There are sets of 8 by 10 and 11 by 14 stills, together with a stock picture of the star. There are slides and a music cue prepared by James C. Bradford, musical director of the Broadway theatre, New York.

IF you do not care to go so far into the story as these comparatively short selling talks, we can get a few lines here:

"With Monroe Salisbury, the star, you are always sure of a thrill. You'll get a most unexpected one here after you have been held tense through five reels, reels teeming with action. It'd be a shame to tell you the story of this one."

"If you are tired of the stories where you can always guess the ending five reels in advance, you will relish this one—because it is so different. You'll never know the climax until you, too, have seen the light of victory."

"He was a man without a country, but when his country needed him he was there. And he served it with all the heroism that marks the characters that Monroe Salisbury always plays."

"He was exiled by his country and damned it. He was spurned by his sweetheart and forgot her for a half breed. But when the appeal of girl and native land came to him Lieut. Blenton was a man and a hero. To tell you more would rob you of the tenseness of this thrilling Monroe Salisbury drama."

IN all of your newspaper advertising we would refer to the more recent pictures in which this star has appeared. He has won a big following with his work in "The Savage," "The Guilt of Silence," "That Devil, Bateeste," "Hugon the Mighty," and "Red, Red Heart." A number of these have been French-Canadian stories. These have been all stories of action and they have endeared themselves to those who like to have something doing all the time.

With this picture you can safely promise your public that you will show him in a new sort of a characterization. Instead of the north country the scene of the greater part of this action is laid on an island of the South Seas, and instead of his battles being with other men they are mainly with himself here. But keep "regeneration" out of your advertising. Make it plain that in the end he turns out to be a real man and a hero. Any audience will stand for weakness in a character if he proves himself pure gold in the final test.

Here is a good line:

"A story of a great victory without a battle scene."

At left is one of the three sheets, in the center a six-sheet and at the right one of these one-sheets. Elsewhere we have suggested uses that may be made of this paper

Personality of Star and Dramatic Story Big Points

IN our opinion this is a picture that should be exploited without any stunt stuff. You should keep close to the matter that the picture does contain and steer clear of exaggeration and superlatives. This picture depends largely on the tenseness of the action and because it defies the spectator to forecast the ending. These are points that are likely to make the patrons talk after they leave the theatre, and this is the sort of advertising that is most valuable to you, after all.

We have already said that this is not a war picture, and if you use any of the selling lines that we have suggested that point will make it clear without labeling your advertising "Not a war picture." We would play Salisbury's personality strong and would make a picture of him dominate the newspaper advertising, whether you make your own cuts, use the ones supplied by the exchanges or adopt the ready prepared advertising. On all the paper and in the prepared advertising "dramatic" is featured, and that is mighty good policy.

There are no laughs in this one, and for that reason we would give the remainder of the program over to comedy, the lighter the better. That not only gives you the relief, but it also affords the contrast. Run your comedy after you have used the feature.

YOU can get a specially good effect for your lobby here very simply, and all the better if you can put this on the sidewalk so that it will get the attention of the people up and down the street. Construct the facsimile of a lighthouse, and if possible get you a small searchlight. Set this on a revolving base so that it will be constantly moving around. If you cannot get the searchlight, then you can use the ordinary flasher that will attract attention.

Both the three and six sheets will provide you with attractive cut-outs for the lobby and we could confine the display to that, to pictures of the star and scenes from the production. We would distinctly omit flags, suggestions of the submarine or anything of the sort.

Another player who should be featured in the lobby if you have pictures of her is Betty Compson, his new leading woman. She hasn't such a big part, but the public is always interested in the identity of star's new leading woman, and this will be especially strong here because Betty Compson has been so prominent in comedies. By mounting a photograph here of her on a piece of heavy cardboard and lettering on it the words:

"Here is Monroe Salisbury's new leading woman in 'The Light of Victory.' You have seen her many times in a different sort of picture. Can you guess who she is?"

FOR the overture here we do not think of anything better than that formed from the Stephen Foster melodies. These all have the American element in them without being of the sort of patriotic music that calls for cheering.

If you are using songs you can put on a most fitting selection here by using "My Own United States." This can be rendered either by a quartet or a single singer, preferably a man. Any additional musical numbers that you use should be in the lighter vein or of the love character.

Proper music makes this picture all the more enjoyable. As played at the Broadway theatre the theme was "Life and Love." As given in the cue sheet that is prepared for you it is "Longing for You." They are equally acceptable.

There can be a clever effect obtained at the title announcing "War" by the use of booming of the bass drum to give the effect of cannon firing. This should be done for four or five beats very slowly and then followed by the bugle call for "Assembly." Equally appropriate at the ending is the call of "Taps" on the bugles. Now during some of the scenes that show the native women there may be a temptation to throw in a little of the Hawaiian music, but don't do it. This picture is too dramatic by having the interest broken with anything of that sort. There is another place where the lieutenant hears the crowd in the cafe singing "Over There" and that selection should be played there, but with this exception we would keep away from anything of the military air.

INSTEAD of trying to run a teaser campaign in advance we would take the entire amount of advertising that you have and hit this a big smash immediately preceding the showing of the picture.

We believe that it is wise to play strong on the personality of the star in this case. Not only because of the great success that he has scored in his most recent attractions, but because of his appearance in "The Squaw Man," with Marguerite Clark in "The Goose Girl," and in "Ramona" and "The Eyes of the World" he is well known to all sorts of audiences.

One of the three sheets and the twenty-four sheet have been designed with this idea in view, the reading matter being confined to the name of the player and the title of the picture.

Certainly the unusual character of the six sheet should attract attention as will the three sheet in which Salisbury has the half breed girl in his arms. That will lend an air of mystery to the story. The main thing about the use of paper any way is to get the big flash, so as to attract attention and if the manager in following this up with the proper sort of newspaper advertising he is pretty sure to get in another selling talk with those whose attention has been attracted by the paper.

Lederman Assistant to Laemmle

Two New Appointments within Executive Offices of Universal Film Company Are Announced

PRESIDENT CARL LAEMMLE, of Universal Film Manufacturing Company, announced that George B. Hammond had resigned as manager of Universal's export department and that George E. Kann, for six years assistant to the president, is selected as Mr. Hammond's successor.

At the same time it was announced that having completed his work of installing new systems in Universal exchanges throughout the country, Dan B. Lederman was to become assistant to Mr. Laemmle immediately.

Mr. Kann and Mr. Lederman have been prominent in the rapid development of Universal in the last few years.

Mr. Lederman is considered one of the oldest film exchange managers in the country, having been connected with Universal for over ten years, being until last spring manager of the Des Moines exchange and later special systematizer of all exchanges.

For the past ten months he has been visiting Universal exchanges installing a complete new system which has already proved of exceptional value in the handling of bookings, shipments and accounts. The new system was devised by Mr. Lederman and its practicability demonstrated to Universal executives.

In making Mr. Kann the successor of Mr. Hammond, President Laemmle is confident he has picked a man who is aggressive and sufficiently acquainted with foreign conditions to carry out the big task of broadening the scope of foreign distribution in 1919.

The signing of the armistice has brought about conditions in foreign lands that are considered most favorable, and America's participation in the war and the value of American films used for propaganda purposes during the war has brought Yankee film products before the world more forcefully than ever before.

Dan B. Lederman, who has been promoted by Universal

The demand for motion picture productions of the right sort is becoming greater every day and with an idea of giving good films the best distribution possible, Universal is going to make a stronger bid for foreign business than ever before. To carry out such a program is a big task, yet Mr. Kann is very enthusiastic about his new position and hopeful of obtaining maximum results.

"As has often been said, we expect 1919 to be a record year for Universal in every way. We expect to broaden the scope of our film distribution abroad and having had Mr. Kann working with me constantly for six years I am confident that he will prove equal to the task of carrying out our program for foreign exploitation," said Mr. Laemmle.

Will Rogers' Sayings Augment Ford Weekly

EACH week's release of the Ford Educational Weekly will contain "patter" and "wise cracks" by Will Rogers, star of Ziegfeld Follies, and soon to be a star in Goldwyn Pictures.

"No matter how big and successful one of the big motion picture features of the day is," says Goldwyn, "it takes several months to reach four thousand houses.

"Owing to the tremendous number of prints of each release of the Ford Educational Weekly, any person or thing picturized in it gets over the ground twice as quickly as a big picture because the Ford Educational Weekly at present uses twice as many prints as any screen attraction in existence and soon will be using four times the number of prints.

"Audiences in many cities are familiar with the biting, happy comments of Will Rogers on the news and personalities of the day. Rogers himself refers to his patter as "wise cracks," a term that traces right back to the country town where the soap box philosophers with much idle time on their hands have originated much of the wit of the American nation for more than a century.

"No one ever associated with the American theatre has shown more readiness in this field than Will Rogers. Only those who have had dinner with him in the evening in New York or some other town where he was appearing or who have sat with him in his theatre dressing room just before the time came to 'go on' have been able to witness these wise cracks in process of incubation."

President Sees It

James Vincent, producer and director of "The Spirit of Lafayette," had a print of the picture on board the George Washington when that steamer sailed for Europe March 5 with President Wilson. It was announced the picture would be shown to the President during the trip across.

Lillian Hall Appears at Kunsky Theatres

In furtherance of Independent Sales Corporation's exploitation plans, Lynn S. Card, general manager of the corporation, and Harry P. Diggs, of the exploitation department, opened their release "Wanted For Murder" at John H. Kunsky's Detroit theatres, last Sunday, with Lillian Hall, ingenue lead of the picture, making personal appearances at the Kunsky theatres, at each performance. Miss Hall left New York Saturday night, arriving in Detroit Sunday morning. Mr. Diggs had made arrangements for her appearances, and reports from Mr. Diggs are to the effect that crowded houses greeted "Wanted For Murder" and Miss Hall at every performance.

Thursday Miss Hall made personal appearances in Newark, and the last three days of this week she will appear at the Carr and Shade houses in Reading, Pa., where "Wanted For Murder" is booked.

Doris Kenyon Makes Flights in Aeroplane

During her stay in Cleveland, Doris Kenyon, star of De Luxe Pictures, whose latest picture, "Twilight," was released this week, had her first trip in an aeroplane. Miss Kenyon was the guest of Hon. George Chahoon, whose estate is within a few miles of an aviation field. Among the aviators there were a number of Miss Kenyon's acquaintances, and after much persuasion she consented to accompany Lieut. A. S. Moody on a flight. She presented her commission as an honorary sergeant of the 70th Regiment of the Regular Army, signed by Major General Eli D. Hoyle. She made four flights in all and ascended to a distance to 5,000 feet. On hearing the report Theodore A. Dietrich, president of De Luxe Pictures, Inc., had Miss Kenyon sign a new contract which forbade her to make flights in aeroplanes.

Critics Like "The Brand"

Goldwyn announcements cite the unanimous approval of the film critics for Rex Beach's newest picture, "The Brand," produced under the direction of and released by Goldwyn.

After re-printing the many eulogies of the screen critics which shows enthusiastic endorsement of the production, particular attention is called what Peter Milne had to say about "The Brand" in Motion Picture News.

"'The Brand' is a Rex Beach story of the far North that rings the bell. If specials are your specialty, to overlook 'The Brand' you must shut your eyes," declares Milne.

Jack Pickford Engages Gray for Titles

John Gray, scenario writer, has been engaged by Jack Pickford to write the titles for his first First National release. Ferdinand Pinney Earle, artist and illustrator, who has recently established a studio in Hollywood, will do the art work in connection with the titles.

Here's where the title comes in for "The Brand," the seven-reel Rex Beach production distributed by Goldwyn. The brander looks as if he meant business. On the extreme right we have a peek in the ladies' dressing room, and in the center all seems serene for the happy ending

Editor Gets Thrills in Outing-Chesters

Albert Britt, editor of Outing Magazine, followed an Outing Chester camera man through his adventures while filming many scenes in the wilds.

He states that the surest way of getting the thrill that comes once in a lifetime is to hunt and camp and tramp throughout the United States as he has. But he insists that the territory covered in filming "From Scales to Antlers," the first Chester release, had as many thrills to the square inch as any trip he had ever taken.

This subject was shown at the Strand theatre in New York and was immediately followed by the second subject.

The Outing Chester pictures are produced by C. L. Chester in co-operation with Outing Magazine, and are released in one-reel subjects every week through First National Exhibitor exchanges.

Star of Prizma Picture

Madge Evans is announced as the star of Prizma Company's natural color picture, "The Little Match Girl," now being made at the World studio, Fort Lee.

Bryant Washburn and Director Donald Crisp demonstrating the latter's film novelty first used in Washburn's new Paramount picture, "The Village Cut-Up"

Goldwyn Releases Four in March

Announces That Four Powerful Productions Leading Off with "The Brand" Are Current Month Offerings

STARTING with the latest Rex Beach production, "The Brand," produced under the direction of Goldwyn, the month of March is heralded as a banner one for Goldwyn and Goldwyn exhibitors.

The Goldwyn official statement declares that exhibitors and critics who have seen this powerful picture are enthusiastic over the fact that Rex Beach has returned to the Alaskan locale of his first and most famous motion picture, "The Spoilers."

"The Brand" is described as extraordinary in its physical action and in the pathos of its story of love and an avenging husband. The hero of the story of "The Brand" is tall and homely Dan McGill, known to millions of devotees of Rex Beach fiction as the central figure in two of his successful stories—one called "McGill" and the other "The Brand." The role is played by Russell Simpson, who will be remembered in the role of the trader in the previous Beach success, "The Barrier."

Sunday, March 9, was the official release date of "The Brand" and on that day it opened full week or longer engagements in fifty or more cities. In other cities it has been pre-released for longer engagements.

One week later, on March 16, Tom Moore will be seen in his most buoyant Goldwyn Picture, "A Man and His Money" from the popular novel of the same name by Frederic S. Isham. This story is directed by Harry Beaumont. Seena Owen is Tom Moore's leading woman, this marking her first appearance in Goldwyn productions. She has been in retirement for more than a year.

Madge Kennedy is the heroine of Goldwyn's third March production, "Daughter of Mine," an original story by Hugo Ballin. Mr. Ballin is the art director of Goldwyn who has done much to improve the artistic and technical beauty of screen productions since his advent into motion pictures with Goldwyn two years ago.

"Daughter of Mine" is one of the most unusual stories that Madge Kennedy has had since her debut in pictures.

The last picture that Mae Marsh will make fer Goldwyn is "Spotlight Sadie," a story of the theatre by Lewis Allen Browne and directed by Laurence Trimble. The Goldwyn studio organization, writing from California, declares this to be the finest Mae Marsh picture since "The Cinderella Man," which with "Polly of the Circus" represent her best screen achievements under Goldwyn.

Robertson-Cole Company Growing Rapidly

Robertson-Cole Company since its division of films was opened a few months ago has grown to considerable size in this department as is evidenced by the fact that its domestic department releasing through United States and Canada, has thirteen features on the market and it is announced, that before the end of the current year, it expects to have released more than sixty pictures. One production each week is released by Exhibitors Mutual, the distributing unit for the Robertson-Cole Company.

Five producing units furnishing features for the division of films, Haworth Pictures Corporation, Jesse D. Hampton Productions, Winsome Stars Corporation and the National Film Corporation. In addition the Martin Johnson Corporation which has the series of "Cannibals of the South Seas."

"Made In America" Goes With the President

The Presidential Party, including President Wilson, will be able to see "Made in America," the eight one-reel episodes distributed by Hodkinson Corporation through Pathe exchanges.

This semi-official series of the making of America's Armies of Victory was shipped to France aboard the U. S. S. George Washington on Wednesday, March 5, and Captain Edward McCauley will personally see that the series is re-packed and forwarded to the Paris office of the New York Herald and in turn forwarded to General John J. Pershing, of the American Army of Occupation.

Starts Campaign on Re-Issues

Robertson-Cole Buys Brentwood's Production, "Turn in the Road" —Released as Feature—Not Special

ROBERTSON-COLE COMPANY announces the purchase of Brentwood Film Corporation's production of "The Turn In The Road." The feature which is in five reels will be released through the Exhibitors Mutual and will go out as a regular feature, not a special, according to the announcement. It is said that the sum paid by Robertson-Cole for this Brentwood feature runs into five figures.

"The Turn in the Road" was written and directed by King Vidor, prominent in directorial circles on the Coast. There are no featured players in the cast. Director Vidor announces that he sought to bring out the strong lesson of love and happiness that the story teaches rather than the ability of any one star.

Little Ben Alexander, the six year boy, who is seen in D. W. Griffith's "Hearts of the World," has a prominent part. The story centers about this youngster. Helen Jerome Eddy is "the girl." Miss Eddy has been leading woman in a number of photoplay attractions, and for a long time played with George Beban.

Lloyd Hughes, little known to the motion picture public but successful on the stage, characterizes "the boy," Hamilton Perry. Hughes is said to be combination Jack Pickford and Charles Ray. Pauline Curley, known to screen fans, who has appeared in many Metro productions opposite the late Harold Lockwood, has a prominent role. George Nichols and Winthrop Hall are others who have prominent parts not to mention eight puppies which figure prominently.

J. A. Quinn, owner of Quinn's Theatre, Los Angeles, booked it, and the result is told by Monroe Lathrop in his "Topics in Stageland" in the Los Angeles Express of Feb. 1.

"About the same time (referring to the showing of Griffith's 'The Greatest Thing in Life') a modest photoplay called 'The Turn in the Road,' was launched on its public career in Quinn's house on Broadway. It came from the Brentwood, an independent studio, with little heraldry. It was 'sans star' and 'sans thrills.' It was carefully produced, however, and exploited a beautiful, unsensational, heart-warming story. It has just finished the seventh week of its run and taken a mile post in Broadway showdom.

"Figuring the rise and fall of cash receipts in tenths for convenience of illustrations, the second week dropped approximately two tenths below the receipts of the first week, due to the serious recurrence of influenza. The third week increased one tenth over the second. The fourth week showed an increase of nearly five tenths over the third week. The fifth week added approximately one tenth to the splendid showing of the fourth week. The cash receipts of the sixth week arose to an amount nearly two tenths in excess of the fifth week, or almost double the amount taken in during the second week the pictures ran. This is a record which any picture could be proud of, considering that during the first week, Quinn's theatre was comfortably filled at every performance."

Sessue Hayakawa is star of "A Heart in Pawn," released by Exhibitors Mutual

Bridgeport Gets Return Dates on "Salome"

SHEA'S Park theatre, at Bridgeport, Conn., plays a split-week policy, the first part of the week being given to motion pictures and the second half to burlesque attractions.

When it played the Fox super production of "Salome," starring Theda Bara, the Park was unable to take the picture more than three days.

So great were the crowds attending every showing during the first engagement that it was apparent to the management there was a large number of motion picture patrons who wanted to see "Salome" and were unable to get in. Accordingly the Park took "Salome" for a repeat booking for February 16, 17, 18 and 19.

By a sharp advertising campaign the management made the most of the prestige established by "Salome" during its first showing, and thus reached the section of the public that was unable to get into the theatre during the January engagements.

This economy in patronage, it is stated, was rich in results, for the receipts for the first three days of the repeat engagement amounted to more than 2,000. But, in addition to this big return, the management feels that the repeat engagements were more than justified in the opportunity it gave all of the theatre's patrons to see the picture.

This showing of "Salome" at Bridgeport is said to be only one of a number of similar successes which have attended the career of this William Fox special attraction in the New York territory. The Grand Opera House in Brooklyn, which has just opened under the management of George Blumenthal, has booked "Salome" for all the week, with an option to renew at the expiration of that time.

Christie Lot Changes As It Grows

The physiognomy of the Christie lot in Los Angeles continues to change weekly with the progress of the workmen who, for the past several weeks have been wielding hammer and nails and the paint-brush in an almost entire reconstruction of this studio. Two light stages equipped with new lighting arrangements and several large spotlights have been completed within the past week. New photographic rooms and laboratory have been constructed and a new tier of dressing-rooms will be the next addition when reconstruction of the business offices now under way will have been completed. Also, a landscape gardener has been busy at this plant and hedged walks have been laid in the studio grounds. The general pleasantness of the Christie Studio is thus being added to and the members of the four companies now working at this studio form a decidedly happy studio family, with Al Christie as supervising director and Chas. H. Christie continuing as manager of the plant.

"Hell Roarin' Reform" Goes Big

Although "Fame and Fortune," "Treat 'Em Rough" and "Mr. Logan, U. S. A." set new high marks for the drawing power of Tom Mix pictures, letters received from exhibitors show that Mix's latest picture, "Hell Roarin' Reform," has surpassed all former records made by Tom Mix and has given further evidence that he is one of the best drawing cards in the industry today.

In a personal letter to William Fox, Ralph W. Crocker, owner of the Star theatre, Elgin, Ill., says of Mix in "Hell Roarin' Reform":

"'Hell Roarin' Reform,' in my opinion, is a marvelous, dare-devil thunderbolt, with more pep, more satisfaction, more ginger and more comedy than any Western picture that has ever been screened. It is a picture of the sort that ninety-nine per cent. of audiences in any class of theatre will 'eat up' the first night, take their friends the next night and rave about for weeks afterward."

"Saturday to Monday" Title Is Changed

"Experimental Marriage" is the title of Select's offering starring Constance Talmadge. The original title was changed because of objections raised by prominent exhibitors, according to Select announcement.

"Saturday to Monday" was considered a fetching title and was also identified with the successful stage play of that name by William J. Hurlbut, but the exhibitors seemed to fear that the prominent display of the title might cause confusion in the minds of their patrons and lead them to think that the days Saturday to Monday were the only days on which this feature was presented.

"Experimental Marriage" suitably conveys the idea of the exact theme of the photoplay.

The Turn In the Road

A power backs this picture that not only entertains, but brings them in day after day and brings them to see it again and again.

It's one of those pictures that is widely advertised by word of mouth by everyone who sees it. It has an intense appeal to everyone.

Released through

EXHIBITORS MUTUAL

ROBERTSON-COLE
COMPANY
DIVISION OF FILMS
BANKERS and EXPORTERS
FOR THE PRODUCER

"THE TURN IN THE ROAD

THE LOS ANGELES PAPERS WERE PROFUSE IN THEIR PRAISE

"A wholesome story touching the passions and virtues of a clean-cut group of people . . . . presents problems and offers cheering solutions—likely to remain stamped upon the mind of every audience."

Los Angeles Examiner

EXHIBITORS

It Brings Out The S.R.O. Sign

A BRENTWOOD PRODUCTION

Directed by KING W. VIDOR

With an All Star Cast Including

Little Ben Alexander, Helen Jerome Eddy, Winter Hall, Pauline Curley, Lloyd Hughes, George Nichols and Charles Arling

MUTUAL

ROBERTSON-COLE COMPANY
DIVISION OF FILMS
BANKERS and EXPORTERS
FOR THE PRODUCER

8 WEEKS at QUINN'S LosAngeles Theatre

Packed house at every showing

The Los Angeles crowds defied the influenza, they braved the rains, they simply couldn't keep away. Week after week they jammed Quinn's Theatre. The wonderfulness of the picture spread like wild-fire and for eight solid weeks they held them out.

Directed by KING W. VIDOR A BRENTWOOD PRODUCTION

Released through

EXHIBITORS MUTUAL

ROBERTSON-COLE
COMPANY
DIVISION OF FILMS
BANKERS and EXPORTERS
FOR THE PRODUCER

Special Service Section on

"The Turn of the Road"

S. BARRETT M'CORMICK'S style of advertising is the one that you want to follow is you are going to show "The Turn of the Road." Here is a case where you should make your selling talks longer than you usually do and where they should be intimate discussions with your patrons. It is not because there is anything that you have to "explain around," but because the humanness of the picture is the main appeal.

Ben Alexander, the little boy who scored such a big hit in "Hearts of the World" might be called the star of this picture, if he has been seen in the Griffith production in your community and then there are Pauline Curley, Helen Eddy, George Nichols and other well known players in the cast. The title itself is not explanatory and needs the additional matter to bring out the Americanism of the picture, its strong heart appeal and ample comedy.

There is a deeply religious strain through the picture, but it is not a sermon and this element is introduced more as the faith in the good and the pure. "And a little child shall lead them" might be taken as the text of the advertising. Ordinarily we do not believe in the "You" element in advertising, but here is a place where we believe in getting close under the skin. You have nothing to really explain, but rather to make it clear that this is a heart-gripping and happily-ending story of the sort of American life that we all know.

When you have looked at the story you will see the reason for these statements. Rev. Matthew Barker is the pastor of the leading church in what was formerly known as Peaceful Valley and which has been transformed by progress and greed into Perryville, named for Hamilton Perry, a money-grasping millionaire who owns the chief industries. We are introduced to Rev. Mr. Barker as he is dictating his sermon to June, the elder of his two daughters, a plain, dutiful, intelligent girl. And when the father is dictating she turns to ask him whether he really believes that God sends sickness and sorrow to His children. She cannot believe such a doctrine, but her father replies that he has been preaching that doctrine for thirty-five years.

Here we are introduced to the younger daughter, Evelyn, the absolute opposite of her older sister. She is pretty in her kittenish way and very plainly one of the innocent butterfly sort. Paul Perry, son of the millionaire, comes to take her driving in his new machine and then from the views of the older sister, June, at the window, watches them drive away and though there is no title one immediately knows that June is the one of the two who holds the real love for Paul. Another scene supplies the contrast between the two, for first we see June reading to a group of boys on the steps of the pastor's home, but when Evelyn makes her appearance she gets all of their attention. June realizes the difference and walks away, but with the arrival of Paul he takes Evelyn from the group and before the afternoon is over their troth is plighted.

AFTER the ceremony with tears in her eyes June whispers in Paul's ear: "I only want your happiness—and hers." A year later and amid a terrible storm a new face is called into the world. But after Paul has been told he has a son the pyhsician announces: "Sometimes the law of life takes away when it gives." There is another strong scene here with all the members of the family present. Paul is stunned, and without blasphemy he declares that he cannot believe that God would do such a thing, and he goes out into the storm to "find the true God." June follows him, too late to bring him back, but stretching out her arms she prays, "Oh, Lord, bring him back to us again."

In the meantime his congregation has become dissatisfied with the doctrines that he preaches and his resignation is asked. And when the crash comes June goes to Chicago to work as a stenographer. Here we are shown a flash of Paul, now a wanderer, in a cabaret where one of the singers is in love with him. But he tells her that he can never marry such a girl and the singer goes back to the office where she had formerly been employed, and where June is now working, to get her place back. She does at the expense of June, and the latter with little Bob, whom she has with her go back to the farm on which her mother and father are living in their humble simplicity.

NOW here comes one of the most pleasing touches of the whole picture. Among the first to greet him are six little Llewellyn setter puppies about a month old. The boy asks where their mother is and then comes the intimate line that she was killed by an auto. Puppies and Bob become boon companions and the tiny fellows follow around the little fellow with the long blond hair with a faithfulness that will touch anyone who knows anything about animals.

At left Bob and his pups save his grandfather's life, in center contrast between the sisters and, right, Bob and his new found father

At left June, Bob and his father, in the center the girl wife and the right June and Bob is their shabby lodgings in Chicago

There is a picture showing Bob with the puppies. It is supplied in the form of a still and it is also on one of the one-sheets, which we are reproducing here. There is an appeal in animals, especially in dogs and horses that lies in nothing else. We would make this the dominating feature of the biggest display on this picture. A little later we will tell you why.

Bob is delighted with his grandpa, but he asks about the other one and he is pointed to the magnificent home just over the hill where the millionaire Perry lives. On one occasion the child tries to climb over the wall, but this second grandfather, not knowing who the little one is, repulses him.

Then comes another night of the storm, like the one on which little Bob came into the world. The child concludes that his grandfather is lonesome and gathering up the puppies, he starts out through the rain to make the visit. But in the meantime the employes of Perry, having been refused increase in wages and fair treatment, determine on desperate remedies and name a committee to force Perry to yield to their demands.

THESE men force their way into his home and demand that he sign the agreement, but when he refuses they bind him in a chair and when he still defies them the three agree to fire on him at a signal. But just at the moment the lights go on there appears little Bob with his six puppies following behind, and he rushes to the arms of his grandfather, jumps into his lap while the doggies, too, try to scramble up. Of course, there are no shots fired. Perry knows he is safe, but now he yields to a persuasion where force would not budge him. He signs the agreement.

Yet the puppies must be cared for and this is first thought of Perry after his negro butler frees him. And so the doggies are sent to the hay loft of the stable just before there creeps into the hay a bedraggled figure of a young man. Bob's loyalty to the dogs is strong and the next morning he goes to visit the dogs and there discovers a man's feet beneath the wisps. He awakens him and then there follows a remarkable conversation.

The man tells the youth that he is known as "The Wanderer"—that he is searching for the True God and then comes the clever reply: "If you'd only come and asked me you'd have saved yourself a lot of railroad fare." There is more quaint kid philosophy which ends with: "Sorrow is where there is no love."

In the meantime the negro butler has phoned June that Bob is there, and when she arrives she learns that he is feeding the puppies. She goes to the hayloft and there she discovers Bob, her dead sister's husband—and her true love.

YOU can afford to take a new angle in the advance announcements on this picture. If you find that letters to your patrons are business pullers we could use this idea there, otherwise as a general letter in newspaper space. Write them!

"For once we are not going to call your attention to famous stars, though there are many players that you all know and love in this picture. We are not going to call your attention to a famous story or a lavish production, but we are going to invite you to see the most human picture that you have seen in many a day.

"It is a story that now and then brings a tear to the eye, that alternates with a thrill and a laugh and that teems in the wonderful philosophy of right and love. It is nothing more than a picture of life as all of us know it—a simple story, but a compelling one. You won't be living among strange people, but among your fellows here, and you will get a new outlook into beauty of life. It is a picture that appeals to the best of your emotions and leaves you mighty happy in the end.

"Little Ben Alexander, who scored such a hit in 'Hearts of the World,' Helen Eddy and Pauline Curley are some of the players—but after all it is the story that counts. We use no adjectives or superlatives here—but we promise you utter satisfaction."

This means that you are personally guaranteeing the picture. But if you are appealing to the sort of patronage that wants sensation or the suggestive they will not be pleased with this one. Here is a case where all of your exploitation wants to be kept on the highest possible plane, but at the same time giving the picture the intimate appeal that it possesses.

ON another page we are giving you some selling lines for your advertising. Your newspapers should be relied upon for the greater part of your pull. We would avoid anything of the freakish in your lobby. There can be some excellent cut outs made, one by using the one sheet of the boy and the dogs and the other of the 24-sheet which shows the grandfather bound to his chair, the boys and the puppies. Beside the display of the various stills from the production and such pictures as you may have of Ben Alexander and the other members of the cast we would rely on the paper that is supplied you.

There should be a light setting for this picture. Though it contains a good deal of comedy itself we would put light subjects around it and keep the music of the lighter sort, though the old love songs will fit in here better than most anything else.

THESE ARE READY

Accessories You Can Secure to Aid in Your Exploitation

FOR the convenience of the exhibitors who do not care to take a trip to the exchange to see what material is available, we are listing it here:

Paper includes two 1-sheets, a 3-sheet, 6-sheet, and 24-sheet. Some of these are shown. The 24-sheet bears the figure of the grandfather Box and the puppies.

There are three-column mats and a two-column cut, these showing scenes from the picture, together with thumb-nails and single columns of the leading players.

There are eight 11 by 14 photo gelatines and a 22 by 28 scene picture.

In addition there are slides, program cover, cue sheet and general press book.

At left a 3-sheet, center 6-sheet and right one of one-sheets

Human Appeal Should Be Made Far the Strongest

MERELY label advertising will be well nigh wasted with "The Turn of the Road." It is up to you to reach the heart. We do not think there is the slightest doubt that most people like a tear to come in their eyes during the showing of a picture, provided there is a sprinkle of laughter and there is happiness in the end. You can advertise this as a picture that "ends just right."

Now, as a suggestion for one of the advance advertisements let us say that we are using four columns, ten inches. In the upper right hand corner use either a cut of the boy, Bob, with his puppies, or the one that shows his grandfather tied to the chair with Bob on his lap and the puppies seeking to join him. This should not be over two columns wide and at the left of this use a selling argument, set as large as you can get it and at the same time leave ample space between the reading matter and cut and border. Here is one:

"And a little child shall lead them.

"Little motherless Bob loved the six orphaned puppies. One night a storm came and he felt that the grandfather he has never seen must be lonesome. So he gathered up the pups and through the rain went to see him—and saved the life of the hard hearted millionaire who had refused his employes justice, and, incidentally, won their battle for them.

"Then, feeding his pets, he found a strange man in the hay loft. He fed the man and consoled him with his youthful philosophy, telling the man 'Sorrow is where there is no love.' Then came his mother's sister seeking Bob and she saw in the man the lad's father who had left when his girl bride died bearing the child. It was then that the man realized that she was the one that he had loved after all. He had left home defiant and seeking the True God, but his own child had brought Him.

"And the girl said: 'I knew that God would bring you back.'

"Love has brought me back, through a little child," he replied and then everyone was wonderfully happy, as you will be when you see the picture.

HERE is another one that gets in stronger the element of the two sisters:

"June loved the hard-hearted millionaire's son with all the power of her being, but when he chose for his bride her younger and more frivolous sister, June whispered in his ear that she wished 'only your happiness—and hers.' But sometimes the law of life takes away when it gives. Paul could not understand and leaving his dead bride and his new born son behind him, he went away into the storm seeking the True God while June stood with her arms outstretched praying that he be brought back again.

"Paul became 'The Wanderer' seeking the truth and fate brought him to his father's hayloft just after little Bob had saved his grandfather's life. And fate brought father and son together, unknown to each other. 'Trouble is only a little darkness when the light is out' the lad told the man. and then 'sorrow is where there is no love.' Then to the hayloft came Ruth seeking the lad and there found his father and happiness, for after all he had learned that she was the one that he really loved."

Then this:

"There were two sisters and Paul loved the prettier, more frivolous of the two. And when, with the birth of his son, she was taken away from him, he cursed the power that had claimed her and went forth to seek the True God. Years passed and he was still a wanderer until he learned the truth from his own little boy and found his real love in the sister that had never wavered in her faith. It's an epic of the best in life, with all of its tears and laughs.

EXCEPT for the brief scenes in the Chicago cabaret and lawyer's office the story might well be laid in any community. As we have said, it is a story typical of American life, though its plot is different from any that we have seen before in pictures. These are points to which attention may be profitably called. Some exhibitors conclude that their patrons want to be led into the mazes of New York society or into the sewers of Paris crimes, that they must be thrilled every moment or have sex problems to untangle. But if you inquire around a little you will find that one of the effects of the war has been to stir the interest in things American—in the things that might just as well happen in your own town. And to the returning soldier boys pictures of this sort are likely to have a strong appeal. So you might say:

"This story might just as well have taken place in sweet water (using there the name of your town) as in Perryville. All of the characters are distinctly American; all were moved by the same impulses that move us. It is a real picture of life as we live it and it is the humanness of the events that brings the greatest appeal to this picture. You won't go away from the theatre willing to have a situation changed in the slightest for you will have been looking into a mirror. If you are tired of artificiality and want a tear you cannot restrain and a laugh that comes out in spite of you, don't miss 'The Turn of the Road.'"

You may say to yourself that to conduct your exploitation along such a line you will merely lead your public to think that this is an "ordinary" picture, but if you follow the appeal that we have offered and use big space and striking cuts with them we believe that the result is certain.

We would certainly feature the name of Ben Alexander and call attention to the fact that he had one of the principal roles in D. W. Griffith's "Hearts of the World."

Coming Program Offerings

"Red Glove" Comes on March 17

New Universal Serial of Eighteen Episodes Starts Off with Record Bookings—Marie Walcamp Star in It

WITH record bookings reported at over twelve Universal exchanges throughout the country, "The Red Glove," featuring Marie Walcamp, will be released March 17, Universal announces.

The new Universal serial is eighteen episodes in length, adapted from Douglas Grant's novel, "The Fifth Ace," and is being produced under the direction of J. P. McGowan. Universalites are very enthusiastic about this new serial for its producers and critics who have viewed the opening episodes are unanimous in stating that it is Universal's best serial effort to date.

The story of the serial is one of rapidly increasing action and interest and of the character that appeals to all classes of motion picture fans. The settings for the serial are laid in the Southwestern country where rival oil companies endeavor to obtain possession of a hidden oil field, said to be worth millions of dollars, and a map showing its location, held in an old Mexican woman who guards it with her life. How a young Western girl, risking her life many times, finally succeeds in seeing that the rights of the law are respected in the transaction, rids the country of an outlaw band, which has harrassed the inhabitants many times, and finds happiness with the man she loves, adds considerable interest to the production.

According to Universal executives, "The Red Glove" is the greatest artistic success any Universal serial has been. Some of the most beautiful scenic shots ever included in a motion picture production are contained in the new serial and in addition the serial abounds with thrilling incidents. In one episode Miss Walcamp's horse in leaping from one rocky cliff, across a chasm to another stumbles and with his rider falls forty feet to a rocky ledge, where his rider tumbles down a steep embankment and into a lake, one way, while the animal slides down hill in another direction. Miss Walcamp narrowly escapes death in another episode when an automobile, on which she has been sitting is blown into thousands of pieces when the gasoline tank catches fire and explodes.

Mildred Harris (Mrs. Charlie Chaplin) in Universal pictures

To assist exhibitors in exploiting "The Red Glove," Universal has sent over 20,000 sixty-four page campaign books to theatremen and newspapermen throughout the country. This campaign book contains publicity matter on the serial and also outlines numerous advertising campaigns for the exhibitor. Reproductions of over fifty teaser and regular advertising cuts are also contained in the campaign book. All of the stories and advertisements contained in this book have been passed upon by a committee of ten exhibitors and exchangemen prior to be accepted for publication in the booklet.

Billie Burke Reappears on Release Schedule

"GOOD Gracious, Annabelle!" is the title of the March 2 Paramount release starring Billie Burke. It has been nearly four months since the release of her previous feature, "The Make-Believe Wife."

The current production is a picturization of Clare Kummer's successful play of the same name which was first produced at the Republic theatre, New York, in October, 1917, and ran for several months thereafter.

In "Good Gracious, Annabelle!" Miss Burke is seen as a young girl who has been kidnaped and married by John Rawson, a miner-hermit, following a pitched battle over a mining claim in the West. When the girl, trembling and bewildered, starts to cry, her husband, whose name she has not even learned, thrusts her from his cabin and leaves her to shift for herself. Subsequently he strikes it rich and sends regular quarterly remittances to his wife who has taken up her abode and is living in extravagance at a big hotel in the East.

After the expiration of several years Rawson goes East to obtain some stock which he had sent to Annabelle and which he needs to secure to himself control of the mining company in which he is interested.

The picture was directed by George Melford. Herbert Rawlinson is seen as leading man and prominent in the cast are Gilbert Douglas, Craufurd Kent, Frank Losee, Belle Duncan, Leslie Casey, Gordon Dana, Thomas A. Braidon, Olga Downs and Billie Wilson.

Three Beranger Films on Schedule

Three productions in as many weeks, for all of which the scenarios were furnished by Clara S. Beranger, have been scheduled by World Pictures.

The first of the three is "The Unveiling Hand," which has been announced for March 10. It stars Kitty Gordon. The second is on the World list for release March 17, and is called "The Hand Invisible." Montague Love is the star of the production. The third is "Hit or Miss," starring Carlyle Blackwell. It is scheduled for March 24.

Among other World Pictures for which Miss Beranger supplied the scenarios are "The Bluffer," with June Elvidge, and "Heart of Gold," with Louise Huff.

Miss Beranger, it was announced this week, is to do at least one continuity a month for Famous Players-Lasky. She is now busy on "The Firing Line," by Robert W. Chambers, for that organization.

Helene Chadwick, Heroine in Pathe Release

Helene Chadwick, who was seen recently as leading woman for Douglas Fairbanks, and who has been seen in leading roles in Pathe releases, will be seen as the heroine in Pathe's release of "Go Get 'Em Garringer, a five-reel Astra production scheduled for release March 23d. Franklyn Farnum has the leading male role. John B. Clymer wrote the story, which tells of the adventures of a reclamation company in running down a gang of bandits.

Anderson in Magazine

Robert C. Anderson is seen in Universal's New Screen Magazine demonstrating the art of "speaking with the eyes." Mr. Anderson has been in "Hearts of the World," and "The Heart of Humanity," and is now on the regular staff of Universal players. A long list of other subjects calculated to entertain and instruct are embraced in the current New Screen Magazine.

Marjorie Daw, with Douglas Fairbanks in "Something for Somebody," an Artcraft picture

At the left is the large booking and clerical office of the Atlanta branch of Select Pictures. At the right is the office of T. C. Tuttle, branch Manager. Mr. Tuttle is shown hard at work

Aeroplane vs. Alligators

Matching a hyro-aeroplane against an alligator is the new sport invented by W. O. Runcie, camera man for Outing Chester Pictures.

He returned from the South with the report of his expedition by air route into the everglades of Florida.

The Outing Chester Pictures are produced by C. L. Chester in co-operation with Outing Magazine, and are now released by all First National exchanges throughout the country with the exception of the territory covered by the Boston Photoplay Company of Boston, Celebrated Players of Chicago, Quality Film Corporation of Pittsburgh, and Arthur S. Hyman Attractions of Detroit.

"The Eternal Magdalene" for Trade Showings

Goldwyn is now dispatching prints of "The Eternal Magdalene," a picturization of Robert H. McLaughlin's famous play, to all of its North American offices.

Trade showings are to be held immediately in all offices of the company, giving exhibitors the opportunity to see the production and plan their local exploitations of it six full weeks in advance of its release.

"The Eternal Magdalene" will have simultaneous release in not less than sixty of the country's largest cities for the week beginning Easter Day, April 20.

Lyons and Moran Busy

Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran are extremely busy turning out eight one-reel comedies on the Universal release schedules for March and April.

On March 3 the Lyons-Moran release was "Oh, Ethel," in which the comedians' new leading lady, Mildred Moore, shares honors.

"Chicken a la King," a burlesque on "Graustark," was the comedy released March 10, "Lay Off" followed a week later, and "The Smell of the Yukon," a travesty on "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," is scheduled for March 24.

Select Issues Three Productions in March

NORMA TALMADGE, Constance Talmadge and Alice Brady are the stars in the three productions that Select Pictures Corporation has scheduled for the month of March.

"The Probation Wife," in which Norma Talmadge is presented by Joseph M. Schenck, is by Angie Ousley Rooser, and tells the story of a young girl whose early life finds her among the entertainers in one of the tenderloin's "show palaces."

Norma Talmadge has the role of Joe Mowbray, the girl, while Thomas Meighan, her leading man, is seen as Harrison Wade, a man who offers to help Joe escape from her associates.

The picture was directed by Sydney A. Franklin and the scenario was written by Kathryn Stuart. In addition to Miss Talmade and Mr. Meighan the cast includes Florence Billings, Alec B. Francis, Walter McEwen, Amelia Summerville, A. Brooke and S. Liston.

Constance Talmadge's Select attraction for March is "Experimental Marriage," in which she is presented by Lewis J. Selznick. It is a screen version by Alice Eyton of William J. Hurlbut's last season Bijou theatre success, "Saturday to Monday." In this picture Miss Talmadge is seen as Suzanne Ercoll, a young lady whose aspirations to political fame is overshadowed by her love for Foxcroft Grey. Harrison Ford plays the latter role. It is directed by Robert G. Vignola.

"Marie, Ltd.," Alice Brady's Select feature for March, is a story by Louise Winters, with scenario by Jane Murfin. The story revolves about the fashionable millinery shop of "Marie, Ltd.," on Fifth avenue, and shows Miss Brady as Drina Hilliard, daughter of "Marie."

Marion Davies, star of "The Belle of New York," a Select picture

World Will Distribute One Single-Reeler

"The Ghost of Slumber Mountain," written and directed by Herbert M. Dawley, will be distributed by World exchanges. It is very seldom that this organization is sufficiently interested in single reel subjects to handle and distribute them, but it is said that this particular one-reel feature is of such unusual interest that the World organization will distribute it and consider it one of the big prizes of the year.

Drews Sepias for Lobby

Handsome sepia photographs of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew are said to be available for exhibitors who book these Paramount-Drew Comedies.

The announcement was made by "Henry" and "Polly" themselves from Chicago, during their engagement at the Woods theatre there in their stage play, "Keep Her Smiling." These photographs are mounted on mats measuring twenty-four by thirty-six inches.

In and Out of West Coast Studios

By J. C. Jessen

Universal Newsettes

Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Film Manufacturing Corporation, arrived in Los Angeles Sunday, February 23, for an indefinite stay. He was accompanied by Thomas Cochrane, general manager of Universal Productions in the Orient, and C. D. Cochrane, chief of the poster advertising department of the Universal Company. The latter has taken a home on Sycamore avenue, where he expects to live for the next few months.

"We are entering upon the greatest year in the history of the motion picture industry, in my opinion," Mr. Laemmle said. "I see in the future great things for Universal productions.

"While I do not care to divulge in detail some of our plans for the year, yet it is generally understood that Universal is going after some big things. I expect to make some announcements in the next few weeks that will be of more or less importance.

"I still adhere to the idea that the story's the thing, and we are making every effort possible to secure the best stories on the market. It is the ambition of Universal to continue to make pictures of the high class represented by 'Hearts of Humanity' and other Universal releases of recent date."

Allen J. Holubar, who directed Universal's great success, "The Heart of Humanity,' has started work on a new picture with Dorothty Phillips as the star. It is a society drama, the title of which has not been announced. Some of the people who will appear in the cast are Robert Anderson, William H. Stowell. Mr. Holubar says the new picture will be produced on the same pretentious scale as that represented in "The Heart of Humanity."

Paramount-Artcraft

Jesse L. Lasky, vice-president of the Famous Players-Lasky Company, returned to Los Angeles, Saturday, February 22, from New York glowing with enthusiasm for the future of the motion picture industry and announcing that great things are ahead for Famous Players-Lasky productions.

"January, this year, was one of the biggest months the Famous Players-Lasky company has ever experienced," Mr. Lasky said. "And one of the greatest factors in this record-breaking business was the fact that among the twelve features released on the Paramount-Artcraft program, four of them were tremendous productions done in a big way, with big themes and broad handling. Two of the productions are of especial mention, being 'The Silver King' and 'Little Women.' D. W. Griffith's 'Romance of Happy Valley' was the third production, and Cecil B. DeMille's production, 'Don't Change Your Husband,' was the fourth.

"While I mention these subjects as examples of Famous Players-Lasky excellence in the matter of production, yet they were not by any means the only big plays released by us in January. Tourneur's 'Sporting Life' and the picture called 'The Hun Within' were knockouts.

"We shall not only continue our plans to increase production from nine pictures to twelve subjects each month, but we shall do even more than this as the subjects become available.

"We have just completed a contract with Capt. Robert Warwick, a member of General Pershing's staff in France, to appear in the big special, 'Secret Service.' Warwick has seen some remarkable service in France and I predict that his popularity with the motion picture public will be greatly increased when he gets back into pictures."

LASKY ENLARGES

Nine Instead of Six Companies Accommodated

ONE of the important developments in Los Angeles film circles last week was the announcement that the Lasky studios are to be enlarged from six to nine producing companies. The announcement was made by Jesse L. Lasky, vice-president of the corporation, upon his return from New York.

Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, has arrived on the West Coast and announces great activity for Universal during the year.

Larry Semon has finished his first comedy for Vitagraph on his new contract, and Earl Williams is beginning a new picture at the Brunton studios. Fatty Arbuckle, according to confirmation received in Los Angeles from Adolph Zukor, president of the Famous Players-Lasky company, has signed a new contract with Famous Players-Lasky for three years at $1,000,000 a year.

Mary Pickford has finished "Daddy Long Legs" and will begin future production work at the Brunton studios. At the Goldwyn, Fox, Chaplin, Ince, Universal and other studios production work continues as usual.

Additional Studio News on Page 1676

Fox Studio Doings

Tom Mix and his director, Edward LeSaint, and entire company have returned from Arizona where they filmed a number of outdoor scenes in his newest picture, "The Wilderness Trail." The remaining scenes of the subject will be made at the Fox studios on Western avenue in Hollywood, and it will take about two weeks' more time to finish the picture. Besides all the dogs that figured prominently in the various outdoor scenes, Mix also brought back a bear, which, it is said, was captured in the Arizona wilds during the filming of some of the wildest scenes in the picture.

Director Arthur Rosson has completed the Fox picture, "Up Against It," in which Albert Ray and Elinor Fair are featured. It is a comedy drama, mostly comedy. It is not announced what will be the next vehicle for this clever couple.

Gladys Brockwell is in the midst of production on "The Divorce Trap,' being directed by Frank Beall.

William Farnum, having arrived on the Pacific Coast, is now busily engaged in the production of his next film subject for William Fox, which has been titled "Wolves of the Night." J. Gordon Edwards is his director, and Louise Lovely is playing the opposite lead. It is announced that this will be one of Farnum's most pretentious productions.

Fred Fishback has finished the Sunshine comedy, "High Life in Jail," and Jack Blythstone has completed a comedy called "Virtuous Husbands."

Vitagraph News Bits

Larry Semon has completed his first comedy for Vitagraph under his new contract. It is a pretentious two-reeler, the title of which is soon to be announced. In it are employed a large gathering of cowboys and much wild riding, wild shooting and other wild doings of the plains are burlesqued.

The Vitagraph serial company headed by Antonio Moreno and Carol Holloway, which is at work on "Perils of Thunder Mountain," has returned to Los Angeles after several weeks at Truckee, Cal., where snow scenes were filmed.

William Duncan and members of his company appearing in the Vitagraph serial, "The Man of Might," made their personal appearance at Pantages theatre Monday night, February 24, when the first episode of the serial was shown at that house. Mr. Duncan was introduced to the audience by Alexander Pantages.

State Rights Buyers Attention!

JAMES VINCENT

presents

The Great Production of the Official International Film

"THE SPIRIT OF LAFAYETTE"

From the Book of James Mott Hallowell
Adapted for the Screen by J. Searle Dawley
Personally Directed by Mr. Vincent

With Endorsement of
United States Government

Committee on Public Information
GEORGE CREEL, Chairman

Division of Films
CHARLES S. HART, Director

THIS IS NOT A WAR PLAY

"The Spirit of Lafayette"

THIS IS NOT A WAR PLAY

It is a stupendous production of the present day with touches of the past and future. A fortune has been spent on this picture which took eight months to make. The cast has been selected from the best artists of the profession.

Ex-President William H. Taft has publicly advised the American people to see it. It had its first showing at the Pershing theatre, St. Louis, February 23rd, in connection with the great mid-continent Congress of the League of Nations. It packed them in. It received glowing newspaper notices, but, most important of all, the public received it with the greatest enthusiasm.

State Rights Buyers and Exhibitors are assured of an exceptional production that is a sure winner.

Address all communications to

JAMES R. SHEEHAN
General Manager

JAMES VINCENT
1465 Broadway, New York City

THE FIRST PRESENTATION
OF THE OFFICIAL INTERNATIONAL FILM

"The Spirit of Lafayette"

EX-PRESIDENT TAFT SAYS:

of this wonderful film, which had its first production in St. Louis, February 23rd., in connection with the great mid-continent Congress of the League of Nations:

"I have seen the motion picture "THE SPIRIT OF LAFAYETTE." It is in admirable harmony with the thrill of deep patriotism stirred by the war and its victorious ending. Its climax in the League of Nations, exemplifying Lafayette's love of world liberty and giving an answer to his family motto 'Why not?', should in these fateful days challenge us all. I sincerely hope that the American people will see it.

(signed) Wm. H. Taft."

TELEGRAM FROM MANAGER LOUIS K. SIDNEY OF PERSHING THEATRE, ST. LOUIS:

"THE SPIRIT OF LAFAYETTE," produced by James Vincent, received its initial presentation at the Pershing Theatre, St. Louis, February 23rd., playing to crowded houses at every performance. It is a wonderful story of the modern doughboy. It has a strong pathetic appeal and holds the interest throughout. Earl Schenck as Marquis de Lafayette and Violet de Biccary as Adrienne are splendid. Their capable support helps put the picture over in good shape. The settings are magnificent and the photography is exceptionally good. The theme of tbe connection between the Lafayette incident in helping America and the payment of the debt by America is handled in an excellent manner and makes a direct appeal to the sympathies The production is unusually entertaining as well as educational, and will undoubtedly appeal to all classes of audiences.

(signed) Louis K. Sidney."

MISS GRACE JOHNSON OF ST: LOUIS REPUBLIC:

"Crowds view historic film at Pershing—'SPIRIT OF LAFAYETTE' reveals many events in life of great leader— That history repeats itself is graphically shown at the Pershing theatre.—This production gives a far-sighted significance to the French hero who is recorded as having visualized the idea of a League of Nations. The production was well received.— All the characters are human. The picture also gives an opportunity to gaze upon it from a sartorial as well as histrionic point of view. The ball at Versailles reveals a very elaborate setting and is one of the commendable features of the production."

FROM THE ST: LOUIS DAILY GLOBE-DEMOCRAT:

"Few pictures have succeeded so well in bridging over the wide spaces of history, the history that pertains to America as a world power as this, 'THE SPIRIT OF LAFAYETTE.' The picture, strong on its historical side, is a splendid example of modern cinematography. The happy idea of the Director, James Vincent,, was to begin the Hallowell story with the return of the American soldiers from the battlefields of France, and their welcome home. The streets of New York are pictured on the day the authentic news of the signing of the armistice is received. The hero of the story at that stage returns wounded, but victorious, and the homecoming is pathetically but hopefully pictured. The same spirit which inspired Lafayette in 1776 has been transmitted to the American descendants and inspired them to imperishable deeds of valor in 1918. Director James Vincent has been successful in assembling a splendid cast among whom are capable actors like Earl Schenck, Violet de Biccary, Marion Barney, Robert Elliott, Paula Shay and that pretty child actress, Kittens Richert."

STUPENDOUS PRODUCTION
THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE
EXCEPTIONAL ALL-STAR CAST: ESPECIALLY SELECTED
AUTHENTIC AND GORGEOUS SETTINGS
EIGHT MONTHS IN THE MAKING

AN INTERESTING AND ABSORBING STORY FILLED WITH JOY AND HAPPINESS, EXCITING AND THRILLING INCIDENTS, DRAMATIC CLIMAXES. TRUTH PROVEN STRANGER THAN FICTION. FILLED WITH HEART THROBS OF THE PRESENT DAY AND ALL TIME. A MOST BEAUTIFUL LOVE STORY.

COMPLETE ORCHESTRATION HAS BEEN PREPARED BY NICHOLAS ORLANDO

DO NOT DELAY. TERRITORY WILL BE TAKEN RAPIDLY.

JAMES R: SHEEHAN
GENERAL MANAGER

JAMES VINCENT
1465 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

The Great Official International Film

"The SPIRIT of LAFAYETTE"

To State Rights Buyers and Exhibitors:

Two million of our boys are and will be returning to their homes for months to come. The same spirit that moved Lafayette to aid America moved these boys to aid France. Heart throbbing scenes are to be enacted in hundreds of thousands of homes. Glorious celebrations of victory are to fill the country. These very scenes have been anticipated in producing "The Spirit of Lafayette" and are the very foundation of its story. True to life of the present day in that it touches the human heart as the human heart is at present touched. All classes of people will flock to see this masterpiece.

A League of Nations is under discussion by the greatest minds in the world. The very opposition to the scheme assures this production its advertising value. Every newspaper is to run striking headlines about it. The spirit of the United States, the spirit of Lafayette and the spirit of a League of Nations are one and the same. This also has been anticipated in producing "The Spirit of Lafayette." Thirteen colonies united into a league of States receiving aid from foreign shores in the person of Lafayette. Two million of our boys left our shores for the same cause with twenty million waiting to follow if needed. The war is over. It is a past issue. We are only interested in exciting stories of what has happened but the struggle for the cause is still on and will continue for months reported in striking headlines. Could any production receiv such natural advertising?

The mighty men of history who force their will upon the people of the world are dyin fast. The true leaders of spirit and principle ar coming to life fostered by the makers of histor today.

Everybody will want to know more c men like Lafayette, Washington, Lincoln just a future generations will be hungry to know of ou great leaders of today who are framing a const tution for their peace and happiness.

The world will be filled with the Spirit c Lafayette. Lafayette will be talked about b all peoples. President Wilson has started it b proclaiming him an immortal.

"Give the public what it wants" has bee a showman's slogan. How is one to know wha others want? Are we not all interested in th things that are on our minds and in our hearts a the present time? So it is and always has bee with human nature. Fortunate is the showma who has a timely production for his patron "The Spirit of Lafayette" is of the present da It is in the minds and hearts of all. Strike whi the iron is hot. Take it with the tide. He wh hesitates is lost.

James Vincent.

Special Service Section on

"The Spirit of Lafayette"

ALTHOUGH the general impression may be had from the title, "The Spirit of Lafayette," that this is a war title, as a matter of fact the action starts with the signing of the armistice. Therefore if you are going to play this picture you should make that point clear.

There is a good selling line right here? Refer to the picture as:

"A feature made since the war ended and devoted to the returning soldiers."

This picture relies for its thrills on a different element than any of the war pictures have depended upon—for here the feeling that the average spectator will get is one of gratitude for the men who have gone over there that the world might be safe for democracy and for the example of Lafayette whose spirit so truly led the doughboys on the battlefields of France. These boys are typified in this film by a returned officer who has lost his arm in serving his country. There is a tense appeal in this empty sleeve.

Incidents in the career of the great Frenchman are contrasted with those during the great war and this is responsible for a number of flashes that are likely to bring applause.

Another thing to call attention to in playing this picture is the timeliness of it in dealing with the League of Nations. In fact President Wilson took a copy of this picture with him when he sailed on his second trip to Paris and will see it on the George Washington.

This is cleverly brought in by showing the reproduction of a letter of George Washington expressing the hope for the destruction of autocratic forms of government and that right and not might should rule the world. At the end of the picture is the conclusion that while Lafayette and Washington fought for the League of States, the United States, the American's under the inspiration of both of these great leaders for the League of Nations that the world might be safe.

NOW for a brief resume of the story without going into all the details. The story opens with the celebration of armistice night in New York and then we are taken to the home of Richard Stanton, with the American army, and see his wife, his little daughter and his father waiting for his return. Then the boys come marching home. As her grandfather, in his G. A. R. suit leads her past the statue of Lafayette she is struck by the resemblance to her father and this is emphasized when he marches past her, one empty sleeve swinging in the breeze.

After the happy reunion the curiosity of Dorothy, the little daughter, about Lafayette and the reason her father lost his arm is still unsatisfied and the grandfather starts in to tell the story. First he told her of the beautiful love story of the Frenchman when he was but sixteen and Adrienne, daughter of the Duke of d'Ayen only fourteen. Their courtship is pictured on the screen, there being some particularly brilliant scenes and then we are taken to Metz where Lafayette is stationed and it is while here that he heard of the outbreak of the revolution in America. He determined then and there that his heart and person should be enlisted in the fight for liberty.

THEN we see him refusing the post in the king's household in the very palace at Versailles where today the world's peace conference sits and of meeting Benjamin Franklin who told him the object of the union of the colonies—for Liberty, freedom and equity. So he fitted out a ship to go to America and Adrienne showed the same heroism in parting that marked the women of America. These various incidents from time to time are shown in flashes that make the parallel between Lafayette and the American spirit all the more striking. Before he can sail he gets orders from the King of France, but with the aid of friends succeeds in escaping. Here there are some thrilling incidents pictured.

Then we see him landing at Charleston, S. C., in 1877 and the guest of a Major Huger whose little boy of six becomes his great friend. Finally he gets to Gen. Washington "I come to do all I can to serve your cause without pay or commission" and we get another flash likening this to the scene when Gen. Pershing said to Marshal Foch: "I have the honor to place at your disposal all the resources of the American army."

How Lafayette fought, how he shed the first drop of foreign blood for America and how the British general, Clinton, when seeing the heroic officer risk his life to save a comrade ordered his own men to cease firing is told and against this is shown the way that Stanton lost his arm, but here the conduct of the Germans and their treatment of wounded and prisoners is contrasted.

Then the grandfather tells of the return of Lafayette to France and to Adrienne but Dorothy wanted to know whether he ever heard from George Washington and there is thrown on the screen the letter

(Continued on page 1675)

At left, grandfather tells the story of Lafayette in the presence of his wounded son and granddaughter. In center, Lafayette, and at right the little daughter and the service flag

At left, the return of the officer with the empty sleeve; in center, another view of Lafayette and Adrienne, and at the right the fa goes to meet the returning hero.

Picture Should Be Coupled Up With Current Neu

SO long as the peace conferences are in session and during all the discussions that follow it in settling the various problems, especially if the League of Nations does become an actual body, you should couple the exploitation of this picture up with the news of the day. A careful watch of the daily papers will give you many angles from time to time that will throw the interest in the news to your house, if it is properly done.

Here is a selling talk that we would recommend:

"When your boys went away to fight they had a hazy idea that they went because of the inspiration of Lafayette in coming here to help Washington in the Revolution. Now they are rapidly coming back, fully imbued with the spirit of the great Frenchman. Many of them may be able to tell you his story, to parallel his acts and his ideals with those of our countrymen in France, but here the story is told, the wonderful parallel between the French in the revolution and the American in the greatest of wars strikingly drawn. And there is not a battle scene in it, for it opens with the signing of the armistice.

"We are all eager to hear the stories that our boys are telling of the heroism of their fellows. They will picture for you the thrilling things they saw, the wonders of a nation fighting for an ideal, but here you have the story of our first debt to France—the reason why we went across, millions strong, and drove the Germans across the Rhine. It is not a story of war, but of the inspiration of Democracy and you will not know what the sacrifice was worth until you have seen this picture."

IN the first place we would make a particular appeal to the families of the returning heroes with this picture and then to the boys themselves. The boys and their relatives who have suffered in anxiety at home are probably tired enough of fighting itself and of pictures of it, but they will always be ready to see the pictured inspiration of their going to France. If you are running this picture for a week or so you can make a big hit by inviting all of the soldier boys in your community who actually went to France to see the first performance or groups of them to attend the various showings. If your relations with the newspapers are right you ought to be able to get a good story over about the way they applauded the story of the man who inspired them.

After this you have a strong appeal to the schools and clubs. We would invite the members of the board of education or some of the leading teachers to see the picture and show them how this will inspire their students to greater things. The children themselves probably have a hazy idea of why we sent our armies against the Huns, but in the pictured form this story of the sacrifice and great spirit of Lafayette certainly ought to be remembered as long as they live.

This is one thing that we would call to the attention of these teachers. James Vincent, one of the best known of directors, and producer of this picture, claims that the most unusual effort has been put forward to make this picture accurate in every detail, and he challenged a correction. For weeks he had various experts at work in the New York library and other institutions gathering every fact about Lafayette and his times, even to the furnishings of various buildings that are shown in the picture.

Your women's clubs furnish you an opportunity for a similar exploitation.

THERE is one point that ought to give this picture added interest to the woman patron. Everyone has heard of Lafayette, of course, but the vast majority probably don't know whether he even had a wife. We believe that it would be worth while to prepare either a special letter or newspaper advertisement reading something like this:

"Of course, all of us have heard of Lafayette and feel the inspiration that he gave us. But do you know his wonderful love story, one of the most beautiful in all history and in keeping with the nobleness of Democracy that sent the hero to fight with Washington? He was only sixteen and beautiful Adrienne, daughter of the I d'Ayen, only fourteen when they married.

"When, after two years of married he heard the call from the Democrac America to throw off the yoke of the ty she sent him on his mission with the inspiring nobility that was shown by women of America when they sent t sons and husbands and sweethearts the battlefields of France that the w might be safe for right. Until you l seen her devotion to her husband, how insisted on sharing his hitherto solitary finement in a dirty prison you will have known one of the prettiest storie all history.

"That is a mere incident in 'The S of Lafayette,' but it shows how not America has paralleled his spirit one dred and thirty-eight years later."

If this is used as a newspaper adver ment there should be used one of the tures that shows Lafayette and Adri together, and at the top we would use heading, "The love story of Lafayette Adrienne"

WE believe that the most striking of general displays that you can us the picture of Stanton, his wife, father child in their home. That gives the best evidence that this is an "af... war" picture and carries out fully spirit of it.

Then use at the top of the displa large type: He's back, a victory in s of Lafayette." And then below this; smaller type: "He is imbued with spirit of the great Frenchman who off his arms and his life to America, but l you felt the same spirit, are you on same level as the men who have been there?"

Then go on:

"And do you know that there was th spiration for a League of Nations in a l that George Washington, after his retire to the peace and quiet of his Virginia sion, wrote to the Frenchman who fo with him. You have heard George W ington quoted a lot lately about entangling alliances. No matter what you may feel about the League, you certainly want to know the facts. The inspiration and the historical recitals are here."

At left, Lafayette and Washington; in center, the German war cabinet in session, and at right, Lafayette and Adrienne

We have already suggested coupling this picture up with the current debates on the League of Nations. As this is written it seems apparent that this is to be one of the world's greatest questions for months to come. You will probably have announcements from the other side, you may be able to quote from speeches of your own congressman or senator. In case that you are able to do that use cuts of the man you quote and then a few lines from him, and then if you wish you can quote the words from Washington to Lafayette that we have already indicated.

FULL material for the exploitation of this picture was in process of manufacture as this was written, and therefore could not be secured for reproduction purposes, but here is an offering on which you should exert yourself. It should be well enough advertised in advance by posters and in the newspapers to let the public be thoroughly familiar with it before the first showing. But we would keep the presentation entirely dignified.

There is no reason for anything of the freak in your lobby. It might be a good idea to display pictures of Lafayette, Washington, Pershing, Foch and others, slightly wreathed with their national colors.

But here is a plan that you can put over for big business and attract unusual attention to your theatre. It will take some trouble, but the results are well worth it:

Start right in now collecting the pictures of every boy from your city who has served in France. You people may see the boys every day on the street, but that doesn't impress like the group of them all would. Just before the showing of the picture have the best artist that you can get prepare a special design with the letterings:

"These boys were moved by 'The Spirit of Lafayette' and offered their lives for France."

Then include the pictures, with the names plainly lettered under them. You will have crowds in front of your theatre looking at these.

Anything else in the lobby is unnecessary. You might have the reproduction of the Statue of Liberty, in especial keeping since it is the gift of France and since the greater portion of the boys sail by this on their return from over seas.

THERE can be special emphasis placed on the production. There are no less than forty principals taking part in the picture, and there are thousands of others shown in some of the scenes. Some of these names ought to be especially mentioned, according to the attention they have attracted in your section.

Earl Schenck has the title role. He has been seen in pictures for years. It is rather peculiar that this actor, who so finely typifies Lafayette, has been before seen as the crown prince of Germany, but this is a tribute to his talents.

Violet de Biccary, who plays Adrienne in her youth, is one of the most delightful young actresses seen in a long time. She is only fourteen years, and you need have no hesitation in calling attention to her work.

TAFT AND WILSON

You Should Use Their Statements with Your Exploitation

WHEN the George Washington sailed from this port several days ago, it carried a print of "The Spirit of Lafayette," which was placed there by request of the White House. It will be viewed during the trip. Exhibitors who intend showing this picture had best watch for any comment he may make and save it for use later.

For the convenience of the exhibitor we are also reprinting the statement of Former President Taft after seeing the picture at a special showing:

"I have seen the motion picture, 'The Spirit of Lafayette.' It is in admirable harmony with the thrill of deep patriotism stirred by the war and its victorious ending. Its climax in the League of Nations, exemplifying Lafayette's love of world liberty, and giving an answer to his family motto, 'Why not?' should in these fateful days challenge us all. I sincerely hope that the American people will see it."

(Continued from page 1673)

that we have already mentioned showing that the spirit of those two then was the same that would make autocracy impossible through the world today and would give to every nation its rights and bind them together to enforce them in a League of Nations.

NOW we have the revolution in France and Lafayette fleeing to Germany where he was thrown into jail, being sent from one to another until he reached Olmutz. Here he almost escapes through the aid of a friend who proves to be no other than the little son of Major Huger, now grown to manhood. After that he is chained to the wall in solitary confinement.

Adrienne and her two daughters are also prisoners in Paris momentarily waiting execution, until they are saved with the appearance of James Monroe who announces that the United States conferred full citizenship on Lafayette and his entire family and offers them a pardon. But Adrienne, moved by the wonderful love that marked her whole life, demanded to be allowed to share her husband's lot at Olmutz and there she lives with him. But finally after years of suffering Napoleon set them free though Lafayette finally died in another prison into which he was thrown.

This moving story of devotion is paralleled in that of Stanton and his wife and then we are given a vivid climax showing the way that French soldiers followed Lafayette to fight for America and then of our millions imbued by his spirit, thrown into France. Views taken from news weeklies give startling shots of huge bodies of marching men.

Here and There

Madge Kennedy has gone to New York. She left Los Angeles on Sunday, February 23, and she expects to be in the eastern metropolis about two weeks. Her trip East is being made for two reasons. She was to meet her husband, Capt. Harold Bolster, in Kansas City, and while in New York she will do some shopping for her next Goldwyn picture.

Samuel Goldwyn, president of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, has left New York and is expected to reach Los Angeles about Wednesday, March 5. It is understood that his stay on the West Coast will be indefinite. No special significance is attached to his forthcoming visit, other than to supervise and speed up production.

Charlie Chaplin's new comedy, "Sunnyside," is nearing completion. The Chaplin company spent most of this week on location, and it is said the last scenes of the play will be filmed before the end of February.

Thomas Wood, six feet and four inches tall, weighing 483 pounds, of Brainerd, Minn., has been signed by Chaplin to act as a foil in future Chaplin comedies. Wood announces that he is a large man and not a fat man. He is 24 years old.

Mary Pickford has completed her first release for First National entitled, "Daddy Long Legs." She will shortly after March 1 transfer her remaining effects from the Sunset studios on Sunset Boulevard to the Brunton studios, where she will begin immediate work on her second picture for First National. Some of the final scenes for "Daddy Long Legs" were made in the famous Busch gardens in Pasadena.

Jack Pickford, now in the midst of production on a new story from the pen of Hapsburg Lied, published recently in a popular magazine, is this week on location at Idlewild. James Kirkwood is his director. Gloria Hope is his leading woman. Other members of the cast are George Nicholls, Russell Simpson, George Dromgold, Lizette Thorne. The continuity was prepared by Harvey Thew.

The first Major Stuart White novel to be filmed by the Great Authors' Pictures Corporation is that started this week under the direction of Edward Sloman, for three years director at the American at Santa Barbara. This film is adapted from White's novel "The Westerners," and the principals engaged are Wilfred Lucas, Forrest Stanley and Robert McKim.

The work of preparing for the first Zane Gray story "Desert Gold" is going forward under the direction of T. Hayes Hunter, who will be in charge of making the picture. E. K. Lincoln is here from the East and with Jane Novak as leading woman will play the featured lead.

Bert Lytell is in the middle of production on his Boston Blackie story, which is being filmed under the direction of John Ince. Alice Lake is his leading woman. The scenario calls for a number of prison scenes, and complete data on the style of clothing worn by the inmates at the San Quentin prison in California was obtained this week by Mr. Ince from David Larrimore, a deputy sheriff in Los Angeles county. Lytell refused to appear in the picture with false whiskers, it is said, and he spent a week in growing natural beard, or stubble.

Thomas Anderson, who has been appearing in Universal productions, has signed a two-year contract with Universal, it was announced this week. He has been assigned a prominent part in Dorothy Phillips' next picture for the Universal program.

Mary MacLaren has begun work on a new play from the novel "Prairie Gold," written by Sinclair Lewis. Others who will comprise her supporting cast are Davy Butler, Lydia Yeamans, Willard Louis and Carl Stockdale.

Hollywood Hookum

MARCH 15, 1919 NEWS MORE NEWS

Nippy mornings.

Jesse L. Lasky's in town.

William Sherill's in town.

Charley Christie thinks of going east.

"Pop" Lubin's in town—saying nothin'.

James Quirk has been seen in our village.

Jay Belasco claims that's his regular name.

Albert E. Smith is reported coming westward.

Dorothy DeVore broke into pictures on a smile.

Mary Alden is emoting on the Maurice Tourneur lot.

Margarita Fisher of Santa Barbara was in town this week.

Clara Kimball Young has two directors—the Earle Brothers.

Al Christie just for variety's sake, made another comedy this week.

Katterjohn Films has a big sign over the gate at the Brunton studios.

Bill Desmond reports a scarcity of mosquitoes in the Truckee snow country.

Again we hear suspicious rumors of the Virginia Lee Corbin Feature Film Co.

By announcements we learn that Peter Gridley Smith has taken unto himself a wife.

Elinor Field resides in Glendale, and commutes to the Christie studio every day.

Nothing new has developed this week with respect to May Allison's turkey farm.

Jack Cunningham claims to have written another original story for Frank Keenan.

So Roscoe Arbuckle has stepped into the million-dollar class, and for three years, too.

Grubb Alexander has writ another story, and Kathrine MacDonald's Co. is to put it on.

G. W. Bitzer, our own Billy, just to be different, had a steel tripod made for himself.

Jack Curtis will not have to have a shave for a month, for he is doing a caveman part.

George Hackathorn of "The Heart of Humanity" fame now comes forth as a scenario writer.

Jack Blystone threatens to put several thrills in the Bill Fox Comedies he is making now.

Bil Beaudine threatens to buy or any attachments thereto.

another panama hat with a twelve-inch rim for the coming summer.

Nat Spitzer had the Billy West sign taken down from the Bull's Eye studio washed and replaced.

Clarence Badger is home from the desert with the Madge Kennedy Company with no new snake stories.

Hampton Del Ruth has a timing device on his desk so that he can see his new comedy ideas regularly.

G. E. Jenks, the scenario writer, has taken up his abode where the waves swish on the sands at Venice.

Glen Cavender has discovered a new kind of bangs which he trusts will become popular with the fair sex.

Julian Eltinge has a lot of mail at HOOKUM office addressed to him with a "Miss" in front of his name.

Julius Stern is responsible for the statement that Dot Farley is the funniest comedienne in the business.

Frank Keenan is the first of the colony to come forth in a new spring creation, and you should see it.

Harvey Gates had three stories on Los Angeles' Broadway this week, and was too modest to tell anyone about it.

We hear that Hob. Henley is going to marry. We don't know the bride-elect, but we congratulate her just the same.

Bertram Bracken has spent the past ten days editing a Henry Walthall picture, and modestly admits he thinks it's good.

Edward Bity, who answers letters and writes pieces for the paper about Charley Chaplin, is an expert user of the multigraph machine.

Ethel Lynne is responsible for the statement that she does not add "e" to her name to be different, but just to continue the correct spelling.

Louis Chaudet claims to have lost sleep for four weeks because of the irregularity of the delivery of the private copy of "Motion Picture News."

Dal Clawson, the cameraman de luxe, has taken to the woods or mountains for a hunting trip, and a new variety of bear fade-outs may be expected.

The high cost of fighting hasn't seemed to in any way diminish the throng of our set that sit about the squared circle at a certain Vernon place.

An actor by the name of Harry Depp claims a new distinction—that of being the youngest looking old juvenile in the business. Harry is just twenty-one.

Francis Ford, the Daniel of the motion picture lion's den, has become so well acquainted with the beasts of the jungle, that they greet him "good morning."

Doug. Fairbanks is the second to be entitled to the distinction of adding "X-Artcraft Star" to his name. He finished his last for this firm this week.

LuCile Hutton capitalizes the "C" of her name because she first played in comedy, but now LuCile is is playing in dram-mer. Yes, with the George Loane Tucker Co.

Lyons and Moran celebrated their seventh anniversary recently, the boys having played together continuously for seven years, all of which we say is some record, eh?

Wiliam Columbus Ehfe suggests that the waiting public be warned that a new and attractive type of Rembrandt lighting effects and London fog photographs are coming up in early releases from the National studios.

Notice is hereby served on Andrew Carnegie that Bill Duncan is entitled to a hero medal for these many months, he having saved a number of lives, and this week the tale comes in that he expects to use blank cartridges in all future shooting scenes.

COURT HAPPENINGS

Clyde Cook threatens suit if HOOKUM libels him again.

Charles Chaplin decries a statement he saw in HOOKUM recently, the fact that he made another scene one week. He avers it was the truth, and only wishes that he could make a scene every week. There, Charles, is our retraction.

Affidavit reached this office this week signed by Dev. Jennings to further prove that he laid no claim to the invention of the Pathe or Bell & Howell cameras,

About Metro Players

May Allison's newest production for Metro is being completed this week. It is called "Orchestra D-2," and is the story of an usher in a theatre. She has two male leads, Ben Wilson and Walter Percival. George D. Baker prepared the scenario and he also directed the picture. One of the final scenes filmed was where the hero and heroine were called upon to stand in a rainstorm, wherein the hero gets a touch of influenza. The rain scene was staged at night on the Metro stage.

Viola Dana has started work on a new picture, whose temporary title is "Madelon," the name of a girl. It is a story taken from the novel of Mary E. Wilkins, with the locale in the California redwoods. Edwin Carewe is the director. The company left this week for Santa Cruz, Cal., where a number of exteriors will be filmed.

Hale Hamilton has launched production on his newest play for Metro, entitled "After His Own Heart," which is to be made under the direction of Harry L. Franklin. The story was written by Bess Ames William, and was printed in a popular magazine, and the scenario was prepared by A. S. LeVino. Naomi Childers is Hamilton's leading woman.

Special Service Section on

Elsie Ferguson in "Marriage Price"

ARE you one of the exhibitors who simply refer to this or that picture as being unusual because you have nothing else to say, or do you make the statement and then tell the public why it is different? If you have booked Elsie Ferguson in "The Marriage Price" you want to get straight down to the appeal that it will have to the various elements of the community.

To some the title might suggest that here is the case of a woman who paid a terrible price with her marriage, but in the end this is not the case, but you are confronted with a virile action with plenty of suspense and situations and settings that are unique, to say the least. This is not one of the pictures of women who 'sell themselves"—in the usual sense—even if it is into matrimony, and we do not believe that you are going to make your appeal the strongest possible unless you make that point clear.

Since her advent in pictures Miss Ferguson has been seen in a wide variety of offerings and it is more than likely that your patrons have a mighty good idea of the roles that suit her best. Her beauty and her personality have been made strong points in the advertising of many of the successful showmen and that same angle should be followed here. Here she has the role of a rich society butterfly who goes to the depth of poverty and rises again, unstained, to wealth again.

An outline of the story: Helen Tremaine belongs to the wealthy society set that thinks of nothing but pleasure. We are introduced to her at a novel banquet that she gives in a millionaire's stable with horses all around the horseshoe-shaped table and now and then one of the thoroughbreds being led into the center of the room for the edication of her guests. Here the decorations and the gowns are extremely lavish and you may well picture these scenes as showing New York society in its spendthrift celebrations.

Helen considers herself practically engaged to Kenneth Gordon, an idler, who has nothing, but there appears on the scene Frederick Lawson, a rich westerner, and now one of the powers in Wall Street. He is merely tolerated, because of his money, for he is not really considered "one of the set." But after this evening of lavish pleasure Helen awakens the next day to find that her father has died suddenly in Chicago and that his fortune has been wiped out. A short period of mourning passes and then the members of the set call to offer their sympathy. Van Orden, a wealthy but married flirt, is left alone with her and makes an offer to care for her. This angers Helen, but her anger only tempts him to seek to caress her.

At that moment Lawton appears and hurls Van Orden down the steps, the latter crying out that he will make his assailant the laughing stock of Wall street. Then it is that Lawton makes his offer of marriage, but is told that she is practically engaged to Gordon and when the latter appears the Westerner withdraws. Gordon confesses that he has lost what little he had and suggests that she marry Lawton for his money, but this the girl refuses, and declares that she is able to care for herself. A little later Gordon appeals to Lawton for help and is given employment to look after his affairs out of town. But the same time that he is taking Lawton's money Gordon is plotting with Van Orden to encompass the millionaire's ruin.

BUT Helen finds that making her own living is a different proposition. First she becomes the secretary to a rich parvenu, but cannot bear the insults. Then she tries motion pictures—as a last resort—and we have some amusing scenes as she fails to get the "Chorus girl swagger." Next we see her without food for days and with only a dime left to her name. It is at that moment that she receives a wire from Gordon informing her of his return to the city and inviting her to meet him at the Plaza for lunch that day.

With alacrity she accepts, but Lawton overhears and sends Gordon on a business mission so that he cannot keep the engagement and himself goes to fill it, and when Helen is being paged to get Gordon's message, he bribes the bellboy to silence. There are some amusing scenes as the girl mad with hunger sees the others with huge orders before them and her escort is distinctly slow about ordering. As the soup arrives he proposes again, and she replies: "I will do anything if you will give me some of that soup."

He takes her to live with his maiden sister, Amelia, until she is ready to be quietly married, but before the ceremony is arranged he comes to her again and tells her that she must not marry him for money, for she is independent herself, and then presents her with a number of shares of Southwestern stock, telling her that her father had bought this and had believed it worthless and therefore it had not been thrown in with the rest of his fortune at the time of the crash. But she replies that she has given her word and that she has no regrets.

GORDON returns from the west and is told that Lawton expects him, and so goes into the Westerner's office to await his return. Searching through the papers on the millionaire's desk he finds a memoranda reading: "Phone broker to buy all Southwestern stock that is offered." Gordon hastens to phone the news to Van Orden and the plot starts to ferment.

And to help things along Helen appears and breaks the news of marriage, at the same time declaring that she did not marry

At left Helen, the Westerner and the idler; in the center scene, where she is almost mad with hunger in the midst of plenty, and at the right view of lavish party shown in the opening scenes of the picture

At left one of the one-sheets; center, the six-sheet, and the right a three-sheet that will afford an excellent cut-out of the star for money and exhibiting the Southwestern stock. And then when she asks Gordon why he failed to meet her and he tells the truth she realizes that her husband lied to her. Then she is easily persuaded of the truth of Gordon's statement that there is about to be a great slump in her stock and permits him to take it to sell. And at the same moment she assents to Gordon's plea that she cannot afford to live longer with a man who has lied to her and tricked her into marriage.

When Lawton appears and admits the story of the engagement at the Plaza, Helen rushes to her home, determined to leave at once. She is about to go away when Amelia confronts her, telling her that she will never be able to support herself. Helen replies that the stock her father left her has made her independent, and then Amelia comes out with the truth that her father never left the stock at all, but that Lawton had made up the story and had given it to her so that she would not feel that she was being bought as a wife.

SHE has learned the truth and has realized that she loves hur husband, just as Gordon comes to take her away. He boasts that he has just cleaned out Lawton with the aid of her stock and that now they are wealthy. But Lawton appears and the girl throws herself into his arms crying that she has aided in his ruin and offering him her jewels to help restore his finances. But Lawton turns the tables quickly on the grinning Gordon with the statement that Gordon's gang has been the one that was tricked. "Wall street men don't leave their secret tips on the desk," he explains. "I took your measure long ago, and my one ambition has been to show you up to Helen."

For the reason that the plot has so many unexpected turnings and you are never quite sure what the result is going to be, we wouldn't do too much outlining of the story, but at the same time we would very plainly indicate the charm of the plot. And we would not do anything to leave an intimation that it is not perfectly clean, for there is not a suggestive thing in the whole production.

HERE are some of the selling lines that we suggest:

"First, Elsie Ferguson is seen as a pampered daughter of the rich, spending her riches with abandon. And then with her father's death, the crash and she is alone and starving, with only a dime to her name. Then came a wire from the man to whom she had considered herself 'practically engaged' inviting her to luncheon. Of course she went, but she found there in the place of the man she had expected the rich westerner that she had refused to marry. He told her a falsehood of the reason that her host had failed to appear. She was ravenously hungry and she asked no questions and when, before the food was served, he asked her again to marry him and she replied, 'I'll do anything if you'll give me some of that soup.'

"He lied to her again when he told her that her father had left supposed valueless stocks that were now worth a fortune, but she stuck to her promise—until she learned of the lie about the luncheon. What she did then and what she did when she heard of the other one make the climax of this story as effective and tantalizing as one could desire."

We are fully aware that this is a longer selling talk than you usually use, but doesn't that suggest to you that here is a different sort of a plot? It seems to us that in these days when exhibitors are trying to sell the actual picture that they are offering the main thing is to interest the reader instead of to "adjective" him.

Here is a shorter one along the same lines:

"While Helen's millionaire father lived she refused the rich westerner because he was not one of her spendthrift 'set.' When the crash came she refused him because she was 'practically engaged' to an idler. But when she found that she could not 'take care of herself,' and she was famished, with the odor of food around her, she agreed, and then did not take back her promise when she was told that she had suddenly inherited money. But when she found that he had lied to her she was ready to leave him in a moment—until she had found the glorious reason for his falsehood. Sometimes it pays to deceive a woman—for a while."

AND then a few even shorter ones:

"The western millionaire lied to the girl when she was famished, but he had a reason, and she consented to marry him. But he did not want a wife on whom a price was set and he told her of a fortune that had become hers; but she kept her word. One of the falsehoods she fathomed, without knowing the reason for it, and was about to leave him until she learned of the other—and then she clung to him forever."

"It pays to deceive a woman—if it is for her own sake."

"Her set went gunning for the millionaire westerner. but he won her and checkmated the whole bunch of swindlers—and all for the beautiful girl who understood just in the nick of time."

"She had spent thousands at a single banquet, but now she had only a dime and she agreed to marry the millionaire she refused, when the odor of food argued as he could not."

"She was frivolous, but not fickle. When she made a marriage bargain, she stuck by it—until she thought that she had been tricked. And just in time she realized that all the trickery was that she herself might be saved."

"Her life in society had been one among the artificialities. She did not know genuine men and when one of her own 'set' told her that she had been tricked, she believed, because she would rather trust one of the butterflies than a real man."

This sriking twenty-four-sheet will supply excellent cut-out for the lobby

"Magnificence"

ASIDE from the more or less chatty selling talks that have been suggested, whole presentation of this picture ould be a dignified one. There is no place re for anything of the stunt order. Any heap" effects that you use in your lobby ll only serve to injure the drawing power this picture.

Of course, you do not have to be told to y the personality of Miss Ferguson ong and to use striking pictures of her—d as large ones as you possibly can in ur advertising. Unless you are going to tremely large space we would prefer to e one of the pictures of Miss Ferguson one of the many handsome gowns that e wears in this picture—if you are de-gning your own advertising.

If you are using large space and you find at you have been getting good results in ur papers with half tones there is a strik-g scene which shows the society folk at a rseshoe shaped table with a jockey, Miss rguson and the horse in the foreground. he center portion of the same scene is own in the 24-sheet. You might use un-r this the line:

"Helen Tremaine astounded even New ork richest society set with her 'horsy' nner, spent thousands on it, and woke up e next morning to find herself a pauper."

RIGHT here is one of the points that can be featured in your newspaper stories. his set was actually copied from Frank ould's racing stables at Lakewood, where ousands have been spent. The stalls are mahogany and the columns marble, while ained glass windows complete the elab-rate effect. It is certainly one of the most nique scenes that has been put into a mo-on picture and will attract attention with e statement of fact and without superla-ves.

There are also scenes in the Hotel Plaza, hile all of the interiors,with the exception the few while the girl is experiencing overty are very lavish.

READY TO USE

List of Accessories Available to Purchasers of Picture

IN order that exhibitors may be able to play their campaigns well in advance we are giving the list of accessories available on "The Marriage Price."

Ready prepared advertisements come in one, two and three column sizes and in both cut and mat form. For use in displays or with the stories in the text of the paper there are two 3-column, two 2-column and five single-column cuts in addition to ten stock cuts of the star.

Paper includes two 1-sheet, two 3-sheets, a 6-sheet and a 24-sheet. Elsewhere it is pointed out how some of this can be used for cut-outs, for lobby display purposes.

There are eight 8 by 10 black and white stills, eight 11 by 14 sepias, and 22 by 28 sepias of the star and sepia scenes, colored prints of the star and black and white of the star. In addition there is a music cue and a slide.

It depends on how the gown question has been worked in your section. There are gorgeous ones here and we believe that it would be a good idea to tell this fact to a carefully selected mailing list—especially to the women. Elsie Ferguson is an actress who can wear handsome raiment to the best advantage and your patrons probably know this. Make this letter brief, adding a few of the selling talks of the picture itself.

In some communities the leading store may cooperate with you with a display of handsome gowns and then tie up with your theatre by using a picture of Miss Ferguson and an announcement of the showing of "The Marriage Price" at your theatre. But we would distinctly keep away from a display of "Clothes" in the lobby. It has been much overdone.

YOU have another appeal here to those who are confirmed motion picture fans with a separate little advertisement, but we would not make it too much of the teaser sort. One of the titles tells: "She made the mistake of most girls—that anyone will do for motion pictures" and then follow some scenes in the Famous Players studio here with genuine stuff. There are some laughs as Helen is unable to get "the Broadway swagger."

You might run a cut of Miss Ferguson and then rather boldly a line: "Elsie Ferguson fails to make good in motion pictures," and then below that explain that this is only in "The Marriage Price."

By this time you should have collected a large number of pictures of Miss Ferguson if you have been playing her pictures and we would recommend a lavish use of them in a dignified fashion in the lobby. If you haven't these the 24-sheet will make you an attractive cut-out and then there is a three-sheet with almost a full length figure that will attract attention.

THERE can be an attractive music setting used with this one, though it does not call for an especial effect. The selections want to be of a high order and the vocal numbers should be in the love strain, but away from the popular airs of the day.

There is some comedy in the feature, and though it is highly interesting there is none of that sort of tenseness that calls for radical relief with comedy. In fact, this is the sort of a picture that will fit in with almost any sort of a bill.

Inasmuch as practically all of this consists of interiors we would supply some contrast with the use of a scenic.

But in your advertising merely mention these as incidentals. Put your main wallop, almost the whole of it, on the feature.

The Independent Field

Smith Is Engaged to Direct Texas Guinan

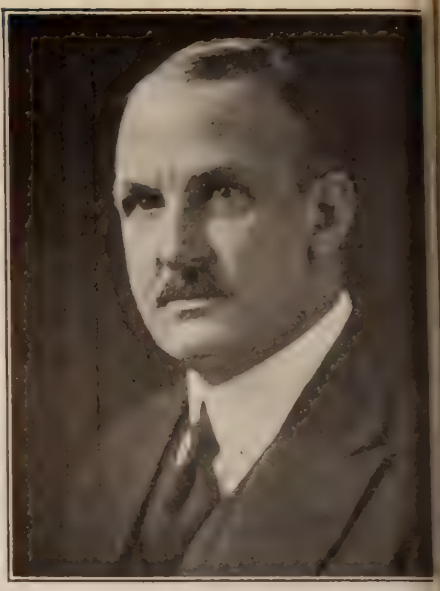
WILLIAM L. SHERRILL, president of Frohman Amusement Company reports from the coast that he has signed Cliff Smith to direct Texas Guinan in the two-reel Western features and that for this purpose the Chaplin Studios, in Hollywood, have been leased the lease convering executive buildings, development plant and complete equipment. Director Smith has been engaged by the Sherrill interests to direct Miss Guinan in a series of twenty-six two-reel Western dramas, a recently announced feature of the Frohman Amusement Company's new program of activities.

Director Smith is known promiently as a director of western dramas, having to his credit such productions as "The Disciple," "The Return of Draw Egan," "Truthful Tulliver," "The Patriot," "The Cold Deck" and sixteen other productions in which William S. Hart has starred, as well as "One Shot Ross," "The Learnin' of Jim Benton" in which Roy Stewart was starred. In making the announcement Mr. Sherrill said in the following statement:

"Recognizing that the time has arrived when two reel attractions of merit must be placed on a par with feature productions of a greater length, and appreciating that the independent exchangemen as well as theatre owners realize that the demand for shorter length subjects is now at a permament high water mark. I have determined to give the best that is in this organization to the production of worth-while two-reel western productions. I have sent communications to the representative state right buyers in the United States setting forth terms upon which these productions are to be released and more than 70 per cent. acceptances have been wired in. The franchises to be awarded will provide that The Frohman Amusement Corporation will advertise in the trade journals every week for an entire year. The company will leave New York for the west coast Studio this week, and actual production operating will commence immediately upon their arrival."

Film Market Reports Big Variety of Sales

Robert W. Priest, president of The Film Market, Inc., has taken over the sales agency for the entire world to Bernarr Macfadden's physical culture photo play, "Zongar," starring George Larkin and Dolores Cassinelli, and the foreign rights agency for Carle E. Carlton's production of "The Romance of the Air," with Lieut. Bert Hall and Edith Day Starref.



Paper supplied by W. H. Productions on Mack Sennett reissues, showing both the new and old title

Recent sales reported by the Film Market, Inc., include "The Grain of Dust," starring Lillian Walker, to Morris Berger, for Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia; "Zongar" to the Liberty Feature Film Corp., Shreveport, La., for Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas; "The Spoilers" (reissue), to Sol Lesser, for California, Arizona and Nevada; Gathem Film Corporation's miniature productions, (twelve one reelers,) including "The Star Spangled Banner," "Columbia," "The Battle Cry of Freedom!" "The Girl I Left Behind Me" and "Home Sweet Home" to Standard Film Exchange, Pittsburgh, Pa., for Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia; "Who Shall Take My Life" to Barnard C. Cooke, Pittsburgh, for Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia; "Wives of Men" and "Suspicion" to United Film Classics, Atlanta, for the six Southern States; Gathem Film Corp's miniature features to L. J. Schlaifer Attractions, Seattle, for Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana and Alaska; Gathem Film Corp's features to M & R Feature Film Exchange, San Francisco, for California, Arizona, Nevada and Hawaiian Islands; the Francis Ford serial, "The Silent Mystery," to Gonzalo Varela S. en C. Mexico, for the Republics of Mexico, Guatemala and San Salvador.

Levy Moves Offices

Colonel Fred Levy, president of Big Feature Rights Corporation, Louisville, which company controls the First National franchise for the Kentucky territory, announces that his exchange has leased new offices in the National Theatre Building, Louisville.

Robert W. Cummings has a leading role in "Virtuous Men," Ralph Ince Film Attraction starring E. K. Lincoln

Rothapfel Gets Hobart Script for Comedy

Samuel L. Rothapfel, Rothapfel Picture Corporation announces as the first comedy for his unit program, a screen version of a George V. Hobart sketch. Mr. Hobart is one of America's most successful playwrights having to his credit many important stage successes. Mr. Rothapfel maintains that the comedy element of a program is one of the prime essentials and with this idea in view he states that he has looked to the best medium for material for this phase of his unit program.

Wally Van who commenced work this week at the Bacon-Backer studios on the Hobart comedy, said that the script submitted by Mr. Hobart is the cleverest scenario he has ever read and assures the picture world that a high class comedy production will result. Director Van has completed casting for this comedy and "shot" the initial scenes the first of the week.

Pioneer Sells Territory on Oliver Serial

The New York and Northern New Jersey rights to Oliver Films, Inc., serial production, "The Carter Case," founded on the Craig Kennedy detective stories, have been purchased by the Pioneer Film Corporation. Herbert Rawlinson and Margaret Marsh are seen in the principal roles.

Pioneer Film reports sales on its two features, "Wives of Men" and "Suspicion" for Georgia, Alabama, North and South Carolina, Florida and Tennessee to the United Film Classics, Atlanta. "Suspicion" was produced by M. H. Hoffman recently appointed general manager of Pioneer.

"Reclaimed" Approved

Letters testifying to the success of Harry MacRae Webster's production, "Reclaimed," distributed by Alpha Pictures Inc., continue to come into the New York offices of the distributors, according to reports from Alpha.

Saunders Books Solid on Independent Releases

C. P. Saunders, manager of the Buffalo and Western New York exchange of the Independent Sales Corporation, reports that he has booked one hundred and thirty of the two hundred and fifty theatres of territory. Thirty of the sixty-four atres in Buffalo are on his booking list the three Independent features, "Wanted for Murder," "A Romance of Air" and "Woman." The three features, according to Mr. Saunders' report, e been booked solid in his territory.

Sheas' Hippodrome booked "Woman," l Manager Harold B. Franklin is running the Maurice Tourneur feature as a ial showing one episode each week. e Lyric played "Wanted for Murder," l has booked "Romance of the Air" showing in March.

In Rochester the Rialto has booked all ee features and "Romance of the Air" l "Woman" are booked in the Strand, racuse, while the Hippodrome in the e city is showing "Wanted for Mur-."

According to Mr. Saunders, the Lyric atre, Buffalo, did more business with Wanted for Murder" than any other pice shown there this season.

ndependent Sales Corporation has offes at 327 Main street, Buffalo, and operes through the Film Clearing House, Inc.

ourneur Has Completed "The White Heather"

The White Heather," based on the ury Lane melodrama, has been comted by Maurice Tourneur, who cut and ed it personally at his coast studio and t it to New York.

The premiere is now being arranged by ller & Wilk, the New York representaes of the Maurice Tourneur Productns. It will be at a prominent Broadway atre and will be announced shortly. ose who have seen the production prisely predict that "The White Heather" l be a sensation.

t is stated that Mr. Tourneur assemd an excellent cast for "The White ather," following his usual custom of senting a well balanced cast rather than star.

oreign Bookings on Oliver Serial

Ben Blumenthal Export and Import mpany have bought the foreign rights Oliver Films, Inc., serial production, The Carter Case," a screen version of Craig Kennedy detective stories, by thur B. Reeves; the France, Great Brit, Switzerland, Spain, Japan, Philipnes, Cuba and Australian rights have en sold.

The final episodes of this serial are now der production under the personal survision of Harry Grossman, Oliver lms. Mr. Blumenthal after seeing the st few episodes in the rough reported at he had seen enough to satisfy him at "The Carter Case" would make good.

THE INDEPENDENT FIELD TICKER

Territorial Sales Reported During the Past Week

Production	Buyer	Territory
"Mickey" (W. H. Productions, N. Y.)	Sidney B. Lust, Washington, D. C.	Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia.
"The Liberator" (Harry Raver)	Eastern Feature Film Co., Boston	New England.
"The Liberator" (Harry Raver)	Modern Feature Photoplays Ex., N. Y.	New York State, Northern New Jersey.
"The Liberator" (Harry Raver)	W. E. Drummond, Knoxville, Tenn.	Tennessee.
"The Liberator" (Harry Raver)	Variety Pictures Corp., Baltimore	Maryland, Delaware, District of Columbia.
"The Liberator" (Harry Raver)	Standard Film Exchange (Harry Charnas), Cleveland	Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky.
"The Liberator" (Harry Raver)	Tony Lucchese, Philadelphia	Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey.
"The Demon Shadow" (Arrow Film Serial)	Gardiner Syndicate, Buffalo.	New York.
"The Woman's Law," "Power" and "Miss Arizona" (Arrow Film)	Craft Film Service, Pittsburgh	Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia.
"The Demon Shadow" (Serial) and series of 32 Unique Comedies (Arrow Film)	Liberty Feature Film Co., Shreveport, La.	Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Mississippi.
"Huns Within Our Gates" (Arrow Film)	Far Eastern Motion Picture Co., Singapore, China	China.

Sidney Lust Buys Territory on "Mickey"

Sidney Lust, Washington, D. C., has bought the Delaware, District of Columbia, Virginia and Maryland rights to "Mickey," distributed on the Independent market by W. H. Productions. Mr. Lust announces that he has booked the feature for a week's run at the Parkway theatre, Baltimore, for the week beginning March 17th. He is planning a big advertising campaign through the territory. He also reports that Jake Wells, prominent exhibitor of Richmond, is negotiating for a return booking on "Mickey."

Record Bookings Reported on Pathe Serial

W. E. Raynor, manager of Pathe Exchange's New York branch, reports that he has booked the Pathe serial, "The Lightning Raider," starring Pearl White in 400 of the 700 theatres in his territory. He reports that the salesmen of the New York branch have average sales records of 40 per cent over their quota. In one New Jersey town he reports that the six theatres that the town boasts of have booked the serial.

In this same territory Pearl White's serial, "The Fatal Ring," had 385 bookings; "The House of Hate," 360, and the Ruth Roland serial, "Hands Up," 348 bookings. Mr. Raynor expects to break all records so far established with Ruth Roland's coming serial, "The Tiger's Tail," released April 20.

Houdini Serial Booked Heavily in Cities

In four of the largest cities of the country, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and Baltimore, B. A. Rolfe's serial production, "The Master Mystery," starring Houdini, released by Octagon Films, Inc., has 445 bookings. The total covers houses in the cities proper, and not houses in adjoining towns. Octagon reports that bookings in the smaller towns are proportionate in number. The Houdini serial has extensive bookings in the other large cities, including Boston, Newark, Pittsburgh, Jersey City, Atlanta, Washington and New Orleans.

Rothapfel Is Now Producing First Feature

ACCORDING to an announcement from the Rothapfel Pictures Corporation, this week, Samuel L. Rothapfel is planning the same aggressive campaign in the production field as he did in the exhibition field. To the Rothapfel Unit Program, planned by Mr. Rothapfel, was added the first step toward realization when Wally Van commenced work this week at the Bacon-Backer studio on the first comedy production of the new organization. The comparatively new studios of the Bacon-Backer combination, have been taken over by Mr. Rothapfel and a comedy company, under the direction of Mr. Van started to work.

The Rothapfel organization is located in the Leavitt Building, West 46th street, where separate offices have been furnished and Mr. Rothapfel and his corps of assistants are now established whipping into shape the final plans for the unit program. Frank Hall who is an important figure in this organization and Mr. Rothapfel are working together on the plan and both have been successful exhibitors on a large scale and both are working toward a complete one-hundred per cent. producing organization.

Ascher Brothers Book "The Master Mystery"

ASCHER BROTHERS, of Chicago, have booked "The Master Mystery," B. A. Rolfe's super serial starring Houdini in a number of their theatres, according to a report made to Octagon Films, Inc., by Celebrated Players Film Corporation, Chicago, controlling the distributing rights to the picture in the states of Illinois and Indiana.

The reasons prompting Ascher Brothers to revise their policy is contained in an announcement which is being projected on the screen of every house exhibiting the Houdini serial. The announcement reads:

"For the first time in the history of this theatre we will present a serial picture as an added feature to our Saturday afternoon program.

"We have just finished viewing the first six episodes of Houdini in "The Master Mystery," and we pronounce it the most remarkable serial ever made.

"It must have been to make us change our policy of never presenting a serial picture."

The first episode of "The Master Mystery" was shown on Saturday, March 1, with a new episode announced for each succeeding Saturday until the fifteen chapters have been shown.

Comprehensive Plan Book on "Better 'Ole"

World Pictures, distributing and releasing "The Better 'Ole" in the United States, have issued a comprehensive sixteen-page plan book on this production, as an aid to the exhibitor in publicizing the picture. The plan book contains, music cues, ready-made newspaper ads, advance newspaper notices, an outline of the methods of advertising and putting on the picture at its New York run at the Strand and a complete list of advertising accessories.

Alice Hastings, leading woman in Zion Films, Inc.

Star of Zion Production Stage Actress

Alice Hastings, co-starred with the Russian actor Giacomo Mazuroff, in Zion Films, Inc., first production of the works of the Yiddish novelist, Sholom Aleichem, first came into prominence on the stage under the management of David Belasco, afterwards playing successfully in Broadway productions.

She will portray the character of Khavah, the title role of Sholom Aleichem's novel, the first of the series of Zion Films' productions founded on the author's works. The story deals with the Russian people, and in order to get a thorough knowledge of these people, Miss Hastings is reported to be living on New York's lower East Side for a short period before taking up her work in the role of Khavah.

"Khavah" will be in five reels and will be produced under the direction of Charles Davenport. Irving Ruby will photograph. Nat Dorfman made the screen adaptation.

Elk Release in Demand

The Elk Photo Plays, Inc., independent distributors, handling "The Real Roosevelt" in Greater New York and Northern New Jersey, reports a big demand for this feature.

Gaffney Joins Arrow

F. W. Gaffney, for seven years auditor with the Travelers Insurance Company, New York, has joined the Arrow Film Corporation as auditor in charge of finances.

"Finger of Justice" Get Good Bookings

"The Finger of Justice," the seven-re feature produced by the Reverend Pa Smith, starring Crane Wilbur and distri uted by Arrow Film, is showing to unusu business in the Northwest territory, accor ing to reports from Grace M. Sanderso who is also the author of the story, an exploiting the picture in this territory.

John Hamrick, manager and owner of th Rex theatre in Seattle played the pictu for four weeks. It opened last week i the Auditorium theatre in Spokane for two-weeks' engagement and at the Liber at Centralia, Wash. It has just complete a run at the Academy in Petersburg, Va and the Strand in Newark. The First N tional Exhibitors Circuit of Richmond an Atlanta report good business with the fe ture.

It played a week at Poli's, Washingto and at the Grand Opera House in Detroi three weeks at the Bandbox, Chicago, an a week at the Standard, Cleveland. In Ne England it opened last week at the Colun bia theatre, Bath, Maine, for a try-out en gagement and was held over for seven days. The Premier Feature Film Com pany of Boston, which controls the Ne England rights, are negotiating for a th atre in Boston, where they will open for a indefinite run. Dr. Shallenberger, presider of the Arrow Film Corporation, announce that he will open the picture in several u State cities.

Fine Cast Announced fo Serial

A notable cast takes part in the forth coming Western Photoplay Serial, "Th Great Gamble," which is to be released b Pathe, it has been announced.

A. Alperstein, general manager, and Jo eph A. Golden, director of the Wester Photoplays organization, believe that t have a noteworthy cast is to have mo than half the battle of a successful phot play won right in the beginning.

In pursuance of this policy in addition t the co-stars of the serial, Ann Luther, wh needs no introduction to motion picture au diences, and Charles Hutchison, who in ad dition to a pleasing personality stops a nothing to perform "stunts," they have en gaged Warren Cook, Richard Neil, Bill Moran, and William Cavanaugh.

The company is at present in Florida ob taining scenes for several of the fifteen ep sodes which demand a Southern atmo phere.

Grossman Announces Seria for March

Oliver Films, Inc., serial productio "The Carter Case," adapted from th popular Craig Kennedy detective storie and featuring Herbert Rawlinson an Margaret Marsh, will be released the wee of March 17, Harry Grossman, vice-pres dent and general manager of Oliver Film announces. The serial production wa produced under the personal supervision o Mr. Grossman. The final episodes ar now in production.

Fischer to Start Second Production

David G. Fischer, producer of "The Law of Nature," recently placed on the Independent market by Arrow Film Corporation, announces that he will leave for Miami, Fla., this week to start production of the screen version of Grant Watson's novel, "Where Bonds Are Loosed." Mr. Fischer announces that he has closed negotiations with a star for the productions. Clarence Dull has been engaged as technical director and Stanley Mason as photographer.

Arrow Film reports that Mr. Fischer's seven-reel production, "The Law of Nature," which it is offering to state rights buyers, is meeting with big success, and that it was because of this success that Mr. Fischer decided to start production on his second feature immediately. Mr. Watson's novel, "Where Bonds Are Loosed," which Mr. Fischer will produce, has attained international recognition.

Gaumont Snaps Wilson's Departure and Arrival

Gaumont News No. 49, released to the independent exchanges Tuesday, contain views both of President Wilson's departure from France at the port of Brest and his arrival at Boston. The undeveloped negative showing his departure from Brest was brought over by an army lieutenant aboard the George Washington and was delivered to the Gaumont laboratories on the morning of the day it was released.

Other interesting items in this number of Gaumont News are the Golden Jubilee celebration of Cardinal Gibbons, held in Washington; the newly established passenger-carrying airplane service between Paris and London and the beginning of the mail service between the East and West, the first package carried eastward being a print of Mary Pickford's Fifth Victory Loan picture.

Wilson Made Manager

R. C. Cropper, general manager, Bee Hive Exchanges, announces the appointment of George W. Wilson as manager of the Indianapolis branch. Mr. Wilson is known prominently in the Central West where for more than six years he was manager of the Paramount Exchange.

One of the reasons why the Houdini-Rolfe serial, "The Master Mystery," is proving a success. Released by Octagon Films, Inc.

Dolores Cassinelli, star of "Stars of Glory," and Leonce Perret, author and director of the feature, which is to be released through Pathe

Waldimir Almazov Opens New Laboratories

WALDIMIR ALMAZOV, prominent technician in laboratory work here and abroad, has organized the Almazov Film Laboratories, with offices in the Fitzgerald Building, Broadway at Hudson Heights, New Jersey, announces his readiness for laboratory work of every description.

The Waldimir laboratories have a productive capacity of approximately half-million feet of film a week. Mr. Almazov states that with the additional machinery that has been ordered, installed the capacity of the plant will be doubled. It is equipped with a title printing shop, with modern process and every other modern improvement to the modern laboratory.

The corporation is financed by American and foreign capitalists, it is announced, and extenisve operations in the industry, particularly in the East, is planned. Mr. Almazov, the active head of the organization, was associated for many years with Biograph, the New York Motion Picture Company and others in this country and abroad.

"I have studied the needs of the producer," said Mr. Almazov, "and knowing them, we have equipped a laboratory which will be a mecca for the discriminating producer, director and camera man who expects and exacts the very cream of laboratory results. Special negative cutting rooms have been provided for their use, well equipped offices at their disposal, and a working harmony between them and our employees, which will make for results such as they demand, so that their efforts to obtain a fine production shall not be hampered by any thing which it is possible to overcome. Gathered about me I have grouped a selected corps of experts, each a specialist in his field, have given them the most modern and approved apparatus and conveniences and the results of this are shown in the work which they are turning out."

Goodstein Opens in Denver

Joseph Goodstein, who bought recently the rights for "The Master Mystery," starring Houdini, for the states of Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, New Mexico and southern Idaho, announces that he has opened offices at 1735 Welton street, Denver, for the distribution of the serial in this territory.

Raver Disposes of Territory on "Liberator"

Harry Raver, handling "The Liberator," starring Maciste, announces that he has disposed of the rights to twenty-two states to this feature. Eastern Feature Film Company, New England, where first run engagement has been arranged for the Park, Boston; Modern Feature Photoplays Exchange, New York State and Northern New Jersey; W. E. Drummond, Knoxville; Tennessee territory; Variety Pictures, Baltimore, Maryland, District of Columbia and Delaware; Harry Charnas, Standard Film Exchange, Cleveland, Michigan, Ohio and Kentucky, and Tony Lucchese, Philadelphia, Eastern Pennsylvania and Southern New Jersey.

Four Arts Ball Reproduced in Baird Picture

A reproduction of the famous Four Arts Ball held annually at the Odeon, Paris, by the artists' circle, is said to be one of the features of Four Star Pictures first production, a screen version of Augustus Thomas' stage play, "As a Man Thinks," featuring Leah Baird and now under production under the direction of George Irving. "As a Man Thinks" will mark the first of the series of Raver-Thomas productions starring Miss Baird.

Mr. Thomas, the author of "As a Man Thinks," was a guest at the ball several years ago and from his description Director Irving is said to have produced a striking replica of the scene.

Classified Ads.—Tell Your Wants Here

[Where advertiser is to be addressed in care of Motion Picture News send all replies to the office of publication, 729 Seventh Avenue, New York City.]

SITUATIONS WANTED

PUBLICITY CONNECTION DESIRED

Press Sheet and Ad-Man Box Q, M. P. News

Whole or part time

ACCOUNTANT — Experienced accountant, 22 years of age, released from U. S. N. R. F., desires connection as assistant operator or publicity man. Willing to go anywhere to start. References exchanged. Will consider work in film exchange. Address H. H. T., Motion Picture News.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR—Late with Bob Leonard, now with Canadian Engineers, Signal Corps. Expect to be in Los Angeles in February. Six years' experience, starting as property man with Wallace Beery. Twenty-two years old. If you want me communicate with Miss Gibsone, Mabel Condon Exchange, Hollywood.

OPERATOR-MANAGER—Operator and electrician, honorably discharged from aviation service, wishes position as operator or manager of small house in good town. Five years' experience. Can deliver the goods. Salary and all in first letter. Address O. V. Tilton, Auditorium, Defiance, Ia.

ADVERTISING—Wanted, position handling advertising for photoplay concern or in responsible position directly under advertising manager. Have had extensive experience writing ad copy as well as practical newspaper and theatrical experience, press agenting large middle western houses. Am 23 years old. Address J. M. M., Motion Picture News.

STUDIO WORK—Position wanted by man who can qualify as assistant director, technical director, casting director, studio manager. Has had special experience on serials. Formerly with Pathe and Astra studios as general utility and assistant director to Louis Gasnier and Donald MacKenzie. Just completed fifteen months' service in U. S. N. R. F. Address Studio, Motion Picture News.

OPERATOR—Young man, twenty-two, recently discharged from U. A. Army, desires position as manager or operator. Five years' experience. What have you in managerial line? West preferred. Address A. B. C., Motion Picture News.

ASSISTANT—Assistant director, one year in navy, desires connection with producer. Have assisted Frank Grandon, Bing Thompson, Howell Hansel, Allen Holubar, John Lopez. Can cut film and make scene plots. Address X. Z. Y., Motion Picture News.

Secretary of War Baker, at the left, and W. W. Hodkinson, at the right, after the presentation of "Made In America" to the government

SITUATIONS WANTED

PUBLICITY—Who has a position for a young man, honorably discharged from the army? Previous to signing up with Uncle Sam I had been engaged in newspaper work and magazine writing. I am desirous of securing a position doing publicity or advertising work. Address L. J. B., Motion Picture News.

SALESMAN—Just received honorable discharge from U. S. Army and once more wish to take up duties as salesman. Am 20 years of age; 3 years' experience as a salesman and can furnish best references as to ability. Would be glad to take up any other position in Film game that would finally lead to the selling end. Faithfully promise no A. W. O. L. Can call at your convenience. Address M. G., care of Motion Picture News.

SALESMAN—First class film salesman discharged from U. S. Army. Capable of managing exchange. Desire to locate with reliable firm where executive ability is wanted. Highest credentials. Address R. S., care of Motion Picture News.

PUBLICITY MAN—Honorably discharged from the navy. Have had experience writing sub-titles, film editing and arranging general advertising matter. College graduate. Moderate salary with concern where there is chance to grow. Address Geo. Goldberg, 52 St. Nicholas avenue, New York City.

WANTED—Honorably discharged soldier desires position with film company. Nineteen years of age and can give best of references. Address M. Laurie, 1 East 118th street, New York City.

WANTED—Honorably discharged soldier, 19, wishes place with film company, doing anything which will be appreciated by advancement. Can furnish best references. Address James Luxemberg, 1487 Fifth avenue, New York City.

SITUATIONS WANTED

STUDIO—Position wanted by young man who can qualify as assistant director or under advertising manager. Still in navy, expecting to be discharged shortly. Graduate of technical college. Experience in newspaper and theatrical work. Address H. A. T., care Motion Picture News.

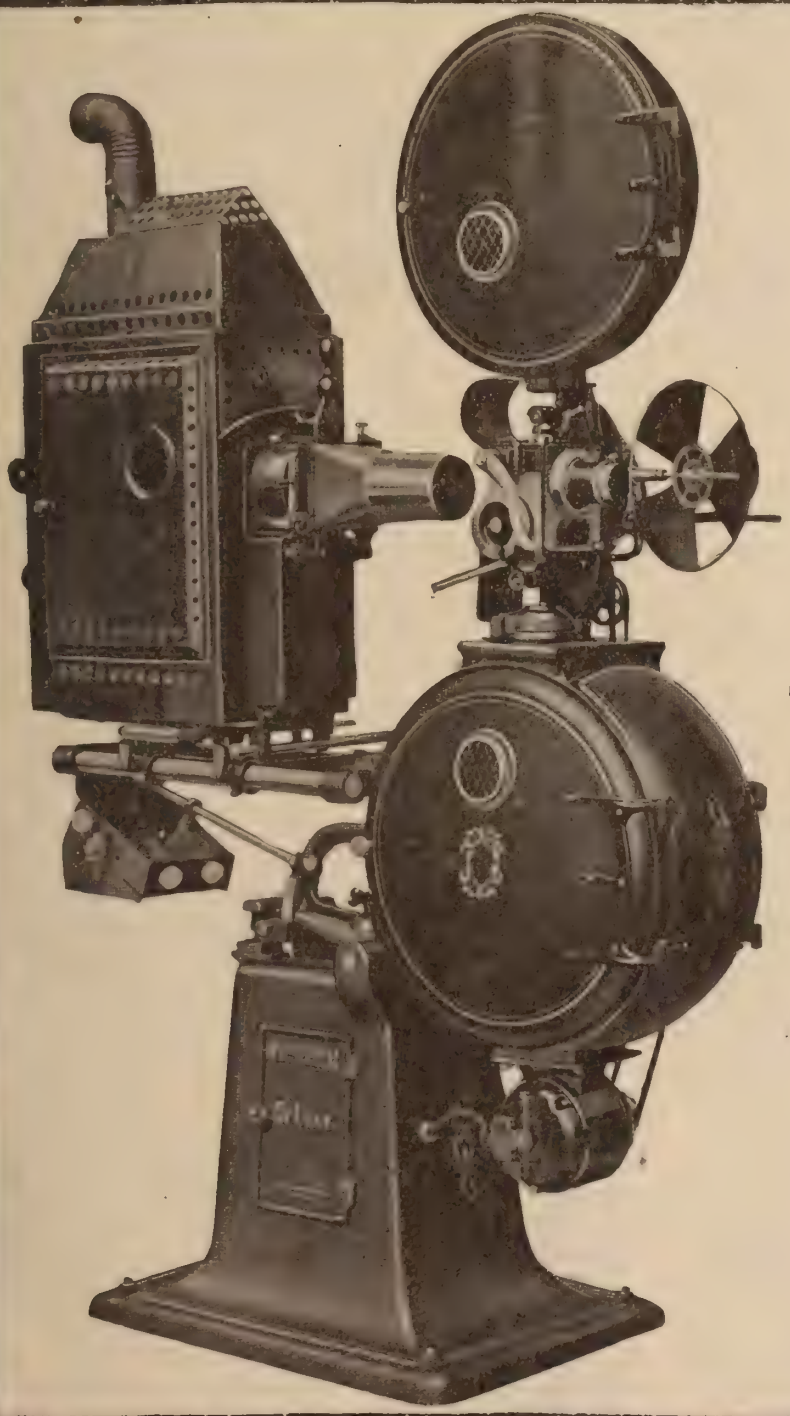
OPERATOR—Just discharged from service. Competent operator and electrician. Five years' experience; best of references. Go anywhere. Salary your limit. State all first. Address Wisconsin, Motion Picture News. H. J. Brackendor, 209 South Central Avenue, Marshfield, Wis.

PHOTOGRAPHER — Commercial photographer, 23 years of age, seeks opportunity to enter photographic end of motion pictures. Have had over six years' practical photographic experience. Canadian born, educated in England and Belgium, speak French. Not afraid of working hard. What I seek is the start and chance to learn. Address Montreal, Motion Picture News.

WANTED—Honorably discharged soldier wishes employment at anything with motion picture company. Acting preferred. Address V. Petione, 22 Prince street, New York City.

WANTED—Honorably discharged sailor desires connection in motion picture industry as salesman or any other capacity. Five years' experience on road, south and middle west. Will use all of my ability and integrity to promote your welfare. Nat Lubner, 916 Freeman St., New York City.

WANTED—For the past nine months have been with the U. S. Department of Labor at Washington. Want position in picture industry. Six years' experience as mechanic. Address D. Ward, 94 West Forty-second street, Bayonne, N. J.



YOUNG MAN—Nineteen years of age, honorably discharged from Aviation Corps, wishes position with film concern. Best of references. Address J. L., care of Motion Picture News.

ARTILLERY—Lieutenant of Artillery, 22 years old, two years Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania, desires position in production or distribution end of industry. Address F. K. M. P., care of Motion Picture News.

YOUNG MAN—Twenty-five years old, discharged from officers' training camp, naval aviation. Excellent training in seaplane, motors and automobiles. Wish position with picture company doing work along above lines, preferably. V. B. Berry, care of Capt. K. W. Perry, 200 West Ninety-fifth street, New York City.

SUPERVISOR—Film department supervisor, good buyer, desires connection here or travel. Has supervised film department in South America for American firm. Speak Spanish. Highest references. Discharged from navy. Edward Greene, 1043 Linton Avenue, New York City.

Equipment Service

THE Motiograph De Luxe

Has Many Points of Advantage

1. It is massive and rigid.
2. Its rigid construction eliminates vibration.
3. It is highly artistic and well balanced.
4. Film capacity 3,000 feet.
5. Ball bearing on take-up spindle.
6. Speed control fully enclosed.
7. Motor switch enclosed in base. Is invisible but convenient.
8. Speed control adjustable to a fine degree.
9. Base has leveling device.
10. Extra large lamp house.
11. Lamp house top removable.
12. Opening in base of lamp house to remove carbon dust.
13. Can use 12″ upper and 12″ lower carbons.
14. Constant speed one-sixth H. P. Motor.
15. Electric motor connections from inside of pedestal. (Cable protected and out of sight.)
16. Thick screen glass windows in magazines.
17. Improved quick change Motiograph Condenser Mount with focusing adjustment.
18. Hardened feed and take-up sprockets.
19. All steel spiral cut gears. (The only projector so equipped.)

The most popular equipment for all modern theatres.

See your dealer about this new projector, or write for literature.

Enterprise Optical Mfg. Co
564-572 W. Randolph St.
Chicago, Ill.

WESTERN OFFICE:
833 Market St. San Francisco, Cal.

Projection Music Laboratory Studio Theatre

ANNOUNCING

to the most exacting and particular

PRODUCERS and MANUFACTURERS in the motion picture industry

LABORATORIES EXTRAORDINARY manned by a corps of selected experts, each a specialist in his own work, equipped with the most modern apparatus, and with

THE HIGHEST STANDARD OF RESULTS AND SERVICE THEIR FIXED PURPOSE

DEVELOPING, DOUBLE PRINTING, DOUBLE TONING, CHEMICAL FADES, TITLES, EFFECTS AND ALL OTHER FORMS OF LABORATORY WORK ESSENTIAL IN PRODUCING RESULTS THAT WILL PUT YOUR PRODUCTIONS

IN A CLASS BY THEMSELVES

A Trial Order Will Convince You as to Quality and Prices Being the Best Obtainable

ALMAZOV FILM LABORATORIES, Inc.

GENERAL OFFICES,

1482 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

Phone: Bryant 9675-6

BETTER SATISFACTION

This notice is addressed to the minority of our subscribers who do not regularly answer advertisements. The service described is, however, open and free to all who wish our help.

We do not wish to discourage you from writing direct to our advertisers; in fact, you do not do enough of it for your own good, but we do want you to get the proper goods to fit your needs.

There are many, perhaps you, who are too busy to write each company separately; therefore we are offering our co-operation, which means that you will receive full information on any subject which you may designate by merely filling out the coupon, designating by numbers the goods in which you are interested.

Your inquiries thus received will be forwarded to reputable manufacturers, even though the goods on which you wish information are not advertised in the "News."

1. Advertising Novelties
2. Architectural Suggestions
3. Arc Controllers
4. Brass Rails
5. Building Material
6. Cameras—Camera Attachments
7. —Camera Lenses
8. Carbons
   Chairs
9. Chair Upholstery
10. Change Making Machines
11. Condensers
12. Converters and Transformers
13. Developing Material
14. Developing and Printing
15. Developing Tanks
16. Disinfectants and Perfumes
17. Economizers
18. Electric Signs
19. Elevators and Escalators
20. Exterior Lighting
21. Film Cabinets
22. Film Carriers
23. Film Cement
24. Film Cleaners
25. Film Dyes
26. Film Stock
27. Fire Extinguishers
28. Floral Decorations
29. Gas Engines
30. Generators (See Gas Engine Card)
31. Heralds
32. Interior Lighting
33. Interior Telephones
34. Laboratory Apparatus
35. Lenses
36. Lighting Sets
37. Lithographers
38. Lobby Display
39. Lobby Novelties
40. Metal Ceilings
41. Motors
42. Mural Paintings
43. Musical Instruments
44. Paints
45. Perforating Machines
46. Printing Machines
47. Programs
48. Projection Booths
49. Projection Lenses
50. Projection Machines
51. Projection Machines (Homes)
52. Rectifiers
53. Reels
54. Rewinders
55. Rheostats
56. Safety Exit Locks
57. Screens
58. Slide Ink
59. Slides
60. Slip Covers
61. Stage Setting
62. Studio Lights
63. Tickets
64. Ticket Selling Machine
65. Ticket Taking Machine
66. Tripods
67. Uniforms
68. Vacuum Cleaners
69. Ventilating and Fans

Gentlemen: Please send me descriptive matter on the subjects marked in the above lists.

Name.....

Theatre.....

City.....

State.....

Equipment Service

Devoted to the technical branches of the motion picture industry, containing records of the latest accomplishments in the mechanical and scientific field; projection helps, inventions and suggestions; camera devices analyzed and commented upon; musical cue sheets for important feature pictures; improvements and innovations in the building and furnishing field.

No charge is made in these departments for answering questions of any nature. Correspondence is invited.

E. KENDALL GILLETT.....Editor

Speed Up? Never

"THE exchange business up our way is one big rush. We are over our heads all the while. We do our best by every theatre, big and little, and, what is more, we tell the truth. When we tell a man a thing our word is as good as our bond. Never has a theatre suffered at our hands, at least as far as we have found out. If a salesman over sells a film and does not tell the truth, he is no longer our salesman. He is fired. We are the servants of the theatre men and we get the bookings."

Thus spoke the manager of one of the biggest and probably the most prominent and financially successful exchanges in the Middle West. Every theatre man knows him, trusts him and relies on him. Half his first run bookings are made by telephone as soon as he has seen a new picture himself and can estimate its value.

"When a theatre man lies to me he usually does not repeat, for he never gets another chance. When a good print goes out of my shop and is mutilated by a theatre, that house pays the repair bills or he gets not a single foot of film in future. We run honest and we expect the theatre to do the same."

"The other evening I was in the southern part of the state. One of my best pictures was being shown in that particular house outside of which I stood. The crowd was thick in the lobby and the first performance packed. The picture was evidently making good.

"The manager stepped in the house and I followed him. I was appalled. The picture was being put through the machine upstairs like a race horse—probably at the rate of nine minutes or less. It was jumping all over the screen.

"I knew the way to the projection room and I went there. I wasted no time. I climbed the ladder and burst in. I closed the port, threw down the douser and took the film out of the machine. The operator, who was a small man, knew me and realized that what I said went. There was no need of talking to him, so I did not. I started to pack the show up.

"The bell from the office rang. The operator answered. All he said was, 'The show is over.' That was enough. The manager, with his tongue out, lit in the projection room. He found me smiling, but busy.

"He was excited and wanted to know what was the trouble. I told him nothing now, but that when my film was going through his old machine at the rate of a thousand feet in nine minutes there was something wrong. I told him he could get film elsewhere if this was his method of house operation. My film was meant for operation at between thirteen and fifteen minutes and no faster.

"He stormed a bit, but promised to be good, so we finished the show. When the last patron had left the theatre I called the manager and projectionist together and in the most quiet manner I could assume I told them somewhat as follows:

"That feature cost my company about two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000) to make. It is a wonderful show. It contains as fine acting and as fine a story as has ever been put into motion pictures. It is a masterpiece. Pictures of that class come seldom, and it is they which make for greater, better and wider motion picture entertainment. Had I charged your theatre two hundred dollars a day instead of twenty-five you would have taken care to have run the picture at proper speed. All you are looking for is the everlasting gate receipts, but if you are going to run pictures as you have tonight, you should be conducting a dump, and if you continue your present methods you can get your pictures elsewhere.

"I asked him what he intended to do and upon getting his assurance that he would never rush a show again, and a further promise from the projectionist that he would never obey such orders again, I left, and since that time this particular house has been one of my very best customers. In fact, the owner has signed for all my pictures first run in his new eighteen hundred seat theatre."

This "speeding up" should be absolutely eliminated. It is the curse of the picture show. A good production is absolutely ruined by poor projection and no man is worthy to be considered a projection-

(Continued on page 1690)

Equipment Operating Projection Questions Answered

Lens Dimensions, Etc.

JACOB SHEETS, Northampton, Pa., propounds the following questions:

(1) What size projection lens am I using on the Powers 6 A machine, a quarter or a half size?

(2) How is the focus of the projector lens measured? I do not quite understand the meaning of "aperture."

(3) What is a rectifier, or in other words, how does it change the current from A. C. to D. C.? Are they expensive and are they proven to be a success?

In reply: We first of all compliment the correspondent on putting forth his questions in an intelligent and straightforward manner and will try to clear the various points up for him in the order given.

Unless a half-sized lens was especially ordered when the Powers machine was purchased, the correspondent can be pretty certain that he is not working with such an objective. It is easy, however, to ascertain whether the lens is a half-size one or whether it is something smaller. If it is a half-size lens, the diameter of its component glasses will be 3½ inches wide, or upwards, which is considerably in excess of the diameter of the customary cine projection lens. Half-size lenses are not supplied as regular equipment by any of the makers of projection machines, so the correspondent will probably find that he has an ordinary objective of smaller dimensions, such as are commonly termed quarter-size. While we are on the subject of the half-size lens, we might state that it can be shown that there is no advantage whatever in the use of objectives of such large aperture in motion picture projection.

The most important focal measurement of a projection lens is its equivalent focus (E. F.), for it is the E. F. which determines the size of the projected picture. The focal value marked on the lens barrel by the manufacturer is the E. F., so it is hardly ever necessary for an operator to make this measurement. In case an operator does require to ascertain the E. F. of his projection lens, it is important, however, to set about this in the right way, and as the instructions given in all of the Handbooks are incorrect, the following suggestions are in order:

The E. F. of a projection lens, or any other positive lens, is the distance behind the second principal point at which a parallel incident ray cuts the axis after refraction by the lens, and this value is the E. F. marked by the makers on projection lenses.

We do not enter here upon the details by which the E. F. is measured, because this has just been thoroughly explained, with diagrams and the necessary formulae, in the Camera Department. The optical articles in the Camera Department are for the instruction of operators, as well as cinematographers, and by commencing at the beginning of the series, our operator readers will secure exact information on the action and properties of lens systems. In an early issue the study of the principal points (from which exact focal lengths are measured) will be extended to compound lens systems, such as projection objectives.

In the loose and ordinarily used sense, the term "aperture" means the ratio of the diameter of the lens glasses to the focal length; for instance, a lens of 4 inch E. F. the diameter of whose glasses is 1 inch, would be said to have an "aperture" or rapidity of f/4. This is in no wise a correct statement of the effective aperture of the lens, however; the aperture ratio is properly defined as the ratio of the diameter of the "entrance-pupil" to the focal length. As the subject of pupils is at present somewhat ahead of the operator, we must advise the correspondent to follow the optical articles in the Camera Department until we come to the detailed explanation of pupils and other things concerned with aperture. For his present requirements, however, he can assume that if he has two objectives of like E. F. but different diameter, the lens whose glasses have the largest diameter is the one of greatest aperture.

With regard to the Mercury Arc Rectifier, for changing A. C. into D. C. this cannot be treated in extenso at present, although a complete article on the subject is a possibility in the near future. Briefly, A. C. current after passing through an auto-transformer passes into a tube containing rarified mercury vapor. At the bottom of the tube, and connected with the incoming current, are two separated pools of mercury. By tipping the tube mercury from the two pools is splashed into contact, creating an arc across the mercury vapor in the tube.

Due to the manner in which the electrodes of the tube are arranged, the current from the mercury arc is rendered unidirectional, i. e., it can only leave the tube through a certain outlet, from which it passes to the arc as a D. C. current, but still of a pulsating character. In effect the ordinary A. C. waves are flattened out by the rectifier and their hollows somewhat filled in by a reactance, which is part of the outfit, and the result at the projector lamp is a light with D. C. characteristics. The Mercury Arc rectifiers, as made by the General Electric Company and the Westinghouse Company are an established success, and full descriptive information concerning them may be secured from the respective manufacturers. A description of the latest Westinghouse rectifier appears in the present issue.

Unsteady Picture

J. H. JENKINS, Boissevain, Manitoba, writes: "I have a Motiograph machine which I have run for a few years, running one or two nights a week. I get a jump in the picture in running. The faster I run the worse it is, and especially when a joint passes through the intermittent. My sprockets are nearly new, and I have also put in a new aperture plate and spring shoes. I have no lost motion in the intermittent sprocket and my framing device seems to be solid. Can you tell me where to look for the trouble?"

In reply: Inasmuch as the correspondent has not described the jump in his picture, as it appears on the screen, we cannot advise the particular mode of removing it right offhand, but we can, as the correspondent requests, suggest some places to look for the trouble.

Firstly, it is just possible that the machine is not securely fastened to the floor of the operating-room, or, even if it is firmly anchored, there may perhaps be vibrations present. When a projector is not firmly mounted the picture will move up and down, and sometimes sidewise, on the screen in exact accompaniment with the turning of the crank, and in such a case, the faster the machine is cranked the more rapid will be the jumping movement of the picture on the screen.

It seems to us, however, that were the correspondent's machine not firmly mounted he would be aware of this, so we will suggest some other causes of unsteady projection. It might, for instance, be found that the tension-shoes which bear upon the film at the aperture-plate are not bearing with sufficient pressure against the film. This could also account for the correspondent's statement that the jump in the picture increases with increased speed of projection. As a rule, it is found that most operators carry too tight a tension on the shoes, or springs, but the correspondent is, nevertheless, advised to investigate this point.

We note that the correspondent has recently installed new sprockets, but he says nothing about the renewal of the star-wheel or cam. It may happen that the starwheel or the cam, or both, are badly worn and need rewinding, although the design and mode of adjustment of the Motiograph intermittent is conducive to a long period of usefulness on the part of the star and cam. It can further be promised in view of the recent installation, by the correspondent, of new sprockets, that either in removing the worn intermittent sprocket, or in putting on the new one, the spindle carrying the star and sprocket may have become sprung or bent slightly out of true. It is hard to imagine how this could occur, as the Motiograph intermittent sprocket is secured to its shaft with set-screws and no punching is necessary o remove it. We mention it as a possible cause of the jump in he picture, and many other causes of the same annoyance could e mentioned, not the least of which is excessive wear in the earings of the intermittent movement.

With regard to the jumping of the picture when a splice passes hrough the intermittent, this is a common occurrence and is ometimes due to the type of the join, a thick splice generally ausing the picture to climb momentarily on the screen. This umping of the picture when a splice traverses the intermittent an also be caused by having the idler-roller set too close to the rocket, and we recommend that all idler-rollers be adjusted so hat they are at a just perceptible distance from the faces of rojector sprockets.

How Are Projector Carbons Manufactured?

NELSON, Douglas, Ariz.: "How are projector carbons manufactured, including the Holdarc and Silver-tip?"

REPLY: A description of the process of arc-light carbon manufacture would consume rather more space than its value to the practical projectionist would justify; nevertheless, we may prepare a brief article on the subject at some future time. An interesting book on the subject may, however, be consulted at public libraries. It is entitled "The Manufacture of Carbons for Electric Lighting and Other Purposes," by Francis Joel. The manufacturers of the Holdarc and Silver-tip carbons have not made known the methods by which they deposit the metallic coating on these special negative carbons. It is probably done by electro-plating, a process which can be readily studied up in text-books on the subject. As is now well known, a carbon coated with metal gives less resistance to the current than a plain carbon, and the use of such carbons as the negative electrodes of D. C. projection arcs results in improved steadiness of burning and makes the control of the arc much easier.

Good Light in Both Lamps

B. C. DICE, Tooele, Utah: "Tell me the reason I cannot get as good a light at the aperture of one of my machines as I do at the other? Everything is just alike on both machines and seems to be O.K. Both lamps are wired the same and draw the same amperage."

Reply: Although the data is insufficient, we suggest the following: Possibly the amperage is not the same at both arcs and if separate resistances or other devices are used for the two lamps it is very likely that the amperage is not identical in both cases. Have the amperages of the two arcs measured with an ammeter. Even though both arcs were found to be burning equal, an inferior condenser system could greatly reduce the intensity at the aperture of one machine. See if one set of condensers is not inferior in quality to the other set, or whether the condensers are not severely discolored or roughened on the face next the arc, causing severe light scattering. For best results all condensers should be polished every day.

Reply to Question from Hamilton

H. SEDGWICK, Hamilton, Ont.: "Please explain the 'aerial-image' of the condenser in connection with the distance at which the shutter should be located in front of the lens."

Reply: When light is passed through a projector optical system, and the region in front of the objective is explored with a white paper screen, a spot is found at which the projected beam is of the smallest cross-section. This section of the projected beam may be either rectangular or round in shape, indicating respectively that the condensers are approximately at the proper distance from the machine aperture, or that they are too far from the aperture to permit the entire available amount of light being utilized.

The considerations which must be fulfilled in order to utilize all of the light proceeding from the condensers have been thoroughly treated in our article, "The Regulation of the Rays in Cinematographic Projection Systems," and the correspondent is advised to consult the same. It is there pointed out that the narrow section of the beam is not an "aerial image," but a real image, and this image sometimes coincides with the plane in which the revolving shutter operates, in which event it can be plainly seen on the shutter blades when the machine is running.

It would seem that, inasmuch as this image represents the

SILVERTIP

THE STANDARD NEGATIVE CARBON

The Silvertip, designed and made to give high class projection on direct current, stands alone in the field. A fair trial has convinced a large number of projectionists of the high quality of this carbon which is now highly recommended by them. The Silvertip used in connection with the Columbia upper is the standard direct current trim in the majority of high class motion picture houses.

The Columbia-Silvertip combination gives a light source of high intensity, together with flickerless screen registration. The Silvertip is heavily plated with metal having a silvery finish from which it derives its trade name.

Use White A. C. Specials for Perfect Alternating Current Projection

Write for Circulars

NATIONAL CARBON COMPANY, Inc.
CLEVELAND, OHIO

The Essential Requirements
for Improved Projection
are
SPEER CARBONS

SPEER Alterno Combinations
for A.C. Work
and
SPEER Hold-Ark Combinations
for D.C. Work

Produce Incomparable Results

Write today for descriptive folders. Read the unbiased opinions of operators

Place an order now with your Supply House

"The Carbons with a Guarantee"

Manufactured by
SPEER CARBON COMPANY
ST. MARYS, PA.

Sharlow's Reels
PATENTED

All metal and Wood Hub Film Reels with patent film clip in all sizes. Also manufacturers of Fibre Lined Shipping Cases, Export Cases, Hand Carrying Cases, Rewinding Tables, Film Cabinets, Film Racks, Sheet Metal and Asbestos Projection Booths.

Sharlow Brothers
440-442 West 42nd St.
439-441 West 41st St. NEW YORK CITY

PATENTS

We have had wide experience in the preparation and prosecution of patent applications relating to moving picture apparatus. All communications are strictly confidential. Our patent practice, extending over a period of seventy-four years, enables us in many cases to advise in regard to patentability without any expense to our client.

Our HANDBOOK is sent free on request contains Patent Office Notes. Decisions of interest to inventors —and particulars of recently patented inventions.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN

MUNN & CO.
Patent Attorneys

670 Woolworth Bldg., New York
625 F Street, Washington, D. C.

narrowest cross-section of the projected beam, it would be highly advisable to locate the shutter at this point, and it has been recommended by some people who should know better to always place the shutter at this narrowest section or so-called "dissolving point" of the rays proceeding from the objective to the screen.

When the narrowest section of the projected beam is near the lens (within 6 inches or so) there is no objection to placing the shutter at that point in the beam; indeed, it seems a logical thing to do and would, no doubt, permit the width of the cover blade of the shutter to be at a minimum. The strict adherence to the recommendation that the shutter should always operate at the narrowest section of the projection beam leads to ridiculously impractical consequences, however, when, as frequently occurs, the narrowest cross-section of the projected beam is some 18 inches, or 2 feet or more in front of the objective. To carry out the recommendation in such a case requires an extra long shutter shaft or an extension on the customary shutter shaft, and when the revolving shutter operates at a point far removed from its actuating gears the vibration and consequent wear on the mechanism are of an extent not calculated to improve the steadiness of the projected picture. It appears, therefore, that the proper position for the revolving shutter should be dictated primarily by common sense, and it is an obvious fact that the pursuit of the so-called "aerial-images" and "dissolving points" sometimes leads to impractical results and altogether undesirable consequences.

How to Chase the Ghost

H. J. PHILLIPS, Barnswell, S. C.: "I have a small ghost in the center of my picture and I would like you to give me a remedy for it. I am using A. C. Special Carbons and have tried moving my lamp-house back and forward, but it does no good."

Reply: The position of the lamp-house is frequently the cause of a ghost in the field of projected light, but as changes in its position have been tried in this instance, we have to look elsewhere for the origin of the trouble. With the A. C. arc one gets two spots at the machine aperture which are substantially equal in intensity, and if the operator tries to utilize the combined light from the two spots the general result is a blue streak across the center of the projected picture. Under exceptionally favorable conditions when the arc, or flame, between the carbons is only slightly bluish in color, the ghost may not be noticeable to the detriment of the screen results, but to eliminate the same in annoying cases it is necessary to so alter the setting of the carbons that one of the two equally bright tips is out of focus at the machine aperture, and to rely solely on the light from the remaining carbon tip for projecting the picture. This may be accomplished by advancing the lower carbon in a manner similar to the customary D. C. trim, and if it is then found that the light from the upper carbon tip alone is not of sufficient intensity, the amperage at the arc must be increased. This inquiry indicates the wastefulness and disadvantages of A. C. projection.

Orchestrations for World Pictures

WORLD PICTURES this week announced to orchestra leaders and musicians in general connected with the motion picture theatres throughout the country that Leo Feist has orchestrations for the following songs from the production of "The Better 'Ole": "My Word! Ain't We Carryin' On," "Tommy," "When You Look in the Heart of a Rose," "She's Venus de Milo to Me," "I Wish I Was in Blighty," "I'm Sick of This 'Ere Blinkin' War," "When You Take That Trip Across the Rhine," and "A Little Regiment of Your Own."

Speed Up? Never

(Continued from page 1687)

ist who will carry out such orders. If his boss does not know better, he should.

Projection, at the proper speed, on up-to-date equipment, will mean a steady growth in the attendance at picture theatres, providing the general theatre atmosphere is right. Build for the future and not the gate receipts of today; they will take care of themselves.

E. K. GILLETT.

Camera Laboratory — Picture Making — Studio Technique

How to Prepare Photographic Solutions

By J. I. Crabtree

(Research Laboratory, Eastman Kodak Co., Rochester, N. Y.)

Although the majority of amateur photographers prefer to purchase photographic chemicals in a condition ready for use, in the case of advanced amateurs, professional photographers and motion picture producers who use chemicals on a large scale, it is customary for them to prepare the various photographic solutions from the component chemicals.

In order to be able to prepare correctly any and every solution used in photography a knowledge of the properties of the chemicals used and of the chemical reactions involved during the mixing is essential, though by adhering strictly to printed directions it is usually possible for an unskilled worker to prepare the developing and fixing solutions as generally used. However, instructions for the use of various materials differ, for example, in the case of some developing formulæ it is recommended to dissolve the Elon first, while according to others the sulphite should be dissolved first. Both methods may be right, but if a systematized method of mixing is followed, and especially if the photographer has a knowledge of the reactions involved, then he can proceed to mix any developing solution with confidence, and what is more, he will be able to locate the trouble if for any reason the solution does not work correctly after mixing.

In this article it is the purpose of the author to describe in as nontechnical language as possible the systematized method of preparing solutions now practiced in the Research Laboratory of the Eastman Kodak Company.

Definitions

A solution of any kind is obtained by dissolving a solid or a liquid in another liquid (or solid). The substance being dissolved is called the solute and the liquid in which it is dissolved is called the solvent. The extent to which the solute is soluble in the solvent is called its solubility and when the solvent will hold no more of the solute it is said to to be saturated.

The degree of solubility of any chemical depends on the nature of the solvent and on the temperature, which should always be stated.

If a saturated solution is cooled down to a lower temperature, crystals usually form which settle out until the saturation point is reached at that particular temperature, though in the case of a substance like hypo, if all dust is excluded, crystals do not separate out on cooling, and a so-called super-saturated solution is obtained. However, if a small crystal of hypo is added to the solution, crystals immediately form and continue to grow until the saturation point is reached. The best method of preparing a saturated solution therefore is to dissolve the chemical in hot water, cool to room temperature with shaking, allow to stand, and filter.

Meaning of "Water To"

When a chemical is dissolved in water the volume of the solution is usually greater than that of the water used, because the particles or molecules of the chemical occupy a certain space when in solution. In case two liquids are mixed, the final volume of the liquid is not necessarily equal to the sum of the volumes of the liquids mixed, it may be greater or it may be less. Thus fifty volumes of alcohol when added to fifty volumes of water at 70° F., produce ninety-seven volumes of the mixture and not one hundred. Moreover, equal weights of different chemicals do not occupy the same volume.

In photography we are concerned only with the weight or volume of each chemical in a fixed volume of the solution, so that when mixing, the chemical should be dissolved in an amount of water appreciably less than that called for in the formula and then water added up to the amount stated.

The Metric System of Weights and Measures

In photographic practice, solids are weighed and liquids are measured either by the metric or the avoirdupois system.

Although a large majority of photographers use the avoirdupois system of weights and measures, this system is inconvenient and complicated as compared with the metric system.

The metric unit of length is the meter (which means measure). The meter is divided into one hundred parts called centimeters or cms.

The unit of volume is the cubic centimeter, written cc., or ccs. in the plural, 1000 ccs. being equal to one liter or 1 L. The cubic centimeter is sometimes termed a milliliter or ml. (meaning one thousandth part of a liter) though the term cc. is satisfactory for photographic purposes.

The unit of weight is the gram which is the weight of 1 cc. of water at 4° C., at which temperature a given volume of water weighs the most. The gram is written Gm. for short, the capital letter G being used so as to differentiate between Gms. (grams) and grs. (grains).

For compounding photographic formulæ only Gms., ccs., and liters are used, and fractions are always expressed as a decimal just as in the case of the U. S. currency which is a metric currency. The beginner should therefore think of grams and parts of a gram as if they were dollars and cents. Thus, 5.35 Gms. corresponds to $5.35 or $5.35/100.

The Avoirdupois System

In photography the following table is used:

Weight		Volume
437 grains	= 1 ounce	60 minims	= 1 fluid drachm
8 drachms	= 1 ounce	8 fluid drachms	= 1 fluid ounce
16 ounces	= 1 pound	480 minims	= 1 fluid ounce
		16 ounces	= 1 pint
		128 ounces	= 1 gallon

The Conversion of Formulæ

Every photographer should be able to convert a formula given in avoirdupois terms into metric equivalents without reference to a table. It is simply necessary to remember that—

15 grains	1 Gm.
1 ounce	30 Gms.
1 fluid ounce	30 ccs.
1 gallon	4 liters

from which it is readily deduced that—

2 pounds	(roughly)	1 kilogram
1 ounce	"	450 grs.
1 pint	"	500 ccs.
1 cc.	"	50 minims

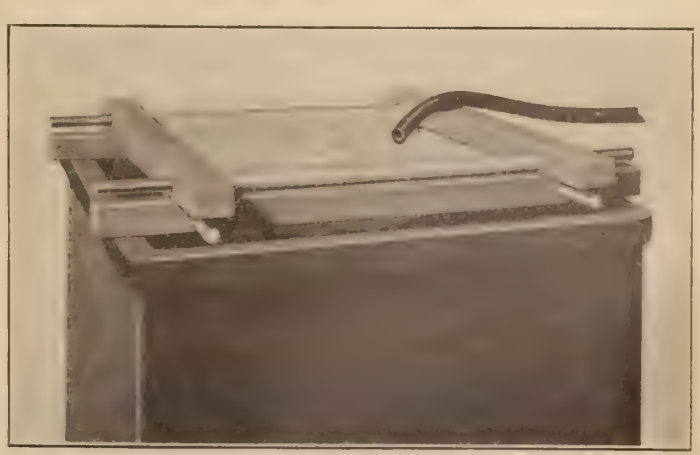

Figure No. 1

Directors and camera men rely on the latitude, speed and dependability of

EASTMAN FILM

That this confidence is not misplaced is shown by the results on the screen.

Identifiable by the words "Eastman" and "Kodak" on the film margin

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Put it down

We exercise as much care and concern in DEVELOPING and PRINTING as you do in producing a film.

Protect your work with our experience and high standards of quality workmanship.

EVANS FILM MFG. CO.
416-24 West 216th St. New York City
Telephone St. Nicholas 3443-3444

Phone Bryant 6808

MADE IN AMERICA
FILM RAW STOCK

"THE ROOT OF THE MOVIES"

If it is high grade sensitive films for motion pictures you want, we have it and are now ready to serve you.

BAY STATE FILM SALES CO., INC.
220 West 42nd Street NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.

A. G. STEEN, Special Representative

The foregoing conversion figures are not strictly correct, for example one gram = 15,432 grs., 1 oz. 28.35 Gms. and 1 fluid oz. = 29.43 ccs. In taking 1 Gm. as an equal to 15 grs. we are making an error of four parts in 154, or nearly 3%, but in photography an error of 5% in most cases is permissible. Thus if a formula called for 453½ grs., if this were cut to an even 450, the difference would not be detectable by photographic means, though if a quantity of 6½ grains were cut to 5 grs. then the error (20%) would be serious.

Uniformity in Formulæ

Formulæ should always be given in both metric and avoirdupois equivalents, but in some cases the proportions are given for, say, 40 ozs., in one case and 1 L. in the other. Now 40 ozs. = 1200 ccs., so that the several quantities are not equivalent. This leads to error in case the chemicals are weighed out with avoirdupois weights and the solution made up to strength in a liter graduate, though if these quantities are given for 32 ozs. of solution which are equivalent to 960 ccs., or roughly 1 L., no serious trouble will arise if the above mistake is made.

The order in which the ingredients are given in the formulæ is of importance. In some cases water is placed first, in other cases last, but since all developers are mixed with water, its position should be last in the formula. The ingredients should be given in the order in which they are dissolved, which is as follows: (1) preservative, (2) developing agent, (3) accelerator, (4) restrainer, (5) water to.

Percentage Solutions

In photography two kinds of solutions are used as follows:

(a) A solid in a liquid.

(b) A liquid in a liquid.

(a) The misunderstandings which have arisen from time to time regarding the correct method of preparing solutions of a definite percentage strength is due to the fact that there are three ways of doing it. For example, we can make a 5% solution of potassium bromide as follows:

(1) Dissolve 5 Gms. in 100 ccs. of water.

(2) Dissolve 5 Gms. in 95 Gms. of water making 100 Gms. of

(3) Dissolve 5 Gms. in a little water and make up to 100 ccs.

In case 1 we have about 103 ccs. of solution and in case 2 about 98 ccs. A chemist would use method 2, but method 3 is used when preparing photographic solutions. Method 1 is not used for the reason given above, namely, that equal weights of different chemicals do not occupy the same volume.

The percentage strength of a solution therefore merely indicates how much of the chemical is dissolved in 100 ccs. of the solution.

To prepare a 7% solution of potassium bromide, therefore, take 7 Gms. of the salt, dissolve it in a little water, and add water up to 100 ccs. If we now measure out 100 ccs. of the solution we have measured 7 Gms. of the solid.

In the avoirdupois system a 10% solution of solid is made by taking 1 oz. and making up to 10 ozs. with water. Converting these figures into Gms. and ccs. we have 30 Gms. in 300 ccs., or a 10% solution.

Strictly speaking this is not correct since 1 oz. = 28.35 Gms., and 1 fluid oz. = 29.57 cc., so that 1 oz. in 10 fluid ozs. is equivalent to 28.35 Gms. in 295.7 cc. or 9.6 Gms. in 100. The error involved, however, is less than 5% and for ordinary purposes is therefore negligible.

If a photographic solution is made by any of the above methods, 1, 2 or 3, the error involved is less than 5% and therefore negligible for ordinary photographic purposes, though since the correct method is the easiest, it should be followed.

Although somewhat of an anomaly, it is possible to prepare a 100% solution of a substance like hypo by dissolving 100 Gms. (which do not occupy a space of 100 ccs.) and dissolving in sufficient water to make 100 ccs. of solution.

(b) A 10% solution of a liquid in water is made by taking 10 cc. of the liquid and adding water up to 100 cc.

The Meaning of "Parts"

It is often recommended to dissolve, say, 10 parts of a solid in 100 parts of water. Such a statement is meaningless because a solid chemical is weighed while a liquid is measured, though if the metric system is used, since 1 cc. of water weighs 1 Gm., then grams and ccs. may be considered synonymous with parts.

In the case of liquids, parts should be taken as meaning units of volume, and in the case of solids as units of weight. A "part" may therefore mean anything from a gram to a ton, or a cc. to a gallon so long as the other quantities are reckoned in the same units of weight or volume.

Thus:

For use: A three parts		A 300 ccs.	A 15 oz.
	may mean	or
B one part		B 100 ccs.	B 5 oz.

If the avoirdupois system is used and the formula contains both solids and liquids, if ounces (liquid) and ounces (solid) are substituted for "parts," the error involved falls within permissible limits.

Problem:

Mix one gallon of solution according to the following formula.

Sodium sulphite	10 parts
Pyro	1 part
Water to	100 parts

Now, one gallon equals 4000 ccs. Therefore, dissolve 400 Gms. of sulphite in water, add 40 Gms. of pyro, and make up to 1 gallon.

"Drops"

If a formula calls for, say, 5 drops of a solution, this is a very uncertain quantity because drops of liquid vary considerably in size. The average drop from the usual dropping bottle or burette measures about 1 minim or a little less than one-tenth part of a cc., so that 5 drops may be considered as 1/3 cc. or 5 minims.

The Hydrometer Test

Many photographers are accustomed to making up their stock solutions of hypo, carbonate, sulphite, etc., by means of the hydrometer. This method has the advantage that in case the hypo (say) has become moist and contains an unknown amount of water, a definite reading on the hydrometer will give a solution of the same strength as if perfectly dry chemicals had been used. When a stock solution is made from moist chemicals by weighing, the error caused by the presence of water may be as high as 25% or 50%.

The hydrometer method has the disadvantage that the adjustment of a solution to the required strength takes considerable time, the hydrometer reading does not convey an idea as to the percentage strength of the solution, while the hydrometer reading varies with the temperature. For instance, if a stock solution is made with hot water and this registers, say, 45 on the hydrometer, on cooling, the liquid may register 48 or 50. It is therefore absolutely necessary either to make all readings when the solutions have cooled to room temperature, or to prepare a table giving the variation of density of each solution with temperature.

Usefulness of Per Cent Solutions

The great advantage of stating the strength of any solution in parts per hundred is that a definite mental picture is at once created of its relative strength while by means of a number of stock solutions it is possible to compound certain formulae by simply measuring out a definite volume of each solution thus dispensing with a balance. Thus supposing we have a 10% solution of potassium ferricyanide and of potassium bromide already at hand and it is desired to make up the following solution:

Potassium ferricyanide	6 Gms.
Potassium bromide	2.3 Gms.
Water to	1000 ccs.

then it is only necessary to measure out 60 ccs. of the ferricyanide solution, 23 ccs. of the bromide solution and add water up to 1000 ccs. and the solution is made.

In the case of very concentrated solutions it is not always possible to use this method, though in view of the time saved and the accuracy of the method it should be applied whenever possible.

Suppose a formula calls for 0.1 Gms., it is impossible to weigh this amount accurately on the usual photographic scale, but by measuring out 1 cc. of a 10% solution, and adding this to the mixture, the problem is solved.

Photographic Arithmetic

It is often required to mix up a quantity of solution much greater than that given by the formula, in which case the photographer must perform a very simple exercise in arithmetic in order to secure the desired result. The two following examples indicate the method of solution of such simple problems.

"TRUST MEANS CONFIDENCE"

Our experts act in any capacity having to do with negative developing and positive printing where reliance on quality and integrity are the chief requisites.

TEL. BRYANT 7190

REPUBLIC LABORATORIES, INC.
729 SEVENTH AVENUE NEW YORK, N.Y.

"NEWMAN" BRASS FRAMES AND RAILS

MR. EXHIBITOR:—
Don't you realize that not alone does "NEWMAN" stand for QUALITY, but also ORIGINALITY?
We are Originators of every conceivable style of frame in which to properly display POSTERS AND PHOTOS.
YOU will eventually use brass frames. WHY not now?

Get our Latest Catalogue.
It is yours for the asking.

The Newman Mfg. Co.
717-19 Sycamore Street, Cincinnati, Ohio
68 W. Washington Street, Chicago, Illinois
Established 1882

Frames, Easels, Rails, Grills, Signs, Choppers, Kick Plates, Door Bars

Canadian Representative—J. T. Malone, Rialto Theatre Bldg., Montreal, Canada
Pacific Coast—G. A. Metcalfe, San Francisco, Cal.
Corner Unit Hinged Frames

We manufacture the frames in various finishes which do not require polishing.

SWAAB'S MOTORS

for Power 6A and 6B are pleasing their users—not a single one has fallen down or been returned. They are sold for $37.50 and $40.00 respectively and are complete absolutely. Dealers do not recommend our Motor Equipments because they cannot make anything on them. We have priced them so that the Exhibitor gets the best price regardless of the Dealer. We are exclusive distributors of the SIMPLEX Machines. We repair all makes of machines and sell all supplies. Your old machines taken in trade for SIMPLEX.

LEWIS M. SWAAB
1329 Vine Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

CAMERAMEN!

The J. I. Crabtree article, "How to Prepare Photographic Solutions," begins on page 1691 of this issue of MOTION PICTURE NEWS. It will run for several numbers.

Do Not Miss It!

These articles are not alone interesting, but are valuable as well.

Read the Paper that Dominates the Field!

A. Mix 6 oz. of solution according to the following formula:

Potassium ferricyanide	4 Gms.
Hypo	10 Gms.
Water to	100 ccs.

now 6 oz.=6 x 30=180 ccs. Therefore, we need 180/100 x 4=7.2 Gms. of ferricyanide and 180/100 x 10=18 Gms. of hypo. Dissolve these in a little water and make up to 180 ccs.

B. How would you mix 1 pint of a 7% solution of sodium sulphite?

To make 100 ccs. of a 7% solution we need 7 Gms. Therefore, to make 1 pint (500 ccs.) we need 5 x 7=35 Gms. To prepare the solution therefore, dissolve 35 Gms. of sulphite in water and make up to 1 pint.

Dilution of Liquids

It is often required to reduce the percentage strength of a solution. For example: How would you mix two gallons of 28% acetic acid, from a supply of glacial acetic acid?

To make 100 cc. of 28% acid we need 28 ccs. of glacial acid.
To make 1 cc. of 28% acid we need 28/100 ccs. of glacial acid.
To make 8000 ccs. of 28% acid we need 28 x 80=2240 ccs. of glacial acid.

Therefore take 2240 cc. of glacial acid and add water to make 2 gallons.

To dilute a solution three times we do not add three times the amount of water but twice the amount and so on. For example: One volume of solution plus 2 volumes of water=3 volumes of solution, which is three times as weak or three times as dilute as the original.

Stock Solutions

A stock solution is a concentrated solution to which water is added before use. In the case of simple solutions containing only one salt such as potassium bromide, sodium carbonate, etc., a 10% solution is most convenient because by multiplying the volume of the solution in ccs. by 10 we get the number of grams present in the solution. Thus 75 ccs. of 10% potassium bromide contain 7.5 Gms.

The limiting strength of solution which it is possible to make in any particular case depends on the solubility of the chemical, and as the solubility diminishes with temperature a solution should not be made stronger than a saturated solution at 40° F., otherwise in cold weather the substance would crystallize out. (The reader is referred to tables of solubilities given in most handbooks.)

A stock solution of sodium sulphite should be made as strong as possible (15% of the desiccated salt) because at such a strength the solution oxidizes very slowly and will therefore keep, whereas in weaker solution it combines with the oxygen in the air very readily and is then useless as a preservative.

Apparatus

Scales

For quantities up to 100 Gms. a double pan balance should be used and a larger one for quantities up to 1000 Gms. For still larger quantities a platform scale weighing in pounds may be used, because large metric scales are not readily procurable. For preparing small amounts of sample developers a small chemical balance weighing in hundredth parts of a gram is necessary.

Mixing Vessels

For small quantities of solution conical glass flasks are the most suitable. For larger quantities use enameled buckets. Earthenware crocks are usually unsatisfactory because when the glaze cracks, the solutions penetrate within the pores and thus contaminate any other solutions subsequently mixed in it.

A wooden stick or paddle is the best form of stirrer, but a separate one should be used for each solution so as to eliminate the possibility of contamination.

The paddle may also be used to measure out a definite volume of solution in a tank or crock by cutting notches in the paddle to correspond with definite volumes when held vertically. Such markings are only applicable, however, to the particular tank or crock for which the paddle was graduated, so that a separate paddle should be used for each tank or crock unless they are of the same shape and capacity.

This Article
Is to Be Continued
Next Week

In Thousands of Theatres

When the New Perfected AUTOMATICKET REGISTER is in your ticket booth, your ticket leaks and ticket troubles are over .

Always ready to issue tickets at the touch of a finger—yet the tickets are always securely locked.

Always ready to give you an ACCURATE ACCOUNTING of your ticket sales—yet no one has access to the figures but you.

Always ready for action, but ONLY when unlocked by the person authorized by YOU. ONE master lock controls tickets, register and mechanism.

Always ready for QUICK work—impatient patrons appreciate quick service—yet ALWAYS error-proof and ACCURATE.

Always ready to issue at once the EXACT number of tickets with or without numbers asked for, and in continuous strips that make it easy to check up on the part of the proprietor.

The ONLY register, perfected to sell different color tickets for each price in the quickest, easiest, simplest manner.

From a mechanical point of view the New, Perfected Model is a triumph. It was designed by a staff of engineering master minds, who have many other mechanical triumphs to their credit (including the famous time recording clock).

That is why the New Automaticket Model has 60 % fewer parts than any other; why, as one of our exhibitor-customers put it, "She is 100% ahead of anything else in this field"; why it is FOOLPROOF in operation

The New Model has proved a "whirlwind of a success." It has been called by exhibitors who have seen it "The Biggest achievement in ticket booth equipment."

In your OWN interest you should know more about it. Write today for our Advance Announcement.

See your Dealer or write direct. The demand for this new model has been so overwhelming that we haven't been able to cover the trade as quickly as we should like to.

AUTOMATIC TICKET SELLING & CASH REGISTER CO.

1733 BROADWAY

USED WHEREVER AUTOMATICKET SYSTEM TICKETS ARE SOLD

NEW YORK

FACTORY 235 WEST 55th STREET

Cue Sheets Latest Hits | Music | Musical Equipment

Concerning Storm Music for the Photoplay

NO other word in conjunction with picture playing has created more criticism and dissatisfaction than the word "effect," and no other phase in the line of effects has been so thoroughly misused as "storm effects." In ninety-nine out of one hundred cases, "storm effects" are too loud, entirely out of place and of a low comedy nature. It should be remembered that the majority of people who attend the photoplay houses are serious in their serious moments, and object to the introduction of comedy where it is out of place. A wonderful and most explicit example of how to play storm music is furnished in the excellent production of Rex Beach, "The Brand," released through the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation.

McGill, a typical old-timer and good-hearted Alaskan miner, discovers his wife, Alice, in company with Bob Barclay, a former vaudeville actor. In his disillusionment and fury he drives the lovers into the snow storm. These furious storm scenes last about ten minutes. They must be considered a serious problem from the standpoint of musical film interpretation. To some orchestra leaders, these storm scenes may develop into a menace to his reputation. It is impossible to play ff. storm music for a period of ten minutes without creating monotony. Storm music rendered in such a manner is bound to lose its effect upon the audience's ears, or probably swell several cornet or trombone lips, and last, but not least, it may make a cripple out of the leader.

The storm scenes in "The Brand," which are the most realistic I have ever seen in any motion picture, constitute such an important part of the production that any musician who would attempt to musically overlook them will positively establish for himself the name of incompetency, and will create an atmosphere of dissatisfaction in every direction strong enough to mar his entire career. No music cut sheet or even music score, no matter how carefully compiled, can entirely solve the problem of the correct musical interpretation of storm music, if the secret of synchronization is unknown to the musician, or if known, not converted into practice, especially in storm scenes of such durability, length and importance as in "The Brand."

It is most natural that any storm or even battle scenes of considerable length are interrupted by interior scenes which, if musically judged upon their face value, do not necessitate accompaniment of a furioso. Such inferior scenes, or commonly called flashes, are just the things which are in most cases confusing to most of our musicians. It seems that most of them cannot find the happy medium, either through laziness, incompetency, or probably are not given a chance to determine the correct and dominating feature of such scenes, which are in every case the prime factors in deciding the character of the musical selections.

In storm scenes of such violence as in "The Brand," the ordinary furioso is absolutely valueless. It must be a composition which in its musical construction is equivalent to the huge violence of the Alaskan blizzard. It must be one able to musically portray the tremendous velocity and haunting sounds of the hurricane, and such results can only be attained through a medium which represents the acme of chromatic musical construction. At the same time, it must be a composition of such flexibility as to permit perfect phrasing and synchronizing from the softest pp. to the strongest ff. The furioso mentioned in the music cue sheet, Cue No. 14, is one of the numbers which would fittingly portray such a blizzard. It consists of six movements and has a playing time of eight minutes.

"THE BRAND"

Theme: "Think Love of Me" (Moderato), by Grey

Used by permission of Sam. Fox, through Berwin, Inc., 701 Seventh Avenue, New York.

Specially selected and compiled by M. Winkler.

The timing is based on a speed limit of 14 minutes per reel (1,000 ft.)

1—"Mountain Song" (From Mountain Music Suite), by Borch (3 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "Early in November."

2—"Sunrise on the Mountain" (From Mountain Music Suite), by Borch (3 minutes and 55 seconds), until—T: "What's the matter, little woman?"

3—Theme (30 seconds), until—T: "After Barley had gone."

4—Continue to action (1 minute and 35 seconds), until—T: "The first marriage ceremony."

5—"Sparklets" (Moderato), by Miles (50 seconds), until—T: "What McGill called home."

6—"When You Are Truly Mine" (Moderato), by Lee (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—T: "By midwinter Ophir awoke."

7—"Dramatic Narrative," by Pement (2 minutes and 40 seconds), until—T: "Have you struck anything?"

8—"Bleeding Hearts" (Andantino Sentimento), by Levy (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—T: "To make matters worse."

9—Continue ff. (1 minute), until—T: "Bob, I'm married."

10—"Dramatic Reproach," by Berge (1 minute and 20 seconds), until—T: "Careful as they were."

11—"Dramatic Recitative," by Levy (2 minutes and 50 seconds), until—T: "I love you like a father."

12—Theme (1 minute and 25 seconds), until—T: "But things went from bad."

13—"Dramatic Suspense," by Winkler (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—T: "Until long after dark."

14—"Half Reel Storm Furioso," by Levy (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "By midnight the storm."

Note: pp. during interior scenes.

15—Continue ff. (3 minutes and 40 seconds), until—T: "We picked 'em up."

Note: With ad. lib. snow storm effects.

16—"Agitato No. 69," by Minot (1 minute and 55 seconds), until—T: "But McGill had friends."

17—"Furioso ff.," by Kiefert (40 seconds), until—T: "Two years of profitless."

18—Theme ff. (2 minutes and 5 seconds), until—T: "Far away in the heart."

19—"Lento Allegro" (From Symphonette Suite), by Berge (4 minutes and 55 seconds), until—T: "Ablaze with hatred."

20—"Perpetual Motion" (Allegro Agitato), by Borch (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "News of the John Daniels strike."

21—"Savannah" (Alaskan one-step), by Rosey (2 minutes and 5 seconds), until—T: "Following the strong."

22—Theme (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—T: "Having broken his silence."

23—"Valse Divine" (Valse Lento), by Rosey (3 minutes and 55 seconds), until—T: "Four hours he passed."

24—"Hunkatin" (Popular one-step), by Levy (2 minutes and 40 seconds), until—T: "Shall I send a girl up."

Note: Begin pp., ff. during dance hall scenes.

25—"Sinister Theme," by Vely (3 minutes and 35 seconds), until—T: "Come with me and I'll show you."

26—Theme (3 minutes and 35 seconds), until—T: "No! No! Don't go!"

27—"Hurry No. 1," by Langey (1 minute and 50 seconds), until—T: "Now, go and carry my mark."

28—"Tragic Theme," by Vely (1 minute and 15 seconds), until—T: "Come, we'll go now."

29—Theme ff. (50 seconds), until * * * * * THE END.

In justice to this excellent production which is musically represented in the above cut sheet, I earnestly suggest that no musician substitute any storm scenes, but avail himself of those which are mentioned in the cut sheet.

A very valuable instrument while playing the storm scenes is of course the tympany. To my mind, the common wind producing machine is the poorest medium of creating storm atmosphere. Tympany rolls of slow crescendos and descrescendos are much more effective. The lone pianist can very easily imitate such rolls through tremolos in the low octaves. Such effects should be employed wherever possible, but no matter how appropriately employed, if overdone will positively become a nuisance.

Now the question arises—More than one aggressive musician has been forced to resign himself to musical doggerel caused by the ignorance of some of our still existing "one-reel age" exhibitors. Men of such calibre will either have to revise their ancient methods or suffer the unavoidable consequences. The only way to expect really good work of any musician is to either give him good tools or enable him to get them. Such method will positively result in satisfaction for the employer from a financial standpoint, and will create a larger and greater circle of patronage for his enterprises.

THE EDITORS.

Victorious Democracy at Broadway Theatre

THE management of the Broadway theatre and its musical director, James Bradford, in their joint endeavors to discover an appropriate overture to be presented in conjunction with the feature, "The Light of Victory," a Universal special production in which Monroe Salisbury starred, were fortunate to prevail upon the directors of Belwin, Inc., to allow them to have a pre-release of Gaston Borch's latest composition, "Victorious Democracy," dedicated to the League of Nations.

Every effort was made by Mr. Kashin, the managing director, and his able assistants to present "Victorious Democracy" in a fitting and dignified manner, and under the directorship of Mr. Bradford the orchestra gave an inspiring performance.

Needless to recount, it was acclaimed by a select and representative audience to be a triumphant musical interpretation of the world's emotions through the past European bloodshed.

Rorig of Elgin Takes Composers' Case to Trial

TROUBLE is brewing between Manager H. P. Rorig of the Orpheum theatre, Elgin, Ill., and the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

Test of copyrights alleged to be held by the society, which has headquarters in Chicago, is expected to result from the refusal of Manager Rorig to pay a royalty on music said to have been played in his theatre. Rorig has retained Attorney Walter Healy and the case will probably be taken into the courts.

Rights of the society have been questioned by theatre owners and entertainers throughout this section of the country, but until February 15 no active steps have been taken to test its rights. Various charges of infringement have been made by the society, but the courts have never been asked to fix their privileges.

In a letter to Manager Rorig February 15, E. S. Hartman, Chicago attorney, who has been retained by the society, alleges that he has specific information on alleged infringements. Unless steps are taken to pay a royalty at once, he states, proceedings will be instituted against him in the Federal court.

According to Hartman, $250 can be assessed against the theatre owner for every single violation proved.

Rorig stands firm in his determination to fight the charge to a finish.

"Music," he states, "is music, no matter whether it is played in a theatre or in a private home. This question has been argued so much that I have decided to learn, if possible, just what rights this society controls."

Other Elgin theatre owners, as well as local entertainers, have been charged with violations by the society. On each occasion, however, satisfactory arrangements were made.

Bach Serves Many Years in Industry

PACKARD BACH, organist at the Strand theatre in Philadelphia, who after April has announced that he will be at liberty, has been connected with the theatrical and motion picture business since he was eight years of age. Before entering the motion picture industry he was musical director with George M. Cohan, B. A. Rolfe and Jesse Lasky.

One of Mr. Bach's greatest assets, it is said, is the way he puts across his selections, creating for himself a personal following wherever he happens to be playing.

He has not announced his future plans.

"Nipponese" Wins Many Favorable Expressions

EXHIBITORS Mutual Distributing Corporation this week announced that Joseph O'Sullivan, director of music service for that organization has received many expressions of commendation on "Nipponese," the Japanese dramatic theme which he wrote for Sessue Hayakawa productions.

On account of the scarcity of Japanese music of a serious and dramatic character, musical directors are finding this number just what they want in interpreting the Japanese star's pictures, it is said.

Professor C. A. Shamp, director of music at the Auditorium theater, South Bend, Indiana, writes Exhibitors Mutual: "Kindly send me 'Nipponese,' by Joseph O'Sullivan, which I find excellent

ORGANIST AT LIBERTY AFTER APRIL 8

THE MOST UP-TO-DATE, LIVE-WIRE THEATRICAL AND MOTION PICTURE ORGANIST IN THE BUSINESS HAVING A REMARKABLE ABILITY OF WORKING UP THE PICTURES WITH REAL MUSIC NOT IMPROVISATIONS.

THREE SEASONS AT STANLEY THEATRE, PHILA.
(Austin 3 Manuel Organ)

TWO YEARS AT FRANKFORD THEATRE.
(Hope-Jones 3 Manuel Organ)

AT PRESENT AT STRAND THEATRE, PHILA.
(Kimball 3 Manuel Organ)

Mr. Bach has to play an encore every night, sometimes two and three and on eight different occasions stopped the show the week he played "The Storm," was the Record Breaker for the house.

COME SEE AND HEAR FOR YOURSELF ACT QUICK

RICHARD BACH

TRADE REVIEW, Feb. 15, Page 848

The Strand, Philadelphia
January 30, 31, Feb. 1

PROGRAM

1. a. "The Star Spangled Banner."
b. Overture, "Songs of the Old Folks" (Roberts), Strand Orchestra, J. Friedman, Director.
2. Paramount Pictograph.
3. Rolin Comedy, "Going, Going, Gone!"
4. Organ Solo, "The Storm." Richard Bach, Organist.
5. Fred Stone in "Under the Top."

The special musical attraction on this occasion, however was the "Storm," as played by Organist Richard Bach.

Mr. Bach makes a specialty of playing this famous selection with all electrical effects and other accompaniments. The fame of this had gone forth in the neighborhood, and when the selection was duly advertised, the response was large. Applause was generous and on the first evening the musician was presented with flowers by some of his admirers, while an encore was demanded.

The effects necessary to the full enjoyment of the approach of the storm in the peaceful valley, its roaring thunder and flashing lightning with its gradual spending of the fury of the elements to the contrasting quiet of the village once more, were well handled by Operator C. Rizzo.

Philadelphia Ledger said:

Mr. Bach has a most fascinating style at the organ. Pleasing the critical musical lovers with his big numbers and seems to make you sway in your seat with his light catchy numbers. Has a great way of putting over a Rag and seems very popular with the Young Folks.

Address—RICHARD BACH, 4536 No. 13th St., Philadelphia, Pa.

and far ahead of any Japanese compositions I now possess. Wish I had more like it, as such numbers are a boon to any conscientious musician playing the better class of music for photoplays."

LATEST MUSIC CUES

"CHILDREN OF BANISHMENT"

(Mitchell Lewis-Select)

Specially selected and compiled by M. Winkler.
The timing is based on a speed limit of 14 minutes per reel (1,000 ft.)

Theme: "Bleeding Hearts" (Andantino Sentimento)

1—Theme (1 minute and 5 seconds), until—T: "Dick Broom, foreman."
2—"Mountain Song" (From Mountain Music Suite), by Borch (1 minute and 40 seconds), until—T: "Mr. Allen, McKenzie and his wife."
3—"Dramatic Recitative," by Levy (4 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "R. E. Hill of the firm."
4—"Dramatic Suspense," by Winkler (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "Dan Silver knocked out."
5—"Lento Allegro" (From Symphonette Suite), by Berge (3 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "Pay Day."
6—"Dramatic Agitato," by Hough (1 minute and 25 seconds), until—S: Close up of strangers on porch.
7—Theme (1 minute and 15 seconds), until—S: The fight.
8—"Agitato No. 69," by Minot (45 seconds), until—S: Interior of room in boarding house.
9—"Dramatic Narrative," by Pement (2 minutes and 10 seconds), until—T: "We are gypsies of the wild."
10—"Love Theme," by Lee (3 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "Come over tonight."
11—Theme (2 minutes and 25 seconds), until—T: "Allen leaves for the land office."
12—"Birds and Butterflies" (Intermezzo Capricioso), by Vely (2 minutes and 55 seconds), until—T: "Allen beats out Hill's agent."
13—"Le Retour" (Allegro), by Bizet (3 minutes and 50 seconds), until—T: "Will you come back and cook?"
14—"Sinister Theme," by Vely (3 minutes and 55 seconds), until—T: "He is my husband."
15—Theme (1 minute and 35 seconds), until—T: "Winter finds the."
16—"Sunrise on the Mountain" (From Mountain Music Suite), by Borch (2 minutes and 25 seconds), until—T: "Dick and Allen go to inspect."
Note: Tympany roll ff. during fall of tree.
17—"Forest Whispers" (Moderato Gavotte), by Losey (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "Every demonstration for."
18—Theme (1 minute and 25 seconds), until—T: "Hill and Burchard plan."
19—"Half Reel Hurry," by Levy (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "The first delivery."
Note: Begin pp. then to action.
20—Continue pp. and slow (35 seconds), until—S: Phonograph in action.
21—Popular number (1 minute and 20 seconds), until—T: "Something is wrong with Bream."
Note: To be played on phonograph.
22—Another popular number on phonograph (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—S: Bream leaves.
23—"Woodland Whispers" (Moderato), by Czibulka (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—S: Allen falls into stream.
24—"Furioso No. 60," by Shepherd (40 seconds), until—S: Close-up near fire.
25—Theme (1 minute and 50 seconds), until—T: "I brought him back to you."
26—Continue ff. (25 seconds), until * * * * * THE END.

"THE WORLD TO LIVE IN"

(Alice Brady-Select)

Specially selected and compiled by M. Winkler.
The timing is based on a speed limit of 14 minutes per reel (1,000 ft.)

Theme: "Lento Allegro" (from Symphonette Suite), by Berge

1—"Valse Divine" (Valse Classique), by Rosey (4 minutes), until—T: "To think of your friend."
2—"Babillage" (Allegretto Intermezzo), by Castillo (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "At the close of the friends."
3—Theme (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "Do you still play?"
4—Orchestra tacet (20 seconds), until—S: Rita at piano.
5—Piano improvise to action (45 seconds), until—T: "The Tinpanner's working day."
6—"Doloroso" (Moderato), by Tobani (3 minutes and 35 seconds), until—T: "Pretty girl your new secretary."
7—"Sparklets Intermezzo" (Moderato), by Miles (1 minute and 25 seconds), until—S: Close-up of phonograph record.
8—Pathetic composition (25 seconds), until—T: "But despite his father's warning."
Note: To be produced on phonograph.
9—"May Dreams" (Moderato Romance), by Borch (3 minutes and 50 seconds), until—T: "You've got quite the wrong."
10—Theme (2 minutes and 55 seconds), until—T: "When a girl is a tinpanner."
11—"Norma" (Melodious Waltz), by Luz (3 minutes and 35 seconds), until—T: "Mrs. Billings has been."
12—"At Twilight" (Moderato Romance), by Golden (3 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "In the small hours."
13—"Morning" (Dramatic), by Grieg (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "Knowledge of young Olversens."
14—"Romance" (Moderato), by Karganoff (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "But there are moments."
15—"Golden Youth" (Valse Lento), by Rosey (2 minutes and 5 seconds), until—S: Close-up of piano player.
16—Piano Solo improvise to action (35 seconds), until—T: "Shall I see you again?"
17—Theme (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—S: Rita crying.
18—"Pathetic Andante," by Vely (1 minute and 15 seconds), until—T: "At Atlantic City."

(Continued in next column)

(Continued from preceding column)

19—"By the River" (12/8 Moderato Romance), by Morse (3 minutes and 10 seconds), until—T: "I can't be happy."
20—"Love Theme," by Lee (1 minute and 15 seconds), until—T: "Meanwhile the sentimental."
21—"After Sunset" (Moderato), by Pryor (4 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "Glad your headache is better."
22—Theme (1 minute and 35 seconds), until—T: "That evening."
23—"Valse Moderne" (Valse Moderato), by Rosey (4 minutes), until—T: "This is a queer place."
24—"L'Adieu" (Dramatic), by Favarger (4 minutes and 25 seconds), until—T: "Why Ida, what are you."
25—"Bleeding Hearts" (Andantino Sentimento), by Levy (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "Make New York as fast."
26—"Tragic Theme" (Pathetic), by Vely (3 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "I suppose you are through."
Note: Railroad effects.
27—"Adagietto" (From Symphonette Suite), by Berge (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "I came to tell you."
28—Theme (2 minutes and 40 seconds), until * * * * * THE END.

"A MAN AND HIS MONEY"

(Tom Moore-Goldberg)

Specially selected and compiled by M. Winkler.
The timing is based on a speed limit of 14 minutes per reel (1,000 ft.)

Theme: "Sleeping Rose" (Valse Lento), by Gaston Borch

1—"A La Mode" (Popular one-step), by Rosey (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "Oh, Harry, you were."
Note: Automobile effects.
2—Theme (4 minutes), until—T: "That evening."
Note: Automobile effects.
3—"Hunkatin" (Half Tone one-step), by Levy (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "Hello."
4—Theme (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "Take me back to the club."
5—"Sachem" (Popular one-step), by Rosey (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "Come on, Harry."
Note: Piano only according to action.
6—"What a Wonderful Mother You'd Be" (Direct cue) (popular song) (1 minute), until—S: When guests applaud.
Note: To be played on piano only.
7—"Dramatic Tension No. 9," by Andino (1 minute and 15 seconds), until—T: "The next morning."
Note: Effect of telephone-bell.
8—Theme (2 minutes), until—T: "John Sturgeon the family."
9—"Eleanor" (Characteristic Moderato), by Deppen (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "Three months later."
10—"Babillage" (Allegretto Intermezzo), by Castillo (4 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "It so happens that Betty."
11—Theme (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "It's a great life if."
12—"Constance" (Characteristic Moderato), by Golden (3 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "Why won't you say yes?"
13—Theme (2 minutes), until—T: "Aren't you ashamed of yourself?"
14—"Sparklets" (Bright Characteristic), by Miles (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "I'm awfully sorry, Mrs. De Long."
15—"Marionette" (Characteristic Allegretto), by Arndt (3 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "Good girl, everything's."
16—"Perpetual Motion" (Allegro Agitato), by Borch (45 seconds), until—T: "The next evening."
17—"Impish Elves" (Winsome Intermezzo), by Borch (1 minute and 15 seconds), until—T: "Your aunt is very ill."
Note: Effect of telephone-bell.
18—"Intermezzo" (Allegretto Characteristic), by Arensky (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "Is this my aunt's house?"
Note: Effect of automobile.
19—"Dramatic Tension No. 36," by Andino (2 minutes), until—S: When automobile stops.
20—"Half Reel Hurry," by Levy (4 minutes), until—T: "Which is the road to your"
Note: Glass crash and shot.
21—"Summer Showers" (Bright Moderato), by Logan (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—T: "Where are you going?"
Note: Storm effects.
22—Theme (45 seconds), until * * * * * THE END.

"AS THE SUN WENT DOWN"

(Edith Storey-Metro)

Specially Selected and Compiled by M. Winkler
The timing is based on a speed limit of 14 minutes per reel (1,000 ft.)

Theme: "Mountain Song" (Moderato Andantino), by Borch

1—"Prudence" (Entr'acte Novelette), by Luz (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—At Screening.
2—"Nola" (Intermezzo Allegretto), by Arndt (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "The only man in Gulch afraid."
3—Theme (3 minutes), until—T: "Every community has its outcasts."
4—"Western Intermezzo" (No. 11 A. B. C. Series), by Luz (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: The Gulch's sense of humor" (shot).
5—"Western Hurry" (No. 11 A. B. C. Series), by Luz (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: The favorite outdoor sport (shots).
6—"Western Galop" (No. 11 A. B. C. Series), by Luz (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: Their only communication with.
7—"Wild and Woolly" (Western Allegro), by Minot (3 minutes), until—T: "Boys, reformin' is coming" (shots).
8—"Dramatic Finale" (Agitato Appassionato), by Smith (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—T: "Say, what do ye mean?"
9—"Gavotte Piquante" (Characteristic), by Pierson (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "I just happened to change" (door-knock).
10—"A La Mode" (Popular one-step), by Rosey (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "A Gospel pedler from."
11—"Perpetual Motion" (Allegro Agitato), by Borch (1 minute and 15 seconds), until—T: The warpath duds.
12—Theme (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "Bill, why did ye let them?"
13—"Tulips" (Intermezzo Moderato), by Miles (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "He shan't wake up."
14—"Organ Improvising" (3 minutes), until—T: After a long illness (Sunday services).

(Continued on next page)

(Continued from preceding page)

15—"Me-ow" (Characteristic Novelty), by Kaufmann (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—T: "Well, well, if it isn't Ike."
16—"Dramatic Agitato No. 38," by Minot (30 seconds), until—T: "Ye durn little heiress."
17—"Movie Rag" (Characteristic), by Zamecnik (3 minutes), until—T: With her new boarder.
18—"Dramatic Tension No. 36," by Andino (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "I adore windows with gold mines."
19—"Hurry" (Half-reel Hurry), by Levy (3 minutes), until—T: "What do you mean by annoying?"
20—"Turbulence" (Allegro Agitato), by Borch (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—T: "Well, I'm willin' to quit."
21—"Savannah" (Popular One-step), by Rosey (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—S: When bartender drinks.
22—"Rondo" (Excerpts Beethoven Sonata Pathetique), by Berge (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—T: The duel.
23—Heavy Dr. Desc." (No. 18, A. B. C. Series), by Luz (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "Wow, I got 'im" (shots).
24—"Heavy Agitato" (No. 18, A. B. C. Series), by Luz (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "No more duels 'til" (shots).
25—"Heavy Andante" (No. 18, A. B. C. Series), by Luz (4 minutes), until—T: "You can deny me no longer."
26—Theme (1 minute and 15 seconds), until—T: "The Bible saved him."
27—"Hurry No. 22," by Minot (3 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "I've got to see Bill."
28—Theme (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "I have long known it," until * * * * END.

"IT'S A BEAR"

Specially selected and compiled by M. Winkler.
The timing is based on a speed limit of 14 minutes per reel (1,000 ft.)

Theme: "Comedy Allegro" (Characteristic), by S. M. Berg

1—"Intermezzo" (Allegretto), by Puerner (2 minutes and 55 seconds), until—T: "Orlando's absent-minded."
2—"Visions" (Intermezzo Characteristic), by Buse (1 minute and 55 seconds), until—T: "While business holds me here."
3—Continue ff (1 minute and 15 seconds), until—T: Courageous insects.
4—Theme (3 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: East goes West.
5—"May Dreams" (Moderato Romance), by Borch (1 minute and 20 seconds), until—T: Letterbox, Wyoming.
6—"Wild and Woolly" (Western Allegro), by Minot (1 minute and 5 seconds), until—T: The hired hands figured.
7—"Sinister Theme," by Vely (3 minutes), until—T: "Boys, this is the new boss."
8—Theme (3 minutes and 10 seconds), until—T: "You can pull that waiting."
9—"Savannah" (Popular one-step), by Rosey (2 minutes and 35 seconds), until—S: Children bathing.
10—"Impish Elves" (Winsome Intermezzo), by Borch (2 minutes), until—T: "No shooting; think of my furniture."
11—"Comedy Hurry," by O'Hare (1 minute and 35 seconds), until—T: "Do you think you will like."
12—"Hunkatin" (Comic one-step), by Levy (2 minutes and 40 seconds), until—T: Force of habit was strong.
13—Theme (2 minutes and 25 seconds), until—T: "A saloon is no place for a dog."
14—"Golden Youth" (Valse Moderato), by Rosey (3 minutes and 50 seconds), until—T: "Anybody can bluff once."
15—"Birds and Butterflies" (Intermezzo Capricioso), by Vely (2 minutes and 50 seconds), until—T: "Sea Cook—nobody could ride him."
16—Theme (2 minutes and 25 seconds), until—T: "Why, this seems like a nice horse."
17—"Galop No. 7," by Minot (1 minute and 35 seconds), until—T: The third trap.
18—"Three Graces" (Allegro), by Herman (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—T: Plans for the bear hunt.
19—Continue pp. (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—T: His new toy.
20—"Hurry No. 33," by Minot (1 minute and 50 seconds), until—S: "Boys, unsaddle horses."
Note: "Watch shots."
21—"Valse Divine" (Valse Lento), by Rosey (1 minute and 55 seconds), until—T: "This bear isn't stuffed."
22—"Sinister Theme," by Vely (3 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "Who's the tenderfoot?"
23—Theme (1 minute and 10 seconds), until—T: Pete and Slim, Texas cow punchers.
24—Continue pp. (1 minute and 15 seconds), until—T: "Boss, you'd better get."
25—"Hurry" (Half Reel Hurry), by Levy (3 minutes and 20 seconds), until—T: Cogney figured things.
26—"Dramatic Recitative," by Levy (2 minutes and 40 seconds), until—T: "You developed into a."
27—Theme (50 seconds)—until * * * * * END.

"HEART OF GOLD"

(Louise Huff-World)

Specially selected and compiled by M. Winkler.
The timing is based on a speed limit of 14 minutes per reel (1,000 ft.)

Theme: "Peacefulness" (Andante Semplice), by Borch

1—Theme (3 minutes and 45 seconds), at Screening.
2—"Liselotte" (Moderato Rubato), by Adam (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "May Weatherbee."
3—Theme (2 minutes), until—T: "Don't be scared, little one."
4—"A La Mode" (Popular one-step), by Rosey (3 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "I hoped to be an artist."
5—"Scherzetto" (From Symphonette Suite), by Berge (3 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "Madame Estelle's husband" (bell) (sneeze effects).
6—Theme (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "Mixed dreams."
7—"Serenade" (Allegretto Moderato), by Kautzenbach (3 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "The following day."
8—"Petite Serenade" (Allegretto Serenade), by Horton (3 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "Two weeks later."
9—"Dramatic Tension No. 9," by Andino (3 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "I have copied the design."
10—"Alborada" (Intermezzo Caprice), by Andino (1 minute and 15 seconds), until—T: "If I hear any of you talking."
11—"Heart of Gold" (Characteristic Popular One-step) (2 minutes), until—T: "The first night of the Follies" (stage performance).
12—Orchestra tacet (45 seconds), until—T: "At end of song."
13—Theme (3 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "A difficult decision."
14—"Cupid and Butterfly" (Intermezzo Grazioso), by d'Albret (3 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "Jack Dernberg, an East Side—."
15—"Kathleen" (Valse Lento), by Berg (1 minute and 45 seconds), until—T: "Can you swear that 'Heart of'."
16—"Forest Whispers" (Morceau Characteristic), by Losey (3 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "Harry Collins, arbiter."
17—"Midsummer Night's Serenade" (Andantino Moderato), by Albeniz (3 minutes), until—T: "I have no love for Madame."
18—Theme (2 minutes), until—T: "To gratify the artistic soul" (telephone-bell).
19—"Tendre Amour" (Moderato Serenade), by Clements (4 minutes), until—T: "There will be a meeting of."
20—"Dream Faces" (Moderato Reverie), by Hollowell (4 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "On trial."
21—"Allegro Agitato No. 8," by Andino (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "That money belongs to me."
22—"Andante Panthetique," by Berge (1 minute), until—S: At the police court.
23—"Perpetual Motion" (Allegro Agitato), by Borch (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—S: When Mike enters court.
24—"Rondo" (Excerpts Beethoven Sonata Pathetique), by Berge (3 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "Annie Wilkes, she is no longer."
25—"Hurry No. 26," by Minot (3 minutes), until—T: "But without the evidence of."
26—Theme (45 seconds), until—T: "Will you trust me with your"—until * * * * * END.

"THE PROBATION WIFE"

Theme: "Think Love of Me" (Moderato), by Grey

1—Theme (1 minute and 30 seconds), until—T: "We beg to introduce."
2—Continue to action (2 minutes and 25 seconds), until—T: "I understand so well."
3—"Weird Oriental Dance," by Levy (45 seconds), until—T: "There was a poor little orphan."
4—Continue pp. (1 minute and 5 seconds), until—T: "Peter Marr, a rich old."
5—"Mysterious Nights" (Valse Dramatique), by Berg (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—S: Young man with violin.
6—"Elegie," by Massenet (30 seconds), until—T: "Can that sob stuff."
Note: To be played as violin solo.
7—"Elegie," by Massenet (2 minutes and 15 seconds), until—T: "What do you want to marry."
Note: To be played with orchestra.
8—Repeat: "Mysterious Nights" (Valse Dramatique), by Berg (2 minutes and 50 seconds), until—T: "And so you see my dear."
9—"Atonement" (3/4 Andante), by Zamecnik (2 minutes and 35 seconds), until—T: "Then another life opened."
10—"Melody" (Moderato), by Kretschner (40 seconds), until—T: "And about this time."
11—Continue to action (3 minutes and 55 seconds), until—T: "A break for liberty."
12—"Pizzicato Misterioso," by Minot (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "That afternoon fate."
13—Theme (1 minute and 55 seconds), until—T: "Why you're the man."
14—"Adagietto" (From Symphonette Suite), by Berge (2 minutes and 35 seconds), until—T: "And so happy, healthy."
15—"Visions" (Intermezzo Characteristic), by Buse (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "Beth Mowbray was not."
16—"Dramatic Suspense," by Winkler (3 minutes and 35 seconds), until—T: "And so they were married."

(Continued on next page)

THE BARTOLA

You need Bartola music in your theatre. Easy monthly payments. Send for catalogue.

CHAS. C. PYLE, General Sales Agent, 707-712 Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill. Factory, Oshkosh, Wis.

TransVerteR

Automatically supplies only such voltage as arc requires. No waste of current in ballast.

HERTNER ELECTRIC & MFG. CO.
W. 114th St., Cleveland, Ohio, U.S.A.

Write for our list of Guaranteed Rebuilt Machines

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY
Largest Exclusive Dealers to the
MOTION PICTURE TRADE
300-302 Mallers Building
5 So. Wabash Avenue
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS
Dealers in Motiograph, Standard and Simplex Moving Picture Machines, National Carbons, Minusa Screens and Everything for the Theatre.
WE SELL ON THE INSTALLMENT PLAN

LE FILM
The Greatest Weekly Trade Paper of
MOTION PICTURES AND THE STAGE PRINTED IN PARIS
1457 Broadway New York
Telephone Bryant 5602
26 RUE DU DELTA, PARIS
878 TALCAHUANO, BUENOS AIRES
Subscription, One Year, $6.00

Nothing succeeds like success. Consider the Estey Theatre Organ. Write for names of theatres near you.

THE ESTEY ORGAN CO.
Brattleboro, Vt.
See our page ad in the April 12th issue of the MOTION PICTURE NEWS

(Continued from preceding page)

17—Theme (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "As time went on."
18—"The Vampire" (Dramatic), by Levy (2 minutes), until—T: "And so, thanks to Nina's."
19—"Valse Divine" (Operatic Medley), by Rosey (2 minutes and 10 seconds), until—T: "As the play went on."
20—Continue pp. (1 minute and 5 seconds), until—T: "Another evening."
21—Theme (4 minutes and 50 seconds), until—T: "At the Claridge."
22—"Sleeping Rose" (Valse Lento), by Borch (3 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "This is our dance."
23—"Hunkatin" (A half tone one-step), by Levy (1 minute and 40 seconds), until—S: Interior of automobile."
24—"The Wooing Hour" (2/4 Moderato Grazioso), by Zamecnik (2 minutes and 45 seconds), until—T: "The next day at three."
25—Theme ff. (2 minutes and 30 seconds), until—T: "Brace up, there he is now."
26—Continue to action (1 minute and 20 seconds), until—T: "And that night."
27—"Birds and Butterflies" (Intermezzo Capricioso), by Vely (3 minutes and 10 seconds), until—T: "Huntley only wanted."
28—Theme (3 minutes), until * * * * * THE END.

NEW THEATRES BUILDING

INDIANA

T. G. Perfect of Huntington announces that he will start the erection of a new theater there to seat 1,000 persons.

A $50,000 theatre building is to be erected at Gary on the west side of Broadway, near Sixteenth avenue. It will have a frontage of 50 feet with a depth of 125 feet, and the Mid City Realty Company is said to be financially interested in the project.

At Huntington, T. J. Perfect, owner of the Huntington Motion Picture Company, will erect a new theatre on Jefferson and Washington streets to seat 1,000 persons.

NEBRASKA

S. H. Goldberg announces that the theater being erected by the World Realty Company on Douglas avenue, near Fifteenth street, at Omaha, will be completed by May 1st. It will have a larger seating capacity than the Sun theater.

NEW YORK

On the site of the Colonial theater at Plattsburg, which was burned last year, a new picture theater will be erected.

OHIO

At New Boston a new motion picture theatre will be erected on the corner of Glenwood avenue and Gallia street. It is being erected by J. S. Davis, former mayor of New Boston, and the theatre will seat 600.

Business Offerings

SITUATION WANTED. Young man, year's film experience, wishes studio position in any capacity. P. Greenberg, 158 Bergen St., Newark, N. J.

YOUNG MAN, 17, wishes work in picture company office, for writing releases and other work. No salary expected. Address R. Ferreira, 303 West 74th Street, New York City.

LIBERTY BONDS installment books, War Savings and Thrift Stamps bought for cash. Koffer, 366 Broadway, room 415, New York City. Phone Franklin 659.

The Argus Lamp & Appliance Co.

"One of the Argus Enterprises"

Watch for Our Ad in Next Issue!

E. E. FULTON CO., Chicago
Manufacturers of the FULCO Line of Specialties and Moving Picture Accessories
Be you an Operator, Theatre Owner, Exchange Manager, Supply Dealer or Producer, get in touch with us and we will advise you in what you are interested.

Equipped with UNIVERSAL Motion Picture Camera
"You get the picture and get away before the other fellow is ready."
BURKE & JAMES, Inc.
240 E. Ontario Street, Chicago
225 Fifth Ave. New York

VENTILATE & COOL BY TYPHOONS
TYPHOON FAN COMPANY NEW YORK 281 LEXINGTON AVE.

UNEXCELLED FILM LABORATORIES AND STUDIOS CO. INC.
120-124 School St.
YONKERS, N.Y.
MODERN EQUIPPED STUDIOS FOR RENT
HIGH CLASS DEVELOPING AND PRINTING
TELEPHONE — 4600 YONKERS

For Better Music
The Fotoplayer
62 West 45th Street AMERICAN PHOTO PLAYER CO. New York City

Everything the Showman Needs on Every Picture Released

The Complete Plan Book

Compiled by Peter Milne

Pictures Reviewed in Advance

[In addition to Advance Reviews—covering pictures shown too early to be included in The Complete Plan Book—readers will also find under this heading each week the reviews of short features and serial episodes.]

"Go Get 'Em Garringer"

(Astra-Pathe.—Five Reels)

DEAD men and bullets are thickly scattered throughout the five reels of "Go, Get 'Em Garringer." It may be surmised from the first that it is a Western. Further and still abundant proof is offered in the many wild horse-back rides taken by the principals. Anyone who didn't know how to ride certainly didn't know how to act in this particular instance. By this profuse use of the dead men, the bullets and the riding, John Clymer has succeeded in evolving a regular old-fashioned Western melodrama, with action enough for a serial and with plot enough to interest.

The leads are well taken by Helene Chadwick and Franklyn Farnum, two popular players, while old Dick La Reno and Joe Rickson, villains of scores of pictures, provide a brace of heavy characters that are among those killed when all is said and done.

The plot concerns the bad men who are in danger of being run to earth by the hero sent to the town for clean-up purposes only. The love interest is worked in cleverly.

All in all, "Go, Get 'Em Garringer" will find its field among those patrons of the picture who hanker after the nickcarter-fied type of story. We almost heard the small boys yelling and stamping their feet every time a bullet found its mark.—Peter Milne.

"An Amazing Wife," with Mary McLaren

(Universal Special—Directed by Ida May Parks)

If Miss McLaren has been a drawing card to you in the past, here is a chance to make a general clean-out, because, besides the star, you have the story. It is full of interesting twists which keep one in continual suspense.

The heroine, now an orphan, marries a young man, but he soon proves to be a bad character. He gets into a scrap at a cafe, is hit on the head with a bottle, and is killed. The heroine, becoming terror-stricken, runs away from the scene. While sitting on a bench in the park, she picks up an old newspaper. In the list of casualties she notices the name of a lieutenant, who bears the same name as that of her dead husband, listed as missing. In desperation, she goes to the lieutenant's parents and claims to be their son's wife. Although they state their son never told them about a marriage, they believe her story and take her in.

Some months elapse and the lieutenant, who was a prisoner at a German camp, wounded, escapes and returns. It is from now on that the story becomes intensely interesting. The point that will most puzzle the spectator is how the heroine will be able to get out of the tight fix without being exposed as an impostor. Of course, after the hero fails to give her away, because he is moved by her pathetic story told him in private, many a spectator will say to himself: "Well, he will eventually fall in love with her." It is true he does fall in love with her, but the question will still haunt one as to how they are going to become husband and wife. The spectator is at all times aware of the villain's presence in the person of the hero's cousin, who, having suspected a "nigger in the woodpile," investigates, and through the city hall records uncovers the deception. He is trying to force his attentions upon her. But here is where the author has shown creativeness!

After many interesting as well as exciting turns the story takes, the hero really falls in love with the heroine. But the heroine's several meetings with the villain, during which she begs him not to expose her, promising to disappear from their lives, arouse the hero's jealousy. He has an encounter with the villain, during which the latter sneers at the former for claiming as his wife an impostor and perhaps a woman of the streets. This disrespectful remark angers the hero. He comes to hands with the villain. During the fight the hero's still fresh wound opens and he faints. Fearing the end of his life is near, he sends for a priest and has the marriage solemnized; but he eventually recovers. They are now a bona-fide husband and wife and a happy couple.

The picture is clean and should have a wide appeal.—Released in April. Length, 5 reels.—P. S. Harrison.

"A Fight for Love," with Harry Carey

(Universal Special—Directed by Jack Ford)

Leaving the story to one side, the scenery shown alone is worth the price of admission. It is simply exquisite. In some of the views, tall trees are shown growing right out of the water of the lake; such scenes are rare and the sight worth seeing. The balance of the views have been photographed among the pine and other trees, with lakes and rivers and snow-capped mountains in the background. The whole combination forms a picture that is really enchanting. The Universal people, for the past several years, have made it a practice of taking many of their pictures in Big Bear Valley, California, where wealth of natural scenery abounds; so their cameramen have acquired a keenness for spotting artistic locations such as squirrels possess for spotting chestnuts.

As to the merits of the story, hardly any spectators can say, after looking at the picture, that it has not held their interest, has not offered them some thrills, or has not generally entertained them. The fact that it deals with the Canadian life of the Northwest is enough to make them anticipate great pleasure.

The story is rather strong. A small number of you might think it crosses the line of your allowance; but there is a way to tone it down somewhat; for instance, you can eliminate part of the scene showing the knife duel between the villain and the Red Skin without injuring the story. There is also a thrilling fight shown as taking place between the hero and the villain upon the edge of a high cliff, the villain eventually being thrown down the precipice and killed. While one audience, however, might consider these features a little too strong, there are fifty others who will enjoy it immensely. Released March 24. Length, 6 reels.—P. S. Harrison.

"THE FORBIDDEN ROOM"—FOX

Story of Love and Politics, with Gladys Brockwell Starred

THE woman in politics and in love, too; that is the theme of "The Forbidden Room." Compromised with the man she loves by his political enemies, the woman proceeds to compromise one of the political enemies, in the way of giving him a taste of his own medicine. The plot comes out in court and all ends for the best.

There is a remarkable story interest to this picture and no little dramatic intensity provided by the woman's scheme, its carrying out and the ultimate uncovering of it in the court room. Its various intricacies are well handled both in the writing and the producing, with the result that the picture ranks with the best that the star, Gladys Brockwell, has done.

Miss Brockwell is excellent in the many emotional scenes in which she is the pivotal figure. Her support, headed by William Scott, J. Barney Sherry and Harry Dunkinson, is fully able to cope with the various highly dramatic moments with which the picture is loaded. The direction of Lynn Reynolds is also commendable. Mr. Reynolds, usually associated with the out-door picture, shows himself well equipped to handle a subject of this opposite character—Length, 5 reels.—Released March 2.—Peter Milne.

THE CAST

Ruth Lester.....Gladys Brockwell
Anthony Curtis.....William Scott
Mason Clark.....J. Barney Sherry
Chief of Police.....Harry Dunkinson
Detective.....Al Fremont
Lawyer.....William Burress
Hotel Manager.....T. S. Guise
Stool Pigeon.....Louis King
Judge.....R. Dunber
Stenographer.....Lillian West
Virginia Clark.....Virginia Lee Corbin
Francis Clark.....Francis Carpenter
Story by W. S. Van Dyke.
Staged by Lynn F. Reynolds.
Photographed by J. Dev. Jennings.

ADVERTISING AIDS

PAPER:—Two one-sheets; two three-sheets; one six-sheet; one twenty-four-sheet.
LOBBY DISPLAY:—Ten 8x10 black and white photographs; ten 11x14 black and white; three 22x28 colored.
PRODUCTION CUTS:—Five two-column; four one-column. These present intimate scenes between the various leading characters, moderate in tone.
ADVERTISING CUTS:—Four two-column; two one-column. The two-columns are particularly effective both as regards illustrations and arguments.
SLIDE AND MUSIC CUE SHEET also provided at all Fox branches.

AD TALK

The eternal feminine in politics; this is the theme of the latest William Fox photodrama, "The Forbidden Room," which will be seen at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week, with Gladys Brockwell in the principal role. As Ruth Lester the star takes the character of a stenographer, loved and respected by her employer, the district attorney. Through the evil machinations of the chief of police and a contractor, who have grown to fear the honest and open-minded attorney, she is compromised before the man she loves. And not only is her own reputation damaged, but also is his name dragged through the mirk and mire of scandal.

How Ruth Lester sets to work to clear her name and the name of the man she loves from the dark shadow of suspicion forms a photoplay of absorbing interest and not a little dramatic intensity. Her plot, when revealed, proves sensational and effective and in one of the most daring court room scenes ever screened the true facts in the case are made known and the corruptness of the city officials held up to the public gaze.

Miss Brockwell, always praised for her emotional acting, plays the role of Ruth with deep feeling. She is an actress who has the faculty of holding an audience throughout a long close-up, a task which few can accomplish. Her work in "The Forbidden Room" is just about the crowning achievement of her career. Her support includes William Scott, J. Barney Sherry, Harry Dunkinson and other capable players. The film was produced under the direction of Lynn Reynolds from a story by W. S. Van Dyke.

THE STORY

